NUMBER 49

A GLAD NEW YEAR

Ring out wild bells, to the wild sky,
The flying cloud, the frosty light;
The year is dying in the night;
Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind,
For those that here we see no more;
Ring out the feud of rich and poor,
Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out false pride in place and blood,
The civic slander and the spite;
The year is dying in the night;
Ring in the common love of good,

Ring out old shapes of foul disease;
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace.

CARE OF HEAD OF CHRISTIANA CEMETERY

The Board of Trustees of the Head of Christiana Cemetery had a very glad occasion last Monday, December 18th, when they met to clean the clocks which had been made out to them by the various ones at whose homes or under whose management the supports and societies to which these projects are due, were held.

From the efforts of Mrs. Pierce Whitcraft, the board received $12.85; from Mrs. Ellis P. Crosson, $42.60; from Mrs. Robert P. Mathias, $48.39; and from Miss Anna Frazer, who held the first special for the liquidation of the five hundred dollars, $8.00.

The Sewing Circle by their generosity, contributed $100, making a total of $512.84.

The board also instructed their clerk to prepare an item for the press relative to the delinquents of the cemetery plots, asking each to please remit to the treasurer, Robert McLaughlin.

The board is trying to beautify the cemetery and with your help it will do its very best. The board is trying to raise a cemetery fund the interest of which shall go for a perpetual care of the plots.

As it is now, those who want their plots cared for pay one dollar per year. According to the new plan, if any will deposit $25 to this fund, the interest of which shall go for a perpetual care, will be deposited by the board so that the principal shall not or cannot be touched by anyone. There has already been paid into this fund $175. Who will be the next to help along the movement?

REAL CITIZENSHIP

In his annual report to the Governor of the operations of the Department of Public Instruction for the school year ended July 3, 1911, Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, superintendent of public instruction, says that "it's too early to measure the effect of the new code upon the efficiency of the schools. It cannot be claimed that any legislation is perfect. Nevertheless, it would be premature to suggest changes or amendments to the code before its provisions have been tested upon the touchstone of experience."

One important matter that has hitherto been neglected Dr. Schaeffer dilates upon as follows: "Thus far very little that is specific has been done for the education of the miners in our anthracite and bituminous coal regions. Private enterprise has done something, through correspondence schools and mining institutes. The effort has been made to teach the foreigner and his children how to read, write, speak and understand the English language, so that accidents due to the misunderstanding of orders may be prevented. Ventilation and other things that bear upon mining have been taught, so that the safety and well-being of the miner may be promoted. Here is a field which the public schools should enter in the hope that as much may be done for the mining industry as is done for the other vocations which our industrial classes are pursuing."

For Real Citizenship.

Vocational education is urged by the State Superintendent as necessary, and he adds:

"Ability to read, write and reckon, to consult a map and grasp a route of travel, to cast an intelligent vote—intelligent because based upon a knowledge of the genesis and history of our free institutions, and, above all, to enjoy the things of the mind and the higher life—this ability should be acquired by every child who attends the public schools. In addition, everything should be done to develop ability to earn a livelihood and to beget the integrity which makes the youth a safe and useful member of society. From this point of view agricultural and industrial education loom up large and impressive as legitimate functions of the school of the future."

"The power of taxation for school purposes, while enlarged by the code, remains still under the control of the voters, and the schools cannot be made better than the people wish them to be."

"A campaign for better school houses is needed, urges the State Superintendent. The cities are erecting school buildings which, in point of heating, lighting, ventilation, sanitation, seating and general comfort, surpass the average home in the best communities. But in the remote rural districts where population is stationary, if not diminishing, the school houses are gradually deteriorating."

"The decay of rural life is an alarming symptom. The effort to create an interest in the rural schools of outlying districts is one of the most necessary and commendable steps forward that can be made. If some financial assistance could be furnished toward the building of school houses in remote districts the encouragement thus given would, in no long time, negate a pride everywhere in the school house and its surroundings."

Some of the Statistics.

Appended to the report is a statistical statement showing that there are 2,599 school districts in the state, while the number of schools is 33,048. There are 8,044 male teachers and 28,136 females. The average salary received by men teachers is $64.24 per month, while the female teachers' average monthly pay is $47.98.

The whole number of pupils enrolled is 1,286,273, with a daily average attendance of 1,028,290. The cost of the school houses for the year amounted to $8,794,578.97, and the estimated value of school property in Pennsylvania is $103,302,767.38. The total amount of teachers' wages was $20,244,715.69. Text books used in all the districts cost $858,671.89, while all other supplies cost $1,072,188.13; fuel and contingencies, $11,167,492.69, and the total expenditures reached $42,137,647.37.

THE BALTIMORE LYNCHING

Early Sunday morning King Davis, a negro, insulted Frank Schwab, a white man, with whom he had been playing pool, whereupon Frederick Schwab, Frank's brother, demanded an apology. A quarrel followed, in which the negro shot Schwab through the heart.

Davis was arrested and taken to the lockup in Brooklyn, a suburb of Baltimore, in which the shooting occurred.

Yesterday morning about 3 o'clock, seven men broke into the lockup and, overpowering Davis, beat him over the head with the flat of a hatchet. Next they dragged him by the heels to a vacant lot about 150 yards east of the station, fired five shots through his heart and after mutilating him with the hatchet, left the body lying in the road.

The corpse was found by a negro on his way to work. He notified Chief of Police Irwin. This was the first information of the lynching that the authorities had.

The lynchers had evidently timed their visit so as to reach the lockup when it was unprotected. They burst the lock on the rear door without attracting attention and next went to the cellroom and found Davis.

Hubert Chase, negro, who was held as a witness in the case, was in a cell two doors away. He was not disturbed.

Davis shrieked for mercy, but his cries were silenced with the hatchet.

At the time of the lynching there was no one in the jail other than the negro Chase, the officers having left just before. "No noise" was heard by near neighbors, except the shots, and no attention was paid to them, as they were thought to be a part of the Christmas eve celebration. The officers declared after the lynching, that it has always been the custom to leave the jail unguarded, regardless of what prisoners might be there or the nature of their crimes.

Justice Bottee called an inquest yesterday morning. David Kinnell and J. W. Carleton, who live near the jail, were the only witnesses. Kinnell testified that at about 2 or 3 o'clock he was awakened by a number of shots.

