

Northern New Castle County Woods Face Vanishing Point By 1975, Experts Warn

If destruction of woods in northern New Castle County continues at the present rate, most woods will be gone by 1975. This is the prediction of a team of ecologists at the University of Delaware who have been studying uses and misuses of Delaware's woodlands.

In a publication just released by the Agricultural Experiment Station at the university they present findings of a study of woodland use and suggest possible solutions to the problems of woods destruction and abuse.

The publication, "Trees, Woods Urbanization and You" is authored by Dr. Paul Catts, Dr. Robert Jones and J. R. Longcore, researchers in the department of entomology and applied ecology.

The researchers conclude that urbanization is rapidly destroying the environment of northern New Castle County beyond recognition or recovery. They point to a two-mile wide "urban strip" along the Kirkwood Highway. The rate of woodland removal in this area between 1954 and 1962 was 108 acres per year. It increased to 305 acres per year between 1962 and 1965. Total wooded acreage dropped from 4,000 acres to 2,600 acres in 10 years.

Woods removal, mismanagement and overuse are changing the natural woodland character in this area, the authors state.

"In a sense, northern New Castle County is building itself into a concrete and macadam version of the Oklahoma dust bowl."

Examination of 36 woodlots in the urban strip revealed a great amount of human activity including digging, scraping, trampling undergrowth, logging, shooting, camping and horseback riding.

Researchers feel that much of this uncontrolled human use is incompatible with nature in that the wild character of the woods is changed, leaving it unsuitable for much of the wildlife that lives there, or for recreational purposes. They note that the greatest amount of abuse occurred along boundaries of small woods located near residential areas. "Much of this destruction appeared to have been done by grade school children."

Cats, who heads the ecology project, points out that more research is needed to establish the level of human use that a woods can tolerate. He believes that to maintain such areas for future generations will require intelligent, long-range planning.

Water Pollution Topic of Seminar Offered to Public

River Basin Commission Attorney to Offer Legal Aspects on Contamination

Attorney William Miller, general counsel to the Delaware River Basin Commission, will discuss "Legal Aspects of Water Pollution" at a Water Resources Seminar at the University of Delaware next Thursday.

The seminar, one of a monthly series, is scheduled at 8 p.m. in the Ewing Room of the Student Center and is open to the public without charge. An informal coffee period will precede the lecture.

Dr. Shantha Banerji, assistant professor of civil engineering and seminar coordinator, said Miller's topic is important because "in order to be able to solve water pollution problems, it is essential to establish legal grounds on which offenders can be tackled."

"It is unfortunate that in order to preserve the condition of our environment a big club in the form of legal proceedings has to be used before remedial measures are taken, but it will be a necessity until our society can stop violating the natural order."

Miller, a governmental consultant and practicing attorney of Princeton, N.J., was educated at New York University, where he is an adjunct professor of law. He was director of research and a faculty member at Princeton University, and has served as consultant to state and local governments in matters of public administration and finance, and as counsel to legislative committees and municipal bodies.

In his teaching, he specialized in municipal corporations and legislative bodies, and has prepared charters, administrative codes and tax studies for state and local governments.

He represented the State of New Jersey in drafting the Waterfront Commission Compact of New York Harbor, and served as consultant for legal and administrative studies to the bi-state Metropolitan Transit Commission of New York and New Jersey.

He is consultant to the New Jersey Commission on state policy, and to the Delaware River Basin Foundation and the Delaware River Basin Advisory Committee in preparation of the Delaware River Basin Compact.

"Imperatives in Education" Radio Series To Inform Public Upon School Problems

Newark school district officials report they have long realized that if they continue to have the outstanding support of the public which has characterized the district since the close of World War II, the public must be fully informed about problems facing the schools.

New Principal

Series host H. Nelson Freedly, and Producer-Director Philip A. Toman have been working since last May to make this largest undertaking in the three-year history of the broadcast, the most meaningful series presented on local radio.

"The infinite variety in the more than 11,000 children and youth in the Newark school district is more than just an incomprehensible statistic to be reasoned about, to be planned for, to be treated as a huge, impersonal entity," Toman said.

