The committee are not averse to the object; but as no definite plan is presented by the petitioners and as, at this late period of the Session, sufficient time is not afforded in which to mature, an efficient plan for the purposes prayed for, your committee deem it inexpedient at present to legislate on the subject. On motion of Mr. Herdman,

The communication from the Senate was read, viz:

"SENATE CHAMBER, Feb. 11. 1835.

The Committee to whom was referred that part of the Governor's Message which relates to the regulation of the national currency, by the existing administration of the General Government—beg leave to report:

That they do not coincide with the Governor in the views which he has taken of the subject: they do not consider the course pursued by the President of the United States, as "wise" and "prudent," whether they look to the mode by which he has accomplished "the regulation of the currency," or the consequences which have followed the measure now, and the results to which it will lead hereafter.

Your committee do, however, freely acknowledge the truth of one assertion of the Message, in relation to the course of the President in conducting his measures for the "regulation of the currency; to wit, that he has acted with an "energy" peculiarly striking and which is without a parallel in the annals of our national history, but it is an energy which has overthrown every barrier of law and reason; which has brooked no delay in its onward course of destruction, and which has swept over the fair fields of commercial enterprize like the furious whirlwind carrying desolation in its course to thousands of industrious and happy families, who would otherwise have attained to a comfortable competency, but who are thereby plunged into ruinous embarrassments, or doomed to spend their days in hopeless misery deprecating the ruthless violence of an energetic ruler, urged on by the blind impulse of political prejudice or of selfish aggrandizement.

It was not "wise" or "prudent" so suddenly to overturn a system of policy which had proved so beneficial to the whole country, and to which every branch of our domestic trade and foreign commerce had become so completely adapted; even upon the hypothesis, that the expediency of the measure had been doubtful at the time of its adoption. Under this system the value of property, of produce, and consequently of capital had become so perfectly assimilated to the existing state of the currency, that any measure which suddenly changed the standard value of property was manifestly unjust as well as unwise in its tendency. Such a course was at variance with all the lessons we had been taught in the school of our National experience, since the establishment of the Government, for as much as it had been the constant leading policy of our country to settle upon some permanent plan whereby an uniform and stable currency might be established commensurate with the immense trade of our extensive Republic, which, whilst it was equally valuable might be more safe and easy of transmission than gold or silver. It is well known too that a metallic currency had been found to be totally inadequate to the operations of our domestic exchange, and that the creation of Banking capital by the several States of the Union, put the question of a gold and silver currency entirely aside, until the right of the State Governments to incorporate such institutions is effectually restrained; except when a political farce may be played off to catch the credulity, enlist the prejudice, or mislead the ignorance of devoted partizans to whom the glittering humbug of a golden currency is only held out to deceive so long as it can allure them, into the snares of wily politicians, but which can never be realized under our federative system.

