Wilson, Amstel plans Approved

The Newark Planning Commission approved plans to rezone a tract on the west side of the city for use as single family homes and townhouses, as well as on Amstel Avenue that now houses a beauty school. No members of the public spoke for or against the plans.

The original 86-unit project, known as Saw Mill Place, off Casho Mill Road was never developed after annexation of the site and approval of rezoning by the City Council in 2007.

Now known as The Wilson Farm, the community would occupy nearly 40 acres of the site with a large percentage of the tract staying open space. The proposal calls for 18 single-family dwellings and 63 townhouses. It is one of the largest residential developments to come before the city in years in a landlocked city.

Newark Planning Director Roy Lopata said the project reflects a changing housing market that could handle growth from BRAC-related jobs generated at Aberdeen Proving Ground and perhaps Bloom Energy, which wants to build a plant on University of Delaware property at the former Chrysler site.

By contrast, the adult condominium market has been hit hard by an inability of potential owners to secure financing, according to Lopata.

Jeff Lang, president of Lang Development, developer of the property, said the company was unable to develop the site as condominiums, due in large part to the financing squeeze. Lang ran into such problems with the Twin Lakes residential development off Elkton Road. However, his

Newark-area woman seriously injured in crash

Delaware State Police are investigating a two-vehicle crash that seriously injured a Newark-area woman on last Friday night.

The crash occurred at 7:10 p.m. Troopers said Nicole E. Cook, 28, was driving a 2001 Mercury Cougar on Del. Route 1 near Smyrna. Cook's vehicle left the west edge of the roadway and traveled across the grass median before entering the southbound lanes of Route 1. The Cougar then struck the driver's side of a 2002 Honda Odyssey driven by Shyam Belepur, 44 of Lancaster, Pa. After the impact, Nicole Cook's vehicle overturned and she was ejected from the vehicle. She was transported from the scene by a Delaware State Police helicopter to Christiana Hospital where she was admitted with serious injuries. Belepur was not injured.

Video released

Newark Police have released video footage and a composite sketch in the investigation of an attempted robbery on Wednesday, June 29th, at around 2:50 p.m. in the rear parking lot of 108 East Main Street.

In the accompanying video, the suspect is depicted in the bottom right of the video walking toward the camera with a black and white shirt or towel draped over his right shoulder.

During this incident the 29-year-old male victim reported he was delivering maintenance supplies to an apartment building and briefly left his vehicle. When he returned, he saw a suspect attempting to remove a laptop computer from his vehicle. The victim attempted to restrain the suspect and at the same time yelled to a passerby to call 911. While being restrained by the victim the suspect displayed a folding knife and swung it at the victim who then released his grip on the suspect. The suspect then fled on foot towards East Main Street. The victim was uninjured during the altercation.

The suspect is described as a white or Hispanic male, approximately 5 feet, 8 inches tall with short brown crew cut. He was unshaven and was wearing a blue tank top, light blue jean shorts, tan high top work boots and had a silver chain draped between the front and rear pockets of his pants. The suspect was also wearing white earphones in his ears.

Anyone with additional information about this incident should contact Detective Greg D'Elia at 302-366-7110 ext. 132 or greg.delia@cj.state.de.us. You can send an anonymous text message tip by texting 302NPD and your message to TIP411. Information can also be provided anonymously to Crime Stoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333 or via the internet at www.tipsubmit.com where a reward may be available.

Fires related to grilling cause heavy damage

A second fire in the New Castle area related to outdoor cooking caused $75,000 in damage.

The Wilmington Manor along with several neighboring fire companies responded to a reported house fire located in unit block of Liborio Drive south of New Castle, shortly before 4:30 p.m. on July 4th. Units arrived on scene to find fire showing from the exterior of the two-story townhouse.

The occupant and her dogs safely escaped.

An investigation by state Fire Marshal deputies revealed the occupant had placed discarded charcoal ashes into the trash container. The hot ashes ignited the contents of the can and the fire spread to the structure.

The occupant was being cared for by relatives.

The July 4th fire followed an earlier blaze in another New Castle-area neighborhood that caused heavy damage to a home when a fire from a propane grill spread to the home.