"There is a generation of youth from the boy-scouted girl next door, the halfback on the high school football team, the president of the senior class, the crippled boy, the habitual truant—and to think of a commitment to the youth of this generation is to think of a commitment to each and every one of them."

"To serve this generation of youth, to make every youngster know that he or she is really important and has a job to do, and to develop in everyone that the school reaches and serves, the understanding and the power needed to keep the economy productive and to keep democracy working in the year ahead—it is imperative to make urban life more rewarding and satisfying to prepare people for the world of work; to discover and nurture creative talent."

"It is imperative to strengthen the moral fabric of society; to deal with psychological tensions; to keep democracy working."

Star on City Water Tower Token of High Level Job

One of the most attractive and efficient Christmas displays in the city of electric light, placed high on the lofty City Water Tower under the Kirkwood Highway.

The display, the tower under the regime of Newark's first city manager, Orville F. Over, required some stellar steeplejacking — and placement of the Christmas star of lights was no easy matter, either, for earlarks.

The result of a cold and dangerous job is beautifully impressive.

Charles Dunham Advises On Soil for House Plants

Soil is a problem to many gardeners growing house plants. A soil-peat moss-vermiculite mixture used as a potting soil will help plants stay well-nourished and vigorous, according to Dr. Charles Dunham, associate professor in the department of horticulture at the University of Delaware.

Peat moss-soil and peat moss-vermiculite mixtures are frequently used and sold commercially for potting plants. Neither mixture works as well as a combination of all three ingredients—peat moss, soil and vermiculite.

Born near Kennett Square, Pa., he has lived in the Marmad area for the past 95 years. He is the oldest living member of White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church and Harmony Grange, and is a charter member of the Capt. William McKennan chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Ellen Pierson and Lynn Teitworth, both students at the University of Indiana, were home for the Christmas holidays.

The Y's Owl 4-H Club will meet tonight at 7 o'clock at the home of Alan Ellis in Alban Park. The program will feature a food demonstration.

Tommy Dorsey, U.S. Navy, was home on furlough for the holiday season with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Dempsey, Corner Ketch.

Timing Proves Key Weed Control Factor Cole, Wheatley Report on Soybean Study

Good timing makes the difference in soybean weed control. Just how important timing is was proved by research in 1965 at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation.

Dr. Richard Cole, chairman of the department of agronomy at the university, and L. E. Wheatley, graduate assistant, will report on this research at the Northeastern Weed Control Conference, Jan. 4-6, in New York City.

Wheatley compared soybean yields on test plots after controlling three types of weeds by hand hoeing.

When morning glories or similar weeds were the major problem, best yield was obtained if weeds were removed four weeks after planting and the plots were kept weed-free the rest of the season.

The yield of 46.4 bu. per acre under these conditions compares favorably with yields of 31.9 bu. on plots hoed only once at four weeks after planting.

Soybeans hoed every two weeks, beginning two weeks after planting, yielded 43.9 bu. per acre, while those hoed every two weeks beginning six weeks after planting produced 40.7

bu. per acre. Yields also decreased significantly if hoeing was delayed until eight or 10 weeks after planting, or if morning glories were hoed only once, no matter when the hoeing began, Wheatley stated.

Crabgrass control plots did about the same story as the morning glory tests.

Results with controlling large broadleaf weeds such as pigweed were different, Wheatley says. Greatest yields—36 bu. per acre—were obtained when hoeing began two weeks after planting, but once weeds were removed, further control proved unnecessary.

What does this research mean to soybean growers controlling weeds with herbicides? It indicates the need for early control before weeds get a head start, and need for combinations of herbicides to control differing types of weeds, Wheatley points out.

A pre-planting herbicide with long lasting activity is needed to control morning glories. A contact type herbicide might be applied several times with the same amount of control.

Crabgrass control requires the same types of herbicides. However, for controlling pigweed a contact herbicide without residual or long lasting activity should be adequate, according to Wheatley.

