TOWN COUNCIL HAS CHIEF KEELEY ON CARPET FOR BEING ABSENT WITHOUT LEAVE

Giving Hearing Last Night at a Special Meeting

On top of rumors flying thick and fast last week to the effect that Chief of Police J. S. Keeley had borrowed Harry (Polly) Malin's car and wrecked same near New London while he was supposed to be on duty, was brought before Council at a special meeting held last night, with all members present. He denied that he was absent from duty on Monday night, but it is understood on very good authority that there will be another special meeting of Council to consider this case, when new evidence will be furnished to repudiate his testimony of last evening.

TOWN COUNCIL ORDERS NEW PUMP FOR WELL

Artesian Well Company Sinks 16-inch Casing to Handle Water Supply

At the regular monthly meeting of the Newark Town Council, held Monday night, a contract was awarded for a pump to be placed in the recently dug well on the town property of the present disposal plant. It was necessary to sink a 16-inch casing to take care of this type of pump, which will be 30 or 40 feet under ground, driven by a 30 or 40 horse power vertical motor which will be housed in a suitable building. This is the third well that has been sunk recently to augment the water supply, the other two not being sufficient flow, and it is felt by the Council that this will furnish sufficient water to keep the supply up to normal.

R. C. Beckett, State Sanitary Engineer, talked before Council regarding the milk situation, and brought out the fact that several milk dealers furnishing milk in Newark did not have the proper sterilizing units. According to tests made by the town chemists and also by state chemists all milk served in Newark tests satisfactorily, but Mr. Beckett thought the

SAKERS PRAISED FOR FAITHFULNESS DURING WATER SHORTAGE

A number of citizens in Newark appreciate how hard A. M. Sakers worked during the water shortage, during one whole week he worked practically twenty-four hours a day with very little sleep, and it is no exaggeration when we say that his perseverance won the battle against the shortage; and he certainly deserves to be commended on the spirit in which he cooperated.

dealers should be approached on the subject of proper equipment to forestall any epidemic which might result without same. There is no doubt but what the dealers involved will cooperate with both the town and state Board of Health.

SEN. TOWNSEND PRAISES HOOVER PLAN FOR BUSINESS UPTURN

Attends Parley and Says it is Most Significant Move Yet Made

President Hoover's non-political conference Tuesday night on means to promote recovery of business was described yesterday by Senator John G. Townsend, of Delaware, as the most significant move yet made in this country to overcome the depression. He was enthusiastic in superlative degree.

"It will mark the turning point in the situation into which the country was plunged in 1929," he declared with every evidence of conviction. He forecast the beginning of the long-awaited upswing in business.

Senator Townsend was one of nine Republican Senators among those present at the White House conference. He arrived at the executive office shortly before 9 o'clock and remained until adjournment of the historic meeting just before midnight. Yesterday morning, after an early visit to his office, he took the train for Wilmington.

"One of the things that impressed me," said Townsend yesterday, "was the reasonable spirit and attitude of the President. He gave every member of the conference who spoke the closest attention. Another thing that impressed me was the President's vast range of detailed information concerning the subjects discussed."

"GREAT GUNS" PROMISES MANY HITS WITH TWO BROADSIDES AND TWENTY-THREE SALVOS

Large Attendance at Tryouts

"Great Guns" the annual Legion Follies production promises to be bigger and better than ever. The musical revue developed and directed by the Mask and Wig coach is made up of two acts. The first act consists of an opening chorus with lively musical numbers which introduce the elements: harmony, beautiful girls, dress, men, comedy and music which make up the show.

The second act consists of specialties and sketches which are especially adapted to the talent.

A special act has been prepared for presentation by the Footlights Club.

More than eighty candidates were present at the tryouts Tuesday evening and Director Morgan was especially pleased with the enthusiasm and natural ability of those trying for parts. The lyrics, drills and sketches were gone over in order to present an idea of the nature of the production and allow Mr. Morgan to form a skeleton for the different elements.

No definite assignments of roles were made in view of the fact that more excellent talent, which is known to exist, will be urged to appear for the first regular rehearsal on Monday evening, October 12th.

This year it will not be necessary for the school children to be present in the evening as they will rehearse immediately after school. The older girls will drill at 7 p. m. and adults from 8 on. Rehearsals will be held Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

The production will be especially characterized by the unique costuming and scenery which promise to rival those of many Broadway productions.

DELAWARE PUTS UP 27 TO 0 SCORE OVER SUSQUEHANNA

St. Joseph's College to Play on Frazer Field this Saturday

University of Delaware football team started the season last Saturday on Frazer Field, Newark, with a 27 to 0 victory over Susquehanna. In scoring this victory the team demonstrated that it is the strongest offensive aggregation that has ever represented the Blue and Gold. Coach Rogers used three different teams against Susquehanna and all three combinations proved too strong for the visitors.

With the fine squad of reserves to draw from Delaware should have a wonderful season in football and the fact that the entire squad is made up largely of sophomores and freshmen assures a good team for at least the next two years.

On Saturday of this week St. Joseph's College of Philadelphia, will be Delaware's opponents on Frazer Field. Saturday of next week the team goes to Annapolis to play the Navy. A special train is being planned to take the Delaware followers to this game, leaving Newark about 11 o'clock. The game at Newark this Saturday starts at 2.15 o'clock.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17TH SET ASIDE AS DELAWARE DAY

Saturday, October 17, has been set aside at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., as "Delaware Day," featuring a football game between the Navy and the University of Delaware. A special train has been chartered from the Pennsylvania Railroad to take a group of several hundred Delawareans from Wilmington to Annapolis for the day. In order to make it possible for the University to be well represented at the Academy and at the football game, the Athletic Council contemplates chartering another Pennsy train to take the student body, faculty, and friends of the University to Annapolis for the day and for the game. This train will be made up at Wilmington, leaving French Street Station at 10.40 a. m., and arriving at the Pennsylvania Station on South College avenue, Newark, at 11.00 a. m. The train will leave Newark at 11.05 and arrive at Annapolis at 1.00 p. m.

The game will not start until 2.30 p. m. This will give the visitors from Newark an hour and a half to visit around Annapolis and the Naval Academy before the start of the game. The special train will leave Annapolis one-half hour after the end of the game and arrive at Newark two hours later. Diners will be attached to the train and lunch may be had on the way down for sixty-five cents. On the way back dinner may be had for eighty-five cents.

The round trip fare including admission to the game will be $2.75. For children under twelve years one-half of the above named fare will be charged. For children under five there will be no cost.

The football game will be played, of course, rain or shine; hence there should be no hesitancy regarding probabilities of seeing the game. In order that the committee arranging for this trip shall know exactly how many expect to take the train to Annapolis, it is requested that all applications be mailed on or before Saturday, October 10th. Checks should accompany the request. Tickets may be obtained at the Business Office, University of Delaware.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NEWS

"What is Expected of Us as Good Citizens" is the topic to be discussed at the Christian Endeavor meeting held at 6:45 p. m., Sunday, in the Newark Presbyterian Church. At the present time when the government is attempting to relieve the depression and unemployment, it is interesting to turn to the problem of the duties of individuals as citizens. Miss Mae Malcom will take charge of the meeting.

"Living the Abundant Life" will be the theme of the Delaware State Christian Endeavor Convention to be held in Wilmington on October 22 to 25. This year, internationally, is the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of Christian Endeavor; locally, it is forty years since the time of the holding of the first Delaware State C. E. Union Convention. Newark last year won the registration contest, with the highest number of registrations of any society in the state. In spite of the worst financial conditions prevailing this year, it is hoped that the Newark booster will secure fifty registrations, giving him a jeweled C. E. pin, or if not that, that he will secure at least the twenty-five registrations necessary for a gold one. All those interested communicate with Kent Preston, Jr.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my father, James T. Reynolds, who died 14 years ago, October 6, 1917, in Aberdeen, Md.; my mother, Melinda E. Reynolds, (nee Drenner), who died 3 years ago, October 11, 1928, in Newark, Del.; and brother, Harry M. Reynolds, who died 4 years ago, May 10, 1927, in Pomona, California. Time speeds on, and years have passed.

Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within my home, where all seemed bright,
And took from me, the shining lights.

I miss those lights, and ever will,
Their vacant places there's none to fill.

Down here I mourn, but not in vain,
For up in Heaven, I will meet again.

What would I give their hands to clasp,
Their patient faces to see,
To hear their voices, to see their smiles.

As in the days that used to be,
But some sweet day, I'll meet again,
Beyond the toil and strife,

And clasp each other's hands once more.

In Heaven, that happy life,
—Their loving daughter and sister,
Eda.