"I paid no attention to them," he said, "because I thought they were the result of the Christmas eve celebration. I heard no outcry or other noise which aroused my suspicions."

Carleton gave the same testimony.

The jury rendered a verdict that Davis died from bullet wounds and blows with a hatchet in the hands of persons unknown to the jury.

Between the station and the scene of the lynching the grass is trampled and there is a stream of blood, indicating that Davis had been badly beaten before he was taken out.

Chief Irwin and his men are making an effort to learn the identity of the lynchers, but so far have found no evidence. Hubert Chase, who was detained as a witness, has been taken to Annapolis for safe keeping.

Chief Irwin said that when he left the station, about 1:55 o'clock a. m., everything in the neighborhood was quiet.

There has been much feeling of late against negroes, who had the habit of going to Brooklyn, and after drinking, making the night hideous. Davis belonged to this crowd.

DISAPPOINTED SPORTSMEN

The fox hunt scheduled for Christmas Day, was called off on account of trouble over the "sly Reynard" in question. Owing to the fact that the animal was not dug, as the law allows, but had been taken from a trap, and was slightly crippled, instead of being the center of a lively chase, he was allowed to take an unobserved departure for his old haunts.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mrs. R. C. Jones has announced the engagement of her daughter Miss Lola to Mr. Gustavus Smith, McClellandville.

CHRISTIANA UNION SERVICES

A union service was held last Sunday in Christiana, the congregations of the Presbyterian and M. E. Churches of that village uniting for their Christmas service. Rev. Adrian Van Overen delivered the sermon in the M. E. Church. There will be union services in the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning, when the Rev. Mr. Moore, pastor of the M. E. Church will preach.

A JOYFUL OCCASION

There will be a special service in the Head of Christiana Presbyterian Church next Sunday afternoon, December 31st, the occasion being the burning of the five hundred dollar bond.

Very nearly one hundred of Newark's citizens have helped in the raising of this money, all of whom are invited to be present next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Various ministers of the community will be there, among the number, Dr. Joel S. Gillfillan, Rev. J. W. Lowden, and Rev. W. J. Rowan. The pastor will preside. Mr. Pierce Whitcraft, chairman of the board of trustees will bring the satisfied bond forward, where it will be burned by the pastor.

TO MOVE TO MIDDLETOWN

It is reported that Dr. Norman Beale, of Christiana, will move to Middletown, Delaware, where he has purchased the practice of Dr. Ritchie. Dr. Ritchie will take up special work and after a year's study, expects to open an office in Wilmington.

Dr. Beale is well known here and though he had practiced but a few years in this vicinity, was very popular. Rural residents around Christiana and Newark will feel reluctant in parting with him.

MR. WOLF TO MARRY

Theodore R. Wolfe, Delaware College man, class 1901, secured a marriage license in Norristown, Pa., on Tuesday to wed Miss Helen Wolf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman T. Wolf, of Bala, Pa. The date for the marriage has not been announced.

Miss Wolf has visited Mrs. T. R. Wolfe, of this town, and has many Newark friends. Mr. T. R. Wolf has lately returned from Japan. His future home will be in Chicago.

REWARD OFFERED

The Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Mill Creek Hundred, has offered a reward of $250 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who set fire to the barn on the farm owned by G. W. Bright and tenanted by Joseph P. Pyle, located near Newark, Del., on December 10, 1911.

The children of the Presbyterian Sunday School were treated to fruit and candy this afternoon.

Mrs. Victor Willis is threatened with typhoid fever.

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

Clara Barton, founder and first president of the American National Red Cross Society, was showered with greetings and good wishes on Christmas day, the occasion being the ninetieth anniversary of her birth. Although feeble from her illness early this year Miss Barton was able to celebrate the day with the relatives and friends who are spending the holiday season at her home, Red Cross, in Glen Echo, Md., a suburb of Washington.

ACCIDENT ON CHAPEL STREET

A horse driven by Mrs. Joseph Brown of Millford Cross Roads became frightened at an automobile on Chapel street last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Brown was accompanied by her two children and all three were thrown out when the vehicle struck an obstacle and upset.

Mrs. Brown sustained a fractured collar bone, but fortunately both children escaped with only a few bruises.

The public schools of Newark will open on Tuesday, January 2, after the week's holiday. Studies will be resumed at the college on Monday, January 8th.

OBITUARY

MRS. ISAAC C. HAINES

Mrs. Isaac C. Haines, of Christiana, died in Philadelphia, at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. The body will be brought to her former home, and funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

About a year ago Mrs. Haines fell and broke her hip, and on December 15 was sent to a Philadelphia Hospital for treatment, but was unable to recover.

HANNAH PAUL NUTTALL

Hannah Paul Nuttall, widow of Thomas H. Nuttall, aged 87 years, died in Wilmington on December 3. Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, from her late residence. Interment in Mt. Salem cemetery. Mrs. John Chambers, Newark, is a daughter of the deceased.

JOHN WESLEY WORRALL

John Wesley Worrall, a lifelong resident of Mill Creek Hundred, died at the farm on which he was born last Tuesday, December 26.

Mr. Worrall was a G. A. R. man, about eight years ago being the department commander of the local post. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was living in Pennsylvania and enlisted in 1862 in a regiment of that state. He served for nine months, being in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville.

Mr. Worrall has been in poor health for the past six or eight months, suffering from heart trouble. He visited the National G. A. R. Encampment in Rochester last summer, however. For the past two months he has grown steadily worse.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence, near Ebenezer church, on Friday, at 4 p. m. Interment in White Clay Creek cemetery. A wife, two daughters, Mrs. Orlando Strahorn and Mrs. Harvey Davis, and one son, Isaac Worrall, of Elmira, N. Y., survive.

TRUST REGULATIONS

By Geo. Perkins

Our master minds of commerce have committed the error of keeping ahead of the times, and they are paying the penalty of being misunderstood. They are ahead of their time, or rather, the country at large is far behind them. They have kept pace with, and gone ahead of, the most advanced thought. In fact, they have had the most advanced thought and put it into action. They have seen the evil effects and unnecessary waste of ruthless competition and they have tried wherever possible to modify it. All the time they have felt certain that they were on the right course and they have given the best that was in them to their task, but they have not given sufficient consideration to the fact that the lawmakers have not kept pace with the inventors. Business men have relied upon the lawmakers seeing the new conditions and properly providing for them. And eventually they will do so. But meanwhile the business man's best work is being martyred. It is not being recognized for what it is, the greatest and most important advancement of the day. Some day it will be so recognized. Would it not be better if we could recognize it now and prevent the enormous waste of time and effort our great country is facing?

