Newark Police become first to be trained in rail safety procedures

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

As part of the three-month investigation into a tragic accident at a downtown railroad crossing, the Newark Police Department has become the only police agency in Delaware to be trained in highway rail safety procedures.

"This is not a subject taught at the Police Academy," said Chief Gerald Conway "We have people coming in and doing training for the entire department."

Conway also reported that field training for new officers has been increased from eight to 12 weeks, the department revised its procedures regarding motor vehicle stops in hazardous locations, officers who are road supervisors will be notified of all traffic stops requiring a second officer, and Spanish-language training has been added to in-service sessions for all Newark officers.

"We already had some Spanish training but we are refreshing it and increasing it, especially for older officers like myself," said Conway "They did

City votes Tuesday

Road to reservoir has many mileposts

One area legislator said this week that the possible acquisition of the Koelig property for a reservoir site has been a long time in coming. Reaching the point of agreeing to build a city reservoir has taken even longer, however.

According to a report prepared by city officials, Newark has been looking for a reliable water supply since the first well was drilled on East Main Street in 1888. The city waterworks, as it was called, occupied the site where the New Ark United Church of Christ is now.

Around 1900, the North Wellfield was developed at the end of Academy Street where nine wells, some of which are now abandoned and collapsed, pumped water into an 180,000-gallon storage facility.

Half a century later, the growing population led the city to

Seniors still get refund

By SHARON R. COLE

In a 5-2 vote, Christina District school board members decided on Monday to retain the money offered to them by the state through the Education Expense and Property Relief Act.

The $3.7 million dollars would have been refunded to property owners residing within the district had the vote gone the other way. The board voted in favor of a separate piece of the property tax legislation during the October school board meeting that allows senior citizens to receive a tax refund by completing applications that will be mailed to them this month.

With the extra money, the district plans to pay for instructional materials, transportation, "extra-time" for teacher's salaries, minor capital projects

Much occurred in minutes before railroad death

In his report released this week, Newark Police Chief Gerald Conway stated that on the night of July 14, Pedro Guerra Martinez was asleep on the rear seat of the 1988 Mercury Cougar stopped for going the wrong way and driving directly at the police vehicle at about 11:42 p.m. on the night of the accident.

The 17-year-old driver, Cenobio Molina Gonzalez, turned around and tried to turn onto New London Road before stopping on the tracks.

The officer was reportedly distracted from the vehicle's insecure position by the action of Gonzalez who exited the car, approached the officer while concealing his hands under his shirt near his waistband, and did not respond to commands.

At one point the officer went into "felony stop procedures," partially concealing himself behind the door of the police cruiser and ordering Gonzalez to return to his vehicle.

When Gonzalez finally stated "I don't speak English," the officer physically removed his hands from concealment and using some Spanish phrases, then conducted a pat-down search.

According to the report, throughout the incident, Gonzalez appeared intoxicated and acted "in an alarming manner." He produced a fictitious alien registration card and fictitious social security card.

The officer called dispatch for an interpreter and removed Gonzalez to the side of the road. When the Spanish-speaking officer arrived, the first officer explained he needed to determine if the driver, who appeared to have been drinking, could operate the vehicle safely. The interpreter had just begun to question Gonzalez when the train whistle was heard.

The first officer ordered Gonzalez to move his car but the engine did not start.

The battery was later tested and found to be too low to operate the car. Gonzalez and the two conscious passengers got out of the car.

The first officer at this point tried to move his vehicle, which was right under the crossing gate of the railroad tracks, but was blocked by the second police cruiser behind his.

not have this when we went through the Academy."

In addition, the rail crossings at West Main Street and New London Road now have additional markings to warn motorists of the tracks.

On Tuesday, Conway also announced the conclusion of his department's internal investigation into the actions of the two patrol officers first at the scene on July 14. Conway refused to release the officers' names, citing the Police Officers' Bill of Rights and department policies.

According to Conway, the death of Pedro Guerra Martinez when a train collided with a stalled car at the intersection of New London Road and West Main Street came about because of an error in judgment by the two officers.

"Both (the Attorney General's and department's) investigations determined that the accident was the result of an aberration in the performance of two, young, inexperienced police officers when they failed to move the car off the railroad tracks," stated Conway in his report.

On Oct. 22, Attorney General Jane Brady announced her office's investigation found there was insufficient evidence to file criminal charges against the officers in the incident.

Conway said the two officers are being given charge papers stating they are being suspended without pay. Conway would not stipulate the length of the suspension. "They will also have to take retraining before they can return to their duties," said Conway. "They will then return to the department."

Conway would not say what duties the patrol officers, who have been on paid administrative leave since the incident, would have on their return.

The actions of the on-duty platoon supervisor, also not identified, are still under investigation, according to Conway.

This supervisor reportedly heard the second officer volunteer to assist over the police radio but did not hear the request for an interpreter. Only minutes prior to the collision, the supervisor driving on West Main Street passed the scene and continued west onto Elkton Road. The supervisor did not see that the Mercury was on the tracks and continued to police headquarters.

Witnesses told investigators they yelled at the two officers on the scene from a distance but the officers might not have heard them because they were not acknowledged. One witness said she and another person were told to disperse when they tried to warn the officer of the possibility of an on-coming train.

According to the report, CSX Railroad does not have specific schedules for the trains that use this line. Trains that use the crossing activate the signals approximately 40 seconds before reaching the crossing.

Conway presented his report on the investigation to members of Newark's city council in an executive session on Monday night prior to releasing it to the public.

According to city manager Carl Luft, this is part of a normal process when personnel issues are involved. "However, in this case it was also because this is a highly sensitive issue," said Luft. "We also had to advise council about concerns of possible litigation as well as liability issues."

Luft said, to his knowledge, no lawsuits had been filed against the city in this matter as of Wednesday.

Schools welcome 'principal for a day'

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

More than 120 business leaders and legislators were principals for one day this week in schools throughout the state including nine in the Christina School District. Started in 1992, this year's Principal for a Day program sponsored by the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce had a record number of participants.

The visiting administrators performed typical principal-like duties including classroom observation, morning announcements, lunch duty and teacher/parent meetings.

At Christiana High School, students were welcomed by MBNA's, Charles Krulak, senior vice chairman and former Marine Corps Commandant for the Joint Chief's of Staff.

Although Krulak has had a lifetime of experience working with youth, serving as a school principal was a novelty for him.

"How many people get to be a principal?" said Krulak enthusiastically.

astically. "I'm psyched!"

By mid-day, Krulak had already welcomed students on buses, talked with students in several different classrooms, sat in on a mediation session in the principal's office, performed lunch duty and met with guidance counselors.

