Policing a university town such as Newark requires a special flexibility on the part of local lawmen, according to Newark Police Chief William A. Brierly, who is now in his 31st year on the force and 16th at the helm. 16th at the helm. One hour you might have to inform the family of a teenager that he has been killed in a cruising incident. The next you might have to deal with a dif-ficult domestic situation, and the one after that you might have to cope with a structure of frattomity between a squadron of fraternity brothers mar-ching down Main Street in jock straps and goggles. The only way to survive, says Brierley, sitting in an office decorated by an impressive display of police pat-ches, hats, mugs (steins, not shots) and porcelain pigs, is to maintain a sense of humor.

'You have to have humor to keep "You have to have humor to keep from becoming cynical," says Brierley, whose sense remains sharp enough that he readily agreed to pose for a portrait wearing an English bobby's topper. "Police deal in more personal injury, tragedy and sunrises than any other group you can name," he says. "We see people at their worst, in stressful situations. Some things just rip the

Safety is object of new organization

by Bruce Johnson

by Bruce Johnson With hopes of making Newark's Main Street as safe during the night as it is during the day, the newly-formed Citizens for a Safe Main Street held an organizational meeting Thursday evening in the Newark Police gym. More than 50 people at-tended the open meeting, among them representatives of the Newark Police Department, Mayor William Redd, State Sen. James Neal and mayoral candidate Dr. Hugh Ferguson. Although residents said they realize that making a darkened Main Street as safe at night as it is during daylight hours is an intr probability, they agreed it is a healthy objective. "It's certainly a wor-thwhile goal and I would love to see it, but it's going to be tough," sail Redd. "Unfortunately, over a series of events over time, Newark has become the place to raise cain on weekend nights and it's very tough to change that at-titude." The Main Street problem

Voter registration

Residents of the City of Newark who want to vote in the April 8 municipal election have just over registration is distinct from registration for state and federal elections, so even if you voted in the last presidential election you may not be eligible to vote in the city election. To register, stop by the cashier's desk in the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Rd., any weekday between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. for a registration ap-plication. Or, you may register dur-ing a special weekend session to be held 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, March 15 in the Municipal Building.

Bicycle regulations

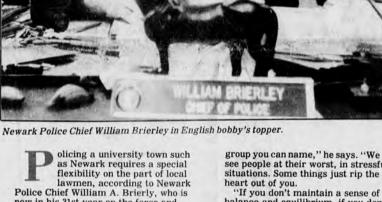

If you would rather bicycle than fight Newark traffic, take note: Bicycling on the sidewalks on East Main Street between Tyre Avenue and South College Avenue is prohibited. Bicyclists may walk their bikes or ride in the street. When riding in the street, bicyclists must follow all laws which apply to cars. This includes riding westbound on Main Stret and eastbound on Delaware Avenue.

City Council to meet

Newark City Council will meet at 8 p.m. Monday, March 10 in the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkton

Nevertheless, the record is clear in its insistence that Davis is indeed a pioneer of the first order, having blazed a trail for women and for blacks through seven decades.

Davis, 81, was the first member of her immediate family to attend a four-year college, the first black woman to earn a doc-torate from the University of Chicago, the first woman vestryman in the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware and the first llack educator signed to a full-time contract by the University of Delaware. Actually, for the Davis family. pioneering is nothing new. Dr. Davis was born in Washington, D.C. in 1905, the daughter of a government clerk and the niece of Benjamin O. Davis Sr., the first black general in the U.S. Army. A cousin, Benjamin O. Davis Jr., was the first black general in the U.S. Air Force. Dr. Davis grew up with a strong sense of the importance of education, and as she grew into womanhood she decided to become a teacher. not a lot of things we could do --Negroes and women -- but teaching was one of them." Davis said. "It was a difficult time for women, and certainly for black women. Opportunities were limited." However, while her friends enrolled in a two-year normal school, Davis was insistent on getting a four-year education. As one of nine children, it was something the family couldn't af-ford so, for the first time reveal-ing a strong will which would carry her into the 1980s, Davis went out and rounded up enough scholarships to attend Howard University.

