

2 DWELLINGS FINISHED IN PROJECT ON OUTSKIRTS

Remainder Of 62 Homes Will Be Erected As Orders Placed

Two dwellings have been completed in the projected 62 home development on the K. J. Kallow property on the outskirts of town.

One of the homes will be used as a sample unit, according to authorities of the G. J. Kallow Construction Company, of Wilmington Manor, which has taken over the project.

The remainder of the homes, which will be in the $10,000 to $20,000 bracket, containing seven rooms and two baths, will be erected as ordered.

Street will be laid out as necessary in conformity with both county and town regulations. The latter's standards of lot width are being met, it was noted, with a view towards incorporating the area in the town limits if this should ever become desirable.

The project, a major step towards solving the local housing shortage, originally was scheduled to be one-third completed this fall, but ran into a number of delays. It was later decided to erect the homes only as prospective owners appeared.

The homes will be erected on the 32-acre site adjacent to the properties of Dr. T. F. Manns and Boyd Hall in the rear of West Park Place.

Meanwhile, plans for the 70-family apartment house scheduled to be erected on the former Major property on Kallow Road, are still hanging fire. The report from officials of the John E. Walter Company of Wilmington, which is promoting the project, said that the plans were still being prepared by the Federal Housing Administration. Once this has been completed, construction is expected to get underway almost immediately, it was said.

4 SERVICES AT CHURCH

The Rev. William Harlee Bordeaux, D. D., will be the speaker at four services concluding the fall conference of the Bible Presbyterian Church here this weekend.

Three services will be held Sunday, starting at 11 a. m., when Dr. Bordeaux will discuss "The American Council, Its Reality, Achievements, Future." At 2 p. m., his subject will be "Behind the Iron Curtain." At 8 p. m., "Obedience or Disobedience and Its Costs."

Memorial Fund Now Over $1,500

The fund to erect a permanent memorial to Newark war veterans is now over the $1,500 mark, according to officials.

Latest contributors are: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Biddle, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Miriam Steele, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Alvin Handloff, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan J. Cook, Willard Jackson.

Newark's Youngest Newspaper, "The Toddler's Toot," Now In Second Year

One of Newark's most sprightly publications, merely followed in certain ways by the "Toddler's Toot," turned quarterly by 16 young journalists, is now in its second year.

A comprehensive pamphlet with an attractive cover, the paper last came out Thanksgiving week, carrying news, essays, and poems by the young writers.

Some of the most original items were poems and stories. One entitled "The New Year," by Rayner Johnson, grade 6, is lined with refreshing realism.

The leaves are falling from the trees and are pretty as they fall. When father says "Rake them please!"

Don't think they are pretty at all. Another poem, a short story by John Smith, grade five, exhibits a certain amount of the level of courage to be found among students. Called the "New Year's Eve," it reads: "One day my mother and I went fishing and while we were fishing a growl was heard. The mother said 'What was that?' The growl was there. The next morning when I got up, I saw my uncle said:

Second In Artist Series

Maryla Jonas

Maryla Jonas, noted Polish pianist, will give a recital in Mitchell Hall, at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow, as the second of the new Artist Series concerts at the University of Delaware. This is the third American tour of Mme. Jonas, who won fame overnight after her debut recital in New York three seasons ago. The protégé of Paderewski, who was her first teacher, she now comes to Delaware after a succession of triumphs from New York to San Francisco.

Mme. Jonas' recordings are best-sellers and her next project is the recording of all of the 56 mazurkas of Chopin to be contained in three albums. Part of her recital program at Mitchell Hall will be devoted to the great Polish composer. The full program follows:

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE BEGUN BY DEL. VFW

Newark Post
To Spearhead
Local Phase

A membership drive, which will continue through December, has been launched by the Department of Delaware, Veterans of Foreign Wars, according to Commander Raymond M. Loose.

The local phase of the campaign will be directed by Harry Maclary, commander of the Newark post. Letters have been mailed to every active VFW member, urging his support and asking that each man secure at least five ex-servicemen as new recruits.

The purpose of the drive, according to Loose, is to add new strength not only in Delaware but throughout the nation, in order to back up VFW advocacy for national welfare and for world peace and to support an equitable readjustment in benefits for veterans and survivors of veterans.