CORN SILAGE PROFITABLE IN LAMB FEEDING

By Dr. John M. Evvard

Good corn silage is an excellent roughage for fattening lambs. When properly fed, a ton of silage has a value of at least 800 to 1000 pounds of legume hay. Experiments by Professor King and associates at the Indiana Station, and also others, show that a high yielding corn silage rich in corn grain is worth one-half as much per ton as high protein hay.

It is always wise and profitable in the feeding of silage and farm grains to lambs to give them alfalfa, clover, or soy bean hay once a day, allowing same in the bunks overnight.

A small allowance of supplement such as linseed oil meal, cottonseed meal, or an acceptable high-protein "superior variety" blend; about one-tenth pound per lamb daily of a supplement, running 30 per cent protein or better, is about right.

Bear in mind that coarsely ground corn and cob meal is a safer feed for full feeding with the ration outlined herein above than straight corn or wheat grain. The bulky cob meal prevents overeating, thus it reduces, greatly, the lamb losses; hence on Corn Belt farms corn and cob meal is a real asset in lamb fattening yards.

September Milk Production Record Held by Charles W. Shepherd

Twenty-one herds containing 515 cows, which produced 278,098 pounds of milk and 12,036 pounds of fat, were tested for milk and butterfat production during September by Charles W. Shepherd, Supervisor of the New Castle County Cow Testing Association.

To Robert Walker, of Hockessin, goes the distinction of having the highest producing herd; the cow producing the greatest amount of milk as well as the greatest number of pounds of butterfat during the 30 day testing period. Levis Phipps, of Centerville, had the highest herd average of 31.24 pounds of butterfat production per cow, followed closely by Mr. Walker with an average of 31.1 pounds.

During the month the ten highest herds in butterfat production were owned by the following members of the association: (1) Levis Phipps, Centerville, mixed herd, 31.24 pounds butterfat per cow; (2) Robert Walker, Hockessin, Holstein, 31.1; (3) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey, 29.3; (4) J. H. Mitchell and Sons, Hockessin, Jersey, 27.3; (5) Fred Martenis, Elkton, mixed herd, 26.9; (6) Wallace Cook, Newark, mixed, 26.54; (7) Frederick Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 25.85; (8) P. E. Middleton, Wilmington, mixed, 25.81; (9) Wilson Price, Bear, Jersey, 24.1; (10) John Mitchell, Hockessin, Holstein, 23.8 pounds.

In milk production for the month, the ten highest herds were: (1) Robert Walker, Hockessin, Holstein herd, 862.6 pounds average per cow; (2) Levis Phipps, Centerville, mixed herd, 792.1; (3) Fred B. Martenis, Elkton, mixed, 788.4; (4) Wallace Cook, Newark, mixed, 768.9; (5) Fred Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein herd, 720.0; (6) John Mitchell, Hockessin, Holstein herd, 691.3; (7) P. E. Middleton, Wilmington, mixed, 574.9; (8) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey herd, 573.8; (9) S. Logue, Wilmington, mixed herd, 572.5; and (10) T. H. Little, Newark, Holstein herd, 553.3 pounds.

Highest butterfat production by one cow goes to the following herd owners: (1) Robert Walker, Hockessin, Holstein, 62.7 pounds; (2) Wilson Price, Bear, Jersey, 59.0; (3) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey, 57.7; (4) John Mitchell, Hockessin, Holstein, 53.1; (5) Wallace Cook, Newark, Holstein, 52.9; (6) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey, 52.4; (7) J. H. Mitchell and Sons, Hockessin, Jersey, 52.1; (8) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey, 51.2; (9) T. Harold Little, Newark, Holstein, 50.8; and (10) Robert Walker, Hockessin, Holstein, 50.79 pounds.

In milk production the ten highest individual cows were all Holsteins in the herds of (1) Robert Walker, Hockessin, 1791 pounds of milk; (2) John Mitchell, Hockessin, 1614; (3) Fred Stafford, Montchanin, 1515; (4) John Mitchell, Hockessin, 1515; (5) Wallace Cook, Newark, 1512; (6) Robert Walker, Hockessin, 1494; (7) Wallace Cook, Newark, 1341; (8) Fred Martenis, Elkton, 1311; (9) John Mitchell, Hockessin, 1311; and (10) P. E. Middleton, Wilmington, 1278 pounds.

This impasse continued for more than four months. Soldiers dreaded the task of entering the desolate region. They were lost in the tortuous passages, shot at by unseen enemies, and could accomplish nothing. Finally, in April, it was decided to have a meeting between the Modoc leaders and a commission headed by Gen. E. R. S. Canby. It was agreed that neither side should bear arms, and peace was to be the subject of the parley.

But Kintpuash was not in a mood to discuss peace, that April day. It meant giving up all he had hoped to gain. He knew, too, that there would be punishment for the murdered settlers and the soldiers killed among the lava beds. He had heard talk before; he was tired of talk. As soon as the parley began, then, he pulled a revolver from his bosom and shot General Canby dead.

The Modoc, ready for this surprise attack, sprang forward at the shot. Another of the commissioners was killed, and the rest fled, hotly pursued, to where the troops waited. Winema, Modoc woman whose sympathy was with the whites, managed to get the Modoc to retreat by calling out that the soldiers were coming, and thus saved the lives of those in danger.

It was now decided to push matters to a conclusion, and a company of Indian scouts from northern Oregon was brought. These, backed by the howitzers, drove the Modoc from their stronghold in the lava beds. The rebellious Indians, moreover, were growing less in number, as many had been killed, and many more deserted. The troops kept up a grim pursuit of the Modoc band, which began to come over to the whites in numbers to give up their arms, and at last, on June 1, 1873, Kintpuash and the rest of his followers surrendered. Kintpuash and three of his leaders were hung, and the remainder of his band was not allowed to return to the Klamath reservation, but was sent to Oklahoma.

This was the end of the Modoc war, which Bancroft characterizes as "their brave and stubborn fight for their native land and liberty—a war in some respects the most remarkable that ever occurred in the history of aboriginal extermination."

TALES... of the TRIBES

By EDITHA L. WATSON

The Modoc

"Once upon a time," there were two tribes that lived in southwest Oregon, so closely related that they were like branches of one family—these were the Modoc and the Klamath. But just as branches of a family differ greatly in some ways, so the Klamath were at peace with the whites, while the Modoc were often at war with them. As the whites used force to gain their ends, the Modoc followed suit, and exercised their ingenuity in the terrible accompaniments of warfare until their reputation became a decidedly bad one.

Modoc.

Every year, the two tribes conducted a raid across the California border against the Achomawi, and captured as many women and children as possible, whom they kept as slaves or sold to the Chinook, north of them. This was their principal warlike event.

In 1864, the tribes united in ceding their lands to the government, and settled on a reservation on upper Klamath lake. The hardy Klamath became used to reservation life, and began to assimilate members of other tribes and former slaves, which increased their population.

Nearly half of the Modoc, however, had not left the Lost River country, but wandered about getting into mischief and terrorizing the white settlers. They were led by a subchief named Kintpuash.

It was not until the spring of 1870 that Kintpuash and his followers were finally induced to join the other half of the tribe on the reservation.

They remained on the reservation only a short time. Kintpuash was too restless to settle down, or to let his followers do so. He decided to lead them back to Lost River. Here he demanded that a reservation be established, for the reason that it was not possible for the Modoc and the Klamath to live together in peace. He was arousing the Indians and inciting an outbreak, and to avert this if possible, it was decided to arrest him.

On November 29, 1872, Captain Jackson with 38 cavalrymen made the attempt to take the belligerent Indian leader into custody. The Modoc resisted, and as soon as possible fled with their leader to the lava beds on the shore of Lake Rhetz, just across the border in California, killing settlers whom they encountered on the way, and showing indubitable signs that they did not intend to surrender.

The lava beds were honey-combed with caves and passages, and formed a practically impenetrable stronghold for Kintpuash and his band. They could retreat to this position and be almost immune from danger. Thus secure, they attacked an ammunition train and caused some damage, and about a month later, had occasion to prove the strength of their position by defending it against 400 men and a howitzer battery, under Colonel Greer.

This impasse continued for more than four months. Soldiers dreaded the task of entering the desolate region. They were lost in the tortuous passages, shot at by unseen enemies, and could accomplish nothing. Finally, in April, it was decided to have a meeting between the Modoc leaders and a commission headed by Gen. E. R. S. Canby. These, backed by the howitzers, drove the Modoc from their stronghold in the lava beds. The rebellious Indians, moreover, were growing less in number, as many had been killed, and many more deserted. The troops kept up a grim pursuit of the Modoc band, which began to come over to the whites in numbers to give up their arms, and at last, on June 1, 1873, Kintpuash and the rest of his followers surrendered. Kintpuash and three of his leaders were hung, and the remainder of his band was not allowed to return to the Klamath reservation, but was sent to Oklahoma.

