FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The Committee on Foreign Missions made a report earnestly recommending the support of their missionaries in foreign lands, closing with the following resolution in regard to missions in Africa :

"Resolved, That whenever our brethren 'American Baptist Consolidated Convention' shall find a man or men adapted to that field of labor, and shall make such appointment, we pledge this Society to furnish one-half the means for his support."

Rev. R. L. Perry had always felt a deep interest in the spiritual condition of the people of Africa, and had in former years desired to go there as a missionary, but, under the providence of God, he had been prevented from doing so. In regard to the limate, he said that slave vessels had been fitted out in New York, and Boston, and Philadelphia, which had gone out there and brought home their cargoes of living freight, and the men had all returned without being sick; and why should it be said that missionaries would die under the climate? We can redeem Africa, and we ought to adapt all the means in our power to accomplishing that object.

The resolution elicited a good deal of discussion as to the ability of the Society to support a missionary there, and the power of the Consolidated Convention and the

The discussion was very protracted, and was ended by a motion to recommit the whole report.

It was true that the Home Mission Society had men there-they had colored the Home Mission Society; which was dismen on their Board-but they were a cy-pher, and the people had no confidence in the Board. The Home Mission Society was not in the position to effect for them the same amount of good as the are, and he therefore cordially endorsed the report. He was not recognized among the other ministers as an equal. He had always invited the white ministers to his pulpit, but in an experience of thirty years in the ministry he had not yet received the first missionary in Louisiana. Rev. J. B. Simmons, of the Home Mission, stated that Revs. Messrs. Dixon and Grimes, the colored members of the Board of the Home Mission Society, are not mere cyphers. They are on committees to which are entrusted work of vital interest to their race, and they are perfectly familiar with the workings of the Society. More than one-third of their entire missionary force was engaged in the States recently in rebellion, and mostly among the colored people. Our colored brethren should be invited to take counsel with them in regard to the interests of their race, and other interests too. In regard to inviting colored pastors into his pulpit, he had invited at least two into his pulpit in Philadelphia, and they had preached from it to his people. Rev. H. Chamberlain believed in cooperation with any body or set of people who wished to advance the knowledge of truth, but it was very difficult for a "Free Mis-sionist" to get into a northern church. Rev. A. L. Post (Mr. Brisbane in the chair) made an explanation of some of his remarks on yesterday in regard to the in-terchange of pulpits. They had been mis-construed; and he wished it to be known what he meant by the language used. It was not the recognition of color, but of caste, which he deplored. He did not contend that all men were equal, but if he stood morally and intellectually on the same ground with any other man he would not refuse to interchange pulpits with him on the ground of color.

He further said that though a colored minister might justly feel some resentment, not having an invitation to preach reciprocated, yet the principle itself was so manifestly wrong that for that cause itself he ought not to consent to such exchanges. Rev. Mr. Simmons said that even in such dressed the Convention briefly, returning the Gospel was preached even where such he was not recognized by him.

But, he continued, prejudice, apart from color, is not the point. I affirm that there is as much fraternal feeling towards their colored brethren among the Baptists at the South as there is at the North. The tendency of the remarks of Brother Post and York between the colored preachers and others is to alienate the colored people from the white preachers. His advice was for and tried friends had gone to their rewards in Heaven during the past year.

Rev. W. B. Jefferson offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee to procure return tickets for the members and delegates of the Society.

What he wanted was for the ministers of the South to come out and say to the people that caste is wrong, that in Christ we are all one.

> Dr. Burrows, resuming, said that the tendency of the remarks made on yesterday would leave the colored people to think that the people of the North were better friends of the colored people than are the people of the South, and here, in the presence of these people, he emphatically denied it. We are just as much the friends of the colored people as they are, and you will get into our pulpits, into our houses, and sleep in our beds, just as soon as you will in theirs. The reverend gentleman stated, in tion with the colored people, you have got to work with, and not for, them. The remarks of Dr. Burrows were not

This reopened the question of cooperation with the Consolidated Convention and cussed at considerable length by several members, and adopted, with only one dissenting voice.

THE HOME MISSION REPORT was then taken from the table, and was still further discussed by Revs. Messrs. Williams, Satchell, Troy, Brisbane, Dr. Mikels,

Laws, Perry, Dr. Brown, Stowell, and Gladden. W. H. Williams, Jr., stated that the peo-ple of the South do look with suspicion upon the Home Mission Board. Schools what the value of these small crops would were established by the Board upon the free principle; teachers were paid by the Board, and yet he had been informed they exacted tuition of the parents of the pupils, and they also required pay for books sent out by the Board. This had certainly been done in Petersburg, and, for aught he knew, at other places. Some persons in the interest of the Society had certainly imposed upon the colored people of the South. Dr. Mikels said there was room enough in the South for all these Societies. There preceded it, assuring them that nothing should be no such feelings of alienation as he had seen indicated. His people would not give money to aid you if this state of things continued to exist. The remark that the people had no confidence in the Home Mission Board grated on his ears. R. S. Laws stated that a man claiming to be an agent of the Home Mission Society wants the name of the agent, he could furnish it. He staid while there with the biggest rebel in the county, and went to political meetings to sell his books to the people who were in attendance. He did not believe this was done by the authority of the Board. The speaker was here reminded that there

BURROWS SPEAKS.