"I arrived here at 07:00 hours and walked throughout the halls as students came into school," he said, showing his military bent.

Krulak's observations of today's generation of pupils was very positive.

"These young men and women are very, very talented people who are looking for a challenge and willing to take on a challenge," he said. "The reality is they know why they are here."

A lot of practices had changed since Krulak attended high school, too.

"Christiana has really benefited from the information technology explosion. I've seen T.V.'s, VCR's, and computers in many classrooms," he noted. "And in the library, students were using the Internet to help with research."

Former Marine and current senior vice chairman for MBNA, Charles Krulak (suit and tie back row) was enthusiastic about what he saw on the job as principal for a day at Christiana High School on Monday. Krulak joined acting principal Tom Downs (far left) in meetings and discussions with students.

Monday was Christiana's first day of Homecoming Week which proved to be an added bonus for Krulak. Inside the main cafeteria, students were voting for their King and Queen by using official voting booths which impressed the patriotic Krulak.

"They are using real voting machines to give kids not only a lesson in civics, but how it is translated from a (real-life) environment," Krulak said.

State Chamber president John M. Burris said the program was created to build a stronger partnership between the business and educational communities. "By better understanding the challenges that educators face, we are better able to help improve our schools and make sure that students are prepared to enter the work force when they graduate," Burris said.

State officials crash and burn at town meeting

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

More than 300 people attended a town meeting on school reform at the DelTech Stanton Campus on Oct. 21. Many of them used fighting words against the issue that has been building over the past eight years.

Governor Thomas Carper, acting Secretary of Education Valerie Woodruff and state officials were on the receiving end of much of the criticism as well as some support during the public comment.

Christiana District parent Jean Norman stated, "I'm in favor of accountability! Legislators provide us with a lot of money to educate our kids, but our scores are at the bottom. I'm asking legislators to vote yes for this accountability bill."

Teacher accountability, was to be voted on during a special session yesterday. The bill calls for a new licensing system and pay raises for teachers.

Doubters of the new testing system seemed to be in majority, however, as rounds of applause came in response to those attacking the views of Carper and state officials.

Steve Kleiner, parent of two Brandywine High School students, said his extensive knowledge of statistics and probability prove that an overwhelming number of students will fail and feel defeated. "We should be taking this one step at a time, otherwise we are setting ourselves up for failure," he said.

Third, fifth, eighth, and 10th grade students who are tested in Spring 2000 could face summer school and/or be held back.

According to test results from April 1999, more than half of the student taking the test in the Christina District would have failed.

Although some parents of eighth and 10th graders are fearful that their children are getting caught up in unfair expectations, Woodruff explained that the state is proposing a fairness adjustment giving those kids a "handicap" that would allow them to graduate without passing the new standards.

"We do not want to punish children for what the system could not possibly have done for them," said Woodruff.

Karen Miller, parent of an eighth grader in Colonial School District, doesn't believe fairness adjustment will help her child who has been an honor roll student every year until now. "Before he passed his math courses with high grades, and now he is failing miserably!" she said. "And it's because they are trying to cram eight years of a different way of thinking into one year."

Test scores are not the sole indicator for promoting students, however. "The legislation already says that other indicators can be used to make the decision to pass or fail students," Woodruff reminded parents.

According to the state, these criteria include whether a student is in the top 25 percent of their class, how well he/she does in writing, and the student's scores from another test that districts may give.

Parents and educators also expressed concern over the testing of special education children.

Keesha Shepard, parent of a fifth grade Christina student, said, "I agree we need to increase our level of education but we haven't developed a 'handicap' for students who really have a handicap."

Shepard said that students with disabilities are being left behind while all other students are going through special programs for testing.

Theresa Burke, parent of two children in Colonial School District, agreed. "Right now they are being tested by the grade they are in, but not on the level they're on, so how are they ever going to pass these tests?"

Ariadna Clare, supervisor for bilingual education for the Red Clay School District, asked, "What about our English as a second language learners? You know what is going to happen, they are going to drop out."

Clare, like several others in attendance feel that the state is rushing the reform. "Let's do something the right way, the correct way and not rush it," she said.

Tests for the mathematics section will be provided in Spanish for those students; however, Woodruff explained that they can not test a child on their proficiency in English by using Spanish and said that districts and the state are still working on it.

and programs for new accountability standards.

In order to receive the funds, the district is required to submit a plan to the state by tomorrow, Oct. 30, detailing how the money is to be used.

Although board members admitted that they knew about the legislation since the summer, a public meeting was never scheduled to field ideas on how to use the funds and construct such a plan.

This outraged parents and other tax payers who accused the district and the school board of procrastination during the Special Session on Oct. 25.

Christina parent Jackie Foster said, "You knew about the tax relief fund since (at least) August and the district did not even bother to hold public hearings prior to Oct. 12 (when the vote initially came up at the monthly board meeting)."

Other concerns were in to response to suggestions made by school board member, Michael Guilfoyle during the Oct. 12 meeting that certain legislators threatened that the district would find it difficult to receive future state funding if they chose to retain these funds.

Christina parent Jean Norman was disheartened by the idea that board members might have been

“Are we spending this money on parking lots or are we spending it on kids?”

MICHAEL GUILFOYLE

influenced by political forces. "This decision shouldn't be an uninformed one, it shouldn't be an intimidated one, and it shouldn't be a political one, it should be for the children," Norman said. "Keep the money!"

The question board members faced, however, was whether or not the district would be able to make good use of the funds within set time restraints for true educational enhancements as opposed to minor cap projects or other miscellaneous expenses.

"Are we spending this money on parking lots or are we spending it on kids," asked Guilfoyle who was opposed to keeping the money.

Christina's planned use of Education Expense and Property Tax Relief funds allocates $300,000 for salaries, $54,300 for pay benefits, $1 million dollars for contractual services, $1.8 million dollars for supplies and materials and $500,000 for capital expenses.

According Holton, the district's intent is to spend the bulk of the money before next school year.

"We are going to focus using the $3.7 million dollars during the course of this year and over the summer," he said.

Monies not spent by that time must nevertheless be under contract for some use.

School board member George Evans suggested a library at the Douglass School or delegating the funds to site councils for individual school use.

Boardmember Christopher Reed agreed, noting that the $3.7 million dollars translates into $175 per student.

That $175/student could be distributed to each school giving, for example, Newark High $264,000.

"The state is dangling a carrot in front of us (like a feed me or tease me deal) and I for one will opt to feed on that carrot," said Reed.