Also, additional support is sought for the VFW national home for widows and orphans at Eaton Rapids, Michigan. The home is wholly supported by the veterans' organization and auxiliaries.

On the state level, Commander Loose is calling for additional strength representing every phase of veteranism in the VFW, so that a strong case may be built for the World War II bonus which will come up for discussion at the next session of Legislature. The legislative committee is at work now preparing what it believed would be an adequate bill.

LEGION UNIT PLANS YULE PROJECT FOR INJURED VETS

To Sponsor
Gift Shops
For Patients
In Hospitals

The joy of Christmas giving will be made possible for hospitalized war veterans throughout the country by the American Legion Auxiliary, again this year, according to Mrs. Harold Sheaffer, rehabilitation chairman of the J. A. O'Daniel Unit, No. 10, American Legion Auxiliary.

The local unit will join in sponsoring gift shops at the Perry Point hospital on December 4 and at the New Castle Veterans Hospital on December 11. These shops will make it possible for veterans without money to send Christmas gifts home to their families.

Any person wishing to donate a gift to this project is asked to call Mrs. Sheaffer.

Work of stocking the gift shops with a wide variety of gift articles for women and children is now underway in all states where veterans hospitals are located, Mrs. Sheaffer explained. The gifts are acquired by the members of the Auxiliary and by donations, and hospitals provide a room for their display. Volunteer Auxiliary workers operate the shops, help veterans make selections, and wrap and mail the gifts to the veterans' families.

The Auxiliary also will have gifts for the hospitalized veterans themselves on Christmas. Every veteran forced to spend the day in a hospital anywhere in the United States will be remembered by the Auxiliary in what Mrs. Sheaffer described as one of the biggest programs of Christmas giving in the world. Last year the Auxiliary expended more than $700,000 in its Christmas activities for disabled war veterans and their families.

Dr. Smith will return on Wednesday to resume office hours.

Way Now Seen Clear For Zone Ordinance Adoption

Protests Heard At Public Hearing Tuesday; Draft To Get First Reading Dec. 6

Although a number of strong criticisms were registered against the current draft of the zoning ordinance, no major stumbling block to its final adoption developed at the second public hearing on the measure Tuesday night in the high school auditorium. The session was a mild one compared to the first held about two years ago.

About 100 property owners were on hand to hear Mayor Ford McBERTY go over the revised draft in detail. Later, specific objections were heard and taken under advisement.

The way now seems clear for the Town Council to go ahead with formal adoption of the ordinance, and Mayor Ford McBERTY intimated that the draft probably will get its first reading at the December session of the town fathers next Monday night.

Prior to that the changes suggested at the hearing will be considered, probably the same night, and those that seem worthwhile in the judgment of the Councilmen will be worked into the final draft.

The major protest lodged Tuesday night came from the residents on the north side of East Delaware Avenue, who, in a formal petition, objected strongly to the re-zoning of their area from residential to commercial. The petition was signed by some 15 property owners and was submitted by the group's spokesman ex-Mayor C. C. Hubert. The area was re-zoned commercial, according to officials, as the result of a request from the Newark Chamber of Commerce.

Another strong objection was raised by residents of the east side of North Chapel Street. They protested the zoning of the area adjacent to them north of Main Street, now occupied by St. John's R. C. Church and other residential buildings, as commercial. They also objected to the zoning of the area behind them along the former Pomeroy railroad tracks as industrial. Their spokesman, Earl Nesbitt, 22 North Chapel, promised to produce a formal petition before Council's meeting on Monday.

Another criticism was the zoning of the area along East Park Place between Academy Street and South Chapel as RD rather than RS.

Ren George, owner of the Blue Hen Laundry, requested his property between North Street and East Cleveland Avenue be re-zoned commercial.

Prior to the open discussion, town solicitor Samuel Handloff outlined the legal aspects of the proposed ordinance, pointing out, among other things, that the draft provides for safeguards to the public both through the appeal board it creates and the provisions it contains against enforcing the ordinance in cases where it would "result in unnecessary hardship and so that the spirit of the ordinance shall be observed."

A number of more technical questions, such as the required lot width in certain areas conflicting with present conditions, were also brought up and are expected to be thrashed out more thoroughly Monday night.

Walter Fulmer, South Chapel Street, registered a protest against the small commercial area in the extreme southern end of South Chapel Street. He also intends to get up a petition by Monday night.

