Govt. Classes Visit Capitol Last Tuesday

Visit Congress, Supreme Court, Bureau of Engraving and the Congressional Library During Stay.

By SAMUEL M. ARNOLD

Thirty-two members of Mr. Humbert's Government class spent all day Tuesday in the nation's capital learning the inner workings of our government. They arrived at the first point on the program, the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, at 8.30, Washington time, where they spent over an hour watching the process of the development of currency and stamps.

The Congressional Library was the next stop. Guides conducted two groups through the endless stacks of books in the recesses of the building; showed them the public reading room and explained the method of supplying readers with requested books; revealed the intricate card-catalogue system with its numerous files; and pointed out many important books and documents.

Glazed eyes and shuffling feet warned Mr. Humbert that starvation was near, so time was taken out for lunch.

The group next wandered over to the Senate building where it was announced that the Senate was adjourned for the afternoon. Representative Allen was immediately looked up, who, after an effusive welcome, had the class admitted to the balcony of the House which was in session. Speaker Bankhead and the clerk threw their voices into the tumult caused by disinterested representatives. It was quite some time before any sense could be made out of the proceedings. It developed, however, that the Clerk was reading decisions of a committee and the Speaker was asking for objections which were immediately given by the Gentleman from California. A heated discussion resulted on the right of the Gentleman to object to every thing that came along. It was finally ended by a Gentleman who wanted to make a speech for an hour. The Government class unanimously decided on retiring.

They went across the park to the Supreme Court building where

Dr. Stine Speaks On Industry And College Training

Dr. Charles M. Stine, a Vice-President of the DuPont Company in charge of chemical research was the speaker at the College Hour held in Mitchell Hall last Tuesday. His topic was "Chemistry and Character in Industry."

In introducing the speaker President Hulihan stated that "We have in our state one of the greatest industries in the whole world. I sometimes think if it had not been for the DuPont Company, the University of Delaware would be a far less significant place than it is."

Dr. Stine then proceeded to "check" with the students on the values of a college education. He pointed out the fact that it is difficult to answer the question to satisfy all people as no two persons look at the question in the same way. To illustrate his point he cited the example of several persons walking through a field. How the artist sees the landscape, the geologist notices the rock formation, and the agriculturist notices the soil fertility. "If one is going into research one ought to specialize" was the speaker's answer to the question of the position of College Technical training. Turning to the profession of business

Preston Gives Finance Report To the Council

Council Unable to Finance Humanist; Co-ed Blue Hen and Review Discussed at Meeting.

The Financial status of Council Funds and a new plan for THE REVIEW were discussed at the Student Council meeting on Monday evening.

After President Clark Lattin had appointed William Wells as the student representative on the College Hour Committee and Fenton Carey on the University Hour Committee, reports from the various appointed committees were given. Treasurer Kirby Preston, who is Chairman of the Finance Committee, made a financial report, stating that the Council is running under a debt at the present time. The only remaining source of money is THE REVIEW ads, which Mr. Reiver, present at this meeting said were outstanding against The College Paper, and which he thought could be collected.

Committee Reports

Hial Pepper, chairman of the Honor Points Committee, reported that the lists of activities were being made out, but that more time would be required to complete the computation of points. Charles Brown, Chairman of the Constitution Committee, reported a meeting of the Committee had been held and that work had been done on the Preamble to the new Legislative Document. Mr. Brown asked for a period "of about three weeks" in which to finish the task of drawing up the new constitution. There was no report forthcoming from John Healy's Rat Rules Committee. The matter of Student Council stationery was considered.

Dr. Svedberg Will Speak At Chemistry Building Opening

At a luncheon at the home of President Walter Hulihan Tuesday, a committee was formed to make plans for an important conference, on chemistry and chemical education, to be held at the University of Delaware on the occasion of the formal opening of the new chemistry building, which is to take place about the middle of October. Those present who agreed to serve on this committee were Dr. Charles M. Stine, Dr. Norman Chilton, and Dr. E. O. Kraemer, of the DuPont Company; George Norman of the Hercules Company; Joseph M. McVey, also of the Hercules Company and president of the general Alumni Association of Delaware College; Dr. A. S. Eastman, head of the department of chemistry, and President Hulihan.

The committee enthusiastically endorsed the action already taken by the University in inviting the famous Swedish scientist Prof. The Svedberg, the Nobel Prize winner in physical chemistry in 1926 to be one of the principal speakers.

'Dancing Through The Ages' Is Theme Of W. C. D. Annual May Day Pageant

MAY QUEEN

Betty Davidson, who will preside as May Queen of the Women's College during the May Day Program and Dance to be held tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Betty Davidson is May Queen; Dorothy Hanby, Ruth Warrington and Jeanne Remington Are Chosen as Duchesses.

With traditional color and pageantry, the Women's College will present its annual May Day program at 2.30 p. m. tomorrow afternoon at the W. C. D. campus.

A pageant, "Dancing Through the Ages," will be presented in honor of the 1937 May Queen, who is Elizabeth Davidson, a senior of Claymont, Delaware.

Elizabeth Strauss will be Maid of Honor; Mary Smyth, Senior Duchess; and Ruth Hanby and Clair Hughes, Senior Attendants. Dorothy Hanby has been chosen Junior Duchess, and Evelyn Wallace and Emily Morrell, her Attendants. The Sophomore Duchess will be Ruth Warrington who will have as her Attendants, Margaret Hogan and Frances Thompson. Jeanne Remington will be Freshman Duchess, and her Attendants, Louanna Hanby and Anne Kline.

The program for the May Day celebration will commence with the Processional. Then the Queen, Elizabeth Davidson, will enter as the Women's College Chorus sings "Music in the Air." The Queen will be crowned as the chorus continues by singing "May Is Here."

The dances which will make up the main pageant entitled "Dancing Through the Ages" are as follows: Episode I—Dancing When Grandmother was a Girl, which will include: A Social Dance, the Gavotte, and A Ballad—Hansel and Gretel.

Episode II—Mother's Day Dances, which will include: The Polka, Aesthetic Dances, Dancing School exercises, Pavlova's Govotte, The Maypole, Cupid and Butterfly, The Nightingale, Blossoming Boughs, Natural Dances, Greeting, Playing Ball, In the Waves, Lyric Dance and the Huntress.

