Student Council Elections To Be Held Next Wednesday

Student Body Will Elect Next Year's Governing Body; Resolution To Be Introduced Favoring Stricter Enforcement Of Rat Rules

Next Wednesday the student body will meet in Wolf Hall at 11 A. M. to elect the members of the 1929-30 Student Council. The balloting will proceed as follows: A Senior member of the Review Staff will be elected to the Council by the Student Body at large. Then will follow the election of the Review Staff will be elected to completed, the President of next year's Council will be chosen from the four senior members. The resolution passed at the last meeting of this year's Student Council will also be presented to the students for their approval.

Resolution to be brought before the Student Body on May 15, 1929, for consideration:

WHEREAS, the past year has shown the necessity for further alteration of Freshman Rules and the probable remedy for the enforcement; therefore be it

RESOLVED, that the Freshman Rules for 1929-30 be amended as set forth below; and further, that enforcement of these regulations be executed through the most effective means available at the direction and discretion of the Student Council.

Rule 6 shall be changed to include, "and enter the Commons according to rank." (If Commons is returned.)

Rule 17 shall be dropped as unnecessary and undesirable.

Rule 19 shall be framed to let Rules go off at 6 p. m. on Saturdays.

Rule 20 shall be dropped as it is amply provided for in Rule 9.

Rule 21 shall be altered to apply Rules from Registration Day to time set by Student Council.

It is the opinion of the majority of men on the Student Council that the above-specified changes will result in a beneficial reaction to Rat Rule enforcement, and will permit greater freedom of action with which to meet the situation.

Prof. Olsen To Be Assistant Dean at Dartmouth

Professor of Economics Accepts Important Position in Tuck School of Finance

Professor H. V. Olsen of the Department of Economics, has handed in his resignation so that he may take up his new duties in September as Assistant Dean of the Tuck School of Administration and Finance of Dartmouth College.

Although Delaware regrets losing Professor Olsen, the students are more than glad to see one of their faculty attain such a high position, especially notable in that it is in one of the leading business schools in the country. Professor Olsen, who is a favorite with the students as well as with the faculty, will begin his new task with the best wishes from all for a most happy and most successful career at Dartmouth College.

TENNIS TEAM

The tennis team due to the inclement weather, has had only one afternoon of practice since their last match. Next Tuesday a match was scheduled with St. Joseph's College, but this has been postponed.

Men are reminded at this time that those planning on entering the Spring Tournament should sign their names as soon as possible. When the outline of the tournament is posted, matches will be played promptly in order to facilitate the completion of the tournament before the close of school.

McDANIELS RESIGNS

One of the most popular professors of the University of Delaware, Mr. McDaniels, has resigned from his position in the Department of Economics in order to take up work at Johns Hopkins University in September. Every Delawarean regrets to see the departure of Mr. McDaniels, for with him will go one of the finest and strongest spirits that has been noticeable on the campus. It is sincerely hoped that his numerous friendships will not be severed, and that he will continue with his winning ways at Johns Hopkins.

JUNIORS HOLD CLASS ELECTIONS

At a meeting of the Junior Class held Tuesday, four men were nominated for the Student Council. They are "Scoop" Barton, "Ace" Taylor, Henry Smith, and Charles Kimble. At a meeting held Thursday, Wells was elected vice-president of the incoming Senior Class, and Middleton was elected treasurer for his fourth consecutive term at this office. A dead tie between Rickards and Steigler for the position of secretary could not be remedied.

"AG" CLUB BANQUET

The annual banquet of the University of Delaware Agricultural Club will be held at the Blue Hen Tea Room on Friday evening, May 10, at seven o'clock. The officers and members of the club, with the cooperation of the faculty members, are making plans for the affair.

Through the efforts of Dean C. A. McCue, Mr. W. T. Derrickson, Chief of the Bureau of Markets, State Board of Agriculture, has been secured as speakers for the occasion. Mr. Derrickson has had a wide and interesting experience in the work of marketing agricultural products.

A new feature of this year's program will be the attendance of students from the Agriculture Departments in the high schools of the State. Each department has been invited to send one member who will be the guest of the "Ag" Club for the weekend. The progress will include the banquet on Friday evening, the annual interscholastic track and field meet on Saturday afternoon, followed by the annual Interscholastic Dance that evening. It is also hoped that as many as possible of the Agriculture teachers will attend the Banquet with their pupils.

The members of the "Ag" Club are working very hard on the preparations for the affair. The various committees have reported quite satisfactorily and from all indications the members of the club and their guests are due for an enjoyable week-end.

DELAWARE NET MEN LOSE TO GETTYSBURG, 4-2

In the first home tennis match of the season, the University of Delaware team on Saturday lost to Gettysburg, 4 to 2. Delaware lost the singles 3 to 1, but split even in the doubles. Pyle starred for Delaware, winning his single match and with Moran also won his double match.

