Dr. C. R. Kase
Director of Dramatics

At the close of the season last year the E-52 Players presented what has been generally acclaimed as a landmark in the local little theater circuit and a high point in the University of Delaware dramatic organization. The production was Maxwell Anderson's Joan of Lorraine, an outstanding hit of the Broadway stage. Because of playwright Anderson's generous release of his then brand new hit, the E-52 performance, the 37th major production of the players, was presented here immediately after its New York run. Margaret Guenveur, who had previously displayed her remarkable talents in Storm and Shadow And Substance, was particularly effective in the role of Mary Grey, the actress who plays Joan in the play within the play. Following Ingrid Bergman in her triumphant return to Broadway after her Oscar-crowned Hollywood career was a difficult task for a young actress. Miss Guenveur, however, was superb in the role. She again proved her talents in the November E-52 production of Ruth Gordon's autobiographical play, Years Ago. Like Joan of Lorraine, Years Ago was also presented in Mitchell Hall immediately following its Broadway production. Sybil Levenson and Roscoe Smith were excellent as the troubled parents of the aspirant young actress. One of the most memorable occasions of the dramatic year was the presentation of John Millington Synge's Riders to the Sea on a Playbill sponsored by the experimental Theater and the E-52 Players. Utilizing the best talents of both the University Drama Group and the Players, the Experimental Theater's aim is to present plays of an unusual and unconventional nature. Riders to the Sea, presented on a bill with an original play, Open Secret, and a cutting form George Kelly's 25-year-old comedy, The Torchbearers, was staged by William Whedbee in a stark, brilliantly lighted manner, emphasizing the sombre mood and atmosphere of the play. Sybil Levenson, who has been associated with the E-52 Players in all plays presented here since she entered the University in September, 1944, was unanimously acclaimed for her truly magnificent performance as the old mother. Peggy Ann Munoz, a member of Dr. C. R. Kase's script writing class, who was responsible for the Christmas production last year of Our Lady's Tumbler, was again represented by her dramatized version of O. Henry's short story, The Gift of the Magi. Presented on a Christmas program in connection with the Music Department, the play is an example of the opportunity given to writers trained at the University in seeing an actual performance of their work. Another example of the diversified schedule of the dramatic department was the March production of Shakespeare's A Comedy of Errors, which fulfills the need of a classic touch in a University dramatic program. The University of Delaware program, incidentally, extends far beyond the campus. Through the play lending library, which provides scripts for groups which otherwise would have no access to them, and the traveling performances of E-52 plays, the influence of the Delaware department is widespread.

JOAN OF LORRAINE Production Angle

THE REVIEW

Ever since its founding in 1882, the Review, the undergraduate publication of the University of Delaware, has served many purpose on the Delaware campus. Published weekly, it helps to keep the student body informed of University news and activities. It also serves as an experimental workshop in which those interested in journalism can gain experience and put their ideas into practice. Through the years the Review has continuously crusaded for improvements, and has been instrumental in bringing about many of the progressive movements which have taken place on campus. In addition, the Review has been a dominant force in fostering school spirit and interest.

In an endeavor to further literary activities on campus and to promote writing interest among the students, the Augustan Society publishes Delaware's undergraduate literary magazine, The Cauldron. At regular monthly meetings members and guests participated in forum discussions on various topics of current or classic literary and aesthetic interest. Under the faculty sponsorship of Mrs. Sara Rogers, the Augustan Society has emerged since the war as a unique organization on the Delaware campus. In recent discussions, attention has been directed toward individual opinion and criticism concerning specific works of literary merit. Material previously printed in The Cauldron has also been introduced by staff members for analytical examination. As a representative unit, the Augustan Society functions through The Cauldron—its quality evidence of the student's literary taste.

RESIDENT STUDENTS' SOCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Resident Students Social Organization is an outgrowth of the Brown Hall Social Committee which was formed to provide parties and dances for those living in Brown Hall and their guests. It was during the war years that the R. S. S. O. started. At that time only residents of Brown and Harter Halls were permitted to buy membership cards. However, with the growth of the university after the war, the need for extending the sale of tickets soon became evident, so they were then made available to all male students on the campus. Later, social representatives of women's campus were admitted to the men's committee. With a growing desire for entertainment, activities were greatly increased and an orchestra dance was held which included commuters as well as resident students.

