ne of the advantages of being in the newspaper business is that you have a built-in platform to get an important message out to the public. And I can't think of a more important message or a better spot to get that across.

Christine Neff, the editor of Newark Post for the past two and a half years, will be leaving our newspaper to join her husband working at East Carolina University in Greenville, N.C. in Her last day will be June 9. Next will occupy this space. But, before she got that opportunity, I wanted to make sure that we got a chance to thank her. I know I speak for many people in the Newark community when I say that she will be missed greatly.

While her husband Shane studied here at the University of Delaware for the opportunity he received from East Carolina, Newark was graced with Christine as a writer, editor, the face of the newspaper and, most importantly, just an all around great per-SOIL

When I took over for our previous publisher, Jim Streit, I was fortunate that Christine was already in the editor's position.

ganizers of the Christiana Rotary Club's 14th annual golf outing were hoping for good weather the day of the event - not just to have a good time on the course but because the activity raises funds to support the group's charity efforts throughout the year. As Dave Bonk, president of the club, said, "We raise money this one day of the year and then spend the rest of the year giving money away." Thankfully, after a brief rain shower, the sun came out and the event went on as planned on Thursday, May 22, giving more than 100 golfers – members of the Rotary Club, their family and friends – the chance to hit the Newark Country Club course for a good cause.

Steve Dewberry, a Rotarian and chair of the golf outing committee, said the event raises between $25,000 and $30,000 each year. It has grown sub-stantially since the first outing that attracted 50 See GOLF, 12 ►

Mother charged with assaulting daughters

New Castle County Police have arrested a Newark area mother who allegedly assaulted her daughters, ages 7 and 9, causing injuries to both of them.

Police said a county police officer responded to the Brookside Elementary School on Monday, May 19, for a report of a physical abuse complaint.

When the officer arrived, the school nurse reported a 7-yearold student was in the office complaining of pain from several bruises on her abdomen. School officials then had the victim's 9 year old sister report to the office where they found she, too, had similar injuries, said police.

Officials at the school notified the Division of Family Services who responded to the school and later notified police.

Both girls were later taken to the A.I. Dupont Hospital for Children, where they were treated and released. Police investigation revealed that the victims' mother had beaten both girls with a belt the night before.

mother, The Theresa Jenkins, a 27-year-old woman who lives in the unit block of Kimberton Drive in the Kimberton Apartments in the Newark area, was arrested Monday evening and charged with two counts of assault in the third degree and two counts of endangering the welfare of a child.

Jenkins has been arraigned and released on $1,000 unsecured bail, said police. She has been ordered to have no contact with the girls pending a Family Court hearing.

Other incidents

About 60 feet of a fence that surrounds a pool in the unit block of Madison Drive was damaged by an unknown suspect, police were told on Tuesday, May 13, at 9:50 a.m. Janetta Harris, 20, of Newark, and a 16-year-old Newark girl were arrested and charged with shoplifting after they were caught stealing items from a store in the 300 block of College Square on Monday, May 12, at 6:54 p.m., said police. They were released pending court appearances.

Cpl. David Kerr made arrests in fatal car crash

By CHRISTINE NEFF

CNEFF@CHESPUB.COM

"The men and women of the Newark Police Department do a great job, day in and day out. Sometimes, they don't realize how much the community appreciates them.'

Those were the words of Newark Police Chief Paul Tiernan, speaking last week at a meeting of the Newark Lions Club. Every year, the civic group makes a special point of showing its appreciation for local police officers by naming one of them, "Newark Policeman of the Year."

This year, Cpl. David Kerr of the department's traffic division received the honor. Kerr was nominated for his investigation of a fatal car crash that occurred on Elkton Road in November 2006.

Around 9 a.m. on that Saturday in November, Kerr was putting gas in his personal vehicle on his way to work when he saw a silver Nissan pull out of a parking lot onto the street, police were told on Sunday, May 18, at 9:05 p.m.

A laptop computer and Ipod were stolen from a Jeep Cherokee parked in the 700 block of Scholar Drive, police were told on Sunday, May 18, at 11:54 a.m.

A credit card stolen from a Ford Taurus parked in the 600 block of Brook Drive was then used three times at businesses in Newark by an unknown suspect, police were told on Saturday, May 17, at 6:37 p.m.

An unknown suspect stole wallet from an unlocked Nissan truck parked in the 700 block of Brook Drive, police were told on Friday, May 16, at 7:09 p.m. The suspect then used credit cards to make several fraudulent withdrawals, said police.

An unknown suspect tried to steal a Honda Civic parked in the 500 block of Wharton Drive by forcing down the passenger side window and damaging the steering column, police were told on Friday, May 16, at 8:48 a.m.

Main Street's main man gets award

Mayor Funk is named 'Main Street Mayor of the Year'

By CHRISTINE NEFF CNEFF@CHESPUB.COM

t's not uncommon to see Newark's Mayor Vance A. Funk III picking up trash along Main Street on weekend mornings or volunteering at the many downtown events held throughout the year.

And, for his contributions to the downtown, Funk recently was named the "Main Street Mayor of the Year" by Delaware Main Street, a program of the Economic Development Office

Diane Laird, state coordinator of the program, said this was the first award of its kind. In the past, recognition has been given to staff members of Main Street programs. Maureen Feeney Roser, administrator of Newark's Downtown Newark Partnership (DNP), received an award last year.

Mayor Vance A. Funk III received the "Main Street Mayor of the Year" award from Diane Laird, state coordinator of the Delaware Main Street program, last week.

But this year, said Laird, the categories were broadened to focus on volunteers, and Funk stood out from the start. "Vance was noted, first for his involvement in the promotion of Main Street and for coordinating the Taste of Newark," said Laird.

Taste of Newark, an event held each fall, showcases more than 30 restaurants from the Newark area and raises money for the DNP, Town and Gown Committee, Newark Arts Alliance and the University of Delaware Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management Program.

Funk spearheaded the proj-ect after his election in 2004. 'When I got elected, I said, 'I have this fantastic idea for an event that mirrors something I had been to at Disney World," he said, remembering how the idea came about.

And, it proved to be a great success. The event has grown in size since its first outing, which raised about $13,000 The number of tickets sold has doubled since then, and nearly $70,000 was raised last year.

But, while the Taste of Newark captured the attention of the Main Street program, Laird said Funk's involvement in other activities made him fit for the title of "Main Street Mayor." "He's not only involved in the Taste of Newark, but with Wine and Dine, Food and Brew. He's an active member of the Partnership...and he donated lots of time and money to the city's (250th) anniversary celebration," she said.

Roser, who nominated Funk for the award, called him "tireless." "He's absolutely a tireless volunteer, and he cares deeply about the downtown," she said. Funk gets involved in all aspects of an event, from designing logos and attracting participants to divvying up wine glasses. "He really just puts his all into those events," said Roser.

Funk takes prides in the success of the downtown efforts. "All of the events we've started up since I've started as Mayor have been a real big success, and they've changed the image of the city to outsiders," he said.

Pleased to be named Delaware's "Main Street Mayor of the Year," Funk said, laughing, "I'm just not real big on awards. I just like doing things."

Delaware educators honored

Educators from up and down the state were bonored at the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce's Superstars in Education awards dinner at Wilmington's Chase Center on the Riverfront this month.

Eight programs won Superstars in Education awards from the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce. Lt. Governor John C. Carney Jr. presented two schools with Models of Excellence in Education awards during the evening's program.

"How we educate our students and the tools we give them will have a direct impact on the future of our state – and our nation," State Chamber president and CEO James A. Wolfe said during the program.

Both Superstars in Education and the Models of Excellence reward creative ideas that spark measurable student achievement. The educators who developed these winning programs have come up with innovative ways to ensure the students in their classrooms meet established standards, and have the tools they need to succeed."

Also, for the first time a Models of Excellence Replication Award was presented to Stanton Middle School for its success replicating a program developed by Selbyville Middle School in the Indian River School District.

St. Mark's senior appointed to West Point

B obby Zhang, a senior at St. Mark's High School, has received an appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point. He was

Point. He was nominated by U.S. Representative Joseph R. Pitts of Pennsylvania. After a recent two-day visit to the academy, which is located in accepted his appointment. He will enter the academy on June 30.

Receiving an appointment to West Point puts Zhang in an elite class. The requirements are extremely rigorous, encompassing academics, athletics and co-curricular activities, and nominations are required.

Zhang is the son of Shangyou and Liqin Zhang of Landenberg, Pa. He is in the top 2 percent of his graduating class with a 3.8 grade point average (GPA). Zhang is an Advanced Placement (AP) Scholar with Honor, an Aquinas Scholar and was named as a Commended Student in the 2008 National Merit Scholarship Program.

He was inducted into the Optimi Chapter of the National Honor Society during his junior year. This year, he is captain of the math league and captain of his Blue-Gold Buddy Group. He is also a member of the International Club and Science Olympiad team.

Duringhishigh school career, Zhang played on the junior varsity football team, junior varsity wrestling team and varsity lacrosse team. Last summer he attended the Governor's School for Excellence, which was held in the People's Republic of China, and he participated in the Summer Leaders Seminar at West Point.

"Attending West Point will provide me with a great education, help prepare me for the future and give me an opportunity to serve my country," said Zhang. "I am looking forward to all the challenges."

Established in 1969, St. Mark's is a Catholic, college-preparatory, co-ed high school located in Wilmington, Del. It offers the most comprehensive Advanced Placement (AP) program in the state and has 97 percent of its graduates go on to college. St. Mark's provides a broad-based curriculum that includes music, drama and art, and emphasizes mastery of written communications. The school also offers a comprehensive competitive sports program and gives students the opportunity to explore their interests, gain confidence in their abilities and provide service to the community through a wide variety of extracurricular clubs and activities.

Newark physics Olympian meets with Congressman ne of the top physics students in the country met with U.S. Rep. Michael N. Castle, R, last week.

Rui Hu of Newark is a returning champion from last year's International Physics Olympiad, where he was awarded a silver medal. He also participated in the 2006 U.S. Physics Team.

Hu met with Castle as one of the activities of the U.S. Physics Team's training camp. For 10 days the 24-member team studies advanced phys-ics principles, takes exams and hears lectures from prominent physicists at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Five students from the U.S.

team will be chosen to represent the U.S. at an international physics competition. But the time at camp is not only spent on physics: the students also visited the nation's capital to meet with their senators and representatives. This helps them learn to communicate important science to legislators and others who don't usually hear about science. The in-person meeting helps remind members of Congress of the importance of science and math education in the U.S.

Hu gave Rep. Castle a puzzle key ring that is solved with the physics concept of centrifugal force. Tiny beads hold a hidden quarter in place, but spinning the key ring quickly causes centrifugal force to press the beads out of the way. The key ring carried a flyer that said, "Science Education Pays Off."

The U.S. Physics Olympiad Program was started in 1986 by the American Association of Physics Teachers to promote demonstrate academic and excellence. The training camp is sponsored by the AAPT and the American Institute of Physics in College Park, Md.

A parent's worst nightmare

By RUTH KELLY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

t's two days before the big day Kim's graduation. We have been busy running errands, making hair appointments, ordering a cake and awaiting Cousin Gretchen's arrival from California.

