Orchestra of Elliot Lawrence Featured

The Junior Class will hold its annual formal dance on Friday, February 15, from 9 to 1. The Junior Prom, a non-corsage affair, will start off the new term featuring the renowned orchestra of Elliot Lawrence and his piano.

Dick Lohmann, junior class president, has announced the dance will be known as the "Candy Dance." The decorations will be highlighted by a display of red and white peppermint candy sticks amidst a host of candy figures. The band stand will be constructed in the shape of a candy doll house.

Nancy Brooks and Jack Gebbhart, co-chairmen of the decorations committee, have been devising a variety of candy designs for the past few weeks. Polly Goller and Sid Balick are to be congratulated for the selection of this fine orchestra.

The following junior class students have taken active part in the planning of this popular dance: Class president, Dick Lohmann, dance chairman; Joan Greenfield, in charge of unusual dance programs; Bob Wilcox, sale of tickets; Bobby Martin, in charge of invitations to the faculty; Richard Okonow, in charge of finances.

The weekend of the fifteenth, which could be dubbed the "Junior Weekend," will get under way with many pre-dance parties. Intermission parties will hold the spotlight in many of the fraternity houses Friday night. The Lafayette basketball game Saturday night will be the finishing touch to a weekend well worth remembering.

Band Needs Three Trumpet Players

There are three vacancies in the trumpet section of the university band which need to be filled in the near future, according to Mr. J. Robert King, director of the band.

Band rehearsals are held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons at 4 o'clock in the Old College room. Gold pins are awarded to band members with three years service.

The band will soon begin to work on concert type music, and is planning a tour throughout the state, and a concert here on the campus.

A. Y. R. Conducts Presidential Poll February 13 and 14

The Active Young Republicans of the university will conduct a Presidential Poll on this campus on February 13 and 14. The purpose of this poll is to determine whom the students of the University of Delaware favor at this time as the next President of the United States. The ballot will consist of two sections; one side will list the possible Democratic candidates and the other will list the Republican candidates. You can vote on only one side of the ballot. There will also be a "write in" space if you prefer someone not listed.

It is urged that everyone, Democrat or Republican, vote in this primary election. No group, however small, is entirely without some measure of influence since our government and our political parties are both affected by public opinion.

The election boxes will be on a table adjoining the S.G.A. election booth and will be open from 9 until 3.

Review Launches Senior Poll Soon

In next week's Review will begin a poll of seniors to determine for posterity who in the Class of '52 is "Most Likely to Succeed," who is the "Most Attractive Girl," and a host of other mythical titles.

Seniors will be given an opportunity to select from their ranks persons to fill more than twenty positions to be recorded in the Blue Hen. The Promotions Department of The Review is conducting this poll.

In addition to the list of titles, a complete list of eligible seniors will be published. The ballot will be of the "write-in" type, and the highest three persons in each category will be considered official nominees for final vote in the following week's issue.

NOTICE

The Alpha Phi Omega book exchange is open daily from 9:00-4:00 Monday through Friday. All students are urged to take advantage of its opportunities for both buying and selling used books. The exchange is located in the basement of Robinson Hall.

Coeds Compete For Trophy In Annual Playbill Competition

Nancy Newton and Margaret Seavy are co-chairmen of the third annual Women's Playbill which will be presented on Wednesday, February 13 and Thursday, February 14 at 7:00 p.m. in Mitchell Hall. All of the women's dormitories and all interested commuters of off-campus residents are now very busy practicing their skits and tuning their voices for the "big" night, when they compete against each other.

Each dormitory will present a forty minute program consisting of a play and group choral singing. The plays will be judged on the choice, initiative and originality, effectiveness of production and audience appeal. The music will also be based on choice and presentation, stage appearance of the group, quality of the singing and audience appeal. The overall consideration of the judges will include time limit, audience acceptance, general effect of the entire forty-minute program, amount of time and work put into the production and any other general personal opinions. Judging, which is to be based on a point system, will be done by Miss Mildred Gaddis of the Music Department; Mr. Keesey of the Dramatic Arts and Speech Department and a third judge representing the entire University has not been named as yet. A gold loving cup now held by New Castle Hall, will be presented by Dean Amy Rextrew to the winning group on Thursday evening. Sussex Hall was the first year winner in this inter-dorm competition.

Evans and Ottey Star In Drama Group Production

Delaware's Mitchell Hall was the scene of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" last night and the play will be presented two more nights, February 8 and 9, by the University Drama Group.

The performance will mark the first time the group has presented any of Shakespeare's plays and it probably won't be the last.

G. Taggart Evans portrays Shylock and Portia, his lover, is played by Leah Ottey. Evans has been with the Drama Group for many years and has appeared in almost every play they have presented. He has also been on the professional stage in Washington and Baltimore and has been a guest with the Robin Hood Players. Miss Ottey, after graduating from Delaware where she was a member of E-52 has been in many plays given by the University Drama Group.

Dr. Damon Turner, a Spanish instructor and Tony Mitchell, a student here at Delaware are both in the play.

The U. D. G. has been in existence for over eighteen years with any person in Newark eligible for membership, if they are voted upon by the members.

The Student Activities books are good for the following two performances also.