The Home Economics Club, under the faculty sponsorship of Miss Muriel Starr, is composed of Home Economic majors and all students in the School of Home Economics, who are automatically members. With the express purpose of furthering professional attitude and status, the Club has initiated an extensive program of activities according to the national program of work, especially by inviting guest speakers from many and varied fields of related experience. As a whole, the organization promoted a number of projects throughout the year. In anticipation of establishing a tradition in the Delaware Club, the first Ellen H. Richards Banquet was prepared in January in recognition of the original founder of Home Economics clubs in this country.

The Mathematics Club gives to interested students additional opportunities outside the classroom for the enjoyment of mathematics for its own sake. Topics in pure and applied mathematics and in the history of mathematics are discussed, frequently from points of view different from those taken in the class room. Program participants are members of the faculty or of the student body or speakers from outside. One of the club traditions is the annual presentation of a book on some mathematical topic designed for general reading, to the Memorial Library of the University. Membership in the club is open to freshmen and sophomores as well as to members of the upper classes, the main qualification being "intellectual curiosity."

The Delaware Agricultural Club is the largest and oldest functioning student organization on the campus. The club has renewed its activities and interest after having been dormant because of the Second World War. Among other things, the "Aggie News" is once again being printed. With new vigor the club is maintaining its high quality of programs prepared for its monthly meetings. The programs are developed in order to broaden the scope of knowledge and to further strengthen the interest of the Ag. student in his chosen field.

The student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers has as its purpose the presentation of a proper perspective of Electrical Engineering tasks to its members. To achieve this goal, meetings are held for both business and educational topics. Inspection tours, such as the trip to the power generating plant at Deepwater New Jersey, give previews to the student of his future work; while the incentive of research essay contests help to develop sound engineering habits.

The student branch of the A. S. M. E. was organized to enable the Mechanical Engineering student to establish fraternal contact with fellow engineering students, both at this University and at other colleges; and to meet graduate engineers engaged in the active performance of their specialties. Monthly meetings were held, featuring outstanding speakers on subjects which were of interest to the students, and frequent inspection trips to local industrial plants were made to broaden the students' acquaintance with the practical side of Mechanical Engineering.

Supplementing the regular class instruction of the student is the main purpose of the American Society of Civil Engineers. As do the other engineering groups here at the University of Delaware, the A. S. C. E. strives towards this goal by means of field trips, speakers of industry, technical films, and papers presented by the students themselves. With the aid of such activities, the Society helps to give to the member an insight into the Civil Engineering world of today.

The local affiliate of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers seeks to enlarge the general background of the Chemical Engineering student and to promote interest in his field outside of the classroom. To accomplish these purposes, the chapter invites well known engineers to speak at its meetings, and also sponsors field trips to some of the large industrial installations located nearby. In addition, the chapter encourages scholarship by offering a prize to the top-ranking freshman chemical engineering student.

TAU BETA PI

Delaware Alpha Chapter of Tau Beta Pi, an honorary engineering society, was established at the University of Delaware in 1933. It is the purpose of the Society to mark in a fitting manner those who have conferred honor upon their Alma Mater by distinguished scholarship and exemplary character as undergraduates in engineering, and to promote in the engineering colleges of America a spirit of liberal culture.

Membership in the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, a chapter of which has been in existence on the campus since 1905, is based upon out-standing scholastic achievement and is conferred upon high-ranking seniors who are chosen from the upper tenth of the senior class. Election to Phi Kappa Phi is one of the highest scholastic honors which a student can receive.

during the war years, the chapter was reorganized this year through the efforts of Dr. William A. Mosher.

UNIVERSITY WORLD RELIEF FUND

The University World Relief Fund was formed in order to collect funds for the use of the American Friends Service Committee and the World Student Service Fund, two organizations of undoubted integrity which administer relief in war-devastated areas throughout the world. The Planning Committee brought three speakers to the campus, sponsored the sale of chrysanthemums at one of the football games, and presented the award-winning documentary film "Seeds of Destiny."

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

Formerly known as The Forum, the International Relations Club is now a member of a national organization of the same name which is endowed by the Carnegie Institute. The purpose of the I. R. C. is to study and discuss current international problems in an honest effort to interpret their significance and to clarify their meaning in terms of the present generations. Any student who shows a sincere interest in the work of the organization and who participates actively in its projects may become a member.

DELAWARE STUDENT CHRISTIAN ASSOC.

