$18,000 Damages Paid George Hendrickson

Trial Halted When Continental Company Settles Out Of Court; Largest Amount Ever Paid In State

Litigation was halted abruptly Monday in the $100,000 damage suit of George A. Hendrickson against the Continental Fibre Company, of Newark, for alleged loss of sight, taste and smell while an employee of the firm, with agreement of amicable settlement out of court of $18,000, the largest amount ever to have been given as the result of action in the State courts for personal injuries as an employee. The costs of the suit must be borne by the defendant as well as expenses of its own witnesses.

Hearing of testimony, which was opened in the morning in Superior Court before Chief Justice Pennell and Judge Rodney and a special jury, had not been concluded when, after a brief conference, shortly after noon between attorneys for the plaintiff and the defendant company, it was announced that a satisfactory settlement had been reached.

The trial Monday was the second in the case, the first suit last May (Continued on Page 10.)

Raymond Russell Sails For Liberia Thursday

Has 18 Months Commission From Firestone Plantations Company; Will Clear 10,000 Acre Tract

Raymond Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Russell, left for New York City this morning, where, on Thursday, he will sail for the Republic of Liberia, Africa. He will arrive in Liberia in about three weeks.

Russell, after a personal interview with Harvey Firestone, was given a commission by the Firestone Plantations Company to work on their Liberia rubber plantations.

The Firestone Plantations Company, a holding corporation, has purchased two millions of acres of land in Liberia for the development of rubber plantations, and Russell's work will include the management of clearing ten thousand acres and planting the same in rubber trees and to bring them to bearing. His commission, at a high salary, covers a period of eighteen months. He has also been given interesting concessions, including a three months' vacation, with full pay.

Russell, who was graduated from Delaware last June, was in the midst of graduate work in the Department of Plant Pathology at the University of Delaware and would have completed his work for his master's degree in the spring. He is an excellent student, and the department regrets his leaving, although proud of the opportunity that he has received.

The Firestone Plantations Company, also the Ford interests, are going extensively into the rubber-growing industry, in an effort to break up the British monopoly in Sumatra and Java. The Ford Company has the option on four millions acres in Brazil, along the River of Doubt, in the region where Roosevelt made extensive explorations.

This will be known as a Ferguson and Johnson Night, in honor of two of the oldest members of the order in Newark, Past Master George Ferguson, and Mr. Jonathan Johnson.

INVITE GRANGE HERE

At this morning's session of the Delaware State Grange Convention, being held in Grange Hall, Milford, Dr. Walter Hultihen, president of the University of Delaware, extended an invitation for the State Grange to hold its next session in Newark.

FREE LUNCH FOR FIFTY FARM BUREAU MEMBERS

A free lunch will be served to the first fifty members of the New Castle County Farm Bureau who signify their intention of attending the annual meeting. The annual meeting is to be held in Wilmington on January 17, the place of meeting to be made public later. This announcement was made recently by H. C. Milliken, of near Cooch's Bridge, President of this farmers' organization. "Attention of the members is brought to the change of the date of this meeting," said Mr. Milliken yesterday. "Due to a conflict of dates with some of the members it was necessary to change from Thursday, January 19, to Tuesday, January 17. Plans for the day's program are going ahead rapidly," says the President. It is expected that a speaker versed on national as well as county units of the farm bureau will be the chief speaker of the day.

This will be the first time that a free lunch has ever been served to the members attending the annual meeting. "It will probably be as special a feature as any other thing on the program," says the secretary, H. Wallace Cook, of Newark. "And it will be advisable to get in your reservation early because the first fifty will be the fortunate ones to get lunch free."

James White Awarded $1000 In Damage Suit

Was Suing B. & O. Railroad For $30,000 For Accident Injuries; Last Of 7 Suits Growing Out Of Same Accident

Two hours after being charged, on Monday afternoon, a jury in Superior Court awarded James M. White, Jr., a student at the University of Delaware, $1,000 in his suit for $30,000 against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for injuries received in an accident on the night of May 8, 1925. White was injured when a B. and O. express train struck a car in which he was riding as it was on the grade crossing at North College avenue, Newark.

White's suit, instituted last Friday, was the last of a series of seven litigations to have been fought in the county courts as the result of the accident, although two suits have yet to be tried for the third time due to the disagreement of two juries, one last June and the other last week.

Counsel for the railroad company comprised John W. Huxley, Jr., and John J. DeLuca. Attorneys for the plaintiff were Charles F. Curley and George L. Townsend, Jr.

As a result of the collision, Ernest N. MacRobert and John L. Hawke were killed, and White and Carl J. Hehl were injured. MacRobert's father, James C. MacRobert, brought two suits against the railroad, one as administrator, and one on his own behalf. The two suits have been each tried twice with the juries disagreeing each time.

Charles Walter Hawke, father of young Hawke also brought two suits, one as administrator and one on his own behalf. As administrator, he was awarded $11,000 damages, and in his individual suit he was awarded $2700 last June.

Hehl was awarded $800 and his father, John F. Hehl, was awarded $200 damages by a jury last June.

Editor Of "Nation" At "College Hour"

Oswald Garrison Villard, Famed Liberal Editor, Last Speaker Of The Term

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of "The Nation" and former owner and editor of the New York Evening Post, was the speaker at the last "College Hour" of the term, which was held this morning in Wolf Hall, at 11 o'clock. His subject was, "Some Newspaper Problems."

Villard graduated from Harvard in 1893 and spent the three years following teaching at that institution. He sharpened his first journalistic spurs as a reporter on the Philadelphia Press. He went from Philadelphia to the New York Evening Post, which was owned by his father. He became owner and editor of The Post on his father's death, and in an era of changing newspaper style and technique, kept The Post the model of all newspapers in the United States. After selling The Post to Curtis, he became owner and editor of "The Nation."

Although a man of considerable wealth, Mr. Villard has always had liberal tendencies and has made "The Nation" a powerful champion of many causes.

One of Mr. Villard's most recent works is "Some Great Newspapers and Newspapermen," in which many of the leading newspapers and newspapermen.

The speaker was a luncheon guest at Women's College today. The luncheon was held in Dean Robinson's dining-room. Other guests were: Dean Robinson, Miss Richardson, Miss Keely, Professor Barkley, and Professor Blair of the University faculty, and the members of the Press Club of Women's College.

AMBULANCE CALLS

The Newark ambulance ran four times on errands of mercy during the past week. On Thursday, Mrs. Simmons, living on Pike Creek road, was taken to the Delaware Hospital by Edward Shakespeare and Bert Crow. Friday there were two calls: Mrs. E. Phoebus was brought from Wilmington to the home of Mrs. Butler on East Main street, Shakespeare and Crow making the trip; and Alfred Ewing took Mr. Alrich from Christiana to Wilmington. Yesterday Walter Powell took Mrs. Joseph Reed, living on Delaware avenue, to the Delaware Hospital.

FRATERNITY TO ATTEND SERVICES

The members of the local chapter of the Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity will attend the morning service of the Newark Methodist Episcopal Church next Sunday.

DANCE WILL HELP THE AMBULANCE FUND

A. O. U. W. Affair Tomorrow Evening In New Century Club House

Tomorrow evening, in the New Century Club House, the A. O. U. W. Boosters Club will give a dance and card party, half of the proceeds of which will go to help cancel the debt on the Newark ambulance. This will be the second dance given by the club this season, and the third since their organization last spring.

The door prize will be a five-pound box of home-made chocolates. There will also be other prizes. The music will be furnished by Buckingham's Serenaders, the lively bunch of Newark musicians who are becoming so popular at dances in this vicinity this season.

Quite a number of out-of-town visitors are expected to be present, and all dancers and card players in Newark are assured a "big" evening, besides the satisfaction of knowing they are helping the ambulance fund.

A. & P. Co. Reflects 30 Years Of Progress

Opens Largest Store South Of New York In Newark; Officials Inspect New Plant

Last Friday morning, thirty years after their representative sold baking powder from door to door in Newark, driving a little green wagon which held his cans of powder and the kitchen utensils which were given free as premiums, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company opened, here, their largest store south of New York City.