This was the end of the Modoc war, which Bancroft characterizes as "their brave and stubborn fight for their native land and liberty—a war in some respects the most remarkable that ever occurred in the history of aboriginal extermination."

JOHN PARKE CUSTIS

WASHINGTON made a trip down the Ohio River in 1770 to inspect the land. Near the junction of the Ohio and Kanawha Rivers, Washington was visited by Indians, the chief of whom had been in the Braddock tragedy. The chief predicted that Washington, being under the protection of an all-wise Providence, would some day become the founder of a mighty empire.

WASHINGTON had now begun putting his domestic affairs in order for the great duty soon to follow. In 1773, he journeyed to New York to put his stepson, John Parke Custis in Kings College, now Columbia University. The stepson taxed the patience of his step-father. He did not remain long in college, and shortly after returning to Mount Vernon, the youth married Eleanor Calvert in 1774, thus adding to Washington's domestic responsibilities.

Some Social Customs In Washington's Day

Many of the official social customs in vogue today had their beginning during the first days of Washington's administration, when it was found that, in spite of the earnest desire of the young republic to be as definitely removed as possible from the panoply of European court life, it was nevertheless necessary to decide upon some code which would be agreeable, and which at the same time would not take too much of the Chief Executive's time from the affairs of the nation.

Therefore, we are informed by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, by the time Mrs. Washington arrived on the scene, about a month after the inauguration, she found the executive mansion in running order. The famed tavernkeeper, Samuel Fraunces, had been installed as the chief steward, and the social program, at the suggestion of Alexander Hamilton, planned as follows: The President was to pay no visits. He was to receive on Tuesday afternoons of every other week. Foreign envoys and strangers, however, were to be received on other days, and the President was always to be accessible to persons who wished to see him on business. Thursdays he was to be host at dinner, the guest lists to be made up from official groups and strangers of distinction. Mrs. Washington was to receive at a brilliant levee every Friday evening from eight to ten.

It was a matter of much discussion as to how the President should be addressed. Some wanted to call him "Excellency," and Mrs. Washington "Lady," but this was thought to smack too much of royalty, so they decided upon the "President of the United States and Mrs. Washington," which still is in usage.

The Thursday dinners, at which Col. Humphreys, the President's aide, was master of ceremonies, were served at three in the afternoon, to from ten to twenty-two guests. At the central table, laid exquisitely in fine linen, was a long mirror, made in sections and framed in silver, on which stood mythological statues in china. The family plate, which, since coming to New York, had been melted down and reproduced in more elegant style, each piece displaying the arms of the Washington family, with a small bead edge around the rim, adorned the table.

Roast beef, veal, lamb, turkey and duck, and varieties of game, in which Manhattan Island abounded, with jelly, fruit, nuts and raisins, were on the table before the guests made their entrance. Mrs. Washington sat at one end of the table, and the President's secretary, Tobias Lear, at the other. In the center of one side, sat the President himself. After the meal the President would raise his wine glass. All would drink a toast, and the ladies would retire to the drawing-room, leaving the men to their after dinner indulgences. The Washingtons served good champagne, but ordinarily a silver mug of beer stood beside the President's plate, though not at state dinners. An invitation to dinner was not then as it is now, regarded as a command, and there were instances of regrets being sent for one reason or another.

Half a dozen or more servants were in attendance at these dinners, in the brilliant white, scarlet, and orange livery of the Washington household. History relates that both the President and Mrs. Washington had a keen sense of the dignity of the position which they filled.

At his own receptions the President wore full dress, his hair powdered and gathered in behind in a silk bag, coat and breeches of black velvet, white or pearl colored vest, yellow gloves, a cocked hat in his hand, silver knee and shoe buckles, and a long sword with a finely wrought and glittering steel hilt, with coat worn over it, and its scabbard of polished white leather. At receptions he never shook hands even with his most intimate friends. The name of every one was distinctly announced, and he rarely forgot that of a person who had been once introduced to him. The visitor was received with a dignified bow, and passed on to another part of the room. At a quarter past three the door was closed. The gentlemen present moved into a circle and he went around to speak to each one.

Mrs. Washington, like other women of fashion of her time, wore handsome ample-skirted gowns of rich stuffs with Italian gauze neckerchiefs and elaborate caps. Her favorite fashion in caps was a creation known as "the queen's night-cap," which added to her height.

Few jewels were worn in the United States, but in other respects costumes were rich and beautiful. One of Mrs. Washington's Friday evening levees presented a scene of unsurpassed brilliance. The President appeared in black velvet with diamond shoe buckles and lace stock and wristlets. When not in black he sometimes appeared in purple satin or drab broadcloth. Belles adorned themselves in silks and satins in celestial blue, yellow or scarlet, with pastel brocades and lustrous velvets in equal demand.

Plumes were most popular. At one of the levees a beauty of the times, a Miss Melver, was standing happily chatting in the center of the room under a chandelier, when the very tall plumes of her head-dress caught fire from the candles and were put out by the gallantry of Major Jackson. History does not record in what way he was rewarded for his heroism.

Mrs. Washington received her guests, the General, as she always called him, though present was not there officially. When each had approached and made a curtsy, and had joined a circle about the room, the President strolled about and chatted a little with each one.

John Adams appointed Marshall, with Charles Cotesworth Pinckney and Elbridge Gerry, on a special mission to France.

We were having difficulties with our former ally. The French Directory was undoubtedly corrupt at this time; indirect demands were made for a huge bribe from America, before negotiations would even be considered. Marshall and Pinckney refused to deal in this fashion and left France. The country supported this refusal and Marshall, upon his return, was everywhere hailed as a hero, a defender of America's honor.

We must skip over some of Marshall's achievements and come down to 1801, when he became Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. Before that time the Court was not held in high repute. It did not possess the dignity and power which it exercises today.

But after Marshall took the reins the situation changed. Because of his marvelous power of analysis and logic, John Marshall became a leader of the Supreme Court in spirit as well as in name.

No man did more to centralize the Government; no man did more to interpret the Constitution, and to establish the right of the judiciary to declare Federal and State acts unconstitutional. The forty-four decisions rendered by the Chief Justice are his living monument, still as potent today as when he delivered them.

During the first few years of office as Chief Justice, Marshall, with the assistance of Bushrod Washington, wrote the biography of his hero, George Washington. The work was completed, 1804-1807, in five volumes. While this biography has been superseded by more recent historical research, Marshall's recountal of George Washington's life and deeds is still of great interest to the layman.

On Christmas Day of 1831, his wife, the former Mary Willis Ambler, died, thus breaking a union that was noted for its felicity, and which had lasted for forty-eight years. Marshall never recovered from this loss.

In June of 1835, he went to Philadelphia for medical attention, and died there, on July 6. One of the finest, most versatile, and most influential Americans of our Nation's history passed from the stage of life. His body was removed to Richmond, where it still remains.

Making Jobs for 25,000 Men

"I never asked for charity in my life and I ain't askin' for it now—but oh, Mister, can't you get me a job?"

A grey-faced man leaned anxiously across the desk. But there were no jobs. For weeks, last winter, a constant procession of these troubled men had passed by William H. Mathews in the office of a New York City charitable organization. They were not unemployables, or chronic poor, but men who had always maintained themselves and their families. Now they were stranded and helpless.

"Work was their only hope," writes Gertrude Springer in the current "Rotarian" magazine. "Without it their self-respect would be shattered. With it, however humble or small, they would be tided over and saved from the stigma of public charity until industry could once again absorb them. So, Mr. Mathews set to work to make jobs where no jobs existed."

A city-wide campaign for funds brought in more than eight million dollars. With it Mr. Mathews made non-competitive employment for 25,000 men, thus saving at least that many families from destitution, despair, and the demoralizing result of recourse to public charity.

Most of the created jobs were in the parks and was rough work with the pick and shovel. But a genuine effort was made to place the skilled and enfeebled men in jobs fitted to their capacity. Several were absorbed by the relief organizations.

"I've always been a bookkeeper, but I had pneumonia and lost my job," said one applicant. He was at work within twenty minutes in the accounting department of Mr. Mathews' organization. Skies turned blue for a discouraged chauffeur when he was assigned to a car that carried a paymaster around to squads working the parks.