E-52 Playbill Now Set For This Month

The E-52 Players will present a Playbill in February in Mitchell Hall. The U of D is fortunate to have as guests the Pennsylvania Players, who are considering presenting the "Browning Version" as one-half of the evening's entertainment. Miss Nancy Schnabel will direct "Know Your Neighbor," a one-act comedy for the other half of the program. Tryouts for "Know Your Neighbor" were held Wednesday, January 16, and the results have not yet been announced.

It has been suggested that specialty acts such as singing and dancing might be an added attraction in the coming Playbill and Laboratory Theatre Productions.

History Department Adds New Prof.

Dr. Thomas Jefferson Wertenbaker, Edwards Professor of American History, Emeritus, at Princeton University, has accepted an appointment as a visiting professor of history at the university. The appointment was announced today by Dr. John A. Perkins, president.

Professor Wertenbaker's appointment is for the second semester of the current academic year, beginning February 5. While devoting part of his time to research, he will offer two courses in American colonial history and will also act as adviser for several students majoring in history, in the preparation of their senior theses.

One of Professor Wertenbaker's courses will be a lecture-discussion class for undergraduates, meeting three times a week. The other, a graduate seminar on "Life in the American Colonies," to meet on Tuesday evenings, is a new course at the university, and will be part of a program of graduate training in museum work now being developed by the university in collaboration with the Henry Francis duPont Winterthur Museum. While designed especially for Winterthur personnel the seminar will be open to all qualified graduate students at the university.

Each dormitory will present a forty minute program consisting of a play and group choral singing. The plays will be judged on the choice, initiative and originality, effectiveness of production and audience appeal. The music will also be based on choice and presentation, stage appearance of the group, quality of the singing and audience appeal. The overall consideration of the judges will include time limit, audience acceptance, general effect of the entire forty-minute program, amount of time and work put into the production and any other general personal opinions. Judging, which is to be based on a point system, will be done by Miss Mildred Gaddis of the Music Department; Mr. Keesey of the Dramatic Arts and Speech Department and a third judge representing the entire University has not been named as yet. A gold loving cup now held by New Castle Hall, will be presented by Dean Amy Rextrew to the winning group on Thursday evening. Sussex Hall was the first year winner in this inter-dorm competition.

Play Program
A survey of each dormitory's play, its directors and order of appearance, which was selected by a drawing, shows the following:

February 13: Eaton Hall, "Sunday Costs Five Pesos," directed by Lois Furnish and music by Elsa Milby; Hanover Hall, "Hear No Evil," play and music directed by Ellen Ungerleider; Warner Hall, "Tomorrow Is the Day," directed by Jean Wilson and music by Alice Jane Matthews; and Topsy, Turvy and Boletus, "Undertow," directed by Bobbie Weygandt assisted by Lee Dannehower and music by Joan Matthews. New Castle Hall will start off on Thursday night, February 14 with "Wrong Number," directed by Polly Goller and music by Florence Twiford; Windsor, "Romance, Inc.," directed by Barbara Copps; Knoll, "When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet," directed by Anne Marie Dumas and music by Joan McDevitt; and Sussex Hall, "Stage Door," directed by Norma Levine and music by Dana Lamb.

From the sounds of things, it looks like two big nights jammed with fun, excitement and competition for all. Everyone is invited and urged to attend these performances which are presented to bring out the talent in both acting and singing which may lie in these dormitories. Be sure to make it an important date on your calendar!

Lighting for all performances will be done by Art Butler, while Roberta Sloman is serving as technical advisor for all groups.

Attention Seniors

There will be a class meeting Thursday, February 14 at 11 o'clock in Chemical Auditorium. A new class treasurer will be elected at this meeting. Committees will be set up for Senior Weekend. Let's have a good turn out!

Heavy Schedule Faces Hen Nine As Coach Martin Calls Practice

Head baseball coach William "Shack" Martin has announced that his 1952 Blue Hens will undertake one of the most ambitious schedules in the history of the university this spring. Coach Martin's nine will play the University of Michigan, the University of Maryland, Georgetown University, the University of Virginia and the United States Naval Academy. These games will highlight a full 23-game schedule.

The Blue Hen baseball players will get a real taste of professional diamond life when they open their campaign by playing six games in as many days. The Hens will play the University of Maryland at College Park on March 31 as the first contest of their annual "southern trip." On successive days the Hens will meet Fort George Meade, Fort Belvoir, the University of Virginia, the Quantico Marines, and Georgetown University.

Coach Martin has issued the first practice call for new candidates and freshmen for Tuesday, February 5. The varsity will not start practice until March 3. Two of Martin's lettermen from last year are currently listed in the starting lineup for Coach Fred Emmerson's basketball team, Dick Goldberg and Dick Evans. This year's Blue Hen club will be made up of only 15 players. Martin intends to carry three reserve pitchers, one reserve outfielder, one utility infielder and a reserve catcher. A junior varsity squad will also consist of 15 men. The only exception to this plan will be made for the southern trip when Coach Martin hopes to take the entire squad of 30 men.

Nine returning lettermen will bolster the Hens' chances of a successful season. Catcher Al Brodhag, veteran Delaware athlete, will captain the club. A tough competitor, Brodhag possesses outstanding leadership ability and is well qualified to close his senior athletic career as captain of the baseball team. Brodhag was the third leading hitter on the team last year with a .323 batting average. He collected 21 hits in 65 trips to the plate, including 16 singles, one double, two triples and two home runs. He batted in 15 runs and scored 12 runs.