The Delaware Student Christian Association is an organization of students and faculty who share in a common desire to strengthen and extend student Christianity at the University through a program of worship, discussion, and action. Another aim is that of encouraging students to take an active part in the programs of their respective communions—locally and nationally. To fulfill this purpose, there are monthly meetings which feature programs of student interest—either group discussions or speakers on some phase of Christian living.

Among the many activities sponsored by this group are weekly Vesper Services, numerous social gatherings, and this particular year the Student Telephone Directory.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

A comparatively new organization on the University of Delaware campus, the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is an inter-denominational, evangelical institution affiliated to an international college youth program. Its activities are varied, of catholic significance, and include weekly Bible study and monthly meetings with outstanding speakers in addition to special social events. Concentration on mental and spiritual conflicts is the Inter-Varsity "substitute for pistol and ball;" members make a sincere attempt to have their organization become the individual's touchstone in the acquisition of deeper spiritual understanding.

CANTERBURY CLUB

Organized last year by the Episcopal students on campus, the Canterbury Club is now suing for recognition by the national organization, The Association of Canterbury Clubs. Though slightly hampered by the lack of a minister in the Newark parish, the new organization has been vastly encouraged by several local religious leaders, and the outlook for the future is bright. Highlighting the list of activities for the year was the Christmas party which was given by the members for a group of local, underprivileged children. Members were entertained at their meetings by speakers from Wilmington, Philadelphia, and vicinity; while at other times either a study of the Prayer Book was conducted, or the rugs were rolled back and the business became strictly social.

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman Club, in keeping with the greatly expanded student enrollment, this year saw a greater interest on the part of the student body than ever before. The aim of the Club is to present a well balanced program comprised of religious training, intellectual development, and social and recreational functions. Topics of particular interest to the Catholic student are stressed in talks given by prominent clergymen and laymen. On December 14, more than one-hundred students attended Mass and received Holy Communion in a body at St. John the Baptist Church, after which a breakfast was served. The Rev. John H. Donnelly, Chaplain to Catholic students and of the Newman Club at the University of Pennsylvania, was the principal speaker. The Rev. Eugene J. Kraemer, past chaplain of the Delaware Club and the pastor of St. Johns, and the Rev. Thomas A. Carlin, O. S. F. S., were among the guests. Father Carlin was recently appointed by Bishop Edmond J. Fitzmaurice of Wilmington as the full time advisor for the group to replace Father Kraemer, who will retain his interest in the club as moderator.

The Alison Associates organization is especially so named for the eminent Presbyterian clergyman, the Reverend Francis Alison, who formed the parent institution of the University of Delaware, and was its principle from 1743 to 1752. This organization is the result of the persistent and continued interest of several generations of students. Its independent activities consist mainly of the study of Presbyterian development and the study of the application of Christian principles.

PI MU EPSILON

Pi Mu Epsilon is a national honorary fraternity to which students of sufficiently high calibre in mathematics are elected by faculty members of the fraternity. The activities of the year included a three-talk series on the mathematics of heat transfer by Dr. Pigford, Professor Dusenberre, and Dr. Goheen.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

The much enlarged Music Department, with its several performing organizations, has had one of the most active years in its history. Both the instrumental and choral organizations have been in demand for public performances within the University and throughout the State.

Under the direction of Mr. J. R. King, the University Band, now in its second year of organization, showed a marked increase in number over the previous year with a peak of fifty-five members.

As is the custom, the Band played for all of the football games, both at home and away and a new feature was initiated this year when a small "pep" band was organized for the home basketball games. In addition to its activities with the athletic events of the University, the Band gave several Concerts of symphonic band music, playing these in the public schools in Wilmington and on the campus.

One of the outstanding small musical organizations on the campus is the Brass Sextet. This group has toured the State playing for the most part the old and rarely played "Tower Music" of the 17th and 18th centuries.

The Newark Civic Orchestra, composed of University instrumentalists and local musicians, continued to present concerts of 18th and 19th century music. It also served as an accompanying group for the University chorus and a number of soloists.

In the Choral phase of music under the direction of Prof. Loudis, the department for the first time placed the A Capella Choir on a highly selective basis, meeting during regular school hours. The quality of choral performances improved tremendously because of this new plan of organization.

There have been many public performances of this group during the year. The annual Christmas program, given in conjunction with the Department of Dramatics, filled Mitchell Hall to capacity. A three-day Choir tour (the Brass Sextet also participated) was one of the notable activities of the group. Evening programs and school programs were given in several locations in Sussex County. The students enjoyed the experience of being the overnight guests in the homes of people in the various communities.

