Chandler Appointed To Direct
Pre-College Program At U. D.

Cheyney State College Educator J. King Chandler, III, Heads Project Sponsored by DuPont Co. to Help Students Enter College; Formal Operation Expected In January

J. King Chandler, III, has been appointed director of the University of Delaware's pre-college program for disadvantaged high school youth. Chandler, an associate professor of education at Cheyney State College, Pa., since 1961, will hold a joint appointment in the division of urban affairs and as an assistant professor in the college of education.

Funds to prepare a proposal for a pre-college program to identify and assist disadvantaged high school youth in northern Delaware, were provided by the DuPont Company. The ultimate objective of the program is to help students complete high school and enter college.

The project is being directed by the division of urban affairs in cooperation with the college of education. Officials in the public school system are being asked to assist.

Native of Alabama
A native of Birmingham, Ala., Chandler is a graduate of Wilberforce University and holds a master's degree and professional diploma from Columbia.

In 1953 he received an honorary degree from Morehouse College, Liberia, for his work in higher education in institutions under auspices of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

Named Educator of the Year by Radio Station WCIN in 1958 for his work in public education in Cincinnati, he taught in the Cincinnati public school system; at Talladega College, Ala.; and was president of Daniel Payne College in Birmingham from 1950 to 1955.

Chandler's concern for cultural deprivation, urban education, pre-college readiness programs, and rehabilitation services was stimulated by his participation in a three-week human relations workshop sponsored by the graduate school of the University of Michigan in 1963. He held a full scholarship there under auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and subsequently served as coordinator for pre-college readiness programs at Cheyney State College supported by the Ford Foundation.

Active in civic, religious and community affairs, Chandler is an official of the Boy Scouts of America and the YMCA and an adviser to H-Y groups. He was named Kappa Man of the Year in 1963-64 by the Philadelphia alumni chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

Preliminary Investigation
During the next three months, university officials will continue to investigate similar educational programs in other parts of the nation and will study conditions in northern Delaware in an effort to formulate a successful plan.

A major problem will be to develop methods for evaluating the intelligence and leadership qualities of disadvantaged young people.

Emphasis will be to seek out and encourage young people with ability and leadership potential who have not shown these characteristics during their previous school experience.

Students will be encouraged to acquire a higher level of motivation or self-direction and to improve their academic skills and competence in critical subject matter areas.

Efforts will be made to build affirmative attitudes toward school, family and other institutions, and to introduce them to aspects of college life.

It is expected that organizational staff work will continue through November, and formal operation of the program will begin next January.

James P. Brooks Rescues Frank Dauphin, Jr., 18, Saturday, At Dewey Beach

The life of an 18-year-old Newark boy was saved by a Salesianum classmate last Saturday when Frank Dauphin, Jr., of 413 Paper Mill Road suffered three broken neck vertebrae in the heavy Delaware ocean surf off Dewey Beach, and was rescued by James P. Brooks, 17, of 2708 Madison Street, Wilmington.

"Brooks saved my life," were Dauphin's first words to his parents from his Delaware Hospital bed. "We owe a lot to that boy Brooks."

"Frank told me Jim went back in three times fighting the waves before he was able to pull him in. There was a terrific undertow."

The two youths were graduated together from Salesianum High School last June. However, each went separately to Dewey Beach for the holiday weekend.

Frank was visiting cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winchester, who have a trailer at Dewey Beach, and Jim was with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rowland Brooks.

"It didn't look rough," Brooks said, "but every once in a while a big breaker would come along. One of them knocked Frank down, and he couldn't get up again. When I looked out, all I could see was the back of his head and his swimming trunks. I knew he was hurt. It wasn't deep. He just couldn't move and every time he tried to get up a wave knocked him down again."

He said the lifeguard was busy with other swimmers in distress. Brooks estimates the waves were "from 10 to 12 ft. high" and "came straight up and broke straight down. The first couple of times I couldn't get a good grip on him," he said.

The 6-ft. 180-pounder admits "it wasn't easy" bringing his injured buddy to safety. He said an unidentified man helped lift Frank the last few feet to the beach.

Dauphin, 6-2, weighs 175. Frank's face was blue, Jim said, but he remained conscious throughout the rescue and the ambulance trip to Beebe Hospital, at Lewes.

After first aid there he was transferred to Delaware Hospital.

A repairman on the chassis line, Adams suggested that a cotter key be used instead of a nut and bolt in the installation of rear-seat belts. His idea saved a penny.

In 1963, she was business manager at Grove Point, and this summer was named a unit leader.

Tour Of Eight Homes, Gardens Scheduled
By YWCA For Oct. 2, After Autumn Fair

The annual YWCA-sponsored tour of local homes and gardens will be held Saturday, Oct. 2, between 12:30 and 5 p.m. Tea will be served that afternoon at the YWCA center on South College Avenue.

The tour of eight homes and gardens is held in conjunction with the Autumn Fair at the Smyth Center YWCA, all day Friday, Oct. 1.

Mrs. Melville G. Kershaw is general chairman of the Autumn Fair, and Mrs. Gordon C. Gaddis is chairman of the home and garden tour. Newark people who have opened their homes to the public are: Mrs. F. A. Weihe of Cooch's Bridge Road; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Comings and Mrs. William L. Reese of 569 and 563 Windsor Drive; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hall of Unami Trail; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holburn of Jupiter Road; and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis C. Wallace, Jr. of Neptune Drive in North Star; Mr. and Mrs. William F. Noyes and Harriet Bailey of 176 and 166 West Main Street.

Mrs. Weihe's home is on the historic site of the battle of Cooch's Bridge in the Revolutionary War. There is a monument to commemorate this, and the home has family possessions of historic interest.

The Comings home is contemporary and decorated to feature a collection of Delft ware brought from Holland. The fireplace is done in Delft tile, and there is a display of old Spanish wrought iron over the fireplace and on the walls.

The Reese home is set among trees with a brook in front, a circular drive and two bridges. The main beam in the living room is chestnut from Kennet Square, and is 120 years old.