Excitement is in the air. I gently iron her gown and sash. Kim comes home with a new skirt and my jaw drops. She has not worn a skirt since my father's funeral in 2004. She has been so excited. She called me when she took her last test and could hardly contain her-self when she said she finished her last class. I, on the other hand, entertained visions of a new life and freedom. I ran a good race, fought the good fight and endured. After graduation, I had immediate plans to Kelly

getaway with the new man in my life. Gretchen's flight finally arrives, and she joins in the flurry of activity at the Kelly house. Everyone is so happy to see Gretchen, everyone except Pumpkin. Whenever there is a change in routine, Pumpkin is not quite herself, but eventually settles down underneath a table or a chair. But, when Gretchen comes, Pumpkin knows she won't receive my attention like she normally does. As soon as Gretchen walks in the door, if dogs could talk, you would just hear her say, "Oh my God, SHE's back!

On Monday night, Kim brings her boyfriend Craig over to meet ' Gretchen.'' Kim leaves to take 'Aunt Kim leaves to take Craig Gretchen. Kim leaves to take Craig home, and Gretchen and I settle in for the night. Around 11:30 p.m., the phone rings. It's Kim. She says, "Mom I've been in an accident." My head jumps time and I feel anger swelling, wondering what she hit. This call, however, is different, and a parent's worst nightmare is realized. This time, I hear a scared little girl calling for mom to come to the hospital and please hurry. My heart stops for a moment.

Kim had a head-on collision on Monday, May 12, on Salem Church Road. A cat wandered out onto the road and, in swerving to avoid hitting it, she lost control of the car and slammed into an oncoming car. We are very thankful to God that this was not a tragedy. Three people were injured. Kim had laceration on her liver, a bruised kidney and cracked rib. Her injuries, ironically, were caused more by the air bag deployment than the actual crash. Craig, her boyfriend, hit the dashboard and had a dozen or so stitches to close the wound on his forehead. The driver in the other car broke his leg on one side and his hip on the other.

I am still trying to come to grips with what happened. I initially felt anger and then fear. When I arrived at the hospital Kim was sobbing, saying that she was so sorry that she hurt her boyfriend and feared that his mother would never speak to her again. Trying to calm her by telling her that it was an accident didn't quiet her. Both kids were more concerned about the other than themselves. Kim was not allowed to ride in the same ambulance as Craig, and cries of "where's my girlfriend" and "where's my boyfriend" were all the crew heard.

After I got to the hospital, I had Kim's gurney moved next to Craig's and then there was a deafening silence in the air. When Craig's mother arrived I didn't know what to say, only that I was terribly sorry. This was her worst fear realized, too. We both just looked at each other, each lost in a myriad of thoughts and emotions that would surface over the coming days.

Craig was released at 4 a.m. Tuesday morning; Kim was admitted. I got home around 5 a.m. and somehow managed to sleep for one hour. I didn't sleep again until 24 hours later.

I haven't cried since the accident, but the urge to do so came several times. One was when I saw her car, and the other when I passed the accident site. I willed myself not to cry because I didn't have time to do that. I had too many things to take care of. I am so thankful Gretchen was here because she stayed with Kim at the hospital. I kept myself maniacally busy so that I wouldn't have time to stop and fully absorb what had happened.

Kim was discharged on Wednesday, one hour before her graduation. After a quick stop home to put on her skirt, we went directly to the Bob Carpenter Center. Del Tech personnel over-whelmed us with their support and compassion. All of Kim's friends in the Public Safety office and other faculty and staff were there, and they were waiting for her. She was quickly escorted away. An attendant escorted me to a reserved seat. Kim was the first graduate called and, with the aid of crutches, walked across the stage to accept her diploma. I was still steelwilled not to cry. • Kim is slowly recovering. Her bruis-es have faded; she suffered no more internal bleeding, and I'm being forced now to deal with the hard reality of how three young people's lives were affected and the further disruption of the lives of all of the families involved. My heart went out to the other driver because he required surgery. I sought out and apologized to the young man's girlfriend who was very receptive and understanding. I can't say that for his mother. I tried putting myself in her place, and I understood how she might not be so willing to accept my apology. Kim hopes to go back to work on June 1, 1933 Final Plans made for University of Delaware Commencement

Final plans have been made for the commencement program at the University of Delaware, which will start on Saturday, June 10. Final examinations started this week and will be concluded late next week. The joint graduating class of Delaware College and the Women's College will again number considerably over 100. The program for Commencement as announced by President Hullihen this week begins with the Women's College Glee Club and Class Day at Mitchell Hall on June 9. Meetings scheduled for the tenth are the Women's College Senior Luncheon, Baseball game Alumni vs. Varsity, Women's College Alumni Supper and Business Meeting, Delaware College Alumni Business Meeting and Supper. The President's reception for seniors, graduates, faculty and visitors will be at "The Knoll" from 7:30 - 9p.m., June 10th.

A special attraction for the alumni on the Commencement Program at the University of Delaware this year will be a one-act play to be

Memorial Day Parade and Ceremonies a credit to Newark

If the people of every community could feel that their efforts in arranging a Memorial Day Program or assisting in the program would make those for whom the day is designated proud of what has been done, what an achievement that would be.

Newark has done just that. The Mayor's Memorial Day Committee left no stone unturned to make up a Memorial Day Parade that would be a credit to our town, Memorial Day and begin her internship at a doctor's office the following day. I know that all things happen for a reason and ultimately something good will result. We are exploring transportation options, such as Para Transit, DART and "Mom" to get her where she needs to go.

I took her to the doctor last week, and, upon seeing the massive bruises all over her body, I could contain myself no longer. This time I quickly dried my eyes because I did not want her to see me crying. The knot in my stomach is still there and eventually I will steal away to a place where I can be alone and let it all out. There will be tears of anguish, pain and relief. But, my tears will also be that of unspeakable joy that God is still alive and still performs miracles in Kim's life. There will also be tears of humility at God's mercy and especially tears of gratitude for the angels He dispatched to be at the accident scene and in the hospital for all those involved in this unfortunate accident.

COMMENTARY

Girl Scout Troop earns silver, gold awards

Girl Scouts from Delaware have recently earned the Silver and Gold awards.

The Silver Award is the highest a Cadette Girl Scout can receive and consists of earning several Interest Project patches and a leadership award, as well as completing a public service project that requires at least 30 hours of community service per girl.

Five members of Girl Scout Troop 1449, Service Unit 38, were presented with Silver Awards last month. These girls decided to combine their career interests with their desire to serve, and their project was to make a Girl Scout commercial to encourage older girls to get involved in Girl Scouts.

Out of respect to those in whose memory we celebrate Memorial Day, the first division of our parade was that of the army units in the order of military regulation, followed by the men who served in the World War. Military salutes and Taps were sounded at cemeteries and Memorial Library by Veterans of Foreign Wars Firing Squad.

May 31, 1978 His pollution fine may total $12 million

Like many in the building business in the Sixties, Glenn Hindt was looking for new horizons.

So, in an age of economic expansion, Hindt turned his eye to the promising business of land development, and subdivided a small tract of land he owned on Chestnut Hill Road, near Sandy Brae Road, just west of Newark.

Hindt, of Monterey Farms, near Bear, sold off 13 lots on the property and a small residential development, with the idyllic, glowing name of Palm Springs Manor, was built.

But today, the mention of Palm Springs Manor conjures up anything but a glowing image in Hindt's mind. For Hindt's involvement in Palm Springs Manor was the start of a long, acrimonious battle with a state agency that, Hindt says, left his building business a shambles.

The battle ultimately led to Hindt's trial and conviction on charges of violating water pollution laws, a conviction that Hindt contends is unjust.

U.S. District Court Judge Murray M. Schwartz set $1.95 per $100 of assessed valuation as the ceiling rate on taxes for the county's new, desegregated district. The New Castle County Board of Education, however, estimates its operating expenses tax rate at $1.68 per $100.

Even at $1.68 per $100, there will be a substantial tax increase for many county residents.

Newark artist specializes in 'tree portraits'

Get ready for summer learning

By KATIE DALY

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

It's that time of year again. Already, school children and teachers everywhere have started to do it. They're counting down the days until summer vacation begins. Students look forward to that last day of school filled with saying goodbye to friends and sharing stories of what their summers will hold. And when it comes, just as they think they're home free, the summer reading list strikes! 'Outlook' is a weekly feature prepared

For some students, the reading list is a welcome addition to their summer plans; they really enjoy reading and are looking forward to checking out these books. And then there's the rest of the students, who would really prefer to not be bothered by books and don't understand why they should have to do school work over the summer. Considering that a lot of students lose knowledge over the summer - for some, up to two months worth - you can see why reading during this school vacation is especially important.

So now that you know how important it is for children and youth to read over the summer, you may be wondering how you can get them interested and motivated to actually complete those books.

This summer New Castle County 4-H has teamed up with the New Castle County Libraries to host a summer reading and photography contest. The contest is aimed at encouraging youth to continue reading through-

Robert Temko has painted since 2002

By CHRISTINE NEFF

CNEFF@CHESPUB.COM

R obert Temko's paintings have been referred to as "tree portraits," and it's a description with which he can agree.

The son of two artists, Temko, a Newark resident, started painting, seriously, in 2002, when he retired from the insurance business. His first pieces were traditional portraits, depicting animals and people.

But, when he painted his first oak tree, he found his true interest as an artist. "These are almost like portraits," he said of his oil paintings. "Trees have a lot more patience than people. And, they're not as critical."

And, they're not as critical." In his art, Temko uses a realistic approach to depict the natural world, often portraying the beauty of trees while playing with aspects of light. He works from photographs he has taken locally and while traveling around the country and world.

"The hardest part of the process," he said, "is deciding what to paint." He knows what he likes: close ups of interesting tree trunks, forest scenes and branches. He prefers scenes from winter – when the leaves don't get in the way.

One of his favorite paintings is of a Bristle Cone Pine Tree he saw in Inyo National Forest, California. He went there in the fall and had to wear a winter coat because of the park's high elevation. With a cold wind blowing and clouds forming overhead, he managed to capture, with his camera, the perfect sunset scene. He later translated that into an oil painting. This month, he displayed that

This month, he displayed that piece along with many others at the City of Newark Municipal Building. The large canvases – typically he paints on 3 by 4 foot canvases; anything bigger won't fit in his car, he said – were spread throughout the building, brightening up the hallways and bringing outdoor scenes indoors. His artwork is on display now through May 30.

Temko, who has taken art classes at local schools, including the University of Delaware, Academy of Lifelong Learning and Delaware College of Art and Design, said he can spend several months doing one painting and often works on several at a time.

"The most enjoyable part of the process is the first few hours of painting, when I turn a blank canvas into something very quickly," he said. "Once I get the concept down on canvas, it becomes more like work."

'The Bird and the Two-Ton Weight' has impressed off-Broadway audiences

By CHRISTINE NEFF

CNEFF@CHESPUB.COM

A Syracuse University student studying in London in 1988 records the experiences of her semester abroad, before her death in the Pan Am 103 tragedy.

