SWIMMERS WIN AND LOSE MEETS

Drop Meet to Army But Defeat University of Virginia

University of Delaware swimmers were too good for the University of Virginia team Tuesday night and won the dual meet in the local pool by a score of 40 to 25. This makes three victories for the Blue and Gold team in dual meets this season to one defeat which was by the Army last Saturday.

Delaware won four of the seven events last night, the relay, diving, won by Hartmann; 150-yard backstroke, captured by Brown, and the 200-yard breaststroke won by Jacobs. Virginia won all of the free style events, the 50, 100 and 440 yards.

The swimming of Maury for Virginia, who won the 440- and 100-yard free style events, was a feature of the meet. Maury, who is recognized as one of the best free style swimmers in the South, defeated Captain Taylor of Delaware in both events. Lampton of Virginia won the 50-yard free style.

The greatest thrill of the night came in the 200-yard breaststroke in which Jacobs, swimming for Delaware by a great spurt beat out Johns of Virginia by a stroke in the last ten yards.

Delaware took a substantial lead by capturing the relay and first and second places in the diving event. The diving of both Hartmann and Sortman was another feature. Delaware won the relay by only a few yards, but had to overtake a lead which Laury gave his team in the first 50 yards which he swam. The summaries:

Relay—Won by Delaware (Lindstrand, Brown, Murray, Taylor); second, Virginia (Maury, Pennick, Chanery, Lampton). Time, 1:45-1.

Diving—Won by Hartmann, Delaware; second, Sortman, Delaware; third, Hatch, Virginia.

50-yard free style—Won by Lampton, Virginia; second, Lindstrand, Delaware; third, Murray, Delaware. Time, 26.3.

MAY CHANGE A. C. BY-LAWS

Intend to Give the Students Greater Voice in Manage- ment of Athletics

At the regular meeting of the Athletic Council held on Monday night, plans were discussed for the changing of the constitution of the Athletic Council. The aim of the present council is to give the students more control in the running of things. It is believed by those in charge that since the students are the ones who take part in the athletic events, and to a large degree support them, they should have a greater voice in controlling them.

It is planned to have a Freshman appointed to the Council each year after mid-year examinations. He would have no vote for the first half year, until he had learned the workings of the council. He would, however, serve for the rest of his stay in college and would have a vote during the last three years. Such men would be appointed by the Student Council, and would be asked to work in harmony with the Student Council, in order that they might more effectively represent the Student Body instead of merely one class. Such a change would also help greatly to remove politics from any appointment to the Athletic Council.

It is also planned to have the Director of Physical Education responsible for the physical condition of all men out for any team. The coaches of each sport, however, are to give their own training rules.

A number of other changes in the rules are contemplated, and it is expected that they will give the students a much greater voice in the management of athletics than they have had in the past.

PHI KAPPA TAU HOLDS HOUSE PARTY

Last Saturday night, the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity completed its social season for the first term, with a house party held at the chapter house. The music for the affair was furnished by Potter's Orchestra. Refreshments were served during intermission.

The patronesses were Mrs. T. F. Manns, Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson, Mrs. C. A. McCue, and Miss Bally.

AGGIE NEWS IS ISSUED

January Number of Ag Club Organ Is Published

This week the January issue of the Delaware Aggie News made its appearance. Although not so voluminous as several issues have been, the journal is very interesting, and one of the finest that has been issued to date. It contains a great deal of news and a number of personal items which are to say the least—quite personal.

There is an interesting and instructive editorial on the subject of surplus sweet potatoes, and an article discussing the speech made by Dean C. A. McCue over the radio on January 11. These notes are followed by a discussion of the 4-H corn show held this week. The vocational agricultural activities are also discussed, as is the State Corn Show which was held in Dover on January 17. News of the 4-H clubs is given, together with a number of student notes, with pointed references to the amorous activities of certain gentlemen whose fraternity house is situated not far from the Women's College. These remarks are followed by news of the experimental station and notes of general interest to readers of the Aggie News.

SHAKEUP PENDING FOR CAGE SQUAD

Owing to the fact that mid-year examinations start today, all sports at the University of Delaware, including practice, will be suspended for at least a week.

Coach "Joe" Rothrock says he will resume practice with the basketball squad on Friday of next week to get ready for the next game which will be with St. Joseph's here on February 4. The basketball team to date has lost nine games without a victory and there remain 10 more games on the schedule.

Coach Rothrock announces that in view of the poor showing that has been made by a team made up almost entirely of Seniors he will likely give the under-classesmen a chance in the remaining games and in this way built to some extent for next year.

The Seniors on the squad are Captain Barton, Holt, Benson, LeCarpentier, Hill and Taylor. It is likely that Captain Barton will be kept at one of the forward positions and Taylor at a guard position. Roberts, at center, Orth at guard, and Roman at forward are the under-classesmen who will probably be used in the remaining games. Rothrock has persuaded Sam Sloan, end on the football team and who a couple of years ago played the cage game at P. M. C., to come out for basketball. Sloan has been practicing this week and will work out with the squad when practice is resumed.