Episode III will depict Child's Dances and include the following numbers: Modern Dances, The Machine Age, The Combat, Conservatism and Liberalism, Country Dance and Tap Dance.

The characters in the pageant will be as follows: Grandmother, Jane Trent; Child, Nina Matusoff;

E. 52 Players Will Present Winning One-Act Play Here

John Swenchart's prize-winning play, Small at Large, which captured the $50 Dean Smith Award last week, will be presented in a one-act play program by the E 52 Players on May 17 in Mitchell Hall.

At the same program the Washington College Players will present a one-act play, and the E 52 Players will present Playgoers, which they produced at Washington College two weeks ago.

Small at Large is the story of a public enemy number one who is employed as gardener by the country's head G-man, Mr. Albert Parkus. Mr. Parkus also employs a maid named Margy, and he has a son who stamps around under the name of Little Albert.

The public enemy in the play is not the usual desperado pictured in the movies and the newspapers. The author evidently feels that

Cooch Praises E 52 Players' Production; Warren and Jean Calloway Win Laurels

By Thomas Cooch

"The School for Husbands," presented last Friday by the E 52 Players, might have been too much for one of its stars, William Whedbee, who dropped out of School the next day, but it was just about right for a majority of its audience of 700 and your reviewer. We say this after having seen the play and interviewing quite a few students around the University.

The play was a musical comedy by name, and was all that its name implied. Humor was there, although not all was intended, and so was the music. In fact there was too much music. The encores, given with little or no provocation in the first act, are the chief bone of contention and criticism. These unnecessary interruptions to the tempo of the production nullified the fast pace set by the rest of the show. Who was responsible for them we do not know, but opinion is unanimous that the cast should not have been so kind in granting repetitions.

Warren Effective

Tom Warren, as the kill-joy, Sganarelle, fulfilled all expectations after he had stuttered through the Foreword. With that one exception, his was an effective performance, and his part was one quite different from any he has hitherto attempted. Wilfred Cleland, as Sganarelle's brother, did alright with his singing, but we were disappointed in his lack of finesse in trying to steal one or two of the scenes. Scene-stealing is fine, if you can get away with it, but he didn't.

Catherine Rittenhouse, as the heroine-ward, is always in good voice, but lacked volume in this production. And her acting was very good.

Bailly Reviews 'School For Husbands,' Praises Jean Calloway As Best Actress

By Jean Bailly

The E 52 Players made, last Friday, a very bold attempt to give the modern English version of L'Ecole des Maris. "L'audace était belle," and they must be praised for having tried to interest an American audience in our great Moliere. The musical portion was on the whole passable, but the arrangements of many of the songs did not able the singers to display their full vocal ability. The melodies were either uninteresting or in too low a key. In a light musical comedy, the music should be sparkling and the action lively. The orchestra should show a complete mastery but, according to all judgments, our university orchestra was not quite ready, and in spite of Miss Elizabeth Staton's skillful electrical baton, too many players hesitated or were even out of key. Instead of being alert the action was slow and languishing, except in a few scenes, which received the plaudits of the mostly indiscriminate audience, like the one between Lisette and Ergaste, between Sylvester and Lysander, or like the duel between Wells and Swartz (the first and second bravo). This lack of action was aggravated, at least in the first act, by the fact that all songs were repeated at the slightest provocation.

The cast was, as a whole, well chosen, and the actors all meant well. Thomas Warren had the leading part, but unfortunately he declaimed his lines like prose, monotonously and inarticulately. Why does he speak with his mouth closed? Catherine Rittenhouse acted well and sang beautifully though with a voice which was not powerful enough for Mitchell Hall. My only reproach is that she acted

Co-ed Year Book

For some time, "The Blue Hen" has been a biennial publication, devoting itself exclusively to Delaware College. By this arrangement, classes graduating in odd numbered years have a year book while those classes graduating in even numbered years do not. The book, when it is printed, contains none of the activities of the Women's College, for they struggle along like Delaware College by also publishing simultaneously a biennial book of their own. When the cry is raised for an annual publication at either college, the fact is pointed out that it is financially impossible to do so.

There is no good reason why the two colleges should continue publishing separate books. Why can't we have a co-ed year book containing interesting biographies, pictures, and short articles concerning the activities at both colleges? Such a book, we feel, could easily be made financially self-sustaining.

Let us consider some of the benefits accruing from a co-ed book: (1) It would give every class at each college a year book of its own. At present, the Juniors are listed along with the Seniors, but with only a partial account of their activities or the accomplishments of that class. It is a fact that most students do not take an active part in extra-curricular activities until their Senior year, and when these students look back at their year book and find these activities omitted, they feel that their class has been slighted. (2) An annual co-ed book would include both colleges and enhance the interest with which the book would be received. (3) It would be a good financial proposition for both colleges as a larger field of advertising would be opened.

There are several ways in which a staff could be chosen for the proposed year book. Perhaps, the editorship could alternate between Delaware College and the Women's College. Better results, however, could be obtained we believe if co-editors, one from each college, were appointed. These editors could then appoint their separate staffs and work out their part of the book at their own college.

We hope that this plan will be carefully considered by both Student Councils before the end of this semester so that a co-ed year book may soon be a reality at Delaware University.

Faculty Lecture Series

An experiment will be made next Thursday evening! The University Hour Committee is sponsoring the first of a proposed series of lectures by members of the faculty, who will speak on subjects of popular interest within their fields of study. The Committee has arranged a lecture by Dr. Joseph S. Gould, head of the Department of Economics at the University, as the first lecture in the series. He will speak on "The United States, Prosperity and World Trade." If sufficient interest is shown in this plan Thursday evening, faculty speakers will be regularly scheduled for many such program during the coming year.

The University Hour Committee is to be commended for arranging this lecture. There has long been the need for a series of lectures which would present professors from our own University to Mitchell Hall audiences. We hope that despite the warm weather of the season there will be a large audience to hear Dr. Gould Thursday evening.