At first base the Hens will have another senior letterman in Dick Evans. A steady defensive player, Evans batted .306 last year. The second base spot is one of two positions without a letterman. Last year's second baseman was team captain Joseph Higgins, one of the three lettermen lost via the graduation route. Third base is a different story however, with the hard hitting Chuck Abrams answering the call. Abrams compiled a .342 batting average last season. The infield is rounded out by Delaware's amazing athlete, Joe Lank at shortstop. Lank is another .300 slugger and the Blue Hens' leading home run hitter.

Two veterans are on hand to cover the outfield. Don "Ducky" Carmichael, who can play almost any position, will be stationed in left field. The speedy Dick Goldberg will get the nod in center field. Both players are excellent defensive men as well as dependable "clutch" hitters. Right field will be handled by Dick Berl or Johnny Allen unless coach Martin finds a freshman capable of filling the requirements. Kenny Reith, a pitcher last year, will be switched to the outfield if any injury received during the football season prevents him from throwing from the mound. Reith suffered a broken collar bone last September.

Chick'n Chat By JANET VANSANT

The old term is "passed" sufficiently well or you wouldn't be here, and a new one has begun. It presents a challenge for everybody and loads of left-over vacation exuberance, etc., etc., etc., with which to meet it.

W.A.A. activities are in full swing already. Basketball began officially last Tuesday with a demonstration of old and new rules. I think these demonstrations are really a good idea. They refresh your memory concerning old rules and at the same time familiarize you with the new. I imagine practice times will be posted on the gym bulletin board this week. Check to see when your team is scheduled. Co-recreation night was well attended and, I think, enjoyed by every one. A lot of credit should go to Coach Bernauer and his committee, and to all of those who helped to make it a success. I hope that another organization will follow in the footsteps of W.A.A. and sponsor the second co-recreation night soon.

This year W.A.A. is again sponsoring Play Day, which includes many of the high schools of the state. Each year different schools are selected so that eventually they all have a chance to participate. Play Day consists of a round of different activities played by color teams composed of the various school representatives. Last year, the program included several demonstrations and a swim to end the day. I think that a day of this kind fosters a friendlier spirit among schools.

Shirley Burns is the over-all manager of Play Day this year. If you are interested in helping with it, please contact her. I am sure that she will need extra people to act as hostesses and scorers. Incidentally, the date of the affair is Saturday, February 23.

Undefeated Matmen Face Bucknell

Coach Burnham's two "heavies" work out in Carpenter Field House. Tom Schultz seems to be pinning teammate Jim Michael, but rumor has it there's a fix involved. Schultz and Michael are leading factors in the Hens current undefeated season.

Cagers Get Under Way Lambkin and Crawford Out

Steve Hokuf Leads Lafayette Eleven

Steve M. Hokuf, line coach of the University of Pittsburgh, has been named head coach of the Lafayette college football team.

William H. Anderson, Lafayette Athletics Director, announced that the 41-year-old former Nebraska lineman had been signed to a three year contract to replace Maurice (Clipper) Smith who resigned.

Anderson said Hokuf was selected from more than 100 applicants for the post. After graduating from Nebraska Hokuf played with the professional Washington Redskins and Boston Yanks for three years. He was line coach at the Colorado School of Mines in 1936 and 1937 and assistant coach at the University of Wyoming from 1937 to 1942 when he entered the Navy.

"Great Opportunity"

Hokuf was end and line coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers pro team in 1947 and 1948 and was on the Columbia University coaching staff in 1949 and 1950 before going to Pitt last year.

A serious blow was struck against the high-flying Blue Hen cagers when it was discovered that the services of Matt Lambkin and Skip Crawford will be unavailable for the rest of the season. Due to scholastic difficulties, both of the sophomores are on probation and will be ineligible.

Crawford's loss will be sorely felt by the Emmerson men as he was leading the team in scoring. With 251 points in 13 games, for a 19.5 average, Crawford is listed as 19th among the nation's top point getters. Lanky Matt Lambkin will also be sorely missed, since the 6'6" lad from Egg Harbor has been instrumental in the backboard control as well as adding an ever-dangerous scoring punch.

Two seniors will probably move into the starting positions thus vacated. Dick Goldberg and Dick Evans, a pair of regulars from last year's combine, have plenty of experience and are quite capable of making up the loss.

On Wednesday, February 6, Delaware made another jaunt into basketball bigtime as they went up to Philadelphia to take on Villanova. The Wildcats are moving along at a rapid pace, led by high-scoring Larry Hennessy. On Saturday a home engagement will be played in Carpenter field house when the Hens return to Middle Atlantic competition against Haverford.

NOTICE

Ken Steers, track coach, urges all those interested in track to report immediately. The first indoor meet will be held on Feb. 23, with the University of Pennsylvania.

The undefeated Delaware wrestling team heads into two meets this week and will have a tough job trying to keep their victory string intact. On Wednesday, Feb. 6, the grapplers took on Drexel in the Dragon's own lair, and on Saturday, Feb. 9, take on a rough Bucknell Squad in Carpenter Field House.

Coach Whitey Burnham is bemoaning the loss of his star 167 pounder Vince Stallone, out because of scholastic ineligibility. Jim Hoey will attempt to lose enough weight to drop down to that division. Weight is also causing consternation in the 123 pound class, as Len Clapp was 12 pounds overweight 24 hours before weighing in time. There is a possibility of Delaware having to forfeit in these two classes.

