Sterck has new acting principal

According to school director Ed Bosso, John Persinger will take over the position of acting principal at Sterck School on East Chestnut Hill Road until the search for a new principal is completed.

"Mr. Persinger has been a tremendous help during our transition at DSD and we are very fortunate to have him in the role of acting principal until the position is filled," said Bosso in a letter to the Sterck community.

According to Bosso, Persinger has been a teacher at Delaware School for the Deaf for more than 30 years.

"During the past few years, he has worked in the school office assisting the principal with the daily operation of the school," said Bosso. "He will continue with many of the same duties as well as some additional responsibilities to be outlined within the coming weeks."

Bosso said Persinger will probably remain in the position until the end of the school year because it would be hard to find someone who can leave their current job with such late notice.

"We know that sometimes it's hard for someone to leave their job to start another one right in the middle of the school year," Bosso said this week. "So, we plan to do national job postings sometime during the winter break, with the understanding that someone might not be able to start until the new school year. That way there will be no pressure for them to leave their job so soon."

Officials at the school say they are not sure whether Persinger is a candidate for the permanent principal position. "We're not sure if John is interested in the position or not," Bosso said.

Bosso was the principal at Sterck for seven years, until August when he replaced Dr. Susanna Lee as director. Lee left to become the president of Jobs for Delaware Graduates after working at Sterck for nearly 20 years.

Persinger began teaching at the school just two years after it was opened in 1968. "He's one of the few teachers that was here when we moved into our current building," Bosso said.

'Peace on earth,

Goodwill to men'

The Christmas Baskets organized by the Newark Area Welfare Committee for delivery last weekend took a lot of helping hands to organize and distribute. Volunteers, including students from the Newark High School Key Club, employees from the Bank of New York, and area residents, spent time last week separating donated food items by type and then putting them in family "baskets" lined up row after row at Newark United Methodist Church. On Saturday, bread and frozen turkeys were added to the gift boxes which were then presented to over 300 families throughout the area.

Newark Charter near site decision

The Newark Charter School passed the required deadline for a building plan but boardmembers still hope to have the classrooms open in September 2001.

Charter School Director Gregory Meece said this week the board requested a one-month extension until Jan. 19, 2001, for submitting the plan to the state board of education.

"We have two possible building sites in the works," said Meece on Monday.

"Neither is a done deal, but, we sent a letter to the state board together with letters of intent from the individuals involved saying we are in negotiations and asking for the extension."

On Tuesday, Meece reported that the extension had been granted by the state board of education.

According to Meece, one possible site for the new school is the approximately 50,000 square-foot former Best Store on Kirkwood Highway. "It would have to be renovated," said Meece. "In fact, I'm meeting an architect out there this week to assess the renovation needs and costs."

The other site is an undeveloped property at the intersection of Casho Mill and Barksdale roads. "That site would have a building constructed by Jeff Lang

Newark man killed in head-on crash

Neither driver nor passenger wearing seatbelts

A Newark man was killed and another Newark man seriously injured in a head-on collision on Red Mill Road early Tuesday morning.

According to Cpl. Walter Newton of Delaware State Police, the crash happened around 6:50 a.m. on Red Mill Road at Mill Park Court.

Joel P. Fronseca, 20, who was driving a 1991 Pontiac Grand Am northbound on Red Mill Road, went around a curve and crossed the center of the road as he approached the intersection.

He struck a 2000 Ford van which was stopped in the left hand turn lane on the southbound side of Red Mill.

Fronseca and his passenger, Noel D. Martinez, 19, were taken to Christiana Hospital where Fronseca was pronounced dead as a result of injuries.

Martinez was admitted in serious condition with a lacerated aorta. On Wednesday, staff at Christiana Medical Center said Martinez was in critical condition.

The driver of the van, Richard W. Brooks Jr., 26, of Rising Sun, Md., was treated and released for pain in his ribs, back and jaw. The van is owned by Moon Services Inc located in Elkton, Md.

On Wednesday, Newton said the investigation was continuing and police did not yet know how the accident happened.

Neither Fronseca nor Martinez was wearing a seatbelt but Brooks was wearing his.

Police said alcohol did not appear to be a factor in the accident.

Good health is a valued gift all year round

'Brain attacks' are just as serious as heart attacks

By KATY CIAMARICONE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A real estate agent, a Newark attorney, a University of Delaware professor and a local nurse have one thing in common this holiday season and all year round: they wish to give Newark residents the gift of health.

Registered nurse Ellen Barker and fellow founding members of the Delaware Stroke Initiative include recovering stroke victims and medical professionals.

"A stroke is a silent thing," Barker said. "You don't hear a lot about it, but it's devastating to the people who have it."

With the help of fellow community members, they established DSI in 1998 to fight the leading cause of brain damage and permanent disability in the nation.

Barker said a stroke is what happens when blood supply is cut off from the brain.

Medical professionals have begun calling a stroke a "brain attack," to stress the seriousness of the condition. "It is to the brain what a heart attack is to the heart," Barker said.

Newark attorney Vance Funk had just turned 50 years old when he suffered from a stroke seven years ago.

He had left his Main Street office around 5:20 p.m. and was sitting in his parked car when he began to notice some numbness in his left hand and leg.

"I decided I'd better get back into the office and call somebody," he said, "but, before I could get to the door, my legs were paralyzed and I couldn't walk."

Funk lay outside his office suffering from the stroke's effects, until a University of Delaware student walking by, saw him and called emergency personnel.

Funk said later that he was lucky to get fast and efficient treatment at a local hospital.

Funk has been in physical therapy for the seven years since his stroke.

"Insurance covered me for three months for about two or three hours a day, and then, when the insurance company said I was okay, they stopped paying for my treatment," he said.

Now, he receives alternative therapy called "shiatsu," which is "really strange" but effective, and relatively inexpensive.

"You lay on a mat and they basically beat the crap out of you," Funk said.

He said if the symptoms of a stroke had been more well-known, he could have gotten treatment for his stroke faster. He had experienced blurry vision in his right eye for a few weeks before his legs gave out on him, but when he went to the doctor, he was told that the blurry vision would pass.

Funk — and his doctor at the time — were among the majority of people who can't recognize a stroke when they see one, accord-

POLICE

Armed robbery on N. Chapel Street

Newark Police reported an armed robbery at a check cashing business on North Chapel Street on Dec. 18 around 9:10 p.m. The victim and another person were confronted outside El Provenir Corporation by three Hispanic males one of whom pointed a gun at them. The suspects demanded money and threatened to shoot her when she did not comply.

She eventually gave them the purse with the day's receipts from the business. The suspects fled in a small black car driven by another male and bearing the partial license plate of 69744. Anyone with information is asked to call police at 366-7110.

Parents held on weapons offense

New Castle County Police charged 33-year-old Emily Bundenthal and 36-year-old Kent Bundenthal, both of Newark, for felony weapon offenses on Dec. 17 around 10 a.m. Officers responded to a residence in Brookside for a report of a domestic disturbance and noticed drug paraphernalia in plain view. Officers also found two shotguns, one of which was "sawed-off" and one which had the serial number removed. The officers also seized a machete concealed in one of the suspect's cars.

Kent Bundenthal was also charged with carrying a concealed deadly weapon and possession of a martial arts throwing star after police found the weapon in his possession.

Two children, ages 12 and 16, were in the residence, so the mother and stepfather were each charged with endangering the welfare of a child, possession of a destructive device, and possession of a weapon with an obliterated serial number.

Drug charge follows report of attempted home invasion

County police arrested three men for an attempted home invasion in Abbey Walk Apartments as well as the 18-year-old resident charged on various drug violations. Police responded and found three suspects wearing gloves and ski masks when 18-year-old Mark J. Shotwell reported noises outside his apartment. They also found another suspect in the area. Officers found gloves, masks, duct tape, a tire iron and a knife after searching the area. County detectives discovered the three intended to rob Shotwell of drugs believed to be in his possession.