Let us make our point clear. The government has determined that it must, under the existing law, have certain business combinations to dissolve. The law in question was passed many years ago. In the meanwhile the world has gone ahead a long way. That law no longer fits present conditions. My purpose is to show why the law should be changed, not changed so as to weaken it, but changed so as to strengthen it in its real aim and purpose and changed so as to make it fit present-day conditions.

Disolve the large business concerns and you turn back the clock a quarter of a century and you return to what other great nations are doing. Accept them as the work of the most active minds of our age, try to take the greatest advantage of the work done, and you help the world progress. At times some of these business systems have undoubtedly shown themselves capable of being agencies of evil and have done wrong; they can just as easily be made agencies of great good. Whatever there is of evil in them can be eliminated; the good in them can be immeasurably increased.

Instead, then, of dissolving them, why not regulate and permit them only to work in the common interest? This can be done as has been done already with banks and railroads. It is only necessary to apply the same principle to business in general. There is nothing revolutionary in the suggestion. It is the only logical thing to do.

By destroying the business combinations we place ourselves in the position of confessing ourselves afraid of them. One might as well kill a willing, capable horse because he is very powerful. Let us, rather, harness the horse of business and make it work for us. It is ready to do so. In fact, it has been doing so all the time, but, unfortunately, we are mind-bound, we are hampered by traditional prejudice, and we cannot see it.

Are we to confess ourselves afraid? We are not afraid to use steam, which exploded boilers and exploded dynamite and nitroglycerin play a large part in our civilization, and yet they can do great damage; we constantly risk our express trains which might jump the track and kill us. But we accept and use these things, in spite of their power for injury. Our big business combinations belong in the same category. Allowed to go their way without regulation or control, some of them are certain to fall into the hands of dishonest or unscrupulous men who will work to the disadvantage of the public. But with proper regulation, even dishonest and unscrupulous men can be made to work for the public good. It has been done with the pure food laws, and in business only a small proportion are dishonest. But all need to have their rights clearly defined, so they will not step over them.

It should be possible for any group of business men who wish to operate upon a national or international scale, to lay their plans before a national Business Court which would decide whether these plans were to the advantage or disadvantage of the public. It would require on the part of the court no greater power than rests in any court that decides between what is right and what is wrong. That is all the regulation of business amounts to.

To control business in this way and prevent it from doing harm would not mean state socialism, government ownership, government management or fixing prices. It would not let the government in work running our industrial system. It would require only such supervision and publicity as that which is now being required of our banks and railroads.

The practical side of regulation is not, then, difficult. To secure publicity and supervision, it will only be necessary to pass laws defining wrongs and establishing what is right. Under such an arrangement, business men would know their rights and their limitations, just as we all know our personal rights in our everyday lives. They would be required to be open and frank about their affairs to prevent wrongdoings, but they would not be interfered with as long as they were pursuing their legitimate business, and that legitimate business, remember, is working to the advantage of all of us.

If we persist in carrying out the Sherman law as it seems to be now understood by the executives of our government, business will be strangled. If we adopt a policy of publicity it will be regulated. Which do we want, strangulation and all its attendant evils, or regulation, which has already been tried in this country and found effective?

Recipes in Season

SOUPS

Written for THE POST

WHITE SOUP.

Three pounds knuckle of veal, one-half cup rice, 3 quarts water, one cup milk, two tablespoonsful butter, two tablespoonsful flour, one half onion, three eggs. Have the bones of knuckle broken and meat chopped fine; put in kettle with three quarts water and the rice and onion chopped fine. Boil very slowly four hours; strain, pick out meat and bones, rub rice through colander, add to soup. Season with pepper to taste, return to fire, boil up, skim. Add parsley chopped very fine and butter and flour rubbed to smooth paste. Heat milk and pour over the egg, (well beaten), stir into soup. Serve at once.

TOMATO BISQUE.

One quart tomatoes, one quart milk, one-half teaspoonful sugar, one tablespoonful butter, one tablespoonful flour, one-quarter teaspoonful soda, salt and pepper to taste. Stew tomatoes one hour with salt, pepper and sugar, strain through fine colander, put back in pan and heat to boiling point. Add milk, add butter and flour which has been rubbed to smooth paste, stir until thickened, add salt, mix with tomatoes and serve.

BROWN POTATO SOUP.

One dozen potatoes, fair size, one-half onion sliced, two quarts boiling water, two tablespoonsful chopped parsley, two eggs, one-half cup milk, one tablespoonful butter, salt and pepper. Put tablespoonful dripping in saucepan, fry potatoes and onion to a deep brown, drain off fat away, drop in the boiling water and cook until soft. Rub through colander, put back in pan and add parsley, stir, add salt and pepper to taste. Heat milk, melt butter in it, add the well-beaten eggs, stirring carefully. Take soup from fire, stir in milk and eggs, serve at once.

CORN SOUP.

One can corn, two cups milk, one quart water, three eggs, three tablespoonsful butter, three tablespoonsful flour. One tablespoonful chopped parsley, pepper and salt to taste. Chop corn fine, put in one quart water, (boiling), in double boiler, cook one hour, then rub through colander, add pepper and salt to taste. Put back on fire, heat to boiling point, stir in butter rubbed to paste with as much flour. Scald milk and add tiny bit of baking soda, pour very slowly on the eggs, well-beaten, stirring all the time. Add to soup, stir one minute, add parsley and serve.

TURKEY SOUP.

One tablespoonful butter, one slice of onion, three stalks of celery, one cupful cream, three tablespoonsful rice, salt and pepper to taste. Chop the onion and brown in butter. Add turkey carcass, and any dressing left over, cover with one quart cold water and simmer two hours. Strain and return to kettle. Chop whatever meat can be taken from bones very fine and add to soup with rice and celery chopped fine. Cook for one-half an hour or until rice and celery are tender, add cream, season and serve.

CHICKEN CREAM SOUP.