Victim could not be roused or dragged to safety

► INCIDENT, from 2

Gonzalez first tried to rouse the victim and then joined the first officer in a failed attempt to push the car off the tracks. The report does not state what the other two passengers did once they got out of the car.

The second officer who arrived about four-and-one-half minutes after the initial stop went to the Mercury and attempted to obtain identification from the occupants, Jose Carmen Guerra Martinez, Victor Javier Lopez and Pedro Guerra Martinez. According to the report, with the two occupants who were awake "appeared nervous and were also acting in a suspicious manner."

The second officer was still trying to communicate with the passengers when he heard the train whistle. He tried to enter the vehicle to move it but was pulled away by Gonzalez.

The second officer then started to signal the train with his flashlight while yelling at the Mercury occupants to get out of the car.

The train engineer confirmed he saw the officer but was unable to stop the train traveling at approximately 43 miles per hour before it struck the car.

The victim died at approximately 9 a.m. on July 15 at Christiana Medical

Dear Newarkers:

As you know, it is not often that we have the opportunity to solve a long-standing and difficult problem. In this case, you have a chance on NOVEMBER 2, 1999 TO VOTE "FOR" A BOND ISSUE that will enable your community to purchase 112 acres of developable land for a reservoir and open space. Newark intends to construct a facility that will capture water from the White Clay Creek during periods of high flow so that we will have a badly needed reserve water supply during droughts.

As long as we have served as your mayors -- and our collective tenure began in 1973 -- Newark has been forced to rely on a vulnerable supply of well water and expensive water purchased from private companies. Our Councils and staff worked for three decades with the State of Delaware, the Water Resources Agency for New Castle County and the Delaware River Basin Commission to develop regional solutions to our collective and on-going water supply problem. Finally, after decades of effort with no long-term solution for Newark, the City decided we must act while we still have an opportunity.

In February of this year it was decided that action was needed now if we are to see any long-term answer to Newark's recurring water shortage. As a result, your elected representatives unanimously adopted a Water Supply Plan that called for a multi-faceted and independent approach to our water supply crisis. The key component of this plan is a reservoir that will ensure a high quality and safe water supply for you and future generations of Newarkers.

As your current and previous mayors, we urge you to vote "FOR" THE BOND ISSUE ON NOVEMBER 2, 1999, so that the City of Newark can provide a reliable, safe, and consistent water supply for our community.

Thank you.

Local residents and legislators agree on reservoir plan

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Local residents contacted informally on Tuesday at the College Square Shopping Center and by phone were largely in favor of the referendum spending.

Ed Michelson, resident of Nonantum Mills just outside city limits cannot vote in the referendum but supports the city's purchase of the land for a reservoir.

"I think the drought solidified the thinking process of needing a reservoir," said Michelson who lives near the proposed site for the project. "If we had had a reservoir we would not have had the water restrictions on for so long like we did this summer."

Mike Foreman who resides in the same area agreed. "As a community we strongly support the reservoir and our reasons are two-fold," Foreman said. "One is because Newark needs to do something to be more self-sufficient, and the other is it's a better alternative than putting in housing (on the proposed site)."

Cory Brennan, a Newark resident of Hunt at Louviers, says that he will vote in support of the purchase. "If the point didn't get driven home this summer, then I don't know what would have driven it home," Brennan said. "The city is doing something, in my mind, that they should've done years ago."

Brennan would rather see the city have its own water supply along with "acres of land with wildlife" instead of adding 200 more homes planned by a developer that would put additional strain on the water supply. "This seems like a no-brainer to me," he said.

In response to people complaining about higher property taxes, Brennan argued, "Our water rates are very low on a regional, state and national basis and so are our taxes. To put 200 more houses there would just exacerbate the water supply problem."

Some people said they were unaware of the upcoming referendum but no one stated they would vote against it.

Area legislators contacted this week also said they support the city's plan. "I most certainly agree that the city should purchase the land," said State Representative William Oberle (R-Beecher's Lot). "At the request of representative Tim Boulden (R-Newark), representative Vince Lofink (R-Carvel Farms) and myself worked diligently to secure funds for that project."

Boulden, who lives in the city of Newark, personally has no problem with an increase in taxes. "I think that the city is doing exactly the correct thing to secure themselves for the future," he said. "Under the mechanisms of the city, they have to raise funds this way, and the residents have a chance to vote on that which is appropriate."

State Senator Steven Amick (R-Newark West) said the possible acquisition of this property for a reservoir has been a long time coming. "It has taken us a long time to find a piece of property that was suitable and environmentally compatible for the reservoir, and it has taken a lot of effort on the Newark delegation to get the funds (to support it)," Amick said. "We are very excited about the prospect of building a reservoir."

State Representative Richard DiLiberto (D-Newark East) thinks it is not only good for Newark but also for western New Castle County. "We think it is an important investment to make for our children and grandchildren's future," DiLiberto said. "Other legislators and I have already been successful in getting $1.7 million dollars appropriated for this project. We were very successful in convincing our colleagues up and down the state to support this."

DiLiberto added, "Most folks I talk to agree that they should use the land for a reservoir since it is more environmentally appropriate. (Paper Mill Road) just can't handle anymore traffic if a housing development were to be built there."

State representative Stephanie Ulbrich (R-Newark South) said she voted for the state funding and wants to do everything she can to support the project. "I definitely believe Newark needs a reservoir," she said.

Referendum polls information

Unlike most elections, registered voters in city districts are not the only ones eligible to vote in Tuesday's referendum in Newark.

Because the loan monies will be repaid from increased city property taxes, all individuals or entities owning property within the city boundaries get one vote each.

Residents registered to vote in the city will go to their district polling places as listed below. City officials are urging voters in District One to note that their polling place has been changed and will not be at Downes Elementary School as in recent city elections.

Property owners or freeholders not registered to vote in Newark, must use the polling place at the Municipal Building.

Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m. on Tuesday Nov. 2, as follows:

District One	Pilgrim Baptist Church, 1325 Barksdale Road
District Two	Aetna Fire Station #8, Ogletown Road
District Three	West Park Elementary 193 W. Park Pl.
District Four	Aetna Fire Station #7, Thorn Lane
District Five	First Presbyterian Church, 292 W. Main St.
District Six	First Church of Nazarene, 357 Paper Mill Rd.
All others	Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Rd.

For directions or additional information, voters can call the City Secretary's office at 366-3060.

City water resources hinge on vote

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Following a summer with both the lowest rainfall in decades plus a one day total of almost 10 inches, Newarkers will vote on Tuesday whether to borrow money for land to build a city reservoir.