A 25-year-old artist struggling to find her footing in New York City in 2008, must return home after her mother dies of cancer.

These two characters in "The Bird and the Two-Ton Weight," an off-Broadway play that has been receiving positive attention, are drawn together by a journal received in the mail 20 years after the Pan Am crash. The story that unfolds tells what happens when two lives collide through that discovery.

A reading of the play will be presented at the Wilmington Drama League on Sunday, June 1, at 7 p.m. A former Newark resident, Heather Robb, performs the role of Chelsea, the 2008 character.

She describes her character as having "enormous strength and determination." Robb, who now lives in New York City and works as a performing artist, can relate to Chelsea's struggle to do the same.

She describes the play as "a very moving, kind of lighthearted approach to grief and loss and connection." "Above all else," said Robb, "it's a very beautiful story." And, it's a story that has

Those involved with the play have hopes of turning it into a film. Fowler has written a screenplay, and she and Robb and two other producers have been working to raise funds for the project.

The performance in Wilmington will contribute to that cause. Tickets are $5 and can be purchased at the Wilmington Drama League the night of the event.

Robb is excited to bring the play back to her home state. 'Delaware's where I fell in love with the arts, and I have a strong sense of wanting to return and bring this thing home that we're really proud of," she said.

Beware of vacation pounds

By NIC DECAIRE

....... NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

few months ago, I wrote an article about finding your motivation. My motivation was my wedding and honeymoon.] am happy to tell you that we walked down the aisle on May 10, and enjoyed our honeymoon in Mexico.

Before any of that happened I had to find my motivation and reach my goal losing 20 pounds. I wanted to get in the best shape of my life because those pictures will be looked at for a lifetime. I did lose the 20 pounds, but I can safely say that people won't be looking at me in those pictures, because my bride was beautiful. But I still lost the 20 pounds!

Here's the tricky part. Our honeymoon in Mexico was at a five star resort with the best food and alcohol one can enjoy. What did I do? Did I hit the hotel gym ever day? Did I eat and drink very little?

Did I worry about the 20 pounds I had worked so hard to lose? Come on! It was my honeymoon!

enough. As I was flying home from Mexico, I began ruminating on how you can really enjoy yourself on vacation and not derail your hard-won diet successes.

Here are a few tips:

Do not skip breakfast. Even on vacation, breakfast is still the most important meal of the day. It helps jump start your metabolism

Take a walk. Take a walk on the beach or around the resort, particularly after meals.

Drink water. After every adult beverage, drink a glass of water. This will help diffuse the calories and also keep you hydrated.

Limit frozen drinks. They are loaded with calories and sugar. Try sticking to light beer or hard alcohol with diet soda Avoid junk food. In the Caribbean, fruits and seafood are plentiful. Take advantage of that.

Swim. Swim around the pool and burn some calories before you swim up to the bar Dance. Dancing is fun and it burns lots of calories. Find that local club and try learning the salsa or the meringue.

Avoid late night snacking. We all know nothing good comes from late night snacking, except next day regrets.

With a few conscious precautions, you will avoid gaining weight and still have fun while on vacation. I will end here. I need to get back on the elliptical and burn off those five pounds. Stay healthy!

Iron Hill Park reopens to public ogs barked and people laughed and applauded as New Castle County Executive Chris Coons and Adele Knopf of the Friends of Iron Hill Park cut the blue ribbon signifying the reopening of the Newark area park, on Friday, May 23.

"It's one of the hidden jewels in the county," said Coons, in reference to the 335-acre recreational area on Whitaker Road off of Old Baltimore Pike. "People don't know it's here."

Closed since Nov. 1, 2007, the newly improved park - the third largest in the county - now includes a "Bark Park" where dogs can play unleashed, an 18-hole disc golf course and security improvements. The park also has miles of multiuse trails and a large children's playground.

U.S. Sen. Tom Carper, also present for the ribbon cutting, commended and congratulated those who participated in creating a place "where we can walk and run and where dogs can bark.'

IN THE NEWS

Col. Rick Gregory spoke on behalf of the New Castle County Police Department. "We love a challenge," he said, referencing the security challenges posed by the park in the past. "And we can take this on.'

Gregory said the police department will be working with the resources of the Friends of Iron Hill Park and the Crime Patrol Active Watch to keep the park safe in the future. "We are going forward," he said. "We can make a difference."

The Friends of Iron Hill were presented with a plaque of commendation from County Councilwoman Stephanie McClellan. Adele Knopf accepted the plaque for this organization, which formed in January. She said their purpose is to "preserve, enhance, and protect the park for the sake of the legitimate use of the park by New Castle County residents."

Newark eliminated by Middletown

Sports HIGH SCHOOLS UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE • LEAGUES

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Middletown Cavaliers scored two runs in the top of the eighth inning to defeat Newark 6-5 Tuesday evening in the quarterfinal round of the 2008 State Baseball Tournament at Frawley Stadium in Wilmington.

Middletown advanced to a semifinal matchup against Indian River.

"We didn't play well enough to win today," said Newark coach Butch Simpson. "We didn't play enough defense and we didn't hit in clutch situations."

The Yellowjackets seemed to have the game in hand in the bottom of the seventh after Middletown tied the score at 4-4 in the top half of the frame.

After Austin Bartley led off the inning with a single to right, Billy Morton roped a double down the left field line, putting the winning run on third.

Clean up hitter Chad Lane was then walked to load the bases, but Cavaliers' reliever Jay Croft dug down to work out of the jam.

Jackets catcher Andrew Young grounded into a fielders choice, as Bartley was thrown out at the plate. Nick Pilato popped a ball down the third base line that Cavs' shortstop Brett Cracco made a great running catch for the second out.

Then Shawn Cowgill lined out to Cracco to end the threat. "I was just trying to get a ground ball," said Croft. "I have a lot of faith in my defense. I wasn't trying to strike anybody out, I was trying to get them to hit the ball to one of the fielders and let them make a play," he said.

In the top of the eighth, Ryan Haas reached on an infield error, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Eric Husni, then scored on an RBI single by Billy Wessells to give the Cavs' a 5-4 lead.

With two outs, Sean Adkins hit a ball to Newark shortstop Brandon Ellis. The junior made a nice diving stop, threw to first, but the ball was mishandled, allowing Wessells to score the eventual winning run.

In the bottom of the eighth, David Hopkins started a rally with a double and scored when Bartley's fly to right was dropped. Croft then got the final out to preserve the narrow victory.

"That was one of the most exciting games I've ever seen," said Middletown coach Scott

In the 2007-2008 season, the Blue Hen football and women's volleyball teams were major forces in CAA competition, but among the 14 CAA competitions in which wins and losses are kept, only five Delaware teams managed to finish above .500 and as a whole combined a lackluster 75-88-1 record in conference play. The CAA is the umbrella for 12 football programs from several all-sports conferences throughout the east and northeast so Delaware's 5-3 record in the CAA South Division wasn't counted.

Delaware's standard bearer was the women's volleyball team which finished the regular season 12-2 for the No. 1 tournament seed and won the postseason tournament to qualify for the NCAA Tournament. The Blue Hens, 31-5 overall, Quarterback Joe Flacco and running back Omar Cuff, a pair of All-Americans who set numerous school and national records and led the Blue Hen football team to a berth in the national title game this past season, were honored as co-winners of the 2007-08 University of Delaware Outstanding Senior Athlete Award at the annual UD Intercollegiate Awards Luncheon held Thursday at the Bob Carpenter Center.

Flacco and Cuff, who were selected in a vote by the head coaches of Delaware's 11 men's athletics teams, were among several athletes recognized during the awards luncheon for their accomplishments not only on the playing field but in the classroom and in the community. The annual UD Women's Intercollegiate Awards Banquet will take place Thursday evening at the Trabant Student Center.

The two are the first co-winners of the award since golfer Peter Lovenguth and baseball player Heath Chasanov shared the honors in 1991 and are the first teammates to be recognized with the award in Delaware athletics history.

Flacco, a 6-6, 230 lb. quarterback from Audubon, NJ (Audubon High School), and Cuff, a 5-10, 200 lb. running back from Landover, MD (Flower High School) helped lead the Blue Hen football team to one its finest season in school history in 2007. Head coach became the first UD volleyball team to qualify for the NCAA tourney and won one game before being eliminated.

The men's tennis team was 5-0 in the spring season, UD's only undefeated team, but the Hens were eliminated in the first match of the postseason. In men's swimming and diving, Delaware finished 6-1 in dual meets and finished third in the CAA postseason.

In men's and women's basketball, the CAA's marquee events, both Delaware teams endured rocky seasons. The Blue Hen men rallied to finish 9-9 in the regular season and defeated Drexel in the CAA Tournament's first round, but went no further. The women's program, a CAA force a year ago, staggered through a team, a 6-12 conference season and was eliminated immediately in the tournament.

For the women's basketball program, the 7-24 overall was its first losing season in nine years, while the men's 14-17 overall represented the program's fourth consecutive losing season. The men have had only two winning seasons since joining the CAA.

Baseball and women's softball failed to qualify for post season, the baseball team 10-17 and the softball team 4-17. In baseball, Delaware has appeared in 13 NCAA tournaments, highlighted by the Hens' 1970 College World Series, but since joining the CAA has not participated beyond the conference tournament. The Blue Hen men's lacrosse team, which a year ago reached the NCAA's Final Four before losing to eventual champion Hopkins, finished 3-3 in this year's conference play and barely made the tournament in which it was eliminated by Hofstra in the postseason opener. The women's lacrosse team also qualified for postseason with a 4-3 record, but lost its opening game in the tournament. Overall, Delaware teams were 4-6 in postseason events based on one-on-one competition. Of the events in which the postseason is the lone means of deciding a champion, the men's swimming and diving team had the best finish with a third, followed by the men's and women's cross-country teams who each earned a fourth.

Smith. "It was back and forth the entire game, a great ball game where every play mattered," he said.

Newark advanced to the quarterfinal round with an exhilarating 11-9 come-from-behind road victory over Hodgson last Saturday afternoon thanks to some two-out heroics by the offense in the late innings. '

Hodgson's Dan Eby nearly won the game single-handedly as he went 3-4, crushing two home runs and double, and wound up with five runs-batted-in on the day.

The Jackets scored two runs in the first, but fell behind 5-2 after three innings.

The Silver Eagles tacked on two more in the fifth, but Newark came roaring back with five runs in the top of the sixth. Chad Lane belted a three-run homer to knot the score at 7-7.

Hodgson added two more in the bottom of the sixth, but Newark plated two of their own to send the game into the extra frame.

In the top of the eighth, Morton stroked a single to knock in the final two runs of the game, just enough to allow his team to advance to the next round of the tournament.

campaign as he set new records virtually every time he stepped foot on the field and earned consensus first team All-American honors. He was named to the first team of all five major All-American teams selected this season - The Sports Network, Associated Press, Walter Camp Foundation, American Football Coaches Association, and the College Sporting News. A two-time All-American,

Cuff is Delaware's first consensus pick at running back since Gardy Kahoe in 1971.