Some of the furniture was brought from Denmark, and a portrait of the Reese children by Dorcas Widener of Philadelphia, is a point of interest, along with unusual oil painting by Ben Norris of the University of Hawaii.

The Roy Hall home, one-year-old, was designed and built to take advantage of the view of the prospective lake property off Unami Trail. It features expanses of glass on several sides and the large living room, patio, and lower level family room all overlook the lake property and trees.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holburn designed their home, garden, and patio, and have decorated to suit their taste for antiques. There is an unusual Plantation desk; an 18th Century cupboard; and dropleaf table. A French table with a reclining dog beneath it is a feature of the library-sitting room.

The Noyes home on West Main Street, formerly the St. Thomas Episcopal Church rectory, was built in 1851. Mr. and Mrs. Noyes will display a collection of Chinese porcelain known as Rose or Gold Medallion; pieces of Butterfly Medallion, and some Inari ware from Japan.

Miss Bailey, professor emerita of art, at the University of Delaware, lives in a corner row house on Main Street which was built about 1820. The home is furnished with antique furniture and oriental rugs, and houses art objects and a collection of paintings dating over many years. There is a Mayan head from the year 1000.

In addition to Harriet Bailey's own watercolor paintings, there are two watercolors and one print by Leo Tasker of Newark; and a watercolor by Edward Grant of Wilmington.

Original prints and drawings by Margaret Allen, Julio Acuna, and Jane Gardner—all of the art department at the University of Delaware—are among Miss Bailey's collection.

Tickets for the tour of homes and gardens may be purchased at the Newark YWCA prior to Oct. 2, and at a brochure listing the homes and gardens, and a map of their location will be available.

There will be guiding arrows strategically placed on the tour route.

Elementary School Pupils Offered Scheduled Tours Of Research Farm At U. D.

The University of Delaware has invited school children of New Castle county to tour its Newark research farm again this fall, with an additional week of tours planned for kindergarten youngsters.

Tours by elementary school classes will be scheduled during October, with kindergartens invited to visit the farm Sept. 27 through Oct. 1. The additional week of kindergarten tours was added to the schedule because of the growing popularity of the tours, according to Edward H. Schabinger, New Castle County agricultural agent.

More than 30,000 children have visited the farm since tours began in 1957.

The tours, each lasting about an hour, are conducted Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Children have an opportunity to watch cows being milked and farm animals being fed. They see chickens, cattle, horses, pigs, sheep and other farm animals as well as farm machinery and vegetable and field crops research plots.

The research farm, a complete working farm of more than 600 acres, includes two dairy herds; a beef herd; several poultry flocks; apple orchards; fields for crops, and extensive research facilities for farm under way at the agricultural experiment station.

Teachers who wish to have their classes tour the university research farm may schedule their visits by telephoning Schabinger at the University of Delaware.

Classes should be made as soon as possible, Schabinger says, since the number of tours is limited.

Last year when more than 5,400 children visited the farm, several groups had to be turned down because the schedule had been filled.

Delaware Artists Invited To Design Christmas Seals

Delaware artists interested in gaining both national attention and a place in a distinguished gallery of associates, are invited to try their hand at designing the 1967 Christmas Seal.

Working two years ahead, the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society at 1308 Delaware Avenue, Wilmington, has again issued a call to local artists to submit their original designs for consideration to a national committee.

The winning entry earns its creator a $1,000 award and widespread attention via the nationally-used stamp which adorns millions of Yuletide mailings around the country.

Dr. Gerald A. Beatty, president of the local agency, reminded artists that "Delaware has had two artists as winning designers—the first stamp was originated and sold in 1897 by Miss Emily P. Bissell, and another was created by the late Howard Pyle of Wilmington.

"We hope each year that entries from Delaware will return the first state to a winning first position with the seal's design."

In both 1958 and 1962, Walt Stan, Wilmington artist, was among the 10 top seal designers named by the national association's judging committee.

Information about entering the contest can be obtained by contacting the local Society's office.

Speaking of money . . .

"Is there a dream mortgage for your dream home?"

John Buchanan

"If there is, it must be the one right mortgage for you and your circumstances . . . yet one that will give you and your family as much home as it is possible to provide. We have people at the Savings Fund—our mortgage counselors—whose sole job is to arrange right mortgages. They will guide, advise, explain and recommend . . . and above all listen to your plans and needs. We treat these confidences as exactly that, and you are under no obligation to act on our suggestions.

"Here are a few ideas that we can discuss with you.

Loans of up to 90% of appraised value are being made. Terms to 25 years, or interest as low as 5 1/4% are available. To establish your dream home on solid ground, the important thing is to get the down-to-earth facts on mortgages.

"First, talk to your realtor, then . . . we cordially invite you to drop by the Savings Fund, and become acquainted with our mortgage counselors. Let us help you into your new home."

Over the CLOVER

by Dean Belt
4-H Club Agent

Camp is one of the most popular activities on the 4-H schedule. Each summer 4-Hers have the opportunity to attend Camp Barnes for a week. There are two separate weeks of activities attended by nearly 400 members of 4-H from all over the state. New Castle County had 110 members attending the two weeks.

Outstanding members are given recognition in various ways. Leadership, spirit, skills all enter into the selection. Several county members were honored during these two weeks. I'll separate them by weeks.

During the first week the following members were selected as Sagamores of their tribes: Lester Holland and Jane Cooper both from the Stump Corner Club will return next year as chiefs of their groups. Diana Watson a member of the Colonialettes in Penn Acres also was a Sagamore.

The Camp Spirit was Jane Cooper, a Middletown member in the Stump Corner Club.

Persons selected for the H's were Lester Holland and Joyce Yaiser—both from the Middletown area.

For the second week, Debbie Stiles from Christiana and Cecil Holland from Middletown were chiefs.

Eleanor Shaw, Wilmington Manor; Sally Pierson from Newark and Donna Klinger from Eastburn Acres, were Sagamores of their tribes.

