Embassy Suites going up

By MARY E. PETZAK

The gateway to Newark from Interstate 95 is getting a striking new landmark in the form of a six-story Embassy Suites Hotel.

Newark city council has approved special use permits to allow construction of the 155 room, full service hotel with off-street parking on the northwest corner of South College Avenue and Christina Parkway.

According to the developers, the hotel will include meeting and banquet facilities, an indoor pool, and an adjoining 6,800-square-foot TGI Friday's with seating for 298 persons.

"This will be a top-shelf property," said Rob Bucchini of BPG Hotel Partners. "Some of the amenities include extensive landscaping, a marble water fountain and a six-story atrium with skylights."

The entrance to the brick and stucco-look hotel will be from the access road required by the Delaware Department of Transportation just south of the Sleep Inn Hotel.

Bucchini said he also had met with residents of nearby Silverbrook and Arbour

A $1 MILLION DONATION from alumnus Fred P. Rullo Jr. will allow the University of Delaware to complete construction of a new artificial turf stadium.

The $3.3 million stadium, presently under construction, will be completed by December 1998, University president David P. Roselle said.

Located in the University's Sports Complex adjacent to the Bob Carpenter Center, the stadium will primarily be used as the home field of the women's field hockey program. Roselle said Delaware's natural turf hampered SEPTA is offering some commuters extra help to bypass the area on Interstate 95 where a tank truck crashed and exploded on May 23.

"Seven additional daily (Wilmington/Philadelphia) round-trip runs have been added over the past couple of days," said SEPTA spokesperson Jim Whitaker on Wednesday.

The Saturday morning crash claimed two lives and closed down a five-mile stretch of Interstate 95 about two miles north of the Delaware border for 32 hours. Only four of six lanes have been reopened, causing a commuter crunch as an average of 150,000 vehicles travel the section through Chester, Pa., each day. Highway officials said I-95 is one of the busiest roads in the nation.

Whitaker said, "I anticipate that the additional runs will be available as long as there are extra riders who need the service."

About 50 extra commuters have been using the Newark commuter train station daily since the accident, according to Sgt. Burkhard Noack, site supervisor. This represents a 40 percent increase in the number of occupied spaces in the 289-space parking lot.

SEPTA runs seven trains between Newark and Philadelphia and one bus weekdays from the station located on the west side of Route 896 near the Chrysler Assembly plant.

Meadowood house condemned by county

The day after New Castle County Police arrested three adult children for neglecting to provide proper care for their 76-year-old mother with whom they lived, county code enforcement officers condemned their Meadowood house.

Robert Martin, 50, Mary Martin, 44 and Carolyn Martin, 44 are charged with intentionally neglecting an infirm adult and conspiracy 2nd degree.

On Monday, May 25, around 8:50 p.m. one of the three children called 911, indicating their mother was unresponsive. Paramedics and police found the 76-year-old victim laying on a small cot in such a state of neglect, she was taken to Christiana Hospital where she was admitted in critical condition. The victim had open sores on her body that were infected from lack of hygiene and care. According to police, the mother who has been bedridden since a fall two years ago was last at the doctor's in February 1998. Allegedly, the woman had not been moved from her sleeping area since that time and she was left in her own feces.

In addition to the victim's injuries, police said the residence was also in a deplorable state. There was trash piled up inside all the interior rooms and there was animal and human feces strewn about. Officers were unable to locate any source of running water.

Code enforcement officers on site Wednesday reported widespread filth and foul odor permeating the interior living space. The property was deemed unfit for human habitation. The owner was given ten days to bring the property into code compliance. Failure to comply could result in criminal charges and fines.

The Delaware SPCA also observed a total of 37 birds, seven dogs, 13 guinea pigs and four hamsters in the dwelling.

Newark High parents question renovations

By PATRICIA KOLY

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

ACCORDING TO CHRISTINA DISTRICT administrators, renovations at Newark High School are going well. Nevertheless, some parents feel time and money are being wasted because of poor planning and bureaucratic procedure.

Ronald Brayman, a member the school's Restructuring Committee which evaluates school operations and curricula, said doing renovations while students are in school increases the cost.

"We don't have the luxury of closing the school," said assistant superintendent of planning and facility management Dr. Capes Riley. "So we try to schedule a lot of the work after school, from 2:30 until about midnight."

Newark High principal Frank Hagan said they are making good progress without interrupting the educational process any more than necessary. For example, floor tiling is actually ahead of schedule, with about 30 rooms complete. Hagan said, "Furniture is moved out after school hours, and is put back between 5 and 7 a.m."

Riley asked that parents consider how much time construction takes. "We need their understanding that the final product will be worth it."

Brayman also said air conditioning should have been left in long-range planning because capacity problems may necessitate year-round schools. He wanted to know if air conditioning was omitted because the district ran out of funds.

Riley said air conditioning was never one of the original projects planned, but probably appeared on the "wish list" of the Renovations Committee, which meets with district officials to discuss needs and provide updates on renovation progress. "The state is reluctant to put air conditioning in old buildings," Riley said. "It's expensive. My main objective is to do quality work that will put the taxpayers' money to good use."

At a recent school board meeting, parent Fred Polaski also complained that the renovation process is too "bureaucratic." He said the head custodian should be able to order topsoil and items needed for routine maintenance without having to go through a "central organization."

Some completed renovations include repaving of the parking lot, fire lane and track area, with all top paving and striping to be done after June 12.

According to Hagan, first level restroom plumbing is finished and the second level should be completed by May 29.

Hagan said most renovations are on schedule, except for setting the electrical transformer and ceiling work. According to a DiSabatino Construction Co. report submitted to the district office in April, both projects were supposed to be finished by the week of April 20.

"This is not an easy project. If I had my way, we would have built a new school," Riley said. "We only have so much money, so anything we can't cover with the bond referendum funds we place under minor capital programs and phase them in gradually." All renovations at Newark High are expected to be finished by August 15, 1999.

Couple drowns in Summit Marina

A New Jersey couple drowned last week at the marina near Glasgow where they had stopped for fuel.

Willie Swinney, 50 and his wife, Patricia, 42, fell into the water off the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal near the Summit North Marina.

As the boat neared the pier, Patricia Swinney jumped onto the pier, grabbed a rope on the rear end of the boat and tried to pull it in. She fell into the water when the boat drifted, authorities said.

Willie Swinney tried to stabilize the boat so his wife could grab on to it, but was unable to do so. When she went under he jumped into the water. Neither was wearing life jackets.

James Streit, publisher of the Newark Post, Route 40 Flier and New Castle Business Ledger, received a 1998 Board of Education Citizenship Award from the Christina School Board at their recent meeting.

"When Jim came to work at the local newspaper, he promised to make the paper a bigger part of the community," said board member Theresa L. Schooley. She said Streit kept his promise by providing more media exposure for Christina school activities.

Schooley also noted Streit's involvement as vice president of the Christina Education Endowment and said his dedicated work with the School Superintendent search committee made him a candidate for the award.

The district also gave awards to Junior ROTC instructors Master Chief Charles Baldwin and Commander Bruce Shumway, teacher Mildred Cooper, parent volunteers Barbara Clayton, Laurel Zydney and Juanita Hoey, and Glasgow High School senior Houston Ruck.

Those honored received a plaque and a gift certificate for outstanding service to the community.

District officials: Dress code well received

By PATRICIA KOLY

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Parents and students have responded positively to dress codes established in some Christina District schools, according to school officials. Drew-Pyle Elementary School pupils have almost completed their first year and Shue-Medill Middle School students will soon conclude their second year with a dress code in force.

Richelle Talbert, assistant principal at Drew-Pyle Elementary School, said the staff was unsure how the students and parents would react, but that the dress code has been well received. "The first day of school," she said, "we kind of held our breath." She said even parents who expressed concern for their child's individuality have accepted the code. Talbert said Drew-Pyle has never considered itself to be a "school out of control," but that anything positive, such as the dress code, is beneficial.

"Behavior concerns were never a major focus," she continued, "but school staff noticed some students had trouble focusing on why they were in school." She said the tendency for students to get easily distracted has lessened since the dress code was instituted.

"There's been a reduction in peer pressure," she said, "and the dress code has helped the students feel more like they are part of a larger group." She said the students are no longer competitive in dress. Instead, they are encouraged to express their individuality through academic achievement.

Drew-Pyle requires students to wear solid white tops, navy bottoms and black shoes. Red, white or blue sweatshirts are optional. For gym, pupils may wear sneakers with their uniform clothes, blue shorts or gray or white sweats. Talbert said they have also encouraged the students to dress more conservatively by putting limits on jewelry.