Hood, of Gettysburg, defeated Taylor, of Delaware, 6-4, 4-6, and 6-3. Lauer, of Gettysburg, defeated Hoffer, of Delaware, 6-0 and 6-2. Pyle, of Delaware, defeated Uhler, of Gettysburg, 6-4 and 6-3. Aumiller, of Gettysburg, defeated Moran, of Delaware, 3-6, 6-3, and 7-5. In the doubles Hood and Lauer, of Gettysburg, defeated Hoffer and Taylor, of Delaware, 6-0 and 6-3. Moran and Pyle, of Delaware, defeated Uhler and Aumiller, of Gettysburg, 6-2, 3-6, and 6-1.

PA. SONS OF DEL. TO VISIT UNIVERSITY

The Sons of Delaware, composed of former residents of Delaware now living in or near Philadelphia, will make its annual pilgrimage to the University of Delaware on Saturday, May 25. The visitors will witness the May Day Festival of the Women's College students and the baseball game between teams representing the University of Delaware and Drexel College. In the evening the visitors will be entertained at dinner.

A. S. M. E. TO HOLD DINNER MEETING

Mr. Fish To Speak; Three Seniors To Read Papers And Recording Secretary To Be Elected

The next meeting of the A. S. M. E., a dinner meeting, will be held on Tuesday, May 14, in the Commons, Old College. The dinner will begin promptly at 6 o'clock, standard time. All the Sophomores Mechanical Engineers are especially invited to this meeting and are urged to be there, as the recording secretary of the society is to be elected from the Sophomore Mechanicals present. Three Senior student members will read their papers, which are written on subjects that will be interesting to all engineers. Mr. E. R. Fish, who is manager of Boiler Department of the Combustion Engineering Corp. of New York, will be the principal speaker. He is also an officer of the parent organization of A. S. M. E. This is the last meeting of the year for the A. S. M. E. and a lot of the past business will be brought up. A schedule for next year's plans will be laid "on the table" and the aim of the society will be explained to the Sophomores. As all of the Senior and Junior Mechanicals are cooperating, and are turning out 100 per cent, it is hoped that the Sophomore Mechanicals will take advantage of this opportunity and hold that date open for the A. S. M. E. dinner.

Next year, whenever the organization can get the dates open, speakers are to be asked to come here and give talks with moving pictures to aid them. It is even possible that the A. S. M. E. will conduct some inspection trips for the Mechanical Engineers to manufacturing plants. In general, what the society does will help the members, for when men go on these trips and hear speakers, they often grasp knowledge of practical advantage. Very often a college graduate obtains a job in the line of work he likes, due to having seen on an inspection trip, while in school, some particular plant or kind of work that greatly interested him. All in all, the present Junior Mechanicals expect to benefit a great lot through the help extended by the society, and by the cooperation shown by them to their organization next year.

DELAWARE STUDENTS TO TEACH USE OF DIAL

Will Instruct Wilmington Phone Users In New System To Be Installed In August

In addition to the regular force of trained Diamond State Telephone Company employees, thirty University of Delaware students will begin June 29 instructing Wilmington subscribers in the use of the dial type telephone, it was announced today by A. G. Wilkinson, Business Administrator of the University.

A six-weeks' campaign of instruction in the operation of the dial instrument is to be inaugurated by the Diamond State Company on that date, as a prelude to the establishment of the dial system of telephone operation here, which is scheduled for early in August. Every telephone in Wilmington is to be placed on the dial basis of operation at that time.

The students, Mr. Wilkinson ex-

DRUIDS, DERELECTS TO HOLD TAP DAY

Honorary Societies Will Pick New Members Tomorrow; Relay Race At 4.00 P. M.

Tomorrow, May 11, the Delaware campus will be the scene of many interesting events. To the public, it is Interscholastic Day; to Delaware men, it is Tap Day; probably the most talked of and longest awaited day of the year.

The tapping will be done in order of seniority, so at 12:15 the Derelects, the Senior honorary society, will meet on the steps of Old College. As has always been the custom, a former Derelect will speak before the tapping of new men begins. This year the speaker will be George Madden, and he will tell of the founding and purposes of the society. As soon as he has finished, the Derelects will go out one at a time, tap their men, and bring them back to the steps.

The center of interest will then change to Frazer Field. At one o'clock the Interscholastic Meet will begin. Then, at 1:30, the Blue Key men will tap the Sophomores who have been elected to membership in the Junior honorary society. Since this is the first year that Blue Key men will be tapped on Interscholastic Day, the method which they will use is still unknown.

One hour later, at 2:30, the Druids will march down the steps on to Frazer Field and form their traditional triangle on the south bank. Then, one at a time, these men will leave the triangle and tap the Freshmen who have been elected to this honorary Sophomore society.

In order to prevent the Interfraternity Relay from interfering with the tapping this year, as it has done in former years, special arrangements have been made to have the Relay postponed until four o'clock.