New York's success with "made work" last winter, as a temporary aid in coping with unemployment, has pointed the way for many cities. This winter, the plan will be invoked on even a larger scale in numerous communities where unemployment is acute.—The Rotarian Magazine.

When Justice Fails

The various Wickersham reports on the state of criminal justice in the United States must have startled many of our citizens.

Police brutality, political-criminal alliances, obsolete methods of handling criminals, corrupt lower courts—such elements as these stand in the way of fair application of justice. We have built up a gigantic legal machinery, based on thousands of laws and bound with red tape, and it has failed.

If we are to have respect for law, we must clean house. We must separate politics and crime. We must completely overhaul our law books, retaining fundamental laws, and throwing out the unenforceable and fanatical. We must go back to the old idea of law-making which protected both the rights of society and individual liberties.

We cannot make the nation law-abiding by passing more laws. We must give the crime problem the logical attention it deserves or surrender to the lawless element which thrives on liberty-restricting legislation.

Narrow Roads Dangerous

Communities should pay more attention to the width of their new roads.

It is generally conceded that building one-lane highways menaces the safety of those who travel and constitutes economic waste. Two "half highways" built at different times cost a good deal more than a "whole highway" built at one time.

Nowadays modern low-cost, waterproof, bituminous surfaces, laid over local materials, can be secured for a nominal figure to serve rural districts with year-round secondary roads. Such roads pay for themselves again and again in a multitude of ways—in allowing farmers to go to market at favorable times, in giving farm children better opportunities to attend district schools, in limiting the hazard of fire in isolated homes. And while we are building them, we should build for the traffic of the future that will demand twenty-foot surfaces if the maximum of efficiency and safety is to be achieved.

One of the Cheapest and Best Foods

Campaigns to encourage the consumption of milk will, of course, benefit the dairy farmers of the nation—but a far greater benefit will come to the public as a whole, and particularly to growing children.

The value of milk as food can hardly be over-estimated. It has no effective substitute. It contains elements vital to sustain and nourish the system and provides them in easily assimilated form. Dr. Percy Howe, lecturer of Harvard Medical and Dental School, says a quart of milk a day will help prevent decay of teeth by furnishing necessary lime.

It may be said that the nation has never had a better or safer milk supply than at present. In most states rigid codes of standards are in force, and organizations among dairymen themselves are working in the interests of safe and wholesome milk. It is one of the cheapest foods—and likewise one of the most necessary.

Memorial Trees

The Washington bicentennial in 1932 is to have a living memorial. Under the auspices of the American Tree Association a drive has been undertaken to dedicate 10,000,000 trees next year to the founder of the Nation. Individuals, schools, clubs and organizations of all kinds are cooperating in this work. At the top of the honor roll is President Hoover, who planted a bicentennial tree for the association in the White House grounds.

A more beautiful memorial could not be devised for the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth. Most memorials require care to keep them from becoming tarnished or worn by age, but the bicentennial trees will grow more beautiful and appropriate as the years pass.

America's Greatest Jurist

John Marshall's name must be linked with that of George Washington, even though the great jurist's most important services to his country were contributed after the death of the First President. This is the opinion of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission which recognizes the achievements of John Marshall, America's foremost jurist and one of the leading jurists the world has ever produced, on the one hundred and seventy-sixth anniversary of his birth.

John Marshall was a follower of General Washington in the Revolutionary War; John Marshall was Washington's most famous disciple in the theory that a nation which is to exist must be strongly centralized and law-abiding; John Marshall wrote the first great biography of General George Washington.

America's jurist was born in Germantown (now Midland), Fauquier County, Virginia, on September 24, 1755, the son of Thomas Marshall, a friend and neighbor of George Washington. He received but little formal education, and before he had reached his majority his thoughts were taken up with the impending crisis which was soon to bring the Colonies into an eight year's struggle with the Mother Country.

In the summer of 1775, a regiment of Minutemen was raised in Culpeper, Orange and Fauquier Counties. Thomas Marshall was the major of this regiment, and his son, John, not quite 20 years of age, was a lieutenant. On their green hunting shirts, the mothers and sisters of these volunteers had inscribed the motto "Liberty or Death!" Their banner pictured a coiled rattlesnake with the words "Do not tread on me!" A green, untrained, poorly equipped regiment, with hunting rifles, knives and even tomahawks for weapons, the men nevertheless evidenced a determination which was to prove uncrushable.

John Marshall served at Brandywine, Germantown, Valley Forge, Monmouth, Stony Point, and Paulus Hook, and was one of the most popular men in the army. His athletic ability, his geniality and kindness won the affection of all men associated with him.

As the war drew to a close, Marshall began the study of law, and it was not very long before he was recognized as one of the leading lawyers of the State of Virginia.

When the Old Dominion State called a special convention, in 1788, for the purpose of ratifying or rejecting the new Federal Constitution, Marshall played an important part in the proceedings. There was a great deal of opposition to the new instrument of Government, and the objectors were led by none other than the famous orator, Patrick Henry.

It required a great deal of patience, reason, and skill to batter down the arguments of Henry and his followers, but the ratificationists, with James Madison and Frank Marshall at the helm, were able to accomplish this feat.

Nine years later, in 1797, President

Major Edward Bowes in a new photograph! The well-known managing director of the Capitol Theatre and "father" of the Capitol Family, recently celebrated his sixth anniversary of broadcasting. It was in July, 1925, that Major Bowes first took over the direction of the theatre's radio programs, appearing each week as master of ceremonies. The program is broadcast each Friday evening at 7:00 o'clock (EDT) over an NBC network.

Harvey Fulton

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the family of Harvey Fulton in this hour of their bereavement. Harvey was a genuinely likeable fellow, respected by all who knew him, and the members of the Continental-Diamond Band will mourn him from their number.

The Patriotic Legion

By a vote of 902 to 507 the American Legion in annual convention in Detroit last week went on record against the demand for immediate cash payment of bonus certificates and by that act has once more demonstrated to the nation its loyalty to the high ideals of national service to which it is pledged and which is one of the bulwarks of its constitution. For another year at least the question has been settled and no doubt the patriotic zeal with which it was handled will cause the Detroit gathering to be one long to be remembered and perhaps one that will prove an inspiration for guidance in the future. With its membership of one and a half million the dangling gold was a terrific temptation but weighing patriotism against personal gain the Legion overwhelmingly said "no" and once more defended its right to the admiration and respect of the American people.

It was a patriotic stand and a recognition of conditions at this time but it proved a terrible blow to those politicians who endeavored to get in right with the Legion membership by injecting the bonus proposition. The rebuke they received in the more than two to one vote against their greedy and personal proposal shows the contempt with which they are held by the Legion, a scorn well deserved. Insulting enough to assume that the men who offered their all to their country in the stress of war would stoop to gouge it in a financial crisis, they staked their greed against patriotism, misjudged the calibre of men they were tempting and lost. The Legion should not stop here; it was powerful enough to repudiate such traitors, they should follow up their convention actions and drive them from public life.

In the settling of this one of the greatest questions that has come before this body since its inception thirteen years ago, Cecil Post No. 15, through its representative, Wallace Williams, played an important role, and if the Legion deserves the thanks of the country, likewise does the Cecil Post delegate, whose eloquent and convincing remarks in the closing address of the convention won the hearts of his comrades and opened their eyes to the duty they owed their country. It was he who furnished the coup de grace against a well planned attempt to drain the Treasury and he can put down to his personal credit a large part of the gratifying result of the vote.—Cecil County Star.

GOLF FINALS TO BE BATTLED OUT THIS WEEK

In the semi-finals for the golf championship of the Newark Country Club, A. E. Benton defeated S. H. Stradley, Jr., 2 and 1, and Charles Pié defeated A. B. Collins, 4 and 2. This leaves Benton and Pié to battle it out for the title this week.

In the second sixteen C. O. Houghton defeated J. H. Dickey 4-3 and W. C. Northrop defeated G. W. Rhodes, 5 and 4.

For the ladies' championship, Mrs. B. H. Mackey defeated Mrs. A. S. Eastman, 6 and 4, and Miss A. G. Frazer defeated Mrs. J. Q. Smith, 3 and 2. This leaves Mrs. Mackey and Miss Frazer to play for the title.

Dr. W. O. Sypher won the sweepstakes tournament on Saturday and the silver spoon for the best gross score. His gross score was 82, handicap 11, net 71. J. H. Dickey won the second prize.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

On Wednesday evening, October 8th, the installation of officers of Mineloa Council, No. 17, took place. This installation was very interesting being conducted by the Great Deputy Mrs. Martin and her staff from Leola Council No. 14.