On Jan. 16, the Hens defeated Swarthmore by the score of 24-0. (This meet was after the publication date of the previous Review). Clapp and Stallone suffered the only losses, as they dropped decisions. Don Rumer and Charlie Rodriguez pinned their opponents to score 10 of Delaware's points, while Catts, Angulo, Michael, and Schultz scored decisions. It was the first time this year that high-scorer Michael has failed to pin his opponent.

Swimmers Top PMC

On January 16 the Delaware Mermen triumphed over P.M.C. by a perfect score of 76-8. The squad took first and second place in every event to maul the Cadets.

The swimming team has now won four out of five meets to date. Its only loss was to Lehigh, the Middle Atlantic Champions.

The team, sparked by Lorin Krusberg, Art Mayer and Jerry Keogh have set new records during almost every meet.

In spite of losing the meet, the Lehigh engineers saw Delaware set new pool records. Individual medley relay 1:42, 200 yard backstroke 2:22.4, 440 yard freestyle 5:09.9.

Last Wednesday the tankmen took on Swarthmore in Taylor Pool, and this Saturday they will journey up to Drexel.

The Case of No. 4279370

All we've been hearing this week is a revival of a song that makes the Delaware Hit Parade every year about this time — "The I Know I Shipped up During The Fall, but I'm Starting Out Fresh This Semester Blues." The melody is a little flat, but the lyrics ring true. This is the time of year that we vow to make the Dean's List, that we declare we are turning over a new social leaf, that we promise to approach our academic acrobatics with sincerity for a change. But do we? Never happens. Let's face it, resolutions are made to be broken.

Take case No. 4279370—an average fellow who came to college for the usual reason: he did not feel like going to work quite yet. Came the change of semesters in his Junior year and No. 4279370 had a trembling 1.72 index. He had been a victim of circumstances. The usual story. He got started in the wrong course. He had to pass the Deer Park to get to class each morning. He was hopelessly tied up in extra-curricular activities. His love life was time consuming (and cash consuming). His pencil always seemed to break when he started to work, and the nearest sharpener was in the library. His schedule was fouled up. His advisor had misinformed him. His instructors black-listed him on the first day of class. He had a hard time waking up in the morning. His case was a sad one indeed.

Came February and the change of semesters. "This time I'll do it," said No. 4279370 determinedly. "I'm going to get off to a good start and dazzle them this term."

Came March 1. "It's still early in the term and there is still plenty of time to get started," rationalized No. 4279370.

Came April 1. "The term's still young, and we really haven't covered anything yet. I'm going to get off to a fast start this semester," said No. 4279370 loudly enough to convince himself that he was correct.

Came May 1. "I have a whole month left to trap these courses. I've got nothing to worry about," whistled No. 4279370 through his oral orifice.

Came June 1. "Well, finals count about half of the term mark anyway, so I've got a great chance to really show them that I learned something this term. Besides, anybody who can't learn a course in a couple of days of hard study shouldn't be in college," whimpered No. 4279370 with curled tongue in cheek.

Came June 10. "Dear John 4279370, we regret to inform you that . . ."

Came Oct. 1. "Dear Classmates, Korea really isn't so bad. It's getting a little colder now, but I expect to be home and back in school by winter. . . ."

So closes the file on case No. 4279370. Praise the Lord and pass the textbooks.

Study Of Smoking Reveals True Facts

A columnist for the Daily Pennsylvanian, University of Pennsylvania, recently made a personal cigarette survey. Here's what he found:

"I discovered most doctors don't even smoke, there is no T-zone, certain cigarettes are not firm and fully packed and it would take the gentleman who smokes two packs a day two and one-half years to get an automatic toaster with coupons offered by a certain cigarette. "Cigarettes always leave an unpleasant aftertaste, most people drop ashes everywhere but in an ashtray (everybody looks for one but never uses it) and a longer cigarette is a nuisance to handle (anyone not used to one tries to light it in the middle). "Smoke gets in your eyes, and your cigarette is my cigarette."

Spring Social Schedule

A rather bright outlook may be taken toward the ensemble of promising activities scheduled for the near future. Included in the schedule from the present until spring vacation are no less than five dances, two artist series productions, a skating party, and many, many issues of the Review.

First on the list is the "Merchant of Venice," a University Drama Group Production on February 7, 8, and 9.

Following that we find a skating party sponsored by the Junior Class, on February 11.

On February 13 and 14, memorable dates for the girls, is the Women's Play Bill Production. Also sharing the same evening is an informal dance in Old College Lounge with the Delawarettes holding the reins.

Far be it for us not to mention February 15, the night of the Junior Prom AND the next issue of the Review.

One week later, February 22 to be exact, the Gold Key Society and the Cheerleaders are making their bid with an old fashioned square dance.

February 25 finds Mitchell Hall aglow with the bright lights of an Artist Series Production.

A dance on the 29th marks the beginning of Women's Weekend, an eagerly awaited occasion.

On March 8 of the following week is the Engineer's Ball.

Following that is a five-day run of the E-52 production, "One Touch of Venus."

The list's last but not least is the W.A.A. Aquatic Show on March 25, 26, and 27.

