PAY TRIBUTE TO LATE DEAN EDW. L. SMITH

A. G. Wilkinson Recalls Today as Seventh Anniversary of the Dean's Death

HIS WORK STILL LIVES

A. G. Wilkinson, Business Administrator at the University of Delaware, in recalling that today will be the seventh anniversary of the death of the late Dean Edward Laurence Smith, pays the following tribute to the late dean:

"Dean Smith is still mourned by a number of his friends and especially by those who were his fellow workers and students at the university.

"It is therefore fitting that we should at this time pay tribute to him again for the faithful work done by him and for his endearing friendship to all with whom he came in contact. We should ever be mindful of those who played so great a part in the life of the university—knowing that while they have passed on their work still lives. The memory of their example of faithfulness cannot but influence for good those who are left behind in carrying on the work to even a greater success."

SEEK SAFETY FOR WALKERS

Mack Would Educate Pedestrians To Reduce Accidents; Fatalities Decrease

Speaking at the meeting of the Delaware Safety Council in Wilmington on Monday afternoon, State Highway Engineer W. W. Mack said that official and semi-public agencies influencing accident prevention in Delaware have cause to be encouraged, although, he pointed out, further education as to safety among pedestrians along highways is still a subject requiring much attention.

According to Mr. Mack, the volume of automobile traffic since 1924, as measured by a record of the gasoline tax receipts, has steadily increased over that period of time, while the safety of transportation, as measured by miles traveled per death, has increased at an even more rapid rate.

Mr. Mack explained that particularly since 1926 the safety of automobile transportation in Delaware has been much improved and has steadily increased from one death for every two and one-half million miles operated to one death for every four and one-half million miles operated last year.

Mr. Mack said in part:

"In the year just passed there were 67 natives of Delaware killed on our State highways and in the towns outside of the city of Wilmington. In addition there were 13 natives of Pennsylvania, 3 of Maryland, 1 of New Jersey, 1 of North Carolina, 1 of Washington and 1 of Virginia, or a total of 86 per cent of the deaths were those of people residing outside of our State."

"Last September we launched a drive against the pedestrian accident rate which was very high. So accordingly publicity was made of the pedestrian hazards, articles were written and published in the papers reaching a large per cent of our pedestrians and signs were placed on the highways urging pedestrians to walk facing traffic. In 1928 in October, November and December there were 14 pedestrians killed, in 1929 for the same three months there were 3 killed. It is interesting to see that we did have a very marked reduction in pedestrian accidents over last year just at the time we made efforts along that line."

"Safety efforts have, according to our records, favorably influenced accidents to drivers of motor vehicles or occupants of cars and victims of the railroad grade crossing menace. We have not, however, reduced to any appreciable extent accidents to the pedestrians. Unfortunately many drivers do not realize that pedestrians after night fall or at dusk have a very low degree of visibility, particularly if they are wearing dark clothing. On the other hand, pedestrians I am sure

T. B. MILLER QUILTS AS HEAD OF BANK

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the National Bank of Elkton, held Tuesday, announcement was made of the resignation of Thomas B. Miller, for several years its president, and the sale of his block of stock to a syndicate members of which are directors of the Elkton Banking and Trust Company.

Douglas J. Ayerst, A. B. Mendenhall, John E. Gonce and Edward T. Dorcas, of the old board were re-elected together with Harvey H. Mackey, Dr. S. Claude Sykes, William H. Gilmour, John H. Terrell, Lambert W. Davis, J. Otis Kennard and Irvin T. Kepler, at present directors of the Elkton Banking and Trust Company.

The directors elected Harvey H. Mackey, president, and Edward T. Dorcas, vice-president and cashier, George Eber Brown, assistant cashier, and William J. Fowler, trust officer.

After the meeting President Mackey stated that the controlling interest in the National Bank was not purchased by the Elkton Banking and Trust Company, the controlling stock in the National Bank, he said, was obtained by a syndicate affiliated with the trust company. Negotiations are now in progress whereby the Elkton Banking and Trust Company will later absorb the controlling interest in the National Bank from the syndicate and after all preliminaries are worked out which will take probably about three months, the two banks will merge, making it the second largest financial institution on the Eastern Shore, with resources of over $4,000,000.

BLUE HEN TEA ROOM TO OPEN NEW ADDITION

The Blue Hen Tea Room will open its new addition on Monday, January 20. Mrs. Reynolds took charge of this tea room September 1, 1926, and has catered to the public most successfully ever since. By her good food and excellent management, she has built up the business until it has far outgrown its present quarters. Last fall they acquired the old Motherall store room which has been entirely done over in a most attractive manner and the whole building is now heated by steam. They will open with a special luncheon and dinner on Monday and it is hoped that the Newark people will show their appreciation of this most desirable extension by a continuation of their patronage.

GOVERNOR PLANS FOR BUSY YEAR

Securing Data On State Government To Be Presented To The Legislature

Retirement of State bonds that will eventually mean the Commonwealth of Delaware will operate on a "Pay-as-you-go Plan"; the merger of welfare boards and commissions; completion of the school building program within the means of the State, and a study of various conditions that public sentiment considers needed, with reports of these studies made to the General Assembly, are some of the activities that Governor C. Douglass Buck hopes to have accomplished, at least started, during his administration.

In the retirement of the State bonds, Governor Buck points out the saving in interest and fixed charges. During the year 1929, the administration retired $7,000,000 of State bonds which figured at an interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent or 7 per cent for amortization and interest, means that the State will save every year nearly a half million dollars. In 1930 Governor Buck hopes to see a million and half bonds retired.

"I hope in the three years left of my administration," said Governor Buck, "that the legislature by enactment may be able to pay off all its bonded indebtedness which is about $6,000,000. When this is accomplished, the Highway Commission will be able to take on more work and assume responsibility for more county roads. This will relieve the counties of the financial responsibility of maintaining lateral roads."

In speaking of the merger of the various welfare commissions and boards in Delaware, Governor Buck said that during his visits to the institutions he was very much pleased with the way in which the trustees and superintendents of the various homes welcomed him and their willingness to receive any suggestions. The Governor, however, believes that the boards who direct the work of the various (Continued on Page 4.)

NEWARK HORSE CAN DO THINGS

Human-Like Animal Can Count And Dance; Has Other Accomplishments

A thoroughly human-like horse that can tell the number of past presidents of the United States, the number of States in the Union, that can add, multiply, and subtract by bowing or shaking its head, and can dance a waltz beautifully and gracefully in addition to its other accomplishments, is owned by Lieut.-Col. Samuel J. Smith, Chaplains' Corps, U. S. Army, retired, 222 South College avenue, Newark.

The horse, "Prince of Aver II" is a 7-8 English thoroughbred, is a son of "Goldseeker," who was imported from Scotland to near Sheridan, Wyoming, some time in the 90's, and has been in Chaplain Smith's possession ever since he was three years old. "Prince" is now past 18 and is retired from active service after having traveled in his day with Chaplain Smith the length and breadth of the United States.