Fertilizer "Must" Cited by Mitchell For Corn Profits

Sound Fertilization Plan Required for State Farms To Profit With Corn Crop

Delaware corn growers used a record amount of fertilizer in 1966; yet average yields were lowest in more than a decade. Lack of rain, falling during July and August plus some scorching high temperatures in early July really hit the growers, most of whom were trying to recover from three or four losing seasons in a row.

A sound fertilization program is still a must if corn is to pay off for Delaware growers in 1967, according to Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

There has been a noticeable build-up of minerals in the soil during the past few years, he points out. This is especially true of phosphorus and potassium. Low yields caused removal of smaller amounts of minerals by harvested crops, and reduced rainfall cut leaching losses.

Minerals may be stored in the soil, but the only way growers can be sure of the amount present is to have their soil tested.

Mitchell urges growers to use the University of Delaware soil testing facilities to find out where they stand on mineral reserves.

Nitrogen doesn't accumulate readily in sandy, coastal plain soils. For this reason, farmers should plan to supply full nitrogen requirements during the coming season. On most soils this will be 100 to 110-lbs. of nitrogen, but on sandy, low water-holding soils, it may not be economical to use more than 50 to 75-lbs. of nitrogen.

If liberal fertilization has been practiced in the past, or if soil tests show phosphorus and potassium levels are high, a planter fertilizer high in phosphorus and potassium, applied at 200 to 250-lbs. per acre, will meet mineral requirements. This should be supplemented by nitrogen applied as liquid, gas or dry material.

Growers who find it necessary to use less fertilizer than needed for top yields should plan to apply some of it with a planter, Mitchell recommends. Planter applications always perform best under low fertility conditions, or where limited amount of fertilizer was used.

Growers following high fertility practices and aiming for top yields are assured of good results if all their fertilizer is plowed down. Loamy sand soils would be an exception, Mitchell notes. In this case, some of the nitrogen should be applied after planting as a surface of side dress application.

Standby Generator Offers Aid With Power Failure

Electric power failures don't often happen, and they usually don't last long. But any interrupted service may mean inconvenience and perhaps a considerable loss of money.

A standby generator on the farm makes sure important equipment will keep running despite any power failure, points out Tom Williams, rural utility defense specialist at the University of Delaware.

Claude E. Phillips
Author of Bulletin
For Weed Identity

Weeds are usually a problem in suburban lawns, but most weed pests can be controlled with a combination of good management and herbicides. Part of good lawn management is using the correct herbicide, but before a home gardener can use the correct material, he must know something about the weeds he's trying to get rid of. He should at least know which weed it is.

"How to Know Troublesome Lawn Weeds" is a recent bulletin written by Professor Emeritus Claude E. Phillips, former chairman of the department of agronomy at the University of Delaware.

Diagrams and a list of the characteristics of 30 of the most troublesome lawn pests are included in the publication.

The bulletin published by the cooperative extension service at the university, includes information on bulbous plants such as wild garlic and Star-of-Bethlehem. Ten common weeds with grass-like leaves are listed, including nutgrass, quackgrass, crabgrass and orchard grass. Copies are available from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

Kitchen Appliance
Use Tips Offered
By Coral Morris

If you found a new kitchen appliance under your Christmas tree, you were probably as delighted as your youngsters with their new toys. To enjoy it, get full value—use that appliance as often as you can, in as many ways as you can, advises Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Store the appliance where you can get at it easily. If you have to climb on a stepstool or pull everything else off the shelf to reach the appliance, you will never get in the habit of using it.

The place where the appliance is most commonly used should determine the storage space. Miss Morris points out. Toasters and juicers belong near the breakfast area, while fry pans and pressure saucers should be stored near the food preparation area.

An appliance may have several uses; don't limit it to the one with which you're most familiar. Check the instruction book for suggestions; they may make the appliance far more convenient and time-saving.

For example, an electric knife is just as useful in the kitchen as at the dining table.

There's even a right and a wrong way to plug in appliances; first be sure heat controls and moving parts are turned off, then put the plug into the appliance, and finally connect to the outlet. To disconnect, turn off the heat control or moving parts, remove the plug from the outlet and then from the appliance.