INTERFRAT LEAGUE TO OPEN SOON

Fraternity Contests in Various Fields Hold Much Interest

The Review has been asked to inform its readers that at the beginning of the second semester, the inter-fraternity basketball league will begin its games. In the intervals between examinations, it is urged that the fraternities take advantage of the freedom of the gymnasium and get in some extra practices. The cup that is to be awarded should be sufficient attraction for each fraternity to put in the maximum possible amount of practice in an attempt to win.

The local chapter of Alpha Psi Omega has also asked the Review to remind the various fraternities, that within a little more than a month after the beginning of the second term the inter-fraternity play contest will be held. It therefore behooves the various fraternities to choose their plays as soon as possible, so that they may be approved, and the casts may begin work preparing for them.

Another form of interfraternity rivalry has developed this year in the form of water polo games. On Tuesday night the pledges of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and those of the Sigma Nu fraternity waged a water polo game as a preliminary to the swimming meet with the University of Virginia. The former were victorious. It has been suggested that an inter-fraternity league be organized with water polo as the sport. It has also been suggested that not only Freshmen take part in the games, but that every member of the respective chapters be permitted to take part. This sport has already taken a hold on popular fancy at Delaware, and such a league would do much to keep interest in it alive.

DELAWARE MAN WINS PROMOTION

E. W. Loomis, class of 1914, played football, wrestled, was commissary of the Commons, ran the battalion, and did electrical engineering at the University of Delaware.

Those were the college activities of Mr. Loomis as his class mates well remember. Nor did he stop with graduation to rest on his laurels. He enrolled in the Graduate Student Course of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and then after completing the course, went to New York as a "cub" salesman. In three years he was head of a section of the Industrial Sales Department, and in 1922 he was appointed manager of the Industrial Division of the New York Office. On April 1, 1928, he was promoted to northeastern industrial manager. In this position he has charge of the sale of Westinghouse apparatus to all industrial customers in New York State, in the northern half of New Jersey, and all New England States.

Members of the Agricultural Club of the University will have luncheon on Monday of next week at the Blue Hen Tea Room.

STUDENTS VOTE TO PAY DEBTS OF BLUE HEN

Meeting of Student Body Also Discusses Dining Hall Situation

Since there was not any College Hour scheduled for this week, Allen S. Barton, president of the Student Council, took advantage of the hour to bring two matters of considerable importance before the students. The first was in reference to future means of obtaining meals at the University. The second had to do with outstanding debts of last year's Blue Hen staff.

Along with President Barton, Mr. A. G. Wilkinson, Business Administrator, spoke of the meal situation. He explained the case as it now stands and stated exactly how he feels toward the matter, saying that he was simply doing those things that he considered best for the students and that whatever the student body decided would be perfectly satisfactory to him, but that he must have their support.

The second matter which represents a much more deplorable and disgraceful situation was in the form of a report of the outstanding debts incurred by the managing staff of the school's biannual publication, the Blue Hen. Just why the affairs of any organization handling as much money as this one, should be allowed to drift into such straits is a question deserving some consideration. Nevertheless—

DELAWARE ALUMNI APPROVES ZEIGLER FOR ANOTHER YEAR

At the meeting of the Athletic Council of the University of Delaware Monday night a letter was received from the athletic committee of Delaware College Alumni Association recommending the reappointment of "Gus" Zeigler as football coach for 1931, the alumni to procure the money for his salary by private subscriptions. It was learned that under the present rules of the Council that body has nothing to do with the appointment of coaches and consequently no action was taken but the letter will probably be referred to the Athletic Board of Control of the university.

The Council spent practically all the evening considering new rules and regulation to govern the Council and various sports. One important proposed change would be that under these rules captains of various teams would not be elected until the season after the letters are awarded. In most instances now captains are elected immediately after the season closes. There are numerous other proposed changes in the rules but no definite action was taken. Even after approved by the Council they would still have to be approved by the Athletic Board of Control before they became effective.

On the recommendation of Physical Director Rothrock, Warren Riggan, a senior was awarded his "D" for football. Riggan had worked faithfully on the scrubs for four seasons and has never been awarded a letter before.

NEW BUILDINGS MAKE PROGRESS

Auditorium and Engineering Building Advance Rapidly

Great progress has been made on the new buildings now being erected on the campus of the university, within the past few weeks. With the coming of the more inclement weather which began early in the month, much of the outside work ceased, but the buildings had advanced sufficiently so that indoor work could go on unhampered.

Perhaps greatest progress has been made in Evans Hall, the new engineering building, the two top floors of which are now being built. On the second floor the plastering is practically completed, and in several of the rooms the permanent floor has been laid and some of the rooms are ready to receive the trim work and electric fixtures. On the third floor the partitions have all been erected and much of the plastering is finished. The work on carving the marble decorations on the front of the building has gone on unhampered by the cold weather and is practically complete.