B COMPANY RATED BEST

Ceremonies, But No More Drills, Will Feature Rest Of Military Season; Best Platoon To Be Picked Monday

Colonel McCoy, Infantry, and Prof. in Military Science and Training at Rutgers, was very well pleased with the showing that the Delaware "Blue Chicks" made in an inspection held Monday, May 6. He lauded the officers who so ably led their men.

"A" Company, holder of the gold star for the best-drilled company for 1928, relinquished this honor to "B" Company for 1929, having been bested by the latter at a competitive drill following the parade last Monday morning. "A" Company, nevertheless, maintained the best line during the parade.

Monday, May 13, the Delaware R. O. T. C. Unit will pass in review for Lieutenant A. E. Tanner, Coast Artillery Reserve, and Commander of 621st Artillery Reserve Regiment. After the review the Lieutenant will act as one of the three judges who will determine the best platoon. The other two judges, not yet chosen, will be army officers. The review will consist of close order drill and the manual of arms.

Although there will be no more drills there will be ceremonies before the public to demonstrate the ability of the Delaware College R. O. T. C. Unit to the public.

"I am proud of them," declared Major Glasburn. "I think they deserve and have a right to show the public what they can do."

The Major hopes to have the presentation of the sabres to the officers commanding the best company and the best platoon on May 20.

The last drill will be a regular graduation parade.

FROSH NOMINATE

On Thursday afternoon an interesting Freshman Class meeting was held. Those two nominated for the Student Council were Walter Lee and Fred Homan. After a remarkably close nomination, a re-nomination was requested because of the absence of Student Council Representatives, thus making the vote absolutely void. However, the President of the Student Council approved of the nominations as rendered primarily.

SOPHOMORE NOMINATIONS

The Student Council nominees of the present Sophomore class voted on Wednesday noon were Jack McDowell, Cannon, Caleb Boggs, and Malcom Adams. Of these, two will be elected by the school as a whole to serve next year on the Student Council as representatives of the Junior Class.

FROSH DEBATERS LOSE CLOSE DECISION

Mr. Dunlap's Protesges Make Fine Showing In Final Debate Of Year

At the final meeting of the Debate Council for the present active year, a debate between Wilmington High School and the University of Delaware Freshmen was held in the Lounge of Old College. The judges, whose close decision favored the Wilmington orators, were Mayor Collins, Reverend Hallman and Mr. Melloy, all of Newark.

The question discussed was, "Resolved, that immigration into the United States be prohibited for a period of five years." Wilmington's team, who defended the negative, was composed of Harvey Maguigan, Samuel Silver and Earl Shelton. They successfully climaxed their season undefeated. Those of the affirmative were Martin Goldberg, Manuel Handler and Walter Lee. Although burdened with the unfavorable task of defending a practically one-sided question, these silver-tongued debaters made the task of the judges difficult.

With the fine showing that our Freshmen have made in their first attempt in such a field, we feel confident that they will prove to be valuable defenders of dear old Delaware on the speaker's stand.

Philip Kotlar masterfully presided over the debate. Mr. Dunlap is responsible for the excellent showing of our Freshmen, his conscientious coaching proved to be an invaluable asset. The unexpected large audience thoroughly enjoyed themselves, all agreeing that this was the most interesting debate of the season.

FOREIGN STUDY GROUP FORMING

The 1929-1930 group for Foreign Study in France is rapidly forming. Fifty applications have already been received from numerous colleges throughout the country. It is expected that in July the group sent from New York will be as large as that group sent last year.

Dr. Hüllihen has recently returned from France, and reports that he is pleased with the Plan at the present time.

INTER-FRAT COUNCIL ELECTS OFFICERS

Rinard, Riffin And Draper Chosen; To Purchase A Cup For Inter-Fraternity Relay

At a meeting of the Inter-Fraternity Council, held on last Monday evening, the following officers were elected for next year: President, Richard Rinard; vice-president, Warren Riffin; secretary-treasurer, William Draper.

The meeting was presided over by Bob Burton, retiring president. The old members of the Council explained its workings to all the newcomers. It was decided to purchase a cup to be awarded to the fraternity which wins the Inter-Fraternity relay race held on the day of the Inter-Scholastics. The cup will become the permanent property of that fraternity which wins it three times.

The list of new members of the Council comprises Richard Rinard, Warren Riffin, William Draper, Herbert Cohen, David Anderson, Frank Swezey, William Brown, Jack McDowell, Caleb Boggs, Joseph Flanner, Herman Ryan and Norman Burk.

The retiring members of the Council are Robert Burton, Edwin Murray, Lawrence Elliott, Philip Blank, Virgil Van Street and Jack Hofferer.

