MEETING OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

DR. MITCHELL GIVES INTERESTING REPORT

On last Tuesday morning, March 5th, at 10.30, an important meeting of the Board of Trustees of the College was held in Old College Hall. It was devoted entirely to the transaction of routine business and the reading of reports by Dr. Mitchell and others.

In addition to giving a detailed account of the various interests about the campus, he greatly emphasized the indispensable work which Delaware, as a typical American College, is performing in the interests of the nation during the war crisis. In addition to mentioning the number of men in the service he made the following remarks:

"The College has placed freely at the disposal of the National services its buildings. Purnell House has been from the beginning headquarters for the Conscription Board for rural New Castle County; the Steel House was used for the Questionnaire Advisory Board; the East Wing of Old College is now in use by the Medical Advisory Board; and the Red Cross has had its offices in the Elliott Building. During one of the bitterest nights of February, forty-three (43) army trucks reached the campus about dusk on their way to Camp Meade. The men, numbering about 85, were comfortably housed in the College Gymnasium where they enjoyed the use of the showers and swimming-pool, and were made as comfortable as possible. It was touching to hear their expressions of gratitude.

Only the past week the students and faculty subscribed to $3,777 in War Savings Stamps, and canvassed the community in the interest of this cause.

The members of the Senior Class who entered the Third Officers' Training Camp on January 5, as well as those who entered the Wilmington Ship-Yards on February 1, the Faculty will recommend to you in June as candidates for their respective degree, if they fulfill expectations in these forms of National service."

Another interesting feature of the report was the financial success of the commons. Miss Stuart in cooperation with Mr. Langhorn, has now put the dining hall on a paying basis. Even on this self-supporting basis there is a general expression of satisfaction from the student body as to the quality of the food served and the spirit of fellowship which is promoted. (Continued on Page 4)

STUDENT COUNCIL HOLDS DANCE

The Student Council dance which was held last Friday evening was a ripping success. The dance was held as usual in Old College Hall, a building which is so admirably fitted for such entertainments. The hall was absolutely without decoration but the beautiful gray-toned walls are enough to satisfy the eye and the taste of the most critical observer. The floor was in excellent condition and everyone present was enabled thru that to trip the light fantastic more easily. The music was under "Bob's" admirable leadership and after the first note was struck we knew there was nothing to be desired. "If You Look in Her Eyes" was the most popular piece played by the orchestra. It seemed to have a tremendous effect upon "les danseurs et les danseuses" because the selection was both anticipated and followed by the actions of the dancers which exactly suited the words. No one could blame them in the least because good music has a most potent effect upon every human being who possesses any sort of an aesthetic nature.

It is with great forbearance on our part that we speak of the beautiful Dianias who graced the affair with their charming presence, for fear that we shall make those who were not there extremely jealous. But we cannot fail to relate that beauty, charm, attractiveness, laughing eyes, pearly teeth, and wonderful locks of all colors were mingled so that no man could have ever desired more. Refreshments were served from the kitchen of the Commons. They consisted of peach custard and little cakes and they were greatly enjoyed by all. There were about sixty or sixty-five couples present. The dancing continued from eight till twelve at which latter hour the dance ended. We urge very strongly that everyone turn out for the next college dance and made it as great a success as this last one. It is for the mutual benefit of both you and the college to support these dances. The student body has to pay for the piano in the lounge of Old College Hall and this method is about the easiest way to liquidate that debt. You will, besides, be benefiting yourselves thru the mere enjoyment of the evening. Let's all go to the next dance and make it a "wizzer."

Government Will Call Student Officers

The Baltimore Sun has recently printed a paragraph to the effect that the thirty thousand college men between the ages of seventeen and twenty would be called on June 1 to drill for one month in camp. These men are the fellows who are included in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, of which Delaware College has a branch. The account stated also that the college men would drill with the regular army. Colonel Pendleton has received no official communication as to the truth or falsity of the statement and it is probably simply a rumor which is current at the present time. The Juniors and Seniors of the Delaware College R. O. T. C. will be called some time during the next few months but the exact time is not known to the college authorities.

DELAWARE MEN IN THE SERVICE

HONOR ROLL GROWING

Evidence of the share which Delaware College is contributing to the nation in this great world war, was brought out in bold relief by Dean E. Lawrence Smith's statistical report, delivered in chapel on Monday, March 4th. Although somewhat incomplete in places, the report as a whole shows that Delaware is proportionately in the foreground of American colleges for services rendered, and that even at this early stage has made a record of which every alumnus and student may well be proud.