With the advanced stage which the work has reached, it is possible to see that the building will be one of great beauty inside as well as out. The rooms will be finished in the same simple dignified style that marks those on the first floor. The walls will be finished in a medium brown sand finish, and the trim will be similar to that used in the first floor.

The auditorium seems from the outside to have come to a standstill, and only a trip inside can reveal how rapidly the work is being done. All around the balcony the metal lath for the plaster has been attached, and much of it is now in place on the dome. In the small rooms, the plastering is practically complete, and work on the plastering for the main room should start within a few days. The screens which will hide the organ pipes have been erected, and as soon as the recess is prepared the pipes may be installed. Although seemingly a gigantic task, the completion of the building may be effected by the latter part of April.

CAGE TEAM LOSES GAME

Hopkins Defeats Delaware 34 to 24

Johns Hopkins was too good for Delaware in their basketball game at Carlin's Park, Saturday afternoon, the Blue Jays winning by the score of 34 to 24.

With Gene Debuskey, star center, back in the line-up and in old-time form, the Jays repeatedly worked the ball under the basket. Had Debuskey and Stude been accurate as they usually are in their marksmanship Hopkins' score would have been considerably higher.

Both coaches made frequent changes in their line-ups, the visitors' substitutions being made with the purpose of bettering the team. George Darley, on the other hand, sent several men into the game with the idea of seeing how they would look under fire.

Delaware's only threat came late in the contest at a time when three substitutes were in the Hopkins line-up. The visitors managed to pull up to within five points of the locals with five minutes to play. At that stage, however, Darley sent Fritz Stude and Bernie White back into the game and Delaware's hopes crashed.

Stude immediately made a basket and several other Hopkins tallies followed.

The outstanding player on the floor was Hopkins' veteran center, Debuskey. Debuskey not only outjumped both tip-off men sent against him, but made himself the cornerstone of his team's attack and defense. He made seven field goals and two fouls, for a total of 16 points, to lead both teams in scoring.

During the first five minutes of play Debuskey got four shots under the basket and missed all of them. His maneuvering was as clever as ever, but his aim wasn't. However, the practice seemed to help, for he got the range shortly afterward and never lost it.

Stude Aids Cause

Stude also missed numerous shots at close quarters in the first part of the game. He, too, got going later on. Stude had four field goals and a foul for a total of nine points, the second highest number. Towards the middle of the second half the little blonde forward hurt his knee. His coach took

BARTON TELLS COUNCIL OF TRIP

President Makes Report of Visit to N. S. F. A.

At the regular meeting of the Student Council, held in the Council rooms on Monday evening, Allen S. Barton, president of the Council, made a report on his trip to Santa Barbara, California, where he attended the meeting of the National Student Federation of America, held there during the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Barton reported that the meetings had been very helpful to him in many ways. The chief benefit he derived, he said, was the knowledge that compared with other colleges and universities of the country, the progress of the University of Delaware in student government and its associated problems has been very good. Our honor system, about which much has been said within recent years, seems to be much more successful here than in many other institutions. Large institutions, he said, have conceded the system to be a failure, and many smaller ones are coming to the same opinion. In the southern states and in scattered locations throughout the country, the system is working well. Of course there has been no case cited in which there was perfect obedience, but most colleges accept the obedience of the pledges by the greatest percentage of the students as a sign of success.

The matter of enforcement of Freshman rules, said Barton, is troubling other colleges as well as Delaware, and few colleges have been as fortunate as have we in the treatment of this problem. The general workings of the Student Council seem to be conducted as well here as at other universities, and in general our condition is quite satisfactory.

Barton said that he had attended several meetings for the discussion of problems of fraternities, and that he had obtained several ideas which he would pass along to the inter-fraternity council at its next meeting.

At the same meeting of the Council routine business was carried on, and plans for the work of the spring were made.

DINING HALLS MAY BE CLOSED

Lack of Support of Commons and Cafeteria May Cause End of Both

With only 45 students of Delaware College regularly eating in the Commons, the possibility looms that all facilities for furnishing meals on this end of the campus will be abandoned next semester.

What results this action, if taken, will have can hardly be determined at this time. It is pointed out, however, that numbers of students are financing their college education by working in the Commons and Cafeteria. Discontinuance of either the Commons or Cafeteria may mean that some of these students will be obliged to leave college, while others will encounter serious difficulties in meeting the problem of their expenses here.

When the number of students regularly taking their meals in the Commons was decreased following the Christmas vacation from a total of 135 to 45, it was found necessary to dismiss eight of the students working there. Only eight were retained. Only a minimum number of students were discharged, administrative authorities declare.

In addition to this, discontinuance of both Commons and Cafeteria will throw out of work all of the employees now engaged in conducting that branch of the college. If at any time in the future it is found advisable to re-open either or both, difficulties may be encountered in obtaining an adequate personnel of the standard demanded.