"I purchased him when he was a three-year-old," declared Chaplain Smith, "and with but little assistance, in his colthood, did the breaking and training myself, bringing him up as a strictly 'one-man-horse.' After finishing his schooling as an officer's mount I began to teach the colt some simple tricks, such as to pick up my handkerchief, glove, or my hat, to lie down at the word of command, or by applying the aids; answer my questions by a bow or shake of the head and to count numbers."

The manner in which Chaplain Smith conceived the idea to teach "Prince" to dance is interesting. He attended a circus once, he declared, with a party of officers, and one of the acts was performed by a woman with a horse, who mounted on its back, sang as the horse danced a (Continued on Page 4.)

MERCY IN LAW ASSERTS JURIST

Federal Judge Morris Raps Desires For Heavy Penalty In Address

"I must use my heart as well as my head and my head as well as my heart in imposing sentence on those found guilty in this court," Judge Hugh M. Morris, of the U. S. District Court, in Wilmington, stated Friday morning.

"The value of severe sentences is doubtful and I will not impose a sentence with any idea of vengeance. This court is not concerned in making men smart, but rather in convincing them by fair and just treatment, leaning a little toward leniency, perhaps, that the government is their friend and wants to help them be good citizens."

Judge Morris gave an extensive talk on his theory of imposing sentences Friday morning in Federal Court at the conclusion of the trial of Ernest P. Allen, of Harrington, who was arrested by Federal agents following a raid on his farm near Harrington where 85 gallons of liquor were found buried in two barrels in the ground, six stills were found, with 2800 gallons of mash in a woods, on September 23 of last year.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty on the charge of possession in the case, but not guilty of the charge of possession of equipment designed for the purpose of manufacture of liquor, for which Allen had been indicted. His attorney, P. Warren Green, stated that he knew nothing about the stills or the two barrels of liquor that were found buried in his yard. He was fined $225 for the verdict of guilty for possession.

Judge Morris asked the defendant's counsel what he believed Allen could pay. Mr. Green said that Allen had $100 with him, but could get some (Continued on Page 8.)

The entertainment closed with a short sketch entitled, "Not a Man in the House." A tea and social time followed. It was a pleasant entertainment.

Students of the Emilie Krider Norris School of Expression and Stage Art, of Philadelphia, will present a play and other numbers. From previous occasions we remember this as a most delightful entertainment, and club members are privileged to bring guests as this will be an open meeting.

FARM PROBLEMS DISCUSSED BY DEAN MCCUE

Delivered Radio Message On Agriculture Last Saturday Afternoon

URGES RELIEF

Speaking from Washington, D. C., early Saturday afternoon, over the National Broadcasting System, Dean Charles A. McCue, of the School of Agriculture, University of Delaware, called attention to the endless tales about the desperate straights in which agriculture has found itself, and of opinions expressed from time to time that agriculture was on the up grade or that it was on the down grade.

Dean McCue spoke on the subject, "The Industry Called Agriculture," during the National Farm and Home hour, starting at 1:05 o'clock. Many Delawareans listened in on the speech over WJZ. Dean McCue is the first Delawarean to give a radio talk over this national hook-up.

During his talk Dean McCue said in part:

"Our ear drums have been assaulted with arguments for and against the McNary-Haugen Bill, the Debuture export plan, the Federal Farm Loan (Continued on Page 4.)

ROAD DEATHS SAME AS 1926

Travel Has Increased Fifty-Three Per Cent During Three Year Period

According to W. W. Mack, chief engineer of the State Highway Commission, the report of accidents on the highways of Delaware during the year 1929 is most encouraging because of the fact that the number of fatalities, despite the increase in traffic, is the same as it was three years ago. In 1926 there were 58 killed, the same as in 1929, although the amount of travel has increased 53 per cent in the three years.

The number of persons injured totals 691 for the year, and the number of accidents 956, an increase of 212 over 1928. The property damage was estimated at $166,761 as compared with $124,715 for 1928.

By a strange coincidence, the number of pedestrians killed, 24, is the same as the year before. In 1927 there were but thirteen pedestrians killed. Motor vehicle accidents were responsible for 26 deaths, which is a decrease of five over 1928. The big increase in fatalities during the year was at railroad crossings where eight persons were killed as against two in the year previous.

There were 559 slightly injured and 38 seriously. Most of the accidents happened in dry weather, their being 709 during the year, with but 247 on wet days and nights.

The urge to speed brought about the most misfortune, there being 588 mishaps on straight roads as compared with 257 at intersections, 24 at railroad crossings, 11 at street-car crossings, and 78 at curbs.

In each instance this is an increase over 1928.

Recklessness heads the list of causes with a total of 219 accidents, an increase of 61 during the previous year. Inattention was next with 145 mishaps, which is almost double that of 1928. Jay walking resulted in 75 accidents, an increase of 16. Skidding caused 67 and operating while intoxicated, 57. This latter cause is an increase of 11 over 1928.

Loss of control caused 44, failing to stop upon entering main highway, 39; driving on wrong side of road, 32; running off roadway, 30; and failing to signal, 30.

Cutting-in in order to pass caused 29 accidents; driving too close, 24; and driving while asleep, 18. This latter shows a decrease of 1 for the year.

Passing without proper clearance caused 15; unobstructed view, 14; glaring headlights, 14; and inexperienced operator, 13. Bad brakes caused 12; no lights, 11; tire blowout, 9; and animals on highway, 9.

Drunken pedestrians brought about 8 accidents, just double that of 1928. Breaking of steering gear, 7; no tail light, 6; parking, no light, 6; and wagon, no lights, 5. Confused operator caused 4; breaking of radius rod, (Continued on Page 4.)

Blaze Breaks Out In Barn After Hayrick Is Found To Be In Flames

Supposed to have become suddenly insane, Edward Anderson, 38, Monday afternoon set fire to a hayrick on the farm occupied by himself and his brother Harvey, and while the brother and neighbors were fighting that blaze, set fire to the barn.

The farm is situated between Fair Hill and Rock Presbyterian Church. Anderson is locked up in Elkton jail until a jury can act upon his case and commit him to a hospital for the insane. Monday night he became violent and did not know where he was, according to the jail authorities. Anderson had been acting queerly for several days and Monday appeared to become worse. He is alleged to have set fire to the hayrick. His brother and neighbors were at work fighting this fire when Anderson suddenly disappeared and in a few minutes the barn was in a blaze.

Word was sent to the Singlerly Fire Company of Elkton and the firemen responded, but were unable to save the barn. The brother of Anderson and the neighbors managed to get out the livestock but the barn and contents were burned. The loss is about $4500 and is partly covered by insurance.

Hearing the story of how the fires originated the Elkton firemen placed Anderson under arrest and called Sheriff G. Clinton Logan, who brought him to Elkton jail where he was locked up pending an inquiry into his sanity. Anderson is unmarried and lived with two brothers on the farm where the fires occurred.

Anderson is the sole owner of the farm which had been left to him. Much trouble, including a violent death in his family during the past year is believed to have unbalanced him mentally.