Be sure electric knives are unplugged before you remove the blades. Of course, no appliance should be filled with water unless completely disconnected; if the water should get into the connected socket, a short circuit could result. Protect your new appliance against falls and overheating; both shorten its life.

A quick rub with a damp cloth often removes grease and finger marks and keeps your new appliance shining. To clean nickel or chrome, rub gently with a soft cloth dipped in alcohol and whitening. Cream silver polish, special liquid wax for appliances, or ammonia diluted with water will work well.

Never use gritty abrasives on nickel or chrome and always allow the appliance to cool before cleaning.

Non-stick coated appliances need gentle handling during washing and during use, but most homemakers have decided they're worth the extra trouble, according to Miss Morris.

Apples Color Open-House Welcome

Festive-looking gorgeous Red and Golden Delicious apples, easily served on a moment's notice, are the order of the day or evening, as holidays surround us, fireplaces crackle with flames and the custom of open-house is, once again, a happy indulgence. Crisp-shipped in refrigerated cars in time for crackling-juicy holiday eating, the Washington Red and Golden Delicious are the most flavorful of partners for an assortment of favorite cheeses or cheese dips. For example, the Washington Golden Delicious variety (which stays white when sliced) combines its sweet and delicate flavor well with the Roquefort Dip. The Parsley-rolled Cheese Ball, surrounded with unpeeled Red Delicious crescents makes an easily-assembled red, green and white Christmas welcome for guests.

Roquefort-Roquefort Dip And Golden Slices
1/2 lb. Roquefort cheese 2 tbs. Madeira or Muscatel wine
1/2 cup mayonnaise 2 tps. shredded lemon peel
1 tsp. onion juice Washington apples*

Red Delicious Apple Slices With Cheese Ball

2 pints cottage cheese 1/2 cup chopped parsley
4 ounces blue cheese 4 Washington apples

Blend cottage cheese and blue cheese until mixture is smooth. Press into a round ball, roll in chopped parsley and chill until ready to serve. Place on platter and surround with slices of cored, unpeeled Washington apples, dipped in lemon juice to keep them white.

Teaching Resources Center Experiments Justify State's Television Instruction

Last spring, the Teaching Resources Center at the University of Delaware conducted an experiment for justification of televised instruction in service teaching courses in the State of Delaware.

Under the direction of Donald S. Campbell, instructional technologist, the center planned and video-taped an extension division course, "Basic Arithmetic Concepts for Elementary School Teachers," (Mathematics 250), making it the first locally-produced course to be distributed by the statewide closed-circuit television system, which all public schools in the state are equipped to receive.

Teachers, parents, and college students—188 ranging in age from 20 to 60—saw and heard Dr. G. Cuthbert Webber, H. Fletcher Brown professor of mathematics, for 15 one-hour afternoon sessions.

The general purpose of the course was to acquaint the elementary mathematics teachers with the "new math" on a rather sophisticated level. Rather than dwelling on methodology, Dr. Webber emphasized a sound understanding of the material, believing it would result in better teaching and comprehension.

In addition, those students registered to receive credit for the course were required to attend a weekly seminar held at 14 locations throughout the state on Thursday evenings, where they met with local university-appointed instructors to discuss the week's lesson and have questions answered.

Of the total participants, some of whom were "listeners," 102 students received a final grade.

At a seminar during the 14th week of the course, students were required to complete a questionnaire designed by the Teaching Resources Center to obtain attitudes toward televised instruction. Responses were machine-tabulated, providing data on strengths and weaknesses of the program.

While 90 per cent of the respondents found the course both valuable and interesting, and 36 per cent felt

Phillips, Cole, Rahn, Boys Head Course on Weeds

Graduates of a week short course held at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation were awarded certificates on Dec. 6. The graduates represented pesticide manufacturers, fertilizer companies, seed outlets and the extension service.

During the course, held for 12 successive weeks beginning in September, faculty members of the university's college of agricultural sciences gave an introduction to weed identification and control.

