Agreed:
Police need new facility

by Cathy Thomas

The cost may be more than they expected, but city officials agree that the city needs a new police station.

A California consulting firm Tuesday night presented City Council with their recommendations for a new police station.

The study, prepared by Wendell Mounce and Associates, indicates that the cost of a new police station could run as much as $4 million — $1 million more than the city had planned to spend for the project.

City Manager Carl Luft believes the cost can be reduced.

"When the facility improvements are actually designed," he said, "I believe we can supplement available funds with additional financing sources over the next two budget years along with cost reduction alternatives."

Funds available for the new building amount to $3,083,400. That amount includes this year's bond issue to be considered by voters April 10.

Final costs of the building may depend on site selection. The consultants ruled out the present police station site due to its inadequate size.

Police officials now work out of a renovated church on East Main Street. Chief William A. Hogan said constructing a new building on the current site would also displace the department for several months. He said the department would have to find another location while construction was underway — something that is not really feasible.

The city is seriously considering two locations on Elkton Road: city-owned property next to the municipal building and vacant property at Thorn Lane near an Aetna fire house.

"If we could build on the city hall site, that would be super," said Luft. "It's a great location, and we already have the property."

City Council cannot take further action on constructing a new police station until the April 10 vote on the bond issue. If the bond issue is approved, city officials expect to begin the design of the new building in the fall.

Records fall as Dalrymple,
Rudy and Klockars excel

by Steve Canaday

The defending state champion Newark High School girls swimming team knew going into the state meet that their main competition would come from A.I. duPont.

And when the A.I. team opened the meet by posting a record-breaking time in the 200-yard medley relay, things didn't look too good for the Yellowjackets.

Enter Melissa Dalrymple.

Dalrymple, who Newark coach Chris Collier calls one of the elite swimmers in the state, absolutely annihilated the 2:08.12 state record in the 200-yard individual medley that had stood since 1984. Dalrymple's 2:06.43 was almost nine seconds ahead of the second place finisher, Angela Szwczuk of Ursuline.

"I felt good tonight," a dazed Dalrymple said afterward, "but I certainly wasn't expecting a time that good. It was about two whole seconds under my best time, and I'm more than a little bit surprised."

Biden: Say no
to legalization

by Neil Thomas

WILMINGTON — The '80s, U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden Jr. told the Delaware Media Association during a luncheon here Thursday, was a decade of unbridled cocaine abuse which resulted in huge increases in violent crime.

Not exactly startling news, right? Except the '80s to which Biden referred were the 1880s, not the 1980s.

In the 1880s, America suffered its first great cocaine epidemic with many of the same problems as are seen today, Biden said.

Then, the drug trade was more open. Thirty brands of soft drinks, including Coca-Cola and another brand bluntly named Dope, were laced with the drug and circulating freely on the open market.

Tavern patrons could sidle up to the bar and for "two bits" order a pure gram of cocaine to further boost their highs.

"Mainstream America was becoming addicted," Biden said. "Housewives to professors to laborers were strung out."

From 1898 to 1902, the nation's population rose just 10 percent while cocaine consumption jumped 40 percent, morphine use 400 percent and heroin use 600 percent.

With the increase in the use of drugs came a resulting increase in violent crime.

But eventually, said Biden, society came to grips with the issue and America kicked the habit.

It did so primarily by educating the public as to the dangers of drug

273 bridge
closing nearsSafety concerns to be discussed

by Cathy Thomas

The cracked bridge on Nottingham Road will be torn down later this year so a new bridge can be built over the Christina Creek.

As a result, traffic will be detoured onto Church Road in Woodmere, creating some safety concerns for residents.

A meeting will be held at 7:30 tonight (Thursday) at Downes Elementary School to discuss safety concerns.

If the bridge replacement project begins in June, Nottingham Road could be reopened to traffic in a couple of months. Traffic is usually lighter during the summer months, but the children are out of school in the summer, riding bicycles and playing near the streets.

The alternative is for the project to begin in September when children are in school. However, traffic is typically heavier in the fall.

"The word I get is the residents of Woodmere want that project to start as soon as it can so they can get it over with," said Senator James P. Neal, R-Newark.

The bridge was posted with a three ton weight limit in July 1988 after cracks were discovered during a routine inspection. The cracks were found in the concrete underneath the bridge.

Due to the weight limit, construction trucks have been forced to travel through Woodmere to get to new housing developments.

Neal said highway crews will improve Church Road so that it will be safe for traffic while the bridge is being replaced.

"It's got to be done," Neal said of the bridge replacement. "I think it ought to be done in a way to minimize safety problems."

Roselle will take office May 1

David P. Roselle officially becomes the University of Delaware's 25th president on May 1.

The presidential transition is now underway, according to the Andrew B. Kirkpatrick Jr., chairman of the university board of trustees. The trustee executive committee recently approved transition plans made by Roselle and current president Dr. E. Arthur Trabant.

Roselle was elected the next president of the university during a trustee meeting in December.

"Until May 1," said Kirkpatrick, "Dr. Trabant will fulfill all official university duties while taking a lead in introducing Dr. Roselle to the university and larger community."

Roselle, who is currently serving as president-elect, comes to Delaware from the University of Kentucky where he was president since July of 1987. A native of Vandergrift, Pa., he is a graduate of West Chester State College and Duke University.

David Roselle.

Roselle and his wife, Louise, will move into the Wright House — the official residence of the president — later this spring. They are currently living in other housing owned by the university.

Christina fires shot
in war on drugs

by Neil Thomas

Weighing in against drugs in the classroom, the Christina School District is preparing to institute the second phase of a two-pronged attack on substance abuse.

Christina has already implemented a drug abuse prevention program known as Here's Looking At You 2,000, and this fall plans to begin an intervention and counseling program known as START, for Student Assistance Referral Team.

With the programs, said Delaware Lt. Gov. Dale Wolf, Christina is "way out in front of anything in Delaware."

Carol Brown, who heads Christina drug abuse programs, said Here's Looking At You was begun in 1983 and today boasts "a very large network of teacher trainers who continue to assist with implementation, leadership and support in each of our building."

Now that the district has established a solid base in the area of prevention, she said it must move into intervention.

START revolves around core teams composed of building staff members, according to Christina's Debbie Lutz. Effective combinations include the principal, a counselor or student advisor, teachers from each grade level, the school nurse and other support staff members such as the human relations specialist or school psychologist.

At the elementary level, START directs its efforts toward the development of basic life skills such as self-esteem, decision making skills and the ability to cope with stress.

Without early intervention, such problems can blow up into more serious issues — including drug and

State Rep. Amick seeks third term

Drugs and education are two topics of concern to State Representative Steven H. Amick, R-Newark.

He hopes to address those issues during a third term in office.

Amick announced his candidacy last week, saying he has enjoyed his work in the state legislature.

"I really enjoy working with the community," he said. "It's really an exciting time to be involved with democratic government."

In particular, Amick is concerned about the need for effective drug treatment programs in the state.

"I really think we need to determine which drug treatment programs work," he said. "Currently, there's no criteria to determine what works."

Amick said it is also time for state legislators to turn their attention to education.

"That's the issue with which we're going to be struggling,"

State Rep. Amick.

he said. "It seems to me we're still a nation at risk."

"Compared with the rest of the world, we're not doing very well."

Amick said the legislature needs to study such education issues as year-round school, basic skills enrichment, and teacher education.

Council considers referendum action

by Cathy Thomas

Newark City Council will take final action Monday night to place a $5.5 million referendum on the April 10 ballot.

The action won't come, though, until after a public hearing on the proposal.

Council scheduled a public hearing during their regularly-scheduled Feb. 26 meeting in order to determine public opinion on the bond issue.

The bond issue, which will fund city capital improvements, will likely be split into three questions:

□ $1 million for water system improvements.

□ $1.6 million for a new or renovated police station.

□ $2.9 million for an open space and parkland acquisition program.

In general, public sentiment about the bond issue, particularly the portion to fund the purchase of open space, has been favorable.

During a city budget hearing last fall, citizens voiced support for the acquisition of open space which might otherwise be developed. During the past few years, the city experienced rapid development with many open areas giving way to shopping centers and apartment complexes.

A California consulting firm reviewed the needs of the city police station.

The consultants will recommend whether the city should build a new police station or renovate the current facility. Police officers now work out of what was once a church.

City Manager Carl Luft has expressed some concern over the estimated costs of police facility improvements. The city should be able to deal with the costs, he said, by additional financing and cost reduction measures.

The city's water system improvements include a new water treatment plant north of the city. The plant will treat groundwater from area wells and surface water from nearby White Clay Creek. The bond issue will fund other improvements, designed to meet increased demand for water.