Davis then headed south to Shaw University in Raleigh, N.C. to become assistant professor of English and dean of women. She remained at Shaw from 1932-36, then moved to Talladega, Ala. Social Security reviews set for 1,100 Newarkers

A new Social Security continu-ing review process began in January for approximately 1,000 disability claimants in the Newark area, according to Thomas P. Martin, Social Securi-ty manager in Wilmington. Statewide, 13,400 will be subject to the review process.

1984 while new rules were developed. "The Social Security Disability Benefits Reform Act of 1984 and later regulations will make the process more effective, fair, and easily understood" Martin said. "Cases will be carefully and com-pletely developed, and decisions to stop benefits will be well sup-ported and uniform at all levels nationwide."

Martin said that the biggest change is the new medical im-provement review standard, "Benefits generally will continue unless there is substantial evidence of both medical improve-ment and ability to work. Before, only ability to work had to be only ability to work had to be shown." Martin said there are some limited exceptions where benefits may stop without medical im-provement, but they will apply in relatively few cases. For exam-ple, ent flement can end if a per-son is gainfully employed or has clearly benefited from medical advances or vocational therapy related to ability to work. "Another important change pro-vides revised rules for more realistically judging a mentally impaired person's ability to work," Martin said. They were developed in cooperaton with public and private professional experts who work with mentally impaired people. "Also, a beneficiary who ap-peals a decision that he or she is no longer disabled can have checks continue through a deci-sion by an administrative law judge. If the appeal is unsuc-cessful, though, benefits must be repaid unless a waiver is granted."

ed. A person getting Social Security or supplemental security income (SSI) disability checks can have his or her case reviewed from as soon as six months to as long as seven years after entitlement. Among the first cases to be reviewed under the new process are those where medical improve-ment was considered likely when benefits were awarded, said Mar-tin. Many of these reviews were previously scheduled but delayed while the new rules were being prepared.

Also scheduled for early review also schedulet for early fevre will be cases where a cessation decision was appealed. They in clude those returned by Federal courts which will be reevaluated under the new medical iniprove-ment review standard.

Martin encouraged anyone in the Newark area who wants to know about disability reviews to contact the Wilmington Social Security Office. It is located at 919 Washington St. (at the corner of 10th & Washington), and the phone number is 573-6535.

He was presented a variety of employment offers — many from out-of-state — and had to make a very important decision.

many from out-of-state — and had to make a very important decision. "At that time I had to make a judgment. I decided that if I was going to make a life of fighting crime, I would do so in a com-munity where I knew the peo-ple," he says. "I feel closer policing for peo-ple who are long-time friends. At one time, I was paper boy for many of them. I grew up in the community and know many peo-ple on a first-name basis. Crime is a very personal thing." And, Brierley adds, there was the allure of trying to leave his hometown "a little better than when I found it." Besides the hometown factor, Brierley says he choses to re-main in Newark because of the relatively small size of its police force (which today has about 52 sworn officers). And yet he tries to keep the problems in perspective, and is concerned about the "unfair im-age" of the nightime Main Street. Every Thursday, Friday and Saturday night, the street and Saturday night, the street fills with the cars of people Brierley calls "seekers." "Everybody is seeking something, and they think Newark is where the action is," Brierley says, adding, "They're not all bad. One group is bad, but the rest are okay. They like to fix their cars up and strut their stuff."

With the seekers, as with all Newarkers, Brierley prefers to Newarkers, Brierley prefers to deal with problems on a preven-tative basis. "God help us if the only time we see the public is on the business end of a ticket," he says. "Police have got to temper what we do with common sense. We have to enforce the law with sensitivity, compassion and determination." To prevent an escalation of problems on main Street come warm weather, Brierley hopes to reinstitute a successful road-block program in which drivers are asked to stop for a license and drug-alcohol check. "Nexus," comes from the Latin word meaning linking or coming together. The word reflects the purpose of the annual meeting which allows youth to participate in a day of sharing, learning, reflection and relaxation. The Rev. James DiGiacomo, S.J., will deliver the keynote ad-dress. He is a teacher at Regis High School in New York and the author of numerous books and ar-ticles.

Another program highlight will feature a multimedia production called "The Prize."

Participants will have an op-portunity to attend workshops, worship as a community, enjoy dinner and a dance. Cost of the program is $8.