Shue-Medill Middle School students have been living with the dress code for two years now. Principal Robert Adams said he has seen a noticeable decline in the incidents of violence since the establishment of the dress code. "When I first got here, we had more tough kids. Now they're calm, more playful," Adams said he is pleased with conformity to the code.

"Eighth graders last year were not thrilled, and some students didn't want to comply," Adams said they have virtually no problems with compliance this year. "The eighth-grade students this year have already lived with the code for a year."

Shue-Medill has not adopted a strict policy on what the students to wear, and there is no particular dress code for gym classes.

"It would be easier for me to tell you what we don't allow," Adams said. "No blue jeans, no tee shirts, no sweat or track clothes." He said the staff does look for oversized jewelry, mostly because of the "safety" factor. "Kids have a tendency to grab at big hoops, or a chain with an oversized medallion."

He said he always "hears an audible groan" when dress code is brought up, but that incoming students should be aware it's not nearly as bad as they think.

Needed fence is going up to keep people away from tracks

Ugly or not, the fence is going to be built. Newark city council voted to extend the concrete wall that currently runs along the CSX right-of-way near Fraser Field and the Newark Cemetery.

"I went out and looked at the existing section," said councilmember Jerry Clifton. It has a design to it and, frankly, it's quite pleasing."

District 6 councilmember Gerald Grant, whose objections led to tabling part of the agreement with CSX, said there's no accounting for taste. "It's obviously a safety issue," said Grant. "I admit the need for a wall — but not that one."

On May 21, a 19-year-old University of Delaware student was struck by a train on the CSX tracks near the cemetery. Dan McConnell of West Park Place told police he was waiting for the train to pass and engaging in horseplay to see how close he could get to the moving train. He was struck in the upper left arm by one of the railcars but was able to walk to a residence on Cleveland Avenue for help. He was admitted to Christiana Hospital with a fractured arm and hand, lacerations to his left shoulder and multiple contusions.

Clifton said he saw at least six students cut across the tracks while he was examining the fence. "It's also disrespectful the amount of trash thrown about in the cemetery," Clifton noted.

Councilmember Frank Osborne said he also saw people going over the tracks on his inspection tour. "I've also received a lot of calls from people with loved ones buried there concerned about the conditions in the cemetery," he said. "I've had no negative calls at all (about a fence)."

CSX, the city of Newark, the University of Delaware, and the Newark Methodist Cemetery are parties to the agreement which would provide safety upgrades at city crossings and along the tracks.

"We'll build (the fence) and inspect it, CSX will pay for it, and the cemetery will maintain it," explained city manager Carl Luft. "We'll be out of it."

(accountability) has been given. I'm not sure parents are getting the message that the policy will be strict, as it should be."

Fewer than 35 parents attended the recent meeting co-sponsored by Gauger-Cobbs and Shue-Medill PTA groups, indicating that the public is largely unaware that the accountability policy will be voted on as soon as June 30.

"A lot more will be changed before the final draft," said Scotfield resident Vickie Fisher, a PTA parent with children in Shue-Medill Middle and Bayard Elementary schools. "This meeting is just a peeling of layers to reach the final product."

But Tansley warned parents that the bill will almost certainly be passed with no further changes. "If the legislators say they need more time to do what they should have done a long time ago," Tansley said, "we'll tell them we will not accept less and we will not accept nothing."

Tansley said there is a "strong consensus" that the bill would not be as effective if it is watered down. "I think the governor will stand firm."

Beth Walker, resident of Nottingham Green and the parent of three students in the district, admitted she had not done much research on the policy and was there to learn the details.

But some parents said accountability is not the solution to the educational system's problems. Explosive applause followed spirited pleas for smaller classroom sizes and criticisms of standardized testing were shouted from the audience.

Christina District board member Charles M. Mullin said he would "love to see" classroom size limited to 15 students, but the board won't expand building facilities. "It ain't gonna' happen," Mullin said.

Tansley commented, "Smaller classroom size has always been the PTA's priority, but in the meantime something else has to be done."

Standardized testing worried at least one Jones Elementary School parent who said she is concerned that students who are simply bad "test-takers" will not be promotable.

Sen. David P. Sokola (D-Newark) cautioned parents against making "too many excuses" for their children. "Students will be given ample opportunity to take the test again, and if they don't pass it the second time, they will go to summer school," he told them.

Christina school superintendent Nicholas A. Fischer agreed "taking tests is part of the real world." He advised the group to "move away from the good old/bad old days mentality," and to get more creative in resolving educational issues.

The panel of legislators for the meeting included Sen. Steven H. Amick (R-Newark West), Rep. Pamela S. Maier (R-Drummond Hill), State Rep. Stephanie A. Ulbrich (R-Newark South), Sen. David P. Sokola (D-Newark), Sen. Dori Connor (R-Penn Acres), Rep. William A. Oberle Jr. (R-Beecher's Lot) and State Rep. Richard F. Davis (R-Sherwood Forest).

Several other teams, including the football, baseball, and lacrosse teams, will use the field for practice. In all, eight of the school's 22 inter-collegiate athletic teams have been affected by the lack of an artificial turf playing field with high-quality lighting and bleacher seating.

Rullo, a 1963 graduate of the university who lettered in football and baseball, is the former CEO of Freedom Chemical Corporation. B.F. Goodrich Corporation bought out Freedom Chemical earlier this year.

"I have had more or less a love affair with the university," Rullo said. "I have had a lot of success in life and can trace it back to what I learned in the classroom and on the athletic fields."

The new stadium, which will carry Rullo's name, will complete the David M. Nelson Athletic Complex for the university's athletic facilities.

According to Roselle, Desso DWL, of Dendermonde, Belgium, will install a higher quality nylon surface turf for the cost of a polypropylene turf. In addition, Roselle said the addition of an artificial turf field will help in recruiting athletes.

"We will not only have a turf field, we will have a premier turf field," he said.

Desso DWL will add a $40,000 watering system and woven field hockey lines in exchange for using the University of Delaware as its showcase facility in the United States.

New hotel is a plus

NEWARK, A CITY WITH 20,000 residents, corporate headquarters, and a major university is finally getting a hotel for visitors.

Up until this week, the city has boasted only one motel downtown and three hotel-motels just off Interstate 95 on Route 896. When the rich, the famous, the notorious or nervous parents on recruiting trips for athletic offspring called for reservations at a Newark hotel, they usually were accommodated at the Christiana Hilton.

With the approval of a six-story, 155 room Embassy Suites across from the University of Delaware sports complex, Newark is getting a hotel worthy of the name.

The developer did his homework and talked to local residents and officials from the city of Newark and the University of Delaware. Reportedly, basketball coach Mike Brey is already planning to use the facility for visiting teams and others. Neighbors on hand at city council Monday night uniformly endorsed the plan. The city is getting a five-year electric contract for the facility with no foreseen adverse effects on the water supply.

This will be a destination hotel for business travelers, families visiting Delaware on vacation, and those wanting a place to put up wedding guests in elegant comfort.

Yes, it will be six stories high, unlike the average building in Newark. And yes, it will have a huge parking lot where there used to be trees.

But this is the beginning of the new century and Newark has to enter the modern world sometime. If we want to market ourselves as the small town with big city amenities, then we're going to have to accept the existence, and size, of our product.

ONE PARENT'S PERSPECTIVE

Where does a mom go to resign?

By RUTH KELLY

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

THE JOURNEY THROUGH parenthood presents a variety of things along the way. The journey can be fun, challenging yet rewarding. It can also be sad and troubling at times as I share the following episode in our journey.

My daughter will soon be 12 and each moment presents new and different experiences, joys and disappointments. We parents ride this roller coaster with our children and experience and relive vicariously all these adventures with our children.

Friends are everything to our young adults at this age. Being the most popular and having the most friends is the goal of all children. As adults, we know that we are very lucky if we go through life and have one or two true friends. Trying to explain this to youngsters whose lives revolve around friends is very difficult.

My goal as a parent is to try not to choose my child's friends. I do, however, want to steer her toward those children whose parents have similar core values to mine. What happens when your child seems to gravitate toward a child whose behavior is such that you don't want your child around them? How can you explain that it is not the child you have a problem with, but with the behavior the child is exhibiting?