The 1990 city budget include a 3 percent property tax increase to fund the bond issue debt service. A similar tax increase is expected in 1991.

Residents must be registered by March 17 to consider the bond issue. People who own property in the city (but do not necessarily live here) are also eligible to cast ballots on the bond issue.

Newark employees get 5 percent raise

The City of Newark's public works employees receive a five percent wage increase under a new contract.

City Council gave approval to the one-year contract. It replaces the old one that expired Dec. 31, 1989.

"I'm glad we were able to reach an agreement without a great deal of delay," said Charles Zusag, city administrative assistant.

The last round of contract negotiations took several months due to a dispute over whether the workers should work on Martin Luther King's birthday. The workers did not receive the additional holiday in the last contract.

Although the issue was discussed in these negotiations, workers have agreed to the contract without the additional holiday.

"We feel that we made out pretty good with a five percent increase in pay," said Tony Leach, president of Local 1670, the union representing the employees. "We have accepted the contract."

The union represents 63 city employees.

BIDEN: JUST SAY NO

abuse. By 1914, every state in the nation had a law mandating drug education curriculum and by the next decade drug abuse had dropped off considerably.

Understanding the past is key to combating the current cocaine epidemic, said Biden, who is barnstorming to fight the growing notion that legalization of drugs is the only answer to the current state of affairs.

"The issue of legalization of drugs is one that is gaining intellectual credibility," Biden said, adding that the point of view is born of a cynicism that is the result of frustration.

"No one is proposing legalization because it's a good idea," he said. "They're doing it because they are frustrated and think there is no other answer. I think there is."

Biden believes the three keys to stemming the epidemic are stopping production, concentrating on the hard core abusers and keeping children "from getting into the drug stream."

As to the latter, Biden took issue with anti-drug czar William Bennett's assertion that education will not work. "Dead wrong," Biden said, citing the steep drop in tobacco use. "Education works."

The Senator also took issue with arguments put forward by legalization proponents, opening with a broadside on the notion that legalization will take away the profit, drive out the criminal element and provide fresh tax revenues.

To work, he said, it requires that the state drug prices drop so low that there is no attractive black market.

That is not likely because as moral and criminal sanctions are lifted, demand — and prices — will rise. And if there is a tax, there is a guarantee that organized crime can undercut state prices.

Besides, he said, there are practical considerations. The majority of crack users are younger than 21, the legal age for the purchase of alcohol and most likely the same cutoff for legalized drug purchases, creating an immediate black market.

And for the states to distribute as many drugs as are currently being consumed would require a chain three times the size of Safeway, America's largest supermarket chain, with 10 times the number of its employees and open 24 hours a day.

"The cost to the taxpayer would be $50 billion," Biden said. "So much for the savings we would get to pay for education programs."

In European countries which have tried legalization, he added, the program has been a rank failure.

Finally, Biden attacked the argument that Prohibition didn't work for alcohol and can't work for drugs.

First off, he said, Prohibition did achieve the desired results of decreasing consumption, alcohol-related deaths and violent crime.

Secondly, the Senator argued that the two substances cannot be compared because while alcohol has been ingrained in the mainstream of Western culture for 5,000 years, drugs have not. "At a holiday, we have never celebrated by the clinking of cocaine mirrors."

And drugs, Biden said, have been shown to be 10 times more addictive than alcohol. He asked, "Why would we interject into society something we are 10 times less likely to handle than alcohol?"

CHRISTINA BATTLES DRUGS

alcohol abuse, suicidal tendencies and other mental health issues — in later years.

At the secondary level, START is designed to identify students having just such problems and refer them to agencies which can help them cope.

"Its major role is to help students," Lutz said.

The result can be disciplinary action and/or intervention and rehabilitation, with an emphasis on the latter, Brown said. "We must help resolve what is causing the problem."

Studies of a California START program have shown that it helped reduce absenteeism and improve grade point averages.

Currently, Christina is involving eight schools — Bancroft, Brookside, Cobbs, Maclary, Drew/Pyle and Pulaski elementary, Kirk Middle and Glasgow High — in START training.

Brown said program volunteers "are making a personal commitment to the student above and beyond the call of duty."

The program will be implemented in September.

Castle establishes council to promote health, fitness

Delaware's disappointing health statistics have prompted Gov. Castle to establish a Council on Lifestyles and Fitness.

Castle recently announced his intent to create the council as part of his Health Plan for the 1990s.

"This council's main purpose is to find ways to encourage Delawareans to make healthy choices for themselves — for their own good," said Castle. "Almost half of the deadly illnesses we see are preventable by simply choosing health — by quitting smoking and drinking, by choosing better nutrition, by regular exercise."

Michael W. Walls, MBNA senior vice president of public affairs, will serve as chairman of the 75-member committee.

"The enthusiastic response by Delawareans to joining this council has indicated to me that this group will provide dynamic leadership in the area of health promotion," said Castle.

Committee members come from throughout the state and represent a broad cross section of citizens, Castle said.

The Council is responsible for:

- Promoting health and positive lifestyle behaviors.
- Proposing ways of helping Delawareans make responsible decisions about their health and fitness.

- Creating a constituency for health promotion and education activities.

- Advising the governor.
- Addressing specific risks.
- Coordinating with other non-profit and private agencies interested in health promotion and wellness education.

The Governor's Health Plan for the 1990s focuses on the areas of prevention and health promotion; maternal and child health; cancer; and access to health care and medical services.

"We need to inspire Delawareans to engage in exercise, snuff out their cigarettes, eat right, and put on their seatbelts," said Castle. "I expect the members of this council to advance the personal and professional commitments of Delawareans to positive lifestyle choices."

Health care crisis is focus

Who will — and who will not — receive care during what some experts refer to as a growing time of crisis in the health care industry?

That is the key question to be considered in a University of Delaware lecture series on the ethics, history and policy of health care allocation in the United States.

Topics to be covered in the series include civil rights and AIDS, the rationing of health care and proposals for Medicare reform.

Sponsored by the University and Delaware Humanities Forum, the lectures will be held at 7 p.m. Mondays, March 5-May 14, with the exception of the April 4 program which will be held on Wednesday. The location will be in Room 128 of Clayton Hall on the university's north campus in Newark, unless otherwise noted.

Opening the series on Monday, March 5, will be a talk on "Health Care in Crisis: Problems of Cost, Quality and Access," by Linda Aiken of the University of Pennsylvania.

On Monday, March 12, Ronald Bayer of the Columbia University School of Public Health, will give a talk on "Civil Rights and AIDS: Issues of Privacy, Information, Responsibility and Justice."

"Consumer Response to Health Care Problems: Organization, Self-Help and Law Suits" will be presented by Charles Inlander, president of the People's Medical Society, on Monday, March 19, at the Milford Center, 13-15 Southwest Front St., Milford.

Rosemary Stevens of the University of Pennsylvania will speak Wednesday, April 4, on "Historical Perspectives on Moving Health Care Out of Hospitals" in Room 115 A&B Pencader Commons on the University campus in Newark.

On Monday, April 9, Daniel Callahan, director of the Hastings Center, a bioethics center, will give a talk on "Hard Choices in Health Care Allocation" in Room 115 A&B Pencader Commons.

"New Realities: Erosion of Coverage in Workplace Health Insurance and Medicaid Programs" will be discussed by Cathy Schoen of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst on Monday, April 16.

Edmund Pellegrino, director of the Center for the Advanced Study of Ethics at Georgetown University, will give a talk on Monday, April 23. He will discuss "Justice and Access to Health Care."

Speaking on Monday, April 30, will be Mary Strong, chairperson and founder of Citizens' Committee on Biomedical Ethics, on "Rationing of Health Care: Who Should Decide Who Gets What?"

Concluding the series on Monday, May 14, will be a talk by Stephanie Woolhandler of the Harvard Medical School and Cambridge City Hospital on "Increasing Access to Health Care and Cost Containment: Conflicting or Compatible Goals?"

State must devise fair impact fees

“The business of America is business,” President Calvin Coolidge told the Society of American Newspaper Editors in 1925. And he was correct.

America succeeds when its businesses succeed.

The reason Delaware has been such a model of economic health through the years is that the state has long understood the truth of Coolidge’s words.

A healthy business climate paves the way for prosperity.

Most modern Delawareans have shared in the economic good times made possible through the banking act, which drew key financial institutions and hundreds upon hundreds of jobs to the state.

But as vital as a healthy business climate is, there comes a time when things overheat and when unchecked development proves to be a burden.

In New Castle County, that time has come.

While it has been gratifying to accept jobs and security and to see the values of our homes rise tens of thousands of dollars per year, it has become apparent that we have paid a price for prosperity.