Footlighters Play Ready Next Friday

Alpha Psi Omega to Present Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest"

Does it pay to be earnest? There's only one way to find out. Come to Wolf Hall next Friday night, May 17, and learn the answer from Oscar Wilde and Alpha Psi Omega. "The Importance of Being Earnest" is undoubtedly the cleverest, wittiest, and most humorous play that has been attempted at Delaware in the last two or three seasons; its cast is one of the best that has been assembled for any Delaware performance; and it will undoubtedly prove to be one of the most polished and dramatically perfect plays ever seen on our campus. Mr. Conkle's excellent and untiring work, and the almost unbelievable interest and co-operation of the cast have already brought the play to a higher point of perfection than many plays attain on the eve of production. All three acts are known now, and the final polishing is all that remains to be accomplished.

All who have seen the work going forward on this production are greatly enthused, and Mr. Conkle states confidently that it will be the best of the year. It is hoped by the dramatically minded that this play will be another long step in the increasing interest in dramatics which has been evident at Delaware during this last year.

If you're looking for entertainment you certainly can't afford to miss this event. In fact those who do not attend will have missed something really worth while. This is one play which will be enjoyed, not only by persons interested in drama but by everybody who has any sense of humor and likes lively, snappy entertainment.

For your own sakes, don't miss it; Next Friday, May 17, 1929!

LOCAL MEN LECTURE TO CLASS IN SAFETY

Dr. Claude L. Benner and Dr. Ezra B. Crooks, both of Newark, were the first speakers in the course of study in Industrial Safety Management, being given in the Wilmington Y. M. C. A., by the Delaware Safety Council. The course opened Monday. Dr. Benner, who is economist for the Continental American Life Insurance Company, and is on leave of absence from the University of Delaware, spoke on the statistics of industrial accidents. Dr. Crooks, who is professor of philosophy and sociology at the University of Delaware, addressed the class on the social consequences of industrial accidents.

FACULTY CLUB ELECTS

The last meeting of the season of the Faculty Club of the University of Delaware was held in the faculty club rooms at Old College Monday evening. The speaker of the occasion was Joseph Datnell, general manager of the broadcasting station WDEL, in Wilmington. Mr. Datnell gave a talk on Radio Broadcasting, and gave a practical demonstration.

Election of officers for next year was held. The results are: President, Dr. T. F. Manns; vice-president, J. Carl Rees; executive committee, Professor Howard K. Preston and Professor W. A. Wilkinson; social committee, Dr. H. L. Duxier, chairman; Dr. Harris, and Courtland Houghton.

AN AERO CLUB

There is a definite move on foot at present in most of the colleges of the country to establish courses in aeronautics and to start Aero Clubs. Each week some new institution receives publicity for having done something in this line and lately even the high schools have become interested. The Aero Club of the Wilmington High School is, we understand, a thriving organization and the question as to whether or not the Aero Club there should be co-educational has aroused a heated discussion. But, here at Delaware, we have not heard a word spoken on the subject. Certainly there must enough students interested to form such an Aero Club and with the excellent facilities furnished by Bellanca Field so close at hand, the idea could very easily be put into practice.

There is no doubt whatever that eventually courses in Aeronautics will be included in the curriculum of practically all the colleges. Why shouldn't Delaware be the first of the small colleges of the East to establish such a course?

Major Glassburn Objects To Anti-Militaristic Article; War Department Does Not Sanction Girls Or Polo Ponies

Department of Military

May 4, 1929.

The Editor,
University of Delaware Review, University.

Dear Sir,

For the peace-at-any-cost-to-our-country fanatics of the Committee on Militarism in Education, and the well-known editorial staff of The Nation, distortion of the facts to suit their purposes are such common practice that little attention is paid to them by intelligent, fair-minded people.

However, the pains to which you have gone to spread upon your pages the deliberate untruths of those who wish to place our country in a defenseless position cannot be overlooked. Your office is but a few steps from mine. An even sense of fair-play and cooperation should have prompted you to seek the other side of so important a question before attacking, with borrowed ammunition, an essential part of an institution which you presume to represent.

Let me state unequivocally and without reservation that the statement republished by you that the War Department urges the use of girl sponsors or commissions when where used is a plain, unvarnished lie. If the War Department did so, I would be under instructions to institute such an adjunct here, and long before this—regardless of my personal opinion of its value—I would have done my utmost to establish it. As for commissioning them, anyone with the most superficial knowledge of Federal law should know that no authority is at the disposal of the War Department for so doing. It could not do so, even if it wished to.

Now for polo ponies. If the War Department offered polo ponies as a lure there would be polo ponies here, if only for the reason that I would like them for my personal use.

