BURKE & KELLUM, COAL, WOOD, FIRE BRICK. KING ST. WHARF.

PROSPECTUS OF A Mutually Advantageous Joint Stock Company,

Entitled
GOULD'S UNION FURNITURE MANUFACTURING AND HOUSE FURNISHING CO.
OF PHILADELPHIA.

MARCH 1, 1884.

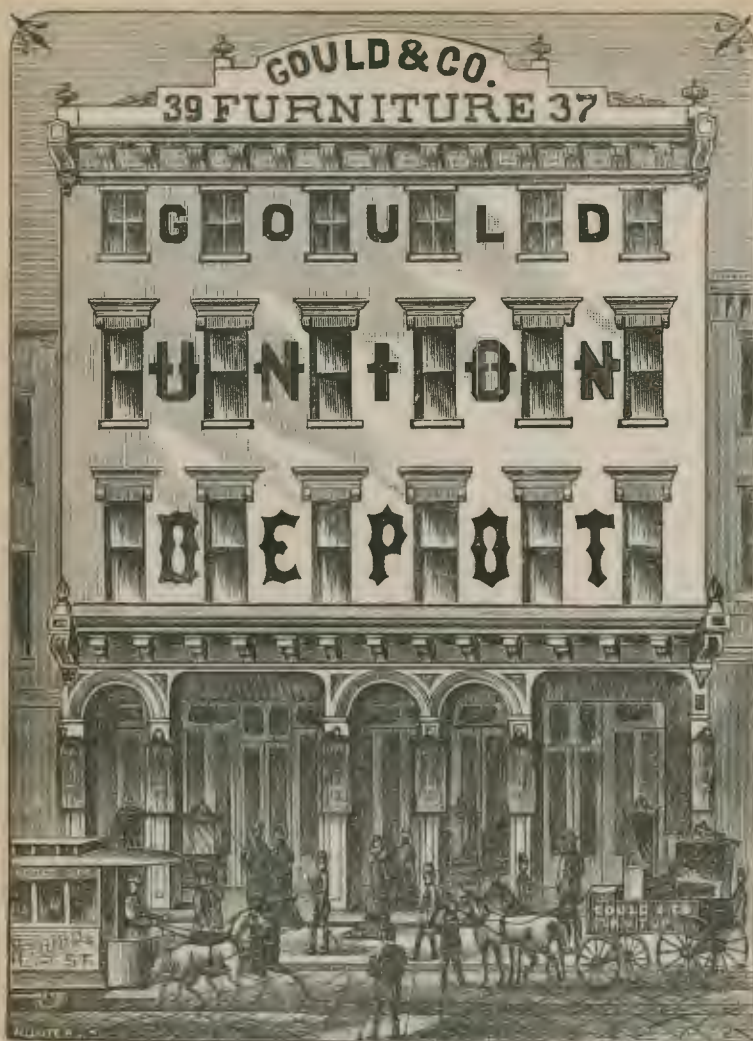

N. E. Corner Ninth and Market Streets.

You are invited to become interested in an original and entirely new enterprise, which will prove advantageous and profitable, without incurring any risk or possibility of loss. The above named organization was conceived and originated in May, 1883, although the business has been in successful operation by Gould & Co. as an individual investment for the last thirty years, during that time having been eminently prosperous. Unlike other proposals to form joint stock companies, where there is no substantial collateral to show, in this plan there is full value to commence with, a thoroughly established business and large assets, together with an income secured from the day of investment or all of them of certificates made, as six per cent. per annum will be paid in cash on shares from date of purchase, which payment is guaranteed by $900,000 worth of Real Estate, Merchandise, and other Assets belonging to the business. This six per cent. interest will continue to be paid semi-annually until the company is formally organized and officers elected. After that time each shareholder will be entitled to dividends arising from the profits of the business, which are estimated from past earnings and are expected in the near future to advance from six to twenty per cent., according as the business progresses and enlarges, when these shares will be worth many times their present price. The certificates are now offered at a price within the reach of everybody, namely, One Dollar. It being desirable to have many interested, and, by their co-operation and influence, continually help to make more business, and so increase the amount of profits and gains. Shareholders have the privilege to continue, being satisfied with this interest of six per ery, Buildings for Storage, Rents receivable, Material of all kinds, belonging to the business, and 100,000 Shares of Capital Stock of the Company. (Engravings of part of the Real Estate are displayed in this Circular, which are some of the most valuable blocks of property in Philadelphia. Estimated value in the aggregate $900,000, represented in 900,000 Shares, at one dollar per Share, par value. All this property to be transferred to the Company, clear of incumbrances and debts, soon as chartered, when 300,000 Shares are disposed of, the whole being paid for in Stock of the Company. To illustrate this new departure: A party buying 500 Certificates for Shares to-day, would receive six per cent. interest annum in cash, paid semi-annually, or every six months following until the Company is fully organized, interest becomes perpetual, or in lieu may receive the dividends made by the profits of the Company. No less than five nor more than five thousand Shares will be sold to any one subscriber, on the principle that the more distributed, the larger the gains and dividends. Co-operation is the one grand secret of successful business in the Nineteenth Century. The Company will buy and sell entirely for cash, consequently can make no losses. Even as an investment guaranteeing six per cent., paying out the question of the probable large dividend, this is a "saving institution" of the greatest advantage to the public, and is the only organization ever established that has offered these inducements and advantages, at the same time positive security.