Alan Brown Chief Deputy at the Fire Marshal's office in New Castle recommended that all hot embers from grills, fire places and fire pits should be placed in a metal container and soaked in water prior to being discarded in the trash.

He also says users of propane grills should read safety instructions provided by manufacturers. Those instructions include keeping grills 10 feet from the home.

Keep those summertime good times rolling along

By CAROL SCOTT

UD COOPERATIVE EXTENSION

"Summertime and the livin' is easy" goes the lyrics of a popular song. The kids are free to ramble along at home or in the neighborhood, family time is less structured, and we all wish those hazy, lazy, crazy days of summer could always be here. As the summer winds along into July, here are a few suggestions to keep the kids busy in case that summer breezy feeling begins to unwind. With a little support from an adult, kids can take an idea and run with it on their own, developing their creative skills with friends and siblings.

For very little cost, you can keep kids busy with a variety of make-it-yourself projects and have them developing their skills in problem-solving, creativity, and teamwork. These are important skills to keep kids engaged in reading or math over the summer, while having fun with hands-on learning. Gather up some scrap supplies from your craft bin or kitchen cabinets, and look for ideas in the library or online to inspire the kids with make-it-yourself projects. Some suggestions to consider are: make your own kite, homemade play dough, bird treats with seeds and peanut butter, building with cardboard boxes, or make a soap bubble recipe and experiment with homemade bubble-making devices.

In the kitchen, with a little adult supervision for safety and to keep the mess under control, there are many possibilities to keep kids busy and continue the hands-on learning. You might try homemade pizza made with veggies for toppings on English muffins, making healthy popsicle treats with a variety of juice flavors, or making "kick the can ice cream" for a unique way to combine physical activity with a fun summer treat.

And if you need to move the kids back outdoors, consider these fun activities to add to your list of creative hands-on fun. Plan and host a bike decorating contest and parade, complete with prizes for the most creative designs. Make your own popcorn and invite the neighbors for an outdoor movie night by projecting the movie on a large sheet in the yard. Or have a backyard water day, complete with sprinklers, slip and slide, kiddie pool, water balloons, watermelon and homemade water ice. With a little ingenuity, you can keep the summer time good times rolling right through until school starts.

Master Gardeners graduate from program

University of Delaware's New Castle County Cooperative Extension announced the class of 2011 New Castle County Delaware Master Gardener Volunteer Educators.

Every two years the organization seeks to re-invigorate and increase its volunteers. The year 2011 was a "training year" for New Castle County Master Gardeners; training was scheduled from March to May of 2011. Certification as a Master Gardener is achieved only after participation in a rigorous training course and completion of the specified hours of volunteer service. Master Gardener Trainees must successfully complete a three-month training session that translates into 72 hours of horticultural course work. They train as apprentices in the following Master Gardener Volunteer committees: Youth Education, Workshops, and Telephone/Diagnostics. Finally, they must complete 40 hours of volunteer service in New Castle County prior to the end of the 2011 year.

Delaware Master Gardeners bring environmental education and the joy of horticulture into classrooms, homes, communities, and demonstration gardens throughout the county. They offer science-based guidance on home lawns and gardens, develop demonstration gardens and community service projects, run gardening workshops for adults, conduct youth outreach, and staff the Garden Line telephone service. Through the Junior Gardener program, one of its most extensive outreach efforts, New Castle County Master Gardeners bring environmental education about resources, recycling and composting to classrooms.

Anyone interested in becoming a NCC Master Gardener in 2013 should contact the Cooperative Extension office at (302) 831-2667, or (302) 831-2506, or email at ncc-ext@udel.edu. You may also visit the NCC-MG website: <http://ag.udel.edu/nccmg>.

U of Delaware tuition increases 7 percent

The University of Delaware announced a 7 percent tuition hike for both in-state and out of state students.

Tuition for in-state undergraduate students at the University of Delaware will increase $630, or 7.0 percent, for the 2011-12 academic year — bringing the annual in-state tuition cost to $9,670. Undergraduate students from outside Delaware will pay $1,700, or 7.0 percent, more in annual tuition. Their tuition next year will be $25,940.

The News Journal calculated that the total increase, including fees was up 9.6 percent for in-state students and 8.1 percent for those out of state.