The highest honor for the second week of camp went to Eleanor Shaw who was selected as the most outstanding camper and named Spirit.

The H's selected were Cecil Holland and Ricky Roach from Townsend.

Gas Tax Refunds Offered Farmers Filing By Sept. 30

To get gasoline tax refunds Delaware farmers must file the proper papers before Sept. 30, 1965, according to W. T. McAllister, farm management specialist at the University of Delaware.

The refund covers any federal tax paid on gasoline purchased between July 1, 1964, and June 30, 1965. A farmer using 1,000 gallons of the total refund would be $40.

Internal Revenue Service Form 2240 is all that's needed. Cards have already been mailed to farmers who filed last year.

New applicants may get forms from the nearest Internal Revenue Service Office.

Corn Crop Faces Depressed Prices At Harvest Time

Delaware corn growers may be facing seriously depressed prices at harvest time unless they take preventive measures now.

W. T. McAllister, farm management specialist at the University of Delaware, warns that a record corn crop is in the making, and that this unusual glut could cause a severe shortage of drying and storage facilities and force farmers to sell at a time when prices are quite low.

Emergency measures can be taken, he says, but immediate action is required. McAllister believes farmers can avoid selling during this relatively short period of depressed prices by harvesting ear instead of shelled corn; providing temporary storage; buying or leasing drying equipment; or entering into an agreement with a local grain dealer to handle the crop at harvest time.

Even though ear corn and corn cobs may seem old-fashioned, they do provide a means of storing large amounts of high moisture corn. McAllister says this may be the most profitable way to handle at least a portion of the crop.

Since the seasonal glut will probably last only six to eight weeks, temporary storage for ear corn may be an excellent alternative. For this short duration ear corn can be stored in low cost, temporary bins.

The farmers who have no alternative but to harvest shelled corn have only two choices—sell wet corn as it comes from the field, or find some way to dry and store the crop.

Producers who plan to remain in the corn business may want to develop a complete drying, storage unit. Those uncertain about the future, or who have more profitable alternatives for their available capital, may be able to lease or hire suitable equipment.

McAllister feels farmers can take advantage of good relations with local grain buyers who have handled their corn. He suggests getting an agreement with the buyer stating that both buyer and seller operate on the same terms as in previous years when corn supplies at harvest time were smaller.

University Offers Free Registration In Kitchen Clinic

Those who wish individual assistance are asked to bring blueprints, scale drawings, photographs or any other material useful in evaluating kitchen plans. Those who register in advance will receive materials for planning assistance at the meeting.

Registrations for the kitchen clinic may be made by writing to Sue Tattall, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark. There is no charge.

Study Of Trading Stamps Reveals No Added Costs

Shoppers do not pay higher food prices where trading stamps are given, according to a recent price study conducted by the Midwest Research Institute at Kansas City, Mo.

"In fact, there is an indication that if anything, shoppers may pay less for food where trading stamps are in wide use," says Verne A. Bunn, research analyst at the Institute and former professor of marketing at the University of Wichita.

The survey is the fifth in the last five years that he has directed on food prices in stamp and non-stamp areas. Each arrived at a similar conclusion.

Delaware River Bubbles Methane To Prove Pollution

Methane gas bubbles from decomposing sewage and floating debris, made pollution on the Delaware River self-evident to conservationists meeting in Philadelphia, Aug. 22-23. A boat tour from the Philadelphia Navy Yard to Ben Franklin Bridge was one of the highlights of the annual meeting sponsored by the Soil Conservation Society of America.

Leo J. Cotnoir, Jr., associate professor of agronomy at the University of Delaware, attended the meeting and said sessions are designed to keep professional conservationists up with new scientific, theoretical and practical developments in their field. William Scranton, governor of Pennsylvania, gave the keynote address.

Everett L. MacLeman, project director of the Delaware estuary comprehensive study for the Public Health Service, said that the committee will submit a program for pollution abatement by June, 1967.

Over 100 organizations, industrial and governmental, are cooperating in the study which is attempting to develop a realistic water pollution control plan.

If committee recommendations are followed, MacLeman said, the man in the street should notice a definite difference in water quality within five years.

All citizens — rural and urban, landowner and land-user, white-collar worker and farmer — have an important and personal stake in the management of renewable natural resources.

"This is the theme of our meeting," said Minott Silliman, Jr., president of the Soil Conservation Society.

Chemicals Offer Peach, Apple Tree Weed Preventive

Two new chemicals being tested by the college of agricultural sciences at the University of Delaware have proven effective in controlling weeds around peach and apple trees. In an experiment published by the American Society for Horticultural Science, Dr. Vernon Fisher, university horticulturist, reported his findings on herbicides isocil and bromacil.

According to Fisher, even a few weeds can remove valuable moisture from peach and apple trees, particularly under dry conditions. Adequate soil moisture is required for growth, so the better the weed control, the more the trees will grow.

Fisher says his research showed that controlling weeds by hoeing does not adequately conserve moisture, as compared to chemical control, even though the weed growth was scant before hoeing. However, soil and bromacil controlled weeds almost completely when applied annually at a rate of two pounds per acre.

Terminal growth measurements showed that apple and peach trees made least as much growth—and in many cases more—using isocil and bromacil for weed control as with other herbicides or hoeing.

In research currently in progress, Fisher says he is showing that isocil and bromacil are safe for the same lines as the bride's gown and carried a bouquet of yellow flowers.

Best man for Mr. Cornell was Hunt Hawkins of Greencastle, Pa. The bride's bridesmaids were the same ladies as the bride's gown and carried a bouquet of yellow flowers.

Instant Decor With Choice Of Draperies Cited By Textile Specialist Janet Reed

Draperies offer instant decorating—they are not merely window coverings, says Janet Reed, extension clothing and textile specialist at the University of Delaware, who points out that draperies can help muffle sound; filter out light; give privacy; set the mood of a room, and help make it look smaller or larger.