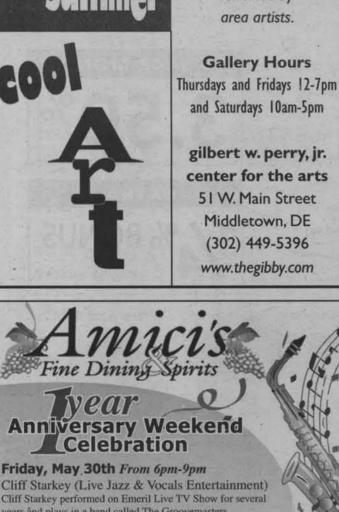

Delaware's all-time leading scorer and second all-time leading rusher, Cuff enjoyed an outstanding season in 2007 as he set school single season records with 398 carries, 1,945 yards, and 35 touchdowns while also catching 55 passes for 554 yards and four touchdowns. He led the nation in scoring with 15.6 points per game and ranked seventh in rushing with 129.7 yards per game.

He set a single season NCAA record with 39 touchdowns, the third highest total in the history of college football, and with 35 rushing touchdowns.

His 65 career rushing touchdowns is also a CAA record while his 73 career touchdowns is No. 1 all-time at Delaware and his 4,364 rushing yards rank him No. 2 all-time at Delaware.

In all, he set five NCAA records, eight CAA records, and 28 Delaware standards during his career.

A theater major with a minor in Black American studies, Cuff also will get the opportunity to continue his football career as he signed a free agent contract with the Tennessee Titans in early May.

UD math modeling team takes top honors

A team of three University of Delaware students took top honors and another team of two UD students placed at the meritorious level in this year's Contest in Mathematical Modeling, the premiere international mathematical modeling contest sponsored by the Consortium for Mathematics and its Applications (COMAP).

UD competitors in this year's event included junior Bob Liu and seniors Matthew Thies and Zachary Ulissi on the Outstanding designated team; seniors Donald Knieriem and Robert Mitchell on the Meritorious designated team; and senior Stephen Johnson and freshman Kyle Thomas on the Successful designated team.

Coached by Louis Rossi, associate professor of mathematical sciences at UD, the seven participants prepared for the contest — a virtual competition that involved downloading test questions on a Thursday at 8 p.m. and turning in written solutions the following Monday at 8 p.m. – by working throughout the year on old problems that Rossi deemed especially challenging.

This year's outstanding team, which placed in the top percentile, tackled a problem that analyzed the impact on coastal Florida of melting polar ice caps, due to global warming. Given a scenario of a three-degree increase, contestants were asked to chart the impact on coastal areas and come up with different remediation techniques.

Five added to UD's Alumni Wall of Fame

Hive University of Delaware alumni were inducted into the University's Alumni Wall of Fame on Friday, May 9. Monica Taylor, vice president for development and alumni relations, told those gathered to honor the five alumni that the caliber of their accomplishments serves as a testament to the value of a University of Delaware degree.

Delaware degree. "Today's inductees have made exceptional contributions in their life's work and have added to the quality of life of our society," she said. "The worldwide recognition these individuals have gained brings pride to the University of Delaware and inspires fellow alumni and current students alike. Our honorees have added significantly to the value of a University of Delaware degree."

Alan Brayman, vice president of the University of Delaware Alumni Association, moderated the ceremony, introducing inductees Alex T. Bourdon, Arthur L. Goldstein, Elizabeth McCloy Morris, Carol A. Post, and Lisa C. Rowen as honored members of the alumni association from around the nation and the world who have distinguished themselves professionally and in the community.

Brayman and UD President Patrick Harker presented the certificates of induction, bringing the number of names on the wall to 215.

There are more than 140,000 UD graduates including Revolutionary War heroes, signers of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, as well as physicians, engineers and authors. Recent graduates include men and women from business, law, education, creative and performing arts, athletics, religion, politics, medicine and the military.

Excellence in Teaching and Advising Awards announced

Jour University of Delaware faculty members -Kenneth C. Haas, profesfaculty sor of criminal justice; Carolee A. Polek, associate professor of nursing; Patricia Sloane-White, assistant professor of anthropology; and Julie K. Waterhouse, associate professor of nursing won Excellence in Teaching Awards

One faculty member, Michelle Provost-Craig, associate profes-sor in the Department of Health, Nutrition and Exercise Science, received UD's Excellence in Advising Award. The awards are based primarily on student evaluations.

Each Excellence in Teaching Award winner will receive $5,000, have his or her portrait hung in Morris Library for five years, and have a brick, inscribed with his or her name, installed in UD's Mentor Circle. The winner of the Excellence in Advising Award will receive $2,500 and be honored with an inscribed brick in Mentor's Circle.

Haas has a record for Excellence in Teaching and Advising Awards from UD, Early in his career when working on his master's degree at UD, Haas received the first Award for Excellence in Teaching for Graduate Students in 1970. This honor was followed by the Excellence in Teaching Award in 1979 and again in 1991, the Excellence in Advising Award in 1992 and another Excellence in Teaching Award this year.

An oncology nurse, Polek is a graduate of Pennsylvania State University and received her master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania and her doctorate from Temple University. She began teaching at UD in 1999 on contract and joined the UD faculty in 2001.

Sloane-White, who joined the UD faculty in 2002, is a graduate of Amherst College and has a master's degree from Princeton University and a doctorate in social anthropology from the University of Oxford.

Waterhouse received her bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Delaware and joined the faculty in 1978. Her doctorate is in measurement, statistics and evaluation, and her research has involved statistic evaluations of licensure exams for nursing, as well as medical-surgical nursing Provost-Craig joined the UD faculty in 1995. She received her bachelor's degree from the State University of New York at Cortland, her master's degree in physical education at UD and her doctorate in exercise physiology from the University of Maryland. Her research interests involve clinical exercise, bone health and activity and energy expenditure.

Two graduate students. Anthony Michel Anderson, graduate of Xavier University in Cincinnati who is working to receive his doctorate in education, and Stela Stefanova, graduate student in economics from Bulgaria, will each receive $1,500 for their work as teaching assistants.

The contest, which is open to all undergraduates in the world. ran this year from Feb. 7-Feb. 11, and began with more than 3,800 teams. A total of 1,162 teams actually made it to the finish; and due to the intensive nature of the problems, contestants just learned of their rating status in mid-April.

along Paper Mill Road.

Last Thursday, volunteers awaited the arrival of trucks and cars filled with furniture, clothing and other unwanted items. A few lone couches sat under tents donated by Events Unlimited to shelter the goods.

Co-chair of the campaign, Deb Hoff, assistant university secretary, said she hoped for an even bigger turnout than at last year's event, which she described as "very, very successful.'

'The volume of materials was above and beyond any-thing we expected," she said, of the first "UDon't Need It?," which helped 50 needy fami-lies and diverted about 50 tons of materials from the landfill. "Wouldn't it be great to reach 100 tons this year?'

Many of those items will be made available, free of charge, to charitable organizations in the region. Hoff said Wilmington's Ministry of Caring, the Episcopal Campus Ministry and other local churches have been asked to encourage families to stop by the site and pick up items they may need.

Many facets of the community are involved in the project. Carol Houck, co-chair for the campaign and assistant to the city manager, said volunteers from nonprofit groups, UD and the City of Newark staff the site every day. Area restaurants, such as Santa Fe Grill, Caffé Gelato, Newark Deli & Bagel, McDonald's and ARAMARK dining on campus, have helped out by providing lunch to volunteers

"It's truly a community building opportunity," said Hoff.

And, an opportunity for students to get rid of items they don't want to cart home. Any students and landlords in Newark may utilize the program. Students must show their university ID at the entrance, and landlords must prove they own rental properties.

All surplus items will be made available to the public during a sale to be held Saturday, June 7, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Curtis Paper Mill site.

Students and landlords dropped off more than 50 tons of unwanted "stuff" at last year's "UDon't Need It" campaign. Organizers hope to divert even more materials from the landfill this year.

District has been on the "Top Schools in America" list for three years running. In 2006, Newark was ranked 521 (one of six Delaware high schools on the list); in 2007, it was ranked 271 (one of nine in state), and in 2008, it is ranked 1,041 (one of nine in state).

Newark offers Advanced Placement courses in English Language, French Language, Human Geography, Spanish Language, Statistics, Calculus AB, Calculus BC, Music Theory, World History, English Literature, US History, European History, AP Biology, Physics American Government B. and Politics. Chemistry, Environmental Science. Psychology, Macroeconomics, and Microeconomics.

By paying the registration fee for all exams in 2005 and 2006, Christina made Advanced Placement courses available to all students and encouraged students to take the AP exam. This resulted in a surge of new courses being offered while also increasing the number of students enrolled in the various AP programs.

As a result, Newark made Newsweek's list for the first time in March 2006. Newark's ranking rose nearly 200 places the following year and remained on the list in 2008 even after the district discontinued the payment program. Christina currently absorbs the cost of registration if students have a "special financial situation" that precludes them from affording the test on their own.

In 2006-07, Newark added the Cambridge Program for ninth graders and expanded to include 10th grade this year. Newark is currently the only Delaware High School to have this program.

For the second year in a row, Brandywine District also has three schools on the list, making it the only school district in Delaware to have all its high schools ranked.

The Delaware high schools and their 2008 rankings are: Charter School of Wilmington in Red Clay, 98; A.I. DuPont in Red Clay, 381; Mount Pleasant

Newsweek writer Jay Mathews devised the ratings system based on Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate and/or Cambridge tests taken by all students at a school, divided by the number of graduating seniors at the school. All of the schools on the list have an index of at least 1.000; they are in the top 5 percent of public schools measured this way. The list names the top 1,300 public high schools nationally.

LIVING HISTORY: 1864 ALL DAY, EVERY DAY.

Fort Delaware was a busy place during the summer of 1864. The lives of the Union soldiers, Confederate prisoners, and civilians going about their daily business on Pea Patch Island are recreated by our own first-person interpreters. Listed below are just some of the people you'll meet, activities you'll find and places you'll visit as part of the living history of Fort Delaware.

Trap Pond State Park a Water Connection

A leisurely boat tour through the baldcypress swamp at Trap Pond State Park, and one can imagine that freshwater wetlands once covered this area of western Sussex County. The park is home to the northernmost, natural stand of baldcypress in the nation, and provides habitat for many species of flora and fauna not found in other areas.

Trap Pond State Park is the only Delaware State Park that is located within the Chesapeake Bay Watershed. The pond flows into the James Branch, which feeds into the Broad Creek and merges with the Nanticoke River. The Nanticoke flows directly into the central portion of the Chesapeake Bay, creating a unique water connection between Trap Pond and one of the region's greatest natural and cultural resources.

Throughout history, this land has had many uses. Trap Pond and nearby Raccoon and Trussum Ponds were first created to power sawmills that processed the harvested baldcypress as the land was cleared for farming. Eventually, the sawmills were abandoned and the millpond dams were washed away in a deluge in 1931.

In the late 1930s, the federal government purchased the farmland under the Resettlement Administration Act, a New Deal program. Members of the Civilian Conservation Corps cleared the land, erected facilities, and repaired the dams and spillways around the pond.