My daughter recently befriended two girls in our new neighborhood and was so happy. When they came that first visit, she eagerly took them to her room and offered them sodas. They no sooner finished the drinks, than I saw her race up the steps with chips and before long, up went an assortment of candies and other sweets. If I had not intervened, I fear she would have emptied the refrigerator. She wanted so desperately for her new friends to like her.

I was filled with happiness as I listened to the laughter coming from her room, but it was to be short lived. When it was time for the girls to leave, my daughter asked me for $10 to buy some items from one of the girls. When I told her I didn't have $10, she asked for $5 and again I told her no. I had an unsettling feeling as I said goodbye to the girls.

Kelly

These same girls came to visit again, wanting more snacks and sodas and one borrowed several of my daughter's cassette tapes, promising to return them by the end of the week. These tapes were not returned until I intervened.

The last visit has been the most disturbing. The girls came to visit telling her they were thirsty and were again given sodas. After about a half hour one of the girls handed my daughter a 3x5 index card which was a handwritten invitation to her birthday party which was being held in 20 minutes at her house.

My daughter who loves birthday parties was so excited and begged me to allow her to go. My mind was racing at this sudden party invitation. The invitation asks for a birthday card (with money in it) or other present.

As I'm contemplating what to do, reaching for my wallet to get some money to put in a card, I decided to call the phone number on the card. I then spoke with the mother of this child. I was to learn sadly that this whole scenario was just a guise to get money from my unsuspecting daughter. The mother speaking hesitantly informed me that her daughter's party was not that night but was a

OUT OF THE ATTIC

Memorial Hall was still under construction on the campus of the University of Delaware in this picture from a postcard mailed in the summer of 1926 to Newark resident Mrs. Newton Sheaffer who was visiting in Minnesota. According to current Newark resident Robert Sheaffer, the building was finished in 1923.

In an effort to provide more complete descriptions of our "Out of the Attic" photographs, volunteer historians of the Newark Historical Society are identifying and researching some historic shots. Readers are encouraged to send old photos to the Newark Post, "Out of the Attic," 153 E. Chestnut Hill Rd., Newark 19713. Special care will be taken. For information, call 737-0724.

Newark and Five Points set high scoring record in weird game

Newark and Five Points broke all season records for making runs at a wild and weird baseball game on the latter's diamond last Saturday afternoon.

During the nine innings of labor, a total of 33 runs were scored on a total of thirty hits and twelve errors.

Five Points failed to score in but two periods. Errors of commission and omission marred the heavy hitting battle, with both teams equally divided on miscues.

Largest class leaves Delaware

University of Delaware will graduate 59 men at Commencement this year, perhaps the largest class ever to leave the institution since its inception in 1973.

Of the total number, 11 are electrical engineers, eight are mechanical engineers, four are civil engineers and one took up chemical engineering. Ten students specialized in agriculture and the balance, numbering 25, will be graduated in the arts and science course.

What deseg. means to Newark...

The Wilmington school desegregation ruling was made public last Wednesday, and now the State Board of Education is responsible for appointing a five-man board to reassign 80,678 students in the 11 districts involved in the remedy to achieve a population of between 10 and 35 percent black students in each grade.

Newark nine captures two victories

Newark High's baseball squad recovered its winning form last week, upping the Yellowjacket's Flight A leading record to 12-3 with two one run victories as regular season play draws to a close.

After dropping two crucial league contests two weeks ago, Newark went into battle against non-conference rival McKean in need of a win to boost the Yellowjacket's momentum.

Parking fees have risen

Visitors to Newark's downtown shopping area are being socked with higher parking meter prices beginning this week, but many Main Street merchants are trying to soften the blow by offering free tokens to their customers.

Under the new rate set-up, adopted by Newark's city council in March to increase city revenues, it will cost a nickel to park at a meter for a half-hour and a dime to park for an hour.

Senior center OK'd, use questioned

The Newark City Council approved a site for a new senior center, but senior center officials disagreed with some of the council members on the building's status as a community center.

"Yes it's a community center because we do want people of all ages to use it," said Margaret Catts, the center's executive director. "But it is primarily a senior center."

Crowley, Berilla win another state doubles championship

The hardest thing for any champion to do is to repeat.

That, however, is exactly what the Newark High doubles team of Dawn Crowley and Jen Berilla did Friday afternoon in the first-doubles finals of the Delaware High School Girls Tennis Tournament at the Delaware Fieldhouse courts.

Crowley and Berilla downed Archmere's Danielle Kissel and Kristen Celello 7-6, 6-4 to complete their second straight undefeated season. In fact, the duo didn't even lose a set this year!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Paul Himmelstein
Newark Post Office

It gives me great pleasure to inform you that the Letter Carriers Annual Food Drive in Newark was once again an overwhelming success due to the generosity of the Newark residents. The year's preliminary totals surpassed last year by 3,123 pounds. As of 6 p.m., Saturday, May 9, the letter carriers in and around the city of Newark had collected some 22,200 pounds of food. Official results will be issued from our National Union shortly. When these results are available I would be more than happy to furnish you with a copy.

This year's food drive was conducted under the worst conditions that we have ever had. Not only did the carriers have to work in the rain delivering the mail but then they all went above and beyond to help collect food for those who are less fortunate.

Thank you for helping make our food drive such a success.

What's a mother to do?

► KELLY, from 6

sleep-over to be held over the weekend. I then decided not to tell this mother what her daughter had done because I wanted to think about how to handle this situation.

I was very angry and didn't know what to do next. Once I suspected that we were being deceived my daughter then confessed that this same girl put her up to asking me for money the very first time she stepped into our house. She told my daughter to lie and to tell me the money was to purchase something.

I have always taught my daughter to share, but I'm afraid that I may have made a mistake in doing so. What is a parent to do? When you intervene you may do it at great risk. Do you risk your child being made an outcast or bullied and teased by letting this deceitful kid know you are on to her? Do you speak with the mother of this child who may very well not handle the situation in an appropriate way with her daughter and may tell you to mind your own business? What's a mother to do?

We live in very distressing times. There are many of us who value honesty, integrity and responsibility. We work hard at instilling these same behavior characteristics in our children. But, sadly, not all parents hold these qualities dear and are raising kids who prey on other kids. Kids who are so anxious for peer acceptance are easy targets and could very easily be manipulated into doing things they would not normally do.

In the meantime, I must educate my daughter to be very careful in her interaction with other children. She must learn to be cautious and choose her friends wisely. She must learn not to be a follower or to allow herself to be victimized and manipulated by others. As we move toward these scary 'middle school' years, the innocence of childhood is slowly, but surely fading away!

Too much of a good thing?

Reynolds becomes fourth candidate in District 1 race

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Citizens often fail to get involved in their government, but Newark's latest council race may be too much of a good thing.

"This should make it interesting, don't you think," said Martin Reynolds the day after he became the fourth candidate for the council seat in District 1. "I don't think there's ever been a four-way race in Newark."

Already running are Abbotsford resident Scott Bowling, Woodmere resident John Farrell and Nottingham Green resident Anita Puglisi.

Reynolds, co-owner of Barba and Reynolds Insurance Agency, ran for council once before in 1995 losing a two-way race to Hal Godwin.

Reynolds said he is active in a lot of things and interested in community affairs. "I think I could be useful on council," said Reynolds. "But let's face it, we're not looking at a broken machine in Newark — I don't intend to turn the city over on its head."

"I think I could be useful on council."

MARTIN REYNOLDS
CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT ONE SEAT

Reynolds added, "The rancor of the last few years shown on council has been needless. Other people can do that, but it's not my style."

Among the issues of interest to

Reynolds are continuing twice a week trash service and expanding recreational services. "We need something for the teens to do," said Reynolds. "There seems to be a gap in there."

Reynolds would also like to see "something done" with the DelChapel site and transportation issues. "I'm not in favor of new roads," said Reynolds. "And I would have been happy to leave the Casho Mill underpass alone, with maybe some green-yellow-red lights."

Flooding along the Christina Creek also concerns Reynolds. "I want to see continuation of the flood abatement efforts and removal of debris there," he said.

Reynolds has served as treasurer of the Woodmere-Timber Creek Civic Association and is a member of the Knights of Columbus.

A graduate of Holy Angels School, Newark High School and the University of Delaware, he and his wife have three young children.

Newark native files for State Treasurer

Markell announces candidacy

Jack Markell, a 1978 graduate of Newark High School has announced his candidacy for Delaware State Treasurer.

Markell said he believes the treasurer's office has the potential to make a major contribution to Delaware on a broad variety of issues, including education and communication with taxpayers. "Across the country, other state treasurers are saving money," he said. "They're helping people. They're making government more responsive. That's what I want to do in Delaware."