"The increase in tuition and fees is directly related to our ongoing goal to provide an exceptional educational experience for UD students and additional need-based financial aid. Although there is much financial pressure nationally on higher education institutions, we recognize our responsibility to remain affordable for in-state residents and continue to allocate a portion of our resources into more aid for Delawareans. We are also focused on ensuring that our academic, student services and research offerings meet the needs of all students while maintaining a balanced operating budget," President Patrick Harker said.

Approximately 43 percent of next year's increase is necessary to cover costs of rising demand for financial aid among UD students. The current economic environment is still affecting many Delaware families, leading to more students needing assistance under the university's Commitment to Delawareans and other financial aid programs. Forty-five percent of in-state students who have enrolled since fall 2009 have received financial assistance through the Commitment to Delawareans, and the average per year aid package (including support for tuition, fees and on campus room and board) during this time has been $14,833.

Since 2007, UD has increased financial aid by 47 percent. The total amount of financial aid from all funds for undergraduate and graduate students has grown by $55.4 million, from $116.8 million five years ago to $172.2 million this past year.

Also contributing to UD's rising tuition and fees are the increasing costs of facilities maintenance as well as health and property insurance. "We remain vigilant about our expense budget and are re-engineering programs and reviewing business processes to seek greater innovation and efficiency. Many departments and units are taking advantage of new opportunities to deliver administrative services at lower cost in light of the current economic environment," said Executive Vice President Scott Douglass. "In addition, we continue to increase our efforts to encourage philanthropy in order to meet our strategic goals of providing excellent, affordable and accessible undergraduate as well as professional education."

Virtually the entire growth in the amount of next year's student fees, $340 of a total $354 increase, will go to fund capital improvements and construction of new student recreational and athletic facilities. The Health, Student Center and Student Comprehensive fees support student health services, the student fitness center, recreational programs, concerts, UD Speaks guest speakers and the activities of registered student organizations. Increased room and board fees reflect higher costs related to continued upgrades in the residential dining hall menu plus the normal inflationary increases in food, labor and direct costs for next year.

Tuition and fees account for approximately 35 percent of the full cost of educating a Delaware resident at the University of Delaware. The additional 65 percent is comprised of state appropriations, contracts and grants, endowment earnings and contributions. In contrast, tuition and fees account for approximately 85 percent of the full cost of educating an out-of-state resident at UD. The remaining 15 percent is comprised of other revenue and support.

UD receives an appropriation from the state to support the cost of education for in-state students. This appropriation accounts for 11.9 percent of the total UD operating budget, down from 13.0 percent last year and 18.6 percent five years ago. The total impact of this decline in state support over the past five years is $11.2 million.

While UD has a lower percentage of in-state resident students than other comparable state flagship universities, nearly 39 percent of the University's students are Delawareans. Four out of five college-bound Delawareans apply to UD; for fall 2011, 88 percent were admitted, either directly to the Newark campus (65 percent) or to the Associate in Arts program (23 percent), which can lead directly to a four-year degree from UD. By contrast, this year only 57 percent of out-of-state applicants were admitted.

Toll Plaza project completed

Gov. Jack Markell and Sen. Tom Carper (D-Del.) toured the Newark Toll Plaza on Friday, July 1, with Delaware Department of Transportation officials and discussed the technology and testing phase of the I-95 E-ZPass highway-speed lane openings at the Newark Toll Plaza south of the city.

The I-95 Newark Toll Plaza underwent reconstruction and reconfiguration to incorporate two highway-speed E-ZPass lanes in the northbound and southbound directions. The project cost approximately $32.6 million and is funded by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA). The project is currently in the testing phase.

The system reportedly cut congestion at one of the major bottlenecks faced by East Coast motorists over the July 4th weekend.

IN THE NEWS

Residents turn out to oppose Stopyra rezoning

Residents turned out for a New Castle County Planning Board hearing on the Stopyra property off Capitol Trail and Possum Park Road east of Newark. The News Journal reported 200 people turned out to oppose the project. That number mirrored the reported 240 that attended an earlier community meeting on the project. The Citizen's Advocacy Possum Park Area (CAPPA) had urged residents to attend the meeting.