THE SPEEDSTER

A CAR OF BRILLIANT BEAUTY

POWERED WITH AN

AIR PLANE - TYPE ENGINE

To realize that this car has an airplane-type engine, flown in the air and driven on the highways thousands of miles, an engine delivering the greatest power for cylinder capacity of all automobile powerplants—is to understand the great contribution Franklin has made to automobile progress. This engine brings to the motor car an endurance and power typical of the airplane—power which remains at the peak throughout the hardest climbs and long, fast runs. You glide quickly to sixty, seventy, eighty with none of the usual experiences that go with great speed—but with complete smoothness, quietness and comfort. To make this ability most effective under all conditions of driving, Franklin gives you a choice of three-speed or four-speed transmissions—both with quiet intermediate gear. Prices range from $2585 to $3425 F. O. B. Factory.

In Memoriam

Just seven years ago today death removed from our midst Dean Edward L. Smith and it is quite fitting that his associates in the educational field should pause to honor that great man that was once a part of this community and rendered a service to the youth that many men will carry with them for a lifetime.

Dean Smith is and has been missed. His death left a gap that is not easily filled. While the world moves on and the tasks he dropped have been taken up by others, yet the memory of his faithful service and the endearing friendships he formed during his labor here will be carried for years to come as a fitting memorial to a really great man.

Our Home Talent Show

Newark's ability to successfully stage home talent shows will be tested with the presentation of the Legion Revue next Monday and Tuesday evenings. The young folks who are to participate in the show have labored faithfully and hard in their efforts to present the best possible program for the entertainment of their audience.

There is an abundance of talent here and home talent shows have frequently been discussed as possibilities for local entertainment. The American Legion has sponsored this first attempt and the patronage accorded this show will largely determine the future activities along this line.

The Legion Revue is being capably directed and furnishes an opportunity for a large number of local people to try their skill as entertainers. We hope the show will be well patronized so that more can follow.

Coolidge and Smith

The recent announcement of the manner in which the $6,000-000 estate of the late Conrad Hubert is to be divided among various charitable organizations brings to a close an episode that has made extremely pleasant reading. Former President Calvin Coolidge and former Governor Alfred E. Smith were two of the committee of three named to settle on the method of dividing the estate. For a number of months they worked together; and there was something very refreshing about the manner in which these two distinguished men—utterly unlike one another in birth, breeding and outlook—pitched in together to perform a public service. Calvin Coolidge and Al Smith—a strange pair to work in harness together, surely! It was pleasant to read about their joint activities, pleasant to speculate on the contrast which their presence on the same committee kept emphasizing. We are sorry that their work has been brought to a close.

Shearer Must Stay Away

Dispatches from Washington indicate that William B. Shearer will be barred from Great Britain if he attempts to horn his way into the forthcoming naval disarmament conference at London. This is very good news. There seems to be a good deal of haziness about the exact nature of Shearer's activities at the last conference, but there is little reason to doubt that he was sent there to toss a monkey wrench into the proceedings if he could, and he did his blatant best to fulfill his mission. How much influence the man may have is another question. However, there is no use in taking any chances. His sole role at such an affair seems to be that of troublemaker. Both the United States and Great Britain will be much better off if Shearer is kept at least 2,000 miles away from London while the conference is in session.

Why Women Take Jobs

If you still cling to the old maxim that woman's place is in the home, you might read over the recent bulletin from the United States Women's Bureau. The bulletin reveals that women in increasing numbers are being called on to support their families. Out of 30,000 families investigated for instance, 27 per cent were supported entirely by the wages of their women members. Of 17,000 unmarried women studied, one in five was supporting a family unaided. An enormous proportion of city families is depending wholly or in part on the money earned by wives and daughters. In certain industries which employ women, 65 per cent of the women workers are married. Evidently the woman who marries for economic security stands a fair chance of getting badly stung. Instead of being freed from the necessity of supporting herself, she may have to pitch in and help support, not only herself but her husband as well. It would seem that there are several things back of this recent influx of women into the realm of jobs. It isn't apparently, the outgrowth of a sudden desire, on the part of womankind, for freedom. The marriage-or-career stories written by our popular fiction producers—how idiotic they sound, now that the real facts are coming out! Most working women, one concludes, are working because they have to, not because they want to. The modern world is giving them, not a new freedom, but a new duty. Stuart Chase, in his recent book, "Prosperity: Fact or Myth," sheds a bit of light on the subject. One out of every 13 male wage-earners in the United States, he estimates, is always out of a job. The "technological unemployment" that our engineers talk about—the replacement of workers by labor-saving machinery—is giving us an army of jobless men that averages around 3,000,000. Yet we have had no breadlines, no unrest, no nation-wide exhibit of suffering, despite the fact that we are continually harboring this enormous number of men who cannot get work. Why? Well, Mr. Chase suspects that the woman worker has a good bit to do with it. Many and many a family in which the breadwinner has lost his job has been saved from starvation by the fact that the breadwinner's wife has gone to work as a salesgirl or telephone operator. We won't know what the remedy for all of this is until competent economists have studied the whole thing more carefully. Meanwhile, however, it is obvious that something is wrong somewhere. Our prosperity can't be quite all it is cracked up to be if it is placing a constantly increasing economic burden on the women.

KENT AND SUSSEX FAIR
DATES, JULY 29 -- AUG. 2

The Executive Committee of the Kent and Sussex Fair Association held a meeting at Harrington and selected the dates for this year's fair. The fair will be held from July 29 to August 2, inclusive. Plans were also made for the annual banquet of the association and the president named the following committee of arrangements to provide the banquet and entertainment: B. I. Shaw, W. T. Moore, Ernest Raughley, H. E. Quillen and W. S. Smith.

Board and in what not as a means of relief for agricultural industry.

"Agriculture includes many industries that may or may not have very much in common except the soil. It includes such diverse industries as growing beef and mutton upon the ranges of the West and producing cranberries upon bog lands, in Wisconsin, Massachusetts and New Jersey. Growing oranges in Southern California or narcissus bulbs in Oregon. Growing Christmas trees in New England or raising hogs in Indiana. Growing cotton in Texas or Georgia or hogs in Iowa or Indiana. With this thought in mind you can at once realize the great complexity as well as the great diversity of problems concerning agriculture.

"If you were to make, for example, a study of the problems of leather industry, you would find it child's play as compared to a satisfactory study of the problem of agriculture.

"In agriculture there are not only many complex and diverse problems but also many conflicting interests. What is good for one group of farmers may be injurious to another. The grower of wheat upon the great plains of Nebraska has but little in common with the onion grower in the lower Mississippi delta. When for example the Federal Farm Board seeks to put the California grape grower upon his feet, it deals the grape growers in my own state a blow upon their solar plexus. Putting the hog grower of the corn belt upon his feet may mean driving the swine industry in other regions into the doldrums. So we see that the industry called agriculture consists of a multitude of industries, and each one of its branches has troubles of its own. The ravages of the oriental peach moth cause no loss of sleep for cotton growers of Texas. The cotton boll weevil brings no tears to eyes of the dairy men in Wisconsin.