A plain fabric may save money by making your own if you have some sewing ability; can be accurate in your work; and have the necessary time and patience.

However, factory-made draperies are available in a wide range of sizes and in a fairly standard group of colors and fabrics. Since the saving may often be very slight between factory-made and home-made draperies, check prices and quality carefully at several stores before you decide, Miss Reed suggests.

Guard against the poorest quality factory-made drapes she says. They may last only a short time and thus prove expensive in the long run.

Take a good look around the type of window treatment you want to use. The number, size, style and placement of the windows, as well as the kind of furniture, color scheme, and general character of the room should help you determine window treatment, Miss Reed says.

Plain fabric may be easier to live with for a long period of time. Draperies of contrasting color break up the wall space in a room and make it seem smaller. They also call attention to that part of the room.

Coarse textures with a dull finish give a feeling of informality to a room. Sheer, airy fabrics seem more elegant. Even plain colored fabrics have differing textures which can suggest contemporary or traditional styles.

Miss Reed says there are three preferred lengths for draperies. They should stop at the window sill, at the apron, or just clear the floor. If the informal, try still or apron-length curtains. These lengths are especially appropriate with early American and modern decor. However, floor length draperies are better for a semi or formal room.

Lined draperies wear longer, give a richer appearance to the fabric and look more attractive from the outside of the house. They should be dry-cleaned, unless both draperies and linings are made from fibers.

If your windows are large, linings make the draperies very heavy to make and hang. Miss Reed suggests purchasing or making separate linings that may be attached over drapery hooks. A sheer window curtain on a separate rod will serve the same purpose.

Draperies fabrics should be colorfast to light, laundering and dry cleaning. They should resist shrinking, stretching, soiling and heat. Fabrics used for glass curtains should soften and diffuse light without cutting out too much. Make a fabric selection that will fit into your long-range furnishing budget.

Fiberglass does not soil readily, is easily washed by hand and requires no ironing. Never wash fiberglass curtains in the machine, Miss Reed warns. Sunlight does not weaken fiberglass, but colors may fade. It wears well, unless the curtains rub against the floor or furniture. This is a difficult fabric on which to sew, so these curtains are best purchased already made.

Cotton drapes come in a wide variety of fabrics in many weaves and textures, and may be the best value for your money. They should be lined to resist damage from sunlight.

Silk draperies are very readily damaged by sunlight and should be lined and hung at windows that do not have a direct exposure to sunlight. Dry-cleaning is usually necessary.

Linen is strong, pliable and durable; it is available in beautiful colors, and has an interesting texture. However, linen wrinkles easily unless treated with a soft, wool-like acrylics have a soft, wool-like feel and are easy to care for. They drape well, but they tend to darken after a long exposure to sunlight.

Polyester fabrics are strongly resistant to sunlight, resist abrasion and wrinkles, and they drape well. They are easily washed and require little ironing.

Whether you are buying curtains and draperies by the yard or factory-made, be sure to read the label. Miss Reed recommends.

To love to preach is one thing—to love those to whom we preach, quite another.

—Richard Cecil

"Y" Indian Guides To Hold Pow Wow At Camp Tockwogh

Big and little braves of the West-Branch YMCA Indian Guide program are planning for their fall pow wow, Sept. 24-26, at YMCA Camp Tockwogh, Worton, Md.

The pow wow will mark the beginning of the 1965-66 Y-Indian Guide program in the Newark and Nanticoke nations, when little braves and their fathers meet to exchange program ideas and plans, and tell of their summer experiences.

It also will give opportunity to interested fathers and sons to learn about the aims and purposes of the program while participating in a weekend of fun.

Highlight of the pow wow will be the council fire on Saturday evening, with a full-blooded Indian leading the program with authentic dances and costumes.

Swimming, boating, crafts, fishing, and other sports are planned for the rest of the weekend.

The Y-Indian Guide program is for fathers and their sons, first through third grade sons in the Newark area.

Fathers and sons meet twice a month in tribes of seven or eight. These meetings of recreation, with a full-blooded Indian leading the program with authentic dances and costumes.

Any interested father may contact the Western Branch YMCA, 66 East Main Street, Newark.

Bray, MacCreary Cite Bug Menace In Stored Foods

Some insects find stored foods just as appetizing as we do. Almost any kind of food stored in a box or sack is apt to become infested with insect pests if the food is not used within a reasonable time, according to entomologists at the University of Delaware.

Cereals, flour, corn meal, powdered milk, cake mixes, dry dog food, nuts and raisins are most often infested. Insects can move from one box to another without difficulty, so it is a good idea to check these products periodically.

Dr. Dale F. Bray and Donald MacCreary, entomologists at the university, describe the most common food pests and discuss control methods in the new leaflet, "Stored Food Pests."

Disorder any infested food or destroy them by burning, the authors suggest. Never put insecticide on food nor in the food containers, they warn.

Copies of "Stored Food Pests" are available from the Mailin Building, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

HEMOPHILIA

Hemophilia is a disease of the blood in which a vital factor in blood clotting is lacking. This results in a prolonged delay in blood coagulation and causes dangerous bleeding.

This is an inherited disease and is transmitted through the female to her male children. Every daughter of a hemophilic man is a carrier, but this does not mean that all of her sons will have hemophilia.

Because hemophilia is caused by a recessive gene, the dominant gene will take precedence over the recessive one in all her daughters so none of them will have hemophilia. Some of her sons might inherit the recessive gene, and since this is the only one they receive from her, they will have hemophilia. Those sons who do not receive the recessive gene will not have it.

Hemophilia has been known to skip five generations in a family, so it is very difficult to predict whether a male child will or will not have hemophilia.

Hemophilia can range from very severe cases to very mild ones. If there is a history of hemophilia in your family, and you have had your baby boy tested before he is circumcised.

The greatest danger from hemophilia comes not so much from external bleeding as it does from internal bleeding. Hemorrhage into the limbs, joints, the knees, elbows and ankles causes great pain and with each recurrence leads to cumulative damage. This is a type of degenerative arthritis with crippling and wasting of the limbs.

