SOCIAL COMMITTEE

The Social Committee of the Student Government Association is the group responsible for providing social events for the student body. This year's committee, piloted by Vernon Patterson and Beverly Deidrick, has exhibited remarkable ingenuity in providing diversion for the campus proletariat. For instance, the WHATCHAMACALL-IT dance, a catch-as-catch-can-can, ushered in a glittering (with rhinestones from the local five and dime) social season at Delaware. Ted Berger's band gave out with the dance music while Delaware elite, all looking like extras in Hellzapoppin, necked in the corners. (Dissenters insisted on dancing since there were only four corners in the Field House). Next on the pressing social agenda was the Thanksgiving Formal which meant the coeds had to squeeze into cinches to display the "new look" to advantage. The chameleon-like field house changed its face again: this time it represented the Pilgrim colony complete with turkeys, pumpkins, log cabins and other legendary fripperies which our New England forbears probably never saw. Bob Harry and orchestra provided music which would send John Allen and Priscilla Mullins back to the old country. For the Traditional Christmas Formal the hard-working decorating crew of the committee tried to create the illusion of a White Christmas. A huge snow man dominated proceedings in the field house while couples decked in holiday finery (boiled tux shirts and diving decolletes) staggered to tunes called by Bob Shebley and his orchestra.

The proceeds of the Formal went to the University World Relief Fund and, mirabile dictu, this dance made money, which would suggest that Delaware students are spicing their rumbas with social consciousness these days. The last big dance of the year, the Spring Formal, was scheduled to coincide with traditional May Day celebrations. In addition to staging dances for the general student body, the committee also underwrites, publicizes, and taxes its collective brain to put over the various class dances: the Junior Prom, zenith of the social season, which this year featured Claude Thornhill; and the less spectacular Freshman, Sophomore, and Senior hops. Always straining for an innovation, the Social Committee scheduled a class-day.

May Day 1947

Focal point for spring activities on the lower campus is the traditional May Day celebration, presented annually on Alumnae and Alumni Reunion day by the Women's Athletic Department and directed by Miss Beatrice Hartshorn. The customary queen and her court are chosen by the women students representing standouts in beauty and personality. Last year's May Queen was Kathryn Ewing Brewer, first married Queen in the history of the school, who was attended by other campus beauties. Following the customary procession of the Queen and her attendants, and the age-old May Pole Dance, dances centering about the music of Moussoursky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" were staged. Betty Gam served as May Day Chairman in 1947.