NHS Seeks Repair Funds From State

A request for about $3,300 to cover repairs at the Newark Schools has been made to the state, Supt. Wilmer E. Shue disclosed yesterday.

Delayed repairs are those postponed during the war years when labor and materials were short.

The largest item in the request calls for $3,300 to paint classrooms in the main high school building. Other proposed projects include: partitioning and renovation of the Main Street school building, $1,500; painting the athletic field fence, $1,500; and laying sidewalks on Haines and Lovett Avenues, $2,000.

NHS Students Hear Temperance Official

H. Kirby Krams, representative of the Methodist Board of Temperance, gave a talk on "Alcoholic Characteristics" to students of the Newark High School on Monday.

Mr. Krams stated that the current alcoholic rate is one in every twenty persons in this country. The only sure way to avoid drunkenness, he said, is never to touch alcohol. Stressing the need for broad public information on the dangers of drinking, Mr. Kram closed with this remark: "Part of a high school student's training should be to learn briefly the facts about the effects of alcohol while he is young."

Mr. Kram attends the class on Alcoholism given each year at Yale University.

Public Offered Chance To Give Views On China Aid

The timely and controversial subject "Should the U. S. Aid China" will be discussed in an informal "smoke talk" in the lounge of Old College at 7:30 p. m. on Monday night.

With the fate of China currently in the forefront of world politics, the talk should bring forth a number of provocative and constructive opinions. The public is urged to attend.

The keynote addresses will be given by two grade students, Albert Smith and Tom Livizer. The moderator will be Dr. Carl J. Rees, head of the mathematics department at the university. The program is one in a series being sponsored by the English Department.

NHS SENIOR WINS JAYCEE ORATOR TEST

J. Towers Named
First In Local
Part Of Contest

Local high school students competed in a nation-wide public speaking contest sponsored by the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce on Monday night, when they gave brief talks on "I Speak For Democracy" at the Newark Jaycee meeting in the Academy Building.

Cash prizes for first and second were awarded to James Towers, a junior, and Helen Samendinger, senior. The local awards were donated by the following Newark merchants: Eagle Furniture Company, George Haney, Gregg's Jewelers, Fairlawn Markets and the Newark Department Store.

Young Towers will record his winning speech within the next few days so that it may be judged at the state contest in Dover. Judges for the Newark speeches were: Mrs. Francis H. Bratton, Mrs. J. P. Patonovic and W. E. Fox. Don Savitch was the Jaycee chairman.

Mr. Fox, president of the organization, welcomed three new members: Alfred F. Borg, Shelby Brown and Robert Neeson. He also appointed Arthur Sweet as the group's official delegate to the Delaware Council of Education.

J. M. Garner, program chairman for the next meeting on December 13, announced that members would meet in the club room, Old Academy Building, at the usual time for a half hour business session, after which they would adjourn to Recitation Hall, where they would be guests of the University Physics Department.

On December 18 there will be a social meeting with Bernard Doordan chairman.

Since the Scotchlyte reflecting tape has not yet arrived, no date has been set for its distribution.

John Dawson directed the serving of refreshments at the meeting's close.

BIDS ON NEW SCHOOL

Bids on the proposed elementary school will be opened December 8 as previously scheduled, according to Supt. Wilmer E. Shue. No more delays in securing a contractor for the construction is anticipated, he said.

Yule Lights To Be Strung Along Main Street; C. of C. And Council Back Plan

For the first time in several years Main Street will reflect the holiday spirit of the Christmas season.

Town crews began this week to string multi-colored yule lights along the central business district. The project is backed by the Chamber of Commerce and the Town Council. The former has purchased the lights and will pay for their upkeep. The Council will supply the current free from December 15 to January 1.

While the main stem takes on a festive air, local merchants are making final plans for what they hope will be the biggest buying season here in years. Stores are decked with Christmas finery, and counters are piled high with attractive displays.

Adding excitement to the holiday season will be the "treasure hunt" to be staged by retailers sponsoring the "Newark Calling" radio show. Shoppers will be offered hundreds of free gifts valued from one to fifty dollars.