With development of blood bank facilities, blood transfusions have changed the treatment of hemophilia. Fresh plasma supplies the clotting factor which hemophiliacs lack and a transfusion will temporarily correct the tendency to abnormal bleeding. If given promptly and in the correct amount, transfusions of fresh plasma can prevent or delay development of arthritis.

It is very important to establish a close relationship with your physician as soon as a diagnosis of hemophilia has been made.

By working closely with him a family can establish the proper psychological approach to the problem and by knowing what to do and being prepared to do it, anxiety and panic can be minimized.

This column is a weekly service of your doctor through the Medical Society of Delaware.

SPECIAL WASHINGTON REPORT

Programs For The Young

By Senator PAUL DOUGLAS (D-Ill.)
Senator Douglas is a member of the Senate Finance Committee

The Bill known as Medicare, signed into law recently by President Johnson, does far more than just give medical care to the aged. This extensive document includes among many things important amendments to the Social Security Act concerning welfare measures and new health programs, particularly ones related to children.

America has a tradition of compassion for the aged which is matched by a traditional devotion to our youth. Today there are great and growing needs among our children for better education and health services, particularly in the case of needy families.

Project Headstart, specifically aimed at reaching pre-school, underprivileged children, recognized the need for medical examinations when it emphasized the need for medical examinations of these children. In every group of 100 children participating in the program, doctors expected to find some with active tuberculosis, four partially blind, 15 with some sort of eye difficulties and 10 partially deaf.

HEALTH CARE FOR YOUNG

Pertinent provisions of the Social Security Amendments are aimed at improving the care of the health of our pre-school and school-age children in low income families. Under the guidance of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, a new five-year program of special project grants is authorized. These grants will go to various state and local health agencies and to medical schools and teaching hospitals to provide comprehensive health care services for certain children.

Also included in the Act are provisions to increase the authorizations for maternal and child health care and crippled children's and child welfare services. Expanded training programs should make more professional personnel available to these children too.

INCENTIVE TO WORK

Particularly important are the provisions to help young people improve themselves and move ahead. Instead of discouraging our youth from working because of the old rules of public assistance payments, the law is now revised to provide an incentive for children to work. A child under 18 will be allowed to earn up to $50 a month (with a ceiling of $150 of total earnings by children in one family) without having the family's public assistance payments affected. Teenagers in families will be able to take part-time jobs such as delivering newspapers, babysitting, or carrying groceries.

More of our young who are receiving payments will now be able to finish high school and go on to college or a vocational training school. The law now says that social security benefits will still be available to them up to the age of 22.

These are constructive and long-needed modifications in our laws towards the betterment of our young people. President Johnson has said that our most precious resource is our youth. The 89th Congress has reason to be proud of the Social Security Amendments it has enacted already this session and of the contributions it has made to young and old alike.

ORNAMENTAL DISEASE NOTES

By W. J. Manning, Research Assistant

J. W. Heuberger, Plant Pathologist
University of Delaware

Powdery Mildew on Turfgrass
Powdery mildew is becoming a problem in some Delaware lawns. These lawns have large areas that from a distance are gray-white in appearance. Close examination of individual leaves reveals a white, powdery coating of fungus hyphae and spores. As the fungus continues to grow, chlorotic leaf lesions develop. Eventually, all leaves may turn a pale yellow.

This fungus can be controlled by the use of the fungicide Karathane. Use this material at the manufacturer's recommended rate at weekly intervals until the fungus is no longer present.

Mushrooms and Fairy Rings
A wide variety of mushrooms are found in lawns, particularly after wet periods. These are commonly called "toadstools." Most of these are quite harmless to the lawn but are objectionable because they are unsightly and frequently reoccur after being mowed.

One group of these mushrooms does cause damage to lawns. Their growth results in a condition known as "fairy rings." These fairy rings are circles or arcs of dark green grass surrounding areas of light colored and dead grass. The rings continue to enlarge each year. Mushrooms appear on the edge of these rings in spring and fall, and occasionally, in summer.

Chemical control of fairy ring fungi, and those fungi that produce other mushrooms, is possible. Simply spraying the surface of the soil with a fungicide will not do the job, though.

The fungus is present at depths of 6-8 inches below the soil surface. This means you will have to punch holes in the ground around the mushrooms and pour a fungicide into the holes to achieve control.

Cadmium compounds, at double the suggested rate for foliar applications, are recommended for control. A small amount of commercial wetting agent or household detergent should be added to these fungicide-water suspensions.

Caddy, Kromard and Cadmate are a few trade-named cadmium fungicides. Follow directions on the label. Fairy rings seldom occur in lawns adequately fertilized.

Mimosa Wilt

This disease, caused by soil-inhabiting fungus, was first reported in Delaware in the early 1950's. It is now widespread throughout the state.

Symptoms of the disease are easily seen. The leaves wilt and hang down from the twig instead of standing straight out. In time, they become dry and shriveled, and then fall off. Usually, symptoms show first at the ends of the branches, followed by a progressive dying back of the branch. A cut into the wood often reveals a brownish-black discoloration in the sapwood. Also, pinkish-colored masses of the fungus often appear on the surface of the dying wood.

Since the fungus is an internal parasite in the tree, it cannot be controlled by spraying or dusting with a fungicide.

There are two control methods—cut down the tree, burn the wood, and if possible, remove roots to prevent spread to other trees in the same area.

Best control is to use resistant clones that can be obtained from nurseries—Charlotte and Tryon.

Social Security Changes

By Myron Milbourn, Manager
Wilmington Social Security Office

Many low-income farmers may be affected by the change made in the optional method of reporting of income for Social Security purposes. The gross income amount on which the optional method of reporting is based has been changed from $1,800 to $2,400.

This means that the amount of net earnings from self-employment that can be reported by farmers under the optional method can be as much as $1,600 for taxable years ending after 1965. Previously, a farmer could report no more than $1,200 a year under this provision.