New Castle County has fewer and fewer open spaces. Where once children played in open fields and wooded areas, shopping centers and houses have taken root.

The population is rising, and with it crime and congestion.

Last year some communities found themselves without enough water.

Quality of life is suffering.

Shouldering the greatest impact of this economic boom are the school districts and the Delaware Department of Transportation.

Schools and highways are becoming overcrowded, and the only solution is an expensive one — new construction.

And in the case of the school districts, that means new taxes.

To meet its needs, the Christina School District, where new houses are going up at a mind-boggling pace, has asked for a 22.4 percent property tax increase.

The district came up with an interesting mathematical formula to dramatize the need. It claims that for every 500 new houses built, the district falls $200,000 further behind in its funding needs.

That’s a lot of money.

And it is multiplied by the fact that developers in south Newark are putting up developments which include 500 houses each.

To maintain the very services to which corporations look when deciding where to locate, Delaware must come to grips with the need for impact fees.

Such fees would be assessed to developers to fund things such as schools, highways and open space.

To be sure, developers take risks when undertaking new construction. And they deserve to profit from such risk-taking.

But it is unfair for developers to walk away from projects with full pockets while the new residents or shoppers must cope with the problems those projects have created.

Delaware legislators absolutely must work with developers in the state to come up with a bill that provides for a fair system of assessing impact fees, one which lessens the burden on the taxpayer while not overburdening the developer.

Without such fees, the taxpayer suffers significantly.

Biden’s interest in drugs

Why is U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden Jr. so heavily involved in the drug abuse issue?

Some believe he is genuinely concerned about the problem.

Others believe it is solely for political gain.

According to Biden, both are wrong.

The real reason, Biden joked during a recent meeting of the Delaware Media Association, is “because it is the only issue I am certain Neil Kinnock has not spoken to.”

Biden was forced from the 1988 race for the Democratic presidential nomination following charges that he plagiarized portions of speeches given by the British Labor Party leader.

Hey, you guys! Let’s play ball!

The groundhog did his job. Mother Nature is doing hers.

Now if only the owners and players could settle things and give us that one true-Dodger-blue harbinger of spring in America — baseball.

Spring just isn’t spring without ballplayers lolling about the outfields of Florida, sort of trying to get in shape for the long season ahead.

Spring just isn’t spring without Harry Kalas visiting your den on Sunday afternoons, calling the plays for the Philadelphia Phillies from Clearwater.

In the Thomas house, we’re doing our best to honor the pastime. The kids already have their 1990 Panini sticker albums and are busily gathering change to buy stickers at the local Wassams.

They’ve already begun collecting the 1990 baseball cards, and dragging dad up to the park or down to Grand Slam USA to play ball.

Anytime I think about baseball, specific games come to mind.

Like when I got mad at my college roommate for getting us to Veterans Stadium late for a Phillies-Atlanta Braves game. I wanted to see Hank Aaron, and I wanted to get there before the first inning. We got there in the second and I figured Fran owed me one.

Little did I know the game would go into extra innings. Fourteen extra innings to be exact. I don’t even remember who won, just that we were among about 500 frozen but faithful fans left as the game ended about 1:30 in the morning.

Then there were the League Championship Series games when the Phils topped the Houston Astros in an extremely hard-fought contest.

My wife and I would watch at her mother’s house in Pennsylvania until the Phillies would fall behind and I would panic and insist that we leave. Each time the Phils would rally while we were on the road back home. And each time her brother would call and laugh because I’d missed the best part of the game.

Actually, one of my fondest baseball memories involved not my beloved Phillies but the Baltimore Orioles.

I spend, I believe, the quintessential Eastern Shore afternoon.

It was a hot summer day and my grandfather and I drove over to my Great Uncle Casher’s chicken farm on St. Martin’s Neck, west of the bay backing Ocean City, Md.

Casher had out cold National Bo beer and hot steamed crabs, and had on his television set an Orioles game. Boog Powell. Brooks Robinson. Frank Robinson. Earl Weaver.

We drank and ate and watched. Time stood still.

That’s the magic of the game.

Cartagena Summit: Good first step

We are all grateful that President Bush returned safely from the drug summit in Cartagena last week. The President deserves high marks for his courage in attending the summit and for the leadership he showed by demonstrating U.S. commitment to address all facets of the drug problem.

The communique issued at the summit’s end reflected agreement among the leaders of the United States, Colombia, Bolivia and Peru to cooperate more closely. It called for a high level follow-up meeting within six months and for a World Conference on Illicit Drug Trafficking in 1991. That’s certainly good news.

But while agreement on broad principles is important, we will not make real progress until we translate these principles into policies and to do that, we still have a long way to go. The President’s emphasis on military assistance and eradicating the Andean crops fails to recognize that the problems those countries face are not so much military as economic.

To use the lingo of the drug trade, the economies of the Andean nations are “addicted” to cocaine. Cocaine profits that are returned to the producing countries account for a substantial percentage of their export earnings: 10 percent in Colombia, 25 percent in Peru, and 50 percent in Bolivia. What’s more, nearly one-third of the workers in Bolivia and Peru are dependent on cocaine growing and processing for their livelihoods.

If we want to reduce the amount of cocaine coming into the United States, we must first find ways to help these countries re-orient their economies away from their dependence on cocaine.

Yet, incredibly, our current trade policies are having precisely the opposite effect.

To cite one example, the Administration allowed the International Coffee Agreement to collapse at the peak of Colombia’s anti-drug campaign, costing the Andean economies nearly $1 billion in legal profits.

It seems to me that we must do a much better job of making our drug policies and trade policies consistent.

To help strengthen the legal economies in the Andes, I have proposed “debt-for-drugs” swaps. Under my plan, the U.S. would grant foreign debt relief to these countries in exchange for their commitment to fund crop substitution and development programs that can be proved to work.

Not only would this proposal cost us less than direct aid, but it would provide a powerful incentive for these countries to modernize their economies.

Let’s give credit to the President for strengthening lines of communication with the Andean leaders and for making a courageous show of solidarity by travelling to Cartagena.

But let’s also remember that much work remains to be done.

Christina: Have tax referendums replaced planning?

Michael Guilfoyle
Spectrum Drive
Elmwood

Once again the Christina School District is asking for more money via a tax referendum. We, the taxpayers and parents, need to ask for more information. The last two (referendums) were for new buildings or expansion of existing buildings, which action was three-to-five years overdue.

The use of the revenue from this increase is not targeted for any specific project. The administration’s explanation is somewhat hard to believe, given the lack of any real detail.

They tell us that we are going to get a new building on Walther Road for free. Previous referendums raised between $2 million and $3 million for the district’s share of construction projects. The Christina School District has rediscovered the long-lost free lunch.

The other stated use is for operating expenses, which we all know is open to any use the board or administration deems appropriate.

These stated uses are a marked departure from the dedication nature of past referendums. The analogy to user fees versus tax increases should not be lost on the taxpayers of the Christina district. The often quoted “read my lips” comes to mind.

It is very difficult to consider not providing more funds for educating our children. The amount we pay for public education is in fact very modest.

However, we must be sure that all our money given to education is expended wisely and efficiently. The Christina district seems to be getting into a habit of holding referendums rather than planning and managing the resources at hand. Getting a bigger piggy bank does not change spending habits.

Before I can approve this new request for more tax dollars, I think the district should tell us about the present uses of its funds, its projected enrollment through 2005, and the progress and financial status of the building projects funded through the last two referendums.

The district has a new superintendent and it seems an opportune time to do an inventory and assess the needs and direction of the Christina district rather than go for a quick and temporary fiscal Band-Aid.

Sununu: Separate fads, solid policy

by Cathy Thomas

Politicians need to know the difference between effective policy and what is merely popular fad, the White House chief of staff said in Newark Tuesday night.

John Sununu told about 500 Delaware engineers that they have the knowledge to deal with issues facing this country.

One such issue, he said, is the environment.

"It's an important issue. It determines the quality of our life and yet, by virtue of the decisions we make on it, it determines to some extent the vitality of our economic capacity to provide jobs," said Sununu, himself an engineer and the former governor of New Hampshire.

"It is critical," he said, "as we develop policy, to tell the difference between what is popular and what is right."

Engineers, Sununu said, have the ability to analyze data and solve problems objectively. He said lawyers, who are heavily represented in politics, are taught to make the best possible case for their position.

"It's not to suggest that some of the positions taken may not be right, but it is to suggest that the process of having arrived at those positions is not right," said Sununu. "We find folks all too willing to pick whatever model, whatever mechanism of analysis, whatever package of data satisfies their perspective."

Sununu told the engineers that these are times when their technical background is needed in policy formation. That background, he said, aids in the definition of problems.