Next comes (Oh, happy day) Spring Vacation. Until then, keep these dates in mind. We'll see you there.

A Failure of Function

Our Student Government Association should be congratulated for its efficiency, activeness, and regard for its constitutional duties. But it is failing in an important function of representative government. It is failing to arouse the active interest of the student body as a whole in its affairs, and it is failing to request and accept the opinions of its constituents.

The Editor attended the first meeting of the S.G.A. after Christmas, on Thursday, January 3. At that meeting not a single member of the Association introduced a subject that had been bouncing around the Student Union for the week preceding the holiday, and that had been proposed to the Editor at least a half dozen times by a half dozen different dissatisfied students. The subject: Would the S.G.A. make refunds to buyers of tickets to the Christmas Formal who were prevented from attending by the inclement weather?

Lack of Concern for Opinion

The fact of the matter was that it was impossible for the S.G.A. to make refunds because a great loss had already been suffered on the dance, and that there were many tickets in circulation held by persons who actually did go to the dance. But regardless of the answer, not a single member of the S.G.A. reflected, or even reported, the concern of the people, until it was introduced by the Editor to the meeting floor.

This was a prime example of the S.G.A.'s lack of concern for the opinions of the people, and failure to exercise as a bonafide representative body.

Meeting Attendance

Another example of the separation of the Association from the voting public is the fact that approximately no one except members of the Association and specially invited guests attend the meetings, which are held each Thursday evening. The Association can say that all students are welcome to attend all meetings, and that it is not their fault that the voting public is not interested enough to attend. But there would be fallacy in this statement.

The members of the Association have been vested with the leadership of the campus, and it is their responsibility as leaders to maintain interest in the affairs of the organization. They should constantly be inviting members of the student body to attend and take part in the discussions. It is quite true that this would lengthen the meetings and introduce a lot of discussion that now is efficiently avoided. But to avoid discussion is not the function of true democratic government.

Controversial Subjects

This campus needs a student forum. It needs a senate for debate. It needs to have arguments and differences of opinion. It needs to have progressive ideas brought forth and rejected if not acceptable, but accepted and practiced if worthy. The age of the campus orator is gone and needs to be revived now. We need a sounding board to ring out with debate on controversial subjects.

Next: Where are the controversial subjects? Unfortunately, there are few. Why? Because most issues have only two sides, and one side is almost always ruled out either by campus tradition, or by pressure from the university. We are attending an extremely conservative university, in an extremely conservative state. And sometimes this extreme conservatism approaches utter backwardness.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of The Review
Dear Sir:

In response to the letter in the Review last week referring to the use of Confederate flags, I would like to report that our committee has taken definite steps in counteracting this foul malpractice. Last Saturday evening, the vigilantes led a raiding party which foraged throughout the community of Newark and adjacent area and succeeded in requisitioning 14,947 Confederate flags. We would like to extend a cordial invitation to the entire student body to a ceremony to be held in Yankee Stadium in which we intend to build a huge bonfire of these flags and burn Ulysses S. Grant in effigy. I think it would be of general interest to the readers of the Review to know that our next act of mercy will be the seizure of all sombreros worn by Pancho Villa, all Crusaders' flags, and all fox-tails found in the area. Let's hope we can keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
DAVE HOYER,
Chairman P.O.P.P.

of Odious Practices)

Groove Dust

By DAVE HOYER

This week "Groove Dust" salutes two fine tenor men because of their recent efforts. The first, a "Down Beat Poll" winner for the past three years, is Potter's Luck and he plays it beautifully in his characteristic, bird-like tone. It's an up-tempo number and a smooth jump beat is provided by Horace Silver, piano, and Roy Haynes, drums. The flip is a chord structure similar to "Deep Purple." We believe that Getz is showing more progress and maturity in his solos with each new record.

More in the commercial style, Georgie Auld displays his prowess at tenor styling in the old standard "Manhattan." Backed by a fine chorus, Auld makes his sax sing in a broad melodic tone. We'd like to see Georgie make a big hit with these new issues; he's been in the business a long time and deserves public recognition as well as the acknowledgement from the jazz world he has always received.

Our juke box carries a good remake on an old song that Bunny Berrigan made famous many years ago, "I Can't Get Started." Art Lund, one of our favorite vocalists, performs capably in front of the beautiful trumpet of Ziggy Elman. We also like "My First and Last Love" by Nat Cole, but it sounds like a direct steal from Rimsky-Korsakov's "Sheherazade."

Our tip for fine music right here on campus is to catch Elliot Lawrence's smooth band at the Junior Prom.

"I Want You"

"I Want You" puts Dana Andrews through the emotional mill. When the Korean war hits, one of Dana's employees requests him to write a note to the draft board and inform the board that the employee's son, who also works for Dana, is indispensable. Dana refuses on the ground that the boy is not indispensable and that every young man should do his duty to his country. Then Dana's own brother, also an employee, is notified of his impending induction. After a mental struggle, Dana decides that what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander and does not write the letter that would probably get his brother a deferment.

Having overcome this problem, Dana gets caught up in a home situation that strains his patriotic fibres. His mother, having lost one son in the last war, is not exactly eager to see any other sons in the service. His father thinks army life glamorous and advises the younger brother to "kill a lot of them." His wife kicks the younger brother out of the house after a dinner at which he voices an unwillingness to serve. The younger brother feels he has been railroaded by his girl's unapproving father, who is at the head of the draft board. Then the employee's son is killed in action, and Dana is subjected to a mental "war of nerves" by the dead boy's father.

