The first one-act play, Jean Paul Sartre's "No Exit," has been adapted to the Readers' Theater format for this production by Dr. D. Duane Angel of the department of dramatic arts and speech.

This will be the first Readers' Theater production by E-52 this year, employing techniques viewed last year in "A Theatre Carnival" and "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Dog."

The cast will include Cathy Tracy of Newark.

This play was originally produced off-Broadway in tandem with "The Typist," another one-act play by the same author. Together they earned the author overnight recognition as an important voice in the American theatre.

"The Tiger" will be directed by Diane Friedman, freshman drama major from Wilmington. The two-character cast is comprised of George Lytle of Wilmington and Sarah Whedbee of Denver, Colo.

Both actors appeared in "The Adding Machine," and Miss Whedbee also appeared in the female lead of "Kiss Me, Kate."

$50,000 Awarded By DuPont To Aid High School Youth

Additional College Students
Sought With U.D. Program
For Culturally Deprived

The DuPont Company has awarded a grant of $50,000 to the University of Delaware for its newly developed plan to identify and assist potentially able high school students among the generally deprived of Northern Delaware.

The university is to attempt to identify students of potential leadership and educational ability who have not made these qualities apparent. They will be students between 11th and 12th grades who would not normally go on to college because of poor motivation and unfavorable background.

The program will be administered at the university by the division of urban affairs and the college of education in cooperation with public school officials and other educational agencies in Delaware.

Students will live on campus for part of the summer and get remedial work while there, particularly in English and mathematics. This will be followed by continued efforts during the following year to help them prepare for entrance to a college or university, and to succeed once they have entered.

"We hope this will lead to an increased supply of educated people available for employment, particularly scientists and engineers," said Dr. Paul L. Salzberg, chairman of DuPont's committee on educational aid, and director of the company's central research department.

"We hope also that this opportunity for education will lead to development of more leaders for the community."

"Widening Horizons" Offers 16 Topics For Public Choice Next Wednesday Eve

Dr. George V. Kirk, chairman of the 1966 Widening Horizons program for the Newark special school district, has announced a departure from past years in that the program will be open to the public and will be held evenings to enable the public and families of teachers to attend. In the past school has been dismissed early and the program held for teachers at 2 p.m.

"Widening Horizons" will be offered next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Christiana High School.

"Widening Horizons" is a program designed to do exactly what the name implies—to extend one's field of interest and to make those attending more aware of the world around them," Kirk said.

This year, 16 topics are being offered in various interest areas. There is no charge for these features to be offered at Christiana High School at the intersection of Salem Church and Chapman roads in Newark.

The topics for selection next Wednesday are:

"Nine Days in April, 1865 and 1965, Petersburg to Appomattox: A Century Later" plus an exhibit of Civil War memorabilia.

It is scheduled for three performances in Mitchell Hall beginning Feb. 10.

In addition to Lynn Wolfe and Patricia Kuntz in the roles of Elvira and Ruth, the UDG production will feature Pat Devlin as beleaguered husband Charles Condomine, and Molly Bray as the madcap medium, Madame Arcati.

Other roles will be played by Mike Reges, Ann Robinson, and Janey Bratton.

Because the play is the perfect choice for theatre parties, Dr. C. Robert Kase advises that special arrangements are being made to accommodate groups large and small. Inquiries should be addressed to Col. Donald Dutton, UDG business manager, Mitchell Hall, University of Delaware.

Debate On Parking Authority To Be Continued Next Monday

General Approval Expressed For Creation Of Newark Parking Authority; Council Meeting Recess Declared Until Next Week With Vote Slated On Zoning Proposal

Opposition to a proposed ordinance for rezoning a 7.23-acre tract from RS residential and Business C to RM for construction of apartments west of South College Avenue and east of the Christiana Creek between Welsh Tract Baptist Church and West Chestnut Hill roads, was expressed, along with general approval for creation of a Newark Parking Authority at the regular meeting of Newark City Council last Monday night, and the meeting was recessed at 11 p.m. until next Monday night without a vote on either measure.

"And by the way, you have earned your money tonight, Buddy!" Mayor Joseph A. Shields commended Solicitor Clyde M. England, Jr., for his response to a barrage of legal questions concerning the proposed parking authority.