The honor roll which has been increasing rapidly now contains the names of 159 men, of which 32 are undergraduates who abandoned their college course to enlist or accept commissions. The remaining 127 include graduates and those attended but did not complete their course. According to Dean Smith's investigation the men on the honor roll represent practically every class since 1900. Of these men 65 were engineers, 60 arts and science, and 34 agricultural students.

Of the 159 men there are 15 concerning whom the Dean could not secure any definite information. The disposition of the remainder by branch of service is as follows: Infantry, 53; Artillery, 19; Aviation, 19; U. S. Engineers, 10; Navy, 10; Naval Reserves, 10; Medical Corps, 10; Cavalry, 4; Marine Corps, 3; Quartermaster Corps, 2; Ordnance Department, 3; Y. M. C. A., 1; making a total of 144 which have been accounted for.

"By rank, Delaware men held the following positions: Under this head my information is complete for only 85 men. Colonel, 1; Major, 4; Captain, 16. The percentage of men holding commissions of Captain or above is almost 25 percent. 1st Lieutenant, 16; 2nd Lieutenant, 21; thus 58 out of 85, or almost 70 percent, for whom the information is complete, hold a (Continued on Page 3)

GOLD FOOTBALLS AWARDED TO "D" MEN

Coach Plans For Physical Culture

At chapel exercise last Wednesday, Coach Baumgartner presented to the members of the varsity eleven, the gold footballs. On one side of each ball is marked in blue letters the year; on the other side is engraved the player's name and his position on the team. The following men received footballs: William T. Stewart, left halfback; Harry Loose, fullback; George Tonkin, quarterback; Henry Marston, fullback; Allan Lauritsen, left guard; Charles T. Meyers, left end; Captain Ernest Wilson, right tackle; Bayard Carter, left tackle; Alfred Mackie, left guard; Lee Roach, right guard; Mike Plam, halfback; Walter D. Holton, center; Hugh McCaughan, right end; Knowles R. Bowen, manager.

At the time that he presented the footballs, Coach Baumgartner told the students that he has prepared a plan for physical culture for the "sophs" and freshmen. The coach plans that all fellows in these two classes who are not trying for a place on some one of the college teams shall exercise on Frazer Field at least one hour a week. This exercise is nominally a requirement for the first two years, but during the past two years it has been a novelty. The coach plans that men who are trying for any college team shall be given their required credits in this work.

Interclass Champions To Receive Silver Basketballs

Thru a movement started among the student body the interclass basketball champions will receive silver basketballs. These basketballs will be purchased by the voluntary contributions of the four classes. Each class has already pledged itself to bear its share of the expense, and the champions are now assured some emblem of their prowess.

Last year silver baseballs were given to the interclass baseball champions, and as a result greater interest was turned to athletic events pertaining to the various classes. The student body by its generous action has taken a great step towards advancing the athletic interests at Delaware College. The students learn to understand that these interclass games mean something, and as a result our standard of interclass athletics is raised. In these class games men who never before had an incentive to show their skill, turn out and "bring their light from under the bushel." The result is that the Coach is able to see possibilities for future varsity material; that the students engaging in these interclass games take a greater interest in athletics and class affairs; and last, but not least, that the college spirit is kept at a high pitch even after the varsity schedule is complete.

No matter which team wins the championship these little tokens will stand for activity in class affairs, interest in athletics, and for fair play and clean sportsmanship.

SHIPS AND THE WAR

Lecture By Professor F. P. McKibben

On Monday morning Professor Frank P. McKibben of Lehigh University, delivered a lecture about the American ship-building program. The lecture was a part of the publicity campaign of the Emergency Fleet Committee. It was illustrated by numerous lantern-slides depicting various features of ship-building.

Professor McKibben first defined Pan-Germanism, and told something of its aims and of its lust for conquest. He showed how its aim was the control of Central Europe from the North Sea to the Persian Gulf, as well as the control of a large part of South America.

He then told of the vital necessity for ships. "Every man at the front," he said, "needs daily 150 pounds of supplies. To give him these we must have 70 ships in French harbors, 70 ships in American ports, and 420 ships going each way upon the ocean: a total of 980 ships. To build these in time demands that we build in 1918 just twenty-five times the total tonnage that was built in 1917. To accomplish this, we must have materials, dock-yards, and men. We have the materials and the yards, but now we must have the men."