Markell said that he wants to work closely with other Delaware leaders, including those in government and in the community at large. He cited the Financial Center Development Act and the strengthening of Amtrak's presence in Delaware, among others, as two examples where leading Delawareans work effectively across party lines.

A graduate of Brown University and the University of Chicago, Markell previously worked for Nextel Communications Inc., where he had responsibility for mergers and acquisitions and strategic planning. He is currently on a leave of absence from Comcast Corporation, where he helped lead initiatives to cut costs and evaluate and develop new businesses.

Markell and his wife are natives of Newark where they were kindergarten and high school classmates. They now live in New Castle County with their two young children.

New upscale hotel coming to Newark

► HOTEL, from 1

Park about the plans and believed the company had taken action on their concerns. He said the building had been shortened by one story and would be lower than the enormous paint facility at nearby Chrysler Assembly. "The hotel will sit down a little below the roadway hotel, also," said Bucchini. "and existing 45-foot oak trees should help block it from view."

Landscaping will add at least 200 more trees and up to 400 shrubs around the building and parking area, and lighting for the site will be directed away from nearby neighborhoods.

"We also talked to the city of Newark water department which informed us there will be no problems with water pressure even during peak periods," said Bucchini.

Project engineer Joseph Charma said stormwater concerns in the area with a history of flooding were being met with a retention pond with four times the required capacity. In addition, a gravity sewer system will provide better service for the site than the originally proposed pump, said Charma.

Newark resident Jean White asked why there would be nearly 450 parking spaces for a hotel with 155 rooms?

"With suites, we could have more than 1 vehicle per room," said Bucchini. "And Mike Brey (basketball coach at the University of Delaware) was very excited about facilities for visiting teams and their buses."

As added incentives, Bucchini told council the developers were willing to guarantee the project would be built as planned or occupancy permits would be not issued and also agreed to purchase electric power from the city.

A resident of Harbour Park said he had heard a lot about the plan.

"There's been a lot of discussion tonight and there was a lot prior to this — and I believe this will be tremendously beneficial to the city," said Ed Wirth.

In 1990, city council approved a rezoning, major subdivision and special use permit for a seven-story, 162-room hotel at this location. Because construction did not begin within one year of approval, the permit expired.

Construction on the new hotel is expected to start this summer.

The cost of beltless drivers

■ Editor's note: Cindy Genau is a New Castle County extension agent.

RECEIVED A GREAT education when I attended the Delaware House of Representatives debate over the passage of Rep. William A. Oberle Jr.'s House Bill 505—a primary seat belt law. I applaud Oberle, R-Beechers Lot, Newark, for doing the right thing. When passed, this bill will save lives, reduce injuries and decrease the medical expenses incurred from motor vehicle crashes.

by Cindy Genau

Our current law does not make failure to use a seat belt a primary offense. Even though state law mandates that all people in the car wear seat belts, people 16-years-old and older not wearing seat belts cannot be stopped by a police officer if this is the only offense the officer sees. The legislation Oberle proposes would be a seat belt law with clout.

Police officers regularly respond to the scene of motor vehicle crashes. As Sergeant Donald S. Pyne of the Delaware State Police Fatal Accident Reconstruction Team says, "The toughest part of my job is having to speak to families who have lost loved ones and explain to them why they have died." Sgt. Pyne feels one of the reasons deaths can be avoided is by wearing a seat belt.

Arguments against passage of this bill have to do with a citizen's personal right to choose whether or not to wear a seat belt—a sentiment echoed by a Newark resident in a local newspaper editorial. This is not a personal rights issue—seat belts and airbags save lives and reduce injuries.

In 1996, one person was injured in a traffic crash every 52 minutes in Delaware. Families pay the price of having loved ones injured or killed. Children pay the price. Traffic-related injuries are the leading cause of death for children and young adults from ages 6 to 26. Businesses pay the price. On-the-job crashes cause employers $22,000 per crash and $110,000 per injury because of lost productivity, higher insurance and medical costs nationally. We all pay for the crippling injuries and death when a seat belt is not used.

In Delaware, current seat belt use is only 55 percent—13 percent below the national average of 68 percent. Secretary of Transportation Slater and Director Martinez of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration have joined President Clinton in an initiative to raise the U.S. national seat belt use to 85 percent of the population by the year 2000. The 14 states with primary seat belt enforcement laws have usage rates ranging from 74 percent to 87 percent.

I urge all of you to stand up and support this bill in the Senate. Gov. Carper has stated he will sign House Bill 505 into law. Do the right thing. Buckle up. It is your life, our law.

THIS KARATE KID CAME FROM BEHIND

By PATRICIA KOLY

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

LIKE MANY SIX-YEAR-OLDS, Jamie Christmann wanted to study karate. Unlike many six-year-olds, Christmann's left side was severely physically impaired by a stroke when he was six months old.

That didn't stop him from earning a first degree Black Belt in April at American Karate Studios, after successfully completing 16 other belts.

Christmann's mother and father, Gail and Gene Christmann, said they never treated their son as if he had something wrong with him. "He has an older brother, Chris, and always tried to keep up with him and his friends," said his mother. "He's always been a people person."

Gail Christmann said her son was unable to walk until he was 2 1/2 years old, because he had very low muscle tone. His left arm was bent, placing his left hand in a permanent position against his chest. "We didn't know what he was going to be like when he was older, but he always seemed to have a mature attitude, she said. "Jamie is a people pleaser and very persevering."

The Newark High School senior plans to study communications at Wilmington College, and wants to work in a television studio. He helps manage Newark High's sports teams, plays Madden Football video games, and attends events at Blue Rock stadium.

But Christmann said he will always find time for karate. "I gained a lot of friends through karate," he said.

To anyone facing hardship, Christmann suggests never give up hope. "Stay focused because people will depend on that type of person."

Despite a stroke at age 6 months which left him severely impaired, Newark High School student Jamie S. Christmann, now 18, recently received his black belt in karate from Jim and Judy Clapp at American Karate Studios.

Newark scores big in Dixie Classic

THE Newark High School bands and orchestra returned from the Dixie Classic Music Festival in Virginia Beach with the first place Highest Score award and many top ratings.

Band director Lloyd Ross said Newark performers received excellent ratings with the Stage Band, Jazz Ensemble and Field

Show Bands. They received superior ratings with Orchestra, Symphonic Band, Parade Marching Band and Wind Ensemble.

The Wind Ensemble also received Best Brass Section and overall highest score of the festival. The marching band received Best Marching Band award.

One of the adjudicators was Col. Arnald Gabriel, conductor emeritus of the U.S. Air Force Band, who has judged the Newark High Wind Ensemble in various festivals over the past 15 years.

Nine schools from seven different states attended the three-day festival. Newark bands also are directed by Jonathan Wittman. The orchestra is directed by Rosaria Macera.

Photography exhibit at Hagley

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

YOU HAVE READ IT MANY times in my columns. I refer to my feelings about an art teaming up with another discipline, activity or cause and all are the better for it. Today the art I will refer to is photography and the cause is the abolition of child labor. They come together for an interesting chapter in American history and a superb vintage photo exhibit at Hagley Museum and Library through August 23.

Entitled "Let the Children Be Children" Lewis Wickes Hine's Crusade against Child Labor, it is open daily in the Henry Clay Mill Gallery. The new show was organized by the George Eastman House International Museum of Photography and Film. It is making a national tour and we are fortunate to have it with us through the summer.

With some advance planning on the part of parents, this could be a wonderful family outing during the time the children are out of school beginning next month. Some of the photos are very explicit and some help before the children see it is needed, but it can be a most meaningful education experience.

The photos are the work of Lewis Wickes Hine, a sociologist and photographer, hired by the National Child Labor Committee (NCLC) in 1906. His task was to document the terrible working conditions of children in the United States. He spent ten years of his life photographing children in coal mines, cotton mills, canneries, farms and sweatshops across this land.

Hine's goal was to capture the attention of the various governmental bodies in the country and to arouse public sentiment against child labor practices. His photographs show the dark world where those in charge would not let children be children, where tuberculosis, crippling diseases and loss of limbs were constant facts of life.

The 60 photos in the exhibit now on at Hagley Museum and Library reveal the abominable circumstances that poor and working class children endured until the NCLC was successful in getting laws against child exploitation passed.

This is one of 60 photos by Lewis W. Hine now on display at Hagley Museum and Library in the exhibition "Let Children Be Children," an anti-child labor effort of the early 20th century.