The opening Friday was without formality or function, but on Saturday, entertainment was provided in the way of music, and the leading officials in the Company's Southern Division visited the new store.

The new store, which is approximately three times as large as the old establishment, is furnished with brand new equipment throughout. While it is planned to take care of anticipated expansion for some years to come, it is a tribute to the capable management of Mr. T. H. Ford, who has been local store manager for the A. & P. for practically the last six years.

The store on both Friday and Saturday was decorated with large floral pieces, and on Saturday, Buckingham's Orchestra of seven pieces played from 5 to 10 o'clock. It was estimated that between six and seven thousand people visited the store on those two days. In the evening, the officials from the Southern Division, which extends from New York to Jacksonville, Fla., came to Newark to inspect the new establishment. They were: O. C. Adams, president; E. E. Everette, general field manager; C. C. Thompson, general superintendent; and Mr. Cole, director of finances.

REV. JACOBS RECEIVES HONOR

Reverend D. W. Jacobs, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of this town, attended the Seminary Alumni Banquet at the City Club, South Broad street, Philadelphia, on Monday. At that time a chapter of the Alumni Association was formed which shall have as its members ministers from the Wilmington, Philadelphia, New Jersey, and Delaware Conferences, with a vice-president to represent each conference. Reverend Arthur Walls, pastor of the Swarthmore Methodist Episcopal Church, was elected president of the chapter. Reverend D. W. Jacobs was elected vice-president to represent the Wilmington Conference.

SPEAKS THREATENINGLY

Walter J. Scott was fined $5 last Thursday by Magistrate Thompson after being arrested on a warrant sworn to by T. H. Ford, charging disorderly conduct. Mr. Scott is proprietor of a butcher shop in town and Mr. Ford is local manager for the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company. It is said that Mr. Scott, believing that Mr. Ford had tried to hire a boy, who was working for him, met Mr. Ford on the street and took him to task. In the altercation that followed, it is said that Mr. Scott spoke in a threatening manner to Mr. Ford; whereupon Mr. Ford had the warrant served.

Health Board Decides On Health Problems

Resolutions Passed On Cesspools And Diphtheria Inoculation In Schools

The regular meeting of the local Board of Health was held in the Town Council room, December 2, at 8.30 p. m. The following members were present: Dr. Downs, Mr. Lovett, Mr. Strahorn and Dr. Hurdle.

The first order of business was the election of a secretary to fill an existing vacancy, and Dr. S. H. Hurdle was elected to this office.

Next in order was old business on hand. It was reported that several cesspools in the town were overflowing and not only endangering the health of the property owners themselves but was a menace to the health of the entire town by virtue of the fact that they are situated near our water supply. After discussion about sanitation and ways and means of remedying the situation, the following motion was made by Mr. Strahorn that the Board of Health request the Town Council to proceed as fast as possible with the connecting of the residences to our sewerage system, and that as soon as a residence is connected with the sewer that the cesspool be pumped out and filled with earth, and that the section of the town nearest our water supply be the first to receive the connections. The motion was seconded by Mr. Lovett and passed unanimously.

Under new business was brought up for discussion the toxin-antitoxin treatment for diphtheria prevention in the schools. The Board is strongly in favor of this and discussed plans of interesting the people of the town in backing it, and Newark would like to lead the State in this as well as many other health matters. It was decided that the newspapers be asked to print some information on this subject and after the Christmas holidays the Board would ask for a conference with the faculty of the High School and with them discuss the best way of getting the parents interested. It will also be taken up with the Parent-Teacher Association.

The question of quarantining of contagious diseases was taken up and discussed, and it was decided to give the Secretary the responsibility for instituting and maintaining quarantine and the physicians would report the cases to him. This will be done with the aid of the State Board of Health, which has established a unit for New Castle County with offices in this town.

Newark Schools To Close Next Friday

Will Start Christmas Program Wednesday; Class Attends Trial; Professor Brinser In Conference at Dover

The Christmas holiday for the Newark schools will commence on Friday, December 23, and last until Tuesday, January 3. The Christmas program in the schools will be initiated next Wednesday afternoon at 2.00 o'clock when the primary department will present a playlet, "In Santa Claus Land." On Thursday, December 22, at 1.00 o'clock, the elementary grades will give a cantata, "Christmas Fairies." The same evening at 7.30 the Junior and Senior High Schools will present a play, "Santa's Success," in the school auditorium.

Grades 4 and 5 were moved last Friday into the old school building on Main street, all repairs and alterations having been completed. This has greatly facilitated the work being done in the Delaware avenue building.

Last Friday, the Senior High School class in civics, accompanied by Miss Anna Gallaher, teacher of civics, and several practice teachers, attended the meeting of the Superior Court in the case of James White vs. the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. There were 45 in the party.

Last night both the boys and girls basketball squads of the High School, accompanied by Professor Brinser and the coaches, Mr. George Hohl and (Continued on Page 4.)

Delighted Westerner Describes Privileged Visit With Japanese Host, Breaking Several Dictates Of Custom, Shows Exactly How Japanese Home Is Run; Women's "Inferiority" A Misapprehension

Tokyo—I spent a Sunday recently with my friend, whom we shall call Tetsujiro Hara, one of that fortunate group in any country, the middle class. Mr. Hara, who is an American university graduate, and I have long been friends. He has had dinner in my home and I have been his guest at Japanese restaurants, but never before had I visited him in his home. That is rarely done in Japan.

The Japanese does his entertaining at restaurants and keeps his home for himself. If, by any chance, a guest should be invited to partake of a meal in the home, the Honorable Interior, as the wife is called, either does not appear at all or else acts as maid and waitress to her spouse and his friends.

Mr. Hara thought I would be interested in seeing the home and home life of a middle-class Japanese as it is actually lived. The cost of living has driven Mr. Hara from the city proper out into the adjacent countryside, as it has so many other of his fellow workers during the past few years. A ride by electric train of 50 minutes brought us to a little station on the Musashino plain, most extensive of the few flat places in these mountainous islands, and famed in song and story from almost the dawn of Japanese history.

Where City Worker Farms

It is only recently the city dwellers have begun to invade this section of Musashino, and it is still very much as it has been through many centuries. The thatched houses of farmers stand among the fields of rice and garden truck; thickets of bamboo surround rustic temples or shrines. Here, within less than an hour of the capital, is as bucolic an atmosphere as could be asked. My friend, on his little plot of ground, raises all the garden truck he needs, more chickens than he can eat, flowers of beauty and distinction; and now he is to make a landscape garden in the pure Japanese style for his mother's pleasure.

Sunshine streams into Mr. Hara's house from dawn to dusk, and in summer the breezes from the mountains play through it. The house is Japanese, but with certain modern modifications. The walls are sliding screens, but they are of glass instead of paper. One room is his study, with bookshelves and with chairs like those of the West. A cellar, an innovation indeed in Japan, has been dug, and in other ways the conveniences of the Western world have been added to the artistry of Japan.

His mother, scarce four feet tall, was pottering around the garden as we approached, but she hastily fled indoors, for it would never do to greet the honorable guest in such fashion. A semi-detached room, flooded with sunshine and commanding a view of the blossoming plants, has been built for her, and there she may be as secluded as she desires, to dream and read.

After a few minutes, in order to permit a change of costume, we called at her room to pay our respects. She came out on the little half-balcony that encircles a Japanese house, knelt upon its boards and gave the courteous greeting of old Japan. The wife knelt at the door to welcome us, and the maid hovered in the background. Never before had a foreigner crossed their threshold, and they were most eager to please. My host, knowing my fondness for the bamboo, the hanging scroll in the place of honor had been selected by him for my pleasure, and depicted a grove of those slender, graceful trees.

Guest Must Eat Before Hostess Does Through the house we went, my host showing me this point and that, and then out into the garden, where each flower was examined carefully and the growing vegetables were praised. A short stroll through the countryside followed, and we called on some of the neighbors. They included a retired commander of the navy, two artists, professors from the universities. Mounting prices in Japan have driven men of this class from the noisy city to the more soothing countryside.