The R. O. T. C. trains candidates for the Officers' Reserve for all combat branches of the Service, including the Cavalry and Field Artillery, both of which are mounted. It is logical, therefore, that Cavalry and Field Artillery units be equipped with horses. These horses are of the standard types raised by the remount service and are not polo ponies. However, since polo offers the best practical test of a man's horsemanship the War Department encourages polo in the mounted units, permitting the use of the standard mounts for that purpose. They are not the best possible mounts for the game, but they are better than nothing at all. Wherever proper polo ponies are found, as at Princeton, they are procured by the students themselves, or presented to the units by wealthy men interested in encouraging the straight- and, may I add? square-shooting, courageous type of college man who go to make up the bulk of the Advanced R. O. T. C.

All of the above could have been learned by you, prior to going to press, by the use of one of your energetic reporters.

Very truly yours,

Robert P. Glassburn,
Major, C. A. C. (DOL.),
P. M. S. and T.

one disagrees of narrow-mindedness and bigotry? Is it academic freedom to resort to cheap sarcasm about "the nobility and character of the Military Department?" Is it academic freedom to stoop to mud-slinging? Libertas is quite right when he admits the possibility of his being wrong!

The Military does not fear intelligence, enlightenment and truth, Libertas to the contrary. The Military would mightily appreciate a little intelligence. It would heartily welcome the day which would bring enlightenment and truth to some of the self-blinded fools who insist on crying "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." May I point out a few historical facts which Libertas appears to have overlooked, or of which, perhaps, he is ignorant?

The United States has engaged in some five or six wars of major importance. It is interesting to note that at the beginning of each of these conflicts our country has been almost totally unprepared, and in consequence has wasted millions of dollars and thousands of lives which a sound military policy from the beginning would have saved. And it is due in several cases only to fortuitous circumstances that our nation has not been wrecked by this lack of a sound military policy. At the close of the Great War the Government of the United States apparently awoke to this fact, and in 1920 Congress passed the National Defense Act which provides for the development in time of peace of an army for use in time of war.

It is asinine for an otherwise intelligent American to delude himself with the belief that the Great War was the last war. As long as Human Nature is what it is there will be national jealousies and hatreds, and as a consequence there will be war. Each war paves the way for the next. Victory for one nation whets the appetite for further conquest. Defeat for another creates the desire for revenge. Even Libertas cannot deny the truth of these statements.

Why, then, all this agitation for unpreparedness? Why this long drawn-out howl on the part of a chronically dissatisfied minority for the abandonment of our present system of national defense? We have seen the results of unpreparedness. Why court disaster by returning to our former policy, which not only laid us open to attack, but actually invited it?

Think it over, Libertas! We don't need Mr. Harry Bone's observations on life, however unique and broad-minded. But we do need military preparedness and we need the cooperation of everyone with the Military Department in order to arrive at the point where we shall be able to meet any crisis—any contingency which may arise.

Eswil.

Moon Worshipper

The Vitaphone, as it may be expected across the way.

Scene: The interior of the customary palatial movie home. A woman dressed in deep mourning enters and arranges flowers in a vase on a side table. A man in cutaway, etc., approaches her from a side door and says in the Vitaphone's nearest approach to a feminine voice:

"Oh, dear! I wish Matilda wouldn't eat these stems so short."

She turns and faces him, saying gutturally,

"Alma! Are you going to keep me waiting forever?" She droops her head on her bosom, but the voice continues,

"I have waited a long three years now. Give me some hope—think of your children. You know they would be as mine." The voice stops, and the man is seen to move his lips in pleading. He comes closer to her and takes her hand in his. He squeaks,

"Please Tom. It is so difficult to cide something so definite. You know I are for you." She turns and smiles sadly at him. They both continue to move their lips with no sound from anywhere except the whiny baby in the balcony. Finally he gathers her into his arms and kisses her. A deep bass voice accompanies this action, saying,

"Priff, I've searched this whole world for you, and at last I've got you where I want you. Where are those papers?" (This is the only time Priff or the papers figure in the picture. Perhaps it's the modernistic touch.)

Scene: A policeman shows concern about a weeping child on a street corner. Policeman, in a childish, querulous voice,

"I'm losted! I can't find my muvver!" The child throws his arms about the policeman's left leg, looks up into his face and says,

"Never mind, old fellow, we can find her for you alright. Just you stick with old Joe Nightstick and we'll have you with her in a jiffy." A voice, for no apparent reason, begins,

"And suppose, Tom, that I were to marry you, and then we learned that our attraction was the result of our separation. What then?" There is the sound of rifle fire followed by a significant rumble and a crash. The crash arouses the temporarily silent baby in the balcony, who from then on makes the squeaks and booms even less comprehensible, and I spent the rest of the two hours in a jolly fashion trying to guess who was talking about what without the distraction of the words.

MOVING DAY FOR PROFESSORS

In order to make room for the new Auditorium, the two houses occupying that specific site had to be moved. As a result, one of the houses,—that one in which Professor Preston eats, sleeps, and marks examination papers,—has, up to this time, been moved, or rather dragged, as far as its nearest cinder-path.