"Treasure Hunt" cards are being mailed to families in this area. Additional cards may be found in the participating stores. Any person who can match the number on his card with

REPAIRS TO UNIMPROVED STREETS ARE PROGRESSING

Broad Scale
Reconditioning
Work Underway
In New Project

Work on the town's current program for repairing a number of unimproved streets, begun some weeks ago, progressed steadily until last Sunday's break in the weather, according to Town Supervisor Robert Neeson.

Curbs have been installed on Orchard Road between Manns Avenue and Ritter Lane and along the east end of Kells Avenue, he said. In addition, preliminary grading and excavation work, prior to laying gravel, has been completed on these streets.

The project, which will cost upwards of $12,000, also calls for curbs on one side of Chambers Street and about 200 feet on Townsend Road at Winslow. In addition, curbs, catch basins, excavation and graveling will be carried out on Dallan and Hillside Roads.

In all, the project will cover 2,500 feet of unimproved streets, bringing them into top condition. The work is being carried out by a private contractor under the supervision of town authorities. It was first authorized last July but was delayed some time by survey work and again by a hold-up in bids.

FILLIN' IN

The popular myth that every American father worth his salt at all likes to play with his kid's electric trains is more rife than ever this year. It's getting so a husband who wants to keep the good opinion of his wife and neighbors can't afford not to play with electric trains.

If he is cool in this respect, his wife begins to look on him askance, and soon the word is spread in the neighborhood that he is an odd duck, definitely not a good egg, and anything but a regular fellow. His position is a grave one for he is violating the accepted idea of what a typical U. S. father should be.

The notion that a man should, if he is morally sound, like to play with electric trains is a part of a more common belief that the ideal U. S. male is just a lovable, overgrown boy. Men who can fit this mould, who can pass themselves off as big, easy-going baboons, are bound to meet with general respect and wide acclaim.

The origin of this idea that every man is just a boy at heart lies, we believe, with the female of the species. It is part of her indoctrinal system for domesticating her spouse. If she can convince him he is just an overgrown boy, he becomes more tractable about the house. Fortunately, most men like the idea. They enjoy sitting back and smirking proudly while their wives tell friends stories about their childish pranks and escapades.

One of the best ways a man can prove he is just an overgrown boy is by playing with electric trains. If he can manage this, he gains new stature in his wife's eyes and takes a long step toward general recognition as a true-blue, four-square American father.

The only trouble is this works a hardship on those few men who, while they make a sincere effort to be overgrown boys in most respects, can't work up any enthusiasm over playing with electric trains. They are glad to buy them and set them up for their children, but from there on, they are willing to let the kids take over full-time.

This unreasonable attitude often leads to friction with their wives. One friend of ours in particular went through a tense two weeks recently over a set of trains he bought for his 7-year-old. The trouble was, as he told us later, he brought the trains home and stored them in a closet without bothering to open the boxes. Even after his child was safely in bed, our friend made no effort to get out the trains and play with them.

He noticed his wife was unusually silent that evening and kept eyeing him with a curious expression as if she was seeing him for the first time for the ogle he really was, but he did not regard this seriously. After about three nights of her stern silence and searching looks, though, he began to feel uneasy. Finally, one evening she unburdened her heart.

"Dear, sometimes I just don't understand you. You aren't like other men at all."

"Huh, what'dya mean?"

"Aren't you interested in those trains? Any normal man would be. Why, George Doakes down the street plays with his new set every night, his wife says."

"Kids' stuff," our man snapped and turned back to his paper.

"Sometimes, dear, I think you haven't any real human feeling."

"What has humanity got to do with electric trains?"

"Now, dear, don't make light of it. You know you must lack something. I don't know just what it is, but you've got a soulless streak in your somewhere."

"Soulless!" shrieked our man. "Now, how did you arrive at that? Look, I'm just an ordinary, adult, human male, who has been forced for better or worse to put away the things of a child. What's the use of trying to be otherwise?"

After that outburst, the gulf between the two widened. The wife maintained a hurt silence broken only by occasional sniffs of disdain, and the man was forced to appear sulky.

About a week of this, and he could stand it no longer. One evening, when not a word had passed between them for two hours, he finally threw down his paper in disgust and went to the closet.

We witnessed the rest of this curious tale ourselves, when we happened to drop in on the couple about an hour later.

Our friend was seated on the floor, completely encircled by an intricate system of tracks, over which hurtled, in miniature fury, a long freight train, whistle wailing and smoke trailing behind.