The meal had been especially planned, and the food served was such as a foreigner is most apt to like. The chickens, which formed the central dish, were his own, and most of the vegetables that went into the pot were from his own garden. The wife slipped in and out, serving us and seeing that every want was supplied. The meal progressed slowly, for it was interlarded with conversation. My host glanced at his watch, called his wife and asked her to invite his mother to eat now in her own room. But the mother would not touch a mouthful, not until the Honorable Guest had been fed. So it was with the wife. Only when my host and I had completed our repast did the women of the household break their fast.

Much has been written of the "inferior position" of women in Japan, and inferior it is in contrast to the place that the women of America occupy. But the inferiority is largely one of convenience, and there is the same pleasant companionship and camaraderie between the husband and the wife in Dai Nihon as in the United States. It was plainly visible between my host and his wife. It is equally evident on the trains and other public places where men and women are seen together.

The afternoon passed all too quickly, and falling shadows warned me that I must depart. Mother, wife and maid all gathered at the entrance way, once more to kneel on the matted floor to wish me God-speed and to plead for my return.—From Christian Science Monitor.

JUDGE POWELL WRITES HISTORY OF DELAWARE

"A History of Delaware," by Judge Walter A. Powell, has just been issued by the Christopher Publishing House, of Boston. It is a volume of 475 pages, bound in attractive blue cover. The illustrations are numerous and full-page, and are of important events in the history of the Diamond State.

Part I, which comprises the major portion of the volume, gives a general history of Delaware from the first discoveries until 1925. Part II is devoted to the history of education in Delaware.

The book is designed for supplemental school history study, and for general use. It has the advantage over previous Delaware histories in bringing the chronicles of affairs up to date.

The author was formerly judge of the Circuit Court of Jackson county, Missouri, and is the author of "The Pilgrims and Their Religious, Intellectual and Civic Life."

WILL PRINT AUTO REGISTRATION LIST

At a meeting of the State Board of Supplies, last Wednesday, the matter of having the list of automobile registrations printed, was discussed. For several years, the list of registrations have been printed in a book form and could be purchased for $1 the set of twelve books. When bids were given out for the major part of the State printing some months ago, the printing of these lists was not favorably considered as it was a question with the board as to whether it warranted the expense.

After a discussion of the matter, it was decided to print the lists on loose leaf sheets. The charge for the lists was not set but will be decided upon probably at the next meeting of the board.

Sons of Delaware Honor Dr. Jump

Dr. Henry D. Jump was unanimously re-elected president of the Sons of Delaware of Philadelphia at the yearly meeting, held Wednesday evening, in connection with the annual banquet at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. The officers, in addition to Dr. Jump, are as follows:

First vice-president, Alex. F. Williams; second vice-president, F. G. Gallagher; secretary, John L. Graham, Jr.; treasurer, Franklin H. Gulick; historian, George Morgan; board of governors (term to expire in 1930), Clarence S. Nesbitt, M. N. Willits, Jr., and B. G. Moore.

The dinner, which was held in the Clover Room of the hotel, was one of the most delightful functions in the history of the Sons of Delaware. About 300 persons were present, the members having as their guests their wives and daughters.

Prominent Speakers

Addresses were made by United States Senator C. C. Dill, of the State of Washington; Governor Robert P. Robinson, Rev. Philip J. Steinmetz, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, at Elkins Park, Pa., and Thomas F. Armstrong, president of the New Jersey State Society of Philadelphia.

Senator Dill pointed out the advantages of American citizenship. While the United States has 6 per cent of the world's population, he said, it consumes 16 per cent of all the wheat grown, utilizing many other world products in even greater proportion. He attributed the high value of American citizenship to our form of government and the fact that our working people are highly skilled and industrious. Mr. Steinmetz talked entertainingly on the art of living, urging all to cultivate a sense of humor and appreciation. Governor Robinson brought greetings from Sussex, Kent and New Castle counties, adding his own as officially representing the State. Mr. Armstrong urged his hearers to love people as a means of prolonging and enjoying their own lives.

A delightful musical program was given by the Aeolian Male Quartet, comprising Charles Stahl, Bernard Poland, George Emes and John Vandersloot, with Henry Lukens at the piano.

The following residents of Delaware were in attendance: Governor and Mrs. Robert P. Robinson, Miss Mary L. Stelle, Mr. and Mrs. Alonza Newlin, Mr. and Mrs. J. Perkins Groome, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. H. Grier, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hardesty, Dr. H. V. Holloway, George L. Medill, Mrs. Everett C. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Rice, and William E. Snyder.

Good, the more communicated, the more abundant grows.—Milton.

The Captain Jeremiah Baker Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its regular monthly meeting on Saturday afternoon, December 10, at the home of Mrs. Albert DeWitt Mackey. Owing to the illness of the regent, Mrs. H. Benge Simmons, Mrs. Elva Gilpin Denny, vice-regent, presided. Reports of officers and committees were read. Mrs. Irvine T. Kepler, registrar of the chapter, also chairman of the conservation and thrift committee, read to the chapter the offer of the State chairman on conservation to supply living Christmas trees to chapters that desired them. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Arthur H. Owens, of Perryville, in January.

The Maryland Academy of Sciences has successfully removed many of the sculptured rocks carved by Indians in the Susquehanna. The building of the Conowingo dam would have caused the waters to cover entirely the historic rocks, which would be lost for all time. Therefore their removal was ordered, and under the direction of Francis C. Nicholas, dean of the Academy, has just been completed.

Christiana

Professor Ryden, of the University of Delaware, was the speaker at the evening service in the Christiana M. E. Church last Sunday.

The teachers and pupils of the Presbyterian Sunday School have begun practicing for the Christmas entertainment, which will consist mainly of a cantata—"Here Comes Christmas!"

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church will be held this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Appleby, near New Castle. It is expected that Santa Claus will pay a visit to the society at that time.

It happened that the date of the last regular meeting of the Christiana Improvement Association, December 6, was also the date of the seventeenth birthday of Mrs. Sue Currinder, one of the oldest and most popular members of the association. And so, in honor of the happy coincidence, the social part of the meeting took the form of a surprise for Mrs. Currinder. A congratulatory speech was made by the president, Mr. R. Earle Dickey, and Mrs. Currinder responded in her usual sprightly and facetious manner, for he it known that this lady is "old" in years only! Following a varied program, refreshments were served, and a birthday cake was presented to the guest of honor. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Louis Thorpe, Jr., Mrs. Preston W. Spence, Jr., and Mrs. John Hanna.

Mrs. Currinder was also the recipient of a postal shower on her birthday, and on Sunday entertained a houseful of guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Maclary and sons, Harry and Alfred, spent Thursday afternoon and evening of last week with Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson, of Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Earle Dickey visited friends in Ridley Park on Sunday.

Miss Florence Appleby and Mrs. Harvey Maclary were both confined to their homes by illness over the week-end.

At last the current has been turned on in the recently installed electric street lights, and now the streets of the village, including the famous old "Back Lane," are all lit up.

It is gratifying to be able to announce that a large proportion, at least seventy-five per cent, of the pupils in the local school have now received the toxin-antitoxin inoculation for diphtheria. It surely would be difficult now for an epidemic of the dread disease to get a foothold in Christiana.

Mrs. R. Earle Dickey, who, as Miss Edna Chambers, taught in the local school, substituted in the lower room Monday afternoon in the absence of the regular teacher, Mrs. E. E. Kennard, of Newark.

Help the Needy

The Welfare Committee of the Newark New Century Club is engaged in a noble work. Working as they do, quietly, and without making public the names of the needy ones, they learn of some worthy persons who have not cared to appeal to the usual agencies of relief. These women have gained the respect of all of the organizations in the town, so that they are assisted in their work by schools, churches, and lodges, as well as by individuals.

The form in which they have stated their "cases" this year is very appealing, and makes each one of the needy ones seem very human and near to us. Before we spend all the extra money we have on those who already have enough, let us do as those friends would wish us to do,—give a bit to one of "Newark's Ten Neediest Cases."

Little Philena McVey is improving slowly from an attack of pneumonia.

Gray O. Lomax was obliged to have the index finger of his left hand amputated, due to an infection. The operation was performed this morning at the Homeopathic Hospital in Wilmington.