It is believed that closing of the Commons will considerably inconvenience organizations such as fraternities affiliated with the University in their various social activities. Many dances, banquets and other affairs have customarily been held in the large Commons room in Old College, but this would not be possible if the room were closed. In the uncertainty which prevails at the present time, pressure from this side of the question is already being felt by several organizations which had planned to hold affairs in the Commons hall following the mid-year examinations.

The possibility that both the Commons and the Cafeteria may be discontinued arose following a preliminary vote taken to ascertain the sentiment of the student body. It was found that there were a total of 84

OUR WALKS

A few weeks ago, a letter appeared in our mail, calling our attention to the unpleasant state in which our walks seem to perpetually exist. With the coming of the recent snow, the remarks of our correspondent are only too clearly substantiated. The condition of the walks leading from one part of the campus to another seems to be getting rapidly worse, and it is time that some change was made.

Due to the munificence of the Legislature and several private citizens the University has acquired, or is acquiring at the present time, a number of fine buildings. So far as plan goes and beauty of structures, the University of Delaware has no need to apologize to any school of its size or to many schools with much heavier endowment, and much greater funds. It is a strange anomaly, therefore, that the paths leading from one of these handsome edifices to another should be permitted to exist in such a condition that it is necessary for all of the students to wade through mud varying in depth from one to three inches every time they wish to go below Wolf Hall.

Concrete, we are told, would not harmonize with the buildings which are being erected, but no one has suggested that either brick or flagstone would be inappropriate in the plan which the University is following. We realize that any undertaking to build walks of any kind the length of the University campus is bound to be expensive, and brick and flagstone are especially so. Nevertheless we feel that the next time money is asked for a specific purpose having to do with the campus and its beautification, that it should be asked for the purpose of laying good substantial walks through the campus, that the students may not be obliged to take a dose of pneumonia serum after each trip between classes.

INTERESTS

For some time now we have been wondering just what the interests of the students of the University of Delaware were. We have searched for them and have made a rather exhaustive study, and we have come to the conclusion that the average student has little interest in anything at all except the immediate present: today's lesson, and tonight's good time.

Surely intellectual pursuits do not seem to be the desire of many students. The dirth of readers at our library is mute testimony to that fact. As soon as the required lessons (or enough of them to get passed with) are studied, books seem to be a bore to most of the students, and few of them feel anything but shame when found in the library reading anything that does not pertain directly to some course. We admit several exceptions, but they are noticeable by the thinness of their ranks.

Athletics are notably not of great interest to the students. For several years the student body has manifested a growing lack of interest in the various teams which represent it, and a decreasing desire to attend the games. No one seems to be ashamed to admit that almost anything else would be more interesting to him than to watch Delaware participate in any sport, even swimming, where we are conceded good chances of winning. Here, too, there are exceptions, but it is our belief that general interest in athletics is lagging and that it will not revive for several years.

The lack of interest in the organizations on the campus has been evident for the past few years. The campus publications struggle along under the management of about three or four members of their respective staffs. The Footlights Club receives so little support of the Student Body in general that for some years it has worried whether it could continue to exist without subsidization.

Certainly the students are not particularly interested in their future, in so far as their relations with the college are concerned. A few weeks ago The Review held a vote to determine whether the students favored the present system of vacations or would prefer to go back to the system that was in force up to this year. There was so little interest in this matter that only six ballots were received, three favoring the old system, and three the new.

We do not deplore the loss in interest in any one of these subjects, but we do deplore this lack of interest in everything. If we have one serious engrossing interest, well and good. But if we have no more interests than the next milkshake at Rhodes' or the next library date, we are getting into a deplorable state.

GETTYSBURG USES POINT SYSTEM

The faculty of Gettysburg College has adopted a new system of scholastic rating known as the quality point system. This system of granting points according to grades for semester hours is now being used by many colleges in the East and has very decided advantages.

In the old system the student was required to make a grade of "C" or better in at least seventy semester hours of work. That meant that a grade of "C" counted as much toward graduation as a grade of "A." This has been changed, and the student is now required to have as many points as he has credit hours.

The students who have a good athletic record will therefore have more points than they will need for graduation while the minimum for a student will be an average of "C."

Thus a premium is put on a high quality of work because of the intrinsic value of the grade in quality points. High marks will be in turn balance any low grades that may have been incurred.

The quality rating system is more exact than the one formerly in use, and since the student must meet a fixed requirement each year, it leaves no doubt in his mind about graduation. In this way the embarrassment sometimes experienced by seniors who find that they can not meet requirements will be eliminated.

Let It Stand

Alvin Richardson was an amateur poet and writer. He had never sold any of his products, but he continued writing for his own satisfaction. One day he had a great idea. He talked it over with a friend who was employed by a publishing house, and the two of them decided to give it a try.