Professor emeritus of agronomy Claude E. Phillips, former chairman of the department of agronomy and agricultural engineering, taught the sessions on weed identification and control. Dr. R. H. Cole, chairman of the department, directed the meeting on corn and soybean herbicides.

E. M. Rahn, associate professor of horticulture, lectured on herbicide types, and Frank Boys, extension agricultural chemicals specialist, explained sprayer calibration and pesticide safety.

ATTIC CHECK

If you've moved into a new home this year, check your attic for condensed moisture. When a warm spell comes after a week or so of cold weather, any problems with condensation usually show up. Accumulated frost may melt and drip down through the ceiling, according to E. W. Walpole, assistant professor of agricultural engineering at the University of Delaware.

They had learned just as much by television as they would have in a traditional classroom with a "live" teacher, 30 per cent indicated they would rather have had a "live" teacher, and 31 per cent were otherwise indifferent.

More than 85 per cent of the respondents found the pacing of lesson materials to be about right, and indicated they seldom had difficulty understanding material.

Nine of 10 said they had no serious problem reading the material on the television screen.

The majority of students were rarely regretful of the time they had to spend with the course; 55 per cent indicated they found the weekly seminar a "useful complement to the television lesson," and 27 per cent thought the weekly meeting to be absolutely necessary.

Eleven courses are scheduled for completion through the spring semester. With responsibilities divided between them, instructional technologists Campbell and Hyman Field are producing in-service courses for teachers in the areas of mathematics and education for the exceptional child.

Other TV credit courses are being offered in the areas of political science, German, and English composition and literature.

A student who took the first in-service television course said "Mathematics has come alive for me since taking Math 250. The TV lessons have been enjoyable in spite of the impersonality of the TV set."

Christmas Trees Afford Usefulness After House Trim

To avoid danger of fire, remove the Christmas tree and other greens from the house as soon as possible after the Christmas holidays. However, instead of dumping the tree on the curb for the trashman to haul away, you can put it to further use in the garden, pointing out Dave Tattall, assistant agent in ornamental horticulture.

The tree can serve as a feeding station for hungry birds during lean weeks of winter. Simply set the tree up in the yard, securing it well to avoid toppling, and attach suet donuts and other appealing food items to the branches.

Place the tree so that it is easily seen from the house, yet where the birds may feed undisturbed.

An alternative is to cut branches from the tree and use them as a protective covering for garden plants. Small evergreen boughs also can be put to good decorative use by placing them in outdoor window boxes and planters. With occasional watering to prevent their drying out, they will give a cheerful appearance to the windows and the home for weeks.

On Christmas, many youngsters received their first, very own gun. The type of gun—BB, 22 cal. rifle, or shotgun—may vary, but in all instances the event was one of the most thrilling moments in the life of the boy or girl.

The first gun represents parental acknowledgment of their youngster's increased maturity. It is a grand occasion and one which is filled with adventure and excitement, but also an occasion imbued with responsibilities that such a gift demands—not only of the recipient but also of the giver.

The accountability of the giver—parent, relative or friend to the new owner, is related directly to the gift itself.

The youngster wishes to use the fine gift as soon as possible, just to see it work, and it is imperative that the giver sees that the first experience with the gun is conducted under safe conditions. The youngster must be able to handle the gun in such manner that it does not constitute the slightest hazard to anyone or anything. He or she must be taught gun safety, and it is the duty of the giver to insure that the recipient receives proper firearms instructions.

The best way for a youngster to be taught the best in firearms safety and to learn proper marksmanship techniques, is to become a member of a National Rifle Association affiliated junior rifle club. It is in this environment that a new gun owner can receive continued shooting supervision under the guidance of skilled, responsible NRA instructors.

The NRA, the governing body of competitive rifle and pistol shooting in the United States, is a non-profit organization supported by nearly 800,000 members and more than 12,500 affiliated clubs.

Established in 1871, the NRA is the oldest sportsmen's association in the United States and promotes recreational and competitive shooting, small arms marksmanship training, and home and hunter safety.