With a burst of patriotism that will leave most male members of

Personal Responsibility and Privileges

A very careful investigation into the reasons behind the reluctance of the university to extend to the student body the privilege of unchaperoned weekend afternoons in men's residences, or a more liberal interpretation of the present rule, has revealed a rather simple, and in another sense, very complex situation.

The student body is requesting more privileges so that it can exhibit and practice more responsibilities. The university wants to see more individual responsibility exhibited before additional privileges are extended. This is an opinion held by the president of the university, by the chairman of the faculty committee responsible for student affairs, and by most of the faculty members associated with the problem. It is an opinion that the student body has no alternative but to accept. It is based on what the professional leaders of the university believe to be the best long range policy for the university to follow.

The next step for the students to do is to find out just what the university expects in the field of personal responsibility, so that it can develop along those lines and eventually prove to the people who have the power to grant privileges that the student body is ready for them. What are examples of the presence of, or the lack of, personal responsibility?

Examples

According to the philosophy of the university, personal responsibility is evident when regulations and restrictions come from within the student body for governing itself. If the student body could have brought forth a solution to the parking problem and carried out its regulations itself, it would have exhibited the quality that the university is looking for. As the situation actually occurred, university authority and action were needed and exercised.

If the student body collectively had sufficient personal responsibility, it would have a greater pride in the appearance of the campus and buildings of the university, and each person would be careful not to help cut paths across the campus or throw cigarette butts on the floors of university buildings for others to pick up. Each person would feel that it was his own personal duty to help keep our buildings and grounds looking well.

Recently, a contractor was attempting to set a steel post in a concrete base near Carpenter Field House. Each time the post was left overnight in the concrete to set, some irresponsible student or students shook it free and prevented the post from setting firmly in the concrete. Whoever did it in no way accepted responsibility for his actions, and the university has used this as an example of the lack of responsibility on the part of students.

Last fall some students, believed to be from Delaware, made a raid on Lafayette and inflicted some minor damages. By fleeing and keeping the incident quiet, they refused to accept the responsibility for their actions.

Social Regulations

A prime example, but only an example, of the lack of responsibility here, as the university sees it, is failure in the self-enforcement of all the rules in the social regulations. If the students were to take it upon themselves to correct this situation, it would go a long way in convincing the university that they were ready for further privileges.

An example of how this idea of personal responsibility could work came from the president concerning study hours in the men's dormitories. The president feels that study hours are necessary for freshmen who have not adapted themselves to college ways. A large number of freshmen live in Harter Hall. The university, through the Dean of Men, could order study hours in Harter Hall and attempt to enforce them. But the student reaction would be just opposite from the desired, and greater reluctance to study would probably result. If the residents of Harter Hall were to sit down and decide that they needed study hours for themselves, set them up, and carry them out themselves, they would be exhibiting the kind of personal responsibility that the university is looking for.

Educational and Fundamental

The reason for the desire of the university to develop individual responsibility in its students is an educational one, and a fundamental one. First, the university is attempting to turn out graduates who are complete citizens, trained to a job, and to take a place in responsible society. The academic courses offered are designed to train a person for his professional future. The student activity program is designed to train a person for his place in a responsible society.

Second, the university realizes that youth, in general, is not held responsible for its actions. If a young person does something wrong, it is passed off as a prank, or as an excusable accident because of the offender's youth. But someone is held responsible for the actions of youth, and in this particular situation, it is the university that takes credit, or discredit, for the actions of young people placed in its trust by parents. Since any action of a college student is reflected upon the reputation of his college, our college is reluctant to loosen the leash until the students have exhibited the desire and ability to accept the responsibility for their own actions.

A Composite of Social Regulations and Interpretations

Social Rules

The following three sets of regulations are the rules that govern the conduct of social affairs on the campus. They are presented here to inform everyone just what is, and what is not, prescribed by the university. They overlap because they were assembled at different times for different purposes, but collectively are now recognized by the Committee on the Coordination of Student Affairs and the Deans of Men and Women as official.

Special regulations and privileges are prescribed to meet special situations by action of the Deans.

Faculty Resolutions

1. Women are not allowed to visit in fraternity houses or men's dormitories at any time except on the occasion of social events which have been approved by the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men. At least four chaperons from the approved list should be present at all social functions.

Parents of students in residence may visit in university dormitories or fraternity houses.

Any established violation of this regulation will result in expulsion from the university of the individual student or students involved. If such an infraction occurs in any fraternity house, the university may take steps to close the charter.

2. Possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages in university dormitories, fraternity houses, or any buildings used for university purposes is prohibited.

Any established violation of this regulation will subject the individual or individuals involved to suspension from the university.

3. All students of the university are expected to conduct themselves at all times in a manner befitting ladies and gentlemen. Since any violation of the accepted code of good conduct brings discredit to the University, such violations may result in the separation from the university rolls of the names of the offender or offenders. Each case shall be decided on its own merits.