The following members were inducted into office: Prophetess, Evelyn Houghton; Pocahontas, Mary Jane Greenplate; Winona, Betty Conner; Pohowan, Ellen Atkinson; First Scout, Amanda Astle; Second Scout, Olivia Houghton; First Runner, Thelma Morrison; Second Runner, Stella Ely; First Warrior, Lillian Messick; Second Warrior, Viola Spencer; Third Warrior, Melissa Eisner; Fourth Warrior, Elsie Pierce; First Councillor, Edith Morrison; Collector of Wampum, Viola Ewing; Keeper of Wampum, Laura Mearns; Keeper of Records, Elsie Wideman.

When the work was completed, the Council presented the Deputy with an applique quilt, and the outgoing Pocahontas with a past officer's pin. Short talks were given. The social committee invited all to an oyster supper, which was much enjoyed by all.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

Dear Sir:

The citizens of Newark should be more interested in their school system. Many incidents happen in the Newark Schools which should be taken up and discussed by an organization such as a Parent-Teachers Association. There has been much "talk" lately of forming a Parent-Teachers Association but no one apparently wants to take the initiative although the matter has been brought up in women's clubs and college circles of the town. The matter of dismissing the undergraduate teachers from the high school for this school year is one that should be brought before the public for discussion. Just why was this move made? Does this mean that the college no longer sanctions the policies of the local school? These are some of the questions that such an organization might well discuss.

Many parents would like to cooperate with the local school in such matters as home study but are not closely enough allied with the teachers in order to find out just what is expected of the pupil. The matter of the short noon hour also needs some further adjustment. Other progressive school systems have an active P. T. A. Why not Newark?

Newark School Children Cooperate In Fire Prevention Week

The program for observance of Fire Prevention Week in the Senior and Junior High School is outlined in the account given below: Various journalistic committees show what was done in the several home rooms and the classrooms during the week pertaining to fire and its prevention. Announcement of the observance of the week was made in assembly Tuesday and a program arranged for Thursday. In Thursday's assembly Eugene White and Harry Gallagher lead the assembly in a discussion of spontaneous combustion—how it occurs, damages it causes and means of preventing spontaneous combustion from taking place. One week prior to this week so designated as fire prevention week, the chemistry classes charged and recharged fire extinguishers throughout the new and old wings of the building.

SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

In Home Economics the following things are done each day:

The gas stoves are checked, safety matches are used, oily clothes are not left around, but washed and hung up. All papers are picked up and the waste baskets emptied. Safety switches are used, they show a red light when they are on. Folding ironing boards are used, this prevents any one going out and leaving the hot iron standing on the ironing board.

Miss Gallagher's section of Juniors were entertained during the home room meeting by a playlet which was presented under the able direction of Mildred Wilson. The play was especially written for use in schools and is called, "The Defeat of Major Fire Destruction." Its purpose is to give the pupils an idea of the havoc caused by fire. The pupils who participated in this presentation were Thomas Laskaris, James Patterson, Ross McVey, Ruth Peel, Louise Murray, Dorothy West, Eugene White and Katherine Spencer.

Home Room 202

A home room meeting was held on October 5. After the devotional exercises the President announced that the topic for discussion was Fire Prevention. Cedric Justice gave a talk about chimneys and the proper way to keep them clean to prevent fire. Wm. Bratton gave a talk bringing in several common causes of fire and the prevention of these. Bertha Kirk read an article on "Chimneys." After this there was a general discussion. Gladys Johnson spoke about how Fire Prevention Week was observed in Virginia. Shortly after this the meeting was adjourned.

Fire Prevention

We have too many fires! This is the opinion of many of us and should be the opinion of everyone.

Following are listed some of the things anyone can do to help prevent fires.

1. Chimneys and flues should be cleaned regularly and thoroughly.
2. Be careful where smoldering ashes, coals, matches, cigars and cigarettes are put. "One tree will make a million matches, yet one match will destroy a million trees."
3. Allow no rubbish to accumulate in cellars, attics, closets or elsewhere. Keep everything in order.
4. Never burn such material in such a way as will cause sparks on roofs.
5. Be sure your heating plant is a good one and is properly used.

C. Gifford.
In the Newark High School, Miss Clemmer's home room, the Junior students of that room have taken a special interest in Fire Prevention Week.

They are preparing essays sponsored by the Lion's Club of Newark and for the first annual essay contest sponsored by the New Castle County Fire Chiefs' Association.

On Wednesday, October 7, several members of this home room gave speeches relating details of "Fire Prevention."

Activities of the Home Room

The first requisite to the proper functioning of a home room is a complete organization. The first few home room meetings of this year were devoted to the nomination, election and installation of officers. These officers are: President, Byard Perry; Vice-President, Margaret Murray; Secretary, George Wood; Executive Committee, Helen Vansant, Harry Wilson.

The duties of the home room officers were carefully explained to them, and the responsibilities attached to these positions. The members of the home room show, by the election, their faith in the ability of the persons chosen to lead the others. The officers, by accepting their positions of honor, prove their willingness to undertake their concurrent duties and responsibilities. Fire prevention week is being observed in all of the schools of the state. In the home room, a study of all the available material on ways to prevent fire and the proper procedure to follow in case of fire, has been made. This study precedes the writing of essays by the pupils on methods of preventing fire. The best essays will be submitted in a statewide contest.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

What Room 206 Has Done Toward Fire Prevention

Our room has put up a poster in the front of the room where everyone will observe it. In our last home room meeting several booklets pertaining to fire were read. One was called "Stacks of Trouble," read by Virginia Hurlock, another called "Just One Minute," read by Dorothy Handloff. "What a Half-Billion Dollars Would Do" was read by Arthur Huston. In our English class our teacher had us write an essay on "Fire Prevention" and another on "What a School Boy or Girl Can Do to Prevent Fire," and "What to do When Fire is Discovered."

Virginia Hurlock.

Observance of Fire Prevention Week

This week, October 4 to 10 inclusive is set aside for the purpose of impressing upon the minds of everyone the necessity of removing all unnecessary fire hazards, and for safeguarding such hazards that cannot be removed.

The Newark Public School especially takes great pride in making Fire Prevention Week a part of the training of its pupils as this training will in some extent at least, be of service to a number of the students long after their school days are past.

Especially beginning with this season of the year when the leaves are falling to the ground and the grass and other foliage is drying up it is most important to be on our guard in preventing a fire which may cause much property damage, or injury and even death to wild animal life as well as human life.

One of the most common causes of fire in homes is the defective smoke pipe, flue or chimney, where sparks get through to inflammable material or dry roofs; another common cause and probable the most frequent one is the most careless one of motorists or pedestrians who throw lighted stumps of cigarettes, cigars, or tobacco from pipes to the dry leaves or grass along our highways, and notices calling attention to this negligent habit should be posted at frequent intervals along our highways, villages and towns.

The fact is that fire is our faithful servant but a most dangerous master. Helen Cronhardt.

Fire Prevention Week In the Newark Schools

The pupils of the 8th grade of Newark School in English are writing compositions on Fire Prevention. There has been a prize of $5.00 offered by the Lions Club of this town to the student who writes the best composition on Fire Prevention. The Industrial Fire Chiefs' Association of Delaware are also giving several prizes for essays written on "What a School Child Can Do to Prevent Fire," and "What Should Be Done After the Fire Has Been Discovered." The prizes range from $2.50 to $10.00.

The pupils are studying the construction and use of a fire extinguisher in General Science.

In assembly on Monday, October 5, Madeline Lighty gave a talk on Fire Prevention.

On Monday, October 12, Mr. Beuhler's home room is giving a play called "Fire Prevention in the Realm of Safety." The characters in the play are: Doris Sheaffer, Lightning; Edward Morgan, Kerosene; Gay Newman, Match; Wm. Richardson, King Carefulness; Curtis Morrison, Cigarette; Bernice Tryens, Rubbish; Margaret Moore, Chimney.

GAME AND FISH LAWS STATE OF DELAWARE 1931

Correspondence intended for the Board of Game and Fish Commissioners should be addressed to the Chief Game and Fish Warden, Clarence S. Foster, Dover, Delaware.

BOARD OF GAME AND FISH COMMISSIONERS DOVER, DELAWARE

President, Robt. P. Robinson, Wilmington Vice-President, Wilbert Rawley, Leipsic
Secretary-Treasurer, John S. Isaacs, Ellendale

One of the interesting things to know is that every person holding a license for hunting or fishing prescribed by law can arrest violators.

The Delaware laws in relation to Migratory Birds do not, in some respects, conform to the Federal Regulations. For the information of the public The Post will also publish an abstract of the Federal Laws and Regulations for the protection of Migratory Birds.