A great source of pride to the NRA is the excellent performance in the area of safe gun-handling by junior members. Proper range facilities, trained instructors and adherence to disciplines enforced in organized target shooting have made it possible for millions of boys and girls to take part in the junior marksmanship program.

Started in 1926, it has a safety record unequalled in any other sport. An alternative to immediately joining a junior rifle club is to sign up for a gun course in a Christmas Gun Course sponsored in many communities by NRA affiliated clubs.

All those who own guns and enjoy the many satisfactions derived from their recreational use have a stake in assisting new gun owners to become shooters to obtain a proper knowledge of gun safety. Every accident with a firearm reflects on all shooting and every shooter.

Firearms accidents are less than 1.3 per 100,000 according to the National Safety Council. Under proper supervision, firearms accidents are almost non-existent.

Carelessness, ignorance and selfishness are the basis for most accidents.

Accidents with guns are brought to the attention of the American public usually in an emotional, sensational manner. Therefore, it is the responsibility of the shooting fraternity.

THE ORANGE BOWL

"That football game has been going on steadily for two days," Elisabeth informed our guest Sunday night, as a very nice daughter walked into the den where we were watching the University of Florida Gators beat the Georgia Tech in the Orange Bowl.

Last but not least of the many bowl games last weekend, the Orange Bowl encounter was a real classic—particularly from the standpoint of our ex-Gator guest, Steve Spurrier—"Superior" as Auburn's coach pronounces his name—was all that he has been acclaimed, and 216-lb. Sophomore Halfback Larry Smith was terrific.

Ed Firchak and Lee Swayze with 27 and 26 points paced Coach Al Mann's undefeated Vikings to their second win of the Blue Hen Conference campaign last Tuesday night in the Christiana gym, as the Vikings valiantly won the Wilmington High School's 2-45.

Christiana moved into a 13-4 first period lead, and were on top 35-18 at the half.

Mann's men face a pair of home stands—with 0-2 Dickinson this Friday night, and with 1-0 Gunning Bedford of the conference B-Flight next Tuesday. Varsity games are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

ternity to promote safety, and insure proper attitude, act always in a safe manner when a firearm is present.

Shooting, unlike many other competitive sports, does not require great physical strength or special characteristics. One of its most appealing features is that all competitors, boys and girls, compete on an equal basis. However, a necessary quality for all shooters is mental discipline, i.e., the ability to listen and learn.

Further, a positive mental approach to firearm safety is the most important lesson to be learned and practiced by all new gun owners. The gift of a rifle at Christmas represents more than mere presentation of an inanimate object. It is giving a means to obtain great personal satisfaction; an opportunity for competitive excellence; and an instrument of lifelong enjoyment.

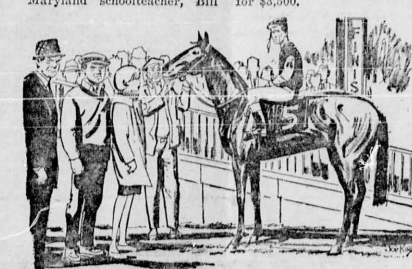

The giving of this Christmas gun entails the irrevocable moral responsibilities that accompany such a gift. It is the duty of the donor to insure that the young recipient fully realizes the obligations of his or her Christmas rifle.

It is not too late. For further information contact your local sporting goods dealer, local NRA affiliated club or write the National Rifle Association, 1600 Rhode Island Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day A Losing Victory

Pictures taken in the winners' circle are usually aglow with the elation of the subjects. Sometimes even the horse looks happy. In the April issue of the Maryland Horse official publication of the Maryland Horse-Breeders Association, there is a photo that probably made photographer Jerry Frutkoff do a "double take." Six people, including Jockey Eddie McVoy, stand in the winner's circle with a filly named Mycint and there's not a smile in the lot. Instead, McVoy, trainer Bob Cremen and writer Charles McGinnis, a friend of the owner who actually trained Mycint, are glaring at the cameraman as though he were pointing a gun. McGinnis' story which accompanies the picture tells why.