Trap Pond was officially opened as Delaware's first state park in 1956. Today, the park has more than 3,000 acres of forest land, freshwater pond and cypress swamp. The pond is a popular destination for boaters and fisherman. A wilderness canoe trail leads the explorer into the swamp's interior.

Trap Pond's connection to the water has remained unchanged. In August 2007, that connection was officially recognized when Trap Pond became a part of the Chesapeake Bay Gateways Network. The Network, coordinated by The National Park Service, connects people to the natural areas and common heritage that are part of the Chesapeake region, and connects these areas to one another with the common goal of promoting appreciation and stewardship of the Bay and its surrounding cultural and natural treasures.

The park offers year-round opportunities for Delawareans and visitors to experience Trap Pond's water connection. Pontoon boat tours and guided canoe and kayak tours explore the millpond and its habitats. Naturalists lead hikes through the park and identify the many tributaries that lead to the Chesapeake Bay. Visitors can opt to extend their stay at the park's family and primitive campgrounds, and the Nature Center offers exciting displays and information about native species found in the park.

For more information about Trap Pond State Park, call (302) 875-5163 or visit www.destateparks.com. For more information about the Chesapeake Bay Gateways Network, visit www.baygateways.net.

Gifts of cash are the most common form of charitable donations.

Gifts of Securities

When you transfer appreciated stock with longterm gain to the Delaware State Parks Trust Fund, you put the full value of your assets to work for you — and for Delaware — because capital gains taxes are completely avoided.* And you take a charitable deduction for the stock's full value.

Gifts of Retirement Plan Assets

IRAs and retirement plan benefits often are reduced by estate taxes at death, and then by income taxes. It may be possible to avoid these taxes by designating the Delaware State Parks Trust Fund as beneficiary of an IRA or employee benefit plan. Consult your advisor about how to properly designate the fund as the beneficiary of an IRA or retirement plan.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE CECIL WHIG AND THE NEWARK POST

How will you spend your

Earlier this year, Congress passed an Economic Stimulus Package that will result in most taxpayers getting a check for $600. Starting in May, the Treasury began sending these checks to more than 130 million households.

To receive a payment, taxpayers must have a valid Social Security number, have $3,000 of income, and file a 2007 federal tax return. The IRS will take care of the rest.

Eligible people will receive up to $600 ($1,200 for married couples), and parents will receive an additional $300 for each eligible child younger than 17.

Millions of retirees, disabled veterans and low-wage workers who usually are exempt from filing a tax return must do so this year in order to receive a stimulus payment.

A special mailout was sent to this group of people, providing specific details on how to request the payment. It included a Form 1040A that requires only a few lines to be completed. Even though April 15 has passed, there is still time for this group to submit a 2007 form to receive an economic stimulus payment.

Do you need to fill out a form?

The vast majority of Americans who qualify for an economic stimulus payment will not have to do anything other than file their 2007 individual income tax return to receive their payment this year. They will not have to complete applications, file any extra forms or call the Internal Revenue Service to request the payment, which is automatic. The IRS will determine eligibility, figure the amount and issue the payment.

How do you know if you're eligible?

Most people with a 2007 net income tax liability will qualify. This includes most people who get tax refunds. For Form 1040EZ filers, it is the amount on Line 10.

Some higher-income taxpayers will not receive a stimulus payment or will receive a reduced payment The stimulus payment - both the basic component and the additional funds for qualifying children - begins to phase out for individuals with adjusted gross incomes over $75,000 and married couples who file a joint return with AGI over $150,000.

When will your check arrive?

If you chose direct deposit when you filed your 2007 tax returns, you should have received your payment by May 16.

If you had a paper check mailed to you for last year's tax refund, your tax rebate check will be mailed also, following a schedule based on the last two digits of the main filer's Social Security number. For joint filers, the payments will go out based on the person listed first on the return.

See page 6 for the payment schedule.

economic stimulus check?

These 6 readers get an extra $100 to spend

MAY 2008

The Cecil Whig and Newark Post asked readers how they plan to spend their $600 windfall. Their answers begin on page 6. We chose six entries at random, and these six readers will receive a check for $100 to add to their rebate:

- Ame Miller, Elkton
- · Martha L. Johnson, Conowingo
- Marie Anderson, Conowingo
- Mary Britt, Newark
- · Pam McCarver, Conowingo
- · U.A. Powell, Elkton

Still have questions?

Go to www.irs.gov and click on the green and blue box marked "stimulus payment" in the center of the page. It will take you to the Economic Stimulus Payments Information center, where you can estimate your payment and check on the status of your rebate. Or call the Rebate Hotline at 1-866-234-2942

How will you spend your $600 economic stimulus check?

I plan to put my $600 Economic Stimulus check in my checking account for contributions to my church and increase what I use for my wife's upcoming birthday. And it will pay off upcoming credit card statement. And the $100 I may win from you will be applied to the same.

> Flyd LaBarre Jr. Rising Sun, MD

My ESP? I'd LOVE to put it towards a trip to Grand Cayman, but it'll go into the emergency fund. I'll probably take a little of it and buy a couple things for the house, but the majority of it will go into savings. Then depending on how the year goes, I'll either hold onto it, or dump it into my ROTH IRA. I guess that's pretty boring, but I'm too frugal to run out and buy a big screen, or fritter it away. Besides, it'll be worth more later if I put it in my ROTH.

> Mary Britt Newark, DE

Just when my check arrived from the government, we had a very windy day and our pear tree broke in half. So in an emergency we had to use the $1200 to pay a tree service to remove it. Well, it really came in handy.

Marie Anderson Conowingo, MD

I would love to win this money because I grew up poor. I would love to take my granddaughter somewhere nice. After I pay my bills I'm broke. I'm on SSI & disability. So money is rare with me. Once it's in my hand its gone. I've never had much. But I make out OK. I've never had any extra money to spend. When I went to school I had to wear hand-medowns. There are 10 kids in my family. I just had a brother die of cancer, he was 53 years old. It really hurts. I think about him every moment of the day. I'd like to have enough money to go to Florida to see my sister. Eight years ago I was in the hospital for sixteen months. They gave me 2 hours. But the Lord saved me for some reason!

Carol Shelby Elkton, MD

I'm going to pay doctor bills and some savings for home improvements R.Rothermel Delaware

I know I should use our $900 to pay off the credit card but we have lived in our house for 20+ years and have always wanted a deck on the back because we barbecue practically all summer. So I think we will finally put a deck on the back — that would be a dream come true.

> Joan Parker Newark, DE

Talk about perfect timing! Our oil company filled up our heating fuel tanks on Monday. Our Economic Stimulus ' Check arrived 2 days later. It almost covered the cost of the oil! So that is where our check is going.

Rich & Dianne Carnegie

A promise of $600 from the government, no strings attached? I will wait until money is in my hand before I spend it. I do have many places to put "extra money." My church needs remodeling money, my grandchildren have a want list, and my only daughter has been dead for over a year and still no grave marker. Yes, I will spend every cent of it as best I can.

> U.A. Powell Elkton, MD

I am 86 years old and I live alone. I had colon cancer and I sure could use $100 to pay doctor bills.

> Mrs. Hattie Jones Elkton, MD

What I will do with my check! I will pay off my "Brothers Funeral" which Thank God for Gee's Funeral Home!! They have been letting me make payments for the last two years. I can at last bury his ashes on his birthday at the end of May!

What I would like to do, is get my car worked on. Margaret Kitts Elkton, MD

My granddaughter Savanna will be coming from San Diego, California to stay the summer with us. We will be using our stimulus check to take her to Frontiertown in Ocean City to go camping. Savanna stayed in MD last summer and had a lot of fun. So we're looking forward to her coming home again. We'll have a lot of fun times I am sure, and make lasting memories. So that check will come in handy with an 11 year old in O.C. and here in Cecil County for the summer.

> Pam McCarver Conowingo, MD

I plan to spend my $600 Economic Stimulus Check to help pay off my husband and mine - our tombstone. Clinton Lee Johnson, Sr. passed away on November 14, 2007. I am having one stone for both of us. I feel he would be pleased if I used the money for that purpose. I believe our children would agree also. Thank you,

Martha L. Johnson Conowingo, MD

I'm going to stimulate the downtown Newark Restaurants! Stu Markham Newark, DE

I am planning on spending most of my Economic Stimulus Check on traveling expenses to see my husband. You see, he is dying of liver disease and only has 3 to 6 months to live. He is living in Roanoke, VA where he has someone to take care of him 24/7. We lost our home due to his health. We also have a 21 month old little girl that he misses so much! I pray that we get the money soon so we can spend some time together.

Ame Miller Elkton, MD

$600 - What $600? - I got $300 and my husband got $300! We are both retired and try to live on SS and small pensions. (Which doesn't add up to much!) But, anyway - We bought my husband a lounge chair (which we charged) and will now pay off! I would rather have bought chocolate; put towards a trip to Ireland or bought diamonds, but when you're 75 years old, you have to be practical. Ruth Lashley Elkton, MD

"Pennies From Heaven" What is, is! This is found money, pennies from Heaven. (Especially with today's prices, it is pennies.) But you know what? I'll take it ... Have some fun, however think about it and prevent having a spending hangover and nothing to show for it. My plan: 1) Church/charity, it doesn't have to be a lot. 2) Save a little for a rainy day. I know that I've needed an umbrella a lot

Providing energy-saving shade for windows, porches, decks and sunrooms at the touch of a button!

A Custom-made Shading System that's JUST Right!

- Instant, on-demand solar protection
- Added living space and over the last few years. 3) Some extra groceries 4) Toilet paper to go with the extra groceries... I'm excited about getting my "pennies from Heaven."

Most of our life experiences are from the choices we make so choose wisely and count your blessings. Peace be with you!

No check for the kiddies? Don't worry, it's on the way!

The IRS will mail out approximately 350,000 additional economic stimulus payments starting in early July after discovering that some tax returns were improperly filed and did not capture the information needed to generate the $300 in qualifying child payments. Though 99 percent of all returns were filed properly, two commercial tax preparation software products had a glitch that did not check the proper box to indicate the filer had children. The corrected checks will be mailed automatically, and taxpayers don't need to call or take any additional steps.

How NASCAR's point system works

Race victories are more important than ever in 2008 as a result of adjustments to the points system and the Chase for the Nextel Cup format made by NASCAR.

The adjustments are designed to establish more balance between winning and consistency, but there is a new emphasis on winning.

During the format's first three years, the top 10 drivers in points after the 26th race of the season qualified for the Chase. In addition,

-RT 4 ----

1-95 -----

nore Pike --

RT 40 -----

any other driver outside the top 10 but within 400 points of the standings' leader also was eligible.

Starting this season, the 400point cutoff is eliminated and the top 12 drivers in the points after Race 26 will qualify for the Chase.

All 12 drivers will have their point totals re-set to 5,000 and each will then receive a 10-point bonus for each race victory they had during the first 26 races.

The Chase drivers will be "seeded" to start the Chase based on the number of wins amassed during the regular season.

Race winners throughout the 36-race season will now receive 185 points, a five-point increase.