In the outset of his Message, the Governor lays down an axiom which your committee do not controvert, but to which they would refer as an exemplification of their argument; he says, "history reveals no truth more emphatic than this, that a nation never ceases to be prosperous except through a departure from those institutions to which she owes her prosperity." In applying the rule in the case before us, we ask whether the unprecedented and exalted state of our national prosperity had not arisen chiefly out of the establishment of the Bank of the United States, whereby a wholesome restraint has been imposed upon the uncertain and unstable issues of local banks, scattered throughout the Union, each pursuing without control, its own capricious policy? The history of our own country "reveals no truth more emphatic" than that the General Government under all administrations, has by a series of practical experiments been seeking such a system of a National currency, as would best produce the free exchange and easy transmission of private capital and the public funds throughout this extensive Republic; and which should be of so broad & firm a basis as would sustain the vast fabric of our foreign and domestic intercourse, and that after having established one national Bank and tested the expediency of its existence, it was judged proper by adverse counsels to discontinue it and leave the national currency to the uncontrolled effect of State Bank issues, of a paper currency, whereby unnumbered evils were inflicted upon every interest of the country, until further endurance became insupportable. Then it was when ruin and dismay stalked through the land, that the urgent necessity of some expedient to remove existing evils became apparent to all our wisest statemen, who found that nothing less than another National Bank, would prove a sure corrective: and accordingly the Bank of the United States was chartered, and it has fully answered the most sanguine expectations of its friends; by establishing an uniform and stable currency; by equalizing the exchange of the circulating capital in every branch of domestic intercourse; by facilitating the operations of our foreign commerce; by affording aid to individual enterprise and thereby advancing individual wealth; by fostering domestic industry in every branch of the mechanic arts, and in all the varieties of domestic manufactures; by extending our coasting trade and aiding our shipping interest; by sustaining internal improvements with the aid of its capital; by furnishing the means for cultivating and improving our western lands; by carrying on all the fiscal concerns of the National Treasury, without trouble, expense or risk to the government, and by affording a secure depository of the public revenue: in a word, it had by the magnitude of its benefits become the glory of our own country and the admiration of the world, when the strong arm of executive power was put forth in the pride of usurped authority to arrest the career of our national prosperity, and bring upon us those evils which have carried dismay to the stoutest hearts and brought ruin to our doors. And shall we be told that it was "wise and prudent" thus to sap the foundation of all this national happiness, and destroy this safe palladium of a sound currency, and again to venture on the well known evils of a depreciated paper currency, from which this institution only could have rescued us? It is vain to imagine that we may destroy the agent of so much good and not be visited with all those evil against which it had proved the only safeguard. As well might the glorious sun go down in darkness and the face of nature shew not the absence of his cheering rays as that this institution, which has been the Sun of our fiscal system, should be destroyed, and no confusion or disorder follow as the consequence.

But your committee view the mode by which this evil has been brought upon the country as more dangerous and more to be deprecated than the effects which have followed it, however disastrous they are now or may be hereafter. It was by assuming authority in utter violation of the Law that the President took upon himself the responsibility of causing the public deposits of the national funds to be removed from the Bank of the United States against the express will of that officer to whom Congress had confided most expressly their control. One of the provisions of the charter of the Bank of the United States is, "that the deposits of the money of the United State in places in which the said Bank and branches thereof may be established, shall be made in said Bank or branches thereof unless the Secretary of the Treasury shall at any time otherwise order and direct, in which case the Secretary of the Treasury shall immediately lay before Congress, if in session, and if not immediately after the commencement of the next session, the reasons for such order or direction. Whether this provision was or was not designed to restrict to the Representatives of the People the ultimate and sole control of the public treasure is not the question, although your committee have no doubt, but that it was—yet it surely does not authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to remove any deposits already made, as his power is only over such deposits as "shall be made," and if he shall at any time otherwise order or direct—what follows? why that they shall not be made. There is not one word that can be tortured to mean removal. The above provision may be properly construed however to constitute the Bank of the United States and branches thereof the public treasury, so long as the Government funds are deposited there by law; and if this construction be fair, by what authority did the Secretary of the Treasury issue certain contingent transfer drafts whereby the funds of the nation were placed in the hands of irresponsible and favourite individuals, who had no claim upon Government and not for the purpose of fulfilling any requisite of lawful authority; when it is expressly provided in the Constitution, "that no money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriation made by law," unless it were in obedience to the mandate of him who bends all law to his own will, and construes the constitution to mean just what suits him or in his own words "as he understands it."