Ben Vinton, Jr., of Commonwealth Realty, developer of the tract proposed for rezoning to permit apartment house construction, presented plans of the project, and cited State Highway Department statements to the effect that chances for flood will be 50 per cent less in the area with Vinton's proposed housing units.

Flood Flow Folly

Francis M. Sullivan in the audience, chairman of the municipal parks committee, objected to proposed construction with "it's folly to argue with flood flow." Sullivan said that construction of apartments will take space needed for drainage in the flood plain, and cited future costs to be faced by the city with necessary flood control and corrective measures.

Robert E. Snyder in the audience, also a member of the parks committee, expressed the "hope that we can have parkland along that stream, and hope that we may sit down with you and construct a plan for the first time a comprehensive park plan for the city."

Councilman Henry R. Folsom, Jr., said that the city had already received such a plan, and Snyder questioned its favorable comprehensive companion with that of the program to be presented.

A joint meeting between council and the parks committee was scheduled for Feb. 3, but a vote on the proposed ordinance to rezone the tract to RM is scheduled for next Monday night.

Opposition

"I don't think houses or apartments should be put on this land because of the major costs for flood protection," Councilman David H. Doehrlert declared, presenting maps indicating flood potential.

And Folsom said, "The zoning is a restriction on a person's rights," in calling for a vote next Monday after receipt of engineering and flood data.

Councilman Olan R. Thomas opposed the 6-1 vote for next Monday's action.

Creation of a Newark Parking Authority to provide additional parking area in the city, was questioned but generally approved by speakers in the audience with the second reading of a proposed ordinance. "Identical insofar as applicable with a restriction on a person's rights," Solicitor England explained.

One of the principal advantages of the parking authority is its ability to function independently of the city without taxing the municipal budget, England said. The authority will have the power of eminent domain; borrowing power; and the five members to be appointed by the mayor will operate under state law with no restriction by council, county, or state government.

Hugh F. Gallagher, Jr., in the audience expressed concern that the "parking authority will end up with too much authority without checks and balances by city council," and urged consideration of a locally controlled rather than a state incorporated, unrestricted body to function for parking.

GOITER

A goiter is an enlargement of the thyroid gland causing a swelling in the front part of the neck.

Many years ago observers noted the absence of goiter and other thyroid disfunctions among people living on the seacoast or on islands far removed from the mainland. Naturally the diet of these people consisted largely of fish and other sea food. One of the chief characteristics of sea food is its iodine content, and iodine is essential for health and growth.

It was noted also that among the inhabitants of some inland areas the incidence of goiter was very high. Here the condition was clearly caused by the lack of iodine. It took many years to link up this high incidence of goiter in inland regions with the lack of iodine in the soil and water.

There are many other types of goiters and laboratory tests may be necessary to determine their cause. Iodine is an essential part of the secretion of the thyroid gland. The type of goiter that can be helped by adding iodine to the diet or by feeding thyroid extract is called simple goiter.

There is another type that is much more serious. Known as exophthalmic goiter, this condition is recognized by protruding eyes, and increase in the size of the neck—sometimes becoming quite large and disfiguring.

The individual may be emaciated in spite of a ravenous appetite. He is overenergetic and extremely nervous.

If goiter is treated early, it will sometimes shrink or disappear through proper medication. In some cases surgical removal may be recommended, or some form of radiation may be used.

You should keep in mind that any swelling in the neck should have prompt medical attention.

State Purchases Woodburn

For Governor's Mansion

One of the most famous houses on the Delmarva Peninsula has been purchased by the State of Delaware and is now in use as the Governor's Mansion. Since built in the 18th century in the state capital at Dover, it has been known as Woodburn.

One of the loveliest examples of Georgian architecture on the Eastern seaboard, legend is that it was the scene of one of Patty Cannon's last raids in rounding up free Negroes to sell into slavery.

Restoration by the state is practically complete, and Gov. and Mrs. Charles L. Terry, Jr., are in residence there, since the recent holidays.

The state bought the place for $65,000.

Butterfly, Drugs And Fear,
Milky Way Feature Talks
By Stegner, Cicala, Herr

"They would rather starve than switch" is how a University of Delaware professor described Monarch butterfly larva preference for milkweed leaves.

Dr. Robert W. Stegner, assistant professor of education and biological sciences, was one of three faculty members speaking Saturday at an annual luncheon meeting of the University of Delaware Research Foundation in the Student Center.