The photos are a sample of the more than 10,000 Hine took in his efforts.

Born in Oshkosh, Wisconsin in 1874, his early efforts as a sociologist centered around photographing immigrants and the poor. Very early on he documented the newly arrived at Ellis Island. After he completed his work for the NCLC at the end of World War I, Hine became fascinated by modern machinery and he spent the rest of his career photographing men and women at work in the new, mechanized America.

I am grateful to Hagley's PR Coordinator Suzy Dottor for the photo with my column today and I hope it whets your appetite to see more. Other photos show a boy carrying work to do at home, a little girl shucking oysters, small boys in saloons at night hawking newspapers to the patrons and some worse than that.

If you would like to learn more about the exhibit, Hagley is sponsoring a free illustrated lecture "Lewis Hine and the Documentary Tradition in American Culture." It will be given by James C. Curtis on Tuesday, June 2 at 7 p.m. in the Hagley Library. To attend this lecture, please use the Buck Road Entrance to the Museum, the entrance just off Route 100, not the regular entrance off Route 141.

By James C. McLaren

A film-going lawyer
Went out to the foyer
To bring buttered popcorn to his seat.
He slipped in the aisle,
Brought all parties to trial,
And sued them for mishaps from treat.

Ocean-Dude snubbing turf,
Never bored with the surf,
Went challenging every huge wave.
He liked playing with Fate
In his frenzied soaked state:
A grim, unearthly way to behave!

What was so strange about Mahatma Gandhi's ascetic life?
He was often on the fast track.

Why can't you fathom the question?
It's too deep for me.

The well-being of the Universe should be the primary concern
of folks with petty grievances.

The jolly twittering of a bird can be uplifting to the grimmiest of cynics.

■ Author's note:

Lunacies like these have been inflicted on my poor wife, children and colleagues for years. They have been greeted by both groans and guffaws – the latter, perhaps, to pacify the punster and offset a further barrage. To its victims, punning can be seen as a disease, since any laughter, however sparse, can be contagious. I hope Post readers will tackle this word-play nonsense with zest, thereby assuring them Eternal Joy and a letter from Ed McMahon.

Assistive technology opens doors

Disabled will benefit from improvements

By OAKLAND L. CHILDERS

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

With all the advances in technology over the past few decades, it may be hard to imagine what the workplace of tomorrow will look like. But all that technology is beginning to make one thing very clear: there will be more disabled people in the work place.

The DuPont Hospital for children houses the Delaware Assistive Technology Initiative (DATI), a program which offers equipment loans and helps the disabled find funding and services for their needs. The program is administered through the University of Delaware's Center for Applied Science and Engineering. Funding for the program was made possible by a 1988 act of Congress which provided each state with funds to maintain a program to increase awareness of assistive technology devices, applications and related services.

But time may be running out for the program and those that it helps. "The legislation that authorized the program was slated to have a 10 year lifespan," says Beth Mineo Mollica, the director of the program for Delaware. "The project is in the seventh year. If the law isn't given new life, we will be in our last year of funding next year."

This possibility has those who benefit from the program very concerned. Newark resident Lily Bandak had to quit her career as a photographer when she was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in 1984.

After a decade of stubbornly scouring the world for a cure she is back at work with the help of a specially designed wheelchair, provided through the DATI program, which helps her stand upright and use a camera. The program also provided her with an elevator for her home so she can access her basement studio where she prints and the phone," she said, "but I travel overseas with assistive technology." Seven months ago, Bandak went back to her native Jordan to take photographs at the invitation of the Queen, a friend of hers. She is also involved with the United States government in trying to provide assistive technology to people in third-world countries. "Here I am trying to stress assistive technology overseas," said Bandak, "and they are going to cut it out in Delaware."

Delawarean Tony Maczynski is also staunch supporter of the program. When surgery for a brain tumor left him blind, Maczynski was unable to work until he discovered assistive technology. "After 23 years of being blind I can finally read," says Maczynski, who now works for Delaware's speaker of the house. Through the DATI office, Maczynski received a special scanner that reads books and other printed material out loud. "In the past somebody would have to stop what they were doing and read to me," said Maczynski.

Maczynski is very happy with the work being done by the DATI office. "I didn't even know about this equipment until I contacted the DATI office," he said. "It has certainly been a beneficial program."

But Mollica says that the black cloud hanging over DATI has a silver lining. "The word from Washington is really pretty good," she says. She said there was a hearing in Washington, D.C., recently to look in to how to keep the program alive. "It's looking good that there will be some future to it, but the form and length of it is still up in the air," Mollica said.

develops all of her own work.

Bandak says she was very angry to hear that the assistive technology program might be cut out in Delaware. "That's what helped me get back to work," she said with great excitement.

Bandak feels that it is in everyone's best interest to support assistive technology. "Why don't they put people like me back to work instead of letting them be a burden on the taxpayers?" she said.

Though her illness has taken away many of the abilities that most people would assume are necessary to function, Bandak continually pushes forward with help. She has a special computer that allows her to type with the touch of a mouse, and she continues to do the work she loves. "I can't lift a finger to answer

"That's what helped me get back to work."

Rodel site annexed by City of Newark

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

NEWARK CITY council has approved a request for annexation and rezoning of approximately 19 acres owned by Rodel Inc. in the Diamond State Industrial Park.

The tract of land, consisting of 18.01 acres at the northwest corner of Bellevue Road and South Chapel Street as well as the adjoining 1.57-acre Conrail right-of-way, was rezoned from BP to M1 which permits a variety of manufacturing and related uses.

Mark Ziegler, an engineer from McBride & Ziegler Inc., said the rezoning was a win-win for the city and Rodel. "This actually will be a more restrictive zoning," said Ziegler. "And Rodel's corporate headquarters will be entirely in Newark even though the company has facilities throughout the world."

Rodel officials first discussed the annexation as well as a possible expansion of the site in December 1996. At that time, the company purchased a 19.7-acre parcel contiguous to their operations from Commercial Carriers Inc., a subsidiary of Ryder Truck Inc. for $1.1 million.

Rodel chairman and CEO Bill Budinger said in 1996 the high-tech company intended to develop the new parcel and its three buildings with a mix of office, warehousing, light manufacturing and other uses.

Annexation of the new site, as well as consolidation of all Rodel operations lying on two sides of the Conrail tracks, are part of that plan.

As a condition of the annexation, city manager Carl Luft said Rodel also signed a "purchase power agreement" to obtain electric service from Newark for a minimum of five years for this and all other existing Rodel sites in the city.

Initially a portion of the annexed land will be used for a parking area. Company officials have said Rodel eventually hopes to develop the site with their corporate headquarters as well as an advanced research center.

Included in the current plan is approval for a new access-way on Bellevue Road for Rodel to cross the Conrail rail spur on their property. In response to questions from councilmember Jerry Clifton, Rodel officials said this change should actually reduce traffic on Cooches Bridge Road because employees and visitors now have access to the entire site from Route 72.

THE EDGE

Just when you think you've seen everything sports has to offer, along comes something crazy. If there has been a weirder state tournament softball game than the one played Saturday between Glasgow and Padua, we haven't seen it. There were more ejections and pitchers than there were runs scored in the game. It doesn't get much crazier than that.

ALL THUMBS

UP: To the Glasgow High girls athletic teams. From the beginning of the school year on, it was a banner year for many of the Dragons' girls teams. They won conference titles in volleyball, basketball, softball, track and field and lacrosse.

UP: To Caravel Academy baseball team. The Bucs picked up their first state tournament win in school history on Saturday.

DOWN: To the state baseball committee for its strictly points method of seeding teams.

GAME OF THE WEEK

The state championship baseball, softball and soccer games will be played Saturday. St. Mark's is still alive in softball and soccer while Caravel upset the Spartans in baseball and may have a chance to play for its first ever state championship. Softball is at 11 a.m., baseball at 2 p.m. and soccer at 7 p.m.

"Give us some respect now," was heard from the Caravel bench, seconds after Brian Zeigler struck out the final Spartan batter to seal an unlikely 4-3 victory over powerful St. Mark's Tuesday.

The win sent the Bucs to the semifinals of the Delaware High School Baseball Tournament, while ending St. Mark's season with a 17-1 record.

Caravel coach Paul Niggebrugge played down his team's quest for respect.

"I think some people forget about our program," Niggebrugge said of his team which was 0-8 in the state tournament prior to this year. "We've done a good job of getting to the tournament, but we haven't [until this season], won the big game."