During December, the Choir combined with the large University Chorus in a presentation of portions of Handel's MESSIAH. In late Spring, in a similar co-operative project, Mendelssohn's ELIJAH had its first performance in Mitchell Hall.

The interest in Music being manifested by an increasingly large number of students in the University indicates that the Music Department will play a large part in the cultural life of the campus and the community.

The Yacht Club, founded at the University in 1946, is a nautical but nice group of sailing enthusiasts who, in spite of geographical limitations, "must down to the sea again." Efforts to make a splash in intercollegiate sailboat races were thwarted at first by the Club's lack of—of all things—sailboats. But by sponsoring a semi-formal dance and by selling megaphones to Blue Hen rooters, and Christmas cards to students, the fast-sinking Yacht Club managed to right itself. Eventually it succeeded in building up a fleet of two boats, which are moored at the Northeast

River Yacht Club. The fall racing record of the group was creditable: a win over New York State Maritime in a duel meet, seventh place in the Middle Atlantic Association Championships, and a second berth in the Intercollegiate Freshman Dinghy Semi-finals. Six meets were scheduled for the spring term: four at Washington U.; one at Navy, and one at the U. S. Merchant Academy. A tentative meet was arranged with Cornell "on Cayuga's waters." It looks as if the Yacht Club at Delaware is here to stay—come low or high water.

The Gold Key Society was organized in 1948 as an honorary society with membership restricted to head and associate managers of varsity inter-collegiate sports. The purposes of the society are several: to honor those men who have worked four hard years as underclass managers; to expedite the efficiency of underclass managers through a system of awards; to extend the goodwill of the University to all visiting athletic teams, and to encourage school spirit and pride among the students of the University. The members' badge is a gold latch key with a blue "D" superimposed on it.

at pep rallies and football games. The awarding of a perpetual trophy—a gold cup—to the organization exhibiting the best decorations for the most important game of the season, was also instituted by the cheerleaders. Warner Hall won the trophy this year with their very original display for the Washington and Lee game.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOC.

Following its resurrection in the '46-'47 season, the Women's Athletic Association emerged in 1948 as a strongly united organization with a capable administration at the helm, headed by energetic Irene Short, "Shortie," efficient President of the W. A. A., has done an outstanding job in reviving the interest in this organization, and in carrying the weight of the task assigned her. Competent officers, Shirley Taylor, Judy Koller, and Jean Cameron, were instrumental in shaping the athletic program. The most extensive accomplishment of the administration was the revision of the constitution after hours of laborious work. However, the efforts of this group were not in vain for they completed an adaptable constitution suitable to the changing times.

In March, 1947, fencing was renewed after an absence of thirteen years. This renaissance was made possible largely through the efforts of Dr. Truman Botts of the Mathematics Department, who gave generously of his time to serve as coach. The group has grown considerably. To the veteran members—Alfred Berguido, Charles Steinke, Dick Advanced R. O. T. C.

The basic purpose and aim of R. O. T. C. is to train leaders for tomorrow's national emergency. The concept behind the Defense Act of 1921 is that the youth who enjoy the advantages of the superb advanced educational system of this country, in turn, enjoy an obligation of service to it in time of national insecurity. This 1947-48 year seen the largest Reserve Officers' Training Corps ever to be on this campus. Three hundred and twenty-five students are enrolled in the basic courses and forty-two are in the advanced courses. Upon graduation, those who have completed the advanced course are offered a commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps. Those men are the trained leaders of our national military security.

The Interfraternity Council of the University of Delaware is a representative body of fraternity delegates, who as their constitution states, meet to "promote the interests of the University, promote a friendly spirit among the Fraternities, formulate rushing rules and resolutions relating to the Fraternities, regulate Interfraternity activities, and promote the welfare and interests of the Fraternities associated in this organization."

Its membership includes two delegates from each fraternity on campus, under the guidance of Dr. J. Fenton Daugherty, Dean of Men.

THETA CHI

The Alpha Xi Chapter of Theta Chi Fraternity, formed from the local Omega Alpha Fraternity in 1923, carried out their motto: "Alma Mater—and Theta Chi for Alma Mater" to the letter in 1948 for a banner year. With the largest roll of members and pledges in the history of the chapter, the Theta Chis set a high standard in athletics, student activities, and scholarship in the past year. With twenty-two members of the varsity football team, ten members of the freshman football team, six members of the varsity basketball team, five members of the freshman basketball team, and representatives on every varsity sport but swimming, the fraternity was undisputed leader of campus athletics. In addition to winning the interfraternity scholarship cup in 1946-47, Theta Chis also held such important campus offices as Interfraternity Council president, REVIEW editor, Junior Prom Chairman, Gold Key Society president, Aggie Club president, Senior Class treasurer, Junior Class secretary, and many others.