Other speakers, describing research work being supported by UDRF, were Dr. George A. Cicala, associate professor of physics, and Dr. Richard B. Herr, assistant professor of physics.

Stegner briefly traced the life cycle of the familiar orange and black Monarch butterfly for some 150 UDRF members, faculty, and administrators.

The insect migrates as far as 1,800 miles from Canada to Florida. Females lay eggs only on the milkweed plant, which later provides food for the larva. Contrary to some expert opinion, Monarchs do reproduce throughout the year.

Stegner told about some of his work to duplicate diet, temperature, and lighting conditions of the Monarch's habitat, in his Alison Hall laboratory.

Cicala, speaking on "Effects of Drugs on Learned Fear," cautioned about hazards of generalizing results of his findings. He has found that some drugs seem to reduce the level of fear, but said they may also prevent the learning of adaptive fear responses.

Herr described "Some Aspects of the Structure of the Milky Way

Family Nutrition Farm-Home Week Topic For Sipple

Today's families eat foods preserved and prepared in ways not dreamed of 50 years ago. Modern food technology offers a supermarket full of new foods and old foods in new forms.

These foods have become a part of today's way of living. However, many homemakers are concerned about nutritional value of modern diets.

A special program designed to answer their questions will be featured at University of Delaware Farm and Home Week on Feb. 10.

Dr. Horace L. Sipple, executive director of the Nutrition Foundation, Inc., will discuss getting your money's worth in nutrition from present-day foods, and impact of food sciences and technology on nutrition.

He believes that nutrition, not convenience, is the most important affect of modern technology on today's diets.

Sipple will include information on non-caloric sweeteners; importance of food additives and their effect on food values; effects of irradiation and freeze-drying on nutritional values; and the role of fat in the diet.

26,957 Provided With Surplus Food During December

Delaware's surplus food program supplied 305,511 pounds of food to 26,957 people during December.

Brig. Gen. D. Preston Lee, chairman of the state distribution agency, said that 6,438 families picked up food during the month from 18 distributing points throughout the state.

There were 8,428 families certified as eligible to receive the food.

All December food was distributed before the Christmas holidays.

Since the new state agency became responsible for the surplus food program last July, it has distributed over 1-3/4 million pounds of food to low income families.

An additional 166,094 pounds of food went to Delaware schools for use in the lunch program.

VA Pensioners Warned On Pay Discontinuance

The Veterans Administration today warned veterans and dependents of deceased veterans on VA pension rolls that they run the risk of having their monthly payments discontinued if they fail to return income questionnaire forms mailed with November checks.

They may even have to pay back the money received in 1965, Manager Leon Fields of the Wilmington VA regional office said.

They must be returned by Jan. 31, and the VA asks that the card not be folded because it must run through automatic data processing machines.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS

This advice from the Delaware Motor Club AAA is based on a study of 5,200 single-car accidents reported recently by the Highway Research Board which disclosed that your chances of being involved in a single-car highway mishap are about 2 1/2 times greater if you are driving alone.

How telephone expansion creates customers for everything

To keep your telephone service one of the biggest bargains in your family or business budget we need the most advanced equipment and facilities. That's why we plan to spend in 1966 an estimated $11 million in expansion and improvement alone—the 3rd consecutive year in which this figure has exceeded $10 million in Delaware.

In addition, we'll purchase supplies and services to the tune of about $5 million from some 850 Delaware firms, much of this through the Western Electric Company, the manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System.

Growth in the telephone business helps other businesses grow; creates jobs, and increases buying power.

The economy of Delaware will be further supported by the largest payroll in company history, exceeding the 1965 payroll figure of $11 million by a substantial margin.

Nearly 1,400 employees and their families will spend these wages almost entirely in Delaware . . . for food, clothing, housing, appliances, automobiles, leisure, just about anything you can name. Most of it in their local communities.

So there's another way of looking at the telephone people of Delaware—as providers of a vital service and as a 16 million dollar customer. Either way, a major contribution.

Sessions Offered On Income Taxes To Assist Farmer

Two meetings to help farmers and those who assist farmers in filing their federal income tax reports, have been scheduled.

Sessions sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Delaware and the Internal Revenue Service, will be held at Crothers Brothers Store, Mt. Pleasant, starting at 7:30 p.m. next Monday, and at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 18 at the First National Bank of Harrington.

Both meetings will be conducted by representatives of the Internal Revenue Service who will discuss new provisions of the tax laws as they relate to farmers. They will also provide expert opinions on special tax problems.