Boil an old fowl with an onion in four quarts cold water until two quarts remain. Let it get cold, skim, cut off breast and chop very fine. Mix with yolk of two hard-boiled eggs, rub through colander. Add to hot stock, with whites of eggs chopped very fine, simmer ten minutes. Add cup of boiling milk, season to taste and serve.

PUREE OF CLAMS.

25 clams, one tablespoonful of butter, one pint cream, one cup cold water, two tablespoonsful flour, one-quarter cup bread crumbs, pepper to taste. Drain clams, save all liquor. Put liquor in saucepan over fire. When it comes to a boil, skim, chop clams fine, add to liquor, boil again and skim. Rub butter and flour together until smooth and add to broth with bread crumbs. Stir until it thickens. Press through sieve, return to saucepan, when hot add cream which has been heated in double boiler. Season with red or black pepper. Do not let stand after cream has been added. It is apt to curdle. Be careful in seasoning, clams are apt to be salty.

MONEY VALUE OF EDUCATION

There never was a time when an education as a preparation for a successful career in agriculture was so essential as now. We have recognized for some time that a professional training for the church, for medicine, for law and for engineering was absolutely necessary. Most of us, however, have never appreciated the fact that a modern training in agriculture is as much a prerequisite for success as a technical training in other lines of profession. It has not been an easy matter to substantiate this statement with actual figures until recently. Within the past year or two, Prof. Warren, of Cornell University, has studied the earning power of all the farmers in four townships in New York classified according to the amount of education they received.

The World's Work says that while these studies are meager and imperfect, they show with surprising uniformity that education does have a value which may be expressed in dollars and cents when applied to farming. It shows that the net labor income per year of 325 farmers who had attended only the district school was but $318; of 165 who had attended high school or equivalent it was $622; of 10 who had attended a college or a university, it was $847.

The late William T. Harris, when United States Commissioner of Education, pointed out the fact that where the public school term is longest, there the productive power of the citizen was the greatest. At that time the average school period per inhabitant was 4.3 years. Commissioner Harris' studies show that for each year spent in school beyond the average of 4.3 years increased the future earning power of the individual more than $1,000.

In this connection it may be said that the open country is suffering for the want of constructive leaders in rural affairs. In view of present conditions in the country, it is obvious that the safe, sane leadership for which we are looking will come only from those of our number who are technically trained.

THE BRAVEST OF BATTLES

The bravest of battles that ever were fought,

Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you'll find it not;
'Twas fought by the mothers of men.
Nay, not with cannon or battle shot,
With sword or nobler pen;
Nay, not with eloquent word or thought
From mouth of wonderful men.

But deep in a walled-up woman's heart—
Of woman that would not yield,
But bravely, silently bore her part—
Lo! there is the battlefield.

No marshaling troop, no bivouac song,
No banner to gleam or wave;
But O, these battles! they last so long—
From babyhood to the grave!
—Joaquin Miller.

S. GILLILLAN CRITICISED

Editor Newark Post: In your last issue appeared two effusions by Dr. Gillillan, each under a different heading, but both of the same trend; the whole thing being briefly that one outside is a defense of the School Board in their attempt to extort an unequal and unfair capitation tax under the name of Rates of Persons—and the other article discloses the fact that some fair-minded men resist such methods, and some go further and defend their employees from being plundered.

If the Newark Board of Education wants the support of the people, it will become necessary for them to make their assessment according to law, and not according to either precedent or their own notions.

The law particularly specifies the manner of assessing, and goes into great detail in explaining its application with reference to school tax, therefore, there can be no excuse for the methods in vogue here at present.

The law certainly cannot be interpreted to give the School Board the right to assess a capitation tax on any man, which is different in amount from the capitation tax assessed on another man—whether it is called Rates of Persons or any other name. Nor does the law give the board the right to select this or that article of personal property and tax it.

This idea of different capitation tax was proven legally wrong some years ago by the Town Council, and the town charter revised accordingly, but if this is not sufficient proof to the School Board, why don't they proceed by law against the individuals Dr. Gillillan mentions as not paying, and they can find out then what is clear to everyone else now; or they can, if they wish, turn to the Constitution of the State and read that "all taxes must be equal."

Dr. Gillillan says the Professors in Delaware College would profit by an equal capitation tax—so they would, and so they should—as from this statement it is easily assumed that those men are assessed as high as possible—what kind of a sense of injustice pervades the minds of our Board of Education to make it seem right—that the highly efficient but poorly paid professors and instructors in our college should be despoiled in this manner—that they deserve a living (?) from education is no reason that they should be robbed in the name of education.

Give us a fair and impartial administration of our public schools, and every person in this locality will do their duty toward what should be something to take pride in—our schools—and by following a just and lawful requirement, viz: equal capitation—the Board of Education will be looked up to, instead of being looked down upon.

These periodical outbursts by Dr. Gillillan don't convince—and they lay the Board open to just criticism, because every man knows that an unequal capitation tax is illegal and cannot be collected—and all honor to those who refuse to be browbeaten into submission.

P. S. Maybe the Board wouldn't sweat the ladies, teaching in the schools if they could only tax them!

PROF. CONOVER ANSWERS MR. WASHBURN

A REJOINDER.

Mr. Editor: I have never sought controversy nor courted notoriety, but, as Mr. Washburn takes exception to some things I said in my address at the high school and misrepresents others, I feel impelled to say a few words in reply to his "Challenge."

Teachers of English, as well as those in other departments, have told me again and again that their students who had had a classical training showed the greatest knowledge of English. I thought this was a pretty well established fact. Indeed, I never heard it disputed before. Of course, there are exceptions to this as well as to all other rules, and Mr. Washburn, himself, who claims to have "little Latin and less Greek," appears to be one of these exceptions. An Abraham Lincoln is not produced in every generation. Such a genius is beyond all rules. No high school or college could produce Lincolns.

Mr. Washburn says: "To compel the future farmers, plumbers, and storekeepers to neglect even English to study Latin or Greek is childish." By this sentence I am grossly misrepresented. I have never advocated the neglect of English for anything. In all my teaching of the classics I have aimed to keep constantly before my students the bearing of those languages on English. There is hardly a line in any Latin author that does not contain several words from which we have English derivatives. A Latin root has often been more productive of English than of Latin words. I once wrote on the board for my classes a list of 250 English words derived from a single Latin root,—far more than the Romans themselves ever had use for. I am sorry my critic found the study of Caesar "painful." I began the study of Latin without a teacher when a small child and from that day to this I have always found its study a keen pleasure. I took great delight in almost all my studies at college, except chemistry. I am glad I took chemistry although it was quite irksome to me. I would not for a moment belittle its importance in a liberal education. Our tastes are not all the same. I have always urged upon students getting all the education they can. Never have I advised them to neglect any other study for the sake of my department.