A Different Christmas Gift

Everyone has some friend to whom he would like to send a remembrance—something more than a card, but not so expensive as gifts are now—days. Then one doesn't always know a friend's tastes in gifts, even in books.

But any friend, young or old, will be delighted with a copy of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, beautifully printed on good paper, and attractively bound. It is an unusual gift, one that speaks the thoughtful giver. It will be a time-saver to put several of these books on your list and send us your order. Price, one dollar, plus postage. De luxe copies, ten dollars.—Adv.

The secretary of the school, H. P. Williams, will make the announcements. Reverend Jacobs will be chairman of the program and J. L. Cagle, of the decorations.

VIOLATE SNOW ORDINANCE

The Diamond Ice Company paid a fine of one dollar last week for violation of the town snow ordinance. The ordinance states that snow must be cleared from sidewalks six hours after it ceases falling; except when it ceases between sunset and sunrise on Sunday, when it is required that it be cleared by twelve o'clock noon of the following day.

Newark's Ten Neediest Homes

Family No. 6

Father, mother and four children. This young mother lost her sight a few years ago but she bravely and cheerfully tries to do her housework and care for her children. She cooks and mends! The father is a laborer on part time and his meagre wages cannot meet their needs.

Family No. 7

Husband and wife. The husband has tuberculosis and has only a temporary position. The wife will do day work when she can get it. A little Christmas cheer is needed here.

Family No. 8

A widow with two boys, one having broken his leg recently. There is practically no income to supply the many needs.

Family No. 9

Five motherless children with a father who is trying to be both mother and father. Can you think of what Christmas is going to be in this home without a mother?

Family No. 10

Here is an exceptionally pitiful case. A mother, father and nine children. The father is unfit to work on account of his health but he struggles on to care for his family. The mother faces a serious operation after the holidays. The children walk a great distance to school and are poorly clad. The committee finds serious needs here.

If any particular case above appeals to you more than another, state the one for which you prefer your contribution used and the committee will comply with your wishes. Money received for the cause at the office of The Newark Post will be promptly turned over to the committee.

The Club House will be open between the hours of 10.30 and 4. Remember the date, December 22.

We thank you in advance for any assistance in caring for the above.

EXHIBITS ART WORK IN CALIFORNIA CITY

The Newark Post is glad to extend congratulations to an old friend, Mrs. Marian Clark Cooch, whose work was a part of the exhibition by artist members of the Berkeley, California, Branch of the American Pen Women which was held the week of November 19 in that city.

Hamilton A. Wolf, lecturer in art at the University of California, has written a criticism of the exhibition. Of Mrs. Cooch's work he wrote: "Next the entrance is a group of canvases by Marion Clark Cooch and the most convincing and interesting canvas is her painting of the green apples. Her figure composition may have qualities of color, but you feel that she was freer and more at home painting a mighty fine still-life."

Mrs. Cooch has a host of friends here, as she lived for many years at the Cooch homestead at Cooch's Bridge. She now directs the art work in the Normal School at San Francisco.

HOLSTEIN ASSOCIATION TO MEET ON FRIDAY

The winter meeting of the Delaware Holstein-Friesian Association will be held at the farm of J. Harold Schabinger, Felton, Delaware, Friday, December 16.

A luncheon will be served at 12.30. Beginning at 1.30 the following speakers have promised to talk on topics of interest to both Holstein-Friesian breeders and dairymen: Dr. De Voë Meade, Department of Animal Husbandry, University of Maryland; Mr. Paul B. Bennet, Walker-Gordon Farms, Planesboro, N. J.; and Mr. T. A. Baker, Professor of Dairy Husbandry, University of Delaware.

This should be a most interesting and instructive meeting, and everyone interested in Holstein cattle and modern dairy methods is invited to attend.

C. E. MEETINGS

The young people of Lower Delaware are looking forward enthusiastically to the Christian Endeavor meetings to be held in Sussex and Kent counties this week, beginning December 13th and ending on the 18th.

Mr. Willard E. Rice, Executive Secretary for Delaware, Maryland, and West Virginia, will attend all of these meetings and will take part on each program. On Sunday, the Delaware State Officers will also attend the three meetings of the day.

Several changes in plans have taken place, since the last announcement was made concerning these meetings, so that the schedule now stands as follows:

On Tuesday evening, December 13, at 5:00 o'clock, the "Fun and Fellowship" supper which commenced the C. E. activities, was held in the Delmar Church Hall. At 7:30 that evening, the Junior and Intermediate Winter Rally took place in the Delmar M. P. Church, Mrs. L. C. Darby (State Intermediate Superintendent) having charge of the program. The The Cannon Intermediates hold the Attendance Banner for the largest percentage of active members present at the Greenwood Rally in October; and on Tuesday evening, competition for the attendance banner ran high.

Meetings at 7:30 each evening for the balance of the week will be held in the following churches: on Wednesday in the Lewes M. P. Church; Thursday, Greenwood M. P.; Friday, Smyrna Presbyterian; Saturday, Dagsboro M. P.; Sunday, Milton M. P. Also a meeting will be held Sunday morning at 10:30 in the Cannon M. P. Church, and one in the afternoon at 2:30 in the Laurel M. P. Church.

The Sussex and Kent county rallies to be held in Delmar and Smyrna respectively on the above-mentioned dates, will both be big affairs.

Alkalies discolor aluminum, therefore it should never be washed with strong soap or strong washing powders, or washing soda. The dark color on aluminum pans and utensils may be rubbed off with whiting or with very fine steel wool, or dissolved by the acid of vinegar or diluted oxalic acid. All acids should be thoroughly washed off. Oxalic acid is a poison and should be so marked, and be kept out of the way of children.

Why the Evergreen Trees Never Lose Their Leaves

Winter was coming, and the birds had flown far to the south, where the air was warm and they could find berries to eat. One little bird had broken its wing and could not fly with the others. It was alone in the cold world of frost and snow. The forest looked warm, and it made its way to the trees as well as it could, to ask for help.

First it came to a birch tree. "Beautiful birch tree," it said, "my wing is broken, and my friends have flown away. May I live among your branches till they come back to me?"

"No, indeed," answered the birch tree, drawing her fair green leaves away. "We of the great forest have our own birds to help. I can do nothing for you."

"The birch is not very strong," said the little bird to itself, "and it might be that she could not hold me easily. I will ask the oak." So the bird said: "Great oak tree, you are so strong, will you not let me live on your boughs till my friends come back in the springtime?"

"In the springtime!" cried the oak. "That is a long way off. How do I know what you might do in all that time? Birds are always looking for something to eat, and you might even eat up some of my acorns."

"It may be that the willow will be kind to me," thought the bird, and it said: "Gentle willow, my wing is broken, and I could not fly to the south with the other birds. May I live on your branches till the springtime?"

The willow did not look gentle then, for she drew herself up proudly and said: "Indeed, I do not know you, and we willows never talk to people whom we do not know. Very likely there are trees somewhere that will take in strange birds. Leave me at once."

The poor little bird did not know what to do. Its wing was not yet strong, but it began to fly away as well as it could. Before it had gone far a voice was heard. "Little bird," it said, "where are you going?"

"Indeed I do not know," answered the bird sadly, "I am very cold."

"Come right here, then," said the friendly spruce tree, for it was her voice that had called. "You shall live on my warmest branch all winter if you choose."

"Will you really let me?" asked the little bird eagerly.

"Indeed, I will," answered the kind-hearted spruce tree. "If your friends have flown away, it is time for the trees to help you. Here is the branch where my leaves are thickest and softest."

"My branches are not very thick," said the friendly pine tree, "but I am big and strong, and I can keep the North Wind from you and the spruce."

"I can help, too," said a little juniper tree. "I can give you berries all winter long, and every bird knows that juniper berries are good."

So the spruce gave the lonely little bird a home; the pine kept the cold North Wind away from it; and the juniper gave it berries to eat. The other trees looked on and talked together wisely.

"I would not have strange birds on my boughs," said the birch.

"I shall not give my acorns away for any one," said the oak.

"I never have anything to do with strangers," said the willow, and the three trees drew their leaves closely about them.