His wife sat on a cot and beamed down on him fondly.

As we entered, our friend looked up at us with the light of a new fanaticism in his eye. "Look," he explained, "it works by remote control!"

The curious thing was he seemed entirely unaware of the fact that he was thoroughly enjoying himself.

JACKETS WAGE GRIM FIGHT BUT BOW TO CONRAD, 13-8, IN THANKSGIVING THRILLER

Redskins Push Over Both T. D.'s In First Period Forcing Newark Into Uphill Battle Rest Of Game; Last Minute NHS Drive Carries To Two

What appeared destined as a rout in the first quarter developed into a hard fought football game between Conrad and Newark High here on Thanksgiving, as the Jackets, after yielding two touchdowns, bolstered their defenses and carried the fight to the heavily favored invaders.

A record crowd of around 3,000 watched the determined Jackets, after dropping behind 13-0 in the first quarter, wage a grim battle to finish still trailing 13-8. The issue was settled only after the Jackets sent a last-minute thrill through the crowd with a desperate offensive, which on two passes carried 60 yards and was halted finally by a scrappy Conrad stand on the two yard line.

The defeat was anything but a humiliation for Newark, which, underdogs at the start, battled on equal terms with the Redskins, except for the shaky first quarter.

The loss left the Jackets' record for the season evenly balanced at three wins against three setbacks and two ties. This is more than pre-season predictions claimed for the Jackets, who at the start of the campaign were an untried team for the most part. Coach Walter Matt, pointing out that the boys fought against superior odds most of the season, feels they gave a remarkable good account of themselves.

Next year Coach Matt will face the same problem—an inexperienced team—all over again, since the Thanksgiving Day game was the last for 13 Jacket seniors on the squad. Almost the entire first team will be swept away by graduation this year.

Other seniors on the squad: H. Dexter, R. Pierce, R. Reed, and L. Zimmer.

A recovered Jacket fumble a few minutes after the opening kickoff set up the first Conrad touchdown. The Redskins took possession on the Newark 40 and moved downfield steadily until Ed Malinowski went over from the one. He also booted the extra point.

Before the Jackets could regain their balance, Conrad had another score when Jim Taylor, in the game's most spectacular play, took a Newark punt on his own 25 and threaded his way through the entire Jacket team to make it 13-0.

After that Newark reorganized its defense, varying it from a two to a seven man line, and Conrad never quite succeeded in mastering it there.

Clippers Claim State Crown In Win Over Wilmington Eagles

135-Pounders Dominate Play In Earning 13-6 Victory Over City Gridders

The Cleveland Avenue Clippers, scrappy super-sandlot gridders, are claiming title to the state championship in the 135-pound class as a result of their crisp 13-7 triumph over the Elm Street Eagles, a Wilmington club, on the high school gridiron here last Saturday.

Although outweighed by the visitors, the Clippers dominated the play from the start, pushing over their two touchdowns before the half and holding the Elm Streeters scoreless until the final quarter. The latter came here as the champs of their city league.

A long pass from Quarterback Roy Knox to End Andy Murphy furnished the first Newark score in the opening stanza. The play carried 25 yards to pay dirt.

During the second quarter, the Clippers opened their bag of tricks to display some flashy ball handling and a deceptive attack, which would have produced several scores except for penalties. As it was, Merritt Buchanan, defensive halfback, produced the second touchdown, when he intercepted a pass and traveled 60 yards to score.

At least six team-mates threw excellent blocks to assist him on the jaunt.

The Elm Street club finally came to life in the dying phases of the game, unloading a sparkling air attack, which clicked eventually with a flank pass that shook a back loose for 65 yards and the city boys' lone score.

Outstanding for the Clippers were Don Sharp and Howard Keeley, defensive linemen; and Burton Schaefer and Dick Lawson, who did yeomen's work backing up the line.

A banquet in honor of the players will be held by the club in the near future. Feature of the evening will be the awarding of letters. Free movies and dancing will also be included in the program. Date and time have not been settled as yet, according to Coach Don Butterworth, who is arranging the affair.

HEN BASKETBALL FIVE TO OPEN HOME CARD DEC. 17 WITH GETTYSBURG BULLETS

To Make Season's Debut Nite Before With F. & M. At Lancaster, Pa.; Will Face Temple In Second Home Match; 18 Games Scheduled By Burnansky

The University of Delaware's cage team will open its 1948-49 season on December 16 with Franklin and Marshall on the latter's court at Lancaster, Pa.