In conclusion, your committee would observe, that they have but briefly adverted to a few leading topics upon which elaborate arguments might be grounded in support of the views they have taken of this subject. They have considered however, that it is a duty incumbent upon this General Assembly to sustain the Representation of this State in Congress, in their noble efforts to preserve the Laws and Constitution inviolate, which have been so rashly trampled upon by the President, in his measures for the "regulation of the currency." And your committee have accordingly succinctly stated some of the most prominent facts which have influenced the majority of the people of this State in the opinions they have formed upon the subject, and in the firm support which they yielded to their Senators and Representative in Congress in the course they have pursued in resisting the encroachments of Executive power. And they have felt the greater obligation to do so because the President in his Protest Message, after having claimed the entire control of the public property and the public funds, has openly denounced the course of the Senate and upon his own choosing put the matter at issue before the people to determine and decide between himself and the Senate. It is a duty then which we owe to the people and to our senators in congress, to announce the decision of Delaware. And as the Representatives of the People of Delaware have not had a Legislative session for the two past years, during which time those alarming measures have been projected and carried out for the "regulation of the currency" by the existing administration of the General Government," so exciting to the feelings and destructive to the interests of the people; and whereas the Governor has thought proper to signify his approbation of those measures, and consequently, his condemnation of the course pursued by our delegation, in both Houses of Congress, in opposition to the acts of the President in relation thereto,—it therefore becomes the duty as it is the right of the General Assembly to give expression to the public sentiment upon this subject.

And your committee do accordingly recommend the adoption of the following resolutions:

1st. RESOLVED by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Delaware in General Assembly met, That this General Assembly do not approve of the course pursued by the President of the United States in regulating the currency of the Union; by the removal of the public deposits of the funds of the Government from the Bank of the United States and branches thereof;—because as a measure of policy it was, unwise, imprudent, and fraught with great evil in all its consequences, and because the mode of its accomplishment was in violation of the law and constitution.

2d. Resolved, That the Bank of the United States is an institution well calculated to regulate the currency of the Union;—that it had fully answered the purposes contemplated in its creation, by establishing an uniform and stable currency, and equalizing exchanges in commercial transactions, and by promoting to an unexampled extent the prosperity and happiness of the whole country: and that the best evidence of the honesty and integrity of its administration is to be found in its firm resistance of Executive influence which sought to control its operations and to make it, as it had the Post Office and Treasury Departments, an engine of political power to corrupt the people by a distribution of its spoils among its devoted partizans.

3d. Resolved, That the doctrines and the assumptions contained in the Protest Message of the President, to the Senate of the United States, upon the occasion of its resistance and condemnation of his measures in regard to the removal of the deposits from the Bank of the United States, are utterly at variance with the principles, inimical to the freedom, and subversive of the Constitution of our Government; and, that the conduct of our Senators upon that occasion, accords with the views, and meets the entire approbation of this General Assembly.

4th. Resolved, That the thanks of this Legislature, on behalf of the people of this State, be, and are hereby tendered to our Representatives in both Houses of Congress, for the manly and strenuous efforts used by them in resisting the tide of Executive encroachments and in sustaining upon all occasions those measures of policy so well calculated to advance the general welfare and in support of the Laws and Constitution of the Union.

5th. Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolutions be signed by the speakers of the Senate and House of Representatives, and sent to each of our Senators and to our Representative in Congress.

GENTLEMEN,

Being about to perform the last duty, as presiding officer of this House, may I be indulged, for a moment, in availing myself of the occasion to make my respectful acknowledgments, for the favorable expression of your opinion contained in the Resolution, which you have just adopted. The satisfaction thus produced, by such an expression of your approbation, coming as it does, from the immediate Representatives of the people, is truly heartfelt and grateful, and must ever stand, next to that, derived from a conscientious conviction, of having to the full extent of my humble abilities, discharged the important duties devolved on me, by your appointment. But I must however be permitted to say, that for the approbation and favourable opinion expressed, I feel sensible that I am more indebted to the kindness, than to the justice of the House; and that, if in the course of my administration of the duties of the Chair, I have been able in the least degree, to satisfy your just expectations, it is to be ascribed to the liberal support, which has been upon all sides, generously extended to me. And, Gentleman, in now separating, I take leave of you all, under impressions of the highest respect, and esteem,—and that you may long continue to live, in health, and prosperity, and experience, on your return to your respective homes every blessing of which our nature is susceptible, is the ardent wish of one, wherever he may be, who will never cease to cherish for you, the most sincere and affectionate recollections.

GENTLEMEN,

In pursuance of a joint Resolution of both Houses, I now adjourn this House, Sine die.

ATTEST,

JOSHUA. G. BAKER, Clerk
Of the House of Representatives, of the State of Delaware.