In the morning all those shining, green leaves lay on the ground, for a cold North Wind had come in the night, and every leaf that it touched fell from the tree.

"May I touch every leaf in the forest?" asked the wind in its frolic.

"No," said the Frost King. "The trees that have been kind to the little bird with the broken wing may keep their leaves."

This is why the leaves of the spruce, the pine, and the juniper are always green.—By Florence Holbrook.

WHY NOT PLAY CHARADES?

The game of charades is such an old favorite that it is well worth frequent revivals. Those who compose the audience usually enjoy themselves quite as much as the actual participants, and by making changes in the performers from time to time there is opportunity for everyone to take an active part.

As a charade is a syllable puzzle, presented either orally or in a series of tableaux, any word chosen as a subject should have several syllables. Each syllable must constitute a word which can be used in its proper order as a single part of the entire charade to be presented in the final act or tableau. The word charade is said to come from an Italian word meaning to chatter, prattle, or to amuse by bright conversation. This is well carried out in the oral charade, as the chief requirement is a talent for what is known as "small talk" which serves as a background for the words used as subjects.

The game is played by selecting 3 or 4 persons to take part in the performance, the remainder of the group to constitute the audience and guess what word is being acted. The chosen ones retire to another room and decide upon the word for the charade.

Take the word "ingratiolate," for instance. The performers confer as to the best way of presenting the first syllable, which would be "inn." The next syllable, "gray," would be a simple matter, the episode relating to a gray cat or a person by the name of Gray, or both. The more frequently the syllable is mentioned, the better. The third syllable, "she," could easily be used as an exclamation, and the final syllable "ate" or "eight" would finish the word. The entire word could be presented in tableau form showing a girl dressed in a gray dress and sitting at table eating. (In-gray-she-ate); or expressed orally by the players.

Care must be taken to mention the important word in each case clearly but not too obtrusively. The meaning is more concealed when syllables are used that form short words that can be spelled and defined in two different ways, though pronounced the same. The word "porcupine" may be amusingly presented by taking "pork" for the first syllable, "yew" for the second and "pine," either as a verb or a noun, for the final syllable. "Memento" is a favorite word with charade-players and so is "humiliate," as "Hugh" and "Milly" may be the names of two of the players and frequent repetition of the two words does not necessarily lead the audience to connect the names with the subject of the charade.

"Penmanship," "detrimental," "transformation," "souvenir," and "dictionary" are all excellent, as the syllable "tion" can always be treated as though spelled "shun" and phonetically, the final syllable "ary" in any word may be taken as though its spelling were "airy." Two syllables may also be run together as in "debt-rye-mental" and "sou-vener."

Such a game arouses much inventiveness as to methods of introducing the necessary words into a conversation, and the more amusing the dialogue is, the more entertainment is provided both for players and audience.—Christian Science Monthly.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A GOOD MEAT PIE

On a cold day there are few dinner dishes as satisfying and appetizing as a good meat pie.

Almost any meat may be used in the pie—particularly stewing lamb, stewing beef, chuck steak cut in small pieces, or a round from a shin of beef. Whatever is used, of meat and potatoes and other vegetables, should be thoroughly cooked before being put into the pastry-lined baking pan. If only a top crust is used, the meat and vegetables may be cooked in the pan and the crust placed over them when they are done. The crust will bake in about twenty minutes in a hot oven.

To insure a good pie, the crust must be light and wholesome. Different kinds of pastry may be used, but most people prefer a good biscuit dough. The following is a good-proportioned recipe: Sift together two cupsful of flour, two teaspoonsful of baking powder, and one teaspoonful of salt. Work in a third of a cupful of shortening, and add enough cold water to form a soft dough. Roll the under crust out thin, but let the upper one be half an inch thick.

After you have cooked the ingredients of the pie, it is important that enough liquid or stock from the meat is put into it to keep the pie from getting dry during the baking. If a thin gravy is made from the stock in which the meat cooked and poured over the meat, almost to the top of the baking dish, the pie will be sufficiently moist.

SMOTHERED HAM

Get a two-inch slice of meat cut from the middle of the ham; trim, wash, cover with cold water and simmer it until the meat is tender; about 40 minutes. If the ham is very salty change the water once or twice during the cooking process. Drain, put in a baking pan and stick 6 whole cloves in the top of the meat. Have ready 1 cupful of scalded milk in which 1 cupful of stale bread crumbs have been soaked until soft; add to this 1 tablespoonful of chopped onion and 1/2 of a teaspoonful of salt. Beat well and spread over the ham. Cover the bread with a generous layer of brown sugar. Bake in a moderate oven about 45 minutes, until the top is crisp and golden brown.

BROWN POTATO BALLS

Wash and peel large potatoes, cut them into balls with a large cutter and leave them in cold water until needed. Boil five minutes in a salted water, drain and place in a large pan containing 4 tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Bake in a hot oven, shaking the balls around in the pan occasionally, until the potatoes are done and golden-brown in color. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Serve as a garnish around the ham.

CREOLE RICE

Cut four slices of bacon into small pieces and cook till crisp, to the fat in the pan add a tablespoonful of chopped onion, one green pepper cut in strips, and half a pimiento shredded. Cook till the onion is brown, then add one and one-half cupfuls of boiled rice, and the same quantity of strained tomato juice. Season with salt, pepper and butter and sprinkle when serving with paprika.

CHEESE DREAMS

Grate enough cheese to make two cups, or run it through the chopper, making it quite soft. To the cheese add one well beaten egg, half a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Spread the mixture on pieces of bread cut as for toast, on each lay a slice of bacon and put in a hot oven; cook till bread toasts and the cheese melts and puffs and bacon cooks a light brown. Serve hot.

Instead of buying or making a mattress cover, just try using a sheet. I take a large-sized one, tuck it in well, and find it much easier as it can be laundered once a month. I use a bottom sheet just the same, having three sheets on at a time.

LITTLE KNACKS OF MEAT COOKERY WORTH KNOWING

Use sour cream as the liquid in making veal or lamb gravy.

A clove of garlic tucked into the joint of a leg of lamb gives it a flavor that is different.

Put a bay leaf in the pan with roast pork or braised pork chops.

Ham baked in pineapple juice is delicious.

The syrup left from pickled fruits such as peaches or pears makes a delicious flavoring for roast meats.

Try pouring a cup of such juices and a cup of water over a roast of veal or beef.

Serve fried oysters with beef pot roast and use the oyster liquor for making the gravy.

A Year Around Fruit

Gone are the summer fruits but recently here in such profusion! Regret at their loss is not felt as it was twenty-five years ago, for most fruits and vegetables are obtainable in cans at any season today. Not all, however, have the perennial appeal of pineapple which seems to fill a gastronomic need whether it be fall, winter, spring or summer, according to the calendar.

In the fall the consumption of savory and fat meats jumps, and pineapple seems necessary to go with them as a variant of the old standby applesauce. In fact, it has all the advantages of apple with the additional one that it actually helps to digest protein. It can appear in any course of a many course dinner, since it can be combined with many foods.

For Winter Fare

In the winter pineapple continues to appear with lamb, with pork, sweet potatoes, in salads and in desserts. It also lends itself to the preparation of delicious confections. Is anything much nicer and more attractive than slices of candied pineapple in the center of a box of homemade sweets?

To make this confection, add one cup of sugar to the syrup drained from one can of sliced pineapple. Bring to a boil, add the fruit, and simmer gently until the fruit is transparent. Drain from the syrup a second time. To the syrup now add one cup of sugar, and boil until it spins a thread from the tip of a spoon. Add the pineapple slices and cook slowly until the syrup begins to granulate. Drain the pineapple and let it stand until dry enough to handle.

For Spring and Summer

In the spring, the appetite craves acids. Many people who do not like rhubarb are enthusiastic over a combination of rhubarb and pineapple. Conserves of pineapple and strawberries, pineapple and rhubarb, or of all three combined are liked by everyone all the year, but they must be made when the rhubarb is young.

When summer comes we have an embarrassment of riches in fruits, and tend to eat too many strawberries one month, too many peaches another, and so weary of them. With a little ingenuity, this can be avoided, for pineapple blends to give a new flavor with each one of them.