All of the tax forms needed for farm income tax reporting will be available at the meetings. Those who attend will be given the 1965 Farmer's Tax Guide.

W. T. McAllister, university farm management specialist responsible for meeting arrangements, points out that this program affords an excellent way to brush up on federal income tax regulations and get answers to specific tax questions.

CONGRATULATIONS — WELCOME — AND THANKS!

With the special election conducted Tuesday for a councilman to serve Bill Coverdale's unexpired term as first district representative, congratulations are in order for contestants C. Vernon Steele, the victor, and for John F. Link, the loser.

It takes a big bit of doing to become a nominee for the exacting, near-thankless, and paltry-paying job as councilman for the City of Newark—and John Link and Vernon Steele are to be congratulated for their public spirited efforts.

Welcome back to the council table, Vernon—and thanks, John, for accepting the interim appointment; for serving so well; and for seeking an elective term.

Seven NHS Pupils Win Early Acceptance In College Entrance Board Examinations

Seven Newark High School students have been notified of their acceptance to college under the early admissions plan requiring College Entrance Board Examinations.

The seven students and their choice of college are Janet Rush, Mount Holyoke; Emily Trappnell, William Smith; Susan Gutzat, Gettysburg; Mary Jane Davis, Lake Erie; Tim Clement, University of Maine; and Cynthia Mueller and Kim Thorn, University of Delaware.

Early admission is based almost entirely on evidence of performance and ability indicated by scores on the college board exams.

Normally, colleges requiring these examinations notify applicants in late April.

Janet plans to work chiefly in English and political science at Mount Holyoke. She is a member of the National Honor Society, Buzz staff, and American Field Service committee. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rush.

Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gutzat, is copy editor of Kraven, a member of the National Honor Society, and plays tennis and volleyball. She will concentrate in English and history at Gettysburg.

Emily Trappnell, who plans to major in English at William Smith College in Geneva, N. Y., is senior class secretary, managing editor of Kraven, president of Theta-Chi Tri-Hi-Y, and a member of Student Council. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Trappnell.

Two Nigerian Youths Study Agriculture At U. of D. To Aid Farming Back Home

Two young Nigerians studying at the University of Delaware may some day influence agricultural progress of their native country. George Oloaogba and Enegide Nwaiku are enrolled in the department of agricultural sciences, and plan to study in the United States for at least three years.

Following graduation, Oloaogba and Nwaiku will return to their country and help train agricultural leaders as well as the Nigerian farmers themselves.

Enegide Nwaiku says that what they learn at the university will greatly assist them in teaching many of their people ways to increase farm production, and "We must increase our use of modern agricultural technology," George Oloaogba adds.

The western and mid-western Nigerian ministries of agriculture and natural resources, and the U. S. Agency for International Development jointly sponsor these two students.

After receiving their bachelor degrees in agriculture, Nwaiku and Oloaogba will be qualified to work for ministries in one of the agricultural research stations, in the agricultural extension service, or on the staff of an agricultural school, or on a development project at a farm institute.

Prior to his arrival in the United States, Nwaiku was an agricultural superintendent in charge of the cotton program in his district in the mid-western ministry.

Oloaogba was an agricultural assistant, working with dairies and maintaining poultry and livestock buildings.

Nwaiku and Oloaogba came to the United States in August. "We expected the United States would be marvelous—and it is," Oloaogba says.

The students agree that they have found many differences between Nigerian and American cultures. Some differences were evident as soon as they stepped ashore; others are harder to see, according to Nwaiku. "Everything seemed to be mechanized; traffic was hard to get used to at first," he says.

One of the cultural differences they noticed was American children's comparative freedom from responsibility. Children in Nigeria are raised to feel much more obligated to serve their parents, Nwaiku notes. Of course, Nwaiku said, American teenagers seem less shy and much better able to meet new people and new situations. The oldest boy in each family is particularly responsible for his brothers and sisters, he added. Nwaiku is himself the eldest in a family of seven children.

Both hope to get to know many Americans while in the United States. "The scenery must be beautiful, but we are more interested in the people," Oloaogba says.

They spent their first American Christmas in Philadelphia attending a special program designed to help students from all over the world get acquainted.