Under the new provision, if a farmer's gross income is over $2,400 and his net farm earnings are $1,600 or less during a taxable year, he may report his net earnings for Social Security purposes as $1,600, or he may report his actual net. If his net earnings are over $1,600, he must report his actual net earnings.

If a farmer has gross income of $2,400 or less in a year, he may count either his actual net earnings or two-thirds of his gross farm income as his net earnings from farming.

Starting next year, a farmer receiving benefits reports under the new optional method and as a result his net earnings from self-employment goes above $1,500, he may not get all of his benefits because of the retirement test limitation.

Tatnall Pamphlet Cites Seed Choice For Lawn Beauty

Every homeowner would like a beautiful lawn, provided he does not have to work as hard as a golf course greenskeeper. Such a lawn is possible with average care—but only if you choose the proper grass seed, says David Tatnall, assistant extension agent in ornamental horticulture for New Castle County.

In a new pamphlet, "A Shopper's Guide to Selecting Grass Seed," Tatnall says "Despite the many kinds of grass that are marketed for turf use, only a few will produce a dependable, permanent lawn with average care."

His recommendations for the varieties of grasses best adapted to this area are included in the pamphlet. Tatnall suggests using a mixture of different grasses. "A mixture has a wider range of adaptability," he says.

Federal and state laws require that every package of grass seed be properly labeled for the protection of the buyer.

Plant the grass seed properly to establish a good lawn. Tatnall advises. He says fall seeding is almost always more satisfactory than spring seeding. Apply a complete chemical fertilizer just before seeding.

Sow the seed evenly, preferably with a spreader. Cover the seed lightly and tamp to firm, then keep the soil moist until the seed has germinated and the seedlings are well established.

"A Shopper's Guide to Selecting Grass Seed" is available from county agents in Newark, Dover and Georgetown or from the Mailin Room at Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

Yellowjackets to Face Claymont Saturday With Squad Of 48 Led By Coach Hoffman

Coach Bob Hoffman's squad of 48 Yellowjackets will meet Claymont at 10 a.m. this Saturday on the Newark High School field in what Hoffman terms "a real game except for the kick-off." A bar of soap is the price of admission, and the public is invited to attend—with soap-to provide the Newark High School grid with cleaning power in the shower.

Refreshments will be sold in the new stand, and Director Harley S. Hastings will have a delegation from the Newark High School Band on hand for game music.

The 14 returning Yellowjacket lettermen provide the nucleus for a strong squad bolstered by 23 striving sophomores.

Outstanding soph include Tom McDonald, a guard from Texas; Fullback Tyrone "Barbecue" Wood, a real runner; Halfback Fred Conkey, little brother of Newark's All-State Halfback Max Conkey of 1950; and Halfback Bradley Lane, a graduate of last year's Capital Trail Junior Football League VFW champions.

Junior lettermen are Ends Conway, Hayman and Larry Tucker; Quarterback Lou Strengari; and Halfbacks Dick Kelley, Dick McDonough, and David Word.

"This is ridiculous," Gaby Young scowled last Saturday afternoon as he fished on without a strike in drifting some half-mile off the Indian River inlet on a very rough Atlantic Ocean.

The remark was prompted by a steady stream of fish being pulled over the side of the Young Lady—half to three-quarter pound gray sea trout or common weakfish that were providing near constant action for our two young companions—Schoolboy Gary, and Marlin II Mate Stan Somervell.

And Mr. Young's not so young, contemporary companion was faring no better than the Young Lady's skipper.

We finally caught one trout apiece while Gary and Stan provided some two dozen which they generously donated for an evening fish fry and for frozen fillets at home.

And we still haven't figured out how they did it.

Albacore and bonito were being taken by the few boats braving the rough seas far offshore in defiance of small craft warnings, but with a late Saturday start, and with a crew of Newark ladies aboard on Sunday and the ocean rougher than ever, we took a token turn out of the inlet.

Lois, Elizabeth and Mrs. Young with young Bonnie Davis drove down from Newark Saturday night to sleep aboard the boat, and a strong northeast wind whipping whitecaps from the horizon, prevented any favorable fishing on Sunday. We settled for a short ride on the ocean and a long, pleasant afternoon in the sun on the beach at Rehoboth.

"Think there are any fish in that surf?" H. G. Young asked wistfully, amid the spindrift blowing in over Rehoboth Beach. And we didn't think so.

Gus Taglion, greens superintendent at the Newark Country Club, had the top marlin on the board in the fishing trophy tournament at Scott's Marina last Sunday—his 80-pounder caught last July aboard the Young Lady on that memorable occasion when with Dick Pleasanton and Stan Somervell, a pair of pros, he and a husky man's holiday, we saw some 150 billfish cruising with their scimitar tails slicing the blue surface of the ocean in the vicinity of the Delaware Lighthouse.

And while there is not official, Gus should have won the marlin tournament that ended with Labor Day. The marlin run has been tapering off, and there was little likelihood of a last chance trophy fish being taken on Monday.

Joe Mottola is line coach for the Yellowjackets; Bill Santo is junior varsity mentor; and Norm Bunting succeeds Dick Musselman as backfield coach for the Newark High School gridiron squad.

Halfback Dick Fulton at 175—fastest man on the squad—is recovering from an appendectomy, and is running but getting no contact works. Center Bob Ewing is a defensive stand-out at 190, and Tackle Pat Walker has "real good speed," Hoffman reports.

Dick Kelley and David Word at halfback, and Lou Strengari at quarterback are starting in pre-season practice, and Strengari is being counted on to fill the graduated Morris Saunders' shoes.

"We have two good ends in Larry Tucker and Bobby Hubbard," Hoffman said. "Both are good receivers and can move."

The Yellowjackets open the season on Saturday, Sept. 25, in a home stand against Mt. Pleasant for the Blue Hen Conference championship.

All-State Guards From Salesianum Leave Hen Squad

Salesianum's All-State Guards Denny LaFazia and Bert DiClemente have left the University of Delaware football team.