MACK TRUCKS

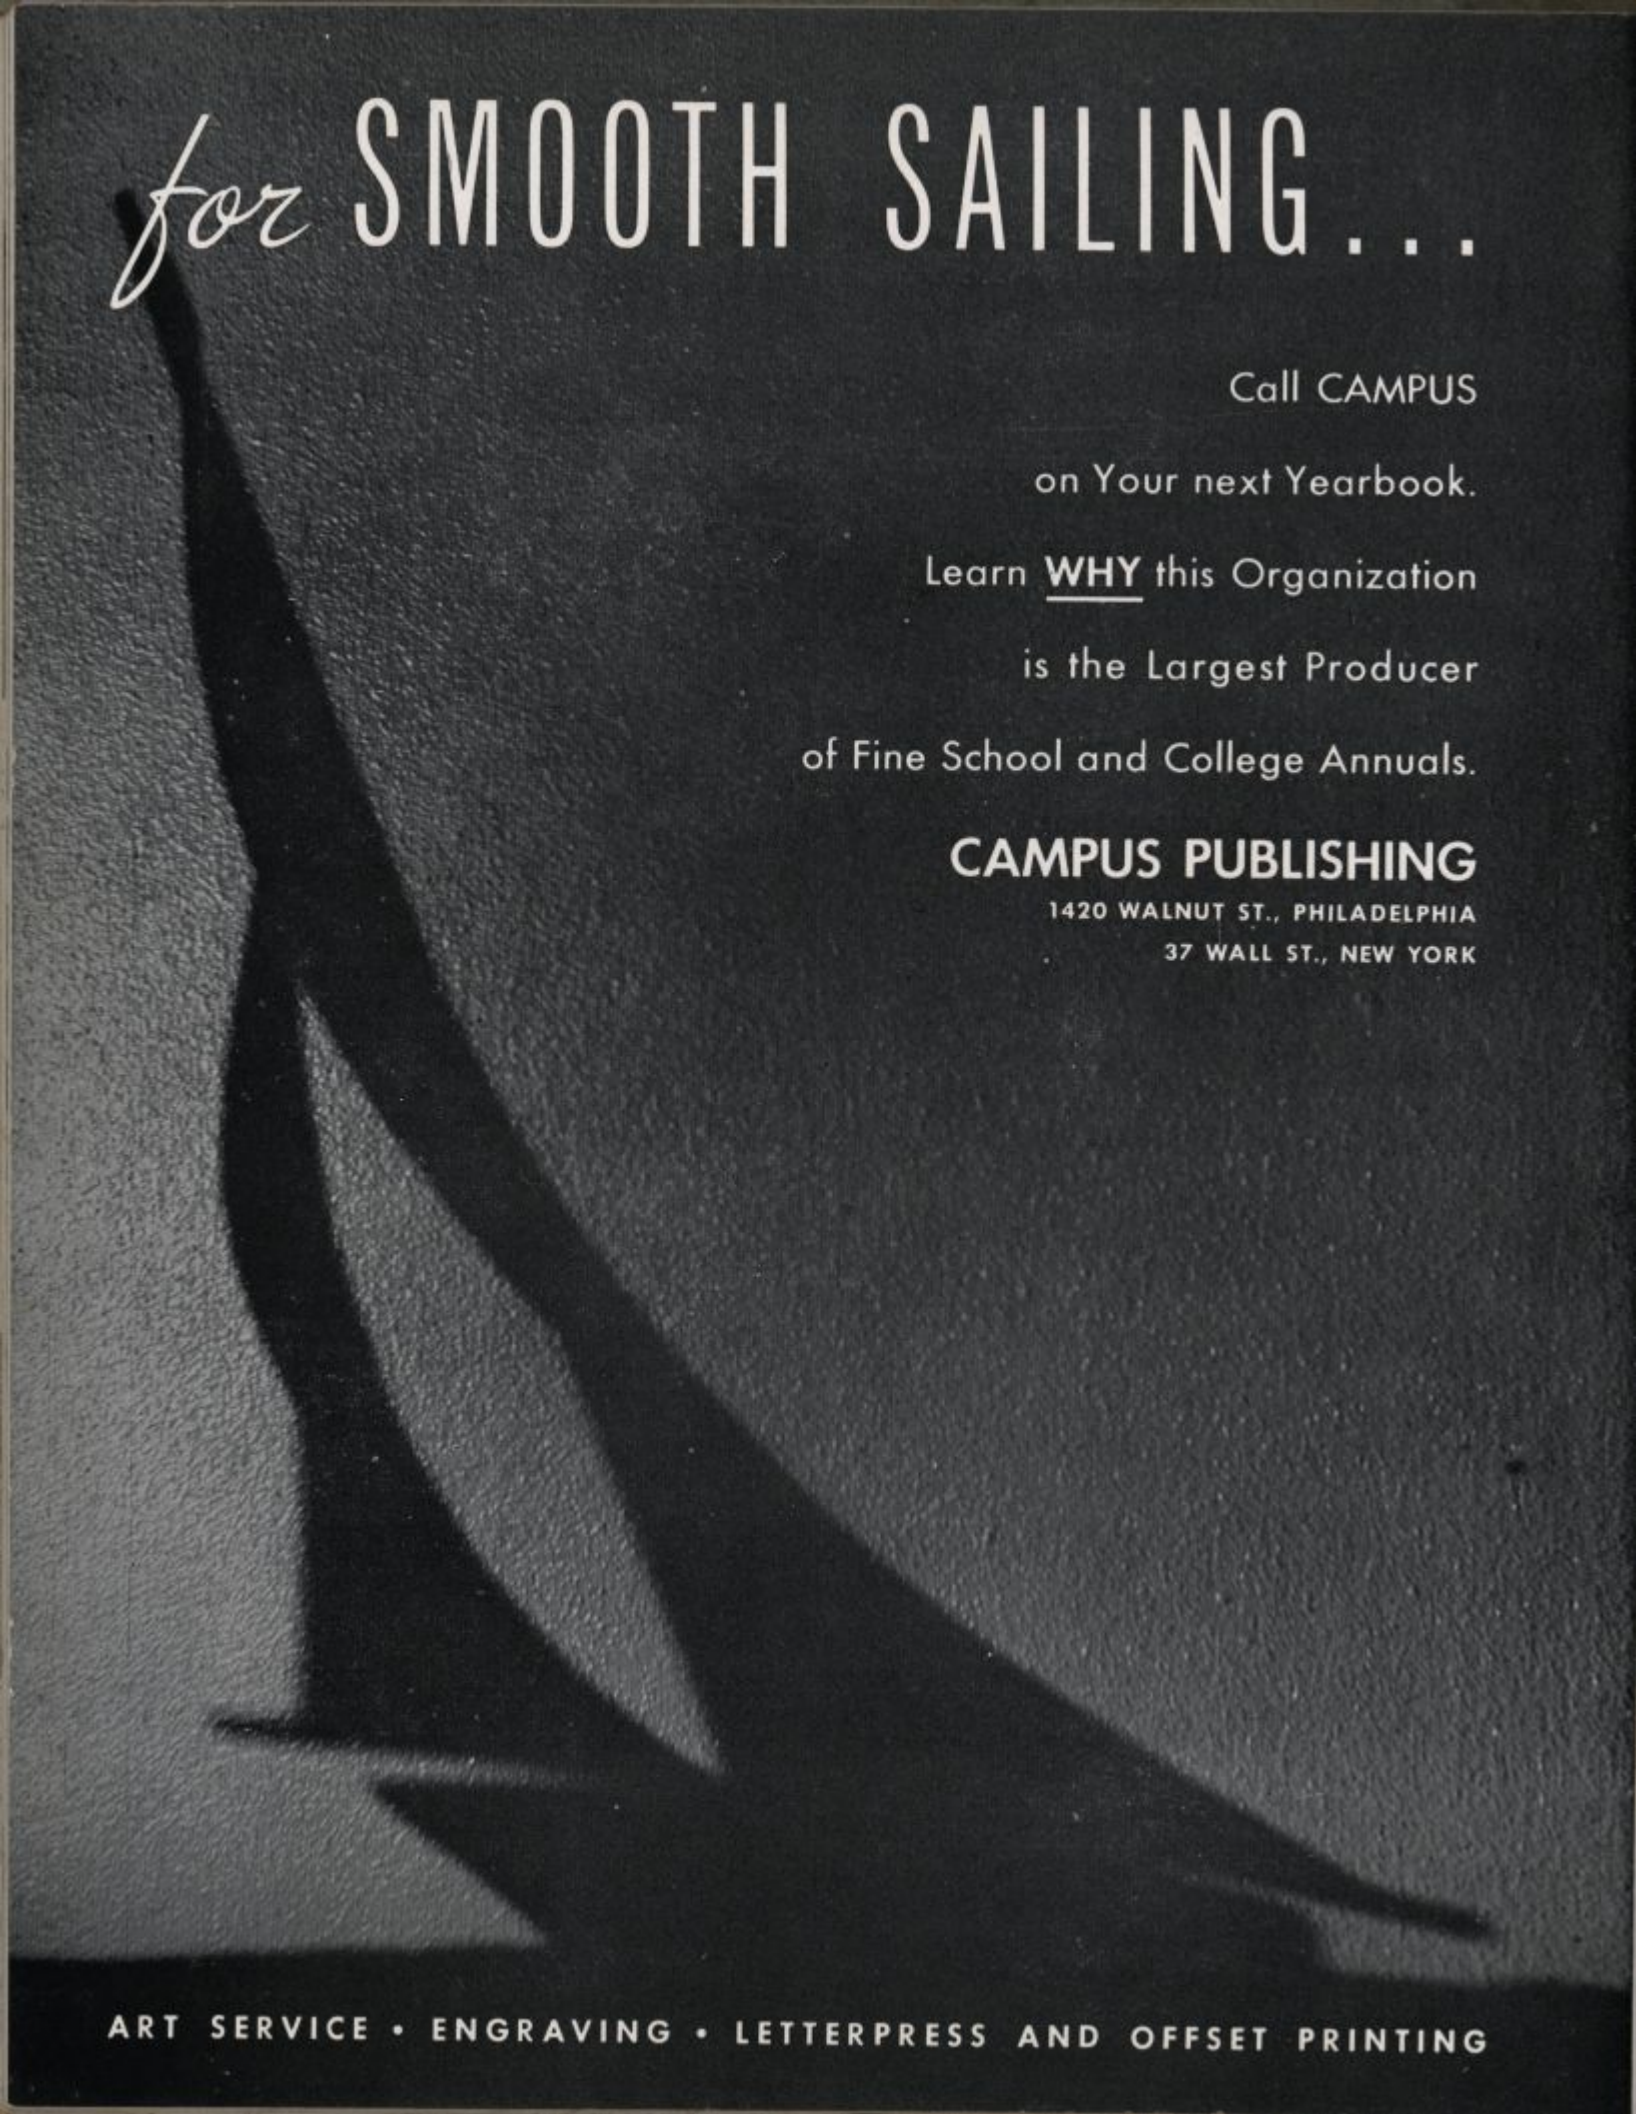

for Great Occasions

in 1948 . . .

Gold Ball Room, with its elegant, roseal marble staircase; unique cartouches over the doorways; artistic walls done almost entirely in exquisite sgraffito; the full-length figures in bas relief representing the muses of various nationalities; its 20 medallions, in bas relief, of history's most beautiful women; its exquisite Italian coffered ceiling; the elaborate chandeliers, each hand-carved from a single piece of fine oak; and the many other beauties of architecture and appointments comprising the Louis XIV detail make this one of the most luxurious drawing rooms between New York and Washington. It is available to Delaware society for its more formal social occasions.