Dr. Burrows said it was about as difficult for a colored minister to get into a pulpit at the North as it was for him to get into one of the Richmond white churches. He protested against the people of the South being regarded as more unfriendly to the colored people than the northern churches were. The discussion of this subject was fixed for the morning's session to-day.

The Society then adjourned until 9 o'cleck this morning.

Fruit and Flower Exhibition.

St. Alban's Hall was crowded last night with a brilliant assemblage of old and young to witness the beautiful array of flowers and fruits there displayed under the auspices of the Horticultural and Pomological Society. Fine music and refreshing berries and cream were furnished by the Society, both of which were well received. This exhibition is pronounced by all to be a complete success; and those most interested feel assured that a bright future is opening for them in the direction of fruit and flower

The flowers exhibited were from the gardens of Messrs. Alian & Johnston and Mr.

John Morton. Their beautiful varieties and tasty arrangement combined to present a very pleasing appearance.

At an early hour in the evening the committee of the mittee proceeded to make an examination of the berries as to their merits under different heads which the Society had adopted. We give the following list as decided by the committee. [Dr. Leo. Rosser exhibited some very large and excellent berries, but they were brought in too late Ledley, comprising Wilson's Albany, Russell's Prolific, and Jucunda; and also the three varieties exhibited by Mr. L.

Chamberlayne, among which was the splendid Golden Queen.
The following is the list of exhibitors Dr. J. G. Beattie, William Coulling, J. W. Lewellen, W. L. Harrison, W. W. Turner, Allan & Johnston (twelve varieties), J. E. Stansberry & Brother, L. Chamberlayne, William M. Ledley, A. M. Morris, F. Davis & Co. (eighteen varieties).

The committee will make a detailed report to the Society as soon as prepared, and we will then give it to our readers. After the committee had completed their examination Captain John M. Allan, President of the Horticultural and Pomological Society, introduced Colonel W. T. Suther-lin, of Danville, President of the Virginia State Agricultural Society, to the audience, who in a few well-timed remarks added much to the entertainment. He said that he was gratified to witness this exhibition, not so much on account of the number present as the fact that it would tend towards turning the minds of the people to this subject. No one could estimate be in five years from this time, and he hoped that this would be a means of contributing to the exhibition which is to take place in this city in November next. SECOND DAY.

The Convention met at 9 o'clock, Bayne in the chair. The minutes were read by the secretary, who, by way of fancy touches put in a few extra senlences. Bayne moved that the minutes be adopted after striking out all that nonsense about "wasting ammunition," and all that sort of thing. He wanted that left to ber Hill, at 10 o'clock, horses, mules, wagons, other unimportant business, Hobson offered scurrilous writers. After the transaction of a resolution that the Convention go into secret session.

Norton and others opposed this, Troy made a speech, in the course of which he opposed the Walker ticket, and said that everybody who did not vote the Wells licket would be marked.

The resolution was laid on the table.

The following report of the Committee on Business was officied:

Cox moved the adoption of the report. A good deal of squabbling ensued, and the report was adopted.

Lewis Lindsey was not satisfied with the report, because a resolution offered by him had not been taken notice of. He said he understood all this wire-working business, and was intendin of stoppin it.

Dr. Harris, the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor on the Wells ticket, in accordance with invitation, then addressed the Convention. He is a bright mulatto of respectable appearance, and his intelligence cannot be denied. He is not much of an orator, but possesses a remarkable aptness for illustration by anecdote, and is an interesting talker. counselled his hearers to act upon the principle that instinct was more reliable than reason, and therefore it was better that they rely upon those of their own race, ignorant though they might be, rather than upon those who possessed that intelligence that might yet prove dangerous to them. He told them that they must contend for every right that would make the colored man equal, as he deserved to be, with the white man. He told them to trust no white man unless he showed by his deeds that he was in earnest in his professions towards the colored man. There were many white Republicans who could not be trusted. In order to secure the election of their candidates, over 10,000 white votes would be necessary. this. If they did not do their duty they could very easily hold them to account after the election, and he hoped they would do so. He thought they had acted wisely in nominating one of their own color, and that they had done wisely in not nominating a converted rebel for the place. Had a rebel been nominated, Governor Wells might in all probability have been sent to the Senate, and he would have been made Governor, thus placing the State somewhat in the position of Georgia. As it was, they had one of their own race; and he understood that Governor Wells was pledged not to accept a senatorship. After saying that he would have something more to communicate in caucus, he concluded. At the conclusion of Dr. Harris's remarks, Dr. Bayne said that he blessed the day that