Band, chorus to combine for trip to Williamsburg

The 80 members of the George V. Kirk Middle School band and chorus will be provided a unique experience in June when they per-form a joint concert in Williamsburg, Va. It is unusual even at the high school level for a band and chorus to tour together, according to Paul Hess, Kirk band director. Parent volunteer Shirley Glines

Parent volunteer Shirley Glines said the joint tour is probably a first for a Christina School District middle school, and possibly a first for a middle school in the entire state. At Kirk, a close relationship has developed between Hess' band and Betty Moudy's chorus, with some students belonging to both groups. groups Performances at Kirk are done n tandem, Hess said, because 'we tend to work well together.'' in

"It works out really well for us and for the audience. The variety is nice," he said. And the variety even includes a bell choir. To make the trip to Williamsburg, it will cost each student and chaperone $159. Students and parents have been hard at work trying to raise the money with a variety of cam-paigns, including a candy sale, Glines said.

Students have also solicited pledges for a music marathon and the parents will be sponsoring a spagheti dinner on Wednesday, March 19. There will be servings at 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the school, located at Brennen Drive and Chestnut Hill Road. Tickets cost §5 for adults and §3 for children 12 and under. seeding has been set, with all four area teams receiving first round byes. All second round games will be played on Thursday evening, with Newark facing Glasgow at St. Mark's; St. Mark's facing William Penn at Newark; and Christiana playing the winner of the McKean vs. Friends game. The most competitive game of the three will most likely be the Glasgow-Newark game, consider-ing that the teams split a pair of spirited contests during the regular season. In the first meeting, the 'Jackets were able to hold off the Dragons in the final seconds of play, winning 71-70 on the strength of Abdul Bey's 15 points. Later in the season, the Dragons were able to avenge the loss with a 76-72 overtime victory in which Bryant Wright scored 36 points. Both coaches agree that the key to the tournament game is Glasgow's perimeter shooting. "For us to win we'll have to have four people in double figures," said Dragon head coach Scott Cressman. "We're a perimeter shooting club, and when we're shooting the prospect of controlling Doody, the prospect of controlling "Teams with quick strength at guards who can shoot well from the outside do well against us," said Doody. "It's not a very positive situation. We can't press because they're too quick, and they're not a good team to zone because they can shoot outside." Key players to watch are Wright

It was just to get each other up." One of the few disappointing moments of the tournament for the Spartans was when Laurel's Tony West (187) defeated Little in the final. I've gotten two second place finishes in soccer, and now two in wrestling." But Bastianelli made it clear that there was no one more responsible for the first place trophy going to St. Mark's than Little. "He had a super year," said Bastianelli. "That guy did more for this (trophy) than any other person. There's so many lit-tle things that go into this. Pie said another concern is that Pie said another concern is that of radios. Not only do they mulfile traffic noises but if the earphones are made of metal and are not pro-tected by a synthetic casing, the chances of ear frostbite among tuned-in joggers are greatly in-creased.

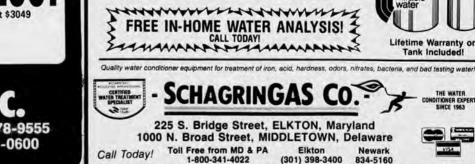

But, according to Pie, the most important danger to consider is the increasing number of potholes that are formed during the winter months. An inattentive or night runner could find himself the vic-tim of weathered craters and seriously injured miles away from help.

"One of the real dangers in the weathery months is that they tear up the roads and cause potholes, which are a real problem," said Pie. "I would list that as the number one problem. Pot holes are the cause of many an ankle be-ing broken."

Women's conference

The second annual Delaware Women's Conference will be held April 18 and 19 at Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware cam-pus in Newark. The conference features Andrea Mitchell, well-known NBC White House correspondent as the special guest speaker at the kick-off dinner Friday evening, April 18. Her topic is "An Insider's View from Washington" in which she shares her experiences and in-sights of the Reagan Administra-tion. tion signts of the Reagan Administra-tion. The all-day conference on Satur-day, April 19, offers participants a selection of 45 workshops, panels and seminars. Session topics, designed to appeal to women from differing lifestyles, ages and backgrounds include health, career, homernaking, travel, fitness, finance and personal development. Nationally and locally recogniz-ed artist Ruth Egri's exhibit, "Women: Entrances and Exits," will highlight on-going conference events. Other events include jazzercise and health screening. The conference is sponsored by the Junior League of Wilmington, the Delaware Commission for