"It is not just developing

answers that's important," he said, "it's important to have that background in defining problems as they really are."

Sununu encouraged the engineers to participate in politics. There has been, he said, an over-preponderance of a limited number of professions in policy making. "I blame not the folks that are there. I blame the members of our profession who have enjoyed the luxury of nonparticipation."

Because of this nonparticipation, he said, the engineering profession needs to take "a good hard look at itself," and realize that engineers are now needed to help shape public policy.

Sununu, who began his political career by serving in town government, said public service is enjoyable.

"Of all the things I've done in my life, nothing has been more gratifying, nothing has been more satisfying than the years I served as governor of New Hampshire and now the year and a half I've served as the President's Chief of Staff."

State Rep. Soles.

Rep. Soles is candidate

State Rep. Ada Leigh Soles, D-Newark, wants to continue her work in state government.

Soles, a Democrat, Tuesday announced her intention to seek re-election to the 23rd district seat in the House of Representatives.

"I am seeking re-election to continue my work on behalf of responsible and effective state government that meets the needs of the people of our district and of the state," said Soles. "As our state's incomes decline, it is more important than ever that our state monies are spent as responsibly and effectively as possible."

Soles, who has served in the state legislature for the past ten years, is a member of the House Appropriations and Joint Finance committees, which write the state budget and the grants-in-aid funding bills.

"As a member of the Joint Finance Committee, I have the opportunity to participate directly in the construction of the state budget," said Soles.

Soles said her other priorities include public education, housing, health care, the environment, and libraries.

5 reasons why I recommend the Urgent Care Center

Kids are different. We get sick fast and more often than grown-ups. We don't have much patience when we have to wait to get better. Sometimes hospitals scare us... and even make us feel worse!

That's why I go to The Urgent Care Center when I get sick and need quick care. The doctors and nurses there make me feel just right. Here are five good reasons why your kids should go there, too, when they get sick:

1. ALWAYS OPEN/EASY ACCESS

The Urgent Care Center at the Institute is open 24-hours a day, seven days a week. It's always there for your children. And it's easy to get to... right off I-95 and Rt. 202. There's plenty of free parking.

2. QUICK CARE

When your child is sick, minutes seem like hours. Staff at The Urgent Care Center will treat your child promptly... because when your child needs urgent care, the last place you want to be is in the waiting room.

3. SPECIALIZING IN KIDS

The Urgent Care Center doctors and nurses have years of special training in pediatrics. They're professionals who like children... and really understand them. They know how to talk to kids about what's important to them... from why they need a blood test... to the latest adventures of their favorite cartoon characters.

4. KID SIZED FEATURES

The Urgent Care Center is ready for almost any pediatric situation. It has the latest medical equipment... sized and designed for children. It has special devices to monitor even the tiniest child's blood pressure and thermometers that can take a temperature in seconds! Let's not forget those Garfield Band-Aids and Super Girl stickers!

5. IT MAKES PARENTS FEEL BETTER, TOO!

The happier the child, the happier the parents! The Urgent Care Center, on the first floor of the Alfred I. duPont Institute children's hospital, is designed to eliminate children's fear of hospitals. It's bright and cheerful... with toys and books and special visitors (like clowns!). And staff explain all medical procedures... to the child... as well as to moms and dads. Every effort is made to involve the parents in their child's care, too.

Cobbs students shoot hoops with a Sixer

by Steve Canaday

For most school children, the dream of shooting a few hoops with a professional basketball player remains exactly that — a dream.

For many lucky students at Ramon C. Cobbs Elementary School in Newark, however, the dream turned into reality when a two-week "Good Shots" program culminated with the visit of Philadelphia 76er Lanard Copeland.

Cobbs Principal Charles Hughes explained that the "Good Shots" program was envisioned as a motivation project that would combine education and fun.

From the screams of hundreds of ecstatic school children when Copeland entered the Cobbs gymnasium in full Sixers regalia, it was easy to see that the project was a huge success.

"For the past two weeks," Hughes explained, "all the kids have been working for what we called 'Good Shot' coupons. If the children have been especially good in the classroom or on the bus, or if they've gotten a star for a nice job in the classroom, they were allowed to put their name on a coupon and to put it in the basket that each class designed."

"On the morning that Lanard came, each teacher drew two coupons, and we thought that was an equitable way to do it. That way, everybody had a chance to play basketball with a 76er, and the children who were extra good or worked extra hard had extra chances."

Copeland, a 6-foot 6-inch guard, spoke to the assembled children about the importance of going to school and working hard. He told the kids that they should listen to their parents and teachers, even when they didn't feel like it.

Copeland spoke with special remembrance of his school days, and reminded the boys and girls to enjoy their time in school while they could.

After Copeland addressed the student body, children whose names were drawn by their teachers participated in drills which included dribbling, passing, and shooting.

Afterward, Hughes challenged Copeland to a game of one-on-one, which Copeland sewed up with a lone-range three-point bomb. ("My one chance to play against a 76er, and my shot was off," Hughes playfully lamented).

The highlight of the afternoon was a Copeland slam dunk display to the delight of the children. On the advice of the boys and girls, he slammed home a variety of incredible dunks which included a 360-degree tomahawk that stunned children and adults alike.

"I did a lot of work with children while I was in college (Georgia State)," the soft-spoken guard said. "I love kids, and when I get an opportunity to do this type of thing with children, I always try to help out."

"It's a great thing to talk to the kids and to try to help keep them straight. They look up to people who are in the spotlight, and I feel it's part of my responsibility."

Christina School District sets kindergarten registration

The Christina School District will hold pre-registration for kindergarten at all elementary schools during the week of March 12-16.

The State of Delaware requires kindergarten attendance for all children who have reached the age of five on or before Dec. 31, 1990 for the 1990-91 school year.

Any parent who wishes to exempt a child from the compulsory attendance law must submit a letter outlining the reasons for such a request to: Dr. Willis A. Proctor, Director of Special Services, Christina School District, 83 East Main Street, Newark, DE 19711.

The district will then evaluate the child's readiness to determine if the parent's request should be honored.

A parent who requests early admission to kindergarten for a child must submit a written request to Proctor's office. It should include the child's name, date of birth, home address, and telephone number at which the parent can be reached during the day.

The child must be four years old on or before Sept. 1, 1990 and must pass the testing for the Academically Gifted Program in order to be accepted for early admission to kindergarten.

The request for early admission must be submitted in writing by April 1, 1990.

On-job training for UD students

Behind the scenes look at workings of L'Enfant Plaza

"Your wish is our career" was the motto of students from the University of Delaware's Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management Program, who became aides for a day recently at the Loew's L'Enfant Plaza Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Wearing sweatshirts with the motto on the back, the eight students took on several of the service jobs that are the heart of operation of a large hotel.

"It was a wonderful opportunity for our students to see the behind-the-scenes workings of a large facility and to learn how to professionally clean, serve, set up conference rooms, take bids for food and perform other tasks. Actually doing these jobs and talking to the staff and supervisors was a valuable experience that will be helpful in their future careers," Paul Wise, director of the University program, said.

The students themselves were enthusiastic about the "aides for a day" program but found the work hard. "It's one thing to make one bed a day, but by the time you've made 16 or more beds, cleaned 16 bathrooms, vacuumed and thoroughly dusted 16 rooms, you're pretty tired," Nancy Sakatos, a University student from Wayside, N.J., reported.

Sakatos learned how to make beds and clean rooms from a real pro. She worked with one of the room attendants, who has been employed by L'Enfant Plaza for 16 years. She also learned the golden rules of cleaning a hotel room — leave the guests' belongings as you find them, moving items only to clean under them and then replacing them. When the guests check out, then the entire room is cleaned, and no trace of their occupancy is left.

Sakatos learned from the supervisor of the room attendants that the work load is uniform for all. Each room takes a half hour to clean, and each person is responsible for cleaning 16 rooms. The supervisor, who is a new employee, has made some changes at the hotel, according to Sakatos. Room assignments used to be made randomly, but now each worker is responsible for a certain area of the hotel and takes more pride in his or her work.

At noon, the students switched roles, doffed their sweatshirts and slacks for business apparel and joined the advisory board of the University program, which was meeting at the hotel. The board is chaired by Ferdinand Wieland, general manager of the Hotel du Pont in Wilmington. The meeting included a welcome from U.S. Rep. Thomas Carper of Delaware.

CASH THOSE GOVERNMENT CHECKS SOON!