Trio At Chrysler Presented Awards For Achievements

Three executives of Chrysler Corporation received the 1966 AT Outstanding Career Achievement Awards in presentations at the Detroit Athletic Club on Jan. 10 according to Hartley W. Barclay, editor and publisher of Automotive Industries Magazine.

The three recipients were chosen because of the all-time record performance of Chrysler in 1965 in exceeding $5-billion gross volume, and the complete turn-around made by the company under the present management team since 1961.

Awards were presented to George H. Love, chairman of the board, for distinguished and outstanding achievement in public service; to Lynn A. Townsend, president, for distinguished public services in engineering, management and manufacturing; and to Virgil E. Boyd, vice-president, domestic automotive, for outstanding achievement in administration and marketing.

ALIENS' ADDRESSES

The Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 requires all aliens in the United States, except diplomats, persons officially connected with international organizations of which the United States is a member, and those admitted temporarily as agricultural laborers, to report addresses during January of each year. Address report cards may be obtained at any U. S. Post Office.

Dog Care, Horses Feature Programs Free For Public

Feb. 8-11 Farm-Home Week To Include Special Events On Canine, Equine Problems

A dog may be man's best friend, but man is often his own dog's worst enemy. Unless a dog owner knows how to care for and train his pet, it may be in poor health and a neighborhood nuisance. A well-informed pet owner can insure a rewarding association for both master and pet.

A meeting on dog care and training on Feb. 8 at 8 p.m. will be one of the highlights of University of Delaware Farm and Home Week at Agricultural Hall, with Dr. E. Jeffries Hathaway, veterinarian with the Wilmington Animal Hospital, discussing general health of dogs. He will deal with vaccination and shots for the prevention of rabies and distemper, and general hygiene and sanitation.

Major Wilson Davies, well-known Maryland dog trainer, will describe methods used in dog obedience training.

For the seventh year, programs devoted to horsemanship also will be a highlight of Farm and Home Week. A tour of farms raising registered quarter horses, standard bred horses, thoroughbreds, and a stud barn is offered Thursday, Feb. 10. Members of the Equestrian Club will demonstrate games with horses on Thursday evening.

Speakers on the light horse program on Friday, Feb. 11, include Tom Merritt, Pennsylvania State University, who will discuss selection and management of horses; and Dr. J. H. Drude, University of Kentucky, who will describe certain medical treatments.

Eugene Layton, retired at Cornell University; and Dr. W. H. Mitchell, assistant professor of agronomy at the University of Delaware, will speak on the light horse program. Increasing urban pressures on Delaware agriculture also will be discussed during Farm and Home Week.

Sessions on home economics, home landscaping, and agricultural topics, in addition to woodlot and computer center tours, are planned for the four-day event, Feb. 8-11.

Admission is free and open to the public without charge.

State Constitution Reports To Feature LWV Meetings

Mrs. Loraine Olson will chair the two discussions covering her committee's findings with regard to the Delaware State Constitution on Jan. 19 at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Ruth Nichols, and on Jan. 20 at 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Barbara Greenfield.

A particular study was chosen by Delaware leagues as their state study item for the year.

Unit meetings are open to all league members to non-members.

Woodwind Quintet Scheduled Sunday For Artists Series

A few seats are still available for next Sunday's opening of the 1966 Artists Series at the University of Delaware's Mitchell Hall.

The Sunday night concert by the Philadelphia Woodwind Quintet will be the first of five attractions in the 17th season. The series was interrupted last year because of remodeling of Mitchell Hall.

The performance at 8:15 p.m. will feature chamber music by leading players of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Quintet members—all first chairs with the orchestra—are Anthony Giliotti, clarinet; Bernard Garfield, bassoon; Mason Jones, French horn; John DeLancie, oboe; and Murray Panitz, flute.

For this performance only, there will be some single admission tickets at the box office on the night of the concert. There also are some season tickets for the five performances.

Following the Philadelphia Woodwind Quintet, concerts will include the Baltimore Symphony on Feb. 22; Cellist Guy Fallot, March 20; Contralto Louise Parker, April 15; and Pianist Maryann Filor on May 3.

Helping Hand from March of Dimes Makes Little Girl's Tasks Easier

How to get out of drying dishes is an art most little girls try to perfect early in life.

But one little Baltimore girl has worked very hard for the "privilege" of helping mommy in the kitchen.

Indeed, any chore that requires the use of two hands is a delight for five-year-old Linda Whitecotton, who had only one until last year.