Coach Dave Nelson said "Both boys came to me and said they just didn't feel like playing football anymore."

LaFazia, an All-State pick in 1962, was listed on the Delaware depth chart as a starting linebacker and No. 2 guard after spring drills. DiClemente, an All-State in 1961, was the starting left guard and the line-backer behind LaFazia.

This is the second time LaFazia has quit football. In 1963, LaFazia then attending Oklahoma State, decided to enter the religious field. He gave that up a year later, however, and transferred to Delaware. He had to sit out last season because of the transfer.

DiClemente also missed last season because of a knee injury.

Offense, Defense Teams Organized In Nelson Drills

Delaware Football Coach Dave Nelson has split his squad into separate offensive and defensive units for the coming season as the Blue Hens enter the second week of practice.

"Some players will still be going both ways," Nelson said, "but many are now concentrating on either offense or defense."

Nelson said that Ed Anderson, a 200-pounder from Clark, N. J., has been switched from center to offensive guard, and Steve Sloan, a 185-pound halfback from Thorofare, N. J., is being tested at defensive end.

"We are looking for depth at guard, tackle and defensive end," Nelson noted. "You must have depth to play two-plate football."

The veteran coach, who is starting his 15th season at Delaware, said he was pleased with the hitting in the team's early scrimmage.

"The team has been hitting well and showing a lot of spirit," Nelson said. "The defense has been better than the offense, but that is to be expected this early in the practice."

The Hens open their season at Hofstra on Sept. 25.

Swim Contests Held On Labor Day At Country Club

Patsy VanName, Sally Pinto, and Nancy MacLary, David Foster, Jack Houtt, and Marty Armstrong won the first three places in the individual medley swimming events for girls and boys 14-16 last Monday at the Newark Country Club pool.

Sally Pinto, Lois Young, and Patsy VanName, and Jack Houtt, David Foster, and Corey Barnard were the first three finishers in the free-style races for 14-16-year-old girls and boys.

Nancy MacLary, Cindy Jones, and Carol McHale, and Jeff Van Hook, Doug Bauer, and Bob Barnard won first, second, and third place honors in the free-style sprints for girls and boys 12-13.

In the back-stroke races for 12-13-year-old boys and girls, Jeff Van Hook, Doug Bauer, and Corey Barnard, and Nancy MacLary, Carol MacLary, and Mary Ann Doordan were winners.

Cindy Jones, Mary Ann Doordan, and Barbara Fox finished in that order with the free-style race for 10-11-year-old girls, and Doug Bauer, Robert Barnard, and Robert Dawson were one-two-three in the boys event.

Jeff Mumper won the kickboard race, and Ann Hutchison won the on-back race, the width of the pool for children under seven.

Vicky Wollaston, Ann Hutchison, and Carol Boehmer won the free-style sprint for boys and girls 7-9, and Debbie Mayer won the kiddie pool bumper race. Mrs. Robert T. Jones, Jr. reports.

Local Golfers Bid For Senior Title In DSGA Tourney

Willard Dickerson, who works in Newark at the Chrysler plant, and plays golf out of the Cavaliers Country Club, was defeated Sunday by Willard McConnell of Green Hill in an 18-hole playoff for the Delaware State Golf Association Senior Championship.

Tied with McConnell at 153 after 36 holes last week, Dickerson lost his bid for a third title by scoring a 77 while McConnell won his third senior championship, with a one-over-par 72.

Gibby Young of Newark fired a 79-81-160 for third place over the 36-hole round, while Dick Bauer and Steve Macuga of Newark tied for fourth with 162, and Bill Winterman of the Newark club was fifth with 164.

If they keep widening our free-ways, it may solve our farm surplus problem, Lois W. Matson, Kistler (Minn.) Courier.

Bainbridge Commodores Lose Championship Bid In action last week at the Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va., the U. S. Naval Training Center (Bainbridge, Md.) Commodores battled it out for the Fifth Naval District softball championship.

Winning four out of six games, the Commodores lost the seventh and last game to the Service Force, Atlantic Fleet (Servant) team.

This is the second year in a row in which the Commodores have been the district runners-up.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day Never Too Old to Earn

Earlier this year Ben and Zella Cohen's rangy 3-year-old, Hail to All, established a record for a weekly paycheck by winning the New Jersey Derby and the Belmont Stakes within a 5-day period to collect $101,055.

At Rockingham Park, on September 4, a 3-year-old will no doubt set a record for an afternoon's work in winning the $250,000 added Rockingham Park Classic, the race on which New Hampshire's Sweepstakes is based. Last year the ill-fated 2-year-old Sadie collected a record $181,020 in winning the Garden State Stakes.

There was a time when aggregate purse winnings of $100,000 or more entitled a Thoroughbred to special recognition. In 1886, a mare named Miss Woodford was the first to be so recognized, and as lately as 1945, it was still a noteworthy accomplishment.

One of a hundred or so horses that will have joined that no-longer select list this year, is the 14-year-old Roman Spy. Roman Spy made no headlines in June when, at River Downs, Ohio, he won his 45th of 217 races, bringing his earnings for 12 years of campaigning to a tidy $103,325. The one-time stakes winner, a half-brother to the more illustrious Spy Song, was bred by Charles T. Fisher's Dixiana Farm and has since carried the colors of five other owners.

Roman Spy's present owner, Perry Bayley of Sidney, Ohio, hopes to retire him this year as "the leading money-winner of his age."

The opening day feature at Fair Hill will be the 22nd running of the Fair Hill Steeplechase, a $4,300, added handicap for three-year-olds and upward to be contested at about two miles.

The companion feature will be the Trouble Maker Steeplechase over timber at about three miles. Post time both Saturdays will be 2:30 p.m.

Wally Hill, Arnie Saunders Scores Three Comet TD's

Newark's Wally Hill and Arnie Saunders scored three touchdowns for the Wilmington Comets last Saturday night to defeat the Pennsylvania Mustangs 20-17 in the Comets' North American Football League opener at Baynard Stadium.