During the investigation, officers smelled what they thought was marijuana in the apartment and seized one-half pound of suspected marijuana, 31 vials of the "club drug" ecstasy and assorted drug paraphernalia after obtaining a search warrant.

Raoul Q. Deter, 19, of New Castle, Joseph Finnegan, 19, of Newark, and Tyrone Allen, 18, of Wilmington, were charged with attempted robbery, attempted burglary, and conspiracy.

UD student fatally injured when car slips from jack

A 20-year-old University of Delaware student was killed when a car fell on him as he was making repairs on Sunday, Dec. 17.

Christopher Salafrio, a sophomore at the University, was fixing the car in the parking lot at the University Courtyard Apartments around 7 p.m. when the vehicle apparently slipped from the jack and fell on him.

He was taken by an ambulance from Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company to Christiana Hospital where he was pronounced dead shortly after arrival.

Aetna expanding fire station off Elkton Road

Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Company plans an addition at its Thorn Lane fire station off Elkton Road in Newark.

The addition to the 16-year-old station has been planned since the 1980s, according to Aetna spokesperson John Farrell. "We always knew we would expand there, so the utilities and approvals were in place from the beginning," he explained.

The more than 4,000 square-foot addition will cost approximately $600,000 - entirely funded through donations from citizens and businesses served by the fire company.

The addition will provide two more vehicle bays, a dedicated maintenance area and storage areas. "This will double the engine room," said Farrell. "There are four vehicles there now."

However, Farrell said there are no plans to add more vehicles in the near future. "This is just all part of ongoing improvements," he said. "About every 20 years (the fire company) can fund some sort of enhancement."

Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Company, first organized in December 1888, presently has three fire stations: the oldest site on Academy Street in downtown Newark; the Ogletown Road site dedicated in 1963; and Thorn

Lane placed in service in 1985.

The addition, expected to be complete in Spring 2001, was designed by architects from The Diamond Group with construction to be provided by Barclay White Inc.

of Commonwealth Development," said Meece.

According to Lang, his company is "putting in an offer" on the property which they would then "build to suit" the Charter School. "We've done this with a lot of other sites in the past," said Lang.

Meece said the Charter School board is hopeful one of the sites will be the one. "We're very certain we can have the school up and ready by September 2001, if we can a contract signed with one of these individuals by the January date," said Meece. "We imposed that date on ourselves because of the time limitations involved."

Meece said the board needs time to enroll students and hire staff. "If we get everything done by January, we can start enrolling students in February," he said. "We have nearly 1,200 names on a waiting list but now we could take formal applications."

Boardmember Tony Wexler, a University of Delaware professor, previously said the target class sizes are 150 students per grade with approximately 25 kids per class.

In its first year, the school could accommodate 400 students, grades 5-7. In the second year, the school will have 500 students grades 5 through 8 and 600, the school's capacity, the third year it is established.

Meece said the board would advertise for staff in February, also, but does not believe staffing is a problem.

"We already have received dozens of unsolicited resumes from public and private school teachers, as well as non-teachers, who believe in the charter school and want to be part of it," he said.

Russian partners skate past setbacks

Olympic competitors perform in exhibition tonight

By KATY CIAMARICONE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Russian Olympic ice skating partners Anjelika Krylova and Oleg Ovsiannikov watched their careers take some unexpected twists and turns this year.

Both skating since the tender age of 4, the two spiraled downward from amateur Olympic silver medalists to fallen stars in January 2000 when Krylova suffered a severe neck injury. But, hope was never lost, and now, they say they are thrilled to be back in the spotlight.

The skating careers of Krylova and Ovsiannikov began to soar in 1996 — just two years after they became skating partners and moved here to train at the University of Delaware with former coach Natalia Linichuk.

"The University of Delaware was very good to us," Ovsiannikov said.

"Our career started here," Krylova added. "University of Delaware gave us many opportunities. After we were starting, they help us very much with money and health benefits and place to stay."

Known for their elaborate dance routines, the pair earned silver medals in the 1996 and 1997 World Championships competitions, then another silver medal in the 1998 Olympics in Nagano, Japan. They became the world champions in 1998 and maintained the title in 1999.

"When they skate, they sort of glide across the ice, from one side of the rink to the other," said Chris Hefner, figure skating director at The Pond ice rink where the two now train in Newark. "They're a team you would want to watch in person."

After superb performances in the World and Olympic competitions, experts expected Krylova, 27, and Ovsiannikov, 30, to take a gold medal home from the 2002 Olympics.

But that medal seemed increasingly unobtainable for them when, in January of 2000, Krylova began having severe neck pains as the result of an injury during practice five years earlier.

She made up her mind to go home to Moscow, get treatment for her neck, and hang up her ice skates for good. Ovsiannikov

But, Ovsiannikov was not quite ready to go solo without his skating partner of six years, said Sherrie Hiner, who represents both of the skaters.

"Oleg called her and called her and said, 'Why don't you

One of their six-day-a-week workout routines at The Pond includes coaching children in exchange for free practice time on the ice, Krylova said.

come back here." He'll try to go professional," Hiner said. "Anjelika had wanted to get into coaching, but there are no opportunities to coach ice skating in Russia. Oleg finally convinced her that they should go professional."

Krylova left her family in Russia once again to pursue a professional career in skating, and has been here ever since.

Now, their future on the ice is looking bright. "We're very excited (about going professional)," said Krylova. "We like to have control. Before, the coach would have control. We do what we want now."

Judges seem to have noticed their newfound confidence. Krylova and Ovsiannikov placed second in their first competition since Krylova returned from Russia — the World Professional Championships in Washington, D.C., earlier this month.

"We don't just give ice away," Chris Hefner said. "Their coaching really shows their dedication, that they really want to make it work. They're great kids, really."

Krylova and Ovsiannikov show up at the rink very early in the morning, and sometimes don't leave until late at night, Hefner said.

But, on their one day off a week, Krylova said they usually take it easy. "We like to sleep, watch movies, go to store — you know, same thing that normal people do," she said.

The partners perform tonight in "A Gold Medal" event featuring national and international skaters at The Pond Performance Center on Campbell Drive off Marrows Road in Newark.

Admission is $10 for the exhibition which begins at 7 p.m.

ing to Barker.

DSI members hope their program will let people know the warning signs, so if someone is suffering from a stroke, he or she can recognize it in time and get help before it permanently affects the body.

"If you get slurred speech, tingling in the arm, or a severe headache, you need to get to a hospital within three hours," she said. "Most people wait as much as 24 hours to get help, and by that time they are running a high risk of permanent damage to the brain."

But it is not only important to inform the public about how to detect if you or someone you know is having a stroke, she said. It is just as important to know how to decrease the chances of having one.

Newark Bernadette Burns Day suffered from a stroke 18 years ago. She was 23, with only one risk factor: she was taking birth control pills.

"It was a major stroke," she said. "I lost the use of the left side of my body."

Now, as a member of "Friends of DSI," Day wants to get the word out about how people can reduce their own risks.

Besides birth control pills, which could double the chances of having a stroke, risk factors include smoking, excessive drinking, stress, high cholesterol and obesity.

Day and her husband, Jim, who have been real estate agents at Century 21 for the past four years, began donating one-half of one percent of their sales to the Delaware Stroke Initiative earlier this month.

Day said she hopes it will help treat people like herself who have had a stroke, and educate those who have not.

Day and Funk are able to share emotions and experiences with other recovering stroke victims through a support group which meets at the New Ark United Church of Christ on Main Street twice a month.

The meetings are open to the public, and new members come every week, Day said. There are currently more than 20 members.

John Scholz, Ph.D., is also closely involved with the education and the recovery of stroke survivors.

A DSI board member and a physical therapist at the University of Delaware, his patients are often recovering victims. Scholz also helps provide free treatment to approximately 10 people each year who require physical therapy.

The treatment is part of a physical therapy class that Scholz teaches at the university, called "neurophysiological evaluation and treatment."

It enables his students to work, first-hand, with stroke patients, and the patients get free treatment for what would otherwise be an expensive procedure.