The speaker then continued, showing details of modern ship-construction. He showed photographs of ships under construction, and gave the advantages of both steel and concrete ships.

He then gave the details of some of the proposed dock-yards and canals, by which are to be linked the manufacturing and transportation facilities. He showed some views of the Kiel canal, and commented on the fact that the improvement of the canal was finished in May, 1914.

In conclusion, Professor McKibben spoke of the great need for men. He told of the remarkable wages that unskilled men are receiving at the dock-yards. The speaker ended with this appeal: that those students, who have long and idle vacations, and those graduates, who are not already engaged in war work, take up the task of helping out the ship-building program.

"Len" Daley Quits College

Leonard Daley, known to the whole college as "Len," has left college. His leaving is not only a blow to the Sophomore class but to the whole college. "Len" was known and admired for his good humor, his Irish wit, and his college pep. During his stay at Delaware College "Len" was active in all things. As a Freshman he played on the class football team that battled the Sophomores to a scoreless tie. He also played second base for the championship baseball team his class put out during its Freshman year. Besides being active in athletics "Len" was also well known as a literary genius. He was class historian in his Freshman and Sophomore classes; he was on the Review Staff and was also assistant editor of the Delaware Farmer. He is a member of the Sigma Nu Fraternity. The whole student body already misses "Len," and each and every one at "Old Delaware" sends best wishes to "Len" in whatever he may undertake.

Interclass Basketball Series

The first week of the interclass basketball series comes to a close with the classes in the following standing:

Team	Games Played	Games Won	Games Lost	Percentage
Freshman	3	3	0	1000
Junior	3	2	1	.666
Sophomore	3	1	2	.333
Senior	3	0	3	.000

If I Were A College Man Again

Recently Dean Alexander of Swarthmore gave an address to the student body of that college on this subject. In the course of his remarks, he said:

1. "I would learn to make a good speech in public." The Dean explained the way in which this ability was necessary for the fullest possible success in all branches of life. "If I were in college again I would enter every oratorical contest and every debating contest. If I were not successful in making the team after four years of honest effort I would still have received invaluable training for use in after life."
2. "No man can succeed in life if he is mentally slouchy." To overcome this fault the Dean advised taking more difficult courses. A man should apply himself and conquer his hardest subject instead of choosing the line of least resistance and sliding through college on a cinch course, only to run up against the bumps of life totally unequipped to fight them."
3. "If a rule is not good, apply yourself and try to convince those who made it to change it. But do not consider yourself an exception to any rule," was Dean Alexander's third point. "Try to have it changed but live up to it while it is in force and so make for the glory of your Alma Mater."
4. "Be a good sport. That does not mean to live a fast life, but it does mean not to be a quitter. Real grit has accomplished more in the world than any other one factor."
5. "Fight College politics. College offices should be awarded on merit not pull. College politics have caused more bad feeling than anything in school life and they cut down the high standing of a school by putting unqualified men into responsible positions."
6. "Be thoroughly honest. Men have gone out from every school disgraced because they have failed to be honest in little things. Successful in getting away with little things from another fellow's room they try it wholesale and always fall down.

7. "In ordinary times prepare to be able to make money and still be of service to those around you. But in times like these bend all of your energies towards performing the greatest possible service to your country."

8. "Be a fighter. You cannot be a pacifist in the face of the crimes Germany has committed against humanity, particularly in Belgium. You have to prepare yourself in these days to be a real fighting man."

9. "Make more friends. Fraternities should not be a bar to friendships. They should be based on the qualities of the man himself. The more friends a man has the more he will enjoy life, and especially in old age."

10. "Formulate a philosophy of life. Make for yourself a religion that will stand every-day wear."

In glancing over these ten rules we can not help but observe that they apply equally as well to Delaware as Swarthmore men. There are few of us who can not profit by adapting Dean Alexander's suggestions.

It is true that many of us cannot stand on our feet before an audience and make a good talk. But whose fault is it? The different societies, clubs, and other organizations give every Delaware man an opportunity to learn how to make a speech.

It is true that some students elect the "soft" courses but they are the losers thereby. There are no "easy" courses to the diploma of success in life's battle.

It is true that there are rules at Delaware which the students would desire annulled. But it is not our part to administer the affairs of the college. Ours is but to obey, and while still obedient try to point out the weaknesses of those statutes which are detrimental to the welfare of all.

It is true that we are not all "Good Sports." Defeat is hard to swallow but the man who takes it as a step to greater progress is the one who experiences the smallest member of reverses in the future. Real grit can accomplish anything but defeat is necessary to develop this spirit of determination.