ATTRACTIVE WAYS OF PREPARING MEAT SUNDRIES OFFERED

In nearly every publication that one picks up these days, be it newspaper, magazine or scientific journal, one finds an article telling of the place of diet in the treatment of anemia. Among the foods considered most valuable because of their iron content are listed liver and kidneys. If they are to appear very often in the diet—and these iron-yielding foods must make up a goodly portion of each meal in cases of anemia—it is a problem to know how to prepare them in different ways. The recipe given below will be found delicious and unusual.

Baked Liver with Stuffing

1 Calf's or lamb's liver
Salt and pepper
Salt pork

Wash the liver well in cold, salted water. Make an incision in the thickest part with a long, narrow, sharp knife. Do not enlarge very much the opening where the blade enters but move the point of the knife back and forth to make the cavity bigger. Fill with any savory bread dressing. Season the liver with salt and pepper, and dredge with flour. Place in a roasting-pan, lay strips of fat salt pork over it, and add a little water. Roast for one hour, basting frequently. When done, thicken the gravy in the pan and serve with the meat.

The Kitchen Alcove

The kitchen with a breakfast-nook has nothing on the dining-room with a kitchen alcove! The latter is the latest innovation in the way of space-saving. It is divided from the dining-room by painted panels somewhat resembling those used in a Pullman car to separate the different sections when the berths are made up. These panels are painted to match the woodwork of the dining-room.

The kitchen alcove means also time-saving and step-saving. Most women like this reduction of space in the culinary department. And the majority of men enjoy sitting at a real dining table, with plenty of room underneath it in which to stretch their legs. So the kitchen alcove is being built into many of our modern dining-rooms, with the idea of making this room the feature, and the kitchen incidental. In some of the newer apartment houses, the kitchen alcove has supplanted the built-in kitchenette.

On one side of the alcove is the stove, on the opposite side the sink and ice-box. Small cupboards are built over both stove and sink to hold the various culinary utensils. While these cupboards are painted or enameled on the outside to match the woodwork, a brighter color is often used on the inside, thus adding a pleasing decorative touch. The ice-box is painted the same color as the cupboards.

With such an arrangement, there is usually a china cabinet in the room, to hold glass, china and silverware, and the interior of this is painted or enameled to match the interiors of the small cupboards in the kitchen alcove.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

Most persons, we think, will be rather surprised at the extent of the rural mail service in a State so small as Delaware, and the annual report has a peculiar interest to this State, as our rural mail service is supervised by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General H. H. Billany, formerly of Wilmington.

A total of 14,105 Delaware families are served by this system, which shows the penetrating effect of Federal activities. These families are brought into closer contact with the outside world because of this system. The largest area covered is in Sussex county.

The rural mail delivery evidences the progress the government has been making in its desire to benefit the people. Wilmington Morning News.

The idea that hot breads contain harmful gases has no scientific support. Fresh bread made of good ingredients contains nothing harmful to either children or adults. Fresh bread, however, is rather moist and soft, and a young child may eat it without sufficient chewing. The crusty parts are necessarily chewed, and if the fresh bread is crusty, it is entirely suitable for children.

Roasts from the so-called tender cuts are better if cooked without water. Sear the outside at a high temperature to keep the meat juices within, then lower the temperature somewhat and roast for 15 to 20 minutes to the pound.

GAS RANGE ONE OF MOST USEFUL CHRISTMAS GIFTS

One of the most useful gifts for the modern housewife is an oven-controlled gas range, such as the Gas Company offers its patrons. Through the use of this automatic oven-control an entire meal may be put in the oven at one time and the temperature fixed and then the housewife may go about her duties, returning in two or three hours to find the meal all cooked and ready to serve.

In addition to this oven-controlled range, there are various other gas appliances that sales representative Fletcher would be glad to show anyone. Because this is the first Christmas that Newark has been served with gas, there could be no more serviceable and attractive gifts for the wife and mother than a gas range of some sort.—Advt.

Twenty-two persons have been apprehended and prosecuted for hunting or killing migratory waterfowl with the use of airplanes since the Federal migratory-bird treaty act became effective, in 1918, under the administration of the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. Violations of this character have occurred in 11 States. In 11 cases the defendants were convicted and fines totaling $240 imposed, ranging from $10 to $50 each. In two cases the grand jury failed to return a true bill, and the remaining nine cases were dismissed.

TRAFFIC CASES

Three traffic cases were heard before Magistrate Thompson during the past week. Thomas Ennis, of Marshallton, was arrested Thursday by State Highway Officer William Knecht on a charge of reckless driving and fined $25.

Constable William Wideman, on Thursday, arrested J. Arthur Roberts, of Philadelphia, on the same charge and he contributed the same amount to the State.

On Monday, Wilmer Sharp, who is employed by The Wilmington Automobile Company, was stopped by State Officer William Knecht for driving a truck without tags. It developed that he was also without an operator's license. The charge of driving without tags was dropped, but he paid $25 for being without an operator's license.

WOULD DEPORT ALIEN
WHO DEFIES LAWS

Aliens who try to subvert the United States Constitution and the laws of the land are bad. But native-born citizens who would destroy our government are worse, is the opinion given by Silas H. Strawn, president of the American Bar Association, in an address delivered to that body last week.

"I wish," he said, "some more effective means could be devised for the immediate deportation of those aliens who come to this country of liberty and opportunity that they may enjoy for themselves and their children better homes, schools, churches, more amusements, higher wages, and more and better of everything that goes to contribute to their happiness and material prosperity, than in any other country on earth, yet who spend a large part of their time in efforts to subvert our Constitution and laws.

"Even more despicable is the native-born citizens who posing as an 'advanced thinker' or 'parlor socialist' would destroy our system of government or embarrass the enforcement of our laws and would bring upon this country the poverty, chaos and disorder that obtains in other less fortunate lands."

Only for a combination of untoward circumstances with which he had nothing to do and over which he had no control, Mr. Wilkinson would have been elected president four years ago, because he was in direct line of promotion. Despite that set-back, he continued to hew to the mark in behalf of Kiwanis, with the result that at yesterday's election he was swept into the office without opposition and by the unanimous vote of the club. It

Them Old Cheery Words

By JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

Pap he allus used to say
"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"
Liked to hear him that-a-way,
In his old split-bottomed cheer
By the fireplace here at night—
Wood all in—and room all bright,
Warm and snug and folks all here;
"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"

We and 'Lize and Warr'n and Jess,
And Eldory home for two Weeks' vacation; and, I guess,
Old folks tickled through and through,
Same as WE was—"Home onc't more
Fer another Chris'mus—shore!"
Pap 'od' say, and tilt his cheer—
"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"

Mostly Pap was up to be
Ser'ous in his "daily walk,"
As he called; gen'ally
Was no hand to joke or talk.
Fae's is, Pap had never be'n Rugged—like at all—and then
The years in the army had Hepped to break him pretty bad.

Never FLINCHED—But frost and snow
Hurt his wound in winter. But
You bet MOTHER knowed it, though Watched his feet, and made him
putt
On his flannels; and his knee,
Where it never healed up, he

Forestry Dept. Will Aid Woodland Owners

The State of Delaware has approximately 300,000 acres of woodland requiring the assistance of the Forestry Department. One of the chief aims of the Delaware State Forestry Department is to bring back to maximum productivity all the forest lands of the State. It will further aim to bring about the conversion of the thousands of acres of waste and barren lands in the Atlantic Coastal Plain to productive acres by encouraging the growth of trees.

Waste lands are a criterion of unproductiveness for both the individual and the State. They are a liability to the property owner and produce no revenue to the State. Of the land now comprising the sandy beaches, low, shifting dunes, and back of them the level stretches of middle beach and swampy areas found on the inland, seventy-five per cent is capable of supporting tree growth. Steps should be taken to hold the shifting sands with beach grass and plant the suitable areas with young trees. Trees thus planted would soon be large enough to afford protection to the area and thus increase land values and add to the general prosperity of the State.