The Planning board and the county Department of Land Use are expected to make a recommendation to the County Council next month, following the two-hour hearing, the newspaper reported.

Developer Frank Acerno has proposed the rezoning in the hilly area. Acerno is the owner of Concord Mall and other commercial properties in Delaware and elsewhere.

Published reports have indicated that a Target discount store is a likely tenant at the site that has been called the Newark Town Center, even though it is outside city limits. Target opened a store in Christiana Mall last fall.

According to the group, the project includes the following:

- 54 acres rezoned for Regional Commercial, an area greater than the 30-plus acres for the Pike Creek Shopping Center.

- The traffic created would increase the vehicles per day on Capitol Trail/Kirkwood Highway) by 50 percent.

- The main entrance would be at the Holy Angels flashing light on Possum Park with a second (right turn in, right turn out only) near the present entrance to Possum Park Apartments.

- A group of state legislators, most from the area, have requested that the Delaware Department of Transportation conduct a new Traffic Impact Study from a 2007 rezoning proposal.

Rezoning have become increasingly contentious in New Castle County, with opponents pointing out the large number of empty store spaces and traffic problems.

Sports complex to open in October

Scheduled to open in October 2011, the Delaware Sportsplex will feature 38,000 square feet of space for sporting activities.

The Delaware Sportsplex will serve New Castle County and is the future home of the Delaware Juniors volleyball club and the Delaware Angels AAU Basketball Club. The facility will feature seven volleyball and basketball courts along with programming space for numerous other activities such as fitness classes and indoor soccer. Construction will commence by July.

"The Delaware Sportsplex has gone from a dream to a reality," says Steve Lenderman. "We've wanted to do something like this for some time and we're thrilled to announce an October 2011 opening date," he adds. Lenderman is one of four Delaware Sportsplex LLC principals. The facility principals are: Rod Gerhart of Newark, Del.; Steve Lenderman, Hockessin; Kevin Mayhew, Newark; and Mark Tobin also of Newark.

The facility will have an open house on Wednesday, June 15th from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. for the general public to view the facility and learn more about opportunities.

It address is 326 Ruthar Drive, Newark, Del. 19713. Mailing address is 4142 Ogletown Stanton Road, Ste. 229, Newark Del. 19713.

The Delaware Sportsplex partnership is seeking potential investors who share their interests in children, families and healthy lifestyles in a sporting environment. For investment information and facility leasing information, contact 302.722.5277 or info@delawaresportsplex.com. For general information visit www.delawaresportsplex.com.

50,000th student

Last month, Junior Achievement of Delaware celebrated its 50,000th student served in the JA WORLD experiential learning center, where a ceremonial student will receive a $1,000 scholarship to add to his or her 529 College Fund.

Christina School District Superintendent Marcia Lyles presented the award to a fifth grade student from Porter Road Elementary School participating in the JA Biztown program.

Built in 2004, JA WORLD houses JA Biztown for 5th graders and JA Finance Park for students in grades 7-12. Both programs involve 19 hours of preparatory curriculum prior to the student visit to JA WORLD, where they become adults for a day, managing household budgets and running a model economy. Over 1 million hours of economic education have been delivered to these students since 2004.

Junior Achievement of Delaware president Rob Eppes says, "This milestone is illustrative of the overall community impact of JA, which has served more than 180,000 students overall during the same seven year period, and hundreds of thousands of Delaware students since 1956."

Junior Achievement experiences are available to school children of all ages, from Kindergarten through 12th grade, through partnerships with schools, community centers, summer camps, church groups and social service agencies. All JA programs offer robust curriculum delivered by adult role models on the topics of Work Readiness, Entrepreneurship and Financial Literacy.

Wilson farm gets warm reception at meeting

Plans, from 1

company found a market at Twin Lakes by partnering with Cornell Homes for non-age restricted housing and sees similar potential for the Wilson Farm site.

The Planning Commission also gave unanimous approval to rezoning for a mixed use project at 70-74 Amstel Avenue that is now the site of the Shilling Douglas School of Hair Design.