"With health care costs being what they are, most people can only afford minimal care," Scholz said.

In the 1970's, recovering stroke patients would, on average, spend about six months in physical therapy. Now, with the cost of treatment, they can only stay in therapy for about four weeks, Scholz said.

But hopefully, DSI members will get the word out about how to decrease the chances of having a stroke, so less people will require expensive physical therapy.

"If you have the symptoms of a stroke, you shouldn't just sit around and think 'Oh, it'll pass,'" Scholz said. "You need to get to a hospital immediately."

Deadly toll continues on highways

Only two weeks ago we wrote about the tragic toll of fatal accidents on Delaware roads. This week, we have yet another reminder that one careless moment behind the wheel of a vehicle can be the last choice you make.

As of deadline, Delaware State police were still investigating a head-on collision that happened early Tuesday morning on Red Mill Road.

The driver of a car which swerved across the road and straight into a van waiting to make a left turn was killed. His passenger was in critical condition on Wednesday. The driver of the van was not seriously injured.

Alcohol does not appear to have been involved, according to police. However, neither the driver who died, nor his passenger, were wearing seatbelts, while the van's operator was.

Would seatbelt use have made a difference? We cannot say. Nor does anyone know at this time what happened in the moments before the car left its proper lane.

But, something went terribly and unexpectedly wrong for three people on a cold winter morning only six days before Christmas.

Use seatbelts. Don't drink and drive. Practice defensive driving. Give the "other guy" plenty of room. Take it easy.

You've heard it all before, but, at this hectic time of year, it is more important than ever.

Give yourself, your loved ones, and all those you meet this season, just a little more care.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

This paragraph is just an expression of the Newark Post to this community and to all those with whom we work and play. There is a Spirit of Christmas in the minds and actions of men — and at this season our better nature gives it sway. So, what you most deserve and desire for yourself and men is our greeting. May the Kindness and Good Cheer so prevalent now mark your lives all through the days to come.

This is a reprint of the message which appeared on the front page of the Newark Post, on Dec. 23, 1925.

Our mission

IT IS OUR MISSION to inform readers of local government activity that touches the lives of the citizens it serves; to celebrate the freedom of speech granted all of us by the Founding Fathers of our Constitution by publishing letters of opinion and matters of record; and, most importantly, to offer news of people, places and events that chronicles our Greater Newark community.

By MARVIN HUMMEL

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

In 1900, 90 percent of all Americans still lived on farms, those workplaces that required everybody to labor long hours, and do their own repairing of anything that was bent or broken with homemade glue, braces, clamps, and a couple of extra nails. Instead of money, they had land, venerable second-hand machinery, and a mortgage. At Christmas, everybody gave presents they had made with their own two hands. Nobody was fooled — and nobody wanted anybody to be.

Those Christmas presents represented extra hours of work for people who worked too hard and too long already. The boys' toys, made in candlelight by Dad, and the dolly cleverly made from worn-out clothes and rags by Mom, and the sweaters knit by MomMom and Aunt Tillie were always wonderful, expected "surprises."

And kids, who worked long hours themselves, understood the sacrifice of sleep and self that those presents represented.

The gifts represented a lot of love, but they lacked one important quality — the glamour of enhancement! The thrill of surprise, the notion that something or somebody unexpected could happen was missing from those farm Christmases. It was the night of a great miracle said and sung at the church; but at home, it was "just" gifts-made-by-familiar hands by candlelight or at the crack of dawn at home.

Kris Kringle or Santa Claus added that glamour. "He" gave the sweater with the stitch that was MomMom's famous trademark and won a prize at the county fair! (And it was a blue sweater this year! Surprise! And the boots which obviously had been his older brother's had new laces!!! Red ones!! How impractical to have red laces! That's Kris Kringle for you!)

As a nation, we moved to the city and made things that brought in money with which we bought things that other people made so they could buy what we made so that...etc.

The sacrifice was just as deep — we bought Christmas presents with our time, which means we still bought them with our lives — at least as much as we had before! When we worked overtime to buy those Christmas presents (and/or went into debt), the precious gift of time was offered by electric lights instead of candles.

But in modern society, Santa did it all!! No benchmark of family hands any longer graced our gifts. Hand crafts were replaced by necessity, not choice with gifts anonymous that others had made.

They came by truck, by rail, by mail, by plane, but always impersonally through dozens of hands that we never see. And the work translated into money, which was then re-translated into gifts that came by rail and mail and highway and skyway.

But the knowledge of the gifts' origin their spiritual essence in hard and often extra work disappeared from our consciousness.

And out of the disconnection came Santa Claus, the Great Giver who brought his gifts from an even more remote place, the North Pole.

Little people just about the size of the kids who received the presents made those gifts. And Santa, for reasons never made quite clear, brought them from that totally unfamiliar and distant place and gave them equally to unfamiliar kids who were too pleased to wonder why!

The contribution of parents? They bought the tree!

Inevitably, usually by often misanthropic efforts of older children, the truth sinks in, and most children feel like fools.

Merchants in arms at poor lighting here

Merchants established in the central business district are up in arms over what they term the wretched light and power service here during the past six weeks.

Merchants stated that the light and power for the business section (embracing for the most part property on Main Street from the Washington House to Rhodes Drug Store) had failed exactly four times in the past six weeks, twice on Saturday nights at the peak of the business hours.

They point to the fact that four failures of light and power in the space of six weeks, and not due to severe storms, is pretty terrible service.

Light community tree Christmas Eve

Ministers and combined choirs of Newark churches are expected to lead the Christmas Eve services on Academy Lawn tomorrow night, at which time the big community tree will be lighted for the holiday season.

The New Century Club co-operated last year in procuring a permanent tree for the townspeople.

Schools investigate segregation charges

The New Castle County School District may be in violation of the court's desegregation order if charges of segregated classrooms made by board member James Sills Jr. are true.

Sills contends the classrooms may be racially biased and that the special education program has been used to dump black students into without proper testing.

Construction may rise in Bear

Residents of the Bear/Glasgow area met with officials from the Delaware Department of Transportation and developer Greg Pettinaro last Thursday to discuss traffic issues related to the Route 40 corridor.

"DelDOT laid out the improvements they plan for the Route 40 and 7 intersection," said Janice Hawkinson, vice president of the Bear/Glasgow Council of Civic Organizations. "I have to say most people were pretty skeptical."

DelDOT has said they will complete the improvements by 1999.

All was calm, more or less

For over 12 years the junior and senior high school parishioners of Ebenezer United Methodist Church have been portraying a live nativity outside the church during the Christmas season.

This year, as always, all was calm, all was bright, according to associate pastor Michele I. Moore, except "the animals were a little wired."

Americans took a wrong turn at the North Pole

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Ronald V. Baker
Pike Creek

For the second year now, the Newark Shopping Center has made the unfortunate decision not to continue a 40-year plus community tradition of having a Santa Claus to greet children there.

At age 40, I have many fond memories of visits with Santa in the little hut the Shopping Center placed each Christmas time in front of the former Woolworth's location. Newark's current youngsters, however, will have to make their memories elsewhere, probably at the mall.

A representative of First Washington Management which manages the facility told a shopping center merchant I spoke to that a Santa was not being sponsored again this year because "there are also other holidays being observed at this time of year."

Bah, humbug!!

If any other Newark Shopping Center customers would like to see a little Christmas spirit replace the aura of political correctness there next year, please contact: First Washington Management at 3544 W. Chester Pike, Suite 222, Newton Square, PA 19703.

Contact shopping center merchants, too. They and their management company should remember that families who visit Santa Claus also leave a little "green" behind in the cash registers of the tenants.

A Merry Christmas to all!!!!

Delaware now third in Aids cases

State moved up in rate of persons getting disease

Delaware now has the third highest rate of AIDS cases among the 50 states, according to staff at AIDS Delaware. Previously ranked fourth in per capita AIDS cases, Delaware is exceeded only by New York and Florida. The rankings are based on a November report issued by Delaware's Division of Public Health.