About a month after that momentous decision Richardson handed his friend the manuscript of a book which he had just written entitled, "The Life and Letters of Alvin Richardson." A fictitious name was given for the author. The friend had the book published, and both sat back and smilingly awaited results.

A week passed, and then the storm broke. On Monday morning Richardson was asked to address the Century Club of a neighboring town the next day. He accepted. Not to be outdone by their sisters, the local club engaged him for Thursday. He was a great success. The next week he addressed a poetry club, a current events class, and a Rotary Club meeting in Philadelphia. For weeks he was kept busy giving addresses in towns both large and small in all sections of the Middle Atlantic States. Then there was a popular demand for volumes of his poems, essays, and stories. The demand was promptly supplied. Not content with reading his works, the public demanded readings and recitations by him in person. He acquiesced. Three months after the publication of his life he was famous—acclaimed on all sides as the find of the year, and a great figure in contemporary literature. At this time he wisely made himself less easily procurable, and published a short volume in which he disparaged the attempts of the Bohemian intellectuals to read hidden meanings and influences into his works. This seemed to make him more popular and more sought after than before, and as the demand for his services increased he withdrew farther and farther from the public's physical eye, appearing only in the most exclusive gatherings. At the same time he wrote more poems and stories, publishing them only when the demand was greatest. Less than a year after the birth of his great idea, he had been acclaimed in London and Paris.

On the first anniversary of the publication of his "Life and Letters," Richardson was presented with a copy of a book just published by a famous author and critic. Its title was "The Prominent Place of Alvin Richardson in English Letters."

Richardson threw back his head and laughed loud and long at the expense of the great English speaking litterati.

"SPRUNG" QUIZZES O. K.

Boston University, Jan. 7.—Unannounced quizzes, which at present hold sway at C. B. A., are unpopular among a great many students.

Educators in institutions of higher learning are continually inveighing against the evils of cramming. Cramming is and inevitably must be a product of the policy of announcing tests. Students who know that their tests are coming at such and such a time will almost invariably wait until the proverbial eleventh hour before they engage in any preparation for them. Result: the filling of the memories of members of the class or section with a mass of information, already imparted to them in the course, necessary to passage of the quiz, but to be quickly forgotten after the ordeal is over.

And the practice benefits not only the student, but the professor or instructor as well. For what teacher is there who, under the old policy, could tell how much his class knew? Oh, yes he could tell what the relative scholastic rankings were, as revealed by the marks which he gave his students—but what did that mean when he knew perfectly well that probably about 80 or 90 per cent of the group had used the time previous to the quiz in gaining eleventh-hour data which would be quickly thrown off again? When a teacher "springs" his tests, he is enabled to discover what his charges know about the course offhand—which is the really great desideratum.

The new system may not be altogether popular at present, true. But it surely has some notable merits, and it should be given trial for some time longer before fair judgment is passed on its advantages or shortcomings.

HAVERFORD FRESHMEN SCORE HIGH IN TEST

Haverford College's freshman class again distinguished itself when its members made an average score of 217 points out of a possible 370 in the psychological examination of the American Council of Education, Washington, D. C.

The highest score in the class was 297 and the other high scores ranged down to 267. The average for the class of 217 is 154 per cent. of the average made by 7640 freshmen in 38 other colleges and universities this year. The general average was 141 points.

The class of 32 at Haverford holds the highest average in these tests. Last year they scored an average of 223 points out of 370 while the general average for 30,653 freshmen in 112 colleges, was 138 points, 62 per cent of the Haverford average.

It was probably a laundryman who established the law of diminishing returns.

Dear Sir:

Several weeks ago a letter by Mr. Finck stated that since the officers of the Military department are changed every three years and since "Biff" Jones is to be transferred from West Point, it would be advisable to "pull some strings" and try to acquire Jones as a P. M. S. and T. at the University of Delaware and at the same time use him as head football coach. Disregarding the fact that such string pulling is practically impossible, it might be well to inform Mr. Finck that very recently the P. M. S. and T. here at Delaware, who was an All-American end on the Army team, offered his services as an assistant coach and was refused.

students who would agree to support the Commons and 61 the cafeteria. This is deemed entirely unsatisfactory.