Known as Carroll Commons, the project would include a salon operated by the beauty school. Also a part of the project are 16 two-story townhouse-style apartments. The townhouses are aimed at the student housing market, but can be converted to owner-occupied housing through separate utility meters and other steps.

Planning Commission member Kass Sheedy said she hoped the interior layout would cater to a variety of potential renters, rather than consist of a large number of bedrooms and a small kitchen. Joe Charma, of Landmark Engineering, said the final interior design has not been developed.

The school itself plans to move elsewhere in the city, since it is unable to expand at the current location. The new buildings would have a Victorian theme, using brick, as well as stone and clapboard accents.

Attorney Lisa Goodman, who represented the developer of the project, said Carroll Commons would mark the end of development in the immediate area, since abutting property is owned by the University of Delaware.

Last month, the commission approved an adjacent project that would house the Baptist Student Center.

A final decision on the proposals rests with the Newark City Council.

Free vision screening

Simon Eye Associates is offering free vision screenings at their Haines Street office through the month of July.

Tarra Winchell, a Newark native, will be providing complimentary vision screenings for both children and adults. Visual acuity, color vision, and depth perception will be screened in children. Children are often unaware that they are not seeing as well as they should be, and the screenings will provide valuable information that could prevent child blindness. Adults will be screened for visual acuity, glaucoma, and cataracts. Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness in the United States, and with painless, gradual vision loss it is virtually undetectable by the patient.

To schedule a complimentary vision screening call (302) 239-1933

A golfing change 'fore' the better

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

Aaron Weiner's pitching style once was described by his Newark National Little League all-star coach, Dennis Murphy, as being "like an artist painting a picture, with each pitch a stroke of the artist's brush."

That was until Weiner suffered tendonitis in his throwing arm, which is a pitcher's worst nightmare. However, for the Newark resident it turned out to be a blessing.

It was that bout with tendonitis in eighth grade that Weiner says more or less forced his decision to focus on the sport of golf rather than pursue a potential varsity career as a pitcher.

"I was unable to pitch, make the throw from shortstop, or even raise a soup can above my shoulder," said Weiner, who is working this summer as an intern at ING Direct. "I did physical therapy, but the process was slow and minimally effective. It was a frustrating injury because the only solution was to completely stay off it. However, my golf swing remained unaffected by the injury, and so it was a fairly logical decision to transition to golf."

The decision turned out not only to be a logical one, but a good one. In addition to several first-place finishes in local and regional golf tournaments over the past few years, Weiner's accomplishments include becoming the first Delawarean to win the prestigious Philadelphia Junior Golf Championship last year, and then capping his senior season at Charter School of Wilmington winning the Blue Hen Conference tournament — where he shot a personal best 69 — and placing second in the DIAA State Golf Tournament.

In retrospect, even though hitting a tiny white dimpled ball became his passion, Weiner credits his early experiences throwing a white ball with laces as one reason his golf career has been so successful.

"Pitching was a thrill for me," he said. "I liked the sense of control and responsibility that you have as a starter on the mound. The game is largely in the pitcher's hands, especially in Little League. I guess if there was one position that compares most to playing golf, it would be pitcher. The attention is focused on you, there's a lot of pressure to perform, and there's no one to lean on. It's you against the hitter in baseball; and you against the course in golf. Both are largely individual battles."

Aaron Weiner focused on golf after being sidelined by an injury to his pitching arm.

One battle Weiner didn't have to wage was convincing his parents that giving up baseball for golf was the right move for him.

"Of course we were a little disappointed that he was giving up baseball knowing that he could have competed at the high school level," his mother, Mindy Brandt-Weiner, said. "But when he started playing golf he instantly fell in love with the game. We realized he had some natural ability and we felt it was more important for him to be involved in something that he really wanted to do."

Another battle Weiner aced was in the classroom at Charter. A National Merit Commended Scholar, he graduated with a 4.18 cumulative GPA, was president of the Student Council and a member of the National and Spanish Honor Societies. The accomplished student-athlete will attend Emory University as a Goizueta Scholar, receiving a full-tuition scholarship to attend the prestigious Atlanta-based business school, where he also hopes to play golf.