"We're not dying for respect. You have to earn it and up to this point we haven't won in the tournament. Now with us winning, we are starting to earn it."

Entering the final inning, the Bucs trailed 3-1. Mike Walters opened the inning by hitting a grounder past St. Mark's second baseman. Spartan right fielder Rob Walters made the common play of charging the ball, but it took an unusual hop and got past him. The hop allowed Mike Walters to get a triple.

Caravel's next batter Roger Richardson hit a shot deep to left field. St. Mark's Scott McGillen made the catch, but Walters was able to tag up and score.

Spartan pitcher John Warren, who kept Caravel batters off balance all game, walked Bryan Boyer. Then Boyer was bunted to second by Dave Price, leaving a runner on second with

It had been a long time coming, but it was sweet when it finally arrived.

After eight unsuccessful attempts, the Caravel Academy baseball team finally won a state tournament baseball game. The 10th seeded Bucs knocked off seventh-seeded William Penn 10-0 last Saturday's opening round of the Delaware High School Baseball Tournament. The win improved Caravel's record to 11-7 and advanced it to Tuesday's quarterfinal meeting with undefeated St. Mark's.

"It's great to get that monkey off our backs," said Caravel coach Paul Niggebrugge. "It was becoming a gorilla."

The Bucs were led by a superb pitching effort by Brian Zeigler, who allowed the Flight A champion Colonials just two hits. Zeigler threw just 80 pitches and struck out four.

"He was very impressive," Niggebrugge said of his pitcher. "He threw 62 percent strikes. That's a great ratio."

Offensively, Caravel banged out 10 hits on its way to the 10 runs. The Bucs scored twice in the third inning, four more in the fourth, three times in the fifth and once in the sixth. The game was stopped after six innings due to the 10-run mercy rule.

Caravel has had a very successful program over the last decade but never has been able to advance past the first round of the state tournament.

This year the Bucs' record was just .500 two-thirds of the way into the season. Since then, however, Caravel has won five of six games and is brimming with confidence.

"We had high hopes for this team right from the beginning," Niggebrugge said.

St. Mark's girls advance in soccer tourney

Spartans top CR to move to semis

By CHRIS DONAHUE
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The previous two seasons, St. Mark's had failed to advance past the second round of the Delaware High School Girls Soccer Tournament.

Even though the Spartans had received a bye in this year's tournament, based on its superb regular season record (12-1-2), a few dark omens loomed before they faced Caesar Rodney (15-4) in a quarterfinal round game last Saturday at Glasgow High.

Circumstances, such as having lost two of four starting fullbacks to injuries and having six other starters miss the night before, didn't help.

In addition, the Spartans hadn't won in a week, which provided the only bad omen factor, and they had lost 1-0 during the season, which had been the only loss.

But those factors never made an impact, as St. Mark's used ball control and superior skill to earn a 4-1 victory.

Junior Sarah Lahm scored her first two goals of the season, and sophomore Ashley Dilworth also scored to give the Spartans a 3-0 lead at half-time.

In the second half, Dilworth scored an eye-popping goal by volleying home a perfect cross from Katie Quigley to complete the scoring. It was her team-high 23rd goal of the season, while Quigley's assist was her team-high 12th.

The victory sent the Spartans into Wednesday's semifinal round, where they faced two-time defending state champion Alexis I. du Pont, the only team to beat St. Mark's this season. That was a 2-0 affair, with one of AI's goals coming on a penalty kick.

"The team worked really well together today," said Lahm, who had found nothing but the woodwork with shots during the season. "We wanted to come out strong and get ahead early so we could have confidence for the rest of the game."

Newark tops Sanford in opening round

Tatnall edges Jackets in quarters

By CHRIS DONAHUE
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

After turning its season around farther and faster than anyone could have imagined, time finally ran out on Newark High's girls soccer team.

The Yellowjackets, who began their injury-plagued season with an 0-2-1 record, closed ranks to post a 10-4-2 mark.

Newark then put together what was probably its best match of the season from start to finish in the first round of the Delaware Girls' High School Soccer Tournament, beating Sanford School 2-0.

But last Saturday, Tatnall, the only unbeaten team in the state and the tournament's top seed, scored twice in the first half, then hung on for dear life to gain a 2-0 victory.

Tatnall scored about six minutes into the game, then added the back-breaker by scoring in the final minute before the break.

Newark dominated play in the second half, but couldn't convert several good scoring chances.

"If we played the entire game the way we played the second half, the outcome would have been different," said Newark coach Hugh Mitchell, who guided the Yellowjackets to the championship game last season.

Mitchell cited the play of freshman forward Chelsea Adams for creating numerous scoring threats vs. Tatnall.

"Tatnall's for real," Mitchell added. "They're much like us, the matchup against us was a good one: dominant midfielders, some up-and-coming players. But our inexperience really cost us."

Against Sanford, senior Jill Cope scored both goals. She made it 1-0 about 12 minutes in by hammering home a 10-foot shot from about

Christiana grad honored

Del Tech selects coach to Hall of Fame

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

In a soccer career that had its humble beginnings at Christiana High, Jim Blankenship went on to a level of success as a coach unparalleled for any First Stater.

Blankenship has been a college coach of the year five times and his teams have won three national championships.

But Blankenship, who graduated from Christiana in 1976, recently received what he called one of his most cherished honors when he was named one of the first five inductees into Delaware Technical and Community College's Athletic Hall of Fame.

It was at DelTech's Stanton campus where Blankenship played for two years, mostly as a midfielder, and was named to the National Junior College Athletic Association All-American team while playing for coach Mike Biggs.

Blankenship then went on to play at and become a team captain at Florida International.

In the ensuing years, his association with the game would eventually take him across the U.S., South America and Europe as both a player and a coach.

"Delaware Tech was real important to me, because that was basically where I started," Blankenship said Tuesday night by phone from his home in Boca Raton, Fla.

"I'm honored that they'd take the time out to include me. Plus, I had the opportunity to work with Mike. He was an important influence on my life. He also may have planted the first seeds on how to become a coach because of his style."

Looking at Blankenship's resume, it's not hard to understand why he was unable to attend last week's induction ceremony at DelTech - he was coaching a youth team on a tour of Holland, Belgium and Germany.

Jim Blankenship was elected to the Delaware Tech Hall of Fame.

Blankenship's mother, a resident of Birchwood Park, accepted his DelTech award.

"The unique thing about Jimmy," Biggs said, "is that he's been able to take a sport that he absolutely loves, get a college education out of it, and is able to work with kids to be able to give them the same opportunity he has had."

At DelTech, Biggs said he often used Blankenship to mark an opponent's best player, especially if that player was a midfielder.

Blankenship's career recently reached new heights when he was hired to coach the new women's soccer team at the University of Miami. The Hurricanes will begin play in the fall with opponents such as Maine, Kansas and Iowa.

Miami will begin play in the Big East Conference in 1999.

Blankenship's coaching career began at the youth level in Boca Raton, where he was athletic director for the Kiwanis Club of America chapter. His duties included hiring coaches and directing activities for about 2,400 children.

In 1986, Blankenship was hired as head coach of the women's team at Lynn University.

What happened there in the next 11 years speaks for itself: The Lady Knights recorded a 178-34-6 record. In one season, Lynn scored 161 goals; 152 goals in another.

Lynn won National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics national championships in 1992, '94 and '95. In 1996, Lynn moved up to NCAA Division II and were national runners-up.

Blankenship, who has coached 19 All-Americans and 40 Academic All-Americans, was named NAIA Coach of the Year in 1988, '90, '92, '94 and '95.

In addition, Blankenship was named Southern Regional Coach of the Year five times.

He was also named Boca Raton's Rotary Club Man of the Year award twice, and received the keys to the city twice from the mayor and city council.

On the amateur level, another highlight occurred for Blankenship in 1985 when he was assistant coach on a Florida-based team led by Peruvian legend Teofilo "Manny" Cubillas for a youth tournament in Peru.

That team sometimes played before crowds of more than 30,000 and finished in the middle of the 14-team field that included sides from Brazil and Chile.

Blankenship remembered that when his team's plane landed prior to the tournament. About 30,000 people were at the airport to greet Cubillas, whose achievements include scoring 10 goals for Peru in World Cup play. (That total is tied for fifth on the all-time list with two other players.)

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

BRIAN ZEIGLER - CARAVEL

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

IT'S NOT OFTEN THAT A one-game performance can turn the tide of a whole program, but that's what Brian Zeigler helped do Saturday.