Aside from the fact that elephants were not used to remove the building from its original site, a few other mistakes were made, much to the amusement of interested students. The hedges were placed in their new locations, and perhaps the house will narrow itself down to the size of a man so that it may walk by the hedges into its new position. And crude! The bay window has already given formal notice that it will not undergo such a strain. What could be worse?—the haulers, in their hurry, forgot to bring the cellar. In order to cover up their error, they dug a hole and put the newly acquired dirt in the old cellar. Then they wrapped up the new hole and sent it to the Street and Sewer Department. The students, although highly amused, regret to see the ugly dents made on the green. It is hoped that they will be unobserved by the meauty of the new building.

Book Review

For most people, the idea of reading a story for pleasure at this time is almost pure folly. However, the cramming and exams will soon be over and a few, be it ever so few, may wish to read something. The review this week is mainly for Seniors, who, after they have graduated, feel the need of some book which is serious and "heavy" enough to make them feel the importance of their new station in life. The book is by Dmitri Merejkowski, a Russian writer of note. The book is "The Romance of Leonardo da Vinci."

The book deals mostly with the latter part of the life of this artist of the Italian Renaissance. The portrayal of this teeming period is admirably carried out. It is a fine example of historic mindedness, the projection of oneself into a period of history so as to make it live again. The story is rather slow as are the works of most Russians. Like most other Russian novels, the book is very long. However, if the reader is capable of a little serious reading he will find this an intensely interesting story. There is a sub-plot which proceeds along with the main story. It is as ably treated as the story of the artist. The book abounds in fine characterizations of the various types of people to be found in this important transitional age. The studies of Leonardo, Michael Angelo, Caesar Borgia, Pope Alexander, and Machiavelli are real additions to the studies of these men. To any one interested in this period, "The Romance of Leonardo da Vinci" will take its place among his favorite books.

This book usually appears in a set of two volumes, but a very fine, one-volume edition, translated direct from the Russian, can be obtained in the "Modern Library" series.

They gave the express rider a good start

Henry Wells, developing the mail and express business of Wells Fargo, knew the necessity of careful preparation and alert management. Communication was more than the picturesque racing of pony express riders; behind the scenes there was always the systematic planning of routes, the watchful inspection of outposts and men. Communication today is immeasurably faster than it was then, thanks to electricity. And to a vastly greater degree has the work of preparation behind the scenes become important.

In the Bell System, management must constantly look ahead to provide the sinews of service against growing public demand—material and men must be mobilized to extend and keep open the lines of communication.

OUR PIONEERING WORK HAS JUST BEGUN

In the Editor's Mail

Editor of the Review,
University of Delaware.

Dear Sir:

Last week there appeared in these columns an article entitled, "Academic Freedom." I will say at the outset that I consider such an attack upon the Military Department to be contemptible and absolutely unjustified.

It is a Delaware tradition that the student body "ride" the Military Department. That, perhaps, is one of the things to which the worshipper at the lunar shrine referred in his dissertation on standardization—a very interesting little article, the truth of which I shall soon have the opportunity to observe, no doubt. But I was under the impression that this "riding" was a more or less good-natured sort which one did because it was the thing to do, and not because one harbored actual hatred of the Military Department. Apparently I have been laboring under an illusion. "Academic Freedom" is, on the face of it, vindictive and downright malicious.

Just what does Libertas mean by academic freedom? Is it academic freedom to accuse those with whom

THIRD CURTIS CONCERT HERE MONDAY NIGHT

The third of a series of concerts by artists of the Curtis Institute of Music will be given in Wolf Hall at the University of Delaware, under the auspices of the Newark Music Society, on Monday evening. The concert will open at 8 o'clock, daylight time, and will be free. Dr. George H. Ryden, president of the Newark Music Society, will be in charge of the concert. The program will be given by Miss Josephine Jirak, contralto, and Miss Lucie Stern, pianist. Miss Jirak is a student of Mme. Marcella Sembrich, and has appeared frequently in concerts. She has just returned from an engagement as soloist in a performance of the "Messiah" in Altoona, Pa., the Mirror reporting, "Her rich contralto was one of the thrilling surprises of the evening." The Altoona Tribune said, "The most beautiful solo voice was Miss Jirak's, a true contralto, that reaches hidden depths by the sheer beauty of sound." Miss Stern is a pupil of Josef Hofmann, and has been heard in concert in the principal cities of Europe, as well as New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Miss Jirak's program has not as yet been completed, but Miss Stern will render the following selections: Robert Schumann, Symphonic Etudes; Frederic Chopin, Scherzo in C Sharp; Frederic Chopin, Waltz in E Minor, Opus Posthumous; Frederic Chopin, Nocturne in F Sharp Major, Opus 15, No. 2; Serge Prokofieff, Marche, Opus 12, No. 1; Maurice Moszkowski, Caprice Espagnol.