For all those folks who've been stashing away government checks, keeping them uncashed as a form of savings (non-interest-bearing, by the way), here's a warning: Treasury checks are no longer valid one year after being issued, though you will have until September 30 of this year to cash old checks you have on hand. The government is also getting stricter about how the checks are cashed: if a tax refund is made out jointly, for instance, it will have to go into a joint account. The Financial Management Service of the Treasury Department, which keeps the checkbook, estimates that there are at least six-million older federal checks which have not been cashed, worth about $3-billion. Some of them go back to 1919! If perchance you don't get your old checks cashed on time, you haven't lost the money, but you will have to contact the federal agency that sent them to you and wait for a replacement. Glasgow High's Bret Icenogle wins the 160-pound championship, outpointing William Penn's Jeff Garber 6-2.

Penn captures BHC wrestling title

by Steve Canaday

The heavily favored William Penn High School grapplers took the team wrestling title as expected at the Blue Hen Conference championships last weekend.

The state's top-ranked team for most of the season, William Penn accumulated 271.5 points to easily outdistance surprise runner-up Glasgow, second with 156.5 team points.

Ten of the 13 Penn wrestlers advanced to the conference finals, and the Colonials will send all 13 to the state tournament this weekend (the top six finishers in each weight class are invited to states).

William Penn coach Jack Holloway was happy with the team victory and the inclusive state birth, but felt there is certainly room for improvement.

"Sending ten wrestlers into the final round here is the best we've ever done, and sending all 13 wrestlers to the states is something we've never done either. Those are definitely the highlights," Holloway said. "Still, we thought we had a shot to win all ten final matchups. The final round was a bit of a disappointment for us. You certainly can't complain about five tournament champions, but when you had 10 going into the finals, there's room for improvement."

Holloway predicted that the conference tournament would serve as a wake-up call for the Penn wrestlers who fell short in the final round.

"The final round was exactly what we needed," the Colonials coach said. "If we're going to go down and beat somebody at the state level, we're going to have to wrestle better than we did tonight. We don't have any reason to go back complacent after tonight," he added. "It could be just what the doctor ordered."

Penn champions included junior Kanami Solomon at 103 pounds, freshman standout Nick Dellacompagni at 112, Dan and Jim Moody at 135 and 145, and junior Paul Antonio at 171.

"All year we've said we're the hardest working team in the state," Dan Moody said after the tournament, "but I guess we haven't been working hard enough. We're going to go back to the wrestling room and learn how to last for six minutes."

"I don't think we wrestled our best tonight," Solomon agreed. "We were too tentative, but I think we'll do better in the states."

In all fairness to Penn, wrestlers from the fifteen other Blue Hen teams were emotionally primed every time they faced the favored Colonials.

Glasgow's 160-pound senior captain, Bret Icenogle, decisioned Penn's Jeff Garber 6-2 to earn championship honors. A.I. duPont's Toy Holden pinned Penn's Andy Braunecker in the 125-pound final, and Dickinson's Alex Alderman (189) and Chris Jones (HWT) topped Penn wrestlers to claim conference championships as well. In one of only two final matchups that didn't involve a Penn wrestler, Claymont's Larry Simpson defeated Dickinson's Harry Coutz 9-2.

Hodgson Vo-Tech senior, Eric Needham, typified the attitude of Penn's competition.

"The only thing I had on my mind coming into this tournament was wrestling Brian Spaeth (Penn's top-seeded 152-pounder)," Needham said. "I guess I was basically wrestling toward Spaeth from the first round."

Needham, Hodgson's first conference champion in school history, decisioned Spaeth 9-2 in the 152 final.

Christiana, which finished third in team points just four shy of Glasgow with 152.5, was the only other school to crown multiple champions. Viking junior Carlos Leija took the 119 title with an 8-5 decision over A.I.'s Randy Sweeney, and Christiana's senior 130-pounder, Corey Johnson, decisioned A.I.'s Dan Silva for conference honors.

"I think we only sent seven or eight wrestlers to the states last year," Johnson said, "and we've got nine going this year. We had a really young team at the beginning of the season, but they really showed some experience in the tournament."

"I think you just get more pumped up in a tournament like this," Leija added. "There were a few wrestlers I wasn't sure that I could beat coming in, but with my coaches and other wrestlers telling me I could win, I guess it just got me psyched."

If they gave a most improved team trophy, this year's would have to go to Hodgson. In only a few years, Hodgson's young head coach, Jerry Lamey, has turned the Silver Eagle program into a serious contender. Last year, for the first time in school history, Hodgson sent two wrestlers to the state tournament. This year, eight Silver Eagles will be making the trip.

"This tournament has really been a team effort for us," Lamey said. "For a pretty new school, we've got eight guys going to the state tournament, with Eric Needham leading the charge. This had really been the first year we've had the numbers, and the guys have really pushed each other."

Newark unbeaten in BHC

The Newark High School boys basketball team (16-3 overall, 14-0 in Blue Hen Conference Flight A) dominated from start to finish last week as they posted two more BHC Flight A victories to finish out the regular season with an unblemished conference record.

An 88-42 shellacking of Delcastle followed by a 86-46 win over Glasgow ran the Yellowjackets' conference winning streak to 29 straight games; a mark that stretches back to the 1987-88 season.

In the victory over Delcastle, which officially clinched the conference title outright for Newark, senior sensation Devon Chambers led all scorers with 26 points. Still, the win was a strong team performance as Anthony Southerland added 19, Derrick Jackson had 18, and B.J. Mahoney hit for 17.

Chambers led all scorers in the victory over Glasgow as well, as the 'Jackets high scoring guard hit for 23 points. Senior point guard Shannon McCants added 15 against the Dragons, and Southerland had a dozen.

Traditionally, the Flight A season champion and the Flight B champ go at it at the end of the regular season for Blue Hen Conference bragging rights. This year, the Flight A-Flight B matchup promises to be a classic, with more than mere conference honors at stake.

Newark will host Flight B champion, Wilmington High, a team that not only finished their conference campaign at 14-0 but is currently ranked number one in the state.

The Yellowjackets, presently ranked second, are anxious to prove that they, and not the Red Devils, are Delaware's finest.

The game, which promises plenty of offense, will feature two of the state's highest scorers in Wilmington's 6-8 senior center Erik Edwards (31.1 ppg) and Newark's

6-3 guard Devon Chambers (23.7 ppg). Tip-off is slated at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Newark High.

In other local action last week, St. Mark's topped Catholic rival St. Elizabeth in a thrilling 55-50 overtime contest.

Senior floor leader Ray Grimes caged 16 points in the overtime affair that saw the Spartans fight back from a 24-27 halftime deficit. Spartan junior Drue Matthews also hit for 16 points in the conference win.

The Spartans (11-8) fell to non-conference rival Salesianum 50-46 later in the week. Matthews led the Spartans with 15 in the losing cause, and Grimes added 13.

Christiana capped a successful tour of Flight A last week with two final conference victories.

The Vikes overcame William Penn in early action in an exciting 64-57 overtime contest. Bryant Harris led the Viking charge in overtime netting six points to secure the win. Harris, who finished with 16 points, was one of several Vikes to hit for double figures. Allen Doss and Ty Hudson each scored 12, while Stan Brunson had 11.

Christiana (8-6, 10-10) assured a winning conference mark and evened their overall record with a 80-74 victory over Brandywine. Ty Hudson exploded for 26 points against the Bulldogs, and Harris was close behind, scoring 24.

In their only action last week, the Caravel Buccaneers (9-10) scored five points in the final eight seconds to overcome Archmere 74-70. C.J. Hoffman's 3-pointer with three seconds left sewed up the win for the Buc's. Chris DiMascio, with the sweetest freshman shooting touch in the state, hit for a game high 29 points, Mac Dixon added 19, and center John Reed had 12.

Glasgow (4-10, 9-11) split a pair of Flight A games last week, topping Brandywine 40-37 but falling to Newark 86-46. Stephon Curtis was the only Dragon in double figures in the Brandywine game. Curtis finished with 10 points in a contest which saw the Dragons spread out the offensive load.

'Jackets demolish Delcastle

The Newark Yellowjackets (12-2, 13-5) continued with their winning ways last week as they finished out their Blue Hen Conference Flight A girls basketball schedule with a pair of wins.

The 'Jackets demolished Delcastle 57-12 behind a game-high 16 points from Marie Roundtree. Later in the week, Newark topped Glasgow in a 38-24 affair that featured Roundtree once more. This time, the Newark floor general finished with 13.

The past week was a tough one for the Caravel Buccaneers. The Bucs (13-6) dropped a pair of games as they squared off against two of the state's better girls basketball teams in Tower Hill and St. Andrew's.

Despite a dozen points from senior guard Mo Querey, Caravel fell to the Hillers 49-27. In the Buc's-Saints matchup, Querey again paced Caravel's offense, this time with 15 points, but St. Andrew's prevailed 37-33. Erica Patton added nine points in the losing effort versus St. Andrew's.