Where the Federal and State laws conflict, the law which is the most restrictive governs.

A Statement By The Publisher

Reprinted from The Philadelphia Record, Saturday, August 15, 1931.

Good newspapers prefer to fight their battles at the bar of public opinion rather than in the Courts.

In twenty years as newspaper owner and publisher I have enjoyed some stiff contests with competitors. But I never went into Court until yesterday, when I filed a bill of complaint against Curtis-Martin Newspapers, Inc., and The Philadelphia Inquirer Company.

In behalf of The Philadelphia Record Company I asked for an injunction to stop their unjust attempt to punish newsboys for selling The Record.

The Inquirer, Public Ledger and Evening Ledger, all controlled by Curtis-Martin Newspapers, notified newsboys that they must stop selling early editions of The Record or they would not be allowed to sell the combine's newspapers.

With fine courage the boys have defied the combine and continued to sell The Record. Public opinion is with these boys in their fight against a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

The Record would prefer to fight it out without seeking the assistance of the Courts, leaving it to the public to decide the issue. But we owe it to these newsboys, who were so fair to us, to use every means in our power to help them. Besides, we want to end the inconvenience to the public and the confusion which is bound to result from half a dozen newsboys on every corner.

The regular newsboys should be allowed to sell whatever newspapers their customers want.

This is all The Record Asks.

In our application to the Court no claim for damages is made, although the absurd attempt to establish a morning newspaper monopoly has put The Record to heavy expense.

The Record is fighting for the newsboys, and for the principle that the public be allowed to choose its newspapers rather than have a particular newspaper forced upon it.

I bought The Record some three years ago because I believed that was a place in Philadelphia for an independent progressive morning newspaper, as well as for the two conservative Republican morning newspapers.

Very gratifying circulation growth has shown that my belief was correct, and that The Record has a real service to render this community.

For three years we have met malicious and insidious attempts to cripple Philadelphia's one independent morning newspaper. That has been our battle, and we have fought it in our own way without recourse to legal action.

We depart from that policy only because the newsboys have become the innocent victims of this continuous, unprincipled attack on The Record.

The Record will continue the fight.

It asks no quarter.

It has only one request to make of its opponents:

Be more careful how you aim that machine gun, and don't spray the children.

On Welcoming Tomorrow

When psychologists recently studied sleep habits of 136 girls at Skidmore College, they found one girl with a perfect sleep score. She went to sleep promptly and invariably slumbered soundly all night.

Yet, questioning revealed she did all that we are taught one wooing "sleep that knits the ravel'd sleeve of care" should not do. She nibbled at chocolates incessantly. She indulged in midnight lunches. Examinations worried her before and after. And seldom was she physically tired upon going to bed.

According to popular ideas of sleep technique, this young lady should have been the victim of relentless insomnia. But she wasn't. After much investigation, the psychologists decided that the reason for her ability to slumber soundly was her habit of looking forward, with pleasure, to the next day's round of events.

And therein, perhaps, is a moral of broad application. If a mental attitude of tip-toe expectancy for the next day can bring strength-imparting rest to a weary body, is it not reasonable to think that a courage looking ahead would benefit business.

After all, the future isn't so black. It was Owen D. Young, international banking authority, who recently remarked that "the time is not far off when buying will have to be resumed. Then the surpluses will disappear, bringing a new upswing of production." Certainly, though that is obvious, some panicky prophets overlook it entirely.

Mere Pollyanna optimism is to be avoided, for it is insidiously harmful. But surely a more general understanding of the essential soundness of our economic structure and a courageous readiness for come-what-may would be conducive to healthier business conditions as an attitude of pleasurable expectancy is to sleep.—The Rotarian Magazine.

TOADS SECRETE POISON

The toad is protected against some enemies by the secretion of the parotoid glands situated behind the eyes. These glands secrete a milky poisonous fluid that exudes when the toad is molested. The secretion is an acrid irritant, causing pain in cuts and a bitter astringent feeling in the human mouth. It seems particularly effective against dogs. Skunks eat toads, but it is said that they roll the toads around with their paws until the poison has been discharged and rubbed off. Regardless of the poison, some snakes prey freely upon toads.

When that seventy-year-old watchman who licked two highwaymen and put them to flight reaches his prime he ought to be a terror to evildoers.

Twenty-four hours after Aileen Clark sang for NBC's program board she was signed as an NBC artist, and is acclaimed by her sponsor as "radio's nightingale." The young singer is believed to hold a record for her quick jump from the audition rooms into a featured "mike" role. She was trained as an operatic coloratura soprano, but when she stepped to the microphone to sing her first popular number, 300 telephone calls resulted. Miss Clark is now heard with other guest stars on the Club Valspar Variety programs, presented each Saturday from 9:30 to 10:00 p. m. (EDT), over an NBC network.

BITTER--BUT FACT

From Liverpool comes a report that the Danube country is offering wheat at 48¢ cents a bushel, laid down in Liverpool, freight and insurance paid. Subtract 19 cents, the cost of delivering wheat in Liverpool from Chicago, from this Danube price, and there would be left at Chicago 29¢ cents a bushel.

And yet there are those who insist that the government of the United States should fix a price of $1.00 a bushel on American wheat. If it did, who would pay it? Would Europe, Asia, or Africa pay us $1.25 when they could get wheat in Liverpool for 50 cents or less? Would anybody in our own country who wants wheat pay $1.25 for American wheat when he could ship it in and pay the duty for considerably less than a dollar?

There is just one road back to profitable prices for wheat. And that is to limit production to domestic needs.

Lesson for October 11
PAUL IN PHILIPPI

GOLDEN TEXT—Rejoice in the Lord always and again I say, Rejoice.
LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:16-40; Phil. 1:1-11.

PRIMARILY TOPIC—Paul in Prison.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Jailor Led Captive.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jailor Victories in Europe.

1. Paul and Silas in Jail (vv. 1-24).
2. The occasion (vv. 10-24). As the prisoners went out from day to day in the place of prayer they were accompanied by a young woman possessed by a spirit of divination. She was owned by a syndicate of men who derived large gain from her soothsaying. Her utterances became a great annoyance to Paul who in the name of Jesus Christ commanded the evil spirit to come out of her. The evil spirit immediately obeyed Paul's command. When the demon was cast out the supernatural power of the maid was gone. Therefore, the source of revenue was at an end, and this so exasperated her owners that they brought Paul and Silas before the magistrates on a false charge.

Without any opportunity to defend themselves, Paul and Silas were stripped and beaten by the angry mob and then rounded to jail where they were made fast by stocks.

2. Their behavior in jail (v. 25). They prayed and sang hymns to God. It seems quite natural that they should pray under such circumstances, but to sing hymns is astonishing to all who have not come into the possession of the grace of God in Jesus Christ. Even with their backs lacerated and smarting with their feet fast in the stocks, compelling the most painful attitude in the dungeon darkness of the inner prison with extreme uncertainty before them, their hearts went up to God in gratitude.

3. Their deliverance (v. 26). The Lord wrought deliverance by sending a great earthquake which opened the prison doors and removed the chains from off their hands. The earthquake cannot be explained on natural grounds. Earthquakes do not throw open prison doors and unclasp fetters from men's hands.

4. The Conversion of the Jailor (vv. 27-34).
The jailor's sympathy did not go out very far for the prisoners, for as soon as they were made secure he went to sleep. Being suddenly aroused from slumber by the earthquake, he was about to kill himself, whereupon Paul assured him that the prisoners were all safe. What he had heard of their preaching, and now what he experienced caused him to come as a humble inquirer after salvation. He was convicted of sin and felt the need of a Savior. Paul clearly pointed out the way to be saved. He said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." The word "believe" means "to trust and fully obey." The following facts prove that the jailor was saved:

1. Transformation from brutality to tenderness (v. 33). He who a little while ago could with impunity lay on the cruel lashes is now disposed to treat the wounds of the prisoners.

2. Confession of Christ in baptism (v. 33). Those who have experienced the saving grace of God are willing to confess their faith in Christ under all circumstances.

3. He set them before them (v. 34). His whole household was baptized (v. 33). When a man's family is willing to follow him, you may be sure that his conversion is genuine.

4. The Magistrates Humbled (vv. 35-40).
1. The prisoners ordered released (vv. 33, 36). The earthquake brought her upon the magistrates and thus moved them to release the prisoners.

2. Paul's refusal to go (v. 37). The ground of his refusal was that their rights as Roman citizens had been violated. They demanded public vindication. The magistrates were guilty of serious offense. Paul was willing to suffer for Christ's sake, but he used the occasion to show them that perverting men who preached the gospel was an offense against the law of God and man.