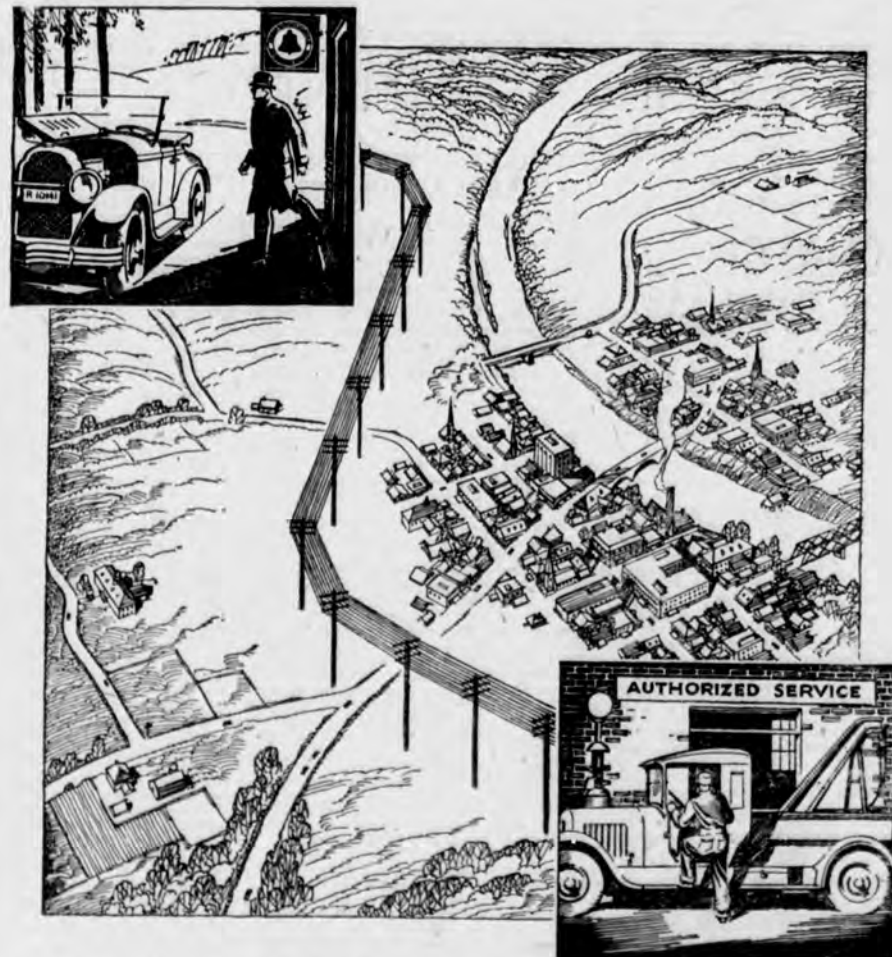

It was stated in the office of the dietician yesterday that a total of 125 students supporting the Commons is necessary to place it on a paying basis. At the opening of the past semester there were 135, more than enough, but this number decreased to 45 following the Christmas recess.

It is thought at this time that, if both the Commons and the cafeteria were discontinued, it would force the students to a comparison of the facilities offered in the college with those to be found elsewhere in the town. It is stated that no complaints as to the service or the quality of food served have been received.

Before any action is taken it will be necessary to communicate with the Trustees of the college, through H. Rodney Sharp, who is now in Florida. Steps in this direction have been taken by Mr. Wilkinson.

SAM JONES MARRIED IN CHESTERTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon A. Dutcher, of Wilmington, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Samuel Penrose Jones, a Junior at the University and a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. The ceremony took place on Saturday at Chestertown, Maryland. The Rev. J. Harry Wright performed the ceremony.

...and a Telephone man brought them together

In the Bell System research and development are not confined to engineering laboratory. These methods are applied also to the commercial side of the business, to make telephone service more and more useful.

An example is the classified telephone directory, with its convenient listings by trade and profession, for quick and easy reference.

Or take this other use of the classified directory. Telephone men analyzed advertising and merchandising. They saw that prospective purchasers of advertised products often did not know where to buy them. They developed a plan for listing these dealers under their brand name in local "Where to Buy It" directories—a genuine service to buyer and seller alike.

HOME TALENT SHOW WAS A HUGE SUCCESS

Large Audiences Witnessed Both Performances of The Legion Revue

The American Legion Folies, a home talent revue, which was presented in the State Theatre on Monday and Tuesday evenings, under the auspices of J. Allison O'Daniel Post of the American Legion, was very successful, according to the report of the committee in charge of the project.

Crowded houses greeted the local players each evening and many favorable comments were heard from those who witnessed the performances. The show was staged under the direction of the Parlett Production Company, of Baltimore.

The revue was far above the average production of this kind. It was a clean show from the beginning to the end and the participants did their work in a creditable manner. There was nothing draggy about the show and each number was presented with a touch of professionalism.

The program opened with a study in black and white, a minstrel setting of white costumes trimmed with black which blended into the scenery and set off to advantage the fifty men and women who made up the ensemble. Robert G. Parrot, the director of the show, served as interlocutor and was ably assisted by Guy Hancock, Griff Moore, Ray Buckingham, Wayne Brewer, John Fader and Eddie Partlett.

The pleasing manner in which Mrs. P. K. Musselman presented a beautiful ballad entitled "Don't You Remember Sally" has been the cause of much favorable comment. Wesley Dempsey presented several selections that were well received.

The minstrel portion of the program closed with a burlesque wedding. Ray Buckingham acted the part of the bride and John Fader was the groom, while Eddie Partlett served as the minister.