It is the general opinion of Delaware people, acquainted with this land, that such an afforestation project is impossible. However, the State of Michigan, under similar conditions, has been very successful in reclaiming sand dunes with Jack Pine. Again, the largest artificially established forest in the world, consisting of some 75,000 acres and known as the Maritime Pine Forest, is in the Landes Region of France. It was established on just such land as lies on the eastern coast of Delaware. Although it may be difficult to establish a forest here, nevertheless, it can be done and is an entirely feasible proposition to undertake.

It is by direct co-operation with the owners of woodlands and wastelands that the work will progress. To this end, it is the purpose of the State Forestry Department to give the land owners the scientific knowledge necessary to the solution of the problem involved. The problem which is the guiding principle of the service, to be rendered involves a continuous production of trees in forest lands.

Since practically the entire woodland and waste land acreage in the State is privately owned, the extent of assistance given is dependent on (1) the number of requests received for such aid; and (2) the funds available for the work. The assistance given is divided into two classes (1) Advice on procedure involved in improving and maintaining woodlands in a productive condition; and (2) marking and estimating timber for the owners. In the second case the forester must spend a great deal of time estimating the harvest, marking which trees are to be removed and which are to be retained for the purpose of providing a future forest.

This work of assisting woodland owners is of benefit not only to the individual by introducing better forest management on his land, but will render a much greater service as object lessons to the community and State at large. Each project of this kind will constitute a concrete example of what the State Forestry Department service is and what it is willing to do in order to establish sound forestry practice.

Claimed was "well, now—mighty near!"

"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"

"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"
Pap 'od' say and snap his eyes . . .
How o' apples spatterin' here
Round the hearth, and me and 'Lize
Crackin' hicker-nuts; and Warr'n
And Eldory parchin' corn;
And whole raft o' young folks here.
"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"

Mother tuk most comfort in Jest a-heppin' Pap; she'd fill
His pipe fer him, er his tin
O' hard cider; er set still
And read fer him out the pile
O' newspapers putt on file
While he was with Sherman—(She Knowned the whole war-history!)

Sometimes he'd git het up some.
"Boys," he'd say, "and you girls too,
Chris'mus is about to come;
So, as you've a right to do
CELEBRATE it! Lots has died,
Same as Him they crucified,
That you might be happy here.
"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"

Missed his voice last Chris'mus—missed
Them old cheery words, you know.
Mother belt up tel she kissed
All of us—then had to go
And break down! and I laughs:
"Here!
Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"
"Them's his very words," sobbed she,
"When he asked to marry me."

"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"
"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year."
Over, over, still I hear,
"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"
Yit, like him, I'm goin' to smile
And keep cheerful all the while:
Allus Chris'mus THERE—and here.
"Chris'mus comes but onc't a year!"

Philadelphia Fried Oysters

Get the largest, finest oysters obtainable and handle them carefully. Rinse them with cold water, lay them in a colander to drain, then dry each oyster by laying it in a fold of a soft napkin and patting it gently. With a steel fork caught in the "eye" of the oyster—never pierce the body because that liberates the juices—dip the oyster in egg and then in fine cracker dust until the oyster is completely coated. Some experts dash the prepared oysters with cayenne pepper just before frying. The fat should be deep and smoking hot, with a little butter added to it. Put in only enough oysters to cover the bottom of the kettle without crowding. When one side is brown, turn and brown the other. Such oysters are free from grease, plump, tender and delicious.

Garnish with quarters of lemon and a little parsley and pass dainty slices of graham bread lightly buttered. The addition of white crisp celery or watercress, and a simple fruit dessert makes a delightful meal that is easily prepared.

It often happens that in buying fresh oysters one gets some too small to fry and even the large ones shrink distressingly when they are cooked. Here is a method whereby oysters of all sizes may be fried to advantage: Drain them well, then rinse them, remove all traces of shell and drain again. Sprinkle with pepper and salt and leave them to stand a few minutes while one mixes together 1 cupful of cornmeal, flour, cracker dust or fine bread crumbs, with ½ of a teaspoonful of baking powder. Dip the oysters into the well-beaten yolk of an egg, then roll them in the dry mixture until each is well-coated all over. Fry in deep fat until delicately browned and serve immediately.

Oysters so prepared increase greatly in size, are "puffy" and altogether delicious. Several rollings in the egg and dry mixture will add greatly to the size and appearance of the small oysters, though the thicker the layer surrounding the oyster the more is the delicacy of taste lost. Lacking a frying basket, remove the oysters from the fat with a perforated spoon.

Good dairy cows while milking should not be overly fat. They can well be fed enough to put on some flesh during the dry period and should be fed so as to keep in good condition while in milk. The general principles for correct feeding are (1) feed a balanced ration, (2) feed according to production—all the good roughage that the cow will consume and generally 1 pound of concentrates for each 3 to 3½ pounds of milk produced. If a balanced ration is fed and the cow gets too fat, the amount of food should be reduced somewhat. If she is producing heavily and getting too poor in flesh, she is either not receiving enough feed or the ration is not properly balanced.

resulting in a "hung" jury. In his action against the Continental Fibre Company, Hendrickson, who is 23 years old, claimed that certain gases inhaled from a process known as "Chemical X" with which he had to work while making fibre tubes at the plant, had caused total blindness and loss of taste and smell, and general physical impairment. The injuries, he claimed, were induced during his employment with the firm between October, 1924, and April, 1925.

John Biggs, Jr., and Christopher L. Ward, Jr., served as counsel for the plaintiff, while attorneys for the defendant company comprised Andrew C. Gray, Harry P. Joslyn, and Clarence A. Southerland.

Unable to see, Hendrickson had to be escorted yesterday to the witness box by his father. He stated that he had worked for the Continental Company for five years prior to his misfortune but had suffered then no ill effects from the chemicals handled.

It was only after the introduction, he said, of the new chemical formula in the manufacture of the tubes that the poisonous effects were noted.

The fumes from the "Chemical X," he testified, were choking in their effect and caused his fingernails to get sore and his eyes to smart. He lost appetite and his teeth were loosened by the gases, he stated. He testified that both the chemist and the plant foreman had assured him when he complained of the effects, that the chemical was harmless. The company had given him no instructions relative to the safest manner of handling the chemical, providing nothing save rubber fingers, Hendrickson stated.

It was contended by the attorneys for the plaintiff that the company had refused to reveal the formula for the new chemical due to the fact that it had been purchased from the inventor with the provision that it be kept secret.

The chemical previously employed in the making of the tubes, it was brought out, was zinc chloride mixed with water, and harmless in its effects.

At International Show

Mr. A. D. Cobb, director of county agent and club work in Delaware, has recently returned from Chicago, where he attended the International Livestock and Hay and Grain Show, and the sixth National Club Congress.

The primary object of Mr. Cobb's trip was to get new ideas on agricultural exhibits. While he was in Chicago he met former Dean Harry Hayward, of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station; Mr. T. T. Martin, formerly club leader of Delaware, and now State club leader for Missouri; and Mr. M. O. Pence, formerly county agent in Delaware.

With Mr. Cobb went Gladys Obier, of Oak Grove, who took the trip on a scholarship from Montgomery Ward and Company as having done the most outstanding work among girls in the 4-H clubs in Delaware, during the past year. Delaware club exhibits took a number of prizes at the Club Show. Lillian Obier, of Seaford, took the first prize for canned vegetables; Lucille Ward, Seaford, won 4th place for canned fruits; Margaret Thorpe stood 7th and 9th in canned vegetables, and 9th in canned meats;

William Speicher, of Greenwood placed 1st in the grain contest.

Margaret Rawlinson, who is now a club member in Virginia, but who for four years was a Delaware club member, made the second highest score in baking judging in a contest among girls from all over the United States.

Another interesting thing that Mr. Cobb noted was that the grand champion Hereford bull was from the Doe Run Farm of Lammot du Pont.

There are now 1,252,126 farms in this country equipped with radio receiving sets according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The estimate is based on returns made by county agricultural agents throughout the country and shows a 126 per cent increase over the 553,004 sets estimated to be on farms July, 1925. Iowa led the States with 99,990 farm radio sets, or an increase of 100 per cent since 1925. The largest percentage of increase, however, was shown in Utah, where the number of sets was placed at 6,061 as compared with 899 estimated in 1925.