THE COLLEGIATE REVIEW

Women at the University of California, Los Angeles, are more fashionably dressed than those on any other campus, explains Elizabeth Eldridge, style authority, because men at the university frequently date girls in Hollywood.

Cocoon oil instead of gasoline may some day drive the trucks and tractors of the world—if experiments being conducted by Antonio Buot, graduate mechanical engineering student at the University of Minnesota, prove successful.

Because "Good-nights" come too quickly after "Good evenings," coeds at the University of Alabama are now fighting to have their 10.45 week-end night deadline changed to 12 o'clock.

Corn-husking and hog-calling contest were featured at the "hick" dance of the freshman class at Southern Methodist University. Boys had to pay an admission fee of 1 cent for every inch they measured around the waist.

That collegians, contrary to the idea of Dan O'Brien, King of Hoboes, do make good bums, is what students at State Teachers College, Valley City, North Dakota, are trying to prove. They are urging the Student council to set aside an annual Hobo Day.

If a mathematician were to split hairs with statisticians at the University of Minnesota, he could probably prove them a pound or two off in their computation that barbers in the Union building clip almost 100 pounds of black, yellow, white, brown and auburn locks yearly.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Explanation For The Curious Five

Dear Editor:

Perhaps I should address this letter to the girls who wish themselves to be known as "The Curious Five," but it really doesn't matter in my attempt to explain what the boys on the upper campus call an interesting date.

Attractiveness is merely the ability to attract appreciative eyes but to hold their attention, something else must be involved. What that something is depends on you but this is what the fellows would want it to be:

A girl should be a good sport in that she can take a little kidding and do some kidding of her own. She should also consider the fellow's finances—we don't usually go for the "chiseler" type. If a girl is an interesting conversationalist and in the course of an evening one finds out what each has in common it is all the better. You may know that it's a pretty tough problem to sit on pins and needles gawking at each other waiting for the other to make a break. Some might try necking in this case but I can feel safe when I say that such actions are nothing more than a sure sign that things are getting dull and necking is an attempt to keep the evening from being a total flop.

Girls should be cooperative in suggesting places of entertainment and not leave it up to the fellow entirely. If the fellow's suggestion is followed out and turns into a foul ball, one person must shoulder the blame and it really is a lot of fun to laugh at a "boner" when both are at fault.

This is not to be idealistic in any sense. It is what most of us think. There are many nice girls at Delaware and all are supposedly born equal and what develops after that is entirely up to you and no one else—so go to it.

Yours truly,
Ronald F. Zabowski.

Pointers For The Curious Five

Dear Editor:

The letter from The Curious Five was exactly as they stated in their first sentence, silly; and when anyone writes a letter like that, I feel sorry for them.

In the first place, "One of the Delaware College boys" does not represent the entire student body, and every one of us have our own opinions as to what we like.

They worry because the mentioned girls are so popular. Doesn't that happen everywhere? Isn't there always someone more outstanding than the others? Where would this world be if everyone lived on the same level? It just can't be helped. It's only human nature. There are some of the boys here who are more popular than the others, but we don't worry about it. We don't go around crying because one boy receives more invitations to their dances than the others.

If I were any one of The Curious Five I wouldn't worry over one boy's opinion. Live your own life, act natural, and perhaps someday your chance will come.

Azever
Satisfied

Another Curious Five

To the Editor:

This letter is going to sound silly, but something has to be done about this continual razzing we Men's College students seem to be in for.

One of the Women's College girls really caused a terrific uproar when she stated casually that there were only two interesting boys on campus and they were "Rube" Hayman and Franklin Clymer. We boys think that is going a little too far. There are plenty of interesting boys on campus who are just as attractive, if not more so, than either Hayman or Clymer. We admit these two boys have been the most popular this term, but that's because both of them are so fickle that it is fun to see what they are going to do next. If it is fickleness that is interesting to the ladies (question) there are more than two fickle boys at the Men's College.

We don't hold a grudge against these two boys because they are rated so highly, but we can't understand what it is about them that makes them so much more interesting than the rest of us. If some kind young girl will please tell us, we will appreciate it. We want you to understand that we are not interested in interesting Women's College, but we are just curious about what Women's College considers interesting. All the ladies have to do is illustrate what they mean. We asked "Rube" and "Benny" what they knew about it and they were as puzzled as we who are uninteresting.

We demand an explanation,
Another Curious Five.

Dramatics Fee Proposed For Students

May 5, 1937.

To the Editor:

I am of the opinion that the drama is a vital organ of student life. Here at Delaware, largely through the efforts of a good director of dramatics and energetic stage managers, we have had many fine productions. Yet in a house that seats 900 we have an average attendance of 400 persons. Among these audiences I notice the percentage of students is small in comparison with the total number enrolled at the University.

Why not finance dramatics in the same manner as athletics? Charge a uniform dramatic fee at the beginning of each scholastic year in return for which the student would receive a ticket covering all (or a part) of the productions for the year. Such an action would take the financial risk away from our plays, reduce the per ticket cost (by spreading the assessment), and even make it possible to spend more money on productions.

To the objection that some students would not want to use these tickets, I think that even these persons should be willing to contribute toward the good of the college, in drama.

Signed,
Robert T. Wilson.

Senior Looks Ahead

To the Editor:

Predictions of a Senior for 20 years hence:

1—That the Student Council will still have an overly large under intelligent membership struggling with its present constitution.

2—That the University Social Committee will still be opposing student representation on the grounds that what's good enough for our forefathers is good enough for us.

3—That the fraternities will have left Greek words to remember them by.

4—That the Engineers will be specialized that they will be unable to talk to each other.

5—That there will be co-education in theory but no-education in practice.

6—That some students will continue to be so naive as to attend classes.

7—That I'll be back on alumni day trying to impress my children(?) with my importance and popularity during my underclass days.

RETROSPECTION

Last Friday nite, in Mitchell Hall, the greatest dramatic success ever to hit our campus, took its first and final curtain. The culmination of the hard work of four weeks was a two-hour show. But it was worth the labor; from the standpoint of audience, actor and production-staff member, the whole performance went off smoothly.

To those who didn't attend—you missed a good bet; to those who did, we think you got your money's worth. If you didn't, tell us. That's the only way we have of finding out what you want.