Mr. Washburn says: "The American Indians were ahead of us in their understanding of education." This is perhaps the most absurd statement he makes. The American Indian taught his son that all work except war, hunting and fishing was a disgrace and fit only for women. The squaw was compelled to do all the menial labors, indoors and out. According to our school histories their estimated number at the time America was discovered was about equal to the present population of Delaware. With 3,000,000 square miles of fertile land from which to derive sustenance, they were frequently brought to the point of starvation. Shall we take their system of education for a model?

Mr. Washburn criticizes ministers because they have spent on the classics "the time they should have devoted to learning the platitudes of political parties, the problems of the wage-earners, the science of sociology, and the practical use of brains in the solution of the problems their parishioners face." So far as my experience goes I have found no class of men so in touch and sympathy with the common people as the ministers. I have found them in the forefront of every good cause. The schools, the churches, the temperance movement, and all places for civic betterment had their ablest supporters among the clergy. There is no reason why this should not be so. If reading the Bible in the original gives them a better understanding of its truths, the says: "their preaching is usually classical; the agonies, the aspirations, the sorrows of the human heart are not." This charge is absolutely groundless. In fact, the whole criticism seems to spring from a deeply-rooted prejudice against the study of the classics. Possibly if he had studied them more he would see more value in them.

This discussion of the study of the classics began years before we came into the world and will doubtless continue for years after we are gone. I generally aim to keep out of such discussions because they usually end where they begin. Years ago I took for my motto these words of Terence: "Homo sum; humani nihil a me alienum puto." It is this human interest that has made the study of language, literature, history and economics especially attractive to me.

In closing I would like to repeat that a person should know more than merely what his calling requires. A man may be a good farmer or plumber and not know there is a State named Pennsylvania, lying to the north of us. A boy may be able to repair a pump without having heard of Caesar. I once heard a college professor say there is no use in a person studying history. The same professor was bitterly opposed to the study of the classics. A man should be more than a machine. A development of the higher faculties will make him no less qualified to perform the work he has to do and will make him a better citizen. We ought to get our minds off the material things of this work-a-day world as much as possible. A classical education will not "keep the people too busy and too stupid to protect themselves."

E. Conover.

Mr. Editor—Is O. R. Washburn a man or is that an assumed name? [Yes, he exists and is known as O. R. Washburn. We have had the pleasure of meeting him. From the letters appearing this week it is likely that we shall hear more of him. Ed.]

AFTER WASHBURN

A FATHER'S CONFIDENTIAL LETTER TO HIS DAUGHTER.

Newark, Del., Dec. 26, 1911.
My dear daughter: I hope you arrived at your new home all right. I know you will be anxious to hear from Newark for there is always something interesting going on in this town, and I am going to keep you informed so that you will be able to keep up with the movements of the world, for unless one knows what is going on in Newark, he is behind the times, and I want you to be considered a person of general intelligence by your new acquaintances.

We had a bright excitement down town last week, an automobile caught fire and came near burning up. They say they were winding it up to make it go, when it backed fire on them, whatever that is, and it made a great stir for it was in the garage where there were a whole lot of machines. They threw it out into the street, flames and all, to let it burn up by itself, but somebody took pity on it and threw a bucket of water on it and it quit backfiring and breathed easier and was saved. It would be a good thing if all the automobiles were destroyed; they are getting to be a great nuisance. Why some of them think they have a right to part of the road—I guess they forget that these roads around Newark were made before the automobiles were born. There is talk of making a law against the "cut off." It seems that the cutoff does not belong to the automobile, but it is something that is put on the machines to make them cut an unnecessary corner. Prof. Conover has been taking a high hand. He was saying up and up, and moving higher and higher into the ethereal realm of coffee, and trained refinement on his diploma of Latin and Greek. He was moving with cultured ease along the upper strata of high thinking and noble education and the people were straining their eyes and craning their necks and biting their shoulders as if to rise into the lofty atmosphere in which he was moving so gracefully, when one Washburn saw him and immediately he shot a line over his biplane and brought him to the ground and told him he should be exercising his great powers and noted ability nearer the earth, where the people were, and not wasting his time and energies in the air. That a girl had more use for rolling pins and kneading troughs than for wings and he ought to put leather aprons on the boys and put saws and hatchets in their hands instead of trying to teach them to be aspiring to the aurora borealis of thought.

Well, it looked to some as if that was the end of the professor, but I saw him on the street, walking along with his same gentle tread and that happy, contented smile on his face as if nothing had happened, and as if he hadn't been trying to fly away and had been caught in the net and brought back. But that was not the end, Washburn did not stop when he snatched the biplane; he rushed right in after a lot of fellows that had nothing to do with the Professor's attempted flight. He pitched into the lawyers and wiped them off the land. I did not see one of them for several days. Mr. Evans and Mr. Cann have returned, but they claim they were away buying their Christmas presents and didn't know anything about the fight.

Next he turned upon the orators who were doing nothing to harm him and who were just standing looking on—mere, innocent spectators; and he whaled them right and left and spreading his legs and putting one foot on "To the Poor Indian," and the other on Abraham Lincoln, made the whole army of oratorical geniuses pass beneath his self-constructed Colossus of Rhodes. I tell you, you ought to have been here. It was fun. Things were getting lively and as always happens when any excitement is on hand, the ministers came flocking around to see what was going on, when without provocation he struck out right and left and Methodist and Presbyterian and Episcopalian and Catholic all went down together. There was a scene that beggars description.

I wish you hadn't gone till this week and you and Jack could have been here to see it; for I can never describe it to you. Women screamed and children cried. At this point some one sent in an emergency call and soon all three doctors came rushing in with their automobiles and each one had a druggist with him; when he saw this array of latined healers he capitulated. But he would not give in wholly.