Regulations

- (1) Formal dances on Friday nights shall be limited to the following: three sponsored by the Student Government Association; one by the Engineering Council; one by the Inter-Fraternity Council; and one by each of the fraternities. These dances shall end at 1:00 a.m. unless permission to extend the hour is granted by the Committee.
- (2) Informal dances and house parties may be held on Friday nights provided they are terminated at 10:40 p.m.
- (3) House parties shall be held only on Saturday nights, except that house parties lasting until twelve midnight may be held on the Friday of Inter-Fraternity Week-end.
- (4) Saturday night dances and house parties shall end at 12:00 midnight.
- (5) Dances and house parties shall not be held on a Friday or Saturday preceding a final examination period nor during that period.
- (6) Four chaperons, selected from the list approved by the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men, shall be invited to serve at each social function. The names of chaperons who have accepted the invitation shall be filed with the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men at least eight days in advance of the function.
- (7) All social functions shall be held in university buildings or in locations approved by the Coordinator acting for the Committee at least two weeks in advance of the function.
- (8) Dances shall be open only to members and guests of the student body, the alumni and alumnae groups and the university faculty and staff.

SOCIAL RULES FOR DANCES AND HOUSE PARTIES

- (Prepared for the guidance of chaperons and social chairmen)
1. Friday night dances shall end at or before 1 a.m.
 2. Saturday night dances and house parties shall end at 12:00 midnight.
 3. Men as well as women are designated as chaperons.
 4. Chaperons should stay at the function until all women students or guests have gone.
 5. Four chaperons are required for any social function.
 6. A report should be filed with the Dean of Men or Dean of Women if there is any objectionable conduct.
 7. No girl may go upstairs in a fraternity house or into a student's room.
 8. According to resolutions passed by the faculty, no one may possess or consume alcoholic beverages in university buildings, fraternity houses, or any buildings used for university purposes. Any violation of this rule should be reported.
 9. There should be a receiving line at the beginning of the dance or house party. One at the end is optional.
 10. Be sure to find out who is responsible for the dance, i.e. social chairman of fraternity, president of class, etc.
 11. If chaperon is not made welcome, is ignored, or treated discourteously in any way, it should be reported to the Dean. We are endeavoring to help the social chairmen maintain a high standard of manners at their parties, so your cooperation will be greatly appreciated. Naturally, discretion will be observed in using your comments or criticisms.

Interpretation Of The Rules

The following list of questions was submitted to the Committee on the Coordination of Student Affairs in an effort to provide an interpretation of the present rule forbidding women to enter men's living residences unchaperoned, and other rules. These are typical special circumstances which may or do occur, and the comments of the Committee indicate official opinion.

1. Occasionally women's dormitories have turn-about parties to which women invite, and call for their dates at their residences. Is it permissible for the women to enter the men's residences in such cases to call for their dates?

No.

2. The present rule restricting women from men's residences actually does not permit wives of members, or sisters, or family friends, or wives of alumni or national officers. Is it permissible for such ladies to enter residences of men?

The present regulations would not permit any of the persons listed to freely enter men's residences at any time. Ordinarily such a justifiable request made by telephone to the Dean of Men would be granted. It is the responsibility of the male host to see that the Dean of Men is informed. The reasons for this should be quite apparent.

3. When the weather is inclement, is it permissible to allow women to wait for men for a short time within the house instead of an exposed porch or steps?

No. Courtesy would require that women not have to wait and careful planning would keep this situation from arising.

4. If a woman is visiting a man for a weekend on the campus, is it permissible for him to show her his residence without obtaining chaperons eight days in advance?

No. Again, careful planning would eliminate the need to show

Explanation

In an effort to consolidate and clear up any questions concerning the present social regulations in effect on the campus, The Review here presents a complete list of the rules governing social affairs, a statement by the Committee on the Coordination of Student Affairs, and a list of questions proposed to the committee, and their answers.

Every campus organization, dormitory, and fraternity that does not already have a copy of these regulations should clip and file these lists for future reference.

This subject will be treated editorially in the next issue of The Review.

A Statement By The

Coordinating Committee

The Committee on Coordination of Student Affairs welcomes suggestions from students and encourages them. It is from these suggestions as well as from the programs developed by the committee that progress in the area of student affairs is made. This progress has been consistent and sure. We now have a varied and constantly more interesting and more valuable program of activities. The committee feels that it must be responsible for making certain that no step is taken which will retard this progress.

The committee has used the three following sets of regulations as a basis for answering the questions which were raised. Each set was designed to complement the remaining sets and they proceed from the general faculty resolutions to the more specific regulations. Every student organization should have in its files a complete set of these regulations.

Any question regarding the interpretation of the present social regulations can be answered by the Dean of Women or the Dean of a guest one's residence when chaperons were not present.

5. What procedure should be followed if a fraternity desires to invite women to prepare for a party in their house, and wishes to allow them to be in the house the afternoon before the party to prepare decorations, refreshments, entertainment, etc?

As in the past, such requests should be submitted in advance to the Dean of Men or Dean of Women.

6. Would it be permissible to have women in the houses on week-end afternoons for special activity work projects such as poster construction or dance decorations, if such work could be performed most efficiently in a house? Would chaperons be required?

The same as number five.

7. Is there any objection to a woman entering the house unchaperoned in an emergency to use some facility of the house, such as the telephone? The present regulations make no provision for such an emergency.

No rules can be made which will cover emergencies.