"Since the beginning of the AIDS epidemic, Delaware has held the dubious distinction of having a consistently high ranking for the rate of AIDS cases among the fifty states. There is no cure and these new figures are an awful reminder that the state of Delaware continues to be at high risk," said Allen Reese, president of AIDS Delaware. "However, we believe that these figures on reported AIDS cases do not accurately represent our state's situation. Many Delaware residents, especially those in high-risk groups, do not know their AIDS status because they have never been tested."

This issue of testing has made HIV/AIDS reporting an important topic within Delaware. AIDS Delaware position is based on the Multi-State Evaluation of Surveillance of HIV published by the CDC.

The study shows that the HIV viral load of persons testing positive for HIV in states with anonymous testing is lower than the viral load of persons testing positive for HIV in states with names-based reporting system.

"This conclusively shows that names-based reporting is a deterrent to persons seeking HIV testing," said Reese. "This is particularly troublesome, because the longer one waits to discover their HIV status the greater the chance the HIV medications will be less effective in preventing the onset of full blown AIDS."

The Division of Public Health contends that a names-based reporting system will work more efficiently and effectively because it is inherently less flawed than a unique identifier system. However, AIDS Delaware disagrees and cites the State of Maryland's unique identifier system as an example.

According to the state of Maryland public health employees, their unique identifier system for HIV reporting works very efficiently. Both systems will have imperfections, but the bottom-line is not to implement a perfect system rather a system that best meets the needs of the citizens of Delaware.

Public Health also claims that only the names-based reporting will allow Delaware to continue to receive federal funding for HIV/AIDS services. The fact is whether a unique identifier system of a names-based reporting system is implemented, Delaware will continue to receive its federal funding. A unique identifier system for reporting HIV positive individuals will instill a degree of confidence in the public that they are not being tracked intrusively by government.

AIDS Delaware, founded in 1984, is Delaware's largest and oldest AIDS service organization.

National Trust for Historic Preservation touts role of neighborhood school buildings

Poster contest dedicated to school buildings

Special to the Newark Post

Before the age of sprawl, before malls and mini-marts and express lanes, children walked to school. They passed friends, neighbors and familiar merchants on their way to a school built just for them in the heart of town, a school whose style and scale reflected the spirit of the neighborhood. Children grew up knowing they were cherished and integral parts of the community, just like the local schoolhouse.

Then the era of the mega-school began, and anonymous new campuses went up on the outskirts of town. Children were bused away from the center of town — and community life — and now, only one in eight children walks or bikes to school.

What are we saying to our children when we move the school out of town and let the lowest bidder decide how it will look? How can kids believe they are valued and unique when their schools resemble malls and prisons?

To reverse the trend, preservationists and children across the nation are making a stand for their historic neighborhood schools.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation announced today that the theme of Preservation Week 2001 is, "Restore, Renew, Rediscover Your Historic Neighborhood Schools!" Preservation Week will be celebrated May 13-19, 2001.

"At the heart of every American community is the neighborhood school," said National Trust president Richard Moe. "In this age of sprawl, it's more important than ever to rediscover the role historic neighborhood schools play in towns and cities across the nation. If your school is endangered, fight to save it. If it's been saved, celebrate it."

This year, the National Trust is sponsoring a Preservation Week poster contest open to non-profit groups, schools, school districts and state and local governments involved in promoting the continued use of older and historic neighborhood schools as educational facilities.

The schools featured in the posters should be at least 50 years old, although exceptions can be made to the age guideline. They should have architectural merit, serve as community anchors and be currently in use as educational facilities.

Cash awards of $2,000, $1,000 and $500 will be awarded to the first-, second- and third-prize winners. For more information about the contest, contact Rob Nieweg at 202-588-6107. Deadline is March 31, 2001.

Older and historic schools, if properly renovated and adequately maintained, can provide a first-class, state-of-the-art learning environment for new generations of students.

Historic neighborhood schools allow young people to walk to class, enjoy a smaller, more intimate facility with neighborhood friends, be surrounded by distinctive design, and be more closely connected with the community. Schools in random, isolated locations out of town afford little of this. They promote isolation, loss of identity and sprawl.

Last month, the National Trust released the report, "Historic Neighborhood Schools in the Age of Sprawl: Why Johnny Can't Walk to School," in which it contends that public policies, including excessive acreage requirements, funding formulas and planning code exemptions, are promoting the spread of mega-school sprawl on outlying, undeveloped land at the expense of small, walkable, community-centered schools in older neighborhoods.

In June 2000, the National Trust named historic neighborhood schools to its list of America's 11 Most Endangered Historic Places. In listing historic schools, the preservation organization was responding to requests for assistance from grassroots advocacy groups throughout the country.

Sponsored annually by the National Trust, National Historic Preservation Week has been celebrated since 1971. The official Preservation Week poster will be available in mid-January.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation is a private, nonprofit organization dedicated to providing leadership, education and advocacy to save America's diverse historic places and revitalize communities. ## NEWARK OUTLOOK

Not always cheer at holidays

With the holiday season in full swing, most of us don't seem to have a moment to spare. Most of us look forward to that time when all the hustle and bustle of the season is over so we can relax and catch our breath.

For some people however, recovering from the holidays is much more difficult. With short days, not much sun and dreary weather, many of us just can't seem to find the energy we need.

Everyone has a case of "the blues" from time to time. During difficult and stressful times, it is perfectly normal to feel sad or discouraged. What is not normal is for these feelings to linger on for weeks at a time. If this occurs, then the cause may be a common illness called depression.

This illness is actually quite common. Recent research indicates that 10 percent of men and up to 25 percent of women will experience depression at some point in their lifetime.

Depression is a "whole-body" illness that involves not only your body, but your mood, thoughts and behavior as well. In the old days, the treatment was to just "try to pull yourself together," or "think happy thoughts."

We now know that depression is much more complicated than that. With proper treatment, however, 80 percent of those who suffer from depression can be helped.

If there is a history of depression in your family, then there seems to be a greater risk of developing it yourself. Depression can occur in persons with no family history of this disease. There is often no one single cause for depression, but rather it is often a combination of genetic, psychological and environmental factors.

If you are suffering from depression or know someone who is, the most important thing you can do is to get the

Angels all year long

Story and Photos by Christine E. Serio

Jean Swartz takes the last angel tag identifying a child in need of a happier holiday off the Christmas tree at the Red Lion United Methodist Church.

Parishioners at the Red Lion United Methodist Church on Church Road have become angels for 25 children this holiday season.

Through a national Prison Fellowship program, they participated in the Angel Tree Project. Angel-shaped ornaments with names, ages, and gift suggestions hung on a tree in the front of the sanctuary, waiting for caring members of the church to take them down and provide a better Christmas for a child.

"The program provides Christmas for children of people who are incarcerated," Pastor John M. Dunnack said. "They are sometimes the forgotten victims in the situation, so as a church we can get involved in the lives of children who are really in need."

The prisoners provide the names, genders, ages, and sizes of their children to the fellowship program which verifies the information. The fellowship program then contacts local churches to see how many children they can sponsor.

This year the Red Lion United

Barbara Lee adds to her angel tag on the gift she brought for a child.

Methodist Church was able to provide gifts, in the name of the prisoner, for 25 children.

Instead of just delivering the gifts to the children's homes, the church has a Christmas party for the children and their caregivers.

"The party allows us and the families to connect and give them a place to reach out to if they need to," said Jean Swartz, the woman who spearheaded the program this year. "It's a chance for the children and caregivers to have a real Christ experience of Christmas."

Goodwill and outreach is not a once-a-year frame of mind for the members of the church. Throughout the entire year, the church has needy families and individuals referred to them from the Hudson Center in Newark and Love Inc.

Families go through a referral agency because of the volume of those in need, and time and staff limitations, Dunnack explained.

The church is a member of the Food Bank of Delaware and provides food for those that are referred to them in addition to collecting and providing other items people may need.