On Sept. 20, months of watching river and creek levels fall throughout the region came to a dramatic end when "Hurricane Floyd" marched up the east coast of the United States dumping eight to 10 inches of rain around New Castle County in less than 18 hours.

City of Newark officials, citing years of water supply efforts that still lagged demand, were already in the process of implementing a Water Supply Plan unveiled in February 1999 to attempt to deal with nature's inconsistencies.

As approved for action by city council, the Plan includes short term reliance on additional purchased amounts from Hoopes Reservoir in Wilmington and use of wells already in operation in the city.

The White Clay Creek is one of the most depended-upon resources for potable water in the city of Newark.

Up to six additional wells were also identified for redrilling or partial use. A previously contaminated well owned by DuPont on the present Dade Behring site along Route 896 is also under study for possible purchase and use by the city of Newark.

The water treatment plant off Paper Mill Road continues to operate a minimum of 220 days a year, providing the city's most potable water from the White Clay Creek.

Under an agreement with United Water Company the city must allow a minimum "flow-by" of 14 million gallons a day (mgd) which was not met on 61 days in 1998. The plant could not be used on another 80 days because of contaminants and particles drawn up by turbidity in the stream.

Despite these resources, city officials still predicted a shortfall of approximately 3.8 mgd at future times of peak demand.

While the possibility of building a $3 million iron removal treatment plant to gain three mgd of potable water from wells was discussed, the staff and city council concluded a stored reserve for emergencies also had to be part of the Plan.

However, ongoing negotiations for a site to build a proposed 100 to 200 million gallon water storage facility hit a snag when developers decided not to sell the property even though the city agreed to the asking price.

The city instituted condemnation proceedings to force the sale as negotiated, and also announced the need for the bond referendum to fund its purchase.

According to staff reports, the city proposes to purchase the 112.259 acres of land, known as the Koelig site, on the north side of Old Paper Mill Road.

Cost for this property was negotiated to be $7.95 million. The city has capital reserves of $2 million, and anticipates at least $1.7 million from the state at a future date.

The bond issue of $4.25 million requested in Tuesday's referendum will cover the rest of the funding. In the event the city does not purchase this site, or the state provides more funding, the monies would be repaid and the cost to taxpayers reduced.

City officials estimate that the loan will result in a property tax increase of about five cents per $100 of assessed value of a property or approximately $34 per year for a typical homeowner.

City staff said funding for the construction and maintenance of the storage facility itself will come from water revenues.

Mayor Hal Godwin was joined by former Newark mayors, William Redd (left) and Ronald Gardner (right), at the Koelig property on Wednesday to discuss plans to purchase the site for construction of a water storage facility for the city of Newark.

Newark landmark gets historic marker

The Deer Park Tavern which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places has been issued an historic plaque by the state of Delaware.

Built in 1851 by James S. Martin on the site of an earlier tavern, the Deer Park is the oldest commercial business trading under a single name in Newark.

According to James B. Owen, Joshua Armstrong was proprietor of St. Patrick's Inn at this location in 1758 when the Penn's chartered Newark as a market town.

Installation of the plaque was sponsored by the Newark Heritage Alliance as their first official project. The marker joins 600 markers issued by the state of Delaware since the program began in the 1930's.

According to C. Russell McCabe, administrator of the Delaware Historical Markers Program, there has been a recent awakening of historic preservation interest in the Diamond State with nearly 100 markers having been erected during the past eight years alone.

Deer Park Tavern is owned by ERG Inc. of Newark. Local proprietors are Leonard Reed, Frank Giovanozzi, and Mickey Eagan.

start looking for supplies other than wells. In 1955, the Army Corps of Engineers began a study on the feasibility of constructing a dam across the White Clay Creek north of Newark; however, environmentalists ultimately succeeded in stalling this effort.

In 1960, the city began pumping from wells in the South Wellfield near Chestnut Hill Road, and 13 years later, two wells came online in the Laird Wellfield in the area of Paper Mill Road.

A Water Master Plan for Newark completed in 1979, recommended upgrading the water plant at the South Wellfield, expanding the Laird Wellfield, purchasing additional water from Wilmington Suburban (now United Water) and starting conservation measures.

Consultants also recommended a water storage facility on Jenney's Run in order to optimize use of a proposed water treatment plant on White Clay Creek. William Redd, then mayor of Newark, recalled this time recently. "At long last we are going to get something done," Redd exulted. "Since 1974, this has been an issue and people have been standing in the way all of those years."

Between 1979 and 1985, the Water Resources Agency (WRA) completed New Castle County's "WATER 2000" plan, a component of the State Water Plan at that time. Updated in 1990, it became part of WATER 2020.

Ronald Gardner said recently that one of his first jobs as mayor in 1989 was to finally get the water treatment plant built. "I appointed a committee to come up with immediate and longterm steps to improve both quality and system of delivery," said Gardner. "As a result of heavy pumping, we also were experiencing concentrations of iron and manganese in the South Wellfield that far exceeded the norm."

The new water plant began withdrawing and treating water from White Clay Creek in 1992. "Meanwhile, we used a sequestering agent to remove some of the iron from the treated water," explained Gardner. "But it wasn't the entire answer."

Gardner said the city was also developing new wells to every extent possible and upgrading the quality of the water as well as delivery. "However, we did everything with the belief that we were part of a regional plan which would provide additional supplies eventually when we had a shortfall," said Gardner.

This search for longterm reliable water supplies took a new turn in 1994 when the WRA began the Churchmans Marsh Environmental Impact Study funded initially by Newark, Wilmington and New Castle County. "The state only got involved about 10 years ago," said Gardner.

The EIS looked at dozens of possibilities over the years but by the mid-90s, the options had been whittled to a county reservoir north of Newark, a pipeline to Chester County, Pa., a desalinization plant or some combination of these.

In 1997, New Castle County announced they would no longer fund the study and the state of Delaware decided to abandon the incomplete project estimated to have cost $2.2 million to that point. "I will never understand how they could do that," said Gardner. "We had spent millions of dollars and only had a little further to go for some answers."

Gardner said with the hope for a reservoir in the Thompsons Bridge area all but gone, and possible sites for a storage facility becoming more difficult, the city decided to take action on its own.

"We started looking at a number of sites while I was still in office," he said this week. "All things considered, I think this is the best site at this time."

Gardner said he believes it will be years before the state comes up with a stable and reliable regional water supply.

"(This land purchase) is an opportunity we in Newark cannot afford to miss," he said.

Property owners should approve reservoir bond

THE CITY'S PLAN to build a reservoir is not a knee-jerk reaction to this summer's drought. Rather, it is a long-overdue and well-researched proposal to address burgeoning Newark's water supply challenges.