He said they did not need to go up in a biplane of Latin and Greek but he would acknowledge that they must walk the bridge of Latin. At this sign of peace, quiet reigned and the air cleared but when Dr. Kollock looked down upon his machine instead of a Mitchell automobile it was simply a Mitchell Auto and Dr. Steel found his Chalmers Automobile was merely a Chalmers and Dr. Blake, instead of having a steam automobile found he only had a steam auto, and fearing the results of their abbreviations, they compelled the druggists to get out and walk back home. At this point I went home to supper and I have not heard much more about that matter. Every night these things—and especially the auto calamity—are discussed in the town Forum—you know where that is—you remember I told you before you went away that the Forum is Mr. Donnell's office.

Now I must close, not because I have told you all the news but—oh, I must not forget a great miracle was wrought and every one of the ministers was brought to life and appeared in his pulpit on Sunday and conducted Christmas services. Now I must close, because if you spend too much time reading my letters, you will not have time to cook for Jake. Remember Jake is a good-hearted soul, but keep his stomach full of good, well-cooked food and he will be as amiable as when he was courting you.

GRANGE ELECTS OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of Newark Grange, held on Monday evening, December 18, an election of officers was held in accordance with the regular business. The following officers were elected: President, J. S. Gillilan; Vice-President, J. S. Gillilan; Secretary, J. S. Gillilan; Treasurer, J. S. Gillilan; and a committee to prepare a report for the next meeting.

The lower team of Newark Grange will visit Newark Grange and give the degrees in proper form, as can only be done by those experienced in this work. This meeting will be held in East Fellows' Hall, on Wednesday evening, January 3, at 7.30 p. m. All members of the grange should make it a point to be present and show the visitors how Newark Grange can extend its hospitality and also to have a good time ourselves.

The degree work of the grange is a very beautiful ceremony when properly done, and to those of our members who have not seen it, should prove both interesting and instructive, while those who have seen it are always glad to see it again.

MISS EASTMAN RESIGNS

At the meeting of the Board of Education last week, the following letter was read:

Newark, Del.,
Dec. 13, 1911.

Dr. J. S. Gillilan,
Dear Sir: I hereby tender my resignation as teacher of the third grade in the Newark School. The reason for my resigning is because of the climate not agreeing with me. Very Sincerely,
Marion L. Eastman.

On motion, the resignation was accepted and on account of the fact that Miss Eastman was going home for her vacation and it would be necessary for her to come all the way back from Northern New York state to fulfill the terms of her contract, she was released from the terms of the contract, and her resignation took effect Friday, December 22.

Miss Eastman was doing good work and the Board was sorry to lose her services, and gave her a letter of recommendation for faithful and efficient service during the time she was here.

Miss Anna Danzenbaker, of Claymont, has been appointed to her place.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Scott, of West Chester, Pa., spent the Christmas holidays with his father, Mr. Madison Scott.

Mr. Howard Biddle is spending a few days with Wilmington relatives.

Messrs. Charles and James Miles spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. Ida Duncan of Ashland, Del.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Santoro spent one day recently with North East, Md., relatives.

Mr. Edmund Miles is spending some time with friends in Wilmington.

Mrs. Selena Peterson and son, Harry, are visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Watson, of West Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer and Willie Jackson were entertained Christmas day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, near Strickersville, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Madison Scott entertained at dinner on Sunday their sons and daughters, grandsons and granddaughters, to the number of twenty-one.

TWO INTERESTING SERVICES

Very delightful and interesting services were held in the Presbyterian Church last Sabbath.

In the morning the Sabbath School had charge of the service and gave a beautiful exercise appropriate to the Christmas season, consisting of choruses, solos and recitations. It was a most pleasing service and much enjoyed by the large audience assembled.

In the evening the choir gave a Christmas song service to the great delight of the many who were fortunate enough to be present. It was declared by all to be a most inspiring and delightful service and many said that with such talent of local ability why could not there be more such services. Once a month would not be too often, and it is believed the people of Newark would be glad to have the opportunity of attending such services.

The following program was presented:

1. Organ voluntary.

2. Singing by the congregation, Hymn 113.

3. Solo, "What Star Is This?" Miss Marian Campbell.

4. Reading of Scripture, Luke ii:1-20.

5. Prayer.

6. Singing by the congregation, Hymn 106.

7. Announcements and offering.

8. Solo, "Rejoice," Mr. H. B. Steele.

9. Singing by the congregation, Hymn 98.

10. Solo, "The Angels' Re-frain," Prof. Harry Hayward.

11. Anthem by the choir, "To Bethlehem Hasten."

12. Anthem by the choir, "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing."

13. Anthem by the choir, "I Bring You Good Tidings."

14. Anthem by the choir, "Fear Not."

15. Anthem by the choir, "Christmas Anthem."

16. Benediction.

LE BARGE MUSICAL COMPANY

All those who enjoy a good evening's entertainment should not fail to hear the Le Barge Musical Company at the Newark M. E. Church, January 1st, 1912.

Hear Mr. Le Barge, who handles only the best of music, and besides being a splendid instrumentalist, using the xylophone, violin and many novelty instruments, including the xylophone and the broom fiddle, has few equals as a story-teller, with a marvelous command of the Irish, Italian, French and other dialects. He is assisted by Miss Ethel Zimmer, the noted contralto soloist, piano virtuoso, and entertainer. Admission 25 and 15 cents.

THE MESSAGE OF A FEW WORDS

"Oh, toiling hands of mortals! Oh, unwearied feet, traveling ye know not whither! Little do ye know your own blessedness: for to travel hopefully is a better thing than to arrive, and the true success is labor."

Robert Louis Stevenson.

There is something heartening in the very words: "A Happy New Year;" faith returns to flagging spirits and hope again waves its buoyant banner.

The day may mean nothing, as days go, but the custom prevails to wish men well and hearts are warmed and resolutions strengthened that may have needed that very bit of cheer. If we, perchance, assist another into attaining a confident attitude towards life, we have done a wonderful thing; if one so assists us, do we not always feel grateful?

Do we marshal forward the highest and best in our character to meet daily conditions, trim cheerfully the "little lamps of everyday"—then we win a day's fight.

May the new year be for the downcast a time for the squaring of shoulders, the uplifting of the head, and, also, may such become the "maintained habit of the soul."

The Dutch novelist, Maarten Maartens, speaks of a good housewife as leaving behind her "the agreeable sense that she had passed."