Sigma Phi Epsilon tries steadfastly to push the interests of the college which is its home, and at the same time urges its members to excellence in scholarship, athletics or some form of campus life. Since its reactivation in February, 1946, Delaware Alpha has seen the return of such annual activities as the Father and Son Banquet, the Chapter Formal, the Alumni Reunion, the Longwood Operetta, and the presentation of the Freshman Cup. The DELALPHAN, Delaware's only fraternity newspaper, and the Panther Room, are post-war innovations. In addition to winning the plaque in the Intramural Basketball League, Sig Ep copped two varsity captaincies last year when Miles Powell and Jim Otton headed the Golf and Track teams respectively. Sig Eps participate in all University sports from lacrosse and soccer to cross country. The fraternity members are also active in the REVIEW, campus literary work, the E-52 players, music activities and the Yacht Club.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

In November 1913, a closely-knit group of students attending New York University laid the foundation of the Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. This small group continuously added to itself from the student body of NYU and after a period of several years, decided to "go national." As a result, Alpha Epsilon Pi now has over forty chapters. The Delaware chapter of A. E. Pi—the Rho Deuteron Chapter—was formerly the Delta Chapter of the Sigma Tau Phi Fraternity. The merger of Sigma Tau Phi with A. E. Pi was made in March of 1947. The fraternity's home on "Quality Hill" was the scene of much action during the past year. The house was completely refurnished and repainted inside, and the members plan to improve the exterior of their home this summer. Here at the University of Delaware members of A. E. Pi are exceptionally active in all walks of college life, including activities such as publications, intramurals, dramatics, student government, and other organizations.

SIGMA NU

Founded 77 years ago at V. M. I., Sigma Nu, with one hundred chapters located in forty-six states, is one of the five leading fraternities in the country today. Delta Kappa Chapter, which was established at Delaware in 1911, has consistently maintained a high position in the National Fraternity and is a strong force in University affairs.

Sigma Nu strives to make better citizens by encouraging intellectual achievement, ideals of honor and responsibility, and a development of both character and social recognition. The actives, headed by popular Bob Winter, represent a group unified in spirit and diversified in campus interests and talents.

A well planned social calendar is highlighted by the traditional Sigma Nu Formal and Inter-Fraternity weekend. Inter-mingled with the larger affairs are the popular week-end house parties. The intimate social contacts experienced are a source of never-ending satisfaction to all who have the privilege of wearing the Five Armed Star of Sigma Nu.

KAPPA ALPHA

Since Beta Epsilon, the chapter of Kappa Alpha here at Delaware, was re-activated in February, 1946, the fraternity has made definite progress. At present there are fifty-one active members on the campus, and a promising pledge class of thirty-three. They are still engaged in the arduous labor of renovating their new house on Amstel Avenue, but hope that their work will be rewarded with a beautiful product. The K. A. boys walked off with the interfraternity football trophy for 1947, which was the third time that they had earned this honor since the trophy was originated in 1939. They also won the volley ball tournament for 1947. This year they participated in swimming, basketball, bridge, bowling, and many other interfraternity activities. Everything pointed toward a very successful year. The fraternity, in addition to being a purely social organization, continued in their endeavor to promote good feeling on the campus.

Alpha Gamma chapter of Phi Kappa Tau was reinstated on campus in March, 1947, when sixteen men were formally pledged. After being initiated at Muhlenberg College, the fraternity elected officers and became active in all social, intra-mural, and extra-curricular affairs. At present this organization is planning to acquire a chapter house where they can conduct the social and business activities of which a fraternity is composed. There are three fundamental characteristics of the organization: Emphasis upon innate worth as a

DELTA ETA

Realizing the need for another social fraternity at the University of Delaware, a group of students met in October with the field secretary of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity and laid plans for establishing a local group which would eventually become a chapter of that fraternity. Organization was completed rapidly and the Delta Eta Fraternity was recognized by the Interfraternity Council. Delta Eta entered into campus activities and competed in the 1947-48 rush week. The Delta Eta Fraternity looks forward to participating in all interfraternity activities and sponsoring affairs of its own.