It is true that college politics exist at Delaware. Again we are the loser. The college is judged by what it does, not by its potent power and ability. If men are put in responsible student offices thru "crooked politics" when other men—better men—are held down, the college and students suffer. If the President of the student body is elected by a clique the students are handicapped all year by having an inefficient man at their head. If the captain of an athletic team is chosen because of popularity and not because of real ability the team suffers. So it is with all activities in which politics plays a part.

It is true that we are not all honest. Some of us, all of us, may be honest in our dealings with our fellow students but we are not all honest to ourselves and sometimes to our parents. We are not fair to ourselves when we get a "C" when we should have "pulled" an "A." We are not true to ourselves and to our Alma Mater when we do not lend our services to those activities which need our support. We are not loyal when we subordinate the progress of our college to our own personal whims.

It is true that all of us are not preparing, as we should, for the future. Some of us are living too much in the present. Even in normal times this practice is inexcusable, but in the present emergency such irresponsibility is intolerable.

It is true that many of us are poor fighters. Sooner than fight and work to see something made right which we know to be wrong we prefer to stand back and allow the evil to continue. Numerous practices exist at Delaware which practically every student deprecates and yet they continue from year to year without any concerted attempt to abolish them.

It is true that we make enemies sometimes when we should make a friend. Too often we allow our petty jealousies enter into our estimate which we make of our associates. Fraternities do not affect the character of a man. The good qualities in a man remain whether he belongs to this or that fraternity. It is the man himself that should be judged when forming friendships, not the fraternity. All fraternities have good men and the belief that all of the best men belong to "Our" crowd is exploded. If this were true there would be no fraternities. Simply because a man belongs to a different fraternity does not mean that you should not be good friends. Nor does it mean that you should not vote for him in elections if he is better qualified for the office than your own "brother." You are not helping your "brother" by electing him to an office for which he is not fitted; you are hurting your Alma Mater when you cast a partial ballot when the partiality is not deserved; you are not gaining friends by acting contrary to your judgment.

It is true that few of us have formulated a philosophy of life. Most of us go about day by day, thinking little of our purpose in life, drifting wherever the stream of life carries us. Sometimes we are taken so far by the tide that we can not swim back and start over. Then it is too late. Often a student reaches his Senior year before he stops to realize what his college course means to him, what he is coming to college for. Some students do not realize until they have left college. These are the men who are handicapped in life's struggle. But the man who enters college with an end in view, the man who is determined to put forth his best efforts to get an education, this is the man who formulates a philosophy of life and establishes for himself principles upon which he can build a successful career.

It is too late for the upper-classmen to remedy their evils and atone for their mistakes. They have reached the stage where they must look back upon their college life and pick out those things which they should have done differently and which they would do differently if they only had the chance. But it is too late, their opportunity is gone, and their sole comfort lies in the fact that they may exert some influence which will warn and encourage the under-classmen to avoid the same mistakes which they made for four years.

This is the time for the younger men to build their foundation for their college training. The ideals, and rules which they set up for themselves now will guide them not only through college but also thru life. No better rules could be formulated to direct the destiny of students entering upon their college course than these set forth by Dean Alexander. The Seniors of today at Delaware, and those who have preceded, would be better men, better liked and better educated, they had followed these ten rules.

When students do begin to follow these principles the thought "If I were a college man again" will not arise in each student's mind as he approaches graduation.

Student Expression

Dear Editor:

Last week there appeared in your columns an unsigned article which criticized the lack of "college spirit" on the part of some Delaware students. It also criticized those who have been deploring the weakness of certain organizations about college.

Now, I maintain that the phrasing "of the college, by the college, and for the college" means in this instance practically nothing. It does not require superior intelligence to interpret the meaning of the writer when he used these phrases. It is plain to be seen that by his interpretation of "of the college, by the college, and for the college" the writer means the participation in banquets, parties, the dances and other social friff-fraff. Moreover, it means that the "true" college man must by all means wear a "toppy" little class hat and dash around hotel corridors giving nonsensical yells. He must hire ill-fitting dress suits and pauperize himself for several days. He must bring himself in the public eye by perpetuating "innocent" little tricks on theatre audiences. I refer to such incidents as the freeing of pigeons in the Playhouse and the disorder that occurred at the Garrick two years ago when the manager held up the show till the students became orderly. I have been present at several of these affairs and heard the comments of nearby spectators. Their opinions could not be taken as complimentary to "the pick of Delaware"—the young men who are to be leaders.