And while we're on the subject—why don't you write to this column or to Dr. Kase, and give your reasons for or against dramatics. Tell us what you want or expect from plays; why you do or do not participate; whether you think dramatics are a success on the campus, and so forth. After all, we put on the shows for you, not for ourselves. None of the organizations are profit-making, and this is the easiest way for us to get your ideas. So give us a break. Tell us what you want—we'll do our best to give it to you.

ROUNDELAY

And if you didn't see the play, see Cooch's review . . . What is the plan for dramatics Dr. Kase has up his sleeve . . . From all hints overheard, it's just what dramatics needs . . . Full details will be published vaddy, vaddy shortly . . . May 17 and an evening of one-act plays . . . give it a twirl . . . it's guaranteed to be entirely worth-while . . . And so the season for work, worry and wondering is about shot . . . the one-actors finish it up . . . until next year.

RAZZBERRY

The secret is out . . . the author of this here colyum (?) can now come out from behind his dark glasses, false beard, and complete anonymity (ditto?). For Percy has caught up with the rest of the college. He knows who the writer is. Congratulations, Perce. We were worried for awhile.

To all those who were aroused by the so-called vituperations of this colyum. It was fun while it lasted. Don't take it too much to heart. It wasn't meant nearly as seriously as it appeared to be taken. But I still stick by what I said. Love and kisses.

And so back to the books, for three weeks' of work, to make up for the four weeks lost on "School for Husbands," a fitting vehicle with which to close a very successful dramatic year.

and the Mother, Lucy Messina. In the Ballet Dance, Anne Henry will take the part of Hansel, Dorothy Counahan will be Gretel, Ruth Cantwell will be Gertrude, Alison Rosenberg will be the Cookie Watch, while the part of the Sandman is to be portrayed by Doris Smith.

Music for the festivities will be rendered under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Staton. Those playing for the occasion will be: Pauline Pjunti and Elizabeth MacFarland, pianos; Mildred Golin, Doris Young, Selma Robbins, Martha Mitchell, Virginia Weissinger and Edna Fedrich, violins; and Amelia Kozinski, cello. This group will be assisted by the Delaware College members of the University Orchestra.

Members of the Freshman class will participate in the following dances: Cupid and Butterfly, Lyric-Blossoming Boughs, Greeting, Is the Waves-Playing Ball, and

Art Exhibit

The Art Department of the University of Delaware the Women's College of begins its participation in the Delaware Festival of the Arts by announcing the fourth and last of a series of Living American Art colorprints.

The series has included the Living American Art Jury's selection of the Forty-Eight American Pictures of the Year. There are portraits, landscapes, and still-life. The artists themselves have endorsed the reproductions as adequate copies of their original works. These prints may be purchased at a very small cost.

The exhibition will be open to the public from May 2 to 12, in the Art Gallery of the Memorial Library. The gallery is open from 8 to 4:30 on weekdays and on Sundays from 2 to 4:30.

Machine Age.

Girls from the Sophomore class will take part in the dances: Huntresses, Combat-Modern Dance, Glouworm, Country, and Polka.

The following girls will participate in the Maypole Dance: Jean Sigler, Ellen Sipple, Emily Carr, Margaret Trumbull, Betty Vernon, Dorothy Markert, Ruth Mylrea, Frances Webster, Mildred English, Betty Scott, Peggy Morrison, Betty Stone, Lillian Spinken, Hazel Croes, Jean Calloway, and Catherine Rittenhouse.

In the Cookie Dance will be: Jacqueline Hayden, Frances Staats, Mabel Jones, Josephine Blake, Elizabeth Hurst, Amelia Kozinski, Virginia Pepper, and Jean Deisinger.

too independently of her partner and gave him no opportunity to show his osculatory efforts. Jean Calloway was best of all and deserves the bouquet. She was very amusing, frank, spontaneous, in short a true "servante de Molière." Her partner, Joe Scannell, was really in his element and only too willing to cover Lisette with kisses. Wilfred Clelland must be praised for his arrangement of some of the music and his rather rich baritone. Louise Steel was good, but not very apparent. "Red Dog, the toper," and William Everhart were natural and funny. I lack space to mention all the others, the street dancers, William Wells and his convict attire, Noonan who played his part perfectly, Silus Americus, etc.

I was unpleasantly surprised to hear one of the most popular French songs "Au Clair de la lune" sung with such abominable accent and so many grammatical mistakes. I cannot put the blame on Everhart who never took French, but I think that when the seats are seventy-five cents such important details should not be neglected.

The scenery was extremely well designed and painted "avec goût." The carpenter must be praised for his ingenious opening casement windows. The lighting was good too, and Miss Calloway and her bevy of "ouvreuses" were charmingly gowned and eyed each young man with remarkable "Lisettishness."

In spite of serious handicaps the E 52 made the best they could; however, I do not think that they should go on in that direction. A play like the "School for Husbands" which has a very meagre and old-fashioned intrigue does not suffer any imperfection, and can only be produced successfully by professional players like the actors of the Theatre Guild. Given by college students who do not have enough experience or enough time to practice, it appears insipid and lifeless.

Parking Ordinance

Chief of Police William H. Cunningham calls to our attention the fact that there is a three hour parking limit for automobiles on Main Street from the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to the tracks of the Pomeroy branch of the Pennsylvania railroad at Newark Center. The limit is effective 24 hours daily with no exceptions for Sunday.

The Chief announces that he has been instructed to enforce the parking regulations without regard to persons or positions and will carry out the law to the letter. Police erected signs on the restricted section of Main Street yesterday as a warning to motorists.

The new Chemistry Building will be used for the first time by the Summer School session of 1937, according to Dr. A. S. Eastman of the Chemistry department. The building will be used for the annual summer school course in chemistry. This course will involve the use of the following rooms: stock room, lecture room and general chemistry laboratory.

Although the work on the Chemistry building was discontinued during the recent strike, the general progress was not delayed to any great extent. The three rooms to be used by the summer school will be equipped first and the remaining parts later. Unless further labor complications arise, the entire building will be fully equipped and ready for use at the opening of the academic year 1937-38.