"We have the great dairy industry with its problems of cattle breeding, cattle feeding, cattle distress, production, manufacture and storage of dairy products, types of feed to be grown, types of feeds to be purchased, transportation and marketing of raw and finished dairy products. The swine industry has a group of problems peculiar to that industry, such as breeding, feeding, pasturage, disease, and marketing.

"When we come to the fruit industry we find a whole group of problems within the larger group. The problems of the apple grower differ from those of the peach grower, the orange grower or the nut grower. Each sub-group has its own troubles, with pruning, fertilizing, cultivation, harvesting, storage, transportation, and marketing.

"Even within the bounds of the poultry industry we find a great diversity of effort and a great diversity of problems. We have the commercial egg producer, the farm yard egg producer, the grower of meat birds, the hatchery man, the broiler man, the grower of ducks, turkeys and geese. The entire poultry industry has much in common yet each branch has its own peculiar troubles in housing, feeding and the marketing of the product.

"Every grower of wheat, corn, oats or barley, soybean, cowpeas, or hay has his problems, not only the production problems vary but also the marketing problems.

"The truck crop industry is composed of diverse crops, diverse interests and many peculiar diverse marketing troubles.

"Here we have the potato grower, the sweet potato grower, the bean grower, the tomato grower, the lettuce grower, and so forth and so on until we exhaust the entire list of vegetable specialties.

"One becomes amazed at the ramifications of the industry called agriculture, and is overcome with feeling other than awe and admiration when he thinks of some of the things that have been advocated in the name of agriculture.

"Yet every man who utilizes the land to produce something has a stake in the land, and comes in contact with the common problems of land utilization, taxation, conversation and the efficient use of fertility of the soil.

"All producers of raw food products have a marketing problem, yet it is not a common problem. The marketing problem of one group of producers may and does differ from the marketing problem of another group, or even of a similar group in another part of the country. The ways and means to grapple and conquer the marketing problems of agriculture producers is much in the public eye at present. Co-operative egg marketing may be a necessity for the California egg producer, and yet be an expensive luxury for the New Jersey or Delaware poultryman. In dealing with the problem of marketing farm products we must not lose sight of the fact that many so-called marketing problems can be solved before the producer drives his product through his front gate on the way to market. The marketing problem begins with a production problem. The problems of production and the problems of marketing can never be wholly divided and divorced from each other. For example, the marketing problem of the sweet potato grower of the east begins, not when he digs his potatoes, but when he selects his seed stock for bedding or locates his seed beds. Marketable crops must be produced before they can be marketed to advantage.

"When you think of the many and diverse parts of the industry called agriculture you would expect to find, and you do find that some farmers are prosperous and some are any thing but prosperous. Agriculture competes within itself and it is not often that all types of agriculture are equally prosperous within the same year.

"Sometimes the causes for failures are beyond the control of the producers. However, in the long run I expect that you will find that over a period of years that there is a close correlation between soil power and brain power. The slothful, the ignorant, and the non-progressive type of farmer is being pushed to the wall. He must progress or get out. Nature is eternally at work in her sifting processes, the elimination of the unfit goes unceasingly on and on. This sifting process applies to farmers as well as to other living things. As our so-called civilization becomes more and more complex, the way of the inefficient farmer becomes harder and harder. A man may be a good artisan in the field of farming; but in these modern days that is not enough, he must also be a good business man and be possessed of an open mind if he is to survive.

"The production of the inefficient competes with the production of the efficient to the detriment of both.

"The Land Grant Colleges in their efforts to assist agriculture, can train intellects, they can inspire effort, and can influence judgment; but they cannot help them that won't co-operate to help themselves.

"If the industry called agriculture is to prosper there must be a market for the produce produced. For agriculture to prosper mechanical industries and business in general must prosper. American agriculture needs consumers outside of her own ranks. The more people prosper in other industries in this country, the more customers we will have who can buy the products of the American farm. We need an infiltration of mechanical industry into our agricultural communities. We want our inefficient in agriculture to find their useful niche in industry. The industry called agriculture needs more consumers, not more competitors. It needs not more land under the plow, but less land, not more farmers, but better farmers; not more bushels of crops, but more efficiently produced bushel of crops."

do not as a rule appreciate the hazards of the highways. It is clearly evident that we should bend our efforts to bring about a more general practice among pedestrians when walking on highways to do so facing traffic as the school children have been taught to do. We must also point out that walkers on the highways after night-fall or at dusk could greatly increase their visibility if they would tie a white handkerchief to their arm or by other methods to increase their presence to motorists.

"Public education is a very necessary adjunct to the efforts of the police in bringing about safer conditions on the highways. The Delaware Safety Council has every reason to be proud of its work along this line which has so evidently proven beneficial by a study of the accident records as made by the departments.

Newark Horse Can Do Anything

waltz to the accompaniment of the band, Chaplain Smith then decided to teach "Prince" to perform likewise.

"For a few mornings after that," he said, "I rode 'Prince' down to a convenient place, a short distance from where the regimental band held its regular rehearsals, and whenever the band played a waltz or a two-step,

'Prince' and I went out on the cinder-covered space and practiced the movement. It was not long before 'Prince' proved to be a good partner for a sky pilot, who, some people think, should not dance on the soles of his feet. Prince became quite efficient in his part but never tried to sing during the act."

Chaplain Smith declared that the work of teaching the horse to do tricks was always pleasing and interesting. It was an interesting diversion, he said, during the required periods of relaxation and rest. The most difficult stunts were taught in the early morning, about one hour after feeding, asserted the Chaplain.

"No," declared Chaplain Smith, in answering to a question, "Prince is not in the market, nor will he ever be. He is an honored and beloved member of the family, and not a chattel. It is understood among us that should the 'last call' come for his master to take the 'long trail' while Prince is still living the dear old horse will be prepared to take the journey with him."

3; passenger grabbing steering wheel, 2; and parking on concrete, 2. There was one accident each due to obstruction on the road, passing on the right, bad eyesight and axle breaking.

Passenger cars were involved in the most mishaps, with a total 1,298. This is more than 300 over 1928. Commercial cars were involved in 233 accidents, just ten more than in the year previous. Omnibuses were involved in 24; motorcycles, 23; wagons, 21; and bicycles, 6. This is an increase along the line with the exception of wagons, which was nine less than in 1928.

State highways were the scene of the most mishaps, with 720. There were 111 on county roads, 90 in towns, 24 at railroad crossings and 11 at street car crossings, all being an increase over the year before.

Daylight hours witnessed 525 accidents and 421 in darkness, both an increase over 1928.

Wednesday was the safest day in the week to drive, with 102 mishaps during the year. Friday was next with 103; Tuesday, 112; Monday, 114; Thursday, 118; Saturday, 177; and Sunday with 230.

That motorists appreciate the danger of speeding, except under the most favorable conditions, is indicated by this report for the year. There were 656 mishaps on clear days, 155 on rainy days, 83 on cloudy days, 47 during fog, and 15 during snow. This is an increase except on cloudy days when the figure is the same as in 1928.