cent., or else receiving the dividends made from profits of the business of the Company. The Shares, when issued, will at any time, if so desired, be received in payment (for their full face value) for merchandise, consisting of Furniture, Carpets, etc. Other branches of trade from time to time being added. It is evident in the proposal there is not a possibility of risk or loss.

The Shares are fully paid, and not negotiable. The Assets of the Company will consist of the following: Real Estate situated N. E. corner of Ninth and Market Streets, 37 and 39 North Second Street, and 305 to 311 South Second Street, an immense stock of merchandise, in Furniture, Bedding, Carpets and House-furnishing Goods; also Fixtures, valuable Patents, Horses, Wagons, large Stock, Good Will, Machinery, Interest is now due and being paid on Certificates issued in May, June and July, 1883.

305 to 311 South Second Street.

CO-OPERATION IN ENGLAND.

A View of the Rise and Growth of the System.

A London letter to the New York Evening Post, says: In marked contrast to the dismal history of co-operative store-keeping in America has been the success of the same attempt in England. Here, although for many years its advance was slow, it now makes its influence felt in almost every department of commercial activity. It is thirty-nine years since the pioneer co-operative society was formed at Rochdale by the combination of a handful of poorly-paid artisans, who proposed to save what they could by buying in quantity and distributing at cost. If there was any profit, which the most sanguine hardly expected, it was to be divided among them in proportion to the amount which each man bought, so that it was really nothing more than a device for eliminating the profits of the middleman from the cost of articles of consumption. In 1844, the year of its foundation, it had a membership of twenty-eight and a capital of $140. Its first year's business was $3,550, on which there was a profit of $110. Its membership is now nearly 10,000, its business over $1,500,000, and its profits $300,000 yearly. From the first its success was assured. The scheme speedily found imitators and extenders, and at the close of 1881, there were in Great Britain 1,189 retail distributive societies in successful operation. These societies had 573,000 members, a share capital of $28,739,535, and a loan capital of $7,480,715. Their sales in that year amounted to $101,828,000.

A question of great importance and interest is the amount of saving effected over ordinary retail stores. But this is a matter which it is exceedingly difficult to get at. I have heard it variously estimated at from fifteen per cent to twenty-five per cent. Their price-lists are easily to be obtained, and will furnish the specialist an idea of the reductions in his own particular line. But it manifestly would not do to assume that the reduction is the same on all lines of goods, or even approximately equal. I think, however, it would be safe to say that it is not less than ten per cent. Assuming this to be correct, it will be seen that the saving to the patrons of co-operative societies in the cost of goods bought in 1881, was over $10,000,000. Yet with this enormous saving the net profits of the business amounted to $9,747,570, nearly ten per cent. on the sales and 26 per cent. on the capital employed. The above statement, it will be noticed, does not at all include the wholesale and manufacturing co-operative institutions, which are by no means few or insignificant, but with regard to which I have not been able to secure reliable statistics.

Since co-operation started in the humble manner which I have described, it has, as was to be expected, undergone some modifications and numerous extensions. It arose from the necessities of the poor, and it was for many years recognized as distinctively a poor man's institution. But neither rich nor poor really like to waste money, and as every year's experience increases the evidence of the advantages of co-operation, it enlisted every year the support of larger and larger numbers of the upper classes, so that now a very good place to see footmen in livery and carriages with coronets is at the door of some one of London's great co-operative stores. In short, co-operation has become quite the proper thing, and at some of the stores, as I shall show further on, the custom is kept very select.

EXTENSION OF THE PRINCIPLE.

A further change in the plan of co-operation was soon caused by its continued success. When it became evident that the plan was not only theoretically correct, but practically feasible, and that its promoters were both obtaining cheap goods and making a good profit on their invested capital, the number of those who wished to share in these benefits rapidly increased. Among them were many who had no capital to invest in shares, or who would be able to patronize the store for only a limited length of time. Now, as the store, in spite of its reduced prices, made a profit on everything it sold, it was for the advantage of the shareholders to permit these people to trade with them, especially as they were willing to pay a bonus for the privilege. Accordingly this was done under some restrictions by the greater number of co-operative stores, especially in large cities; and where done the number of these "subscribers," as they are generally called, who own no shares and have no voice in the control of the affairs of the Company, soon came to be much greater than the number of the shareholders, and they furnished the great bulk of the profits. But it would be entirely unjust to divide these profits from outsiders according to the original plan of giving to each man an amount proportioned to his purchases, for his purchases had nothing to do with this profit, which arose entirely independent of them. It must be divided as in any joint-stock company, in proportion to the number of shares held; and this principle was soon applied to the entire profit.