Baseball Team Wallops Hampden-Sydney; Track Team Bows

Doherty Nine Defeats Southern Opponents 11-4 On Frazer Field

Capt. Dick Roberts Swats Homer To Lead Batsmen As Phil Reed Hurls Good Game on Local Diamond

The Delaware diamond men avenged themselves for an early season defeat at the hands of Hampden-Sydney by throttling the Tigers last Tuesday by a score of 11 to 4. The victory atoned for a 3-2 set-back suffered on the southern campaign.

The visitors outthit the Hens 9 to 8, but "Doc" Doherty's charges came through with timely hits to score frequently. Delaware scored seven runs in the first inning to sew up the game, and won in a breeze.

Captain Dick Roberts lead his team-mates at bat with a brace of hits, one of which was a long home run drive. "Robbie's" circuit clout was delivered in the third frame with the bases barren. Lew Carey also contributed two hits to the local cause by driving out a single and a double.

Phil Reed toiled on the mound for the locals, and allowed the Southerners nine hits. Spencer and Buchinsky led the attack on Reed with three hits each.

Next Wednesday the Blue and Gold will again meet the strong George Washington University nine and attempt to even the series with the Colonials, who annexed a 7 to 4 decision earlier in the season.

Life-Saver's Course To Be Offered Here

Mr. Joseph Shields, instructor in the Delaware Physical Education Department, will conduct an Examiner's Training Course in the college pool beginning next Monday evening.

The session will begin at 8.15 p. m., and will be held from Monday to Thursday evening inclusive, as well as on the following Monday and Tuesday.

The course will be open to all students who have earned a Senior Life Saving Certificate within the past three years, and who need certification in order to obtain such positions as camp counselors, lifeguards, and pool instructors.

Perkins Will Work For The Philadelphia Public Ledger

Joseph H. Perkins, Jr., former editor-in-chief of THE REVIEW, has secured a position with the Philadelphia Public Ledger where he will continue his journalistic activities.

Perkins, one of the most colorful editors to ever have charge of THE REVIEW, served as head of this publication from February, 1936 to the end of October when he was succeeded by Thomas Cochran.

Netsmen Win One, Lose Two Matches

Steve Bartoshesky Lone Winner Against Owls; Cap. Lew Carey Drops First College Singles.

Coach Ralph Jones' tennismen blanked P. M. C. 9-0 in a match played on the local courts last Wednesday afternoon.

Led by Captain Carey, the Hens made a clean sweep in the singles matches with Bill Wells, Steve Bartoshesky, Frank Nichols, Lee Rice, and Morris Knopf turning in victories. Roy Donoho and Rice teamed to win the first doubles, while Bartoshesky and Knopf, and McMahon and Laskaris, won the remaining contests.

Delaware vs. P. M. C. Singles

Carey, Delaware, defeated Arnold, P. M. C., 6-1, 6-0.
Wells, Delaware, defeated Baateiger, P. M. C., 6-2, 9-7.
Bartoshesky, Delaware, defeated Wright, P. M. C., 6-1, 6-1.
Nichols, Delaware, defeated Hickman, P. M. C., 6-1, 6-3.
Rice, Delaware, defeated Weiner, P. M. C., 6-1, 6-3.
Knopf, Delaware, defeated Krockenberger, P. M. C., 6-2, 6-1.

Doubles

Donoho and Rice, Delaware, defeated Hickman and Arnold, P. M. C., 6-4, 6-4.
Bartoshesky and Knopf, Delaware, defeated Baateiger and Weiner, P. M. C., 7-5, 6-3.
McMahon and Laskaris, Delaware, defeated Turner and Krockenberger, P. M. C., 7-5, 6-1.

The Delaware tennis team dropped two engagements last weekend on the local courts, losing to Western Maryland 6-3 on Friday, and bowing to Temple 8-1 on Saturday.

Against Western Maryland, the Hen netters gained an even break in the singles as a result of victories turned in by Lew Carey, Bill Wells, and Frank Nichols. The Terrors, however, swept the doubles competition to annex the match.

The Temple netmen overwhelmed the local racquetiers, while Steve Bartoshesky, yearling star, averted a shut-out victory for the Owls by defeating Hartenstein 6-3, 6-2.

Captain Lew Carey lost the first singles match of his college court career, losing to Perschonock of Temple in three hard fought sets, 5-7, 6-1, 6-2.

Summaries:

WITH THE BLUE AND GOLD

By Fenton Carey

With three student representatives failing to put in an appearance at the last meeting of the Athletic Council, that body was forced to adjourn for lack of a quorum to conduct its business. It is a great honor to be selected to represent one's class on the Council, and to take an active part in the management of Delaware's athletic affairs. That honor carries with it certain duties and responsibilities that should not be lightly thrust aside. We feel sure that there would be a loud howl of protest were those members deprived of their privilege to represent the student body and voice undergraduate opinion.

We thank those fellow sports writers who have shown their interest by offering your columnist some sound advice concerning what might be done to solve Delaware's publicity problems. We assure said writers that we shall do all in our power to have an athletic publicity department established here at the university.

Obviously, such a department would tend to eliminate the discrepancies and inaccurate statements to be found in the Wilmington papers, many of which are inexcusable. We illustrate our point by quoting an item which appeared in the "Morning News" early this week. "Coach Lyal Clark is planning to take most of his track team to Baltimore on Saturday for the annual Mason-Dixon Conference meet. This will be the first year for Delaware to participate in this meet."

As usual, the Wilmington rags reveal their lack of information concerning Delaware athletics. In the first place, the trackmen are coached by "Ed" Bardo. Secondly, this is not the first year for the Hens to participate in the meet mentioned as the team competed last year.

The write-up of the recent Swarthmore track meet, which was "swiped" verbatim from a metropolitan paper evidently was not even read carefully as the article contained several mistakes. We almost missed the half-dozen lines concerning Delaware's 9-0 win over P. M. C. in a recent tennis match. Yet a Wilmington columnist claims that Delaware's victories are written up sufficiently and well.

We do not intend to enter into a long drawn out discussion with the Wilmington sports commentators, concerning this matter of publicity, through the medium of the press. However, we shall be glad to discuss this problem privately with anyone who might be interested.