Coach Don Harnum's 5-1 Blue Chick Five Offers Real Hope for Future at Delaware

Delaware's basketball outlook seems to be improving and one of the major reasons for optimism in the Blue Hen camp is the performance of this year's freshman team.

Coach Don Harnum's fresh have a 5-1 record with wins over Glassboro, Lafayette, Lehigh, PMC and Rutgers, and a loss to the Penn freshmen, and the Blue Chicks are averaging 95.3 points per game.

Harnum has been getting consistent firepower from Center Ed Roth (24.1 points per game); Guard Loren Pratt (22.6), and Forward John McMillen (19.9).

Glenn Walker (6.1) and Dave Yates (7.3) have shared the other guard post, while Bill Cordery (5.5) and Doug Merchant (7.3) have handled the other forward job.

Roth, a 6-6 former Towson (Md.) High School standout, leads the team in scoring with his 24.1-point average and in rebounding with 12.5 per game. His top performance was a 35-point, 19-rebound effort in a win over the Lafayette freshmen.

Roth has hit 56 of 108 from the floor and 33 of 46 from the foul line.

Pratt, who came to Delaware from Maywood, Ill., by way of Bullis Prep, has been the playmaker of the team. An agile 6-3 athlete, Pratt can play either guard or forward.

He has connected on 51 of 85 field goal attempts for a near phenomenal 60 percent accuracy from the floor, and in shooting 72.3 per cent from the foul line, has converted 34 of 47 attempts.

McMillen, a slim 6-5 ballhawk from Media, Pa., leads the team in steals with 16 and is second to Roth in rebounding with 10.6 per game in addition to his 19.9-point average.

A product of John Hershey School in Hershey, Pa., McMillen is hitting at a 56.2 per cent clip from the floor on 41 baskets in 73 attempts, and has converted 75 per cent of his free throws with 36 of 48.

Walker, a graduate of A.I. du Pont High School, and former Mount Pleasant High Guard Yates have been battling it out for a place in the back court with Pratt. Yates

Brown, Mitchell Pace NHS Cagers But Knights Win

With Mark Brown and Ron Mitchell each scoring 13 points, Coach Francis Fulghum's Yellowjackets managed a season high offensive for 3-0 Mt. Pleasant's opponents last Tuesday night on the Green Knights' floor—but the Blue Hen Conference A-light leaders won their third game, 72-47.

Trailing, but not by much, in the 16-11 first quarter, the Newark High School cagers fell from contention in the second period with Mt. Pleasant leading 37-21 at the half.

Viking Wrestlers Win YMCA Titles In State Tourney

Three Christiana High School wrestlers won titles last week in the Delaware State High School Wrestling Development Tournament at the Central YMCA in Wilmington. Monte Baldwin defeated Kempksi 6-5 for the 120-lb. championship; Bill Rust won a 4-0 decision over Newark High School's Terry Dooran for the 138-lb. title; and Dick Morris stopped teammate Jeff Heath 10-7 at the 154-lb. champ.

Harold Wilkins, Jr. Wins YMCA Mat Tourney Title

Harold Wilkins, Jr., son of the Newark Post's compositor, won the 103-lb. championship in the Delaware State High School Wrestling Developing Tournament last week at the Central YMCA in Wilmington. A Conrad varsity wrestler, the junior Harold stopped Palmer 4-0 in the finals last Friday night.

TV "Game of the Week" Planned by ACFL in '67

NEWARK, N. J. — The Atlantic Coast Football League (ACFL) is planning both radio and television coverage for one "ACFL game of the Week" during 1967.

The ACFL is screening and evaluating new franchise applications in both the northern and southern divisions, and working agreements with NFL and AFL teams are now finalized.

The ACFL, considered the oldest minor professional football league in operation, has received eight formal applications for membership.

has started the last three games and now leads the team in assists with 19 and is second to McMillen in steals.

Merchant, a 6-5 forward from Riverside (N.J.) High School, started the season in the regular lineup; but was benched by the Cordery, former Delaware high school scoring champion.