Thus, by the natural course of events, the original plan of co-operation, which was simply the extinction of the merchant's profit, has been lost sight of, and the co-operative has become simply a limited joint-stock company, which buys and sells for cash only, and gives to any one (under certain restrictions and limitations) who is willing to pay cash the reduction in price which a cash system permits. I should not be understood as saying that this is the case with all co-operative stores. No doubt many, possibly most, of the smaller stores scattered through the rural districts, still retain the original plan, modified. There every patron is still a shareholder, shares in the profits in proportion to his purchases. In cases, however, a great part of the profits is ordinarily devoted to objects of common interest, such as the formation of technical, art, and common schools, the establishment of libraries, reading-rooms, art galleries, parks, &c. No doubt the good has been done in this way, and many a shilling which would otherwise have been wasted has been put where its influence will be felt by other generations.

THE GREAT STORES.

London has a great number of these co-operative stores of all degrees of importance, and with all classes of patrons. They are nearly all, I believe, run on the modified co-operative plan which I have described. Among them are the two largest and most aristocratic stores of this kind in Great Britain, the Army and Navy Co-operative Society and the Civil-Supply Association. Of the former, which is, I suppose, the most extensive co-operative store in the world, I will give a short description.

It occupies an immense four-story block of buildings in Victoria street, in one of the most fashionable quarters of the city, where in an interminable maze of apartments, are kept at every article ever offered for sale. There are, however, things which the store does not keep. But it publishes a list of tradesmen who will furnish them to its patrons at from twenty per cent. discount for cash. So that practically it has everything. Its price list, which I have before me, is a bulky volume of 1202 pages handsomely printed, and elegantly illustrated, and they print of this about 50,000 copies twice a year, and a monthly circular giving any changes in price that have occurred. To attend to their vast trade, they employ 3,500 men and 200 women. From the eleventh annual balance sheet I gather the following facts with regard to the business of the Association for the year ending January 31, 1883:—

The share capital of the Association is $300,000 only, in shares of $5 each, though its actual invested capital is very much greater, arising from deferred interest payments and the deposits of a savings bank, which is one of its features, and which it pays four per cent. interest to depositors. Its record for the year was $10,772,108, and its net profits $202,000 or 61 per cent. of its share capital. We are not, therefore, surprised to hear that the market value of its $5 shares is $15. With prudence for which great corporations are famous, a modest dividend of five per cent. only is declared, and the rest of the surplus is devoted to watering the stock, under the name of "deferred bonus." There have been four such watering fifty per cent. each, so that the stock has been virtually trebled. The number of shareholders is 15,035, and the number of shares held by any one person is limited to 500. Only officers of the army and navy are eligible to become shareholders, but are introduced by them and approved of by the Board of Directors may become "subscribers,"—that is, be allowed to purchase goods. Of these there are no less than 26,859—not quite the number of shareholders. They have no share in the profits, and pay $1.25 the first year and sixty-two cents thereafter for the privilege of trading.

It should be mentioned that the Association has lately extended its enterprise to manufacturing for itself many articles which it sells. Last year it made the following additions to the value of $744,870:—Guns, traps, portmanteaus, tin of all kinds, fancy woolen goods, printed goods, stamped shirts, perfumery, and watches. It is managed by very awake business men, and is constantly extending the sphere of its usefulness. Its success is almost phenomenal, yet its success is simply the legitimate result of a large business done without credit.

THE JAMES & WEBB Printing and Stationery Company,

✽PRINTERS, STEREOTYPERS, BOOK BINDERS,✽

AND BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS,

224 MARKET STREET,

WILMINGTON, DELAWARE.

We respectfully ask attention to our facilities for producing every description of Printing, Book-binding, and the manufacture of Blank-books.

All of the various branches are carried on in the one building, through our own workmen, and under our personal supervision.

We are the only Stationers in this City who own and control their Printing Office, Book Bindery, and Blank-book Manufactory.

Our house is not exceeded, and in but few instances equaled, in outfit of machinery, types, skillful workmen, &c., by any of the Printing and Stationery Houses of the larger cities.

Our Printing Presses, (of which we have nine,) Ruling, Cutting, and Bindery machinery, are all driven by steam, thus insuring the lowest productive rates.

We will fill all orders for Printing, large or small, rule paper and make Blank-books to order, of any desired pattern or size. Bind Magazines, or re-bind books. Missing numbers of all Magazines supplied.

We also keep constantly in store, a large stock of Commercial and Fancy Stationery embracing every article in the line.

We would be much pleased to receive your orders, whether in person or by letter. Estimates and prices cheerfully furnished.

PRINTING AND STATIONERY COMPANY.