Collisions with automobiles caused 569 accidents; non-collision accidents, 102; collisions with fixed objects, 85; collisions with pedestrians, 111; collisions with horse-drawn vehicle, 21; collision with train, 22; collision with street car, 12; collision with bicycle,

6; collision with motorcycle, 191 and collision with animal, 9.

The hour from six to seven in the morning was the safest during the day for motor driving, with a total of 25 accidents. From ten to eleven in the morning was next with 29, and the most dangerous was from six to seven in the evening with a total of 83 accidents.

Male drivers were involved in 1,352 accidents, and females in 120.

The motorists from 25 to 54 years old were charged with the maximum amount of accidents, a total of 259. Those from 18 to 24 years of age with 375, those from 55 and over, 117, and those under 18 years with 45. This is a general increase in all instances.

The motorists with two years or more driving experience caused 1,280 accidents; those under two years' driving experience, 118; those under 12 months with 35; and those under three months with 36.

welfare institutions would welcome the thought of being relieved of the responsibility if a State Department of Welfare were to be created and organized with a competent staff and experienced director. The Governor said that many of the members of the various boards had given unstintingly of their time and were deserving of much commendation. While he has no fixed ideas on the subject, it has been suggested that if the welfare institutions were placed in charge of one department under a qualified, efficient and salaried official, that they would not only function better, but the State would be saved much overhead expense.

When asked about the State school system, Governor Buck said that he believed the building program should be completed promptly, which he further said meant before 1933.

"I cannot foresee," said the Governor, "that the Department of Education can expect to receive soon an appropriation of more than $6,500,000 which was the sum authorized by the last Legislature for the operation of the public schools for two years. If it can be assured of receiving a like amount in the future, I would expect the department to be able to satisfactorily adjust its business to keep within this limit, without disadvantage to the system."

Concerning future policies of his administration, the Governor is of the opinion that there may be departments or institutions and conditions that would benefit by changes and possibly remedial legislation. In this connection he has already made a splendid beginning in the naming of certain groups, committees and commissions to study conditions with the object of reporting their findings to the General Assembly for its consideration.

EXPERIMENT FARM REPORT

Dean McCue Informs Governor On Activities Of The Past Year

Dean Charles A. McCue, director of the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station, has submitted his report for the year to Governor C. D. Buck showing that the receipts for that year were $118,905.44, of which amount $20,405.44 came from sales made at the experiment farm near Newark.

Of the remainder $80,000 came from the Federal Government and but $18,500 from the State.

In the report Dean McCue points out that a marked change has taken place in the nature of the work of the station in recent years, especially as to research. This class of work, being carried on by specialists in various lines, is more thorough than ever before, he states.

One feature of the report is a short review as the results of various surveys and experiments that have been carried on with the purpose of aiding the farmer. Many of these have to do with the control or eradication of various diseases or insects that are damaging fruits and farm products.

Some of these surveys and experiments referred to by Dean McCue are, "The Taxation of Delaware Farms," by M. M. Daugherty, economist; "Marketing of Delaware Sweet Potatoes," by Harry S. Gabriel, assistant economist; "Study of Farm Tenure in Delaware," by R. O. Bausman, assistant economist; "Fertility Rotation Experiments," by George L. Schuster, H. C. Harris and C. B. Phillips, agronomists; "Studies on Bangs' Abortion Disease in Cattle," by Dr. C. C. Palmer.

"A critical study is being made on the influence of fertilizers, lime and manure on the nitrogen status in the soil of the four series of blocks making up the four-year rotation (wheat, mixed-hay, corn and soy beans) at the Experiment Station farm at Newark. The present status of the nitrogen in the soil has been obtained by analyzing composite samples of soil from five different areas, respectively, on the limed and the unlimed portions of the plots. Inefficient drainage in the past 20 years has been a factor in making for irregularities in the data. This will gradually be overcome with the present system of tilling. Differing types of soils, varying from Sassafras silt loam to Leonardtown silt loam will continue to be factors in interfering with uniform crop response with similar treatments and crops on the several blocks. These irregularities show up in the several series on each of the crops, whether wheat, mixed-hay, corn or soy beans is considered," his report states.

AUTOS ON SHOW JANUARY 20-25

The sixteenth annual exhibit of the Delaware Motor Trades' Association will be held at the State Armory January 20 to 25, inclusive. The dates were selected at a meeting of the association, held in the Elks' Home.

No effort will be spared either in the character of the exhibits or in the decorations, to make it the most attractive and interesting motor show in the history of Wilmington shows. Upwards of 60 automobiles will be displayed, including the du Pont, built in Wilmington; the super-powerful Duesenberg; the Cord Front Drive, built by Auburn, and the new eight-cylinder V-type Oakland. Arrangements are also being made to obtain the 16-cylinder Cadillac for the exhibit.

The Marine Construction Company will have a boat exhibit, a 1930 Christcraft 20-foot runabout.

The committee in charge of arrangements comprises Hugh M. Figgart, president of the association and general show chairman; T. Coleman Johnson, show chairman; Henry A.

White, chairman of advertising and publicity, with R. R. Whittingham and Daniel P. Buckley, assistants; Frank E. Patterson, chairman of entertainment and decorations, with Hugh F. Gallagher and John M. Donohoe, assistant; Maxwell O. Hammond, chairman of floor arrangements, with F. Oakley Taylor and Harry Maltman, assistants.

MAKE REPORT ON AGRICULTURE

State Board Examines Many Samples Of Feed And Fertilizer

A report on the operations of the State Board of Agriculture for 1929 shows that during the year 890 brands of commercial feeding stuffs, 526 brands of fertilizers and 16 brands of lime were registered in this State. The amount collected for this registration was $11,000 which was turned over to the State Treasury. The number of swine inoculated against cholera was 8,087.

The outbreak of anthrax in Kent County and the method taken to stamp it out is described. A total of 1,431 animals were inoculated. A total of 434 animals died of the disease.

The work of eradicating bovine tuberculosis is declared to be progressing rapidly and there are more accredited herds in Delaware than ever before. The work of the bureau of markets is described. Information concerning the condition of markets is secured by telephone, telegraph and radio and the farmers kept advised.

Six hundred and ninety-two visitations were made to poultry establishments in the State for the purpose of assisting in the control of disease. Six hundred and ninety-five letters of instructions, and seven thousand circulars on poultry disease control, were written and distributed, for the same purpose. Seventeen thousand and six hundred doses of rousp and pox vaccine, and two thousand doses of cutaneous chicken pox vaccine were made and distributed to poultrymen of the State, free of charge.

The cutaneous chicken pox vaccine was made in this State this year for the first time. It promises to effectively control one of the most troublesome diseases of domesticated birds. Contrary to what has been said by others, this product should not be made and used by the laymen, if uniformly beneficial results are to be obtained. It is questionable if the administration of the product should be placed in the hands of the inexperienced, as considerable care must be exercised, selecting flocks to be vaccinated.