The Caravel Academy senior pitcher hurled a three-hit shutout to help lead the Bucs past powerful William Penn in the opening round of the Delaware High School Baseball Tournament.

He then followed that performance with a more amazing one just three days later. Zeigler pitched another complete game to help the Bucs upset previously undefeated St. Mark's Tuesday.

In doing so, Zeigler was able to accomplish what a host of other highly successful Caravel pitchers were not - get a victory in the state tournament.

The win was the first in nine playoff appearances for the Bucs.

"It's great to get that monkey off our backs," said Caravel coach Paul Niggebrugge. "It was becoming a gorilla."

Zeigler, who improved his record to 5-3 on the year, certainly didn't accomplish the feat alone. The Bucs' offense pounded out 10 hits and scored 10 runs. Nevertheless, his 80-pitch masterpiece was the cornerstone of the victory.

"He was very impressive," Niggebrugge said. "We played good defense behind him. But he kept getting ahead in the count and letting the defense do the work for him. He threw 62 percent strikes. That's a great ratio."

The performance was not surprising to Niggebrugge.

"We expected big things from Brian all year," the coach said. "We felt he could be as tough as any pitcher in the state."

"That didn't happen early on and I think he was a little disappointed. But he's doing a lot of the little things right now and pitching really well. He's peaking at the right time of the year."

St. Mark's tops Middletown in first round baseball game

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Home runs and good pitching is a deadly combination.

The St. Mark's High's baseball team used that exact formula as it began defense of its state title in fine fashion Saturday with a 5-1 victory over Middletown in the first round of the Delaware High School Baseball Tournament.

The win advanced the second-seeded Spartans to Tuesday's quarterfinal matchup against 10th seeded Caravel. The state championship game is scheduled for Saturday at 2 p.m. at Frawley Stadium.

All five of the Spartans' runs came via the home run and pitcher Brian Hudock did the rest, limiting the 15th-seeded Cavaliers to just four hits.

The turning point in the game came in the very first inning.

Middletown loaded the bases courtesy of three Hudock walks. The junior left-hander, however,

"This isn't pressure. This is baseball."

MATT SMITH
ST. MARK'S BASEBALL COACH

was able to get out of the jam without giving up a run.

When St. Mark's came to bat in the bottom of the first, leadoff hitter Scott McGillen promptly blasted a line drive over the hill in right field and circled the bases for a home run that gave his team a quick 1-0 lead.

Two innings later, McGillen repeated the feat. This time his drive went over the hill in left-center field and gave St. Mark's a 2-0 lead.

Following McGillen's second homer, Ryan Husfelt and Hudock drew walks and Anthony Argiroudis drilled another home run to stretch the lead to 5-0.

Middletown picked up its lone run in the sixth inning but Hudock avoided further damage by getting the last two batters of the inning and stranding runners on second and third base.

"We played well," said St. Mark's coach Matt Smith, who watched his team improve to 17-0 in his first season. "I think we had a little bit of the first-game-of-the-tournament jitters, but we hung in there and did a good job against a very good baseball team."

Smith was also impressed with his experienced pitcher.

"[Hudock] battled out there," Smith said. "He did a good job."

Despite entering the state tournament as defending champions with an undefeated record, Smith didn't think his team felt any pressure to repeat.

"This isn't pressure," he said. "This is baseball. This is fun. Pressure is trying to do the big things in life like putting food on the table. This is something they should enjoy."

"We're just happy to be in the tournament and have a chance to compete for the state title."

Caravel wins first ever state tournament game

► CARAVEL, from 14

brugge said. "They didn't materialize, though, until the end of the season. I think the turnaround came after those 12 straight days of rain. I really believe we maximized our effort during what would normally be a down time. We made a few personnel changes and the team worked really hard."

"Since then, we've been really playing well. We're peaking at the right time of the year and the kids know we're playing well. We went into the William Penn game really believing we would win."

"Despite some of the records of our previous teams, I believe this is the first time we ever entered the state tournament believing we would win the game."

Niggebrugge points to his team's offense as the key to the turnaround.

"We had been playing good defense and getting good pitching but we weren't scoring enough runs," said the coach. "In our last five or six games, we've been getting eight, 10, 11 hits."

Davey Stevens has been one of the catalysts to the Bucs' attack. Stevens is hitting .500 with 20 runs batted-in, 27 runs scored and a slugging percentage of .771.

As a team, the Bucs have lifted their season batting average over .300.

Caravel had also stolen an amazing 80 bases in 93 attempts going into its game against second-seeded St. Mark's.

"Everything has really come together," Niggebrugge said. "We're doing a lot of the little things right and it's paid off."

Stevens' homer leads Bucs

► BUCS, from 14

two outs.

That set the stage for the Bucs lead-off hitter Dave Stevens. Stevens took a first pitch fastball and blasted it over the hill in left field. The shot ended up as a two-run homer, giving Caravel its first lead.

"He threw me first-pitch fastballs all game," Stevens said. "[Warren] threw his pitches in and out all game to me. He is a good pitcher and was throwing good all game. That [pitch] was his first mistake all day. He threw it in my zone and I just got on it."

Despite the dramatic home run,

St. Mark's still had another at bat.

After the first out, Anthony Argiroudis singled to center field. However, Buccaneer Brian Zeigler, who pitched the entire game, struck out the final two batters to end the game.

"I just had a rush [in the seventh inning], I knew we were going to win," Zeigler said. "Nobody in the state gives us any respect. Our coach just said go out and prove we deserve respect and that is what we're doing."

Zeigler got the win, improving his record to 6-3 on the season. He was charged with three runs on 10 hits, struck out six, with one walk and one hit batter. Niggebrugge decided to start Zeigler even though he pitched the entire game against William Penn four days earlier.

Despite an impressive outing by John Warren, giving up four runs off six hits, he took the loss. Warren went six and two-thirds innings and struck out 10 Bucs, while walking only two.

The Spartans scored a run in each of the first three innings, with RBI credited to Brian Blessing, Ryan Husfelt and Rafael Rodriguez.

Caravel scored its first run in the second inning when Bryan Brown led off the inning with a double. Two outs later, Roger Richardson singled to right field. Brown did not get a good jump and was forced to hold at third.

However, Niggebrugge had the runners pull a double steal allowing Brown to score.

"Some things have happened for Caravel over the last week that I couldn't have scripted better," Niggebrugge said. "Give St. Mark's credit, they played great all game. They out-played us all game. We just got some hits at the end."

Despite the loss, St. Mark's coach Matt Smith refused to look at the season in a negative light.

"It was a heck of a season," he said. "It was my first year and we go 17-1. That's a heck of a first season. I think people always talk about bad things about student athletes, but [these kids] represent what is going right."

St. Mark's soccer team advances

► SPARTANS, from 14

"(Lahm's) a cross country runner and can run all day," said St. Mark's coach Tom DeMatteis. "She almost never comes out. She's a key part of the team and she just hadn't finished one season."

Not to be lost in the Spartans' offensive highlights was a defensive effort staked by sweeper Cheryl Besosa, a senior who had been a fullback the three previous seasons. Besosa was moved to left wing this season. And even though she missed several games with an ankle injury, she responded by scoring eight goals, second only to Dilworth.

Besosa got her reassignment papers from DeMatteis against CR because sweeper Kara Humphries got 16 stitches on her forehead after a collision during the 0-0 season-end against Ursuline Academy.

Other than a close call in the first half by wide-open CR forward Quannie Jenkins, who fired her chance over the crossbar, and a goal by Lauren Zabowski on a counterattack that made it 3-1, the Spartans were virtually flawless in front of goalie Christy Ganc.

CR's goal was only the fifth the Spartans had allowed this season.

"Thank God I had a good team in front of me, because it was tough adjusting to (fullback) and a lot of work," Besosa said.

"But our fullbacks are tremendous and I'm so thankful for them. They work so hard every game."

In addition to Besosa's effort, fullback Megan O'Donnell played well in place of injured regular starter Sarah Amon, who is lost for the season with a knee injury. The Spartans will also have substitute fullback Bobbie LaFazia back from an injury for AI.

As for Wednesday's match, DeMatteis said: "We're going to have to play better than we've played all season."

Tatnall tops Newark

► NEWARK, from 14

20 yards out.

With about nine minutes left in the game, Cope buried a low right-footed shot from about 12 yards out.

"It was a complete game," Mitchell said. "We may have had better second-halves against St. Mark's and Tatnall, but I don't think the 2-0 score was indicative of how well we played."