Counting the five-point bonuses available for leading at least one lap and leading the most laps, a race winner now can earn a maximum of 195 points, creating a possible maximum of 25 points between firstand second-place finishers.

Montoya frustrated after another crew chief swap

By Jenna Fryer Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO

The challenge was leveled over the loudspeaker at the end of a long day at the All Candy Expo.

"Juan Pablo Montoya," the woman called. "Come take the Toxic Waste Challenge."

After a roller-coaster 24 hours, Montoya finally smiled. He popped a "hazardously sour candy" into his mouth Wednesday and successfully kept in for the one minute challenge time.

"It was pretty sour to start with, but it went away pretty fast," he said. "It wasn't that bad."

Montoya can't say the same for the events of this week. Crew chief Jimmy Elledge was released by Chip Ganassi Racing on Tuesday and Montoya heads into this weekend's Coca-Cola 600 with his third crew chief in less than a month.

Elledge came aboard in late

April when Ganassi moved Donnie Wingo, who had guided Montoya's transition from Formula One into NASCAR, to Reed Sorenson's team. Montoya got Elledge and was pleased with the direction his No. 42 Dodge was headed.

But in what Montoya described as a "management decision," Elledge was let go and Brian Pattie was moved from one of the Nationwide Series crews to run Montoya's team.

"I wasn't really part of it, so, I am pretty frustrated," Montoya said. "They told me ÔWe are thinking of getting rid of Jimmy' and I said ÔDon't do it.' Next thing I knew, they did. That's what happened. You are going to have to ask somebody else about it, because I wasn't involved in this."

Although he didn't think he needed to lose Wingo when that move was made, Montoya said he understood it because he believed Wingo could help Sorenson save his struggling season. And even though the results weren't there yet with Elledge — they were second in their debut race at Talladega, but struggled in the three after that — Montoya liked the direction Elledge was taking the team.

"We were taking a very different route, and I was willing to see where it led," he said.

Now he starts over – again – and is concerned about forward progress with the entire organization. He points to his debut Cup race at Homestead in the 2006 season finale, when he was running near the top 10 before an accident with Ryan Newman ended his race.

"I think it's really hard that in my first mile-and-a-half Cup race, I was very close to getting a top-10 finish. Two years later, we're running 20th," he said. "We should be a lot further. We should be a lot better of a team right now, and we're not." Montoya said he's spoken several times with Ganassi in the 24 hours since Elledge was let go, and expressed his frustration with the situation.

"We talked, and I told him how I felt and that's it really," Montoya said.

Montoya said he's got faith in Pattie, "He's a really smart guy," he said, but worries that all the changes over the past month are unsettling to the entire race team. He expects more movement behind the scenes.

"More has got to be coming. I don't think we have made as much progress as we need to," he said. "In the beginning of the year, I thought we made gains over where we had been running. We seem to have lost that over the last few weeks, and we need to find more speed.

"I don't think frustration is the word for how I feel. I think it's more – there's a lot of effort put into it, and a lot of people working their butt off and we're not getting better. It's annoying."

Montoya's Q&A with AP Auto Racing Writer Jenna Fryer:

Q: Wrigley's brought you to the Candy Expo to sign autographs and meet fans, then you got a chance to walk around and visit the booths. How did you like it?

JPM: It was cool. There was a lot of nice candies and a lot of nasty ones. It was cool to see Wrigley's with a car there and to see a company so pumped up about it. it was really cool to be part of it.

Q: What did you like best today?

JPM: I'm trying to think what was the best thing today. I was surprised to see how many people came for autographs to an event that was not racing-related, and to see how many countries they came from – England, Germany, Italy, the Spanish people. That was cool.

CONCORD, N.C.

Aside from the $1 million payout to the winner, the All-Star race supposedly doesn't count for anything.

Kasey Kahne, Matt Kenseth, AJ Allmendinger and Sam Hornish all might disagree.

The four drivers got a much-needed confidence boost in the so-called meaningless race, using strong runs Saturday night at Lowe's Motor Speedway to show there is hope in turning their slumping seasons around.

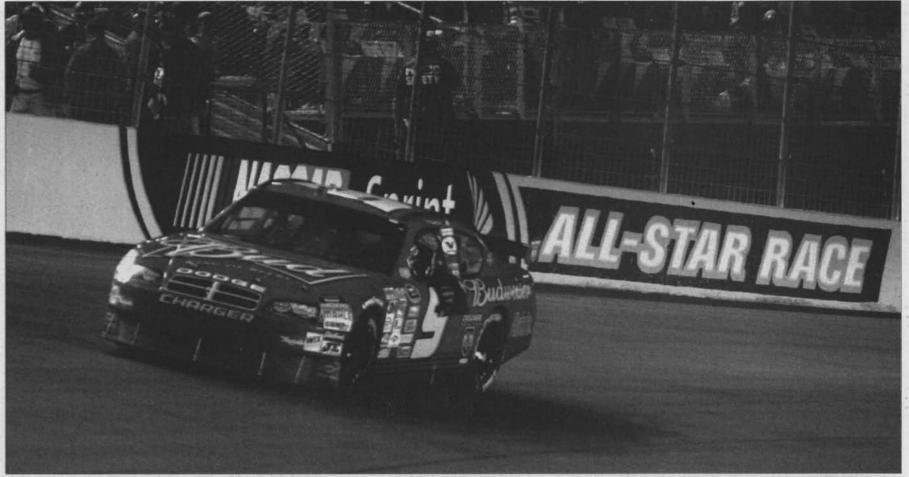

"I'm already looking forward to next weekend's (Coca-Cola) 600," Kahne said after winning the $1 million prize. "It gets me excited to come back to the track next week. I know it's good for myself and I definitely know it's good for the team and for the guys that work on the car.

'They need to win once in a while to be like, 'Man, I'm putting in so much time, so many hours, and it pays off.' I think it's really big for everybody."

For Kahne, who slipped his way into the race via the fan vote and then gambled to win the main event and the $1 million prize, the victory boosted his spirits during a trying time for the one-time championship contender.

He's mired in a 52-race winless streak, dating back to Lowe's in October 2006. That was the last of his six wins that season, when he made the Chase and finished a career-best eighth in the final points standings.

But 2007 was a struggle, as Kahne and his Gillett-Evernham Motorsports team notched just one top-five fin-"ish all season. His only wins came in the Nationwide Series, and his August win at Bristol was just one of two trips to Victory Lane.

Winless through the first 11 races of this year, he was ineligible for the All-Star race and needed to finish first or second in the Sprint Showdown to earn a transfer spot into the show. His car was horrible in Friday's practice sessions, and a dejected Kahne seemed already defeated before he finished fifth in the preliminary race.

Saved by an ardent fan base that gave him the third and final transfer spot, Kahne's spirits were certainly lifted after he gave Dodge its first win in the All-Star race and earned an automatic invite to the event for the next 10 years.

down," Kahne said. "This is his Roush Fenway Racing momentum. These are things that can turn your season around and get you going in the right direction."

Kenseth is looking for that same spark. The 2003 series champion is having a horrible year by his standards, failing to match any of the consistency that earned him berths in every running of the Chase since its 2004 inception.

He's 20th in the points, has only one top-five finish this year and appeared openly frustrated a week ago in Darlington, S.C. Then he pulled out a sixth-place finish in the Cup race at Darlington and followed it with his third-place run in the All-Star race.

He knows the finish will "I just get frustrated. I get be lost on everyone outside team, but they are the ones that needed it, anyway.

"It was a good morale booster for the team," Kenseth said. "We haven't really been running very good this year. When we have run good, we've had a lot of problems.

"We were kind of back in form a little bit. We were pretty competitive at times. If it runs solid like that for 600 miles, I think we will have a car that can be a contender, something I haven't felt like in a while."

Oh, can Allmendinger and Hornish relate to that. Former open-wheel stars, adjustments to their NASCAR have been far from smooth.

Allmendinger had a horrible rookie year, and was pulled from his Red Bull Racing car for five races this season so the team could figure out if the struggles were car or driver related.

And Hornish, a three-time IndvCar Series champion and one of the most successful American open-wheelers in history, has never struggled the way he has since moving to NASCAR. He failed to make races last year while testing the stock-car scene, then made the switch despite his struggles and it's not gotten any easier: He's still looking for his first top 10 of the year.

So when Allmendinger crossed the finish line in first place in the Sprint Showdown, with Hornish hot on his bumper, the two drivers accustomed to success finally felt it in a stock car. Both advanced into the All-Star race, where they never ran up front, but that didn't matter.

Just getting into the main event was enough for both.

"I feel like I won the Davtona 500," an elated Allmendinger said before finishing 17th in the All-Star race. "Nobody understands how much this means to me after what we went through as a team. It may be just an All-Star Showdown, but this means the world to me."

Hornish perhaps could have won the Showdown, but settled into second because he didn't want to force the issue and risk wrecking a car set to advance into the All-Star race. He finished seventh in the big race, and to some, it seemed as if he'd just won another Indianapolis 500 title.

JUNE 2008 DOVER PREVIEW Kyle Busch is a triple threat

Whig staff reports

Kyle Busch has been extremely busy on the NASCAR circuit so far this season, competing - and excelling - in the Sprint Cup, Nationwide Series and Craftsman Truck series.

Bush was first in the Sprint Cup standings (1,690 points), second in the Nationwide ranks (1,628) and seventh in the truck series (797) entering this past weekend's Coca-Cola 600 at Lowe's Motor Speedway in Concord, N.C. The 23-yearold will continue his strenuous schedule at Dover this weekend, driving three races in three different series in three days.

"Well, it's pretty much common in Dover," Busch said. "I've done that the past couple years and I'm looking forward to doing that again. This year we've got Toyota everything.

"Looking forward to three great days of racing."

After practicing with his truck car on Thursday, the real fun for Busch begins Friday when he must endure two sets of Nationwide practices, truck qualifying, Sprint Cup practice, Sprint Cup qualifying and then, finally, the AAA Insurance 200 Craftsman Truck series race at 5 p.m.

The schedule, however, doesn't deter Busch.

"Well, you try to find time to eat, but besides that, it's not that bad," he said. "You know, I've been pretty used to it going back and forth and switching between all three. You just have to remember what you're marks are in each different vehicle.

"You got to remember where you brake, you got to remember where you gas, you got to remember how much brake and phy there yet, so I didn't get series, but you know, anything can change at any time so we've just got to keep it going," Busch said. "We've had some good looks on everything so far, and this past weekend we didn't have very much luck, so you kind of win some and lose some. We'll take the good with the bad and hopefully more good than bad."

Busch said he prepares for his three-race weekends by working out for two hours everyday he's home and eating as healthy as he can. He says the toll on his body isn't as great as one might expect.