Middletown

The executive board meeting of the New Century Club was followed by a business meeting, both meetings being presided over by the president, Mrs. Howard A. Pool.

Among other business the club adopted a resolution, a copy of which is being sent to Mrs. Robert B. Rayner, advising that as a member of the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Middletown club goes on record as supporting the World Court to outlaw war. Mrs. Myrtle B. Wilson was chairman for the day. Mrs. Pauline Schulze, of Philadelphia, was present and gave several solos, accompanied by Mrs. Roe S. Redgrave. "A Bit of Holland," was given by Mrs. Howard A. Pool.

The next meeting of the club will be Tuesday, January 21, at 2:30, when the members will visit the newly erected public school. Mrs. Gilbert Nickel is chairman for the day.

The regular meeting of the Count-on-me Sunday school class was held at the home of Mrs. A. Claude Fouracre, with the Misses Odel R. Gallagher and Grace VonDyke assisting Mrs. Fouracre. Devotions were in charge of Miss Marian Pinder. Instead of the class holding a banquet celebrating its birthday in February, as has been the custom for the past two years, the members will arrange to hold a covered dish supper at that time. Officers for the coming year will be elected at the February meeting, which will be held at the home of the president of the class, Mrs. Isaac G. Cleaver.

At a meeting of the Rotary Club held in the Middletown Hotel, the first anniversary of the club's charter night was celebrated, with a large number of members and several visitors present.

The speaker was Dr. Ross Elliott, of Laurel, who spoke on "Principles of Rotary in Actual Practice." He described the many features and advantages of the various phases of Rotary International as he found them.

Roy Schmidt, of Millington, Md., accompanied by Mrs. W. E. Griffith, of this town, sang several numbers, and a male quartet of Sudlersville, Md., also sang.

The club presented its accompanist, Miss Madeline Manlove, with a perfume set, and the male quartet was presented with gold engraved penknives.

Emory W. Hukill, an active member of the club, was given a rousing welcome on his return to the meetings, after an absence of several months, caused by a fractured leg, which he suffered in September.

Ogletown

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer S. Hawthorne had as guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Walton and Miss Florence Walton of Iron Hill, Md.

The postoffice at Harmony, a village near here, is to be discontinued after January 15, and all mail for that district is to be handled by rural carriers from the Newark post office. The office at Harmony has been located for many years in Mr. Walter Smalley's store, with Mr. Smalley as postmaster.

JR. O. U. A. M.

Thirty-five loyal members of the American Flag Council No. 28, Jr. O. U. A. M. found their way through the fog last Monday night to attend Council session. Councilor Lewis is to be congratulated upon the splendid condition of the local Council. Routine business was transacted. An elaborate program has been outlined for the anniversary night, Monday, January 27. All Juniors of any Council will be given a hearty welcome that night.

Next Monday night, January 20, Brother Arthur B. Hope, of Delaware City, will install the new officers. Councilor-elect Morine desires a large attendance at that time as he has a definite line of work to outline for the new term. We trust to be able to hang the "S. R. O." sign out for the next two meetings.—A. Neal Smythe, Pub. Chr.

De Soto Straight Eight A Companion Car to the De Soto Six

This is the New Straight Eight that startled the Industry
PRICED UNDER $1000

Weeks ago, leading newspapers were informed of a mysterious new eight-cylinder car which was performing incredible feats in the steep mountains of Pennsylvania.

Out of curiosity, and sensing a news story, automobile editors hurried to the mountains to investigate. There they saw feats of performance that set them to writing columns of praise about a new car whose very name was still a secret.

Now is revealed the name of that mysterious car—the car they proclaimed a sensation. It is the new Chrysler-built De Soto Straight Eight—priced at less than $1000.

"Another chapter in the history of the automobile industry . . ." "Never such excellent performance by an automobile in its price class . . ." "Of an entirely different style . . ." "The only car that stood up with it was one that sold for approximately $1500 more . . ." These are typical quotations from what the prominent automobile editors have been writing under their own signatures.

On the basis of overwhelming dollar value, the new De Soto Straight Eight is as outstanding in the eight-cylinder field as its famous companion car, the De Soto Six, is outstanding in the field of sixes. Every comparison unalterably verifies this fact.

Christiana

Next Sunday evening, January 19, has been set aside by Rev. Preston W. Moore, Jr., pastor of the Christiana E. Church, as "Musical Night"—the entire evening service to be in honor of the school orchestra. The boys and girls will be aided by some outside talent, making the program a varied one, and something altogether different from the regular church service. The difference will be even more marked because of the absence of the sermon from the service.

At the meeting of the Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church, held at the Rose Road Chapel last Wednesday evening, Miss Margaret Moore, acting as chairman of the entertainment committee, presented the following program: Songs by the society; recitation by Alice Walker; piano solo, Katherine Dunham; readings by Mrs. H. H. Moore and Mrs. A. A. Phelps; vocal duet, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Chandler H. Gebhardt; a guessing contest conducted by Mrs. Harry Dunham; and a playlet, entitled "The Doll Show," with parts taken by Miss Margaret Moore, Ruth and Sylvia Phelps, and the following as soloists: Katherine Dunham, Irene, Mildred and Rachel Morrison, Alice Walker, and Rachel Phelps, and Master Raymond Lewis.

The local Home Demonstration Club, under the direction of Mrs. Kate Dougherty of Newark, met last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Raymond Louth. At this time the annual election of officers took place, with the following results: President, Mrs. George Alcorn; vice-president, Mrs. Raymond Louth; secretary, Mrs. Alfred B. Vincent; treasurer, Mrs. William Howell.

On Monday evening, January 13, a group of players from the school orchestra, under the direction of Mr. David Chalmers of Newark, rendered several selections at the initiation ceremonies of the Knights of Pythias in their hall at Newark. The boys and girls who furnished the music were: Raymond Bush, Sylvia Phelps and Eleanor Delcollo, violins; William Thorp, Charles Cleaves and Joseph Moore, horns; John Currinder and Joseph Delcollo, clarinets; and Elsie Ware, piano.

Mrs. James Appleby has resigned her position as postmistress in charge of the local post office, the resignation to take effect February 1, when Miss Sarah Levey will become Mrs. Appleby's successor. Thirty-two years ago Mrs. James Appleby assumed charge of the Christiana post office, succeeding Mr. Washington Currinder, and continued as postmaster until incapacitated by blindness. It was at this time that Mrs. Appleby was appointed postmistress, to succeed her husband, and she has continued in the office till the present time. Mrs. Appleby has also sold her property here to Mr. and Mrs. John Levey, who will take possession as soon as their daughter, Miss Sarah, takes over the duties of her office.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Moore, Sr., quietly celebrated their twenty-fourth wedding anniversary on Monday, January 13.

Miss Nellie Appleby, of Hares Corner, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Davis, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Eastburn and son Warren were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Eastburn of Bear Station.