The topic has been one of public and private discussion in the City of Newark for generations. A clean, sufficient water supply was the goal 111 years ago when the first city well was dug on East Main Street. The same is true for proposal before voters next Tuesday.

Our city has grown considerably in the last decade and increased demand reared its ugly head this summer. What happened this summer only clarified the need for city officials to take some definitive action to address this vitally important concern.

To the credit of city staff and council, the development of supply solutions was underway well before water use restrictions were put into effect. The city wisely decided to chart its own course when a search for regional long-term water resources fell apart in 1997.

Few dispute the need to prepare for the future. The question facing voters simply is whether a reservoir on the Koelig site along Old Paper Mill Road is our best hedge against future droughts. From what we've seen and heard from persons knowledgeable about such issues, it is.

Further, we endorse approval of referendum not because it will prevent the construction of 200 additional homes on the property, but rather because the plan makes sense. It's well thought out, researched and can easily be funded with voter okay.

The reservoir proposal also allows the City of Newark to control as much of the destiny of its future water supply as it can. The more we can rely on our own water sources and not depend on others, including private companies, the better for our children and grandchildren.

Significant to note as you consider your vote on this issue is the enthusiastic support the reservoir plan has received from nearly every local elected official. Our state representatives quickly secured state funds because it's a viable plan and easy to sell. The sight earlier this week in the grassy fields of the Koelig tract of three successive mayors endorsing approval of the referendum speaks volumes to the importance and longevity of the search to find a solution to water supply.

The reservoir will not be the end of this search, but it's an important and timely first step.

By now, we've all heard about the flap between the governing board of the Brooklyn Museum and Mayor Giuliani. The good mayor has voiced the sentiments of millions of people concerning the Museum's aptly named exhibition, "Sensation," which features a portrait of the Virgin Mary decorated with elephant feces and surrounded by cut-outs from porn magazines. He wants the exhibition shut down, the museum's funding taken away, and all the other stuff that make people who know their history very, very nervous. Freedom of artistic expression is too precious a right to lose.

That is obviously what the artists are counting on: right-thinking people will feel obliged to defend their crude expressions of contempt for Christianity and its rites and symbols. (In addition to recent art work showing an excreted-upon Mary and her having a crude abortion with help from Archangel Gabriel, Christ has been variously portrayed in urine, as a deviate in a drama in which he has sex with his apostles, and as a bare-breasted woman administering the first Last Supper.)

HUMMEL

One obvious way to look at these unattractive works is to assume that the artists as little ones had traumatic transitions from Pampers to more mature undergarments and, thus, feel obliged to return again and again to an experience that was simply offal. Were these future artists and dramatists made to feel naughty on the potty?

But this does not explain why this (literal) smear campaign appears to have Christianity as its prime target. If it were only Mary, you might want to look at the names of the artists' mothers — any Jocastas on birth certificates, the wife/mother of Oedipus? But Jesus also is worked over pretty hard, too, and the sacrament of Holy Communion as well. So it's more than mommy complexes and potty problems. Then what?

As I read and heard more and more about the controversy, three major points surfaced for me:

1) Freedom of expression is a right too hard-fought-for and precious for anyone to step in and destroy or forbid the showing of the works of the users and abusers of the privilege. Had we done this in the past, much of our great music, art, and literature would have been lost to us. Works that we now see as pivotal to our cultural lives were once regarded as pornography, atonal madness, and/or literary tripe.

Police and fire officials examined the scene of an accident on Paper Mill Rd., in which a 21-year-old University of Delaware student was killed. Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company responded to the scene and the man was transported to NER and later to the Delaware Division where he died almost 24 hours later.

The accident occurred at approximately 1:45 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 23. Two other U of D students, the driver of the car and another passenger, were also injured in the crash.

Newark offers to pay for dry wells

The City of Newark has offered to recompense six families on Old Cooch's Bridge road whose wells have gone dry.

While the city doesn't believe that its pumping operations in the vicinity were the sole reason the wells went dry, Newark realizes that it "probably contributed" and has offered to make amends, according to City Solicitor Thomas G. Hughes.

A resident who believes his well has gone dry because of the pumping by either a water company or municipality that serves water may appeal to the department for a hearing.

If the problem is found to be caused by the pumping, the resident may be compensated with a new well for free hook-up to a water line and up to 100,000 gallons of free water a year for three years.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Bruce F. Harvey,
Newark

Newark City Council recently held a workshop on how to improve relations with the University of Delaware. It seems to me that the City's idea of cooperation is to tell the University what to do. Mayor Godwin has said, "It's not us, we need to hear from them." Well, that's a good example of the problem. The "us versus them" attitudes should be replaced with "we're all in this together." Cooperation has to work both ways. Persuasive leadership gets results; authoritarian demands create division and opposition.

City Council wants to avoid student parking problems, but is mad about not being allowed to review the University's plans to provide more parking. City Council wants a public forum to review the University's proposed parking garage, but would not provide such a hearing when the city decided to buy and develop parking on Main Street this year.

City Council often seems to vote as if it didn't listen to citizen input at public hearings. What if the University were to hold a forum on the garage, heard lots of opposition, then built it anyway? Few on City Council would understand that they were merely getting a taste of their own medicine.

Newark is a great little town. It would be better still if some folks would settle down or light up.

From: John Bauscher
Newark

On Nov. 2 the voters of Newark are being asked to vote for a $4,250,000 bond issue to fund a land purchase for a reservoir. Another $2,000,000 of taxpayers' money has been pledged to be added to $1,700,000 of State money.

The literature I received from the City with my electric bill made no mention of the fact that a court is currently deciding the final price of this land, and could be two or three million dollars higher. It also did not mention that another bond would be needed for construction of the reservoir.

The City's own study estimates a 52 percent water rate hike. The city's own consultant says that the construction costs will be millions higher than in-house staff estimates and further states, "The most likely concern at the Keolig site is the presence of bedrock or disintegrated rock at shallow depths."

It goes on to say that if shallow rock is found, the cost would be prohibitive.

Proponents of this project would have people believe that this is the only solution to Newark's water supply shortage, but this is not the case.

Councilman Karl Kalbacher, a hydrogeologist by training with many years of experience, feels that there are many better and more cost effective solutions to this problem. His insight and expertise has been ignored by a council and staff biased in favor of the reservoir. No public forum has been held to address these concerns, even though many feel one is needed.

Another shortcoming of this proposal is that while most municipalities add a surcharge to out-of-city and tax-exempt water users, Newark is asking its property owners to subsidize the University of Delaware and out-of-city users by absorbing all capital costs.