The first home game will be the following night when Gettysburg College will provide the opposition in the Field House.

A grueling 18-game card has been arranged for the Hens by Coach Joe Burnansky. Only newcomer on the schedule this year is Toledo University which replaces Buffalo.

The Hens again will make a brief mid-western swing during the Christmas vacation, meeting Toledo on December 30 and Lawrence Tech at Detroit the next day.

The season will close March 2 at Haverford College away.

Nine games are scheduled for a field house here. The stiffer opposition will probably be provided by Temple University which will perform its vaunted sleight of hand here in a second home game on January 3.

Home and home games will be played with Ursinus, Washington College, P. M. C., Drexel and Haverford.

Social Dancing Introduced

The boys' and girls' gym classes have combined for two weeks to study the finer arts of social dancing. Mrs. Oliba, the girls' physical education director, states that the object of the course is to make better dancers of those who dance and to teach those who do not dance to dance. The course aims to make the students more conscious of the responsibilities of social life and instruct them in proper actions when confronted by social situations. For those who do not wish to dance, Mr. Matt, the boys' instructor, will offer a class in health hygiene.

The girls, ranging from the eighth to twelfth grades, will meet every Friday night at the Women's Gym from 7:30 to 9 starting December 3. The members are: Virginia Wells, Sue Jane Field, Gertrude Tierney, Jean Elliott, Ruth Lockard, Barbara Humphreys, Anne Louise Neave, Judy Kase, Margaret Bueche, Clara Wilkins, Judy Colburn, Joan Brown, Peggy Lehman, Nancy Dean, Phyllis Harrison, Annette Ely, June Clark, Ruth Mary Cooper, Phyllis Baker, Sylvia Field, Joann Milliken, Ellen Cooper, Gertrude Delp, Louise Samborn, Jackie Barrett, Beth Rose, Gwen Wagner, Jane Milliken, and Nora Buckley.

Pasture Improvement Stressed For 1949 ACP

Calling attention to the possibilities of increased food production from better pastures, C. E. Ocheltree, chairman of the State PMA Committee, says that too often the pasture is the "most neglected" part of the farm.

Under the Agricultural Conservation Program there are a number of practices for pasture improvement. In Delaware these are applications of lime and phosphate and pasture seeding.

Mr. Ocheltree said that the purpose of the Agricultural Conservation Program is to keep up the productivity of the land. Too often the pasture is looked upon as just a part of the farm where crops cannot be grown. Yet in many instances pastures could be improved until they become some of the more productive acres of the farm.

Good pasture management includes proper stocking of the area. Where the pasture is overstocked, something must be done to restore lost fertility or to keep palatable grasses and clovers coming along with a good vigorous growth.

A pasture that is overworked and weak doesn't offer the protection needed to keep the land from eroding. To be a part of the protective bulwark against erosion, a pasture must be kept up.

The chairman urges that farmers keep the pasture in mind when they make their plans for cooperation in the 1949 Agricultural Conservation Program. Details about 1949 practices may be obtained at the County Agricultural Conservation Program offices, located at Newark, Dover, and Georgetown.

SEASON'S SPIRIT

We look around and can't help find that spirit of a special kind that, somehow, seems to reappear at this good season of the year. We welcome this phenomenon and hope that it continues on until the world is once again composed of only good-willed men.

For the special kind of satisfaction that comes from being prepared for every "company" emergency, get a new Frigidaire refrigerator. The new Frigidaire gives you far more space—more storage space in the same kitchen space. More room for meats, frozen foods, fruits and vegetables and, of course, there will always be plenty of ice cubes. There are plenty of models to choose from at the

Response Poor To School Fund Drive

The United Fund Drive, which closed yesterday at the Newark Schools, fell far short of expectations, according to officials. By noon Tuesday, only $300 had been secured.

This contrasted sharply with the nearly $700 raised last year.

The school intends, however, to keep its pledges by drawing from other funds.

Wesley Changes Hour For Sunday Services

A change in the hour of Sunday evening services at Wesley Chapel, New London Road, at McClellandville, was announced this week by the Rev. Charles F. Krull, pastor.