Blue and Gold Place Second in Track Meet

Haverford Takes Meet, With Ursinus in Third Place; Garrett and Ruggiero Star

Delaware's track team lived up to its expectation by defeating Ursinus in a triangle meet. Haverford emerged winner with a surplus of 50½ points, while Delaware had a ten and one-half point lead on Ursinus.

The Blue and Gold track men took two first places, and in each of these events, a Delaware man was second. Garrett easily won the javelin, his Collins. The most spectacular event of only close rival being his teammate the afternoon was the high jump. Garrett, starting again, got over the bar at 5 feet 8½ inches. And Ruggiero surprised all spectators by jumping higher than his own height by successfully clearing the bar in order to get tie for first place. Captain Paxson and Wells got second and fourth places, respectively, in the 120-yard high hurdles, and third and fourth respectively in the 220-yard low hurdles. Sortman, Delaware's flying sprinter, captured third place in the century, and a remarkably close second place in the 220-yard dash. In the discus, Benson was a close second, followed by Parkinson, who took third place in this event. Ruggiero and Deputy took fourth places in the broad jump and two-mile respectively, and Sam Sloan tied for third honors in the pole vault.

100-yard dash—Won by Ensworth, Haverford; second, Rice, Haverford; third, Sortman, Delaware; fourth, Gabriel, Haverford. Time, 10 2-5 seconds.

From the Lyrics

THE BEACON

Tonight while the flickering shadows Form fanciful scenes on the wall, To my mind comes a deep contemplation

Of life, and of death, and of all The multiple looms from which patterns are woven.

And voices which haunt us and poignantly call.

Yet, though shadows o'ertake me And extinguish the light,

Still your love is a beacon In the vast gloom of night.

COLLEGE HUMOR

(Written for the College Humor Magazine)

The moon was shining through the trees,

It could not shine below;

The stars illumined both her knees, My eyes informed me so.

I had tried, and failure'd beset me, I had suffered, but alas, all in vain.

I had whispered, "Oh darling, please let me,"

But her scorn rewarded my pain.

She was winsome, and O how I loved her!

I had suffered, but alas, all in vain. She was there, like the stars far above her.

She was willing, but I was too slow.

With a last rush of courage I kissed her,

And as I pressed her dear form in caress,

Reluctantly leaving, I whispered—

"Dear Daughter, you must lengthen your dress!"

THE MASTERPIECE

Lilacs may bloom in Maryland, Violets may cheer linden air;

Stars of the night may beam with delight,

The earth, its great beauty declare.

The rippling waters may softly flow Through the hills down to the sea;

Birds may sing in the welcomed Spring,

And the flowers may embrace the bee.

Trees and the sweet-smelling blossoms May brighten the green-rolling mountains;

The lambs may bound to the tabor's sound,

And the rocks cherish dearly their fountains.

The skies may be all blue and silver, The clouds hold no vestige of snow;

But God finished the world by creating a girl—

'Tis His masterpiece, you know!

Norman Thomas And H. P. Van Dusen To Speak At Y. M. C. A. Conference

NORMAN THOMAS

H. P. VAN DUSEN

"I would rather choose three summer conferences such as I attended while in college than a Rhodes Scholarship with three years in Oxford and the opportunity of travelling in Europe, if I had to take only one." This statement was made by a returned Rhodes Scholar to a group of students from Delaware and Maryland colleges in a meeting at Sherwood Forest last Saturday.

People who questioned Mr. A. P. Moor's sincerity in that statement learned that he meant it, for the summer conferences had given him a realization of "what life is all about" that none of his courses or professors had imparted to him. They made him realize his own potential powers, gave him an appreciation of the value of personality, and opened before him the actual facts about economic, social, racial, and international conditions in the world. His religion changed from a narrow, negative group of "Don'ts" to a broad, positive outlook on life.

The Eagles Mere Student Conference, June 12 to 22, will do the same thing to many of the five hundred men and women from nearly a hundred colleges in seven states. "The greatest single experience in a college career," has been the statement of hundreds of students who have attended summer conferences.

Men of international reputation will give addresses and lead forums of students gathered at the annual summer conference at Eagles Mere. K. T. Paul, executive secretary of the Student Movement of India, will speak on his native country. He will arrive in the United States early in June. Kirby Page, author and lecturer in the movement for peace and editor of the The World Tomorrow; Norman Thomas, director of the League for Industrial Democracy; Prof. H. H. Tweedy, of Yale; Prof. H. P. Van Dusen, of Union Theological Seminary; and Francis P. Miller, chairman of the World's Student Christian Federation, are among the speakers.

Opportunities to question these men and others, and to talk with them personally will be given during the ten days of the conference, to which any student may go. There will also be discussion groups on all phases of life: religious problems, social questions, war, vocational guidance, race relations, home-building, life in foreign lands, marriage and others.