I hope that residents and freeholders of Newark defeat this referendum on Nov. 2 and that Karl Kalbacher's counsel is sought rather than stifled resulting in a better plan being put forth.

Any community newspaper receives many letters over the course of a year. The number per week fluctuates, of course, the determining factor usually the degree to which our readers are upset . . . about the council representative, the mayor, the superintendent of schools, the guy next door.

Dealing with letters to the editor is one of the more difficult jobs for a newspaper editor. We want to let people have their say, for or against, praising or criticizing, and to vent their frustrations over what they usually perceive to be an injustice. Yet we do not want to print unsubstantiated allegations or rumors.

What we need from you and what we cannot allow is spelled out in our letters policy, which is printed every week in the staff box in the newspaper. It isn't very long because we don't have a lot of rules.

We expect your name, address and daytime phone number to be on the letter as well as your signature. The phone number will not appear in the newspaper; it is for our use only.

Mail to: Letters, The Newark Post, 153 E. Chestnut Hill Rd., Newark, DE 19713; or fax 737-9019. Our e-mail address is "newpost@dca.net" Remember, faxed and electronically "mailed" letters must have a daytime telephone number for verification.

Artists feel threatened by Christianity

► HUMMEL, from 12

Florence, Italy, in Nazi Germany, and in one of those small-town buckles of our Bible Belt should be seared deeply into our memories. (But Mary with the elephant stains will not, I predict, be one of those masterpieces we proudly pass on to generations to come!)

2) But — does granting artists freedom of expression require the public to fund them? We should let them have their little plays and bizarre paintings; we must defend their right to play with their palettes and use any and all street-scoops. But they should do it on their own dimes, not ours!

3) Why is Christianity a prime target for their naughty artistic expressions? Because there is so much vitality left in Christianity that it bothers them mightily and prompts the artists to feed the elephant so they might paint and the dramatists to avidly read men's room walls so they might write!

In a time when too many people glibly claim that Christianity is dead, that this is a Post-Christian era, that what is left of Christianity is confused, defused, and refused, some of our artists give the lie to those assumptions.

Only necrophiliacs would abuse a corpse, and these people are too interested in bodily functions to go after the dead! And, sensationalists love to harass the living, the sensate; these artists are, apparently, threatened by Christianity! So they attack that which threatens them and their "view of life!"

It is quite encouraging, actually. Admittedly their means of encouraging us are quite unpleasant, but hey! Encouragement is, nevertheless, encouragement!!

Help your kids be free for life

Just returned from two days at the National 4-H Center where along with two 4-H teens, Alicia Blevin and Tessa Rodgers, and 4-H assistant Tina Andrews, I received training in the new 4-H smoking prevention curriculum.

It really doesn't strike you as to how embedded tobacco is in our culture until you spend two full days examining the issue. It's really amazing that everyone doesn't smoke when you think of all the advertising and subliminal messages about tobacco that we're subjected to on a daily basis.

Mark Manno

An amazing statistic is that 90 percent of all smokers start smoking sometime in their teens. Tobacco companies claim that they don't target kids, but the fact is that if you don't smoke by age 19, you probably won't. That's why it's so incredibly important to talk to your kids about smoking when you still have a pretty significant amount of influence in their lives.

The good news is that when talking to your kids about smoking there is no need to use scare tactics because the truth is scary enough. The important thing is to communicate openly and honestly with your children and show them how good values make good decisions easier to make.

Young children imitate their parents, so if you don't want your kids to smoke then neither should you. Even the youngest child now knows that smoking is bad for them but it's rare that we see the real effects of smoking in the media.

How often do you see actors wheezing or coughing as they light up on screen. How often do you see movie stars with yellow teeth or persistent coughs?

Teach kids early about the images portrayed by advertisers and the truth. You really can't be with you child all the time. Eventually they need to make their own decisions. As they get older, the need to be socially accepted by other teens becomes increasingly important. If your child does begin to smoke, don't use the copout that they could be doing worse things.

If you've equipped your child with the right tools as they grow up, they'll figure out that it's possible to be accepted by their peers without smoking. The average lifelong smoker dies 12 years prematurely. No one wants that for their child.

Still smooth sailing for

in 20th year

The class of 1985 was only the third to graduate from Caravel Academy.

A caravelle was, in the day's of Christopher Columbus, a highly sought sailing ship, one of the best around. In fact Columbus had a caravelle ship among his trio that set out on his journey to discover new sailing routes.

To Robert C. Peoples, Caravel Academy in Bear was a dream. He hoped, according to Irene Long, an administrator at the school, to create an academic institution based on excellence which is why he chose the sailing ship as the school's namesake and symbol.

On the school's 20th anniversary, the Peoples' family would probably feel comfortable saying Robert's vision has been successful.

The school currently has more than 1,050 students enrolled compared to the 161 students that were enrolled when the school opened in 1979. According to George Glynn director of admissions at the school for 17 years, so many students are applying to the school that it has enabled Caravel to raise their admission standard from a beginning policy of open enrollment to a more stringent review process.

Glynn said more than 98 percent of all seniors that graduate from the school go on to college, and last year's graduating class of 49 students was able to net $1.3 million in scholarship money.

In the past 20 years the school has grown rapidly adding four wings, a gymnasium, a utility building, a prekindergarten building and two trailers. Soon, the school will also include the addition of a field house.

First grade teacher, Barbara Tinney said she remembers when she first came to the school 20 years ago. The school only consisted of one wing when I came here as an assistant on a part time basis," she said. "I helped the kids with math."

First grade teacher Barbara Tinney has been at Caravel Academy since the first year.

Tinney said at that time she was interested in a part time job, so she could still have time with her family.

She said she also liked the sense of family in the Caravel teaching environment. "You know everyone from the board on down," she said. "We all care about the students and each other." Tinney said after five years of being an assistant teacher at Caravel, she became a fulltime first grade teacher.

Tinney said when she began teaching at the school there was one class of each grade ranging from one through six, today there are about three of each grade, ranging from pre-K to 12. "It's been fun to see the students who have been here," Tinney said. "There are students who graduate and have gone through every grade."

Walking through the halls of the school for the first time visitors might notice something unusual about the school, something that illustrates Tinney's feeling of community at Caravel. Students don't lock their lockers.

"They're honest and very trusting, very seldom is anything taken here," said Glynn. "We'd wish they'd close them, their housekeeping leaves a lot to be desired."

Items like starter jackets, calculators and lunches are in the lockers. "This is just a nice place to be," Glynn said. "You can leave things and they'll be there when you come back."