The little blonde beauty is a congenital amputee. She has no right hand, only useless, knuckle-like bumps at the wrist. She does have a good left hand and, as a toddler, learned to use it with double-duty dexterity.

But because both hands are needed for so many things like dressing dolls or drying dishes, the simplest activity often became a frustrating trial for Linda.

"She'd work so hard to make one hand do the work of two, it was sometimes heart-breaking to watch," says her mother, Joan Whitecotton.

Because Robert Whitecotton, her father, was in military service when Linda was an infant, the family moved often. Whenever they sought help for Linda, they found themselves involved in unending debate about the advisability of providing her with an artificial hand.

"We couldn't get any agreement as to whether she should be fitted with a prosthetic device early or when she was older; or whether she should have a hook, which would be efficient, or a 'cosmetic' hand which would look natural but might not work as well," Mr. Whitecotton recalls.

It was not until the family settled in Baltimore in 1964 that the parents learned of the March of Dimes program to help children with birth defects. A friend advised the father to contact the Baltimore County Chapter of the voluntary health organization.

Within a short time, Linda was wearing a remarkably workable hand, gloved with lifelike, flesh-toned plastic.

By moving her shoulder muscles under straps which activate the hand, the determined little girl can make her "new" fingers pick up, hold and release objects of almost any size. Naturally right-handed, she has learned, with the help of occupational therapists on the March of Dimes Center medical team, to use the artificial device efficiently in feeding herself, coloring, and even for holding slippery wet dishes as she briskly applies the towel.

"We've always supported worthy causes as we could afford to," her father says. "But until a problem like a birth defect strikes home, you just don't realize what every contribution means. Without the help of the specialists at the March of Dimes center, Linda might still be struggling along with just one hand."

Dr. Robert Dewees Speaks At Rotary Club Meeting

Dr. Robert L. DeWees, past-president of the Delaware Heart Association, was guest speaker for the Newark Rotary Club dinner meeting last Monday evening at Howard Johnson's.

The speaker discussed heart attacks, structure of the heart, and constructive health measures, and presented a film on the topic.

Control Of Plant Diseases Vital Factor In Man's Survival, Dr. Heuberger Warns

Prevention of plant diseases is one of the sciences basic to man's survival, according to Dr. John W. Heuberger, chairman of the department of plant pathology at the University of Delaware. "How well plant diseases are controlled is one of the major factors that determine how well we eat, what we wear and our ability to provide shelter."

Plant diseases are not new, Heuberger says. They are mentioned several times in the Bible as "blights, blasts, rusts, smuts and mildews." One plant disease played an important role in development of the United States. The "late blight" disease of potatoes and tomatoes caused the Irish potato famine in the 1840's, which resulted in the deaths of a million Irishmen and encouraged the emigration of a million and a half, mostly to the United States.

The continuing world food shortage and population crisis emphasizes the need for efficient crop production, Heuberger states. He believes plant pathologists working with other plant scientists, will lead the battle against plant diseases to protect the food and fiber crops needed by the expanding population.

Plant pathology is the science that deals with plant diseases—their nature, causes, development and control, Heuberger explains. The goal of plant pathologists is to reduce the billions of dollars lost to plant diseases every year in food crops, forest and timber lands, pastures, home gardens and lawns.

"Many more plant pathologists are needed than are being trained, particularly since there are only 2500 in the United States," he says.

Plant pathology offers an exciting and challenging career in an area that contributes greatly to human welfare, according to Frederick J. Wiebel, Jr., graduate research assistant at the university.

From the farm at Hartly, he came to the University of Delaware in 1960, and after receiving a bachelor of science degree in 1964, entered graduate school to major in plant pathology.

Research on control of bacterial spot disease of peppers is part of his work toward a master's degree. Peppers are a valuable crop in Delaware, Wiebel says. "Damage from the disease is often severe; research on possible control methods is necessary."

While Wiebel wants a career in plant pathology research, students trained in this science can select careers in several different areas, according to Heuberger. Careers in research, teaching, conservation, industry, foreign service, military service, public health service, agriculture and agribusiness are among the possibilities.

The department of plant pathology at the University of Delaware is concerned with both teaching and research.

The research program involves studies on affect of chemicals on disease-causing fungi and bacteria; air pollution and its effects on plants; biology and chemistry of nematodes; and classification of plant disease organisms.