Hill scored touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters with one-yard sweeps, and Saunders scored the clincher by taking Quarterback Jack Cummings' 34-yard pass in a sprint across the end zone.

Sailor Cap To Seek Fourth Straight Win

State Skeet Title Shoots Scheduled At Louviers Range

The Delaware State Championship Skeet Shoot will be held Sept. 18-19 at the DuPont Fish and Game Association range near the Louviers Building at Milford Crossroads near Newark. Again this year, shooters can compete in all four shotgun gauges recognized by the National Skeet Shooting Association.

Three 50-target shooting events begin Saturday at 10 with the 410-gauge championship. The 23 gauge championship starts at 11, and the 20 gauge title shoot follows at noon.

The 100-target all-gauge championship will be held Sept. 19, starting at 10 a.m.

Trophies will be awarded to the champion, and to winner and runner-up in each of several classes in each event.

Those who shoot all four events—250 targets—are automatically eligible for the concurrent all-around championship. Eight other optional concurrent events also may be entered.

Arthur S. Robertson, New Castle, is the current all-around Delaware state champion.

The 12-gauge championship was won in 1964 by 13-year-old Gary B. Smith of Harrington, who broke 88 out of 100 targets.

Refreshments will be available on the grounds, and programs showing entry fees, area map, and complete information are available from R. B. Lewis, Crossroad Road, RD 3, Newark.

a Dog's Life

VACATIONING WITH YOUR DOG

By Bob Bartos, Manager

Friskies Pet Foods Research Center

Family togetherness finds the dog included more and more in summer vacation plans. While Fido would probably be more content at home, happily he's adaptable. With a little extra planning you can make the trip easy on him and fun for all concerned.

He should, of course, be accustomed to driving and accept one spot in the car as his. Short trips during which he's held in place by a second party accomplishes this if he's not yet car-broken. Leave him alone in the car for short periods of time, too, so he learns you always return.

If you tie him when riding, be careful to adjust length of lead so that he cannot jump over front seat or get into trouble by hanging himself.

Letting him hang his head out the window invites a case of eye irritation.

When leaving him, always park in the shade and make sure the shade will remain until you return. Windows must not be open from the top, but not far enough to allow him to escape. Leave a panful of water on the floor of the car. Stop periodically to let him stretch his legs and attend to other matters. Be sure the lead is attached before opening the car door, so that he can't bolt when he spies the wide open spaces. And always keep him on lead at night stop-overs for his own safety and for the sake of motel shrubbery.

Luggage should include his blanket or whatever he's accustomed to sleeping on so he doesn't use motel furniture. His water dish and a supply of his food, unless you want to stop daily for his dinner, are other musts.

Feeding tip: The easy way to feed your pet when traveling is with a quality prepared dog food, such as Friskies canned food (don't forget the can opener) or the new Friskies Mix, the dry food to which you just add water.

Cecil County Fair Plans Cattle Show For Opening Day

Fair Hill, Md. — The Cecil County Brucers Fair is preparing for the largest cattle show in its history this Saturday, starting at 9 a.m.

More than 300 entries are expected, which include prize-winners in the Guernsey, Jersey, Holstein, Ayrshire and Brown Swiss classes.

The value of cattle competing for a $20 prize or first place blue ribbon, may exceed $7,500 a head.

The cattle show will serve as a curtain-raiser for the opening day card of the Fair Hill race meeting which takes place in the afternoon.

Post time for the first race of the six scheduled events will be 2:30 p.m.

Bill Shelton, chairman of the cattle show, is enthused by increased interest, especially on the part of youngsters. "It's a good educational show for young breeders or 4-H clubs," Shelton said, "and the Future Farmers of America, the next age group."

Shelton adds that "People who do show must be admired for their effort, especially when you consider the labor situation on farms today. The job is time consuming and expensive. They certainly deserve credit for what they are doing."

The Cecil County Breeders Fair Cattle Show is open to all 4-H members of Cecil County, Md., New Castle, Del., and Chester County, Pa., at no cost.

All other exhibitors must pay a nominal entry fee.

475 Horses Greet Kent-Sussex Races For 40-Nite Meet

A packed house of 575 horses greeted the opening of the 20th annual harness racing program last night, with the meet running 40 nights at Harrington.

The Kent and Sussex Raceway ran out of stable space more than a week ago, and stall applications for horses on the qualifying list at other tracks were among those rejected.

One owner was denied permission to house his horses in a building where horses are kept during the Delaware State Fair, Shaw said.

The racing program this year calls for nine races nightly every Monday thru Thursday, with 10 events on Fridays and Saturdays.

Two daily doubles are being offered patrons every night—the first on the first two races, and the second on the eighth and ninth events.

Among favorite horse owners returning to Harrington this season are Pat Hubbard, Bobby Hobbs, Lloyd Draper, Josh Elliott, Jim Goodwin, Ed Hobbs, John Lineaver, Jack Parker and Jim Stokley.

Three men—all over 80—who have been racing at Harrington since the track opened in 1946, will be back this year with seven horses. They are Frances Lawson of Hampton, Willie Webb of Kilmarnock, Va., and Frank Hanna, from the western shore of Maryland.

Two prominent Delaware lawyers have entered horses: Day H. Buckson, Delaware's attorney general, has a stable of six, and Herman Brown, of Dover has six horses.

Ellis Myers of Bridgeville has arrived with a stable of 22 from Brandywine and Freehold.

Newark Notes

BACK TO SCHOOL

Newark public schools opened this morning with half-day classes for elementary grade pupils.

Not only with all-day sessions for secondary school students. The doors of the new John Dewey Elementary School — the 10th elementary building in the district — were opened for the first time as a memorial to Newark's former family physician, board of health official, and city councilman—the late, grand "Ol Doc" Downes.

A tremendous amount of planning and other hard work has been done by our school administrators to absorb thousands of youngsters from outdoor vacation freedom into supervised classroom work studies — a big job, well done.