Glynn among the nine graduating seniors in Caravel's first class in 1983, also can remember every class that graduated since. "The class of '88 was our largest," he said. "We graduated 55 kids. It was a culturally diverse class - there were eight foreign exchange students."

Glynn who was retired when he came to Caravel in 1983 decided to come back to the world of education full time after spending a year as an administrator at Caravel. "I came back because I think I probably wasn't finished helping students and I was bored," he said. "I came down here and I saw kids that were like the kids I left and I'm still happy doing my job."

Glynn said it is the students that make him want to come to school every day. "We also have good parent volunteers - after school they run the snack bars and help with the booster clubs."

School spokesperson Irene Long said Caravel's 20th Anniversary celebration featured a float shaped like a birthday cake and a member of the first graduating class addressed attendees at the Oct. 22 homecoming game.

NEWARK BOND REFERENDUM

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1999

A SPECIAL MESSAGE FOR NEWARKERS

On Tuesday, November 2, 1999 you will have an opportunity to vote for a bond issue for the PURCHASE OF LAND for a City of Newark RESERVOIR and for ancillary public OPEN SPACE. The City is proposing to purchase, with your approval, the 112.259 ACRE property on the north side of Old Paper Mill Road, west of Nonantum Mills and east of the Pinebrook Apartments and Jenny's Run townhomes. We need your approval to issue up to $4,250,000 in bonds for this land acquisition. The State of Delaware is proposing to provide additional funding for the land purchase. If the City receives more than the current State allocation of $1,700,000, the amount of the bond issue, and any tax increase, will be reduced accordingly.

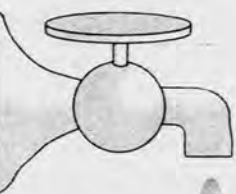

The approximately 200 million gallon reservoir will, according to the City's recently adopted comprehensive Newark Water Supply Plan, help ensure that we have a continuing high quality water supply that is safe, clean, and reliable. Water that runs through our community in the White Clay Creek during high water flows needs to be captured and saved for you, especially during periods of drought. That will help Newark achieve water supply self sufficiency. THE RESERVOIR WILL BE CONSTRUCTED WITHOUT DAMMING THE WHITE CLAY CREEK. City ownership of the land and the construction of the reservoir will also ensure that a beautiful open green area, with a reservoir in the form of a lake as its primary feature, will be enjoyed by present and future generations of Newarkers.

The bond referendum voting booths will be open 7:00 AM TO 8:00 PM to registered voters in their election district polling places listed below.

The following persons may vote in the Council Chambers: 1.) Persons who do not reside in the City of Newark, but who own property in the City. 2.) A single representative of a corporation that owns property in the City of Newark.

THE COST TO YOU

The Proposed reservoir and open space land acquisition will result in a property tax increase of five cents per $100 of assessed value of your property, or, for a typical home in Newark, about a $34 per year property tax increase. The current 1999 City tax rate is $.39 per $100 of assessed value. The reason for this tax increase is to pay for the new debt service for the City bond issue. The City proposes to fund this land acquisition as shown below:

Source	Amount
Bond Issue	$4,250,000
City Capital Reserves	$2,000,000
State Funding Assistance	$1,700,000
Total	$7,950,000

As you can see, our area State Legislators have been especially helpful in working to secure State support.

Halloween safety tips

The Newark Police Department would like to make sure that this Halloween is safe and enjoyable for children and parents alike by offering the following safety tips:

- Children should always be accompanied by an adult and travel in groups whenever possible.
- Children should always walk on the sidewalk and cross the street at corners with an adult.
- Trick or Treat only in familiar neighborhoods.
- Start during daylight or at dusk for additional light. Be considerate of your neighbors and end at a reasonable time.

• Provide children with a flashlight, glow stick or similar device for greater visibility.

- Design costumes out of light colored, reflective material.
- Ensure that costumes are flame retardant and avoid sparks and open flames.
- Ensure that costume fits properly and does not inhibit movement or reduce vision.

• Check for tears and holes in candy wrappers and never allow your child to eat unwrapped candy. If your child does get sick, try to determine what he or she has eaten and where it came from. Get medical attention immediately and save all wrappers.

• Report any suspicious activity to the police department.

If you have any questions or concerns regarding Halloween Safety, callt Cpl. Mark A. Farrall at 366-7110, extension 130.

Newark throttles Christiana

Yellowjackets post third consecutive Flight A football shutout; Montgomery runs for two TD's

By JOE NYE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Christiana High found out last Friday night that not only is Newark tough to beat, it's not even easy to score against, as the Yellowjackets posted their third consecutive Blue Hen Conference Flight A shutout, 19-0, over the Vikings at Bob Hoffman Field.

In a battle of previously undefeated conference teams, the Yellowjackets improved to 3-0 in Flight A (5-1 overall) behind an electrifying 65-yard punt return by Brandon Haman to open the scoring and two touchdown runs by Seth Montgomery to ice the victory for the two-time defending state champions.

"This was obviously a pivotal Flight A game. The teams over the past three weeks (Glasgow, William Penn, Christiana) all had the same ambition as we did," said Jackets' head coach Butch Simpson. "We went head-to-head and we got the results we needed to have."

Not only did Newark post victories in all three conference games, but they outscored those opponents 63-0 over that period and between a solid offense and a dominating defense have put themselves in position for another state championship run.

The annual cross-town rivalry was besieged by a driving rainstorm throughout the game and after the two teams exchanged punts to start the game, the Yellowjacket defense rose up.

Sparked by a third-down sack by co-captain John Brennan, the Vikings were forced to punt from deep in their own territory. Junior Quinn Martin boomed a high spiral, but Haman caught the ball at his own 35, broke a tackle on his way to his left and scampered 65 yards down the left sideline to open the scoring.

John Brayman's extra point was good and Newark led 7-0.

"That return was big," said Haman, who played for the Vikings last year and was a source of attention throughout the game by Christiana's vocal crowd.

"There was a lot of talking during the game, but I just concentrated on the game."

Both defenses and the elements combined to limit the scoring for the rest of the half as Kevin Ransome and Duben Word highlighted a spirited Viking defense and the Jackets' defense played its typical suffocating game to end the

Glasgow shuts down improved Newark field hockey team

Newark High had a golden opportunity to improve its chances of winning the Blue Hen Conference Flight A title when it hosted Glasgow last Friday.

But the Dragons, who entered the game with a 2-9 overall record and a 2-5 conference mark, refused to wave the Yellowjackets on through. Behind the stellar goalkeeping of Renee Kutys, Glasgow held Newark to a 0-0 tie.