"We seek to do the ministry of love all year round, not just once a year," Dunnack said. "We want to have the same goodwill and giving spirit at any time of year."

Tickets to attractions like 'Faberge' make great gifts

Have you looked at a calendar today? Perhaps at the date on this edition of the Newark Post? Without trying to belabor the obvious, Christmas is only a few days away! Have you some last minute Christmas shopping to do? Is the panic mode setting in? Perhaps I could be of some assistance with a gift suggestion that shows you think the recipient has excellent taste and reflects your good taste as well.

The last minute gift idea? Ticket(s)! Yes, a ticket, billet, biglietto, tessera, or Billet. Whatever you call them, they make great gifts, are generally available at the last moment and may be purchased in person or over the phone.

Some, like show tickets, must be for a given date and time, but many places now offer gift certificates with which the receiver may select the specific day to see the show. Museum tickets are good for long periods. They can make it appear you were really ready with a great gift and, in my experience, are usually most appreciated.

Here are some specific examples. The hottest exhibition ticket in our area right now is the one for "Faberge" at the Riverfront Arts Center, 800 South Madison Street in Wilmington. One of the nearly 1,100 pieces in the show is illustrated with my column today.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

It is about a half-hour drive from Newark and parking is plentiful and free. The box office number is 302-777-1600, or you may stop by the Riverfront Arts Center, Tuesday through Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

If any of your recipients are model train or toy lovers, don't miss the great exhibit which is now at the Brandywine River Museum and will run into the New Year. Of course, the gift may be used for their other great art exhibitions through the year. For more details, Brandywine River Museum, P.O. Box 141 Chadds Ford, PA 19317. You can call them at 610-388-8337. The drive is about 40 minutes from Newark and parking is free.

If the performing arts are your thing, Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts may hold your answer. They have three operas due in 2001, many symphonies and recitals as well. Their prices are much better than those in New York for the same groups and transportation is a lot cheaper. More information? Grand Opera House, 818 Market Street, Wilmington, DE 19801. You may call them at 302-658-7899. Driving time is about a half hour from Newark.

One venue in our area has some of the finest botanical gardens in the world and a seemingly unending stream of concerts. The poinsettias are featured right now with Christmas concerts, but around New Year's, some great concerts to celebrate the arrival of 2001. I refer to Longwood Gardens, P.O. Box 501, Kennett Square, PA 19348-0501. The number for more information is 610-388-1000. Allow about 35 minutes to drive there and parking is free.

International opera at its finest is only about an hour's drive from our area. It is performed at the magnificently renovated and historic Academy of Music at Broad and Locust Streets in Philadelphia. This world class company is The Opera Company of Philadelphia, 510 Walnut Street - Suite 1500, Philadelphia, PA 19106. For quick service call, 215-928-2100.

You may want to consider Delaware's own art museum with many wonderful exhibits and many concerts and special events throughout the year. Parking is always free and it's about half hour drive from Newark. Consider The Delaware Art Museum, 2301 Kentmere Parkway, Wilmington, DE 19806. They can be reached at 302-571-9590.

This should be enough to get you thinking. Depending on your taste, and the taste of the one you are trying to please at Christmas, select an appropriate fine or performing arts organization and make the call. It is a gift which will keep you pleasantly in the mind of your friend or relative until the ticket is used and long after. People do appreciate a night on the town!

By the way, many of the museums have excellent gift shops open and ready for procrastinators!

I wish you a very Merry Christmas and a bright, peace filled 2001!!

Enjoy.

Depression one of the most prevalent health problems

► OUTLOOK, from 6

proper diagnosis and treatment. Once diagnosed, many cases of depression can be successfully treated with either anti-depressants or psychotherapy.

Anti-depressant drugs are not habit forming, but often take up to one month to be truly effective. Some persons report that they begin feeling better almost immediately after beginning treatment.

Another important thing you can do for someone suffering from depression is to offer emotional support. Engaging the depressed person in conversation is often helpful. Any mention of suicide or suicidal thoughts should be taken seriously, and reported to the doctor.

This condition is not something to be trifled with, especially since it is now quite treatable. It is estimated that as many as 15 million Americans battle one of the nation's most prevalent health problems. If you are one of them, seek help today.

Cody Bowerson, MayMay Russell and L'Von Yoder-Havelow enjoyed the East End Civic Association's second annual Fall Harvest event for children in the neighborhoods of George Read Village and Tyre Avenue. ## POST GAME

National tournaments come to Delaware

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Two of the most prestigious high school tournaments in the country take place in Delaware.

The Beast of the East Wrestling Tournament held last weekend at the Delaware Field House is clearly one of the top prep wrestling tournaments in the nation. The tournament has held that status for the last few years and this year's edition did nothing to harm that reputation.

It's a great opportunity for local high school wrestlers to see how they stack up against some of the best in the country.

It's also a good chance to catch the eye of a college coach. Coaches realize how tough the competition is in this tournament. A good performance in the Beast gives wrestlers a chance to vie for the dwindling number of wrestling scholarships that are out there.

Area resident Vic Leonard is the director of this tournament and deserves a tremendous amount of credit for turning it into what it is today.

Leonard is a big booster of wrestling in the state. When he's not doing one of his myriad of duties in running this tournament, he's officiating or coaching a summer team.

His dedication has helped wrestling in the state immensely.

Next week, another group of great teams will descend upon the state.

Instead of wrestling teams, however, it will be basketball teams and they'll be coming for the Slam Dunk to the Beach Tournament at Cape Henlopen High.

Like the Beast of the East, Slam Dunk is recognized as one of the best high school tournaments in the country.

Its director Bobby Jacobs has come under some fire for different things over the years, but one thing that nobody can take from him is his ability to build a first-class high school basketball tournament.

It's amazing to see a gym filled at 9 o'clock in the morning on a Wednesday for a high school game between two teams from out of state. That's what this tournament has become. Fans from all over the state flock to the beach for the week-long hoop festival.

For the high school basketball fan, it really doesn't get any better.

In addition, there's the Diamond State Basketball Tournament for girls' high school teams. This tournament is held in New Castle County and has brought some great out-of-state teams to the state as well.

It's a well-run tournament that gives local teams a chance to test themselves against out-of-state powers.

It's amazing to think that three prestigious tournaments such as these are contested right here in Delaware.

High school sports fans shouldn't miss the opportunity to check them out.

Blue Hens switch conferences

UD leaves America East for CAA

The University of Delaware announced last week that the Blue Hen athletics program will leave the America East conference and join the Colonial Athletic Association effective July 1, 2003.

Colonial Athletic Association commissioner Thomas E. Yeager announced in a televised press conference at the MCI Center that four current America East members — Delaware, Drexel, Hofstra and Towson — will join the conference. The four schools will remain members of America East until joining the CAA.

"Today marks the beginning of the new CAA spreading from New York City to eastern North Carolina," noted Yeager. "The conference has experienced considerable growth since 1985 and we expect the new alignment to be a catalyst for even greater success in the years ahead. Our four incoming members boat programs that are highly regarded on a national level in terms of both academic and athletic excellence. These schools will mesh well with the existing membership of the Colonial Athletic Association and enhance our reputation as we move forward. Their arrival will open new markets in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Delaware, which will provide a significant increase in exposure for each of our programs."

Delaware and the other three newcomers will join George Mason University, James Madison University, UNC-Wilmington, Old Dominion University, Virginia Commonwealth University and the College of William & Mary to form a 10-team conference that will conduct championships in 20 sports. With their arrival, women's softball and men's lacrosse championships will be established with the possibility of other championships being added in the future.

"The reputation of the CAA is greatly enhanced today," said Dr. Alan Merten, president of George Mason and chair of the CAA President's Council. "The ties we share with these four schools have been strengthened. They are four highly regarded institutions and they are a perfect fit. This adds to the already proud history of the CAA."