The revue section of the program presented many scenes with attractive costumes. It opened with a number entitled "On the Deck," featuring twenty children dressed in sailor costumes. Bill Coverdale played some tunes on a saw in a novel manner.

The old fashioned minuet dance proved to be one of the most pleasing features of the show. Elizabeth Worrell danced the part of the belle, with Philip M. Myers as her partner. They were supported by a group of girls in colonial costumes. Special lighting effects were used in this feature and they aided in making it attractive.

Harold Sheaffer and Betty Heiser presented a "Tintype Dance" that won much applause. Eddie Shakespeare played some snappy songs on his ukelele. The comedy scenes in the grave yard act caused a great amount of laughter. Harry Williamson and Bee Smith presented a song and dance number which was followed by Bob Strahorn and a group of high school girls in a very pleasing dance number.

Ether Hauber presented a pretty and graceful toe dance and was followed by a burlesque on toe dancing furnished by Wayne Brewer, Frank Balling, Con Lewis and Lewis Fell. Eddie Partlett followed with a monologue.

The program concluded with a dance sketch entitled "Military Maidens" and these girls deserve a large amount of credit for the excellent manner in which they danced to military tunes.

The music for the show was furnished by a local orchestra under the direction of Prof. Ira S. Brinser.

FRATERNITY SUES THE GOVERNMENT FOR RAID

After the recent prohibition drive in the University of Illinois, when a large majority of the members of fraternities on the campus were arrested for violation of the 18th amendment, we are not surprised to hear of the activities of government officials on the Dartmouth campus. According to reports from the Hanover school, fifty prohibition officials descended on the campus during the week-end of the Cornell-Dartmouth game. At this time nearly 20 house parties were being held. It seems that upon investigating conditions in one fraternity house, an official asked a member for a bottle of what they called "tea." With promptness a bottle of dark looking liquid was brought forward. Fortified with the evidence of the bottle of "tea," he brought several of the members of the fraternity to the local police station. However, upon tasting or smelling of the supposed intoxicant, it was found to be really tea. Now the fraternity is bringing suit against the government for false arrest without evidence and for damage done to the house by the strenuous search.—Cornell Daily Sun.

PENN STATE STUDENTS STUDY

"Of the ninety colleges I have visited, I find Penn State students do more actual studying than the students of any other of these student groups," declared Harry W. Seamans, Y. M. C. A. secretary, during an interview recently.

The best evidence of this fact is the absence of loitering students on the streets and student roughneck parties, Mr. Seamans states.

less, as was pointed out, the debts are an obligation which reverts back finally, though rather distantly, to the student body, or rather more strongly against the good name of Delaware organization.

That these two matters might be settled, ballots were passed out enabling students to vote in favor of commons, the cafeteria, or opposed to both, and on the same ballot to vote for or against paying the debt, the money to be taken by proportion from their individual contingency fees.

Just what will be done about the meal situation cannot be settled definitely until the matter has been referred to the Board of Trustees. The vote, however, showed a slight majority in favor of commons, and a large majority in favor of paying the debts.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN ENTERTAINED HERE

Nearly one hundred members of the Delaware Branch of the American Association of University Women, many accompanied by their husbands, motored to the Women's College, University of Delaware, last Friday evening, where the January meeting was held. There was no business meeting, the meeting being entirely social.

Two one-act plays were given by members of the puppets, the dramatic society of the college, in the hiliarium. The plays were chosen from those given this last semester under the auspices of the Dramatic Club. "Where But in America," by Oscar Wolfe, was given first. The scene was laid in the dining room of a young married couple just at dinner time. Margaret Townsend played the aggrieved husband, Edith Kimes the beautiful young wife, and Dorothy Reiser the Swedish maid. The play was coached by Adeline Downs, and Marian Hayman was manager of the lights and properties.

Eleanor Edge played several piano numbers before the second play, "The Followers," was staged. The scene in this case was the living room of an old maid's house in the summer of 1859.

The part of the old maid, Lucinda, was played by Betty Martin, that of the maid, Susan, by Kathryn Kesselring, Dorothy Calloway was cast as Lucinda's god-daughter, Helen Masters, and Ethel Reeves as Lucinda's sweetheart, Colonel Redfern. Costumes and properties for the play were done by Ann Nutter. Marian Hayman had charge of the lights, and Adeline Downs the make-up.

Refreshments were served in the faculty clubroom at the college following the plays by members of the sophomore class in home economics.

Among the guests were Dr. Walter Hullahen, president of the University, and Dr. W. O. Sypherd, head of the English department.

Have you heard of the old maid who locked herself in a room and played strip solitaire?

Little Stewart Sherer was running around the house with the cat in his arms, looking for his mother. "Mama," he shouted, "the kitty is hungry; where do you keep the mice?"

THE HONOR SYSTEM

This article on the Honor System is being printed simultaneously in all college newspapers in the United States.