"The qualifying will be taking place the first week in September," said Weiner, who credits his grandfather for sparking his interest in golf. "Everyone plays four rounds and the top aggregate scores qualify for the team. If my game progresses as planned this summer, I believe I have a good shot at making the team. I will be continuing my tournament play and preparation this summer in some local and other regional events."

Just last week Weiner played in the DSGA Junior Championship, shooting 72-73 at Newark Country Club to win the 18-year-old age division and finish third overall. He also qualified for next week's DSGA Amateur Championship at Back Creek Golf Club.

"I think Aaron has a tremendous chance of being very successful and having a promising collegiate golf career at Emory," said his swing coach, John Randolph, head golf professional at Fieldstone Golf Club. "Aaron has a great love for the game, which breeds excellent work ethic, and helps him keep taking his game to new levels. He has been one of the most determined students I have ever had the opportunity to work with. Flat out, he puts his mind to something, we develop a plan of action for him, and he does it."

Weiner, whose handicap is 0.5, says one of his earliest golf memories was at the age of 10 when he experienced the "thrill of playing tournament golf" when he competed in the Delcastle Junior Open. Now, eight years later he hopes to experience the thrill of competing at Div. III Emory — currently ranked No. 10 in the country — where he's confident the game will continue to prepare him for his future in the business world.

"Golf has taught me a lot about people in general, and it has definitely helped develop my interpersonal skills," he said. "The mental toughness that golf requires is another skill that will serve me well in the real world. A round of golf, much like life, requires you to battle through adversity and remain focused even when you are successful."

Swank chooses Goldey Katrina Swank, a two-time Delaware softball state champion at Caravel Academy, has committed to play softball at Goldey-Beacom College, according to head coach Bill Streets.

"I think she'll be an excellent addition to the ball club," Streets said. "I had the opportunity to see her play, and I'm looking for instant dividends. She comes from an excellent high school program, so she knows what winning is all about."

Swank played four years of varsity softball and captained both the softball and girl's basketball teams her senior year. A versatile player, she hits for average and plays infield and outfield positions. She was selected a Blue/Gold All-Star for her performance this past spring.

Swank was an honor student and a member of Caravel's Relay for Life and Blue/Gold Committee.

African Lion hones skills of area Navy corpsman

By SGT. JESSICA SWITZER

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

CAP DRAA, Morocco - The sun barely peeked over the horizon when the stillness was shattered by the roar of artillery. The son of a Newark couple crawled out of his tent into the southern Moroccan morning to begin another day.

Navy Hospital Corpsman 2nd Class Jonathan C. Fitch, son of Gary and Beatrice Fitch of White Drive, Newark, is in Morocco supporting exercise

African Lion 2011.

"My role is to provide medical support for the firing training operations here," said Fitch, who graduated in 1999 from Christiana High School, and received a bachelor's degree in 2009 from the University of Delaware.

African Lion is an exercise between the Kingdom of Morocco and the U.S. that involves more than 2,000 U.S. service members and approximately 900 members of the Royal Moroccan Armed Forces. The exercise serves as a way for both U.S. and Moroccan military members to hone their skills and learn to work together to accomplish missions.

"Training here is a little different due to the different culture and language barriers," said Fitch, who is assigned in Reading, Pa.

In spite of the barriers, Fitch and his fellow service members worked with the Moroccan forces on different types of military training including command post, live fire, peacekeeping operations, disaster response, aerial refueling, and low-level flight training. Both the Moroccan and U.S. forces receive valuable training during the course of the exercise.

"I never really realized how important my job is until I came here," said Fitch.

A team of Marines prepares to fire an M777 howitzer during African Lion 2011.

Fitch and his fellow service members not only trained in the Moroccan desert, they lived there as well. They experienced sandstorms, the rain showers of the wet season and the heat that traditionally goes with a desert. They even had an opportunity to spend some time off duty experiencing the culture and seeing the sights.

"It isn't as hot as I expected it to be and there is a lot more rain," said Fitch, who has been in the military since 1997.

As the artificial thunder of artillery fire dies away for a moment, the sun rises fully above the desert horizon and begins its journey toward the nearby Atlantic Ocean. Fitch and the other participants in African Lion 2011 go about their business sharing experiences and knowledge with each other and their Moroccan counterparts.
