English Reading

Dr. Augustus H. Able of the Department of English will give the fourth in the series of English Readings held at the Women's College of the University of Delaware. He will read from the work of Thomas Wolfe on Monday evening, January 13, at 7 o'clock, in the Women's College Hilarium. The public is cordially invited.

Dave Buckson, chairman of the military ball dance committee, has completed arrangements for the annual ball which is to be held this year on Saturday, January 11, at the DuPont Country Club from 7.00 to 12.00.

Tradition

"The ball," said Buckson, "is to be the first dinner dance ever given by members of Delaware College, and I believe that this event will become a tradition with the Officers' Club." Toastmaster Buckson went on to say that should the tradition of the dinner dance be established, the military ball will become the outstanding social event of the year.

Guesta

The Officers' Club is this year playing host to the Fordham under graduate officers. Other guests will include Dr. and Mrs. J. Penton Daugherty, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Draper, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hullihen, Colonel and Mrs. Reamer W Argo, Colonel and Mrs. Donald M. Ashbridge, and Lieutenants Hum-phries, Moore, Zabel, Chase, and Roberson.

The committee in charge of the dance includes Dave Buckson, chairman, Al Mock, and Len Millar, assisted by Jack Doordan, Ed Samuel, Mike Poppiti, Jan Bove, Pred Mitcheil, Jim Mullin, and Warren

English Reading ...

On Monday night the fourth English Reading of the school year will be held in the Hilarium at the Women's College. Dr. Augustus H. Able will read from the works of Thomas Wolfe.

The presentation of Wolfe's work alone in any manner would justify your attendance if it were not for the unusual quality of these meetings. The English Readings have proven very enjoyable in the past with their unique presentations of the best there is in literature. In the short space of a half hour you are given an opportunity to skim lightly over the work of the writer who is being discussed and are given a deep incentive to pursue the subject further.

These meetings have none of the routine of the classroom; they are presented for your enjoyment and appreciation and nothing more. They serve to supplement not the classroom but your understanding of the really great in literature.

The English Readings have been characterized in the last few years by the absence of the student body, and we feel that it is due mainly to your lack of understanding about the essential purpose and plan of these meetings. If you have never attended one of these sessions, we urge you to go to this one; it should prove to be one of the most interesting meetings you will ever be privileged to attend in your entire college career.

Comes the Resolutions . . .

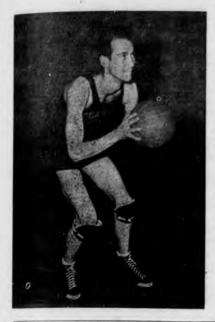

One should never subscribe to New Year's resolutions until the new-born babe has survived its first tremulous week on earth. Most resolutionists are inclined, in the first rash of rightousness, to prostrate their vices with a ponderous load of rabid resolves, drawn up and sworn to before the yearling has breathed its first alcoholic breath.

It is trying enough for an infant to be born into a confusing swirl of confetti and straight rye without pouring a burden of resolutions on its naked back like a picketing papoose. Considering the slovenly state of 'old man '40 at the unlamented hour of his decease, his cherubic successor '41 comes into the world with a slim inheritance, to say the most. Faced with the unpleasant prospect of picking bombs out of his teeth and a general kicking around, his patience may be taxed with our noble oaths. But, having allowed the kid a week or so to crawl around and appraise his new surroundings, we honor him with a friendly slap on the spinal column and ceremoniously hang around his neck the following Ten Resolutions for a College Student . . .

Resolved: . .

- 1. That the following year will witness an unprecedented effort to achieve the dean's list and the intellectual laurels attached thereto. Proving to parents that their hard-earned cash wouldn't look better in a new car than in the college vaults.
- 2. To courageously repulse any temptations to use ponies. And we don't mean Shetland.
- To endure with forbearance all professors who would have become steel riveters or pearl divers had not someone given them encyclopediæ for their birthdays. This rule of forbearance also applies to perennial sophomores who should be selling roasted peanuts, coeds who should be modeling paint products, and fifth columnists in this country who should
- 4. That, as intelligent, non-gullible students, we've had quite enough of Hollywood's "Oomph," "Woosh," "Wam," "Swish," and whatnot girls. And if they foist upon us one more—one more, mind you -exclamated female . . . we boycott the movies.
- 5. That we take advantage of the current musical upheaval in Tin Pan Alley and the subsequent sterility of the airwaves to spend less time in attendance of radio riffs and more time in attendance of serious study. Appropriately breaking right before Final Exams, the madcap ASCAP fiasco should bear fruit for delinquent scholars, since a textbook is far more exciting than "A Bicycle Built For Two," or even "Jeanie" with her faded brown hair.
- 6. To spend one half of our leisure time concocting suitable tortures for baby snatchers, dope peddlers, and nazis. In this category we recommend the ingenuity of a reader who would gleefully tickle Hitler's ribs with a blow torch.
- 7. To maintain strict neutrality in the question of whether the art work of Petty or Varga is superior. There is little need for controversy so long as both palette ticklers (double entendre) produce but abundantly.
- 8. To count up to ten, slowly, when jokes concerning the "draft" are passed around. Mae West had her day; then the Duke and Wally; now the draft-for five years. Perhaps the government will take pity and provide a department of Selective Jokes for the Selective Service Act.
- 9. That pessimism, passiveness, and perfidies will be replaced by perspicuity, plentiude, and peace.
- 10. That it is every man's privilege to ally himself with a union, be it the C.LO. or the A.F. of L. As for us-we're signed up with the U.S. of A.