In closing, may we add that it is our fond hope that we have not trod on anyone's toes too heavily. As our good friend, Charley Rutledge of the "Newark Post" states, "when a situation irks, the urge to spill the works in rebuttal cannot always be satisfied by merely skipping it."

Garnets Top Hens In Close Contest

Bobby Good Leads Golfers With Low Medal Score of 74; Bob Lippincott Plays Tie Match

The Blue Hen linksmen lost a close match to the Swarthmore College pill swatters last Friday on the Newark Country Club course, going down to defeat by a score of 3 1-2 to 2 1-2.

Bob Good again paced the locals with victories in both the individual and best ball competition. Good carded an excellent score of 74 to take low medal honors, and paired with Bob Lippincott to win his best ball engagement. Lippincott finished all even with his opponent in the individual matches, while Bob Jamison and "Teedie" Wilson lost to their Garnet rivals by close scores.

Jack Murphy, Wilson's opponent, toured the course in good form to finish with a 75, one stroke behind Good.

Summary:

Individual

Jackie, Swarthmore, defeated Jamison, Delaware, 2 and 1.
Murphy, Swarthmore, defeated Wilson, Delaware, 3 and 2.
Good, Delaware, defeated Braden, Swarthmore, 6 and 5.
Lippincott, Delaware, finished all square with Wickenhaver, Swarthmore.

Best Ball

Jackie and Murphy, Swarthmore, defeated Jamison and Wilson, Delaware, 2 and 1.
Good and Lippincott, Delaware, defeated Braden and Wickenhaver, Swarthmore, 3 and 1.

Low Medal

Good, Delaware—74.

The Blue and Gold trackmen lost their second dual meet in as many starts last Friday, bowing to Swarthmore's track and field stars by the lopsided score of 90 to 36. The Garnet presented a well balanced team that captured 11 out of the 14 first places.

Bob Ramsey again starred for the Blue Hens by taking the individual high scoring honors of the day with 14 points. Ramsay, versatile freshman star, won the high hurdles and broad jump events, finished second in the low hurdles, and placed third in the high jump. He topped the tall timbers in the good time of 16.1 to approach the Delaware record of 15.9.

Tom Pennock contributed nine points to the local cause with a first in the javelin throw, a second in the discus heave, and a third in the high sticks.

The Little Quakers were led to victory by Tommy Hallowell and Buzz Eberle, a pair of all-around athletes. Hallowell, all-American soccer captain and basketball star, set a new Swarthmore record with a six foot leap in the high jump, and placed second in the broad jump and javelin throw. Eberle, Garnet football and basketball luminary, broke the tape a winner in the century and furlong sprints.

Summary:

Del. Trackmen In Meet At Baltimore

Coach "Ed" Bardo will take his track and field aggregation to Baltimore tomorrow where his charges will compete in the second annual Mason-Dixon Conference Track Meet.

The Hen trackmen will vie for individual awards and team honors against a strong field which includes Washington College, Randolph-Macon, Western Maryland, Johns Hopkins, American U., Catholic U., Galludet, and Baltimore U.

Last year the meet was won by Washington College with Delaware winding up in third place.

An unusual feature of this event is the Olympic idea of presenting awards to victors, which is copied by the use of a victory stand. Music is also provided to lend added color to the occasion.

Prof.: Have you ever read "The Louie"?

Student: No, how do you get them to listen?

The Informer

By Bill Wells

(Jim Smith Special)

A few years ago some enterprising wag introduced the following lines upon our campus. "Stranger, are you Jim Smith? No? Well I am and that's his horse you are getting on." Much water has since passed under the bridge. Students have entered, flunked, or graduated. But each passer-by has added his bit to the legend. Now this week has been set aside to venerate Jim Smith and his followers. Everyone is Jim Smithing. The students, profs, janitors and even the mice in the dorms are doing their bit to revive this mysterious and lovable old character. A bunch of the boys were caught Jim Smithing last night and this is what happened:

"Stranger, are you Jim Smith? No? Well, I am and that's his foot you are standing on."

"Stranger are you Jim Smith? NO!!! oh."

Hullo, Jim Smith, are you a stranger here?

Say, stranger, are you Jim Smith's horse?

Stranger are you Jim Smith? That's funny, I thought I was.

Hello Jim Smith, have you seen a strange horse?

Hello horse, are you Jim Smith? No. I'm a stranger.

Hmmmmmm—that's a strange looking horse.

Giddap, stranger, here comes Jim Smith.

Hello, stranger, I'm Jim Smith. Have a drink?"

New NOISES ON THE CAMPUS—that cracking sound caused by the opening of books which have not been used all term.

THINGS PLEASANT — faces outlined against the blackness of the Library steps by glowing tips of cigarettes—the line of budding trees flanking Old College—the raucous babble of the boys' voices as they play soft-ball—the way Joe Shields hits a badminton bird—the color guard marching over the green campus.

CLEVER CRACK—honors this week go to JOHNNIE HEALEY. Referring to a friend, says Johnnie, "He stares into his mirror as if he can't believe it."

More Flowers—for Kay RITTENHOUSE. Although she received quite a bundle Monday night, we believe that posies are still in order for this talented young W. C. D'er. Give us more of this sort of thing.

TO THE CURIOUS FIVE—Despite the fact that your letter last week was silly and pointless, we feel sorry for the poor jealous five and will endeavor to put you straight upon a few things. First of all, nine-tenths of Men's College never heard of Hanna and McCoy. Secondly, fellows select girls purely upon a personality basis and not because of certain reputed earmarks such as fickleness, etc. And thirdly, we believe that your simple letter was nothing more than a typical W. C. D. catty attempt to obtain a little cheap publicity. At least you might have affixed your names to the letter so that we could tell where the mud was coming from.

MAY DAY—will also be celebrated at the Training House. After a closely contested struggle, Monk Dillon was chosen to be queen of the May Court. Other members of the court include Earl Sheats, and Joe Aranoff, as duchesses, Hymie Swartz and Bruce Lindsay, pages and Teedie Wilson, maypole.