Defensive standouts against Sanford included fullbacks Amy Hunt, Erin Bastien and Chrissy Wample.

Looking back on the season and how far his team had come, Mitchell said he was pleased with not only the improvement of his team's individual skills, but its grasp of the technical side of the sport, and the players' growth in character.

"Things looked a little on the bleak side," Mitchell said of his team's 0-2-1 start, which was partly caused by the loss of Cope from an injury, and the season-long loss of sophomore striker Clare Poynton with a knee injury.

"But the growth that the younger players showed and the leadership showed by others was certainly outstanding. I think the one word that typified us was adversity."

Mitchell said what this year's team accomplished under the circumstances was "as rewarding, if not more so," for him than last year's squad.

With Poynton slated to fill Cope's shoes and most of the starting lineup returning, Mitchell said he's already looking forward to next season.

Of course that will have to wait until Mitchell goes through the physical and emotional treadmill of coaching Newark's boys team in the fall, but that's another story.

Blankenship honored by Del Tech

► BLANKENSHIP, from 15

As for the coaching philosophy that Blankenship abides by, his first rule is that his players do well in the classroom.

"I've generally found that if a kid does well in the classroom, they do well on the field," Blankenship said.

On the field, it depends on what kind of players he has, but all his teams try to be "offensive," and that doesn't mean not taking a shower for several days.

In an era when too many coaches seem to worry more about how to keep the ball out of their net by packing their defense to the gills, Blankenship's attitude would make General George Patton proud - attack, attack, attack.

Blankenship's teams sometimes use more than two strikers and as many as six midfielders.

"It's maybe not the norm with a lot of people," Blankenship said, "but if you have a tendency to keep the ball in the other team's half, you usually keep the ball out of your own net."

Blankenship, who has degrees in architecture, recreation and sports administration, is married with two children. His new job is about a 90-minute drive away, so he will eventually move closer to the Miami area.

Despite the move to a program that has much more visibility than Lynn's, and perhaps more pressure to win, Blankenship is looking forward to the challenge.

"We're starting a program from scratch, and it's going to take some patience," said Blankenship, who will have about about 25 players for the preseason, including about 15 freshmen, some transfers and internationals.

"I'm excited about the opportunity to build at a high level and obviously, at this profession, you have to have confidence in your ability."

"The kids are going to be the most important part of the equation, but I think we'll have a good group of players and will do well."

Glasgow falls in crazy softball tournament quarterfinal game

Dragons have two pitchers ejected from the game

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

With all the ejections and pitching changes, one might have thought there was a Major League Baseball game at Delcastle Recreation Area last Saturday.

There wasn't. But there was one weird state quarterfinal softball game in which third-seeded Padua edged sixth-seeded Glasgow 4-2 to advance to Wednesday's semifinal against Indian River.

In addition to the Pandas' come-from-behind rally, the game featured three ejections. Two of which were Dragon pitchers.

Tied 1-1, the game was cruising along like any low-scoring state tournament tussle between two good teams normally does. Then came the fourth inning.

Glasgow pitcher and cleanup hitter Julie Van Deusen led off the fateful fourth with a sharp single to center field. It was her second hit of the game (her first drove in the Dragons' first run in the first inning).

Dawn Broderdorp followed with a single to short right field. Van Deusen hesitated on her way around second base and got caught between second and third as the throw came back to the infield. In the ensuing rundown, the Glasgow junior went back into second base only half sliding and appeared to shove the Padua player in an attempt to jar the ball loose. Base umpire Bill Kappa, not only called Van Deusen out at second, but immediately signaled that she was out of the game.

"That made a huge difference in the game," said Glasgow coach Larry Walker of the initial ejection. "Julie's a big loss for us pitching and hitting. I was mad at the time. But I guess it was a call that could have gone either way."

In one fell swoop, Glasgow lost its starting pitcher and its cleanup hitter.

Nevertheless, the Dragons continued the rally.

Lisa Scanlon followed Broderdorp with another single. She, however, was thrown out trying to go to second base.

With two outs and Broderdorp on third, Glasgow finally got a run home when Melissa Pettee's ground ball was misplayed.

The rally ended a batter later when Padua pitcher Julianne Lovejoy forced a weak ground ball.

In the inning, Glasgow sent five batters to the plate and four straight reached base safely. Yet the Dragons managed just one run.

Leading 2-1, Glasgow turned to right fielder Stacey Watson to protect the slim margin. Watson was no stranger to pitching. She compiled an impressive 5-0 record during the season.

Watson got the first out of the inning on an infield pop. The second batter singled to center field but was eventually ejected and called out for wearing a number different from what was written in the official scorebook.

"I thought it was a totally different player that they sent up there," Walker said. "That's why I said anything at all."

Watson got the third out on a ground ball and the game appeared to have regained stability.

Watson, however, led off the fifth. While batting, the Padua coaches noticed that Watson's number didn't match the one written the official scorebook either. That meant Watson — and the Dragons' second pitcher — was ejected as well.

"It's my own fault," Walker said. "I had transferred the numbers from our previous game on to this game's lineup. We had a change in the lineup a couple of games ago and I actually caught a mistake in our last game. But this time, I just didn't catch it."

"I still felt we had a chance with Stacey pitching. She had done a great job for us during the season. She was prepared for a situation like this."

Glasgow, however, had to turn to starting left fielder Lisa Scanlon — its third pitcher. Scanlon has pitched extensively in Canal Little League but had not seen any varsity action this season. In fact, the coaching staff and Scanlon's family had to scramble to find fingernail clippers between the fourth and fifth innings just to clip her nails so she could pitch.

Scanlon pitched a perfect fifth inning, retiring the side in order. However, Padua sent the meat of its order to the plate in the sixth and, on the strength of three hits, was able to score three times to take the lead.

Glasgow went down in order in the top of the seventh and the game — and Glasgow's season — was suddenly over.

"Lisa actually did a great job under very difficult circumstances," Walker said of Scanlon. "But after everything that happened to us, it would've taken a miracle to win."

"We played well, but there was no miracle."

Glasgow finished its season as the Blue Hen Conference Flight A champions and compiled a 17-3 record.

"This was the best group I've ever had," Walker said of this year's team and its accomplishments. "It's too bad it had to end this way. I'd rather have just gotten beat outright instead of all this controversy."

Historical Society honors Commonwealth

The Newark Historical Society presented Commonwealth Group with the Society's annual Service Award for the company's preservation and redevelopment of the old Farm & Home building on Main Street.

Commonwealth's project manager Michael Berninger said the building will be occupied by the Learning Station and two other retail stores, and will have apartments available by the end of August.

Commonwealth president Jeffrey Lang responded to community pleas to save the old building after consultant's said it could not be done. The new development retains the gutted and reinforced building with new construction around it.

The Service Award is given to individuals or corporations that have preserved the architectural integrity of old Newark buildings. "The award is the Newark Historical Society's way of recognizing the present while thinking of the past," said board member Erik Schaubach. Founded in 1981, the Society has more than 375 members.

Time to get rid of mold and mildew before summer

Has El Nino cursed your home and belongings with hidden patches of mold and mildew? Damp Rid encourages consumers to rid their homes and belongings of unwanted mold and mildew with help from their free Guide to Mold & Mildew Control available via a toll-free phone call to 1-888-DAMPRID.

The four-page guide answers questions such as: What conditions promote mildew growth? How do you remove mildew from surfaces throughout the home? And, what fabrics and materials are most susceptible to mildew damage?

Several examples of preventative measures from the Damp Rid guide include:

Keep the shower door or curtain open for a few minutes after a shower to dispel moisture. Spread shower curtains open so mold doesn't grow in the folds.

Leave bathroom ventilator fans running for 15 minutes after leaving shower or tub.

Hang wet towels up immediately and ensure they are spread out, and Use cooking area ventilators more frequently.

Damp Rid products are manufactured in Orlando, Florida, by Vapor Products, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Tetra Technologies, Inc., a publicly held company. Products are available at most large retail outlets where household products are sold, including grocery stores, mass merchandisers hardware/home centers, and drug stores. Vapor Products, Inc. is celebrating its 50th year in 1998.

education is the key to success in real estate," Langston said. "This Floyd Wickman course is the most advance training available, and my clients are worth the investment."

Langston began his career in 1993 and quickly established himself as one of the area's top producers. "With a wealth of knowledge and years of experience, Paul is a tremendous asset to our company," said general manager, Gary A. Scott.