A split week against Catholic Conference foes saw the St. Mark's Spartans drop a tough 60-50 decision to the state's top-ranked Padua Pandas, but rebound by knocking off St. Elizabeth 41-36.

In the losing effort against Padua, the Spartans' Sue Rowlyk led the way with 18 points. Monica "Sky" Williams added 10, but it wasn't enough to stop the state's top team. Missy Burris hit for 18 points and Rowlyk added 10 in the victory over Archmere. The lady Spartans were locked in a 28-28 tie with the Auks at the end of three periods, but outscored Archmere 13-8 in the final period for the win.

The Glasgow Dragons (6-8, 10-9) began the week on a high note by knocking off Flight A rival Brandywine 40-34 on the strength of Stacia Salvucci's 14 points. The Dragons, who were trailing Brandywine 27-25 after three periods, exploded in the fourth period for 13 points to register the win. Donna James and Niki Tarantino each added 10 points to the Glasgow cause.

The Dragons ran up against one of the hotter teams in the conference later in the week when they faced Newark. Despite a fine defensive effort and a varied attack, the lady Dragons slipped to the Yellowjackets 38-24.

In the final two Flight B conference games of the regular season, the Hodgson Silver Eagles (4-10, 5-12) picked up both a win and a loss as they beat Mt. Pleasant 43-38 but fell to Claymont by a point 29-28.

Elaine Russell led the victory charge over Mt. Pleasant with a game-high 17 points. Doreen Fields chipped in 15 toward the win. In the heartbreaking one point loss to Claymont, Fields led all Silver Eagles scorers with 12 points, and Hope Archie added 10.

The Christiana Vikings (3-11, 5-14) ended their regular season conference schedule on the short end of two scores. The Vikes had the tough task of taking on the conference champ in William Penn to begin the past week, and came away with a 63-26 defeat. Melanie Hackworth led Viking scorers with nine points in the effort.

Christiana finished their conference schedule with a matchup with Brandywine that saw two Vikes hit for double figures in another losing cause. Casey Burke led the Vikings with 11 points, and Hackworth added 10, but the lady Vikes fell to the Bulldogs 41-36.

Christiana frosh win state 'title'

With a 73-43 home victory over St. Mark's last week, the Christiana High School freshmen basketball team put the finishing touch on an unblemished 9-0 season.

In the team's previous game, the young Vikings downed Salesianum 70-63 in what was a battle of the unbeaten teams in Northern Delaware. With their success over the past two weeks, the Christiana squad can rightfully lay claim to the mythical up-state freshman title.

The Vikings dominated freshmen opponents all season. They averaged 62 points per six-minute quarter game, and held the competition to an average of 40 points a contest.

Sheldon Hammonds led the way for the Frosh Viking cagers, averaging 20.5 points per game. Calvin Copeland poured in an average of 16.5 points a contest, while ripping down nine rebounds a game. Jamie Duncan and Kip Remsburg each hit for 10 points a game, and Duncan averaged 10 boards a game, while Remsburg dished out 8 assists per contest. Brad Bentzen completed the starting quintet.

In this, his 20th season of basketball coaching, Viking freshmen coach, Charlie Remsburg, compiled his first perfect season.

The Glasgow High winter track team struts its stuff.

SWIM TEAM IS TOPS

"I guess I just peaked at the right time this year," she added. "I think the crowd helped a lot too."

Dalrymple's stunning time in the 200 IM seemed to give the 'Jackets the emotional edge they were waiting for against AI.

In the next event, the 50-yard freestyle, Newark junior Deni Rudy kept things rolling for the 'Jackets by breaking the state record that she had previously shared with Christiana's Danielle Van Dyke. Rudy's 24.32 knocked a quarter of a second off the old mark of 24.47.

"It came at a crucial point in the meet," the Newark junior said of her victory. "The 50 (meters) is really a matter of whoever gets off the start fast and makes the best turn. I gave myself a pep talk before the start, because once you go, you really don't have time to think."

Newark coach, Chris Collier, gave a lot of credit to his senior, Jen McIlvaine, who finished second just behind Rudy.

"I really wasn't expecting such a strong 1-2 finish," he said, "but McIlvaine's a senior, and she really decided to bear down. She paced the race and gave 100 per cent tonight."

McIlvaine, who later also placed second in the 100-yard butterfly, finished just behind her teammate with a 24.40 (which also broke the old state record).

"Last year in the states I didn't swim real well," the senior said, "but this morning I went 24.9 and it felt easy. That's a time I usually have to struggle to get, so I knew I was going to go faster tonight. I was ready."

Newark's freshman diving sensation, Amanda Klockars, stretched the team lead when she captured the girls one-meter diving competition in another record breaking performance.

Klockars' total of 368.65 shattered the old state mark of 364.15 set by Newark's Heather Sargent in 1981. The Newark freshman held off AI's Kristine Sweet (362.62) and Carrie Quinlan (360.60) for the title.

After her record breaking performance in the 50-yard freestyle, Newark's Deni Rudy wasn't finished. Rudy added her name to the state record book a second time as she held off AI's Susie Fawcett in the 100-yard freestyle.

Rudy's 52.39 eclipsed the record of 52.65 set by Fawcett last year. Fawcett finished second to Rudy this time around, a half second off the pace at 52.88.

Not to be outdone, Missy Dalrymple became the first girl in Delaware high school history to swim the 100-yard backstroke in under a minute. Dalrymple, who had set a state record in the earlier qualification round of 1:00.38, improved her own mark in the final, swimming an incredible 59.63. The nearest competitor, Brandywine's Shannon McBride, finished over two seconds behind at 1:01.83.

The coup de grace for the Yellowjacket girls was a resounding victory over second place AI in the final event of the evening, the 400-yard freestyle relay.

The Newark team of Dalrymple, McIlvaine, Susan Craig, and Catherine Cronin had almost four seconds to start celebrating their state title before the second place AI team finished. The 'Jackets swam a 3:45.56 relay, easily downing AI's time of 3:49.28.

Newark coach Chris Collier is now two for two in producing state champions. In his first year last season, the Newark girls nipped AI in the state meet, and with last Saturday's 131-113 victory, the Collier-led Yellowjackets have defended their crown.

"It seemed a lot tougher this year," Collier said. "I knew everybody would be gunning for us. The girls knew it would be tough, but they came through today."

Dragons on track for best season

by Steve Canaday

Over at Glasgow High School, they've gotten serious about boys winter track this year.

And if Delaware's long-standing high school track powerhouses are wise, they'll take the Dragons seriously.

Four years ago Glasgow formed a winter track team which, up until last year, was "a bunch of good guys having fun," according to head coach Brian Erskine.

Erskine, a 21-year old engineering student at the University of Delaware, said that this year things have been a little different.

"This is the first year that we've really had a good, serious team," he said. "Glasgow's had seasons that there's been a good athlete here and there, but this year we've got a real team."

This year's version of Dragon winter track seeks the highest finish in school history. With several candidates for top state finishes, and a new team commitment to success, Erskine's charges seem destined to do just that.

"I think we have a chance this year to place in the top two or three teams in Delaware in the state meet," Erskine said. "If we place as high as second or third, it will be the best Glasgow finish ever."

The young head coach said that although he has several athletes that rank among the top in the state, he will rely on a total team effort at the state meet.

"We have people in every event except the hurdles," he said, "and I need everybody to place. They all know what they have to do. Some guys will be shooting to beat that second runner from Salesianum or Delcastle so they can place among the top six finishers. It's really going to take everybody on the team. Everybody's got to do their part."

The indoor track state finals, held the evening of Wednesday, Feb. 21, were too late for press time, but several Dragons figured to place among Delaware's top runners.

John Thomas, the senior captain who has watched the team evolve since his freshman season, will challenge for the top slot in the 800-meters.

Thomas, who his coach called "our main guy," said he'll probably have to run his best time ever to catch current favorite, Anthony Stewart of Delcastle.

"I'll probably have to run under two (minutes) to take the 800," the senior captain said. "Stewart's best time this year is right around two, but he's gone under two before."

"I dropped out of the mile (1600-meters) to concentrate on the 800," Thomas added. "Stewart's in the mile, and I'm hoping that he'll run himself out trying to win that."

In addition to Thomas, Coach Erskine is counting on late-arriving senior Paul Williams to perfect his start out of the blocks in time for the state meet.

"We're really looking forward to Paul Williams in the dash," Erskine said. "He's only been out for two weeks, but he's already running close to record times in the 50, and he told me that he thinks he can win it all in the states."

"I really haven't run out of the blocks much," Williams said. "I'm working on that now. I might run in the 300 (meters) too in the states if I'm ready."