8. One fraternity now permits a religious club to hold regular meetings in its house. At least one adult religious leader attends these meetings. Are chaperons required each time this group wishes to meet? What is the university attitude on this exceptional case? By the written rules, it is illegal unless four chaperons are in attendance.

This is a special request for which special provisions have been made.

9. When exceptional cases such as the ones previously listed occur, and time is available for checking with university authorities, should the fraternities and dorms consider the decision of the Dean of Men sufficient?

Yes.

10. Does the University recognize any difference between female students of the University and non-school women in regards to admittance to residence of men?

No.

11. The present rules prohibit girls from being on floors above the first floor while guests at a chaperoned function. Some houses must provide a powder room for ladies on the second floor, and coats must usually be left in upstairs rooms. Is this practice illegal or wrong?

Any house which cannot provide the necessary facilities on the first floor can and should secure the necessary approval from the Dean of Men.

12. The "Faculty Resolutions" specify that "at least four chaperons from the approved list should be present at all social functions." Since

HOW COLLEGE MEN CHANGE THEIR MINDS

by Don Kiddoo

(Observations, not necessarily personal experiences)
Some mental attitudes as typical of

Entering Fresh	End of Fresh Year	End of Soph Year	End of Junior Year	End of Senior Year
I'm still in love with my high school sweetheart.	These college girls are really the greatest.	I'm really in love at last.	I've gotten so many shafts lately I'm going to start selling bows and arrows.	Maybe my high school sweetheart will have me again.
Money is what my father has to pay to put me through school.	My monthly allowance isn't going as far as it used to.	The amount of money I'm spending is astonishing.	What the hell, you can't take it with you.	I'm broke. It's damn lucky I'll be out of school soon.
I came to college to study and improve myself.	The work is a lot harder than I had expected, but it's worth it.	This studying is getting me down. I think I'll live a little more next year.	Why study, I'm going in the Army this time next year anyhow!	You know, I wish I had spent more time studying, and less time partying.
Sex is something that can wait until after I get through college.	I've been hearing that girls have a lot more to offer than intellectual conversation.	Sex is all right. In fact, I really need more of it.	Now this is an activity, that is really worth while—it certainly beats studying.	Why get married, I'm happy.
I want to be an engineer.	I think I want to be an engineer.	Why worry about it; it will take care of itself.	To hell with engineering. I'm going in the Army anyway.	Hey, I've got to go to work—it sneaked up on me before I realized it.
I shall marry only a sweet, intelligent woman.	I'll marry only a good-looking woman.	Someday, I hope to marry a woman.	I think that I better marry a rich woman.	Darling, sometimes I wonder why I asked you to marry me.
Someday I'll have $1,000,000.	Having tangled with college difficulties, I think I'll be happy with $100,000.	You'll die an early death if you're continually worrying about your future financial success.	What the hell, Uncle Sam is going to feed and clothe me anyhow.	Can you imagine United Garbage Can Co. offered me only $350 to start.
I'll stay out of activities until I get settled.	I joined a club, and I really like it.	I'm in so many activities, I can't find time to study.	After all, activities are really more important than studying.	But, sir, I tell you my grades are low because I did so much extra-curricular stuff.
Fraternities are cliquish and I'm not sure that I want to join one.	I was lucky enough to join the best fraternity on campus.	My fraternity is the greatest.	My fraternity is the greatest.	Old Delta Pi will never be the same after I leave.
Drinking is a terrible vice that must be avoided.	Drinking isn't too bad if it's done in moderation.	Everybody needs a drink now and then.	You know we can't wait until the weekend, so let's go up to the D.P. now for just two.	Where is the nearest A.A. chapter?

There are some controversial subjects that could be live issues: the parking regulations, the bookstore, the unchaperoned afternoons proposal, intramural eligibility, and others. But they are dead issues, and we think that it is the leadership function of the S.G.A. to bring them to life.

First Fundamental

We believe that if the S.G.A. went out of its way to revive interest in its meetings and issues that there would be a tremendous upsurge in interest in activities in general, and a noticeable decline in our ever-present nemesis, Delaware apathy.

We believe that the members of the S.G.A. should recognize and correct their failure to exercise the first fundamental of practical politics: feeling out the sentiments of the voters.

Nevertheless, I Want You (the misleading title is taken from an enlistment poster) has much to its credit. The problem is timely, the sets, filming, and a lot of the dialogue are excellent, and the acting is far superior to that found in run-of-the-mill pictures. I Want You is an enjoyable picture and contains food for thought.

DANCE

The Delaware's dance, originally scheduled for February 15, will be held instead on February 9 at 8:30 p.m. in Old College Lounge.

Interpretations of the Rules

there is no approved list of chaperons available, what are the qualifications of chaperons to be invited? Who is eligible?

Prior to this year a mimeographed list of chaperons was published by the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women. This list was not a list of approved chaperons but a list of those approved as chaperons who had indicated a willingness to serve as chaperons. This year all social chairmen were informed by the Deans that the approved chaperon list consisted of all the members of the university faculty and the parents of students.

Folklore Society Meets Tuesday, February 12

The Delaware Folklore Society will hold its first meeting of the season on Tuesday evening, February 12, at 8:00 p.m. in the Lounge of Warner Hall.

Two meetings are held annually but interested persons may join the club at any time during the year by contacting the secretary-treasurer, Mr. Charles Dickens, Box 710, Dover, Delaware.