Despite the noble ranting of some enthusiastic persons about loyalty and means of showing it, I maintain that the student "of the college, registered in the Dean's office and having his name printed in the spring catalogue" is the ideal student if he soberly applies himself to his courses. If loyalty is to be shown, herein lies the best means of showing it.

I may be wrong in my opinions. If so, I respectfully offer a suggestion. The students, have of late taken to themselves much authority. Why not take the last step? Why could not the faculty be asked for their resignations and in their place why could we not have Chaplin teach us "college" stunts and forty or fifty dancing masters to make us accomplished exponents of the benefits of a college education?

Sincerely yours,
F. S.

MEETING OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Miss Stuart has proven herself to be the right person in the right place and has won the hearty cooperation of the students.

With reference to scholarship Dean E. Lawrence Smith reported that the total enrollment of students for the present session is 217 of whom 37 have withdrawn to enter the service of the country. He also stated that the scholarship standing had shown a marked advancement, as only 12 percent of the student body fell below the requirements. Another report was given by Dean Smith as to statistics of the men now in service. This report has been given separate treatment elsewhere in the Review.

Another report, arranged by Dr. K. R. Greenfield, Student Secretary, was given dealing with various student activities. Particular mention was made of the enthusiastic manner in which the student body is using Old College Hall as a center of student life. Reference was also made to the numerous organizations and publications, and their places of meeting in the new structure. Another important factor mentioned in Dr. Greenfield's report was the religious life of the students. Weekly meetings are held each Sunday and speakers are secured to deliver a talk on some religious subject. Furthermore the fraternities and the men in the dormitories have arranged for mid-week classes in which to study the Bible and the application of Christian principles to the issues and purposes of the war.

Subsequent reports were submitted by Dr. George S. Counts, as to the progress made in the training of vocational teachers; by Dean A. R. Cullimore in industrial education; by J. H. Hossinger as to the condition of the Department of Agriculture, and by Chas. M. Curtis in the Women's College.

commission. Sergeant, 9; Corporal, 7."

The above paragraph contains statements which are most significant to everyone connected with the college. To have 70 percent of the men accounted for, as holding commissions in the United States Army, is no small accomplishment, and Dean Smith goes on record as being willing to place the record of Delaware College, with that of any other institution of the same size, type, and standard.

As to service in the Navy, Dean Smith has secured the following information: "Lieutenant Commander, 2; Midshipmen, 1; Gunner on Battleship Delaware, 1; Quartermaster, 1; Surgeon, 2; Paymaster, 1."

"So far as I have been able to discover, 19 men are now actually in foreign service and I do not doubt that several others have recently been sent over, specific information, however, has not reached me."

CHAPEL TALKS

Chapel exercises during the past week have been very interesting. They have been characterized by several brief but entertaining addresses.

Mr. Thomas Davis on Tuesday told the students of life at Delaware a number of years ago. Mr. Davis is a member of the board of trustees, and has the unique distinction of having attended forty-six successive commencements.

Dr. William J. Rowan on Wednesday spoke on the subject of religion. He explained to the students the vital necessity of religious observance. He showed that religion is essential to a well-rounded life, and urged the students to give a few minutes a day to religious observance of some sort.

Class Of 1921 Leads in Class
Basketball Championship

The class of 1921 leads in the Class Basketball championship. With three games won and none lost they top the league with 1000 percent. Last Monday the series of games opened with the Juniors lined up against the Seniors and the Freshmen against the Sophomores. In the opening contests the Junior and Freshmen both won easily. The next games which were played last Wednesday, the Freshmen defeated the Juniors 15-14, while the Sophs trimmed the Seniors 18-8. The Junior-Fresh game was the best one which has been played. At the close of the first half the Freshmen were in the lead by a 12-3 score but in the second half the Juniors came back strong and the game was only decided in the last few minutes of play. The class of 1919 scored 11 points to the Freshmen's 3 in the second half but it wasn't sufficient to win the game. Last Friday the Seniors were easy "pickings" for the first-year men while the Sophomores were defeated by the Juniors 18-11.

According to general "dope" the Freshmen will defeat the Seniors and the Juniors, again beat the Sophs Friday. If the Junior should defeat the Freshmen tomorrow and both teams win Friday it would be a tie for the championship. But if the Freshmen win tomorrow they will become unquestionably the champions. The score:
