Halloween parade set for Sunday

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

Witches, goblins and ghouls will take over Main Street on Sunday as Newark's annual Halloween Parade returns for the 72nd year.

The parade will start at 3 p.m. at Tyre Avenue and Main Street and then head west on Main Street to North College Avenue.

Officials considered moving the parade to Delaware Avenue due to the construction on Main Street, but ultimately decided to keep the standard parade route, according to Newark Parks and Recreation Director Joe Spadafino.

The construction won't affect parade viewing, Spadafino said. However, it did prompt one big change: parade marchers are strictly prohibited from throwing or handing out candy and other items along the parade route.

Traditionally, excited children scramble to pick up candy thrown from floats. But with a narrower parade area – due to one lane of Main Street being closed – that could create a dangerous situation, Spadafino explained.

Instead, groups marching in the parade are invited to hand out goodies during the annual Trick-or-Treat Main Street, which will begin immediately after the parade.

Cub Scout Pack 56 marches in the 2018 Halloween parade.

Children will also be able to go from business to business, collecting candy from Main Street merchants.

More than 60 groups – made up of more than 2,000 participants — are signed up to march in the parade, including 10 marching bands. Between 10,000 and 15,000 spectators are expected.

Costumed individuals or families who want to march alongside these groups may do so by checking in with parks and recreation staff at George Read Park (across from Newark High School) by 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Attendees are also invited to pose for pictures in a pumpkin patch set up on the Academy Lawn.

Parking will be free in all city-run hourly lots.

Due to the festivities, the following streets will be closed on Sunday from 2:30 to 5 p.m.: Main Street (Library Avenue to North College Avenue), Tyre Avenue and Delaware Circle. Meanwhile, Delaware Avenue (South Chapel Street to Library Avenue) will be closed from 2:30 to 4 p.m.

There is no rain date for the event. In case of inclement weather, call the Leisure Time Hotline at 302-366-7147.

Downes to name cafeteria in memory of beloved custodian

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

Tim Norris' job was to mop floors and empty trashcans, but to the students at Downes Elementary School, his impact went far beyond his official duties as chief custodian.

Norris' role as mentor and friend to the students was evident each day in the cafeteria, where he was stationed for cleanup duty, his colleagues said.

"Lunchtime at Downes is an extremely busy place, and Tim ran the cafeteria like a pro," school secretary Marilyn Moore recalled. "His main duty was to clean up after the kids, but you could always find him tying the shoelace of a second-grader or helping to open a milk carton of a crying kindergartener."

Sadly, Norris' daily presence in the cafeteria ended earlier this year, when Norris died serving the school he loved. He suffered serious injuries after falling from the school's roof while working April 9 and passed away several days later at the age of 58.

His legacy, however, will live on, if the school board approves a proposal to name the cafeteria in memory of Norris, who worked at Downes for six years.

"The cafeteria is the most fitting place we could put his name on the school, because this is where the kids interacted with him," Bronwyn Millman, president of the Downes PTA said. "This is where his heart was, and this is where kids remember him."

In accordance with the Christina School District's policy for naming facilities, the PTA has obtained more than 100 signatures on a petition in favor of the effort, as well as letters of support from Principal Anne Park, school staff members and local elected officials. After a period of public comment, the school board will vote on the proposal in November.

If approved, Downes plans to hold a naming ceremony in conjunction with its annual Healthy Heart Night in February. Donations received in Norris' memory will cover the cost of installing a plaque with his name and photo.

Park said Norris' injury and subsequent death hit the students and staff hard, recalling visiting him in the hospital to deliver hundreds of letters and drawings from students. One letter in particular still brings her to tears.

"Mr. Tim, you may think you are just a custodian, but you are a hero," the student wrote.

Chaz Rohrer, another Downes custodian, said "the spirit of Tim still lingers within the school."

"Tim had a heart of gold and always did his best to be helpful to everyone he encountered," Rohrer said. "He always had a positive, joyful attitude. He kept the negative out and always had a song of praise."

Downes librarian Mary Coyle recalled that Norris cooked lunch for the staff twice a year and wore his Pittsburgh Steelers gear every Friday in the fall, drawing good-natured ribbing from the many Eagles fans on staff. More importantly, she said, he had a knack for anticipating the needs of the students and staff before they could even ask.

"We loved his spirit, his kindness and his humor. He was grounded in his faith, and that showed in all of his actions towards both students and staff," Coyle said. "He is missed terribly by us all. I still look for him every day, but I know he is still with us."

Naming the cafeteria after Norris would be a fitting honor, Moore said.

"He gave so much of himself to us and was such an important person in the building and in our lives," she said. "He was family to us, and since he can no longer physically be with us, it would be so special to honor him in this way."

Man pleads guilty to assaulting Newark cop

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

A former University of Delaware student who seriously injured a Newark police officer in March pleaded guilty earlier this month.

Alexander Mastronardi, 19, of Bernardsville, N.J., admitted to second-degree assault and resisting arrest. As part of the deal, the more serious charge of first-degree assault on a police officer was dropped.

According to state law, Mastronardi could face up to nine years in prison when sentenced early next year. At the time of his arrest, he was a UD sophomore, but he is no longer enrolled at the university, a UD spokeswoman confirmed.

Mastronardi was first arrested around 1:45 a.m. March 23. Officers were on patrol on North College Avenue when they saw a disturbance in the street, police said. A ride-share driver told police she was waiting in traffic when Mastronardi, who had not requested a ride through the ride-share service, began pulling on her door trying to get in.

Mastronardi, who was intoxicated, attempted to punch the officer, and was taken into custody, police said. He continued to struggle with officers once they got him into the cell block processing area in the basement of the police station.

Mastronardi used his leg to trip Cpl. Patrick Craig, who struck his head on a metal counter and then fell to the concrete floor.

Craig, 51, finished his shift, not realizing the extent of his injuries. However, while at home several days later, he began suffering medical problems.

MASTRONARDI

Doctors told him he had suffered a stroke caused by damage his brain sustained in the fall.

He was admitted to the hospital with what police later described as life-threatening injuries and spent weeks in a rehabilitation center.

Craig struggled with cognition issues and has had to relearn many tasks. He's trying to get used to what his wife, Patti, calls their "new normal."

"That's the hardest thing," he said in May during a fundraiser organized by Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 4 to support Craig and his family. "In my mind, I'm still the traffic cop. I'm still that same guy in my brain. But my body is not."

Craig is continuing to rehab but has not yet been able to return to NPD, where he is a certified motorcycle operator and has done stints as a fire-arms instructor, a SWAT team member and a collision reconstructionist.

Burglars hit two Newark businesses

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

Police are still looking for suspects after two Newark businesses were burglarized last week.

Detectives have not yet determined if the two incidents are related, Lt. Andrew Rubin, a spokesman for the Newark Police Department, said.

The first happened at 4:18 a.m. Oct. 14 at Cigarette City in College Square Shopping Center.

Officers responding to a burglary alarm noticed that someone had broken in through the front door, Rubin said. Items were stolen from inside, and the ATM was damaged.

Approximately two hours later, a burglary alarm went off at the Rite Aid on New London Road. The burglar stole items from inside and unsuccessfully tried to steal the ATM.

Arriving officers saw signs of forced entry and a possible suspect vehicle fleeing from the scene. They later found the vehicle parked on a nearby street, unoccupied. The vehicle had been reported stolen from Wilmington, Rubin said.

No suspect descriptions or surveillance photos were released.

Newark man charged with stealing vehicle, package

jshannon@chespub.com

A man is facing charges for allegedly stealing a vehicle and a package in Newark.

The package theft happened Oct. 7 on Patrick Henry Court in the Cherry Hill Manor neighborhood. Through an investigation, police identified the suspect as Daniel Rodriguez, 27, of Newark, police said.

On Oct. 9, officers searched Rodriguez's home and arrested him. They also charged him in connection with the theft of a vehicle from a house where he was staying and a vehicle burglary on Orchard Road, authorities said.

He was charged with theft, burglary, theft of a motor vehicle, criminal mischief, selling stolen property and receiving stolen property. He was jailed in lieu of $1,100 secured bond.

Man charged in Newark bike theft, vehicle burglaries

By JOSH SHANNON

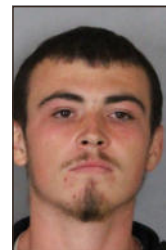

jshannon@chespub.com

A man suspected of several thefts over the summer was arrested last week after he was spotted riding a stolen bicycle, police said.

The initial crimes happened just before 6 a.m. Aug. 29 at the Christina Mill Apartments, where a resident reported a man stealing a bike from a porch, police said. Several hours later, someone burglarized several cars on Timberline Drive and stole property from inside.

Police eventually connected the thefts to Christopher Hunter, 22, of Elkton, Md., who had been stopped as part of a "crime prevention check" on Timberline Drive prior to police receiving reports of the thefts. At the time, he was in possession of the bike that had been stolen at Christina Mill Apartments, authorities said.

After learning of the thefts, police obtained warrants for Hunter's arrest but could not locate him.

On Oct. 14, officers spotted him riding a different stolen bike on Main Street and took him into custody on charges related to the thefts, police said.

A doggone good time at the Wag & Walkathon

By B. RAE PERRYMAN

bperryman@chespub.com

Glasgow Park was a doggone good time on Saturday, with the Cross the Finish Line event and wrap-up party of the Wag & Walkathon event hosted by the therapy dog nonprofit PAWS for People.

Hundreds of local residents came out with their four-legged friends to participate in the 11th festival of its kind.

Melanie Sieber and Sue Good volunteered at the event, and Good had her two dogs on hand.

"We both have therapy dog teams," said Good. "This is the first year we've done a cumulative marathon. We had one team do 1,700 miles. People got really excited."

"This is our 11th year," Sieber said. "It's important for folks to come out today to see exactly what we do with our therapy dog teams. We have games for the dogs and vendors, such as rescues. We have several dozen vendors. It's really important for people to come out and get to know us and see the dogs."

This year was the first that the pet therapy organization had volunteers and walkers participate in a month-long cumulative marathon, with several dozen crossing the finish line in the morning.

Participants gathered at 10 a.m. to walk their final lap together, and relays and contests for the dogs brought out the pup's competitive edge. Trophies and treats were awarded by a team of volunteer judges from WSFS Bank for events such as Waggiest Tail, Best Trick and Best Smile.

But everyone was a winner at the family-friendly event, and the dogs that didn't go home with a trophy got plenty of treats and pets.

Attendees also walked a special pet remembrance lap, commemorating pets that have previously passed on.

Sheena Gladden and her dog Zeus, a precious two-year-old Bichon-King Charles Cavalier mix, participated in several contests.

"He loves people, which is why we signed up to do PAWS," said Gladden. "He's so good for therapy. We've visited a physical therapy rehab in Middletown. We've done the Paws for Reading, too. It's been a great fit for him and will hopefully de-stress a lot of people. There are so many different events and places. The variety is amazing."

Gladden knew her dog had a special talent for soothing people and a lot of love to give. She encouraged others to consider joining PAWS programs, as well.

"He gives us so much joy," she said. "I want to be able to share that with other people."

Traditionally, PAWS for People has held an annual Wag-n-Walk 5K Run, but the non-profit group decided to switch to the monthlong initiative due to slowly declining participation in the 5K and as a way to include people from the organization's expanding service areas, according to Clarice Ritchie, director of events and operations for PAWS for People.

"We wanted to do something

Prada the Yorkie leads the pack of walkers finishing their last lap at the 11th Annual Wag & Walkathon in Glasgow Park on Saturday.

that people could do wherever they live because our programs are in Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania," she said. "So instead of everybody having to come to Newark, we wanted to do something where people could have some fun and participate where they live."

Funds raised through the event will benefit the pet therapy services that PAWS for People provides at hospitals, assisted living facilities, schools, libraries, drug and alcohol rehabilitation centers, and anywhere else in the four-state area that somebody could benefit from the affection of a pet, according to Ritchie.

Ritchie said therapy pets offer companionship to people in assisted living facilities and hospitals.

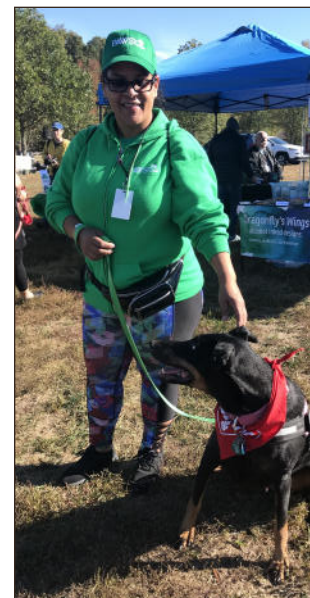

"In an assisted living facility, sometimes we hear we're the only visitor someone may have, so it provides a friendly human along with a pet ... [When visiting a hospital] it provides a great distraction from whatever they may be dealing with in the hospital — not just for the patients but also sometimes for their families visiting them and also for the staff," Ritchie said.

According to Ritchie, the pet volunteers can also help children overcome their literacy anxiety as they practice reading alongside a furry friend.

"We have a special PAWS for Reading program where children who are learning to read can practice reading out loud to the pets," she said. "That way, it's non-judgmental and they build their confidence with reading out loud and it's not as scary as reading in your classroom or in front of an adult."

Good said she was amazed by how all the dogs and people get along at the event.

"It's my favorite thing," she exclaimed with a smile. "To see all the dogs and even puppies getting along. It's great"

UD fraternities aim to show they're part of the community too

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

More than 100 University of Delaware fraternity members rolled up their sleeves and grabbed trash bags Saturday morning, aiming to clean up Newark streets – as well as their reputation in the community.

"The idea was we wanted to show the community we're not just kids who want to go party," said Anthony Guccione, a UD junior from New York who serves as vice president of community relations for the Interfraternity Council. "We want to show we're more than that."

The volunteer effort comes during a year when student behavior in residential neighborhoods has been a hot topic, culminating in the passage of the controversial unruly gathering ordinance in March.

The fraternity brothers, representing 17 frats at UD, joined 70 other community members in the Newark Parks and Recreation Department's

They got involved at the urging of Newark Police Department Sgt. Greg D'Elia, who spearheaded the unruly gathering law and has been working with UD students to get them more involved in the community.

Guccione said fraternities and sororities at UD participate in many philanthropy initiatives, most notably the UDance dance marathon that raises $2 million for childhood cancer research each year, but the community cleanup provided a chance to make an impact locally.

"That's global. We wanted to show Newarkers we do stuff around Newark, as well," he said.

The students picked up trash on the streets surrounding their fraternity houses, Guccione said, noting that a number of their neighbors took notice and expressed their gratitude.

"We want to show we care about our neighbors as citizens," he said.

He said the project provided a good message to his fellow fraternity members, as well.

"We're not just kids living on a college campus. We're living in a community," he said. "Lots of guys woke up and realized that."

Guccione said he hopes that participating in the community cleanup becomes a tradition for the fraternities and noted that the Interfraternity Council is planning to organize its own cleanup the day after St. Patrick's Day.

"That's one of the rowdy days, so it would be good if we cleaned up," he said.

DelDOT: Study shows no need for traffic signal on Wyoming Road

DelDOT officials studied a proposal to install a traffic light at the intersection of South Chapel Street and Wyoming Road.

By JOSH SHANNON

After further study, the Delaware Department of Transportation is no longer considering a new traffic light for the intersection of Wyoming Road and South Chapel Street.

"I can't say with a straight face that if we put in a traffic signal it will be any better," DelDOT consultant Matt Buckley told the Newark Traffic Committee last week.

The traffic committee, which is made up of representatives from the city of Newark, the Newark Police Department, the Wilmington Area Planning Council and a Newark resident, took up the issue over the summer in response to a request from Tina Jackson, a Tyre Avenue resident who said she goes through the intersection several times a day.

The four-way stop creates a dangerous situation, Jackson said, adding that she believes it will get worse due to several apartment buildings and townhouses being built nearby, as well as changes at the University Courtyard Apartments. The University of Delaware took over the private apartment complex for use as dorms, and its large parking lot will be used by students and employees who buy parking permits.

In August, Buckley said initial data supported the request for a signal, but further study showed that the intersection isn't a frequent source of congestion, and crash numbers that peaked in 2017 have since gone down. Adding a signal would create different problems, he added.

Buckley said that in a more rural area he might recommend a roundabout, but that likely would not be feasible at this intersection due to a lack of space.

DelDOT will continue to monitor the intersection, he said.

Out of the Past

The Pencader Heritage Museum has been digitizing old Newark City Council meeting minutes and shares excerpts with Newark Post readers in a weekly column. The museum, at 2029 Sunset Lake Road, is open the first and third Saturdays of each month from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and every Wednesday noon to 4 p.m.

March-April 1949 – Work was ongoing to establish a city employee pension fund, job evaluations, and wage rates. Paper Mill Road was undermined due to a spring under the roadbed. Holes on Annabelle Street and Wyoming Road needed attention. Demonstration of a new street sweeper was needed before purchase.

After 14 years, Councilman Ramsey offered his resignation due to ill health and urged the town to build sewer on south side before cesspools polluted water table. Electric service upgrades needed and streets repaired; also said when he came on council town owed $300,000 and was now debt free. He said Newark had always been noted for clean streets and good water and he hoped the city remained a good place to live.

Residents of Manuel Street agreed to pay for extending sewer to them if the city removed trees. Some inaccuracies on city assessment books were corrected. A new health code stated milk bacteria count not to exceed 50,000 and butter fat must be 3.5.

Fluoride treatment of water was still under study. North side residents must connect to sewer within 90 days. All wells in town limits to be tested and if unsafe, to be posted as such. All water main dead ends to be flushed once a month. Level of chlorination must be made tamper-proof. Problems with privies had been corrected; all those outside of town were under state supervision. Zimmers, McBerty, Pusey, Sheaffer, Squier and Tibbitt building permits authorized.

Newark Charter cross-country a mix of veterans and youth

By JON BUZBY

JonBuzby@hotmail.com

Newark Charter cross-country coach Steve Sinko welcomed a record number of runners back in August at the beginning of preseason practice. Fifty-two student-athletes – 30 boys, 22 girls – are the most Sinko has had in his program since he started it seven years ago.

It's a squad made up of a combination of veteran leadership and an influx of youth not seen since the high school opened. Thirty-four of the 52 runners are sophomores or younger, and three of the four captains – seniors Tommy Kinservik, Andrew Narvaez and Emma Hadley, and junior Madi McWatters – are taking on the role for the first time.

"There is a feeling of newness to the program this season," Sinko explained of the team's makeup. "Young team members are learning about who and what they can be as the next generation of Patriot runners. New captains are taking their turn with leadership and putting a stamp as to how the program will run going forward."

Senior Aidhan Corbett is the top runner on the boys squad. And like a lot of "first timers" on this year's team, it's a brand new experience having the spotlight of being No. 1 shining on his shoulders.

"He has risen to the task leading the team in every workout and race while helping his teammates improve as well," Sinko proudly said.

Running second behind Corbett in the pack is Kinservik, who has recently battled injuries and hopes to be back to full speed by the championship meets. Fellow seniors Ryan Lynch and Micah Beck provide some of the veteran leadership Sinko raved about.

"Ryan has been working his way back into form over the last few weeks, and if he continues to do so, will greatly impact our team placing," Sinko explained. "Micah has been enjoying his best season as a Patriot and he helps add a little fire and emotion to our team."

"Ian has been improving by leaps and bounds the last few weeks, dropping over two minutes off his lifetime personal record. He is fully healthy and is showing what he can do," Sinko said. "This is Josh's first year as a varsity contributor and he has been doing a great job in the role. Tyler is a strong and steady performer doing some great things for our team, and he is just getting used to high school cross-country."

McWatters, the reigning Diamond State Conference champion, is the leader of the girls pack.

"Jokingly, it seems like Madi has been here forever," Sinko said of his co-captain. "She started with our program as an eighth-grader and made an immediate impact. In her junior year, she is still doing the same. Great attitude, tireless worker, daily leader of our team day in and day out."

Like on the boys team, there is a mix of classes represented in the girls starting lineup. Sophomore Alison Huthmacher and eighth-grader Arianna Murphy have had solid seasons to date.

"Alison joined us as an eighth-grader and made an immediate impact," Sinko said. "She is an extremely dependable runner that rarely has a bad race. Arianna shows an incredible amount of potential and is getting better week after week. She is the next of immediate impact eighth-graders."

A trio of freshmen have wasted no time contributing to the varsity team.

"Lily Halfen is one of our top middle school talents that is making a great jump to the high school level, showing her potential as she adjusts to high school running," Sinko said. "Grace Carroll is one incredibly tough runner. She will have a plan, execute it, and shows no fear when competing as a young runner. Lastly, Maddie Alvarez has had some minor injury issues in her first season on the cross-country team that mildly affected her training. She is healthy and has been consistently training these last few weeks and she is showing what she can do."

Sinko is hopeful that junior April Polk will be at full strength as the championship meets loom.

"April brings the team great experience at the varsity level," he pointed out. "She has been dealing with some nagging injuries but still does a great job supporting the team. Her best racing is still in front of her if we can get her to 100 percent."

While the team prepares for the upcoming conference, county and state meets on the trails, Sinko is pleased with how this multi-age and experience team has bonded off them.

"Team bonding, which in my opinion is the greatest part about the sport of cross-country, has been coming along all season," he said. "With so many new team members, it has taken a little bit of time. We had a good stretch of no competitions and in that time of training, I think the team came together very quickly."

Third quarter the difference in loss to Howard

By JON BUZBY

JonBuzby@hotmail.com

Newark hosted Blue Hen Conference Flight B foe Howard High School of Technology on Saturday morning knowing the Wildcats are one of the favorites to win the Division II state championship.

Howard came to Newark fresh off its lone loss of the season, a 28-14 defeat to Hodgson, a team many believe is the frontrunner to win the Division I championship.

The Yellowjackets hung with Howard early. Each team scored in the first quarter through the air. Newark's came on a 14-yard pass from quarterback Mele Stallings to his favorite wide receiver, Kamau Lately. The touchdown pass and catch was the sixth of the season for the duo.

Howard scored the only touchdown of the second quarter with three minutes remaining on a 60-yard screen play, giving the Wildcats a 14-6 lead heading into the locker room.

"This week, the team came to play," head coach Jody Russell said. "Howard scored on the first play on offense on a halfback pass. We responded with a drive that had a touchdown pass called back and no points due to a penalty. Howard then went three and out and we responded with a 70-yard scoring drive."

The third quarter proved to be the turning point for Howard as the Wildcats reeled off 16 unanswered points while keeping the Yellowjackets' offense out of the end zone. Howard would tack on one final touchdown in the fourth quarter before heading back to Wilmington with a 38-6 victory.

"The second half had penalties, which shot us in the foot," Russell explained. "Howard's running back Karvin Reeves was explosive, and they have a receiver in Tyair Spencer who caught three touchdown passes. They are big and fast and are one of the best teams in the state. It is hard to run the football against them. We battled them for a half and actually had a chance in the third quarter to pull it to one score but couldn't complete the pass."

Howard (6-1, 4-0 Flight B) would tack on one final touchdown in the fourth quarter before heading back to Wilmington with a 38-6 victory, dropping Newark's record to 2-5, 2-2 in the conference.

Returning to action

Donald Burton played for the first time since the Lake Forest game, and it gave Newark a huge improvement on both sides of the ball, according to Russell.

"He made some big-time plays defensively," Russell added.

Linebackers Chris Lazear and Tyran Rice were also back to full strength.

"Them being healthy also helped sure up the run defense," Russell pointed out.

Up next

Newark gets back to playing football on Friday night when the Yellowjackets head to Brandywine High School to play for the first time under the Bulldogs' newly installed lights. Russell said moving from Friday nights to Saturday games and vice-versa does not affect the team.

"The back and forth is what it is. It's just the nature of the game," he explained. "We have a preparation routine for home and away, as well as for Friday or Saturday. We just stick to the routine for the week of practice and focus on the teams one week at a time."

Brandywine enters the game with a 4-3 record after having its three-game winning streak snapped in a 20-14 loss to Conrad on Friday night. With games remaining against A.I. du Pont (6-1) and Dickinson (0-7), a win Friday night could lock up a winning season for the Bulldogs.

With three games remaining and three wins needed for a .500 season, Russell knows this game is just as big for his own program.

"I feel like this is just as big of a game for us," he said. "As I told the team, 'We have a chance to win each and every week from here on out.' We have to stay focused, not worry about records and go 1-0 each week from now until the end of the season. We can use this final stretch to springboard us into next year and set the tone for the future."

Kickoff at Brandywine High School is at 7 p.m.

Hens' defense stands tall in win over UNH

By SEAN GROGAN

sgrogan@cecilwhig.com

Delaware's defense had come through time after time Saturday. It only made sense it would need to once again on the game's final play.

Three seconds remained on the clock as the Blue Hens clung to a six-point lead over visiting New Hampshire, setting up one game-deciding play from the 22-yard line. As New Hampshire quarterback Max Brosmer's pass fell safely incomplete out of the right side of the end zone, it secured a 16-10 CAA win for Delaware before 16,730 fans at Delaware Stadium.

"It's definitely an effort that we're able to produce each week," defensive tackle Cam Kitchen said after the Blue Hens allowed only 251 yards of total offense. "We have a lot of guys that are very hungry."

The two previous New Hampshire drives in the fourth quarter ended with Delaware takeaways. Kitchen forced and recovered a fumble with 4:56 left in the game on what proved to be the Wildcats' penultimate possession. On the New Hampshire drive before that, the Wildcats moved 53 yards down to field to the Blue Hens' 12-yard line, only for freshman cornerback Amonte Strothers to record an interception.

"Defensively, we just rose to the occasion on numerous occasions.

Obviously, the big interception by Amonte Strothers was about as big as if not the biggest play of the game down there in the red zone," head coach Danny Rocco said. "Cam probably played his best game of the year – a strip sack, another sack, a batted ball. We were more disruptive defensively today, we were in their backfield a little bit more today and had a few more negative plays against their offense."

Kitchen's fumble recovery set up a 29-yard field goal from Jake Roth that brought the score to its 16-10 final with 2:46 left. Roth also made a 33-yarder in the third quarter. Those two kicks accounted for all the second-half points either team managed.

"It was an ugly game in a lot of ways," Rocco said. "We wanted it to be that. We said at the beginning of the week that we were going to get get big and run the ball."

Delaware had two running backs surpass 100 yards rushing Saturday, led by 103 from DeJoun Lee. Will Knight finished just behind Lee with 101 yards.

"A lot of people ask how it is to play with Will and have that 1-2," Lee said. "We're back and forth. It's selfless. We want to win. We want to drive the ball the best we can. When one of us is tired, there's no hesitation to go out. It's 'I'm tired, I'm going to get myself out and get

Will in.' Or Will is tired, get me in. It's constant and I feel like it batters the defense because you have two backs that are solid and that can continuously go 100 percent right at you."

Lee scored the Blue Hens' lone touchdown of the game with 1:11 left in the first half. His 9-yard touchdown run was set up by a 39-yard rush from Knight two plays prior. Delaware's five-play, 74-yard drive followed the Wildcats' only touchdown of the game. New Hampshire's 10 points followed second-quarter interceptions thrown by Hens backup quarterback Pat Kehoe on consecutive drives.

With starting quarterback Nolan Henderson injured, Lee knew the heavy workload he and Knight would receive.

"It was going to be a dog fight. We were going to pound it," Lee said. "Will and I talked about, 'If we have a good game, this team has a good game.' Obviously, the O-line had a great game. It helped us really do a good job. I went in there and really congratulated those guys because they did a helluva job. We knew what we were getting into. We talked about it and were excited about it. That's what football's about."

Delaware had lost its two previous games, including a demoralizing 42-7 blowout at the hands of conference rival Elon one week earlier.

PAID FOR BY THE COALITION FOR NATURAL STREAM VALLEYS
PAID ADVERTISEMENT

Dear Honorable Mayor & Council,

For 50 years our organization (DE State CAP Council UAW Community Action Program) has been working with the Coalition for Natural Stream Valleys, a Newark base group to preserve White Clay Creek State Park (both groups have many members who live in Newark).

Over many decades of arduous effort our two organizations along with other environmental associations helped in creating this beautiful park (3,900 acres). We will continue to fight for every square foot to augment this park for our citizens. Whereas, the City of Newark has over the last several years, supported the efforts to preserve the W.C.C steam as a natural conservation and recreation area.

Monday evening, October 28th at 7:00pm, council will be requested for an annexation for a major subdivision, rezoning and site plan for Handloff & Weinberg Trust Property (along the west side of Paper Mill Road). Unlike some votes where you are required by law to approve, this is not the case. Yes, they will donate 6 acres of undevelopable land to the state and take a tax write off. (Maybe one acre could be built on). Most of the remaining 7 acres of the woods would be developed for 18 homes.

We oppose this plan and hope you will consider voting "NO" for annexation. We hope at some later date the trust would consider selling at fair market value plus still donate 6 acres to the state for public use.

Our goal will be to add this parcel to WCCSP as a bird sanctuary, afterall our little feather friends are going to need all the help they can get.

Thank you,
Richard McDonaugh
President of UAW of DE CAP Council

If you agree, please let the Mayor and Council know! council@newark.de.us that the city of Newark can provide.”

In September 2018, the planning commission voted 5-1 to recommend council approve the plan, despite concerns from some neighbors about the loss of the trees and the impact on traffic.

The project is still facing opposition from conservationists.

The Coalition for Natural Stream Valleys is calling on city council to oppose the annexation.

“White Clay Creek and its valley is a great resource for Newark and its people. Further development along it will only degrade water quality and negatively impact the ecology of the stream,” group president Desmond Kahn said.

The group is concerned about the more than 200 trees that would be cut down for the project, and Kahn said that if the property is not annexed, New Castle County’s development code would likely prohibit this development due to the large-scale destruction of forest trees.

“If the annexation is prevented, the trust may still find a buyer for this land as a natural area,” Kahn said. “For instance, the State of Delaware has a dedicated open lands purchasing program, and places high value on land that adjoins state parkland.”

Don Sharpe, one of several Newarkers who were instrumental in the creation of White Clay Creek State Park decades ago, sees the preservation of the Paper Mill Road parcel as a continuation of that effort.

“I think it would be a nice addition,” Sharpe said.

Though the Handloff family has already agreed to donate part of the land to White Clay Creek State Park, Sharpe and others would like to see all of the land preserved.

“Some nine acres is vacant woodland and is among the highest and best of the Delaware Piedmont Forest, and should rightfully be part of the commons, part of the public trust,” said Jan Owens, a Newark resident who is writing a book about the creation of White Clay Creek State Park.

She added that forests provide a corridor for animals and birds and suggested the Paper Mill Road property could become a butterfly sanctuary.

Owens noted that White Clay Creek State Park is the result of private land owners donating or selling large and small tracts of land to be preserved for the public good.

“A few examples are the DuPont family, the DuPont Company and the University of Delaware. The Robinson family swapped WCCSP nature center property for uphill land. The Kranz farm is an ongoing family legacy that supports preservation and open space,” she said. “To preserve natural areas is a tradition of many pillars of the community. The Handloff family would join this august company of benefactors.”

Sharpe said his attempts to reach the Handloff family have been unsuccessful and he decided to go public with his request in hopes of drawing more public support.

“This is just a bit of a gamble,” he said. “Maybe we can get their attention.”

Neither city officials nor a lawyer for the Handloffs would comment on the proposal.

met several times over the past few weeks and plan to continue to do so.

“Those kind of meetings are the first of their kind in a very long time, if ever,” noted Dan Rich, a member of the TNP board and a longtime University of Delaware educator.

While no plans have been formalized, Powell and Newton have discussed opportunities for joint training sessions for teachers, as well as art installations and other projects that could involve students from Christina schools as well as NCS.

Charter schools are publicly funded but have more freedom than district schools and are sometimes the target of criticism because they divert students and funding away from traditional public schools. Newark Charter, in particular, often comes under fire for its admission preferences for students who live within a five-mile radius of the school.

No art project or training session will resolve those issues, but officials hope that small steps will lead to more meaningful collaborations.

“We need to think about Newark as a whole,” Powell said.

Newton added that everyone can agree they care about improving the education system in Newark.

“That’s a good starting point while we figure out the details,” he said.

“We’ve got to take that leap of faith,” he added.

Powell and Newton both spoke at Tuesday’s Newark Futures Workshop, the fifth in a series of community forums organized by TNP and the University of Delaware’s Community Engagement Initiative.

Organizers asked attendees to put aside their loyalties and move past criticism of the past to brainstorm about how to move forward to improve the education system in Newark – which attendees of a previous forum identified as a top priority.

“Tonight is a game changer,” said Freeman

Williams, a retired Christina superintendent and a TNP board member. “Step out of your comfort zone. Don’t think school or school district – think all of our kids.”

Rich pointed out that a number of factors are coming together to create the best opportunity for education reform in decades.

The state legislature recently formed the Redding Consortium to improve education equity in Wilmington and New Castle County, as well as develop a redistricting plan. In addition, two court cases working their way through Chancery Court could have a major impact on the way education funding is distributed. Rich said he also sees an increased political will, both in Dover and locally, to tackle the hard questions surrounding education policy.

Here in Newark, both NCS and Christina have new leadership. Newton took over for NCS founder Greg Meece this summer, and Christina has four board members in their first term.

Newton and Powell have a previous working relationship from their time at UD.

“We understand each other in that world, and now we find ourselves in roles that historically haven’t done anything together,” Powell said.

She added that she’s optimistic that change is on the horizon.

“I’m excited to be here in a time when there probably is going to be positive change for all of our students who live in this area,” she said. “I spend many hours doing board service and board work and I’m honored that during my term that I’m sitting on this board, that I will likely be part of some positive change and some things that may be solutions to problems that are older than me.”

Newton agreed.

“We at Newark Charter stand ready to partner in this endeavor,” he said. “Will it be easy? Likely not, because if it was easy, it would have already been done.”

To further the discussion of education, TNP is planning a meeting about school funding, set for 10:30 a.m. Nov. 2 at Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Newark. A second Newark Futures Workshop on education will be planned in the spring.