Mr. and Mrs. Olan J. Cleaver entertained at dinner on Sunday, their guests being Mrs. Cleaver's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Leasure of Glasgow, with their children, Virginia, Rosetta and Charles.

Misses Katherine and Marion Phelps spent the week-end at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. George McCarns of Wilmington were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Louth.

Mrs. George W. Davis returned on Wednesday from a several days' visit with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Morrison, Jr., of Ogletown.

Miss Frances Louth spent last Wednesday in Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Smith were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stevenson of Holloway Terrace.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moody and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Phelps were among the guests at a "500" party given last Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey E. Gregg at their home in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Olan J. Cleaver, Misses Ella and Elizabeth Moore and Eleanor Howell attended a square-dance party at the Howell home at Strickersville last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sweetman are being congratulated on the birth of a son, Thursday, January 9.

Miss Esther Cunane has recovered from a two weeks' illness, and hopes to resume her studies at the Newark High School next week.

The above is from an actual photograph of the twenty-foot Chris-Craft Runabout which will be displayed at the Wilmington Auto Show next week by the Marine Construction Company, Wilmington Distributors of this line. It has a 75 H. P. Chrysler motor and is capable of making 30 miles an hour. The price of this boat is $1995 delivered.

CHRIS-CRAFT FILMS FOR PRIVATE SHOWINGS

Algonac, Michigan, has recently been the studio for a great set of moving pictures. The busy factories of Chris Smith & Sons Boat Company, and the humming St. Clair River have been the subjects of these pictures. One of the country's greatest photographers with his company has come to this home of the world's largest builders of all-mahogany motor boats and made a complete story of how motor boats are built, in pictures.

No film romance of handsome hero and heroine ever carried a greater interest factor than did the pictures which this photographer's camera recorded. There were long shots, close-ups, aerial views, running pictures, slow motion and every other known type of photography taken in this first greatest attempt to show how motor boats are built today.

Most interesting of all, perhaps to the younger folks, is the reel of water pictures. The fleet will assemble before your very eyes on the grand St. Clair river and you will see twenty or thirty of the finest boats afloat. They will bank and turn and run this way and that. There will be exhibitions to show the safety and seaworthiness of these craft. You will get in a boat and ride with the fleet for a mile or two. Then you will be taken around the country on a little Chris-Craft tour visiting different points of interest. You will race with the Twentieth Century Limited down the Hudson River; visit at the great Red Bank Gold Cup Regatta in New Jersey. And you can even go for a thrill on the aquaplane behind the boat if you choose.

These pictures have been complimented so highly by all who have seen them that Chris Smith and Sons Boat Company have decided to let a few organizations where there are a sufficient number of men interested in motor boats, see them, if they care to. Bookings are now being made from their offices in Algonac for the two reels, one of the factory scenes, and the other water shots, in either standard and 35 mm. film or Kodascope 16 mm. film. Any yacht club or organization displaying sufficient interest may have these films sent them entirely free of all charges, except expressage, upon request. They may be kept three or four days if several showings are to be given, before returning them to Algonac.

The Marine Construction Company, at the foot of Commerce street, Wilmington distributors of Chris-Craft, will be pleased to arrange for showings of these films by any local people.

banquet held in the Hotel Roosevelt, both affairs being sponsored by the Olds Motor Works division of General Motors.

Speakers at the meetings and banquet stressed, he said, the fact that all dealers' business would be re-organized on a business basis, and with the weeding out of the weaker ones, a strong progressive sales organization would be effected. Dealers were classified as merchants, the definition for that tradesman being given as a man who has a sincere desire to satisfactorily service what he sells without profit.

While no radical changes were made in the Oldsmobile line, Mr. Hammond stated that there were a great many refinements on the new models. Viking cars, he stated, now offered optional colors. In addition to being shown at the Grand Central Palace, these cars were exhibited at the Hotel Astor.

Marshallton

Raymond G. Wivel, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oren Wivel, left on Monday for Saranac Lake, N. Y., where he will undergo treatment for an illness from which he has been in poor health for the past few months. Two years ago the young man spent several months at Saranac Lake. He is an employee of the du Pont Company in Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. West are moving next Monday to their new home in Wilmington.

William Wingate was reelected superintendent of the Marshallton M. E. Sunday School at the annual meeting of the officers and teachers last Friday evening. Powell M. Ford was elected assistant superintendent, Arthur Ford was elected secretary and treasurer and Hilton Ford was made assistant secretary and treasurer.

The Rev. Tighman Smith last week in the parsonage officiated at the marriage ceremony of Miss Elva D. Keithley, Wilmington, and Benjamin G. Bogia, of Pennsylvania, N. J. The couple were attended by Miss Thelma McKenney, of North East, Md., and Francis J. Toy, of Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Foard, Miss Roberta Foard and Henry Smith spent Sunday in Chesapeake City, Md.

Members of the Mill Creek Fire Company and the Ladies' Auxiliary of that body attended the service last Sunday evening in St. Barnabas' P. E. Church. The Rev. E. A. Rich, rector, delivered the sermon and special musical numbers were given by the choir.

Meredith Williams recently assumed charge of the Marshallton Restaurant, owned by George McVey.

CONTINUE FIGHT ON DIPHTHERIA

Immunization Process Has Aided In Campaign Against Disease

Dr. A. C. Jost, executive secretary of the State Board of Health, in commenting last week on the epidemic of diphtheria which prevailed in Delaware during the last few months of 1929, said that the percentage was higher for ten months of 1929 than in 1928, there being 82 cases of diphtheria reported in the ten months of 1929 while there were 119 cases during the entire year of 1928.

The State board through its office and assistants has endeavored through the immunization process, to lessen the disease and in this they have been fairly successful as in the cases where immunization took place there has not been a serious case and no deaths, where in the many cases of non-immunization, there have been several deaths from the disease.

For several successive years the immunization of the children of the State has been undertaken and plans for more immunization work are now being prepared. A fair proportion of the older children of the State have now, it is believed, a fair degree of immunity. In all about 34,000 children have been treated. Among the treated children there have been, so far as the health board knows, only seven cases of the disease, none of whom have died.

more money if necessary. United States District Attorney Leonard E. Wales, got up at this point in the hearing and said that he would like to make a statement on the sentence of Allen. He stated that the MERCY IN LAW—Continued * 6 : jury in finding Allen guilty of possession, in spite of his denials of any knowledge of the presence of the two barrels of liquor in his yard, must have been convinced that the man was lying.

Mr. Wales then said that the government has to prove every single step and phase of the charge to secure a verdict of guilty on any charge, and that when the prisoner is found guilty, the court asks the prisoner what he should pay and the result is that the prisoner will probably lie. "In my opinion, the court can be taken advantage of in this matter, and it is my opinion in this case that the court is being taken advantage of and that the man here found guilty is lying about what he can pay. They offer no financial statements to prove the financial condition. This man had $5 gallons of liquor in his chicken yard and it is inconceivable that it was for his own private use. I believe that when a man is brought to this court and is found guilty in spite of contradictory evidence he might offer, he is lying and he is still lying in his oral statement as to what he can pay."