Other top Glasgow hopefuls include seniors Mike Kane (in the 300 and 400-meters), and Jim McDade (in the pole vault).

Erskine, who said he's counting on his senior stars, said that the ultimate goal is a team finish ahead of Salesianum for second place.

"Delcastle is really heads and shoulders above the rest," he said, "but I think we have a chance to beat Sallies. We haven't done it yet this year, but we've been close a couple of times, and I don't think it's out of our reach."

"Everyone has to have an awesome day for us to take second in the state, and I think Sallies has to slip a little too. I'm not trying to fool anybody; that's really what's got to happen. But either way, this season should be our best finish ever, and I'm really proud of that. It's really a no-lose situation for Glasgow track."

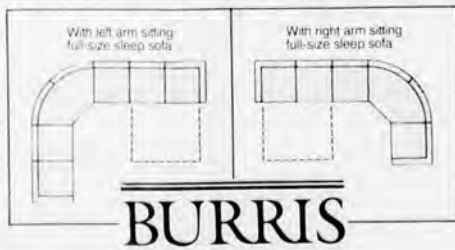

For a team with a new-found tendency of winning, a no-lose situation is certainly a just reward.

Ask not for whom the tole

by Nancy Turner

In Norway, it's called "rosemaling," and in Germany "baummalerie."

In America, the revived art form is known as "tole" or "decorative painting" and turning up in homes everywhere.

Decorative painting is a diverse art form that utilizes a variety of techniques and media to enliven both functional and non-functional surfaces.

While "tole painting" is the term that has been historically used for decorative painting on tin and sheet metal surfaces, especially in New England and Pennsylvania German country, the terms "tole painting" and "decorative painting" have been used interchangeably.

There are two basic schools of decorative painting. One creates a very blended, realistic look with oils and the other is stroke work, which is more whimsical and usually done in acrylics.

While decorative painting is enjoying a current revival, it was also a fad in the 1940s and 1950s, enjoying a level of popularity equal to the fondue pot of the 1960s and the crock pot of the 1970s.

Many American couples who were married during that time period still have tole waste paper baskets and serving trays received as wedding gifts.

"We have always had decorative arts in our heritage," said Fran Sandlin of Newark, a decorative painting instructor. "You can go back to the days of the cave man and they even had drawings on the walls. Every culture has had some form of decorative art that was used for self expression."

"Usually the decorative artist, or if they were working on tin, the tole painter, was an uneducated painter," Sandlin added. "They were self-taught women, without formal training, like Grandma Moses."

The advancement of tole painting in the U.S. was directed correlated to manufacturing and the national economy.

During the 1700s, England would not allow colonists to make their own tin ware.

Sheets of tin were made in England and imported by the American colonies. Here, tin and silversmiths like Paul Revere turned the raw material into useful household items.

Tin was fashioned into the poor man's plates, cups, utensils and trays.

Painting on these items was almost never signed, but there were seven major pockets in the northeast where this work took place. By studying the styles of old tole painting on pieces of tin, art historians are able to determine their origins.

Open wide! Dr. Jerome Kayatta explains the functions of dental instruments to youngsters from the Newark Center YWCA.

Smiles that shine

Caring Newark dentist turns fears to cheers

by Nancy Turner

February is National Children's Dental Health Month and Dr. Jerome Kayatta of Newark is working to turn "ah's" into "ha, ha, ha's" for local youngsters.

Because Kayatta believes that taking the fear out of dentistry is one of the first steps in promoting lifetime dental health, he welcomes children to his office on the corner of South Chapel Street and East Park Place for tours that are both fun and informative.

Overcoming fear is a simple matter of getting to the root of the problem, and over the past decade nearly 1,000 youngsters ages three through seven, usually in small school groups, have participated in Kayatta's program.

For some children, it is their first look inside a dentist's office.

Recently, children from the Newark Center YWCA's Step Ahead preschool visited as hygienist Belinda Bailey explained x-rays and introduced them to instruments like the tooth counter, Mr. Air, Mr. Water and Mr. Thirsty (alias Mr. Aspirator).

She also demonstrated proper methods for brushing and flossing, and everyone was treated to an up-and-down ride in the hydraulic chair and a surprise bag filled with a toothbrush, story booklet and bubble gum-scented pencil.

Why do so many people, children and adults alike, fear the dentist's office?

"Dentistry is an invasion of your person," said Kayatta. "You are making a giant leap of faith and trust by allowing someone to enter your mouth. We assimilate our face with our persona and we don't want anything to happen to that. It's not an area that we easily give over to someone without careful consideration."

Kayatta, who is also the father of three daughters ages 14, 16 and 19, said that by giving children a very positive introduction to dentistry early on, many of the phobias and fears can be avoided.

"Let's say a child doesn't go to the dentist regularly and the parents are not educated on what to do to take care of the child's teeth. Perhaps they don't floss, brush right or have the proper diet and they have frequent attacks of plaque."

"If they get decay, the next time they will know about it is when they are in pain. Then they come in and associate the office with pain because of this first experience. In order to avoid that, we bring them in and show them what is routine and teach them how to do their 'homework' to stay out of the dentist's office except for checkups."

Kayatta feels the dental awareness of area residents is very good and fluoridation has been invaluable.

Ultimately, he said, a child's dental health is the responsibility of parents. "Parents need to take more responsibility in cleaning their children's teeth. They have an obligation to make sure that their children's teeth are plaque free. It's one more thing to do after they have worked all day and they are tired at night, but it is so important."

"If you want your child to grow up with good habits, it requires commitment. It's worth it in the long run."

Berets? Like Hep!

There's not a person alive who doesn't have at least three secret "eyewishiadds."

Eyewishiadds, by their very nature, never deal with really major league wishes like having an annual income of a million dollars, being elected president, or discovering the cure for cancer.

Instead, eyewishiadds cover the wishes that most of us have for the not so significant items that we are convinced would make our lives smoother or more interesting.

My longest running eyewishiadd is a differently shaped head so that I could wear a beret with elan. Or wear a beret at all, with or without elan. Every time I put on a beret I look like I am wearing either a fuzzy Frisbee or a mushroom cap helmet.

Maybe it's not the shape of my head, maybe it's the shape of my face. Well, whatever it is, there is something about my topmost extremity that makes berets — whatever their color or fabric — look absurd, even pathetic.

You've got to admit that there is something about berets. Thanks to their name and country of origin, berets carry a sense of international romance, intrigue, artistry and glamour. Additionally, they are eminently practical in that they can be wadded up into small lumps and stuffed in coat pockets when they are not jauntily perched on top of people's heads.

My real fascination with berets began when I was a little girl and saw Katherine Hepburn wearing one. At that tender age, I knew class and I saw it. Unfortunately at that point, I was forced to wear wide-brimmed hats (white in the summer, blue in the winter) with ribbons down the back.

Moreover, those hats were held in place with elastic bands that ran from just in front of my right ear, under my chin and ended up in front of my left ear.

The elastic bands kept those hats on my head, thus they were the bane of my life and a stigma that I was still a little girl. Besides, they altered circulation to my scalp. But mostly I hated those elastic bands because they kept my hats from blowing clear across Kansas and into Missouri, which is where I thought such awful hats deserved to be.

(Not that I have anything against Missouri; all I knew was that Missouri had mules which I hoped might eat my hats — ribbons, elastic bands and all.)

I have other eyewishiadds. Limiting myself to the top of my body, eyewishiadd naturally wavy auburn tresses that I could fling about with theatrical abandon. Another eyewishiadd is a long neck so that I could wear chandelier earrings.

Lydia's major eyewishiadd is a dimple in her chin. Esther's is 10 perfect fingernails instead of four perfect nails, three pretty good nails, two acceptable nails and one nail that is a certifiable disaster.

Patrice has an unusual eyewishiadd. Hers is to be allergic to chocolate. She figures if she were allergic to chocolate she'd weigh 14 pounds less, and she could get into the clothes she bought on sale three years ago.

Staying in the chocolate vein, my

Morris exhibit features Bowles

The noted American author and composer Paul Bowles is the subject of a new exhibition on view now through May 29 in the Special Collections Exhibition Gallery of the Hugh M. Morris Library on the University of Delaware campus in Newark.

The exhibition, "Paul Bowles at 80," is on free public display from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, with hours extended until 8 p.m. Tuesdays.

Bowles, whose career spans more than half a century, has published more than 50 books, including novels, collections of poetry and fiction, travel essays and translations, as well as musical compositions.

His circle included Gertrude Stein, Aaron Copland, Virgil Thompson, W.H. Auden, Christopher Isherwood, Tennessee Williams, William S. Burroughs and Allen Ginsberg.