3. Brought out of prison by the officers (vv. 38, 39).
4. Returned to the house of Lydia (v. 40). Upon their public vindication, Paul and Silas left the prison and entered the house of Lydia. After ministering comfort to the brethren, they took their departure.

IV. Always Rejoicing (Phil. 4:4-9).
The presence of the Lord Jesus Christ gives such peace that singing God's praises is possible even in prison.

The Pastor Says:
Never tell a young person that anything cannot be done. God may have been waiting for centuries for somebody ignorant enough of the impossibility to do that thing.—John Andrew Holmes.

Family Food Guide

Every meal—Milk for children, bread for all.

Every day—Cereal in porridge or pudding, potatoes, tomatoes (or oranges) for children, a green or yellow vegetable, a fruit or additional vegetable, milk for all.

Two to four times a week—Tomatoes for all, dried beans and peas or peanuts, eggs (especially for children), lean meat, fish, or poultry, or cheese.

More than 35 different and inexpensive ways of serving corn meal have been collected and developed by the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. In addition to these there is a smaller group of recipes for the various kinds of hominy, which is the name for whole or ground corn after the bran and germ have been removed. Since cereals occupy so important a position in the low cost dietary this information is of most value to persons whose food budget is limited.

Any one food, which must be eaten frequently, is bound to become monotonous unless the manner of serving it is varied, the bureau's experts say. This is especially true of cereals which have so little flavor in themselves. But when they are combined with other more highly flavored foods, cereals can be used in many different ways. In fact they may serve as a breakfast dish or as a dessert as well as being the basis for many appetizing main dishes for the dinner or supper.

Corn might be termed America's own cereal for it is native to this hemisphere. Other English speaking countries use "corn" to designate all cereals in general and speak of "maize" when they mean the "corn" which the first settlers in this country learned, from their Indian neighbors, how to grow and prepare. Although wheat is more generally used for making bread, many delicious breads and cakes can be made from corn meal and hominy. And as for cost, corn preparations are among the more economical of the common foods. Two pounds for five cents is the average price per pound by bulk for both corn meal and hominy in most parts of the country. When packaged, the price is usually five cents or more per pound.

Hominy and corn meal can be served as a breakfast cereal that will satisfy even the most rigid devotee of the "stick to your ribs" school. The bureau suggests varying the usual methods of making corn meal mush by baking it sometimes, and on other occasions by cooking it with butter-milk or cheese. The Italians are especially fond of this latter method, calling their dish polenta. Polenta is often reheated with tomato sauce, a left-over meat gravy, or a savory sauce made from salt pork, bacon, or sausage, and served as the main dish for a meal. Fried corn meal mush is too well known to need comment.

Many breads can be made from corn meal that are as delicious as their names are enticing. Among this group of recipes are custard corn cake, crackling bread, spoon bread, sour-milk corn bread, Southern corn muffins, spider corn bread, corn pone, South Carolina yeast corn bread, muffins, and Boston brown bread. Fritters, pancakes, and waffles are especially appetizing when made from corn meal for its peculiar granular consistency makes them very tender.

One of the main ingredients of scrapple is corn meal, and a variation of this product can be made from mixing corn meal mush with pork or beef. Cod fish balls made with corn meal mush are as good as they are inexpensive. A little known use for corn meal is in a batter pudding to serve with roast pork much as Yorkshire pudding is served with roast beef. Because it is not so well known, this dish is offered in today's menu.

Most persons know and serve Indian pudding which makes a very tasty winter dessert. This pudding may be varied by the use of fresh or dried fruits without greatly increasing its cost. Doughnuts made from corn meal are quite different from the usual variety, and molasses cake, ginger bread, and fruit gems are some of the other desserts which will prove especially popular with the children of the family.

Hominy is less known in the North than it is south of the Mason and Dixon line. Its use, however, is not confined to mush, by any means. The coarse hominy may take the place of a vegetable and be served either plain or browned in a little fat. Scalloped hominy and hominy turnovers are two other seldom used dishes, and cakes made from boiled hominy and cooked kidney beans can be served the same as a meat dish. Hominy stewed with fruit and sealup using stewed apricots are two desserts which belie their low cost origin and might well be included in the more liberal diets.

Another corn product, which is a favorite with children, is pop corn. It makes one of the most inexpensive and nutritious confections that can be safely given to children. If they can pop it themselves, all the better, for they get much of their delight from watching the tiny grains change into white fluffy kernels.

The recipes for corn meal and hominy mentioned in today's Market Basket, as well as some for fresh corn, are included in a publication, Corn and Its Uses as Food, Farmers' Bulletin 1236-F. Another, Farmers' Bulletin 553-F called "Pop Corn for the Home," is also available free of charge upon request to the Bureau of Home Economics or to the Office of Information of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

RECIPES

Roast Pork With Batter Pudding
A dish corresponding to the Yorkshire pudding which is frequently served with roast beef can be made out of corn meal to serve with roast pork.

½ cup corn meal
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs

Place the milk, corn meal, and salt in the top of a double boiler and cook about 10 minutes, or until the meal has expanded to form a mixture. After the mixture has cooled, add the eggs, well beaten. Grease gem tins thoroughly, allowing to each about 1 teaspoon of fat from the roast pork. Bake in a moderate oven, basting occasionally with the drippings of the pork.

This serves 4 persons.

Scrapple
10 pounds whole hog heads
2½ pounds hog livers and hearts
A small quantity of beef, if desired
6 pounds corn meal, yellow or mixed
½ pound salt
½ pound buckwheat or rye flour
3 ounces spices, including pepper, sage, marjoram, and thyme in any desired proportions

Clean the heads thoroughly, removing eyes and ear tubes. Split the head lengthwise and remove the teeth and the soft bones in and near the nasal cavities. Place the heads and other meat in a large kettle with a liberal quantity of water and cook until the meat falls off the bones. Separate the meat and soft tissue from the bones and pass through a meat grinder. Strain the liquid in which the meat was cooked to remove the small pieces of bone, return to the kettle and heat to the boiling point. Then slowly add the meal and flour, stirring constantly. Boil and stir until the mass becomes thick. Add the salt, spices, and chopped meat, and boil 10 minutes longer. Pour while still hot into deep wet molds; bread pans will do. Pour 2 to 4 tablespoons of melted lard over the material in the pans.

The scrapple is ready for use as soon as it has cooled. To prepare it for the table it is usually cut into slices about one-half inch thick, dusted with flour, cracked dust, or dry corn meal, fried until the outside is crisp, and served hot. Fried apples are good with fried scrapple.

Scalloped Corn
1 cup milk
1 can, or 2 cups corn
1 cup bread crumbs
2 slices green pepper
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter

Place alternate layers of corn and bread crumbs in a greased baking dish, reserving some crumbs for the top, adding butter and seasoning to each layer. If desired, 1 tablespoon of sugar may be added. Pour on the milk and bake for one-half hour.

Hominy Date Pudding
1 cup hominy grits
5 cups milk (skim or whole)
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
1 cup chopped seeded dates
1 teaspoon vanilla

Add the salt and hominy grits to the milk and cook in a double boiler one hour. Add sweetening, dates, and vanilla, and mix well. Partially cool before serving.

Quick Coffee Cake
2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter or other fat
½ cup milk
½ cup raisins, chopped
1 teaspoon cinnamon mixed with 2 tablespoons sugar

Sift together the flour, baking powder, sugar, and salt, saving out 2 tablespoons of flour to mix with the fruit. Cut in the fat with a biscuit cutter, and add the milk and floured fruit. In a greased pan, pat the dough down until it is about 1½ or 2 inches thick, and bake for 35 to 40 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). When done, butter the top and sprinkle over it a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. Place the cake in the oven again and let it remain until the sugar begins to melt. Serve hot or cold.

These ingredients make a good uncooked pepper pickle: 1 cup minced green pepper, 1 cup minced red pepper, 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar, ½ to 1½ teaspoon salt, 1 small onion chopped, 1 cup vinegar. Dissolve the salt and sugar in the hot vinegar and pour over the vegetables. Let stand 2 or 3 hours before serving. This keeps well in a stone jar. Keep out of the light.

Before the Magistrate

Lewis Cohen was arrested by Officer Mann for doing between 45 and 50 miles on Main street and joined the $10.00 club for reckless driving. Geo. Williams, colored, was arrested by Officer Cunningham for driving while drunk and fined $100.00 and cost, and in default of bail is now sojourning in the New Castle County Workhouse for thirty days.

Lloyd Brook was arrested by Officer Mann for being drunk and disorderly and was set back $10.00.