Eagles Mere is situated on the Lake of Eagles in the mountains near Muncy, Pennsylvania, one of the most beautiful sections of the state. Between four and five hours a day are given to conference sessions. The rest of the time is free for fellowship with men and women from other colleges, for sports—swimming, boating, baseball, tennis, golf, hiking, etc.—and for reading and deepening friendships with the leaders. There will be time for thinking about where one is going and life's fundamental purposes. Men interested can receive complete information by writing Harold B. "Pete" Ingalls or Harry Bone, 347 Madison avenue, New York, N. Y. Several Delaware College men are considering attending Eagles Mere.

Sallies Defeat Jay Vees

The Salesianum Catholic High School came to Newark on Tuesday and handed the Jay Vees their second defeat of this season with a score of 12 to 7 in a grand slug-fest.

Although Waddington struck out eight men and permitted but one walk, to the three men that Rembecki struck out with four walks, the Jay Vees could not seem to get into the swing of the game until the third inning, and by this time the visitors had gotten seven runs and were able to get five more during the remainder of the game.

Draper and Szozda starred at bat for the home team with two hits each, and except for a number of costly errors, the Jay Vees played fair ball. Flannagan was the hitting leader for the Sallies with four hits. The score:

plained, will be thoroughly schooled in the operation of the dial type telephones before they begin visiting the homes of subscribers to show them how to operate the instruments. Each student will wear a badge of the Diamond State Company, and will display it upon entering homes and commercial establishments, as a means of identification.

The telephone company plans to have all subscribers thoroughly versed in the operation of the dial prior to that date of the "cutover," so that no difficulty will be experienced by Wilmingtonians in making calls.

In addition to instructing telephone users in the operation of the dial type instrument, the students will test the mechanism on each telephone to make certain that it is properly attuned and in perfect working order. They will also place new number plates on the bases of the telephones—these numbers will be inserted under the present numbers—for use after "cutover."

The numbers now on the telephones will continue to be used until the "cutover" is made. Immediately following the transition to the dial system, subscribers will remove the old number from their telephones, and use thereafter the one placed there by the student instructors. Thus the new number will remain on the base of each telephone when the number now in use is removed.

"The University is pleased with this opportunity to place students in attractive work for the greater part of the summer vacation," said Mr. Wilkinson. "It is in line with our policy of finding employment for students who wish to earn money to pay their tuition and defray other expenses incurred during the college year."

"The students who will do this work already have been selected, and a number of others are on a special reserve list."

JAY VEES LOSE TO BEACOMS, 11-6

After starting the game off with a bang, the local Jay Vees lost to Beacom on Frazer Field on Monday by a score of 11 to 6. The locals grabbed four runs in the first inning, one in the fourth, and one in the seventh. This, however, was not enough, for the visitors got that many runs and five more which they collected all at once in the sixth inning.

The Jay Vees played a nice brand of baseball, having only two errors, but the Naylor aggregation just outdid the local lads. They had eleven hits to the Jay Vees' eight.

Blue and Gold Bows To Swarthmore

Errors Rattle Hall and Little Quakers Get Four Runs in Sixth Inning

Taking advantage of the unavoidable absence of the Assistant Manager last Saturday, the baseball team lost to Swarthmore by a score of 4 to 1. The Swarthmore aggregation bunched three hits in the sixth inning, and with the aid of two errors and two walks were able to get the required number of tallies.

"Ploughboy" Hall who started on the mound for the locals pitched a fine game of ball until this inning, allowing but one hit, and really did not deserve the bad-break that lost the game. Swarthmore should have had only one run that inning, which would have tied the score, but the two errors told the sad tale as was recorded on the scoreboard.

Cookinbach, the Swarthmore hurler, pitched a fine game of ball for his team, giving but one pass and one hit after the third inning. Ryan, who finished the game for Delaware on the mound, was in fine form and held the Quakers scoreless for that period.

Bill Shellady led off the first inning for Delaware with a hit and went to second on Jaquette's sacrifice. Hill singled but Shellady was held on third.

The chances for scoring were ruined when Hill was caught stealing and Snowberger was thrown out at first.

Delaware scored their only run in the second. After Glasser was out, Roman hit for two bases, went to third on a balk and scored on a squeeze play, with Taylor laying the ball down. This ended the scoring for Delaware and they got but two more hits, one in the third and one in the seventh.

Swarthmore's big inning came in the sixth after Hall had held them to one hit until that time. Christian led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Johnson. Roman booted Adelman's grounder, which should have been two out. Barnes followed with a long double over Taylor's head, scoring Christian and Adelman. Roman made another error when he threw bad to third to catch Barnes on McGuire's drive to short. Redman walked, filling the bases, and Barnes counted on Cookinbach's infield hit which should have forced in the fourth run.

Roman had an off day in the field, but scored Delaware's only run. Taylor covered a lot of ground in center, while Snowberger caught a fine game.