A PLEA FOR SYRIA

A PAPER BY MISS E. FRANCES MEDILL

The following paper was read by Miss E. Frances Medill at the regular meeting of the Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. D. A. McClintock. It so impressed those who heard it, that we have been asked by the members to print it, and take pleasure in doing so.

"As an Italian poet has termed the Adriatic, with its age-long strife, 'That Bitter Sea,' so one of the foremost of living British novelists speaks of the Mediterranean as, 'A Tired Sea.' Hard by its shores, have dwelt old peoples, exhausted peoples, dead empires, leaving only relics behind of their by-gone greatness, like the fossil remains of the huge, extinct animals that encumber the halls of our natural history museums—mighty creatures that, in their day, rejoiced noisily in their fruitless lives. The Mediterranean shores are littered with the fossil remains of swollen successes, of booms that have waxed and waned.

"The wordly hope men set their hearts upon,
Turns ashes—or it prospers, and anon,
Like snow upon the desert's dusty face,
Lighting a little hours or two—is gone."

"Connecting the two homes of the earliest civilization—Egypt and Babylonia—on the eastern shore of the Mediterranean, is a strip of land called 'Syria,' where Jesus was born and the Christian Church was organized. In the dawn of history, this land was the home of the Phoenicians and the Hebrews, two peoples who did much to make possible the life we are living today.

"The former are famous as having been the first real sailors of the world. The 'Cedars of Lebanon,' mentioned in the Bible, furnished the best of wood for building ships. These sailor people explored every coast of the Mediterranean and pushed out into the open Atlantic. They established trading posts and colonies. Thus the civilization of the East was carried to the early peoples of Europe and—with many improvements, centuries later, brought to America. The Hebrews did far more than all the other ancient peoples to teach us the truth about God and about right and wrong. God gave them, through Moses, his prophet—the Ten Commandments—the noblest laws of right living that have come down to us from ancient times.

"For centuries, conquering armies and neighboring barbarous tribes have passed and repassed over this land. Syria was conquered by the Romans about a century before the birth of Christ. In the Seventh century it became a part of the Mohammedan Empire. The cruel treatment of the

CHRISTMAS THE REAL CHILDREN'S DAY

The message of Christmas is love: its emblem is radiant, thankful, contented childhood. Without love and without children there could be no real Christmas. The form might survive but the substance would be lacking.

Unhappy must be the adult who cannot make himself a child again in spirit at the Yuletide. For Christmas is the universal children's day. Men and women are superfluous except as they make themselves partners with them whom the day glorifies.

Let us, then, lay aside the affectation and arrogance of manhood and womanhood and be children again. Let us adopt their point of view and put ourselves in their places—in the places of those sons and daughters of ours and the sons and daughters of our neighbors. It was only a year or two ago, as it seems, when we hung our well-worn stockings in a row along the mantel-shelf, while our fathers and mothers looked on with unfeigned pleasure at the innocent confidence we showed in what the morrow would bring forth.

Even as you and I. It all comes back in a flood of memories. Life was simpler then. Our desires were less pretentious than those our children voice now. Modest remembrances they were that bulged the toe and heel of the stockings mother knit.

Life and its circumstances change, but happy childhood, the same restlessness, the same snail-like creeping of time as the holiday approaches. The same parenthood, too—the same planning across the reading table after the boys and girls are abed, the same loving consideration of what this or that child most desires and how far the family purse can properly be stretched to permit some further purchase.

Every home is assured a Christmas if it has a great, warm heart pulsating in tune with the hopes and joys of childhood.—Ex.

Christian pilgrims to the Holy Land, led to the Crusades. The Christian princes, however, ruled only a short time. On up to the World War, it belonged to the Ottoman Empire. During that war, French troops occupied the Syrian coast and the country is now under a French protectorate.

"The struggle among the many sects, for possession, has run on through the ages. Now, the mandate has gone forth that the followers of all sects shall live in harmony. After centuries of conquest, misrule, oppression and bloodshed, there will be peace and a great opportunity for the faithful labors of Protestant missionaries to bear fruit. Yet, when we learn that more than three-fourths of the people are Mohammedans—and the ruling class; that one-tenth only are Christians, the outlook is discouraging.

"The hope of any great reform depends mainly upon the right training of the young. 'Adults are hard as iron—train the young and the nation is safe,' so said a great American educator and it applies to Syria as well as to America.

"The schools are carried on by the Greeks, Catholics and especially by the American Protestant missionaries who founded the Presbyterian College at Beirut. The Moslem youth attend this College and are rapidly adopting Western ideas, as evinced in the following letter from a missionary. 'At the closing exercises of the Junior College for girls, there were many Moslems taking part. Not one wore the old skirt and cape covering nor delivered her graduation essay through the veil. One of our Moslem girls is going to enter the dental school at the university. She will be starting a precedent. Her sister is to study medicine in America. They are to work together for the Moslem women, who so often are not allowed to see doctors.

"The Daily Vacation Bible School has given valuable training in character to the children. In Syria, there are no child-welfare institutions, no public playgrounds to make the summer months profitable and happy for the children; consequently, they spend the vacation days worrying their toiling mothers or playing in the streets. The Vacation Bible School has been given a real welcome both by parents and children. The training received bears fruit in the home, and the close of the school is not a day of rejoicing.

"Hundreds of years ago, the East developed and passed on to us through our European ancestors—civilization. Now is the opportunity to repay our debt by helping them to develop a Christian civilization. The noble people who are laboring, under almost overwhelming difficulties, to teach the way, the truth and the life to the awakening youth of these lands, are looking to us for help. What is the answer?"

POSTAL HINTS FOR CHRISTMAS MAILING

No deliveries Christmas Day after 12 noon. Mail early for delivery before Christmas.

LIMIT OF WEIGHT, SIZE

No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length and girth combined. For delivery locally and in 1st, 2nd and 3d zones, 70 pounds is the maximum weight; all other zones, 50 pounds.

PACKING

Articles that are perishable or easily broken or crushed should be packed with care and marked "fragile" or "perishable." Consider what a package must go through with before reaching its destination and pack accordingly.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

The early mailing of Christmas cards is as important as any other mail. A habit of late mailing of cards has caused great congestion in post offices and considerable delayed delivery. Uniform sizes in greeting cards greatly facilitate handling, as odd sizes upset the routine technique.

It will greatly facilitate handling and assure your mail of an earlier delivery, if you will tie your cards and letters in separate packages and "face" them. "Facing" is to arrange letters or cards so that the addresses are all in the same order. Mail that is "faced" can be cancelled without being sorted.

VALUABLE MAIL

All valuable mail should be insured. Coin, currency, jewelry and articles of similar value should be sent as sealed, first class, registered mail.

WHEN TO MAIL

Christmas mail addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed not later than Dec. 20; within two days travel, Dec. 18; three days, Dec. 16, and for more distant points not later than Dec. 14. Mail for local delivery should be mailed Dec. 22.

Advice About Bulbs

A kind reader has sent us a note concerning bulb culture and some printed directions. Of her own experience she says:

"We bought some bulbs to raise in a bowl of pebbles in the house and these directions came with them. I have always kept them in a warm, dark place before and my bulbs have gone to ungainly foliage rather than blooms, so I am wondering of some of your readers wouldn't be glad of the tip to keep the bulbs in a cool, dark place for the first three weeks."

The cultural directions for the growing of paper-white narcissus in pebbles and water, which have been a help are:

Fill a deep dish almost full of pebbles until the bulbs are nearly covered, then add water to the top of pebbles. Do not cover with too much water as it is liable to soften and rot the bulbs. Put in a dark place for three weeks or until the bulbs are well rooted, then bring to the light or sun and watch them grow and bloom, which will be from seven to eight weeks from time of planting.

They can also be grown in Holland fibre or any good soil well watered, but the pebbles make the most attractive appearance for table decorations. Do not keep the growing plants near steam pipes or radiators, as excessive heat causes too rapid growth of foliage with no blossoms. In steam-heated houses or apartments, if possible avoid a temperature higher than 60 degrees or lower than 40 degrees.