Organized by Timothy Murray, associate librarian in Special Collections, the exhibition celebrates the 80th anniversary of Bowles' birth and is drawn entirely from the library's extensive collection of his books, manuscripts, papers and other material.

The library began to assemble a comprehensive collection of Bowles' published work during the early 1970s.

In 1985, the university acquired a substantial collection of his literary correspondence and manuscripts from the early 1960s to the mid-1980s.

Also on view at area galleries and museums:

□ Paintings by Nancy Churchman Sawin are on display through March 12 in the J. Wilbur Hiron Library at Goldey-Beacom College in Pike Creek.

□ A display of children's art work from around the world provided by UNICEF will be shown through March 1 at the Newark Free Library, Library Ave., Newark. The work can be seen during regular library hours, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

□ Works by Roy Blakeship, Jean Diver, Anne Boysen, Matthew Reinert and Carol Horgan are on view through March 15 at Hardcastles Gallery, 217 W. 9th St. Plaza, Wilmington.

With Met series, Texaco took a chance

This is the second of my columns about the 50th anniversary of the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera radio broadcast series, arguably the most important electronic communications effort in the history of music.

The series has brought more great opera to more people, and more people to more great opera, than anything ever conceived.

To understand the chance the Texas Company took, let us consider the time in which the series was undertaken. It was 1940, the tail end of the Great Depression. The enormous corporate profits of World War II were in the future, and 1940 was long before the new corporate enlightenment of the "double bottom line."

W.S.S. Rogers, president of the Texas Company in 1940, said, "American business has long acted on the principle of success through service to the greatest number."

Indeed, that is the way his company was acting. But Vanderbilt's "The public be damned" was still ringing in the ears of many. The Texas Company was clearly taking a chance.

Through wars, law suits and domestic oil problems, Texaco has never wavered in its support of the weekly opera broadcasts. The photo with my column today shows President Rogers on that very first broadcast.

As an aside, take a close look at the photo for just a moment. Do you see that metal protrusion from the wall just behind Milton Cross? A special antenna? Sophisticated electronic gear? No, it is a coat hook in the back of the old Met Box 44.

From that corner, the great broadcasts were sent to the waiting continent.

Today, intermission features come from the beautifully appointed List Hall and the broadcasts from a state of the art booth on the Grand Tier of the Lincoln Center Met.

Many great stories came out of Milton Cross's 44-year career of telling the story of the opera, presenting interesting ad libs when a filler was needed and trying to present each artist in his or her best light.

yesterday since I was in high school!

As I stepped into the house, I didn't feel a stranger. Milton had described it to me for so many Saturday afternoons that I felt right at home looking at "The great gold curtain."

By the way, it was at that moment I became terminally afflicted with the "Red and gold disease." Fellow "sufferers" will understand.

I don't want to be labeled an incurable romantic but when I went to see the new production of "Der Fliegende Holländer" over the Christmas vacation, I still remembered Milton telling me the story for the very first time on Saturday afternoon long ago. His two volumes of opera stories are still on my shelf and still consulted.

This Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. you may tune to Philadelphia's WFLN-FM (95.7 mhz) or Baltimore's WBIC-FM (91.5 mhz) to hear Verdi's "Rigoletto" on the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network.

Leo Nucci will sing the title role, Luciano Pavarotti, the Duke of Mantua; June Anderson, Gilda; and Ferruccio Furlanetto, Sparafucile. Marcello Panni will conduct.

'Soldier's Tale' to be staged March 10

A spring production of "The Soldier's Tale," a work whose distinctive score by Igor Stravinsky has made it a classic of modern musical theater, will bring together some of the region's most distinguished performing artists.

Director Charles Gilbert, conductor Harvey Price, dancer Christina Pierangeli and actors Peter DeLaurier and Paris Peet will be featured in the production, to be staged at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 10 in Wilmington's Salesianum School.

Tickets cost $10 and will be available at the door.

A daytime performance for high school students is planned Friday, March 9.

The performance is sponsored by the Delaware Institute for the Arts in Education, a non-profit organization founded in 1981 to bring high-quality art performances to teachers and students throughout the state.

"This production of 'A Soldier's Tale' is a sterling example of the professional standards of excellence which are a part of every Institute offering," said Anne Oldach, director of the organization.

Director Gilbert has staged this work twice before with many of the same performers. His most recent directorial assignments include a reading of Pulitzer Prize winning composer William Bolcom's opera "Casino Paradise" for the American Music Theater Festival in Philadelphia, and a regional tour of his own work, "A Is For Anything."

Price performs regularly with the Philadelphia and Delaware symphony orchestras, and like Gilbert is a member of the University of Delaware faculty.

DeLaurier, co-founder of the Delaware Theatre Company and the new First Stage, will appear in the role of The Devil.

Peet, who has worked with both DeLaurier and Gilbert in previous productions of "The Soldier's Tale," is a member of the theater faculty at East Carolina University and has performed with the Delaware Theatre Company, the Alley Theatre in Houston, and the Folger Shakespeare Theatre in Washington, D.C.

Dancer Pierangeli has performed with Dance Theatre of Harlem under Arthur Mitchell and is currently a graduate teaching assistant in the dance department at Temple University.

Completing the cast is H. Michael Walls, as the narrator.

To attract birds, consider plantings

Interested in attracting birds to your home or property?

Consider landscaping with certain trees, shrubs or vines that appeal to birds.

"Some plants are known for their allure to birds and for meeting one or more of birds' basic needs — food, cover and nesting sites," said David Tatnall, University of Delaware Extension garden specialist.

To attract the largest number of birds year around, develop a suitable blend of plant kinds and sizes to please both birds and people.

A number of trees, shrubs and vines attract birds and are useful and ornamental to the landscape as well, Tatnall said.

Crabapples, especially small-fruited varieties, are popular ornamental trees offering cover and nesting sites. Their persistent fruits are a valued winter food.

The Washington hawthorn, with its thorny, dense-branching habit and abundant red fruits, is also a good choice.

Two evergreens that are attractive and useful in landscaping are the white pine and hemlock. The small cones of the hemlock contain seeds which attract birds throughout winter.

Generous crops of red, speckled berries that endure through the winter make the autumn elacagnus a highly recommended shrub, especially the Cardinal variety.

Shrubs provide good cover and nesting but it's the fruits that most attract birds, Tatnall said. Birds seem to love the red fruits of the Japanese barberry and the Tatarian honeysuckle, and the bright orange berries of the Laland firethorn.

Blueberry bushes and the persistent blue berries of the spreading juniper, particularly the Hetz and Pfizer varieties, are also excellent choices.

Both native and exotic species of viburnums offer choice food, cover and nesting sites. They are also excellent ornamentals, displaying attractive flowers and fruits.

Tatnall suggests Virginia creeper if vinery is what you want. It is valuable to birds, primarily for the bluish-black berries it produces in fall and winter. Japanese honeysuckle also provides good cover, nesting and winter food for birds, but take care it does not become rampant.

Hummingbirds are attracted to the large orange and scarlet, trumpet-shaped flowers of the strong-growing trumpet creeper. This vine must be used with discretion, Tatnall warned, especially if it is grown against a house or similar structure.

TOLE PAINTING IS POPULAR

"The type of decorative painting most familiar to Delawareans is probably the Pennsylvania Dutch type," Sandlin said, "with its characteristic hearts and birds in primary colors."

Sandlin, a decorative artist since 1973, sells her work in the Black Angus Antique Mall in Adamstown, Pa.

There she joins husband Roger, a vendor of antique toys.

She also provides instruction in tole and decorative painting to conventions and individual students.

"Decorative painting mushroomed when handicrafts like neeppoint, cross stitch and quilting returned to vogue," Sandlin said. "What's happening today is that a lot of women who are working will take a craft type class as an outlet to get away from the nine to five demands.

"Many of these classes are set up so you can finish an entire project in two to two and one-half hours. Some of it can be very fast."

Lose up to 20 pounds in 3 weeks.

At the Beauté, Laura Brady lost 3 lbs. after her first treatment.

After just two weeks at Deborah McCamie Beauté, Laura Brady, who hates to exercise, dropped from a size 12 to size 10. And now is a size 6.

Susan McCoy, who keeps a very busy schedule, went from size 12 to size 8. And grandmother Mana Tancredi lost 15 pounds and 14 inches in her abdomen, hips and thighs in 3 weeks.

How? These women discovered the Beauté alternatives to traditional weight loss techniques. And they all feel better and look younger because of it.

"Now women can reduce saddlebags, love handles, distended stomachs and cellulite that plague them even after diet and exercise reduces weight," says Deborah McCamie. "Plus," the pounds come off faster and easier with the Beauté methods."