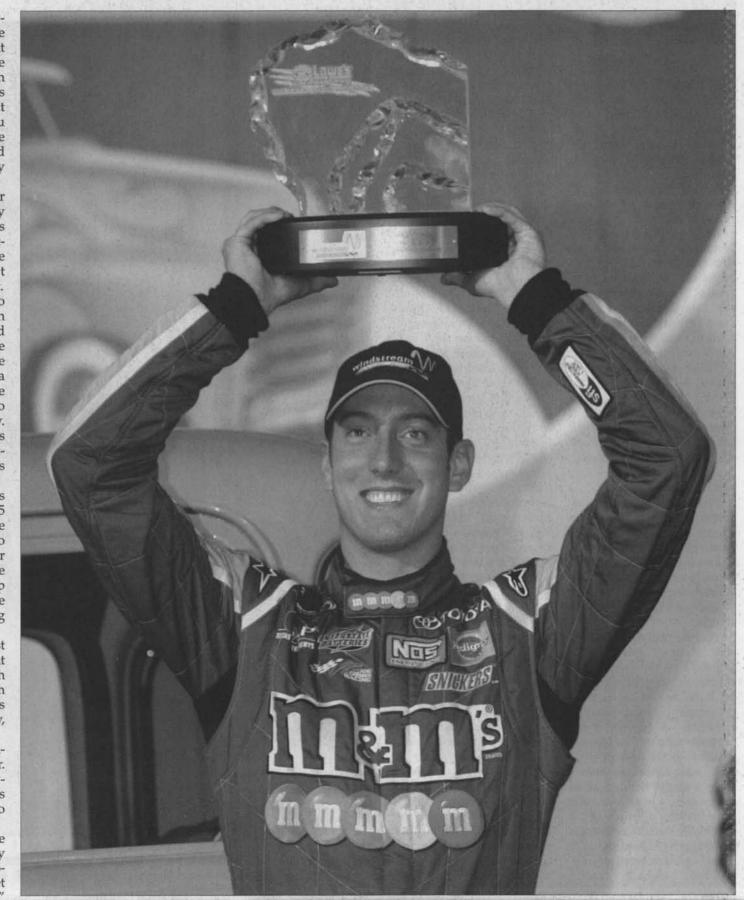

"I try to do what I can to stay healthy to keep up on the workout regiment and stuff," Busch said. "There was a time last year where we ran three weekends in a row, I think, with the three races, and so it wasn't too bad, I was OK actually. Mondays and Tuesdays getting back up I feel pretty good, so I guess it's working."

The 2004 Busch Series Rookie of the Year and 2005 NEXTEL Cup Rookie of the Year expects to continue to race as much as he can for "a couple more years." He wants to further develop his truck team and be able to use it as a proving ground for drivers.

"I feel like I'm on my best when I run the three different series, just getting as much track time as I can," Busch said. "So, until I feel like it's not as beneficial as it is now, then I'll probably change."

Busch has won eight combined races thus far this year. The monster trophy, however, still eludes him. Busch is hoping this is his weekend to break through in Dover.

"I've won at Dover before in the Truck Series, but they didn't have the monster troeverything It's just a mat- to take home that one."

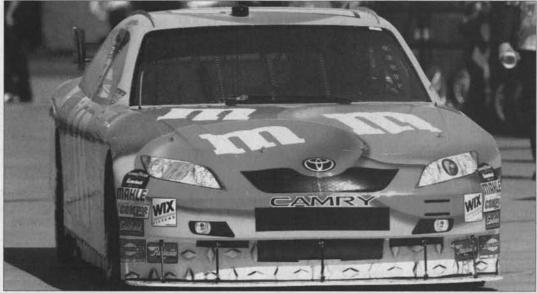

ter of having a good memory I guess, which I don't have a very good memory."

Memory or not, the success that Busch has experienced this season doesn't surprise him.

"I'm definitely grateful that we've been as successful as we have been in all three Busch said. "It'd be pretty cool. I think we've got a great shot in all three series to try and take home one, and we'll see how it goes. I feel like the Cup race for me there has always been a great race. I think I've finished in the top five in all but one of my races, and I feel Lowe's Motor Speedway in Co like it's a pretty good track for me. I like it a lot, and the trucks are definitely going to be a good show, too, to try and go out there and win in that thing too, and just keep the streak going."

CHARLOTTE, N.C.

It was a matchup NASCAR could only dream of: Melanie Troxel and Ashley Force going headto-head in the first allfemale Funny Car elimination round.

Troxel won the round, made it to the finals and ultimately claimed the title Sunday at Thunder Valley Nationals - making her the first woman in NHRA history to win in both its nitro classes. Troxel downplayed the significance of her matchup with Force, trying hard to remove gender from the historic moment.

"Everybody wants to make a big story about Ashley and I running against each other," she said. "For me, it's not about the other female out here. I think it's pretty sad if we have to just compare ourselves against each other." She's right, of course. Female competitors are no longer a sideshow in most forms of racing, and Troxel's championship proved women are succeeding at a consistent pace. Except in NASCAR, that is.

As the most celebrated in motorsports day approaches this week, the differences in gender equality have never been more profound. Danica Patrick headlines a trio of three women who will compete Sunday in the Indianapolis 500, but NASCAR won't have a single woman in its showcase Coca-Cola 600 later that day or in any of the NASCAR-sanctioned events spanning 10 days of racing at Lowe's Motor Speedway.

Janet Guthrie became the first woman to race in the 600, NASCAR still boasts all-male fields at its premier Sprint Cup level. In fact, no woman has raced in the 600 since Guthrie, and the Cup series has not had a female racer since Shawna Robinson ran seven events in 2002.

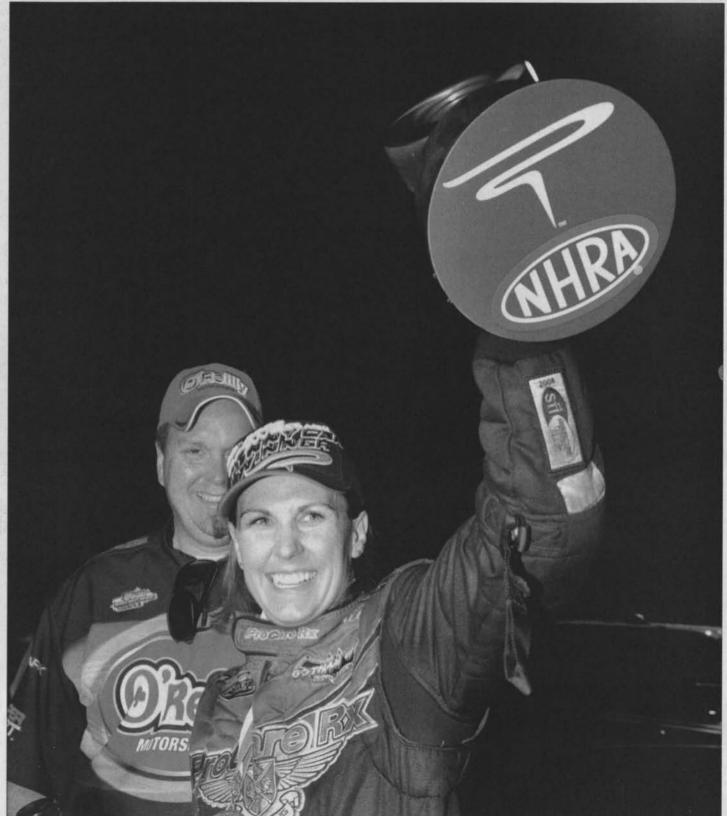

"I don't think it's something NASCAR is really concerned about. A female driver is not something they really need," said veteran racer Mike Wallace. "For a while, a lot of people thought it was a novelty. And I've had people close to me say 'Girls can't drive.'

"Well, maybe they can't. But maybe there are one or two who can, and we just need to give them a chance."

Wallace speaks not as a driver with 605 career starts spanning NASCAR's top three series, but as the father of a 20-year-old female racer who dreams of someday making it to the Cup Series. Although she has just one career start in the Truck Series, Chrissy Wallace has taken over the role as NASCAR's best bet to make it to the big time.

She's doing it on her own, piecing together a schedule of seven planned truck races this year for Germain Racing. She was a respectable 18th in her debut at tricky Martinsville Speedway and hopes improvement over her next several races will lead to the funding she needs to run a full schedule next season.

'You have to have decent finishes and win races to attract a sponsor," Chrissy Wallace said. "If we don't get one, we're probably only going to be able to do a limited schedule next season. It's Three decades after all based on performance."

JUNE 2008 DOVER PREVIEW PAGE 7 Harvick taking lead in drug testing

By Mike Cranston Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C.

Harvick has Kevin received a crash course on privacy laws, learned how long different drugs stay in the system, and tested the drivers and crew chiefs on the teams he owns.

A month after the startling former admission by Craftsman Truck Series driver Aaron Fike that he used heroin on the day of races, Harvick has jumped ahead of NASCAR by requiring the drivers and crew on his Nationwide and Truck Series teams to submit to drug tests.

"This is a very clean environment," said Harvick, who drives in Sprint Cup for Richard Childress Racing. "But we have these incidences happen, as we did with Fike. We need all that to go away."

Fike was never caught in NASCAR's substance abuse program, but was suspended after he was arrested last year and charged with possession of heroin and drug paraphernalia. He told ESPN The Magazine last month that he used heroin the same day he drove in races.

Shocked that Fike fell through the cracks of NASCAR's drug policy, immediately Harvick thought of the dangers presented by a driver on the track under the influence. Harvick was once in a race with Fike.

"Running into a wall at 200 mph and putting 42 other drivers at risk is a much bigger consequence than not being able to hit a baseball," said Harvick, who drives the No. 29 Chevrolet for RCR. "The responsibility needs to be put in everybody's hands, whether it needs to be put in NASCAR's hands, the team owners' hands, the drivers' hands."

So Harvick and his wife, DeLana, who own a Nationwide Series car and two trucks in the Truck Series, scrambled to put together a drug testing pro-Kevin Harvick gram. Incorporated drivers Ron Hornaday, Jack Sprague, Cale Gale and their crew chiefs have all submitted to drug tests in the past month.

"Just knowing that these guys that build these cars and trucks are clean just makes me feel that much safer," Hornaday said. "It would be good to see everybody follow KHI's lead and do the same."

NASCAR's drug policy allows tests anytime, but is based on "reasonable suspicion." NASCAR won't reveal how often tests have been administered. A handful of drivers have been suspended this decade, including Truck Series driver Tyler Walker last year and Nationwide drivers Kevin Grubb and Shane Hmiel in 2006. Hmiel was banned for life after three failed tests.

'The policy is perhaps the broadest and the one with the quickest trigger in all of sports," NASCAR spokesman Ramsey Poston said. "It prohibits the misuse or abuse of any drug and essentially provides NASCAR the latitude to test anyone anywhere at anytime. And that serves the sport real well. The question now is, is there more that can be done to test in a different manner, or even more often?"

Harvick suggests any driver involved in a wreck who is taken to the infield care center should be required to take a drug test.

"You can make it happen

"The Aaron Fike case is one you don't want to hear, particularly when you're policing the sport, you're testing a lot of guys and then you see something like this happens," Poston said. "While reviewing and looking over the policy is something we do on an ongoing basis, that gives you even more resolve to dig deeper."

