

FOREWORD

WE, the classes of 1928 and 1929, submit this issue of the Blue and Gold to the students of the Women's College and to all others interested in her welfare with the hope that it will serve as a record of the remarkable growth and the significant events which it has been our privilege to witness during the period that we have been within her walls. It has been our aim in these pages to record these events in such a manner that, in years to come when college days have become but a cherished memory, there may be frequent cause for pleasant reference to the 1928-1929 Blue and Gold.