The ceremony will be entitled "The Boy And Ten Dollars" and will feature Sankie Kenworthy, co-starring with Rube Hayman and Bob Gerow.

TO MRS. PERRY—charming supervisor of the Commons goes our vote of gratitude for the part she has played in making our meals more enjoyable. The task of feeding the faces of a hundred growling college boys and keeping a staff of punchy waiters on the job is far from easy. She has done her business efficiently and always

A.S.C.E. To Elect Officers Monday

The University of Delaware student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will meet next Monday evening at 7.30 p. m. to nominate officers for the club to hold office during the coming year.

The speaker on this occasion will be Mr. William A. McWilliams, division engineer of the State Highway Department. He will take as his subject "Fill Settlements in Delaware." Alumni engineers as well as members of the club are urged to attend this meeting, which will be held in Evans Hall.

The lecture will be of special interest because the study of the action of soils under varying conditions found in connection with highway design is becoming more and more important, and no Civil Engineer can well afford to miss this opportunity of learning first hand what is going on in this field.

The talk will be non-technical, and illustrated with slides.

At the present time, H. Kent Preston is president of the A. S. M. E. while Robert M. Cooke is secretary-treasurer.

Seat of the Scornful

By E. J. WILSON

This week this column attempts a comeback. We've been in the doghouse for a couple of weeks now and Billy Wells seems to have taken most of our thunder. This week we are back (I know you haven't missed it).

Incidentally Bill Wells has been giving his readers the names of books that should be read. Bill (the modest little fellow) has a book of his own. It's called "Autobiography of William Wells and How They Grew." The book sells for twenty-five cents.

These boys ought to stop beating on the Women's College. It's easy to see they're rather touchy on the subject.

Saltzman told us that the raindrops ought to have a ballet because everyone knows that moisture condense. (If you don't get it, just tear off the tops of a dozen chevrons and send it with your signature (a reasonably accurate, hand-drawn facsimile will do) and we will send you a diagram.)

The Annapolis Log gives us this cute little one:

He: Meet me at the Waldorf Astoria at eight.

She: The Waldorf? . . . Say, that's a nice place.

He: Yeah, and it's close to where we're going, too.

Little Willie, who was severely injured last week but is now recuperating, was unable to be with us today. In his stead we offer you his sister, with his compliments. Here she is:

Mary had a little lamb
It drank some kerosene;
One day it got too near a flame,
Since then it ain't benzine.

—The Hunter Bulletin.

Here we find a nursery rhyme, with a Tower accent:

Jack and Jill went up a hill
Upon a moonlight ride,
When Jack came back
One eye was black
His pal, you see, had lied.

with a cheery smile. As far as student opinion is concerned, Mrs. Perry, that job is yours as long as you want it.

THAT'S A NICE HORSE YOU HAVE THERE, JIM SMITH.

IN CLOSING—don't forget—that the student sending in the best Jim Smith gag (keep it clean) to this column will receive absolutely free one ticket to the movies. If you can't think of any, just tear off your grandfather's wig or the top off your new Buick and send it in—

Dr. Ryden Attends History Teachers Meeting in Phila.

Dr. George H. Ryden, of the History department, will attend the annual Spring Meeting of the Middle Atlantic States Association of History and Social Science Teachers, to be held at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia on Friday and Saturday of this week. Dr. Ryden is at present Vice President of the group.

The Association met here at Delaware last year. Its membership consists of teachers of history, political science and economics in secondary schools, colleges and universities in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Investments Class Visits New York Stock Exchange

Dr. Gould and the Senior Investment Class went to New York City on Wednesday to visit the New York Stock Exchange.

After viewing the Exchange in action, the group inspected the building and attended interviews for positions.

Those making the trip were William Wilson, R. Perry Vandegrift, Charles Sharp, Harry Watson, Grover Surratt, James Stoll, William Marvel, William Noonan, Fred Chapman, Newton White and John Babiarz.

Cooch Praises E 52 Players' Production

Two Teams Excellent

Our choice for best performance is Jean Calloway, as the provocative maid, who cooperated with Joe Scannell in putting on a surprisingly good comedy and singing duo. Jay (Red-Dog) O'Connell and Bill Everhart were also good as the boon companions of the hero, William Whedbee.

The above-mentioned W. Whedbee was the play's Gilbert and Sullivan character, and his performance reminded us very much of the "wandering minstrel" of "The Mikado." That is praise, for the minstrel is one of our favorite roles.

Encores Again

Speaking for ourselves alone, we present the following psychological solution to the question of why the play did not receive more applause than it did: We applauded the first bit of singing and received an encore. We didn't applaud quite as vociferously the second time, but we got an encore just the same. The rest of the night we stopped the applause, and tried to ignore the encores. Of course they couldn't be overlooked, but it is none the less true that we would have clapped whenever the situation merited had we had any assurance that we wouldn't have been taken literally and given a repetition.

The whole production is a credit to Doctor Kase and his associates. One of these, namely, Gordon Chesser, along with Herb Warburton, deserve praise without limit for the excellent set. It was a revelation to see flats that didn't seem to be on the verge of falling over, and the simulation of Parisian houses was extraordinary. Another superlative goes to the ingenious genius device for showing the insides of the houses.

Swinnen Is Heard In Final Recital

Last evening music lovers of the University attended an organ recital in Mitchell Hall given by Firmin Swinnen. In his own characteristic manner Mr. Swinnen played many well known selections from the pens of the master composers. Those numbers included in his recital were:

1. Piece Heroique . . . . . Franck
2. Aria In D Major . . . . . Bach
3. (a) Serenade . . . . . Rachmaninoff
- (b) Dance Arabe . . . . . Tchaikowski
- (c) Valse Triste . . . . . Sibelius
4. Largo . . . . . Dvorak
5. Finlandia . . . . . Sibelius
6. To the Evening Star . . . . . Wagner
7. (a) The Bee . . . . . Lemare
- (b) The Squirrel . . . . . Weaver
8. Dreams . . . . . McAmis
9. March Slav . . . . . Tchaikowski

This was the last of three recitals which have been given this year by Mr. Swinnen in Mitchell Hall.

there is a good man in every trade; so he has his public enemy, Swede Small alias Henry Whittle, a mild-tempered butler, who enjoys Mr. Parkus's expensive cigars.