This release is being made by the Committee on the Honor System for the National Student Federation of the United States of America, with a hope that the students of this country will give serious thought to the problem of student honesty in our colleges, and that they will send to the Fifth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation representatives who have well-thought-out ideas concerning this matter. The Fifth Congress will meet at Stanford University on the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th of January, 1930.

These articles were prepared by the chairman of the committee on the Honor System. The writer would be glad to hear from students concerning this problem. Please address him at P. O. Box 958, University, Alabama.

By James T. Jackson

Of all the problems that confront student leaders and college administrators, that of student honesty in classroom work and campus relations is probably the one that is first in importance and interest today.

When students meet, this problem consumes a large part of the time given for discussion of student problems, when college administrators meet, this problem is widely discussed. It is a perplexing problem; it is an important one.

Some colleges and universities attempt to solve this problem of student honesty by means of the Honor System. Under the Honor System, broadly speaking, the students are given absolute freedom from surveillance by faculty members or proctors. It is assumed that the students are honest, and they are dealt with on that basis. Their signature to papers, or in some instances to a special pledge, vouches for the fact that the work represented to be his own was done by the student himself, and by him alone. His word is his bond.

Many Oppose Honor System

Those colleges which use the Honor System, as a rule, believe that it is efficacious in instilling into students a love and respect for honest dealings; that it is a vital force in the building of character; and that it inculcates into the college youth strong and lasting principles of good citizenship.

A majority of the colleges of the United States do not favor the Honor System. They see no advantages to be derived from it; they consider such a system to be a license to the students to cheat. They think that its advantages are greatly outweighed by its disadvantages; they consider that such matters should be handled by paid faculty members rather than by students whose experience is comparatively limited and whose judgment is not fully developed.

A number of colleges are in the midst of a great upheaval on account of the problem of the Honor System. A few have abolished it within the last few years. A few others have installed it. Others are seeking information concerning it in order that they may try it, in order that they may make improvements.

At the Fourth Congress of the National Student Federation the Honor System was one of the most important problems discussed. As a result of the discussion and recognizing the potential value in the Honor System as an educational institution, the N. S. F. A. decided to urge colleges and universities to fully acquaint themselves with the Honor System and to take steps toward introducing it; or if they already have it, to better it as much as possible.

RUTGERS OPPOSES OLD SYSTEM OF COACHING

A new system of coaching football, that of having an alumni coaching staff, is rapidly replacing the single coaching system. Two of the Middle Three, Lehigh and Rutgers, are undergoing such changes.

Lehigh was the first one to actually employ an alumni coaching staff, which has proved very successful in their case. Now the student body of Rutgers is clamoring for the blood of their coach and his assistants. Their university newspaper, the Targum, is also vigorously opposing the coach. At a recent pep meeting the students proved the coach to be very unpopular.

CONVERSATION versus PROCRASTINATION

WE ONCE KNEW a College Man who took three weeks to write a two-page letter!

Not that he was cursed with inflammatory rheumatism or anything like that, no sir. He could do the hundred in very nearly ten flat; and play as neat a game at shortstop as you'd want to see.

But when it came to answering letters from home, it took him a long time to make up his mind and a longer time to get the words on paper.

Gentlemen, we are agin this College Man's habit of stalling on the folks at home. They deserve more consideration. Don't say to yourself that you haven't the time. It only takes a minute to get to the nearest telephone!

TALK, don't balk. A pleasant chat with the home folks takes a lot less time than a letter.

Just for fun . . . telephone Home tonight.

THE TRAVELER

The trees grow drowsy with the heat,
And dream unconscious of the feet
That beat
Upon a dusty road.

I go to seek my fortune,
And upon this same road,
Men, uniting skill and fame,
Seek their fortune also.
Then, too, they have their
Prickly elbows to push aside
The weaker travelers.
They have their hate to use,
Their disregard for other souls.
Their greed,
Their speed,
To help them gain their goals.

I have none of these.
For in the pack
Upon my back
I tied but up
My faith and hopes.

And thus I travel!
And though the trees grow drowsy
with the heat
I dream, unconscious of the feet
That beat
Upon the lustrous road.

GRANGERS PLAN FOR CONFERENCE

Will Be Held In August At
The University Of Delaware

Six hundred or more delegates from at least seven States will attend a four-day State Lecturers' Conference to be held by the Delaware State Grange, beginning August 11, in Wolf
Hall at the University of Delaware, Newark.

Plans for the convention made at a meeting of the executive committee of the State Grange in Dover on Thursday, were announced by former Governor Robert P. Robinson, Master of the State Grange.

The delegates will live in the University dormitory during the conference.

Arrangements for the conference will be in charge of the executive committee and State Grange Lecturer
A. B. Thomas.

The executive committee at its meeting decided to hold a two-day State convention next December instead of the usual three-day convention.

The convention will be held in Felton. The Sixth Degree will be given in Dover during October.