"Mr. Wales," Judge Morris said, "I am glad to have your views on the subject, and I thank you. I am glad to have your views on the subject, even though I have to make the sentence. I must make the sentences in this court and it is the most difficult and distasteful duty that I have to do in this court."

"There is no human way devised yet, whereby some man will not have to exercise power over others. It is bad, nevertheless for the men imposing the sentences and for the men on whom the sentence is imposed. It is a very difficult and disagreeable task."

"I do not believe in making sentences severe and severe for repeated crime. Criminal history shows us that severe sentences are of very questionable value. In 1800 in England, in spite of the fact that the punishment for picking pockets was death, there were many pickpockets, in defiance of the sentence should they be convicted, operating in the city of London."

"I am convinced that the judge must use two things, in imposing sentences. He must use his heart as well as his head and his head as well as his heart. I may be wrong in the matter, but nevertheless I shall continue to use both my heart and my head. As to the frequent inquiry 'How much can you pay?' made to convicted prisoners here, I am convinced that I secure valuable information from the answer of the man and the way he answers. I also secure valuable information as to men brought here by their clothing, the condition of their clothes, the number in their families, their method of speech, their work, voice and appearance are all guides."

"Although the court frequently asks what a man can pay, you will notice that the court sets the amount. Very likely the court is frequently misled, but the question and the appearance of the persons brought here all furnish some information. I do not believe in giving sentences for vengeance. I am not concerned in making men smart. All I want to do is to help or force or persuade the man to try to get on the right track or reform."

"The law does not want severity but obedience. We must treat men fairly in the matter of the sentence to secure the respect of the law and the courts. We must treat the poor and the rich the same. The Government is not an oppressor but a government which wants the citizens to be good and wants to persuade the convicted men to become good and obedient citizens if possible.

"My sentences may be often considered too mild, but I would rather have them too mild than too severe, as it is the desire of this court to win the wish of those brought before the court, to become good citizens."

"There is another point of view to this, and that is that many of the people brought here are law violators or possibly statutory felons. They are most of them minor or new violators. There is a period of education for all laws, particularly new laws, and it is during this time that we must be careful. It does seem to me, however, that there have been more cases here now than in the Spring when I tried the severer penalties under the application of the Jones Act."

Following this, Mr. Wales stated that he had spoken on the subject merely as a suggestion, and did not in any way intend to criticize the court. Judge Morris stated that he knew this, and thanked Mr. Wales again for his assistance.

THRILLING SCENES MAKE RAIL DRAMA EXCITING

Huge locomotives rushing at break-neck speed to the rescue of victims in the Mississippi flood area, the construction of an entire locomotive in the great shops of the Chicago Northwestern line, Lon Chaney, as a veteran engineer, driving a locomotive more than 600 miles in filming the picture—these are some of the thrills in "Thunder," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer epic railroad drama, which is coming Saturday to the Strand Theatre.

The new picture, directed by William Nigh, is a thrilling and intimate story of railroad life, an original by Byron Morgan. Phyllis Haver, James Murray, George Duryea, Wally Albright, Jr., Frances Morris, and others of note are among the players in the new production. Most of it was filmed on the Chicago Northwestern trains and in the flood area. Chaney is seen in a role vastly different from his usual ones. It lacks the element of the bizarre but is intensely human. As an old engineer, past 70, but still the driver of a crack Limited, he has ample opportunity to embellish his role with glamour and adventure.

REQUESTS HONOR FOR DEL. HEROES

Ask That State Place Two Statues At National Capitol

Thomas E. Peeney recommended that data and information be secured and the name of a distinguished deceased citizen of Delaware be recommended to the next session of the Legislature, at the first meeting of the committee which is planning for the placing of the statues of two outstanding Delawareans in Statuary Hall at Washington.

Mr. Peeney, who is secretary of the committee, read an interesting report to the committee. It contained much information about Statuary Hall and his recommendations.

In part, Mr. Peeney said: "Briefly the conditions governing the presentation of a statue are these: inasmuch as an invitation has been given to all the States the proceedings of acceptance must come from the individual States; and the preliminary step is the passage of a resolution by the State Legislature providing for the erection of a statue in Statuary Hall. The citizens to be honored should be illustrious for historic renown or for distinguished civic or military service, and the determination of these qualifications is within the right of the individual States to decide."

"The statue must be of either marble or bronze."

"The State must attend to such details as the selection of a sculptor and determining the general idea of the statue, the material to be used and the price to be paid therefor, arrange with the architect of the capitol for the erection of the statue in Statuary Hall, and the selection of a location."

"The State also arranges for the payment of all bills for the shipment of the statue and its erection in Statuary Hall."

"I respectfully recommend that this committee proceed to acquire all necessary information and data relative to placing a statue in Statuary Hall in the capitol at Washington, and that this committee present such data and information to the next General Assembly of the State with the recommendation that the State of Delaware proceed with the erection of a statue of a distinguished deceased citizen of the State of Delaware."

Mr. Peeney also remarked, "Statuary Hall is today one of the most impressive chambers in the capitol, is situated in the House end of the capitol and immediately next to that large circular chamber under the dome. It was in this chamber that the members of the House of Representatives held their sessions until they took possession of their present hall in the House wing."

"For many years prior to the completion of the present House wing, and while the members of the House were still meeting in what is now Statuary Hall, the final disposition of this chamber seems to have been discussed by many and from as many different points of view."

Members of the committee are chairman; Mr. Peeney, secretary; State Senator Charles M. Hollis, of Seaford; Representative Edward A. Hart, of Townsend; Representative Luther S. Conwell, of Camden; Josiah Marvel, of Wilmington; and former Judge Henry C. Conrad, of Dover.

Here's the way to make sure of LUMBER QUALITY

IT'S part of our policy to handle materials of well-known make and guaranteed quality whenever we can. We haven't been able to do it with lumber until now. Because until 4-Square Lumber came along there was no such thing as guaranteed quality—in the lumber business.

But there is now—and we've got it. 4-Square Lumber comes in packages. Every package carries not only the brand mark but the species mark and the grade mark as well.

When you come here and buy 4-SQUARE LUMBER—you get your money's worth—and you know that you are getting it.

ESSEX the Challenger

In 8 Body Types, and at no extra cost a wide variety of colors to suit your taste

Its challenge is distinctive and unusual in those fine qualities which owners prize most highly. In appearance it is a completely changed and modern car. The bodies are longer, wider, lower. The car looks larger and is larger. The wheel base is lengthened and the wheel tread increased. A double drop frame has lowered the body height, yet both head room and road clearance are increased. It challenges your interest with big car spaciousness and comfort.

The motor is larger and smoother. The performance range is notably increased.

You will not use more speed than Essex gives you. More power would be neither useful nor economical. It gets quickly away at the stop, is strong on the hills and swift on the straight-away. And it does these things easily, quietly, without annoying effort for the car or nervous strain for the driver.

You won't be content with any less comfortable or less good looking or less distinctive car. It is a thoroughbred automobile and it challenges your attention because of its price.