The move affects 21 of the 23 Blue Hen athletic programs. Football will remain a member of the Atlantic-10 Football Conference while women's rowing will remain a NCAA Division I independent. The CAA currently does not sponsor a men's or women's indoor track and field championship but it is anticipated that

Nation's top prep wrestlers come to Newark

St. Mark's is state's top finisher

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The "Beast of the East" High School Wrestling Tournament, held at the University of Delaware last weekend, is not for the faint of heart, as a number of local schools found out the hard way.

Out of 77 teams in this year's eighth annual tourney, St. Mark's High School recorded the highest finish, with 111 points, good for a tenth place finish.

Other local schools were spread throughout the pack, including Hodgson Vo-Tech at 28th with 73.5 points, William Penn at 53rd with 45.5 points, Salesianum came in 61st with 28.5 points, and Dover finished 69th with 16 points.

This year's champion, or "Beast of the East" was Blair Academy, from central New Jersey. Blair's team was last year's runner-up, and had to knock off the 1999 "Beast", Saint Edward's, of Ohio.

Blair tallied 230 points for the weekend, just edging out St. Edwards by 15.5 points, by sending four wrestlers to the finals. All four finalists took home the gold.

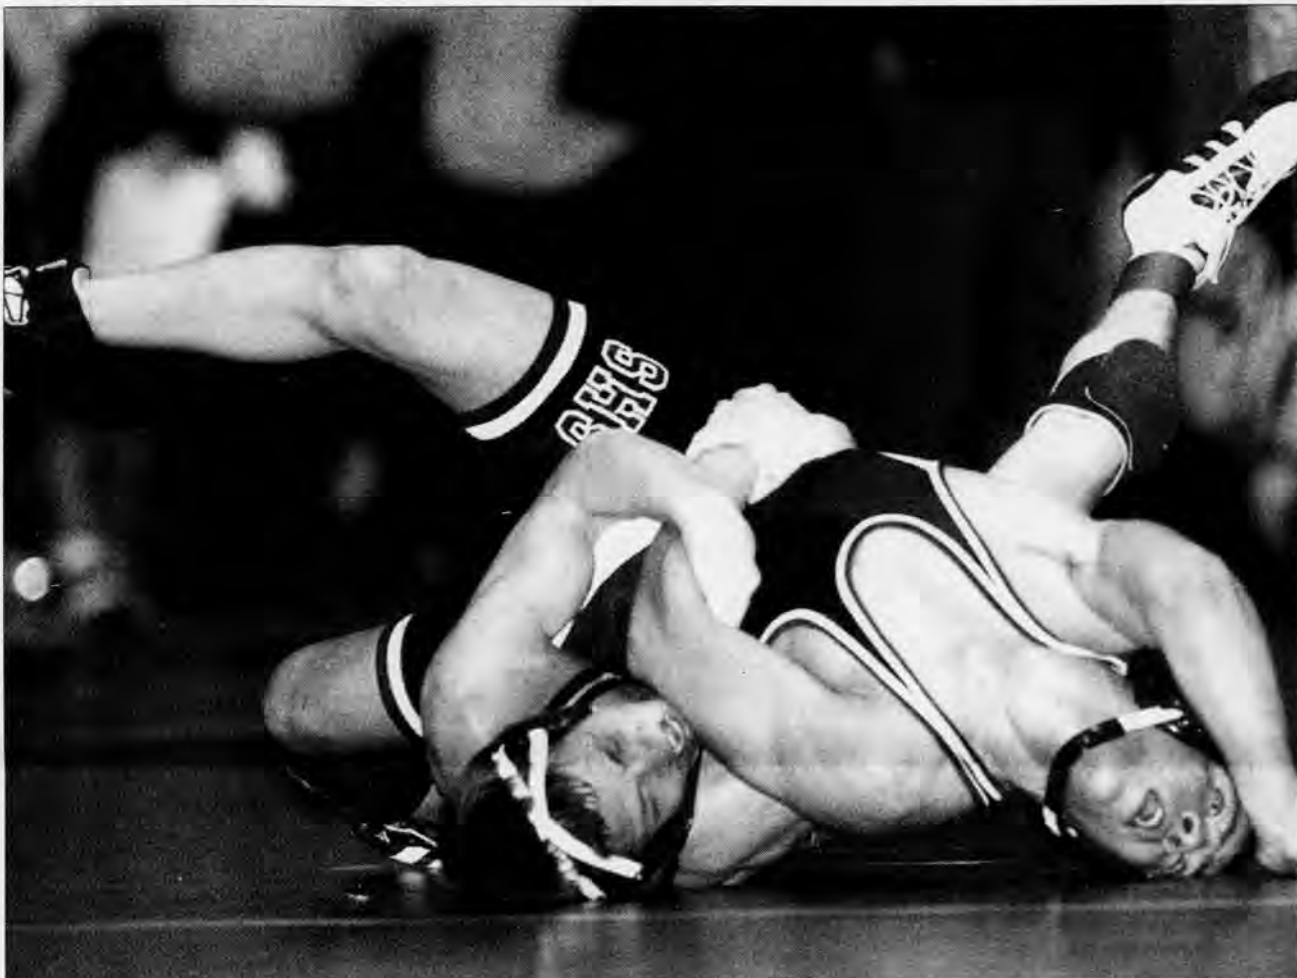

St. Mark's coach Steve Bastianelli said it's incredible how much the tournament has grown over the years. "It's remarkable how big this event has gotten over the years."

We attend a number of tournaments in a season, but this is by far the largest," he said.

Hodgson enjoyed a good weekend. Coach Jerry Lamey said his wrestlers worked very hard. "This experience will help the team throughout the season, and definitely help them when it's time for the states," he said.

Hodgson's Jordan Sianni placed fifth in the 112-pound division, while Mike Welch, at 130 and Larry Cylc at 275, also had top ten finishes.

Donofrio had the best performance of any local wrestler.

He made it all the way to the finals, where he eventually lost the 145-pound bout to Zack Esposito, from Blair, by a count of 5-2.

Last year's 103-pound champion, Bobby Shaw, also a junior from St.

Mark's, finished seventh this year in the 112-pound division. Spartan teammate Pat Atkinson finished fourth in the 125-pound weight class. Atkinson lost a 5-0 decision to another Blair wrestler, Corey Cooperman.

Coach Bastianelli said he was very proud of the team's accomplishments during the long, tough weekend. "We did a great job by battling all weekend. It's certainly no disgrace not winning any individual titles in such a prestigious national tournament," he said.

Bastianelli commended all of his wrestlers for working hard and winning the Governor's Trophy, given each year to the highest placing Delaware team.

This was the fourth time in five years the Spartans won the award.

This year's tournament, held at the Delaware Field House, instead of the Bob Carpenter Center as in previous years, featured more than 800 wrestlers from nine different states, including Ohio, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York and Connecticut.

The 2000 event had nearly 30 more schools than last year and about 100 more wrestlers than in 1999.

Hens bounce back

Delaware knocks off Rider

Senior forward Ajmal Basit led four University of Delaware players in double figures with 13 points and 10 rebounds and the Blue Hens used a 10-point run in the second half to pull away for a 72-57 victory over Rider Saturday night at the Carpenter Center.

The Blue Hens (4-5), won their ninth straight non-league home game, also got 12 points each from Maurice Sessoms and Austen Rowland and a career-high 11 points off the bench from freshman guard Mike Ames, who keyed the 10-0 second-half run with five points. Rowland added six assists.

Rider, which had won three of its last four, got 19 points and nine rebounds off the bench from forward Mario Porter and 12 points from guard Mike Scott. Rider committed just 12 turnovers but were outscored by a 43-33 margin and shot just 26 percent from the field in the second half.

After Delaware took a slim

32-30 halftime lead, the Broncos tied the score for the third time in the second half at 40-40 with 13:42 to play. But Delaware exploded on a 10-0 run as Ames hit a three-point shot and a jumper in a one-minute span. Sessoms hit a jump shot and Ryan Iversen (nine points, six rebounds) connected on a three-point shot. The spurt put Delaware ahead 52-42 with 9:24 to play in the game.