Cordery, who averaged 28.6 points per game in his career at Milton High School, started slowly with the freshmen but has been impressive in his last outings.

The Blue Chicks are to host the Drexel freshmen on Jan. 4, and Harnum is hopeful that the rest will enable him to make greater use of Bob Young in the second half of the season.

Young, a 6-4 forward from Milford Mill High School in Baltimore, has been hampered by an ankle injury. Harnum also hopes that the break won't cool his team's hot hands. The frosh have been hitting better than 50 per cent from the floor and 70 per cent from the foul line.

Dan Peterson's Delaware Blue Hens Win Pocono Classic Basketball Tourney Title

Coach Dan Peterson's Blue Hens won the Pocono Classic Basketball Tournament at East Stroudsburg, Pa., last week, defeating the defending champions of East Stroudsburg 83-73 on Thursday night.

The University of Delaware cagers stopped Cortland 89-81 in the opening round of the tournament with 6-8 Junior Kenn Barnett scoring 34 points and collecting 11 rebounds.

Delaware defeated West Chester 83-71 to gain the finals.

Trailing by three points at the half, the Blue Hens outscored the Rams 49-34 in the final two periods.

Delaware won the game on the boards, just where first-year Coach Dan Peterson said they would have to.

"That's the story of the game," said Peterson noting the Hens' 62-53 edge in rebounding. "We didn't shoot well."

The trio of Charley Parnell, Mark Waganman and Kenn Barnett accounted for 46 Hen retrieves.

Parnell, a 6-1 junior, grabbed 19 rebounds, two more than 6-7 Waganman.

The Hens then disposed of defending champion East Stroudsburg to secure the Pocono Classic crown—Delaware's first basketball tourney title within memory.

"It was definitely our best job of the year," an enthused Peterson said.

"We're finally jelling after all that early juggling. Our defense and

Hen Cage Strength

Three newcomers—Kenn Barnett, Charley Parnell and Mark Waganman—dominate Delaware basketball statistics after seven games.

The three players, all junior college transfer students, are the only Blue Hens scoring in double figures so far this season. The trio also leads the team in rebounding.

Barnett, a 6-9 junior from Braidwood, Ill., was averaging 24.8 points per game through the Hens' first four contests. The lanky center sprained an ankle in the Delaware victory over Navy and missed the next two games. He scored only one point in a brief appearance in the Hens' loss to Rutgers last week to drop his average for five games to an even 20 points per game.

A former All-State performer at Reed-Cluster High School in Braidwood, Ill., Barnett's top effort this year was 33 points against Lafayette, with 14 rebounds.

Barnett is the team leader in field goal percentage and points per game and is tied with Waganman in rebound average.

Waganman, a 6-6 junior from Lititz, Pa., moved into the starting lineup when Barnett was injured and has been the Blue Hens' top point producer for three games in a row. The powerful forward-center has boosted his scoring average to 11.7 points per game and is the team's leading rebounder with 66 for a 9.4 average. He is top man in total rebounds and is second to Barnett in field goal percentage.

Parnell, a junior guard from Cleveland, leads the team in points scored, field goals and free throw percentage. The East Tech High School product is averaging 18.9 points per game.

Captain Bill Morley is fourth in the scoring department with 7.1 points per game. The Toms River, N.J., senior is third in rebounding with 47 and a 6.7 per game average.

Delaware has managed only 38.4 per cent from the floor and 66.8 per cent from the foul line. The Hens hold a 348-320 edge in rebounding.

rebounding really made the difference, but the boys did an outstanding job on offense, too, meeting the various defenses East Stroudsburg threw at us.

"We played like champions in that second half. We pulled away with that 14-1 spurt late in the game and that's the mark of a real champion—when the pressure's on, you put the game out of reach."

Led by Barnett, who made the All-Tournament team and topped all scorers with a three-game total of 89 points, five Hens scored in double figures.

Barnett took game honors with 31, but Charley Parnell chipped in 16, Vic Orth added 14, Mark Waganman contributed 12 and Walt Cloud came in off the bench to tally 10 for Delaware.