Earl Pendleton also paid the same fine for the same offense.

John McCabe, colored, was arrested by Officer Cunningham on Sunday, after his car struck a tree in front of Mitchell Hall, and he was fined $10.00 and costs for knowingly allowing a man to operate his car without an operator's license. He ran from the scene of the accident and was overtaken by Officer Cunningham on Lovett avenue. When told to put out his hands to be handcuffed he resisted and reached for his hip pocket, presumably to pull a gun, and it was necessary for the officer to strike him with the butt of his pistol.

500 CARD PARTY

A 500 Card Party will be held in the Christiana Fire House, benefit of the insurance of the company, October 9, Mr. Clarence McVey, chairman.

An exceptional large attendance is expected, because the work will be completed at the Fire House. The Fire House will be well dressed for the occasion, it being painted inside and outside. The Auxiliary donated new window shades. Several months ago it was stuccoed.

100 ENTRIES IN 17th ANNUAL FIELD TRIALS

With about one hundred entries, the seventeenth annual field trials of the Eastern Beagle Club opened Monday and will continue all this week. The club officials are making their headquarters at the Washington House and the dogs are kenneled in the large barns of Thomas W. Claringbold at Roseville. The trials are also being held on the Claringbold property and adjoining farms.

Most of the dog owners arrived unday night, coming from various states from North Carolina to New York and Ohio. One special feature this year is a winners stake open to the first place dogs of the four all-age classes. A beautiful cup has been donated by Richard W. Willis, as a prize for this event the cup to be retained for one year by the winner and to be the permanent property of the owner winning it three times.

CHRISTIANA AUXILIARY FAVORS CO. ASSOCIATION

An invitation was extended to Christiana Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fire Company, by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Holloway Terrace Fire Company, to attend a gathering of the Ladies' Auxiliaries of New Castle County. Meeting on October 7, 1931, at Holloway Terrace.

A special meeting was called and it was decided that the Ladies of Christiana Fire Company Auxiliary would gladly accept the invitation. Every member who possibly could would attend.

The meeting nights of the Christiana Auxiliary have been changed. Instead of two meetings a month, they will have one, it being the fourth Monday of every month.

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER TO OPEN COLLEGE HOUR PROGRAM

Cornelia Otis Skinner will open the College Hour Program at the University of Delaware on Tuesday evening, October 13, at 8 p. m., in Mitchell Hall. Her original character sketches constitute a unique type of entertainment which has been highly acclaimed by American audiences who have heard and seen its two leading exponents, Ruth Draper and Miss Skinner.

Abraham Lincoln expounded the maxim about not being able to fool all the people all the time, but he said nothing about the ability to entertain, to please all the people all the time. Cornelia Otis Skinner, the charming daughter of Otis Skinner, who comes here to present her original Character Sketches, has achieved this happy state. At least if one is to judge by the dramatic critics.

If Miss Skinner had won the praise of the critics in only big cities, one might question her universal appeal. But Miss Skinner seems to evoke the most enthusiastic eulogies from the critics in little cities as well as great cities, cities in the West as well as cities of the East.

After her last recital at the Selwyn Theatre, New York, Dan C. Anderson, in the New York Sun, wrote somewhere in the middle of a long, glowing review, "Stepping up the aisle during the intermission, one saw row upon row of smiling, happy faces. Lighted by lingering, quiet smiles. These people had not been bludgeoned into enjoyment; they had been charmed in to it."

And yet, way off so far as population is concerned, in the little city of Naugatuck, Conn., an anonymous writer only a short time before wrote, "When an audience laughs until tears flow down its cheeks and its sides ache, when it applauds until its hands are sore and the noise is deafening to its own ears, it furnishes conclusive, substantive and satisfactory evidence of the fact that it is highly pleased. As that is the way last night's audience showed its appreciation of the efforts of Cornelia Otis Skinner to entertain it, a statement to the effect that Miss Skinner made a big hit would seem to be superfluous."

Miss Skinner's performances of her own Character Sketches bring people happiness. They entertain; they amuse; they spread joy. Because they are fundamentally human, they have a universal appeal. One has but to read the press reviews to sense this. Seeing her, one without understanding the why of it, knows that all the press tribute is insignificant, that she herself brings something that is beyond the realm of words to express.

This is the talented, the charming young woman who comes here to entertain us. Her performance is of the kind which no one appreciative of the finer things in life should miss.

Since the Committee is anticipating a large attendance for this first number, it would be wise for any not connected with the University to apply at the Business Office for tickets at once. Single admission tickets are 75c, while season tickets for the eight entertainments can be secured for $3.50. Only a limited number of these are available, since the Committee must take care of applications from members of the college community, for whom the series of entertainments is primarily intended.

The College Hour Program is made possible, it will be remembered, by the generosity of University benefactors.

NEGRO ASSAILANT CAUGHT IN WILMINGTON YESTERDAY

Margaret Pierce, George Simpson, Attack Victims, Remain in Serious Condition

Found asleep in a house at 1239 Wilson street, yesterday afternoon, William Clark, alias Thomas Howard, negro, 24 years old, of Belvidere, who has been sought since Monday on a charge of attacking a man and woman at Belvidere, was placed under arrest.

At the police station a charge of feloniously assaulting Miss Margaret Pierce, 23 years old, of Belvidere, was placed against him, and he was placed in a cell pending a hearing before Judge Lynn in Municipal Court this morning. A charge of assault with intent to commit murder in connection with his alleged assault upon George Simpson, 25 years old, of Gouverneur, N. Y., was placed against him.

Police Surround House

He was taken into custody following information received by the police that he was staying in the house. The building was surrounded by a cordon of police composed of Captains Black and Gamble, Detectives Riley and Cook, and Patrolmen Warren and Gieger.

The police found him alone in the house. He offered no resistance and was found to be unarmed when searched. A search was made of the house for two revolvers he is said to have had, as well as for jewelry he is alleged to have taken from the home of Miss Pierce, but no trace of any of the articles was found.

Woman Identifies Negro

Immediately upon his arrest he was taken to the Wilmington General Hospital, where he was identified by Miss Pierce as her assailant. After identifying him, Miss Pierce became hysterical, but was soon calmed by hospital attendants.

Clark was not taken before Simpson, as the latter has not fully regained consciousness since being felled by his assailant.

After being taken to the police station Clark was questioned by Detectives Riley and Cook. In his statement, Clark is said to have admitted being in the vicinity of Miss Pierce's home Sunday night and early Monday morning, but denied having attacked either her or Simpson.

He was later questioned by Superintendent C. C. Reynolds, of the State Police, but no further information is said to have been established.

In an effort to clear up the case as quickly as possible, Captain H. C. Ray, of the State Police, assisted by Lieutenant Cole and several privates began summoning witnesses last night.

Clark, according to the story told by Miss Pierce, forced his way into her home on Meadowbrook Road, Belvidere, early Monday morning, and at the point of a revolver, compelled her and Simpson to leave the house and go to a small shack a short distance away. Finding the door of the shack locked, she said, he ordered them back to the house, and as they were entering, struck Simpson over the head, then made her go into the house, where she was assaulted.

Baker was arrested in Newark about two years ago by Officer Cunningham and a State officer for operating a car while under the influence of liquor, for which he served 18 months.

46 HOME MAKERS SEE 6 MONTHS OLD CALF CANNED

Produces Eighty-one Cans of Choice Cuts

On Tuesday, October 6th, forty-six home makers met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Palmer, near Glasgow, and canned a six months old calf. "The calf weighed 276 pounds when slaughtered," says Mrs. Kate Henley Daugherty, County Home Demonstration Agent, "and it dressed out 175 pounds. Every part of the animal was canned except the liver and brains which were saved for immediate use. Eighty-one cans of the following cuts were canned:

FOOTBALL PLAYER INJURED

It was thought at first he had some broken ribs, but X-rays showed his ribs to be all right, but some back muscles were strained.

SCRAP-BOOKS FOR PEDIATRICS DEPARTMENTS

The junior members of the American Legion Auxiliary held their second meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Lois Mae Tomhave. The meeting opened with the flag salute followed by the singing of America. A short business meeting followed with Sally Steedle presiding.

The first project of these junior members is the making of scrap-books for the children's wards of the Wilmington hospitals. The hospitals are glad to receive these, as scrap-books always appeal to children and furnish many hours of entertainment.

Those making the scrap-books are Doris Sheaffer, Jean Lewis, Betty Jane Rhoades, Miriam Lewis, Lois Mae Tomhave, Sally Steedle, Jane Ann Lovett, and Nancy Cooch.