Rider cut the lead to 55-50 with 6:40 left, but Delaware responded by outscoring Rider 11-2 in the next two minutes with Rowland and Greg Miller each scoring five points in the run.

Basit recorded his eighth double-double in nine games this season and also recorded five of the team's seven blocked shots. The Hens shot 50 percent from the field in the second half, converting 13-of-26 shots, and were 8-of-16 from three-point range. Ames, a freshman guard averaging just 1.9 points and 6.3 minutes per game, hit on three of four three-point shots for 11 points in 11 minutes of action.

Blue Hens make switch to the CAA

► CAA, from 121

one will be offered by the time the four new schools join the league.

"We look forward to this opportunity for our teams and student-athletes to compete in the Colonial Athletic Association," said University of Delaware athletic director Edgar Johnson. "We have profound respect for the CAA and look forward to the challenges presented by the move. This is a great thing for our athletics program, our coaches and above all, our student athletes. The new CAA is the place for Delaware. Our future lies with the CAA and we are most pleased to part of this great new venture."

Delaware departs the America East after joining the league prior to the 1991-92 season. During those nine seasons, UD has won the Commissioners Cup, presented to the top overall program based on the entire year's championship finishes, all nine years. Delaware won a total of 35 America East conference titles, including five in baseball and four each in men's basketball, men's lacrosse, men's swimming and women's lacrosse. The remaining schools in America East include Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Northeastern, Boston University and Hartford.

Prior to joining America East, Delaware was a member of the East Coast Conference from 1974 until 1991 in all sports except football. The Blue Hen women's lacrosse program competed as an associate member of the CAA for three seasons (1993-95) because America East didn't sponsor the sport at that time. Delaware was a member of the Middle Atlantic Conference from 1945 until joining the ECC in 1973.

"This is a great opportunity for the growth of University of Delaware athletics," said Delaware men's basketball coach David Henderson. "From a men's basketball perspective, it's an exciting thing for us. It gives us a chance to take a look at these other programs to see where we are and where we need to go."

"We are as excited as anybody," said UD baseball coach Jim Sherman. "We are going into one of the elite conferences for baseball in the country (the CAA was ranked third nationally last spring) so this certainly is a great challenge that we welcome."

CAA institutions have produced 15 national team champions in four different sports, 33 national champions, 10 national coaches of the year, nine national players of the year, 11 Honda Sports Award winners, 10 NCAA post-graduate scholars and five Rhodes Scholars.

In 1999-2000, the CAA was the highest ranked non-BCS conference in the all-sports ranking. According to data compiled by the Big 12 Conference, CAA men's teams ranked No. 9 while the women's programs were No. 13.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

ANDREW DONOFRIO - ST. MARK'S

St. Mark's junior Andrew Donofrio finished second in the Beast of the East wrestling tournament last weekend.

Donofrio lost a 5-2 decision to Blair Academy's Zack Esposito in the 145-pound championship match. Esposito and Donofrio are ranked by some wrestling publications as the best two juniors at that weight in the country. In fact, Donofrio - a two-time state champion - has lost just three times in the last two years and two of those are to Esposito.

"The tournament was a lot tougher than it was last year," Donofrio said. "I beat a national prep champ, and Zack was a good match. But I wrestled well."

Donofrio's attitude and competitiveness are contagious.

"He just loves to wrestle," said St. Mark's coach Steve Bastianelli. "You can't look at him and not know that he loves what he's doing. That's so valuable. [Younger wrestlers] can learn that same kind of love."

Enjoy the open country style of 'Desert Wine' home

The open country style of the Desert Wine is refreshing to view. A covered wrap-around porch provides an open area to sit and enjoy a beautiful sunset. To extend this openness inside, numerous windows have been used across the face of the home.

Inside the entry of this 2,036-square-foot home flows an open space wrapped around the kitchen. The entire open room consists of a vaulted living room, nook, and a family room. A gas fireplace faces the formal living room. French doors open onto the covered porch off the vaulted nook.

The U-shaped kitchen has many amenities to make cooking a pleasant task. The dishwasher has been raised for convenience in loading and unloading. A large lazy susan has been conveniently tucked into a corner adjacent to the cook top. A walk-in pantry adds to the features of this imaginative kitchen.

A pocket door separates the kitchen from a full bathroom on the left and a large sewing/hobby/utility room on the right. A built-in ironing board plus an enormous counter makes this area ideal for the seamstress or hobbyist. At the end of this hall area is the two-car garage with its extra workspace. An elongated 732 square foot attic is over the garage and kitchen, with stairs located between the utility room and the living room.

Two bedrooms with a full bathroom form a "V" in the right front corner of this floor plan. Each bedroom has a set of large windows that bathe the rooms in light. These rooms are directly off the family room as is the bathroom.