Whenever and wherever possible, students assist in the research program, Dr. Heuberger says.

The department offers both graduate and undergraduate programs. Undergraduate courses may lead to either an associate or to a bachelor of science degree, and the plant pathology department has a joint major with the entomology department.

Information on these programs is available from Dr. John W. Heuberger, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

Chrysler Official Praises Redstone Missile Service

Praise for the modified Redstone tactical missile launched from the Pacific range on Nov. 30 was voiced Tuesday by a Chrysler official.

The Redstone was the first in a series of reactivated Redstones that Chrysler modified under contract to the U. S. Army Missile Command. H. F. McKenney, Chrysler missile division general manager, said the Redstone lifted off its launch pad in routine fashion after nearly two months of exposure to severe storms and salt spray from the Pacific Ocean.

Chrysler Parts Division Offers Stereo Tape Player

The availability of a stereo tape player that can be easily installed in any motor vehicle built in the United States since 1956 has been announced by Chrysler Corporation's parts division.

A long playing unit, the Mo-Par Stereo 8 provides up to one hour and 20 minutes of uninterrupted stereo music.

The unit is activated by the simple insertion of the cartridge. Harry McCavana is manager of Chrysler's parts plant at Newark.

Mark Brown Scores 27 As Newark Loses; Clauss, Firchak Pace CHS With 16 Each

Mark Brown rang up 27 points for Coach Francis Fulghum's Yellowjackets at DeLaWarr last Tuesday night, but the Lions breezed to a 70-53 victory, while Coach Al Mann's Vikings led by Dave Clauss and Ed Firchak with 16 points apiece were lower 20-17 at Conrad at the Christiana High School gym.

Perry Mitchell paced the Yellowjackets with 12 points in losing 48-35 to visiting Brandywine at Newark last Friday night, and Firchak led the Vikings with 14 points in a 55-32 setback at Mt. Pleasant.

Newark, Christiana, and Dickinson share 5-4 cellar spots in the Blue Hen Conference basketball wars with Brandywine, Mt. Pleasant and P. S. du Pont sporting 3-0 first place tie records.

The Yellowjackets play at Dickinson this Friday, and entertain William Penn on Tuesday, while the Vikings travel to P. S. du Pont on Friday, and are hosts for Dickinson next Tuesday.

Brandywine Races Face Longest Card In 75-Night Meet

Brandywine Raceway will have its longest harness meet this year since the track's inception in 1933. The Delaware Harness Racing Commission has approved 75 nights of trotting and pacing—15 more than Brandywine ever has raced.

The first season for 22 nights will be from April 23 through May 19. A summer meet of 53 nights will start July 11 and continue through Sept. 9.

Revised dates for Liberty Bell and William Penn will give the Delaware Valley area continuous non-conflicting racing from March 4 through Oct. 22, and provide horsemen with a "short-ship" chain of 200 nights.

Denis Cronin At Colgate Starts As Frosh Cager

Hamilton, N. Y. — Denis Cronin of Newark is a member of the freshman basketball team for the 1965-1966 season at Colgate University.

Cronin has been a starter for the Maroon frosh in all four of the yearlings' games this season.

He is a 6-3 center, weighs 188, and provides good coverage on rebounds for the squad of Coach Carl Lawrence.

Cronin looks like a sure bet for the Colgate varsity next season under Coach Bob Duffy, former Colgate All-American and professional ballplayer.

Bob Roselle At Appalachian Joins College Jazz Group

Robert Roselle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carson F. Roselle, 809 Kenyon Lane, Newark, is a member of the Collegiate Jazz Society at Appalachian State Teachers College in Boone, N. C.

The purpose of the Society is to encourage better understanding, knowledge, and appreciation of jazz music as an art form.

Roselle, a former football and basketball star for the Yellowjackets, is a graduate of Newark High School.

Newark Notes

by GIBBY YOUNG

UNDEFEATED: The Vikings of Coaches Joe Bell and Ken Kilmek at Christiana High School, and Coach Andy M. a reantonia's Newark High School Yellowjackets won Blue Hen Conference basketball wars last Saturday night, and both teams are strong candidates for the conference crown.

Christiana faced a tough foe at Conrad, and going into the final, heavyweight bout, the Vikings held a slim 20-17 edge. But Steve Horn won the decision to provide Christiana with a 23-17 meet victory.

The Yellowjackets walloped Mt. Pleasant 39-8.