The few words pause a pleasant picture to spring forth in our minds, that of a woman who maintains that quiet cheerfulness which produces comfort and serenity for all about her, simply by acknowledging her consciousness of her especial privilege and performing with poise and pleasantness the duties that are hers.

From such sources as these there develops an environment that makes for good for all who travel near. Such atmospheres are created by courageous, unselfish women everywhere—and, however hard may seem the effort of attaining it, great is the reward, for a good woman's cheer goes so much further than she knows and builds and crowns where she does not dream.

Kate Douglas Wiggin tells about a New England farmer's wife who had very decided opinions on the subject of woman's suffrage. It is expressed thus: "As she was hurrying from churn to sink, from sink to shed, and back to the kitchen stove, she was asked if she wished to vote. 'No, I certainly do not,' she exclaimed, with a vigorous movement of the churn dasher; 'I say if there is one little thing that the men folks can do alone, for goodness sake, let 'em do it.'"

They Haven't Seen it Yet.

A prisoner who was in the hands of Mosby's men was being taunted: "Who is the greater, Lee or Grant?"

"Well," the soldier answered, "when we consider who Lee is, and then who Grant is, and ask which is the greater, we must answer decidedly in the affirmative."

And the rebs were satisfied.

Who Wins?

There were two Irishmen in a New York regiment who would bet on anything. One day in front of Petersburg, when both sides were quiet, Pat said, pointing to a brick smokehouse:

"Oi bet ye a chew o' tobacco ye can't tell what howlds thim bricks together."

"Th' mortar, o' course. Gimme th' chew."

"Divil a bit av it. You lose. Th' mortar howlds thim apart."

HONORED SONS

Following is the inscription on the four tablets now being placed in the rotunda of the new State Administration Building at the State capital, commemorating four events in the early history of Delaware, namely: Caesar Rodney's Ride; Delaware the first State to adopt the constitution of the United States; the first unfurling of the Stars and Stripes in Delaware soil; and the first naval engagement of the United States, fought in Delaware waters, and the furnishing by the State of troops and $38,000 to assist in repulsing the British:

Tablet No. 1:

Signers of the Declaration of Independence.
 CAESAR RODNEY
 THOMAS M'KEAN
 GEORGE READ

At the urgent request of Thomas McKean, Caesar Rodney, being then in Delaware, rode post haste on horseback to Philadelphia and reached Independence Hall in time to vote for independence on July 4, 1776.

The following day the news of the adoption of Independence having reached Dover, a portrait of King George was burned on Dover Green, at the order of the Committee of Safety, the following historic words being uttered by the chairman: "Compelled by strong necessity, thus we destroy even the shadow of that king who refused to reign over a free people."

Tablet No. 2:

Distinguished Delaware Officers in the Revolution.
 COL. JOHN HASLETT
 COLONEL DAVID HALL
 COL. SAMUEL PATTERSON

MAJOR ROBERT KIRKWOOD
 MAJOR JOHN PATTEN
 MAJOR PETER JAQUETT
 CAPTAIN ALLEN M'LANE

In the Revolutionary War, 3,763 men enlisted from Delaware who framed the Constitution of the United States.

Tablet No. 3:

Delaware Naval Heroes.
 COM. THOMAS MACDONOUGH
 COM. JACOB JONES
 SUR. GEN. JAMES TILTON
 R. AD. SAMUEL F. DUPONT

The American Flag was first unfurled in battle on Delaware soil at Cooch's Bridge, September 3, 1777.

Delaware contributed more men in proportion to her population, to armies enlisted in the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812 and the War of the Rebellion than any other State in the American Union.

Delaware gave to the National Government financial aid in the War of 1812. The interest on the money so given having been returned to the State, the same was used to restore and enlarge this building in 1910.

Tablet No. 4:

Delaware Statesmen.
 JOHN DICKINSON
 RICHARD BASSETT
 JAMES A. BAYARD
 LOUIS M'LANE
 JOHN M. CLAYTON
 THOMAS F. BAYARD

Delaware was the earliest State to ratify the Federal Constitution, under date of December 7, 1787, thereby becoming the first State in the American Union. This fact rightfully entitled Delaware to the distinction of precedence on all National Occasions.

The first two tablets are being placed in the wings of the rotunda on first floor, and the second two in the wings on the second floor. They are of marble and highly polished and add very greatly to the beauty of the new building.

DU PONT FAVORS PARCEL POST
 That there is now an excellent chance for the passage of a liberal parcels post bill, establishing the system gradually all over the country, is indicated in the announcement that the Senators from Pennsylvania and nearby States are going to start a movement in the Senate, shortly, after the holiday recess, looking to immediate action on one of the bills now pending in Congress.

The Senators who are going to work diligently for the passage of a bill that will establish a parcels post system without delay, are Senators Penrose, of Pennsylvania; duPont, of Delaware; Briggs and Martine, of New Jersey; and the Senators from New York and Maryland.

Senator duPont, the senior Senator of Delaware, has been one of the most earnest advocates of a parcels post system for many years. He believes that a parcels post system will bring a reduction in the cost of living and that there should be no delay in establishing the service. He had advocated this reform repeatedly, even urging that it be given precedence over reciprocity at the extra session of Congress.

"There is no reason for party dissensions over this measure," said Senator duPont, "and I believe that the bill will be voted for by men of both parties in an overwhelming majority. It is my belief that after years of waiting we are to have a parcels post system within a very short period. I believe the bill will go through at the present session."

The movement set on foot is likely to bring order out of chaos with reference to parcels post legislation which has been hanging fire for many months. In spite of all appeals for immediate action, Congress has delayed action. The group of Senators in the neighborhood of Pennsylvania are now determined to fight for immediate action.

William Morris admonished home-makers to discard from their houses all that was not beautiful or useful. Yet we know that just as surely as one article may be of use to one and not to another, so one may see beauty in an object that does not appeal to another.

But it is very necessary that women seek to separate the essentials from the non-essentials, for our wants grow by what they are fed upon and one thing calls for another.

As parents, we often make mistakes in instilling a false pride in our children's minds. The need is to be fine and strong, unashamed of being poor, but steadfast in a scorn of debt.