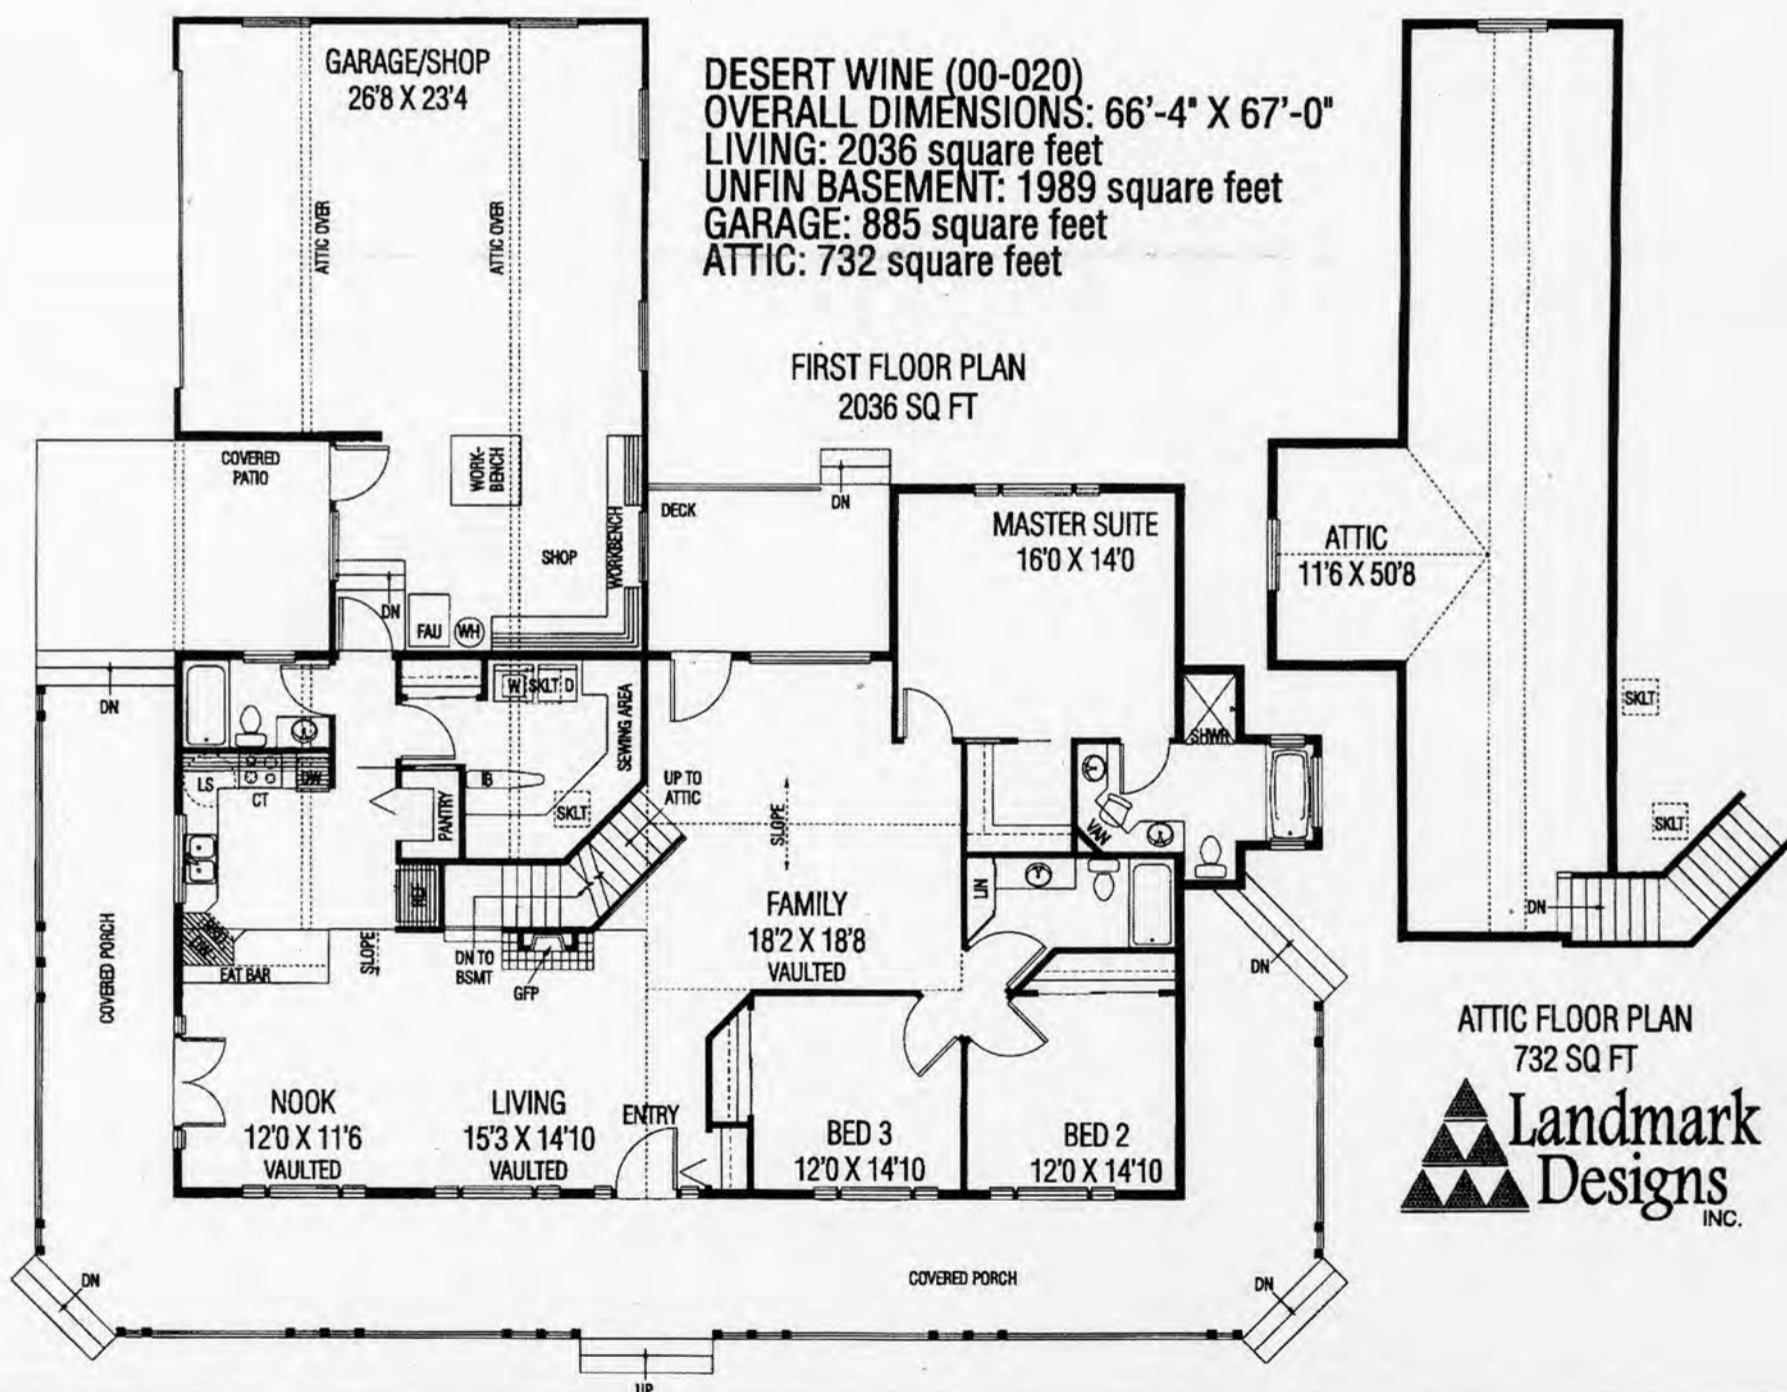

In the right rear of the Desert Wine is the master suite. The main suite is large and has a huge window looking out on the backyard. The most unique part of the master suite is the spacious open bathroom. An oversized tub and shower have been provided as well as a long built-in vanity with "his and hers" sinks.

The Desert Wine has decks, patios, and a covered porch for plenty of outside enjoyment. If more living space is needed, an unfinished 1,989 square foot basement is available.

For a study plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, sections, and an artist rendering, send $24.95 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road East, Cottage Grove, OR 97424. Please specify plan name and the number 00-020. A catalog featuring hundreds of home plans is available for $14.95, or save by ordering both for $29.95. For faster processing, call 1-800-562-1151.

PUBLIC PARTICIPATION MEETING

Delaware residents are encouraged to attend upcoming public meetings where they can participate in the development of the state's future transportation program. During the meetings, which are jointly sponsored by the Council on Transportation, the Dover/Kent County Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO), and the Wilmington Metropolitan Planning Organization (WILMAPCO), citizens and transportation officials will review the MPO's transportation projects and also DelDOT's proposed Capital Improvement Program (CIP) for Fiscal Years 2002-2007.

The meetings provide an opportunity to review the proposed CIP for Fiscal Years 2002-2007, and to suggest transportation projects and/or services. Public input received during these meetings is crucial to the development of the CIP, which is currently available for review. If you would like a copy of the document in advance of the meetings, please call 800-652-5600 or the document will be available on the Department's web page under special reports (www.deldot.net) by January 3, 2001.

Each meeting will have an informal workshop session beginning at 6:00 p.m., followed by an auditorium session at 7:00 p.m. A court reporter will be available during both sessions to record formal comments. Interested persons are also invited to submit written comments during the public meeting process for up to ten (10) days after each meeting and these also will be included in the formal record of the CIP meetings. The meetings will be held:

- In New Castle County at Stanton Middle School, Audium Lobby, 1800 Limestone Rd., Wilmington, DE, on Wednesday, January 10, 2001. Workshop Session - 6:00 p.m. Auditorium session - 7:00 p.m. An alternate "inclement weather" date has been set for Tuesday, January 16th.
- In Sussex County at Delaware Tech Community College, William Carter Partnership Center, Rm 529, (Lecture Hall), Georgetown, DE, on Thursday, January 11, 2001. Workshop Session - 6:00 p.m. Auditorium session - 7:00 p.m.
- In Kent County at DelDOT's Administration Bldg., 2nd flr., Executive Conference Room, 800 Bay Rd., Dover, DE, on Wednesday, January 17, 2001. Workshop Session - 6:00 p.m. Auditorium session - 7:00 p.m.

The Council on Transportation is composed of citizen representatives from every county in the state whose members are appointed by the Governor. The MPO's are composed of representatives from state, county and local governments, and citizen and technical representatives. Mandated by Subsection 8409, Chapter 84, Title 29 of the Delaware Code, the meetings are designed to ensure that the public has ample opportunity to participate in the planning process.

If requested in advance, DelDOT will make available the services of an interpreter for the hearing impaired. If an interpreter is desired, please make the request by phone or mail to DelDOT. Questions, comments or written material can be submitted up to ten (10) calendar days after the meeting to: Michele C. Ackles, Manager, External Affairs, Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 778, Dover, Delaware 19903, or call 1-800-652-5600.