There is a cereal publicity man in the play also by the name of Blatterly. It is his mission to get Mr. Parkus to head the Crispy Crunchy Cruckles Detective Corps.

The cast for "Small at Large" includes: Herbert Warburton, who will play the lead role of "Small," Phoebe Myers, who plays opposite to Warburton; Harry Stutman, who is the obstreperous "brat" Albert, son of the chief of the G-man, which will be played by Thomas Cooch. The super-salesman, who sells the idea of a junior G-man organization, will be played by Jacob Kreshtool. Carroll Cox is directing the presentation.

Dr. Stine Speaks On Industry and College Training

ness, Dr. Stine stated that although "modern business is a pretty complex entity" many thousands have succeeded in business on the basis of a four year college course in some branch of science, engineering or business. He commented that a College Course is required for "business citizenship." The universal use of a college course according to the speaker is "to be able to appreciate the world in which you live both animate and inanimate," and "to have the ability to enjoy people."

In reference to the tactics used by large industries in recruiting new talent from Colleges it was mentioned by Dr. Stine that it is "possible to get documentary evidence" pertaining to the student. "In spite of this the scout likes to look into his eyes, to learn how he meets people, and what kind of a citizen he was in school. Some of the best technically trained men are totally unable to meet people." In reference to native industry among students Dr. Stine gave the incident of the man in an elevator who asked the question "How many people work in this building?" and was answered "Not very many."

In summarizing his former remarks Dr. Stine said "a four year college course is a sufficient preparation for business and industry. It is indispensable to success in research that one have preliminary specialized training. A four year course may become a most useful thing for the ordinary business of living."

Gould Is Speaker Thursday Evening

Dr. Joseph S. Gould, head of the University Economics Department, will speak in Mitchell Hall next Thursday night on some aspect of the subject, "United States, Prosperity and World Trade."

The address is being sponsored by the University Hour Committee, and it is planned to make this form of program a regular University feature if enough interest is shown by the student body.

Dr. Gould is considered to be an authority on national and international affairs. He was formerly advisor to the National Recovery Administration on the situation in the coal fields.

Old Bible Exhibit Shown In Library

The Delawareanna Collection in the Memorial Library has been very much enhanced by the acquisition of a set of four volumes of the famous Charles Thomson Bible which was published in Philadelphia in 1808. This Bible was the first Bible to be printed in the English language.

This particular set was presented by Charles Thomson to his favorite nephew John Thomson, the ancestor of Misses Mary and Alice Kerr, residents of Newark.

Charles Thomson was a pupil in the New London Academy which was the forerunner of Newark Academy and the University of Delaware. He served for many years as Secretary of the Board of Directors of Newark Academy before the American Revolution. During the whole period of the American Revolution and until the inauguration of George Washington as President he was Secretary of the Continental Congress.

Bible Upheld By Mr. Curtis Here

The University of Delaware Chapter of the League of Evangelical Students was addressed by Mr. George A. Curtis, Minister of Music of the First Independent Church of Wilmington, on Tuesday afternoon, at 1.30, in room 26, Recitation Hall. Mr. Curtis spoke on "Higher Criticism" and showed how the higher criticism of the Scriptures has sprung from skepticism and has been largely refuted by present day Bible scholars. This proof has been largely substantiated by archeologists who have excavated several proofs in the Holy Lands and Egypt.

The next meeting of the League will be held Wednesday at 1.30 at which time a representative from the Westminster Seminary Philadelphia Chapter will speak. Robert T. Wilson is president of the Delaware Evangelical Students League.

Preston Gives Finance Report To Council

the business policies of the publication which he had received and which he resented because there was no justification for the assumptions made. Mr. Reiver gave a detailed report of the monetary condition of THE REVIEW. "I hear that the books are not up to date," he said; "Well, come up to my room and I will show them to you." He also spoke against the Spiller REVIEW plan. Reiver stated that he thought it would be possible for THE REVIEW Staff to put out a four page paper, (the paper is 6 pages at present) make $200, and still hand $500 back to the Council. Reiver made the statement, "We would rather not make it (the money) that way. We would rather put out a good paper." Treasurer Kirby Preston then questioned Mr. Reiver concerning certain matters pertaining to the financial situation of THE REVIEW.

After the Council had been giving a full account of the financial situation, President Lattin stated that it would be impossible to put out a "Humanist," and instructed that a letter be written to Mr. Stutman, Editor of the "Humanist," instructing him of the Council's action.

President Lattin then brought before the Council a plan to consolidate THE REVIEW and the "Blue Hen" as joint publications of both Colleges (Delaware College and the Women's College). Sigmond Lipstein suggested that a member from Delaware College be sent to the governing body of the Women's College to place this new proposal before that group. Mr. Cooke suggested that Mr. Robert Barab (present Editor of the "Blue Hen") be asked to speak to the Council concerning a similar consolidation for the "Blue Hen."

Cooke stated that the plans for a supplement to THE REVIEW to cover alumni news is under consideration.

Clark Lattin suggested that Jack Bennett's orchestra be hired as the band for the Farewell Hop.

George Cooke, speaking as Manager of the Varsity Debating team, outlined a plan for Interfraternity Debating to be launched next year. The idea was referred to the Interfraternity Council for consideration.

Govt. Classes Visit Capital Last Tuesday

they sat in on part of a case before the venerable gentlemen who were all present save Van de Venter.

A visit to the discussion room of the Committee-on-Ways-and-Means came next.

The visit was concluded by a trip through the Federal Bureau of Investigation building. This trip was considered by the group as the most interesting of the day. A guide clearly explained the fingerprint process, and showed the countless files containing the prints. Just before the arrival of the group an identification card of a captured criminal had been sent in asking for information about him. The guide consulted the accompanying fingerprints, and by means of a card-sorting machine located the man's prints and his record in the files thus demonstrating an actual use of the files. He then exhibited and explained the field equipment of a "G-Man."

This concluded the tour, and the bus wended its bumpy course back to Newark carrying with it a band of footsore and weary "Government-Men."