Absent Ones

Absence makes the heart grow fonder but the memory of the absent one becomes vague and dim. You long to picture in your mind just how "HE" or "SHE" would look, but there's a mysterious something which makes this mental picture impossible.

But if you had a photograph before you, then you could recall the forgotten face, yes, even the kind acts, the gentle words.

Wouldn't that "ONE" so far away appreciate your photograph too?

THE FARMER'S BRIGHT OUT-LOOK.

We have seen no statistics of the same nature relative to this country, but it is more than likely that the following, which prevail in Germany, have a significance for us: In Germany there are 28,141 co-operative societies, with membership of 4,579,740. Half of these are credit and mutual loan societies; 2,205 are consumers, and 3,584 agricultural producers' societies. Of the latter, more than 3,000 cover dairy farming.

There has been much written of the "Potato Mayor" of Indianapolis, and the advisability of using some real farm problems as political issue is being felt in many places. In Erie, Pa., the public market place has entered the local election. The independent candidate for Mayor announces that he stands for the following: "I favor and will establish municipal markets—markets under the control of the city, where the consumers can meet and deal directly with the country producer to the profit of both."

COLLEGE SPIRIT AT DELAWARE

Held over from last week.

Yesterday was the day set for the regular annual meeting for the purpose of electing a manager and assistant manager of the football team, and for the purpose of electing a captain to lead the eleven next year. The meeting was attended by one of the largest crowds which have attended a mass meeting so far this year, and the students showed by their enthusiasm that they fully appreciate the splendid showing made by their Varsity letter.

The presentation of the Varsity "D" was made by Professor McCue, the recently elected member of the faculty athletic committee. Professor McCue made a short, but very interesting talk to the student body, praising the work of the men who were awarded their insignia and exhorting the whole student body to support all the teams in the same way in which they backed the football eleven. He pointed to the possibilities for a good season in basketball and implored the students to come out and try for the team.

The men who were presented with D's were: Captain Taylor, Attix, Harnel, Todd, Cann, S. Loomis, E. Loomis, Huston, Handy and F. H. Dean. Immediately after the meeting the men who received their Varsity letter held an election for the purpose of choosing a leader for next year's team. The man selected was Huston, the little quarterback who played a dashing game all season and who was directly responsible for holding down the opponents' score in more than one game during the past season.

Immediately after the meeting the Woodrow Wilson Club held an informal meeting for the purpose of electing officers. The men chosen were: Ennis, president; Attix, vice-president; Manning, secretary and treasurer; McCafferty, keeper, and Maier, inner sentinel. This club is one of the newly-organized bodies in college and the men are taking a great deal of interest in the work. Some of the members are men who are known to be opposed to the Democratic party, but who joined the club because of their interest in the college work.

NEW ARRIVALS AT THE TYSON STABLE

John Toy, of West Philadelphia, owner of the stallion Owyho, 2.07 3/4, Owyhoe, dam Bertha, the greatest of brood mares, by Alcantara, and a number of other speed prospects, has decided to send the stallion to H. R. Tyson, at Newark, to winter and race next season. The trotting mare Evonia Axworthy, 2.23 1/2, trial 2.13 1/2, by Axworthy, will also be sent to Tyson. This trainer has also received from Dr. L. H. Ball the trotting filly Dewey Maid, by Admiral Dewey, dam by Epaulet. This makes Tyson's string up to nearly two score for 1912.

Toy, who has two new fast pacers in Jack the Ripper, 2.14 3/4, by Jack Herron, and Arden Joe, 2.13 3/4, by Chamberlin, will race them over the half-mile tracks.

DELAWAREAN HONORED

At the annual meeting of the Union League of Philadelphia, held a few days ago, Delaware was signally honored. William T. Tilden, a native of St. Georges, but now a resident of Philadelphia, was elected president, and John Baneroff and William J. McClary, Wilmingtonians, were elected directors.

Mr. Tilden is also prominent in the Sons of Delaware and Delaware Society, having held the office of president of each at different times.

DUCK DINNER

Forrest Lovett, who spent last week gunning near Chestertown, Md., entertained a number of friends on Friday evening at a duck dinner. Among those present were Francis Price, Levy Court Commissioners Daniel Thompson, Robert L. Armstrong, John Pilling.

PROF. TAUBENHAUS TO SPEAK

J. J. Taubenhause, of the Agricultural Experiment Station, is going to Washington, D. C., to attend the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He will also deliver a paper before the American Phytopathological Society. Mrs. Taubenhause is also going to Washington to attend the meeting of the Southern Philosophical Society, which meets in connection with the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

PARCELS POST

It is hard to estimate what the bulk of mail business this year would have been had the parcels post system been in operation. We imagine that Europe has been sending tons of packages to this country, with other tons sent from here to Europe, and paying only parcels post rates. With the system in effect the business of the post office department would have been magnified many times over.

A foreign-born resident in Wilmington can send to the old folks in Europe a package for less money than he can send a similar package from this city to a friend in New Castle—that is, by mail. It is that very discrimination against the people of this country that is serving to emphasize the demand for a parcels post.

It is reasonable to ask for it; it is unreasonable not to have it. By the operations of the parcels post every line of business would be stimulated, the merchants of the smaller cities and towns as well as the merchants of the big cities. The handling of parcels could be made separate from the handling of regular mail matter, by freight trains instead of by mail trains. It would no doubt prove to be of advantage to millions. It can be set down that ultimately Congress will see the unwisdom of delaying action, and this by the wisdom of recognizing that it must come to pass.—Morning News.

A Happy New Year To All

We wish to thank our friends for their patronage during the past year.

It has been our aim to serve the needs of the town and community.

.....BUY IN NEWARK.....

Our aim during 1912 is to serve you even better than heretofore.

We have a fine town and country here.

We are going to try to make

1912

THE BANNER YEAR

Will you help?

And now---

May 1912 be happy and prosperous.

CHAPMAN'S

Stationery for the Quality

¶ Our trade in Printed Stationery has gone way beyond all expectations.

¶ We sold entirely out and were unable to fill all the Christmas Orders.

¶ Yesterday morning, the orders began again. The Whiting Papers are the best that can be had for Social Correspondence.

¶ We are printing 100 quires of this paper with printed at the top in Old English or Cheltenham. Stop in and see it.

"NEWARK, DELAWARE"

NOTE—Of Course, if you want special printing, we can serve you.