What The Engineers Are Doing .

Time is flying these days. Christmas was here just a few hours ago. Pretty soon, they tell us, we have exams. Then the spring semester starts and time slows down again. Even in February we begin to plan for the coming summer; at least this warm-weather-addict does. So do the senlors. They are thinking about the jobs they are going to fill after graduation

Here at Delaware, the seniors are assisted in getting their jobs by Colonel Ashbridge, head of the Bureau of Vocational Guidance. The Colonel arranges interviews to be held here between the seniors and representatives of companies who are looking for good college material.

This year the engineers have made more pre-Christmas visits than ever before; Senior and a few Junior engineers have been interviewed numerous new releases out on Vic- development of the Pedal-Techniby eleven companies to date. Look at this list of them: Ingersoll Rand. Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, du Pont Company, American Viscose, Socony Vacuum Oil Company, Baldwin Locomotive, Atlantic Refining Company, The Texas Company, Philadelphia Electric Company, Eastman Kodak Company, and Bethlehem Steel.

Some of the boys are planning mid-year and spring vacation trips to New York and Philadelphia for other interviews.

The ASME got together last night in Old College for their Annual Banquet. The meeting was held in the lounge and the speaker was Mr. William Stanier, Power Transmission Engineer with the du Pont Company. Mr. Staniar, an old friend of Doc Blumberg, showed slides of a hurricane that he saw on a recent trip South.

ALARM

Jim Scott, Senior Electrical, scared two of our Faculty by throwing a switch early this week. No, he didn't throw it at them, he just closed a circuit. Well, anyway this is what I hear: Jim had made a classylooking coil about two feet long for use in the tests for his thesis. It's some kind of a high-frequency job for glantinating a deltric planitator. Yes, I know it's double-talk-I don't know what the coil is for, I'm only a Junior! Anyway, this coil makes a very loud noise, like the hissing of all the serpents in the Garden of Eden. This noise, you can imagine, also sounds much like the sudden escape of high-pressure steam as the pipe-line breaks. When Jim threw the switch in the middle of Evans Hall, Mr. Lindell and Mr. Case heard the hiss at both ends of the building and broke all track records in a dash to the innocent little coil.

BRAIN TEASER? BUT THERE'S AN ANSWER . .

Here's a little problem that Fran Owens gave me. It has bothered him since he was a Freshman; he's had the answer and lost it, and he wants some help in finding it again. Fran is a Senior in Civil Engineering, but I think we might be able to dope it out if we work on it. Here

A ferryboat was manned by three men named Smith, Robinson, and Jones, who were deck-hand, stoker, and skipper (but not respectively). On the boat there were three passengers by the same names to whom we shall refer as Mr. Smith, Mr. Robinson, and Mr. Jones, so as not to confuse them with the men manning the boat. Mr. Robinson lived at Leeds, The deck-hand lived half way between Sheffleld and Leeds. Mr. Jones earned $100 a month. The deck-hand's nearest neighbor, a passenger, earned exactly three times as much as the deck-hand. The deckhand's namesake lived at Sheffield. Smith beat the stoker at tennis. What was the skipper's name? That's just what I thought!

Since I got the tantalizer, I've heard several solutions. Leaman Podolsky has the one that I'll stick by. What's yours? If you get one, send it to Fran or me; it's driving us both crazy

To the French the Maginot line looked just as impregnable as any ocean. It had everything in equipment and resources and had the best army in the world to man it. Yours truly is back from a long the U.S.A., where he saw quite a Study in A Minor". It is one of a few "name" bands and reviewed series of exercises written for the tor and Decca

This record put out by Decca is not brand new, but is it a killer? The Andrews Sisters really go to town in a big way with "Mean Me", a must for your record IIbrary. Your columnist can't say so much for the other side, so buy it for the sole purpose of twirting the "A" side. It's good for that low-down feeling.

That up and coming orchestra leader, Vaughn Monroe is out this week on Bluebird with two niftys "So You're the One" on the first side and on the turn over, "Is It Love or Is It Conscription." Try it, bear it, and buy it, and don't say I didn't tell you.

Another merry group of artists are on the top of the list this week. Of course you know who I mean -The Merry Macs. On Decca record 3423 they have a guest star, Bing Crosby!!! What a combination. Bing and the gang warble "Do You Ever Think of Me" and You Made Me Love You (I Didn't Want to Do It)". You won't have to be made to love this platter.

The band that plays the blues, Woody Herman, waxes well on a platter that is going to sell plenty good, "You're the One" and "Love of My Life." Woody handles these two numbers with a style all his own.

Well, in the very near future yours truly will be back again recommending records for your collections and tips of just what is going to come to you by means of discs in the coming weeks. Until then, happy listening!!

Developing better apparatus of many kinds at lower cost is a continuous process in the Bell System. It plays a major part in making your telephone service the finest and cheapest in the world. Here is one of many cases in point:

Above you see two telephone loading coils-one old, one new. Such coils are spaced at regular intervals along telephone circuits. They reduce electrical losses... help to bring your voice through clearly, strongly over long distances.

Through the years, engineers at Bell Telephone Laboratories have succeeded in making these coils smaller and smaller. In so doing, they have greatly reduced the cost per coil, which...multiplied by the millions in use...has helped to keep the cost of out-of-town service low.

Why not telephone home at least once a week? Long Distance rates to most points are lowest any night after 7 P. M. and all day Sunday.