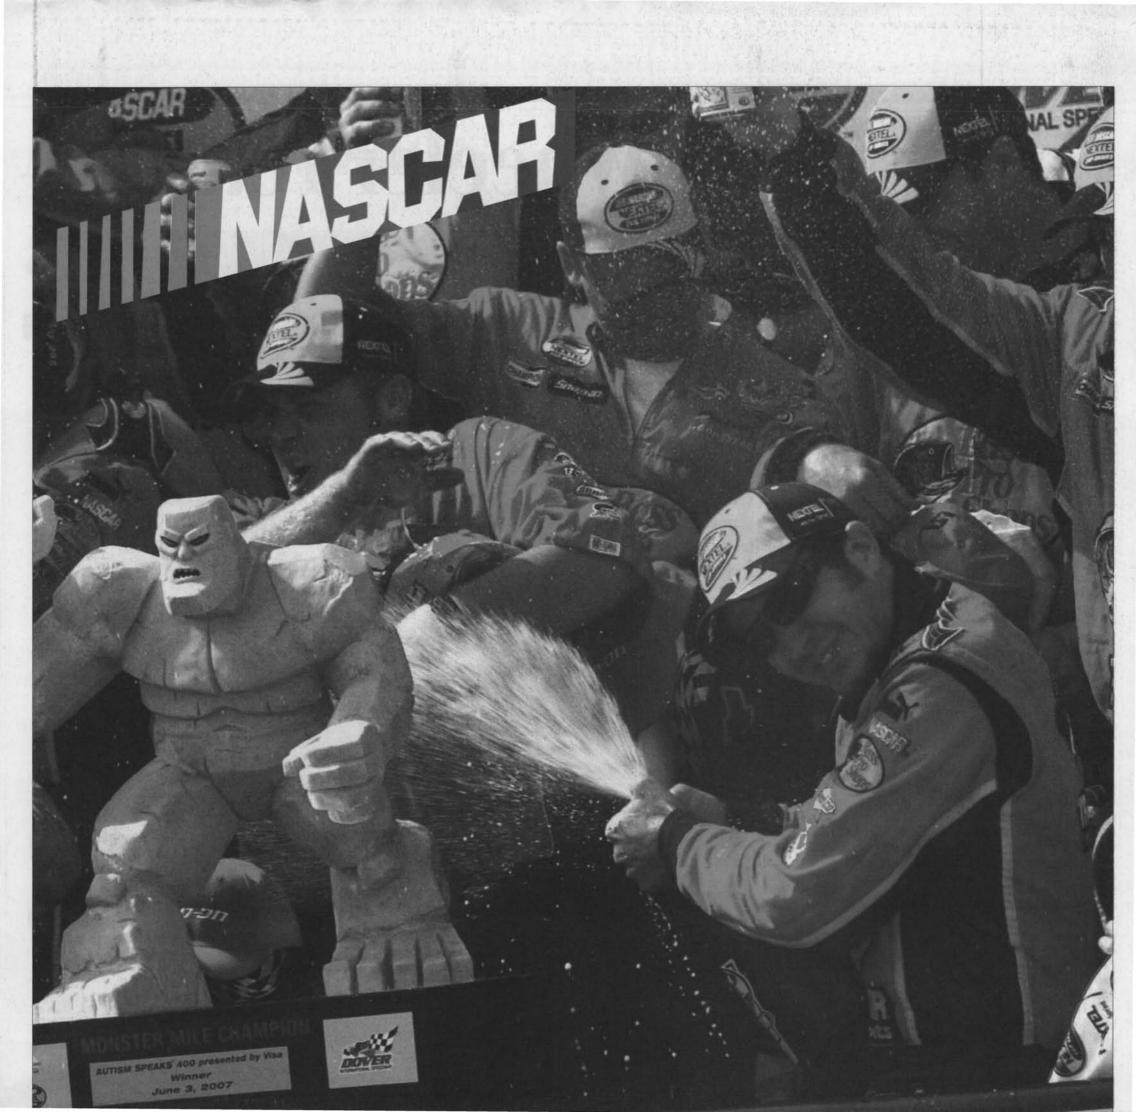

Harvick said he's gottenpositive responses from⁶ other car owners, andbelieves many will follow? his lead and implement! drug testing.

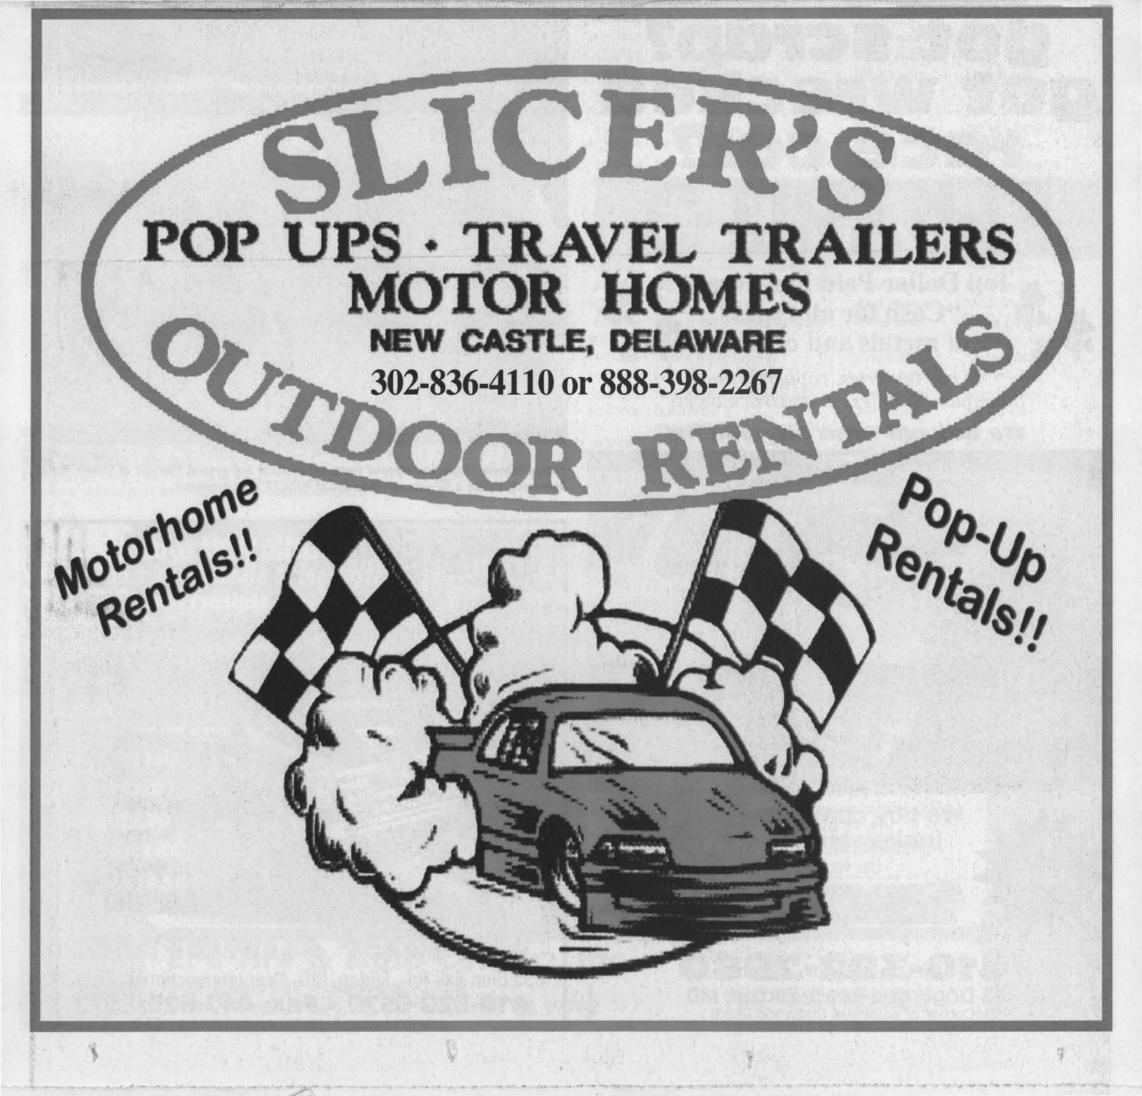

"I'm 99 percent sure that" everybody in the Cup garage is clean," Harvick said. "I justwant the perception to be known of how the drug test² ing is done, when it's done." We obviously are known as a drug-free environment at my company."

PAGE 10 DOVER PREVIEW JUNE 2008 Lowe's chief Wheeler retiring

By Mike Cranston ociated Press Writer

Humpy Wheeler announced his retirement as president and general manager of Lowe's Motor Speedway on Wednesday, ending a 33-year career as one of NASCAR's top promoters.

CONCORD, N.C.

Wheeler will step down after Sunday's Coca-Cola 600 at the track near Charlotte. No replacement was selected for the 69-year-old Wheeler, who plans to write a book and host a television show.

Wheeler said he considered retirement about a year ago, although he sidestepped a question on whether the decision to leave was completely his. Wheeler's boss is Speedway Motorsports CEO Bruton Smith, who hired Wheeler in 1975 and made him track president a year later. Smith was not present at Wednesday's news conference.

"Some of it is on my own terms. I won't say it all is," Wheeler said. "Some of it is and I'll let it rest at that."

Wheeler joked that his retirement announcement wasn't simply a gimmick to sell tickets for this weekend's race, before adding, "but if it does, that's OK.'

Wheeler has done almost anything to get fans to his track. He employed magicians, used back-flipping dogs, re-enacted war scenes in elaborate pre-race shows and emphasized driver rivalries to sell the sport and make his track one of the premier locations in NASCAR.

"Humpy Wheeler is a true legend in motorsports and his contributions will be missed," said Smith in statement. "His career with Lowe's Motor Speedway and Speedway Motorsports, Inc., has been filled with many innovative promotions and I am sure that he will be remembered as one of the greatest promoters in racing history."

Wheeler was also behind several of the sport's innovations. To prevent NASCAR from moving the All-Star race to Richmond, Va., Wheeler vowed to make his track the first superspeedway to erect lights. The NASCAR Sprint All-Star race has made LMS its permanent home, while running on Saturday night.

LMS, formerly Charlotte Motor Speedway, was also the first major track to reach a naming rights deal. Under his management, the track expanded its seating capacity to 167,000, and was the first track to offer extensive VIP suites, condominiums and extravagant pre-race entertainment.

"People that don't even know his name became NASCAR fans solely due to Humpy's creative promotions," said Eddie Gossage, president of Texas Motor Speedway. "I know that I am a far better promoter as a result of being a graduate of 'Humpy University.""

A tireless worker and cutthroat negotiator, Wheeler spent countless hours at the and befriended track numerous drivers. He was known as a stickler for details and was a calm influence during tragedy.

Wheeler's lowest point came in 1999, when three spectators were killed and eight others injured from flying debris from a wreck during an Indy Racing League race. Wheeler immediately canceled the rest of the race and the IRL has yet to return to the track.

"As long as I was running the place there would not have been another one here," Wheeler said.

Wheeler also helped develop other forms of racing. He was instrumental in the development of the Legends Car and said he the future is we don't get the hopes to develop another low-cost car that will help make sure talented drivers don't miss out on the sport because of the cost.