Newark, although 4-5-1 overall, remained in the Flight A race with its 3-1-1 conference mark. With Flight A games remaining against Brandywine, William Penn, McKean and Glasgow again, the Yellowjackets still control their own destiny.

"We've really played much better than previous years," said one of Newark's tri-captains, Megan Lynam, a right wing who has three goals and two assists this season.

"We've really picked it up. We've only lost some games by a couple goals instead of by five. Our offense has improved. In the past we've had trouble scoring. Well, in this game we had trouble scoring, but we've been a lot better."

Hurting Hens' hopes for playoffs slim

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Although the prognosis isn't very good, the University of Delaware football season is still alive.

The Blue Hens' 27-19 loss to the University of Massachusetts last week — its second straight defeat dropping their record to 4-3 overall — severely damaged the team's chances of qualifying for the NCAA I-AA playoffs. Coach Tubby Raymond, however, reminded everyone the last two national champions — UMass and Youngstown State — each had three regular season losses.

"Obviously, we're not happy about losing," Raymond said. "What does that do to the rest of the season? Absolutely nothing. We still have four games to play."

"We're capable of going 8-3 — and so is Villanova (Delaware's season-ending opponent) — and 8-3 can still win you a national championship."

Despite Raymond's optimism, a study of the national rankings and the league standings show a more sobering situation.

James Madison, which sits atop the Atlantic-10 standings with a 6-0 conference mark (6-1 overall), is the highest ranked team in the league at No. 10. UMass, which is now alone in second place in the A-10 with a 4-1 mark (4-3 overall) is only ranked No. 20.

That makes it difficult to make a case for three Atlantic-10 teams qualifying for the 16-team playoffs.

In addition, any call that the NCAA committee would have to make between an 8-3 UMass and an 8-3 Delaware is clearly in the Minutemen's favor. An 8-3 Delaware record would also mean a victory at

Glasgow soccer on a roll

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

After a wobbly start to its season, Glasgow High's soccer team steadily righted itself.

The result was an 8-2-2 overall record in its first 12 games, which, barring a catastrophic effort in their last three matches, put the Dragons on track to a ninth consecutive appearance in the state tournament.

With a 4-1 Blue Hen Conference Flight A record heading into its game Oct. 26 against Mount Pleasant, the Dragons still had an outside chance of winning the league title and earning an automatic berth.

Adding to the mix is games against two other teams with Flight A title hopes - Christiana (Oct. 29) and Newark (Nov. 4).

Depending on strength of schedule, about 10 or 11 victories is usually good enough to get a team into the state tournament.

Entering this season, the Dragons returned 11 seniors to a team that finished with a 13-4-3 record and ultimately lost to St. Marks 2-0 in the state championship game.

Glasgow opened the season with a 2-0 win over William Penn, then fell to Alexis I. du Pont 3-0 and tied St. Elizabeth 2-2.

Since then, the Dragons have lost only to No. 2-ranked Salesianum 2-1 and have outscored the opposition 25-3.

Through the first 12 games, Abe Nimrooz had the Dragons in goal-scoring with nine, while Davis Nimrooz had seven and Mike Hudson had five.

Julius Milbourne led the team in assists with four, while Brett Scholl and Justin Iocono each had three.

First team all-state goalie David Scruggs had allowed five goals.

"I'm fairly pleased with the record, but I was hoping for a little better than the two ties," said Scholl, a senior midfielder.

"We have a lot of seniors on the team and I figured our leadership would get us through the beginning of the season just like we did."

"The St. Elizabeth tie was disappointing to me," said Glasgow Coach Bob Bussiere. "The two losses, AI was the better team that night and against Sallies we had a great match. We were up 1-0 at halftime and allowed two goals in the first eight minutes to start the second half. But then we didn't quit, either. We came right back at them."

"So I'm happy where we're at right now, but I'm a little bit concerned about finishing up the year. I'm not quite sure where we're going to be."

Bussiere said the character of the team is businesslike.

"We struggled with a style of play at the beginning of the year," Bussiere said. "We struggled with a quote, personality, at the beginning of the year and I think that really hurt us."

"One of the things we've been doing well as of the last couple of weeks is we've been scoring goals. And at the beginning of the year we were not."

Bussiere said a 4-0 win over Wilmington Christian in the Dragons' fourth game seemed to be a big confidence booster. But although they went 2-0-1 in their next three games with three shutouts, they only scored three goals.

After that, the Dragons awoke to crush Delcastle 9-1, beat Archmere 2-0, lost to Salesianum, then beat McKean 6-0.

"We've been scoring some goals lately, and not only scoring, but it's the way we've been scoring them," Bussiere said. "It's been some good team play. We've finally been getting the ball wide and bringing it across and scoring off some heads and volleys and mixing it up pretty well. So the quality of goals has been good as well."

And like most of Bussiere's teams, he feels this one is also sound in the fundamentals of the game.

"It's a sound technical team," Bussiere said. "If I had to grade out this team I would say it's either way above average or even up to good in terms of the team."

Bussiere said a lot of the credit for that has to go to his freshman and junior varsity coaches.

"We do place an emphasis on technique and skill development, but they're the ones who go through the day-to-day grind of small tactics and using technique with it," Bussiere said. "I've been very fortunate and all of them have been former players of mine so they know my philosophy and

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

ADAM STULLER - ST. MARK'S

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

When forward Adam Stuller made the St. Mark's varsity soccer team straight from preseason as a freshman three years ago, he was the first Spartan ever to earn that honor.

Stuller validated the promotion made by head coach Tom DeMatteis by scoring nine goals.

Last season, he showed that his freshman year was no fluke by netting 11 goals.

This season, Stuller is proving his value once again, and never in more timely fashion than last week when he notched five goals and three assists to help his team win all three of its games.

Stuller started off with three goals and an assist against Salesianum, ranked second in the state, in an eye-popping 4-3 St. Mark's win.

Stuller's final goal against arch-rival Salesianum required more than a bit of iron will. With the score tied 3-3 before a roaring crowd of about 2,500 at Baynard Stadium - and on legs no doubt a little weary from the demands of the game's relentless pace - Stuller notched the game-winner by cleanly converting a penalty kick in the final minutes.

Two days later, the Spartans faced highly-talented C. Milton Wright High, a Harford County, Md. team which had handed Sallies its only defeat of the season prior to the St. Mark's game.

Stuller, moved from right wing to center forward because of the absence of Nicola Chicco, who was injured late in the Sallies game, scored the game's only goal with about 14 minutes left to play.

Two days after that, although Stuller only played about a half, he notched his 16th goal of the season and added two assists to help the Spartans squash Dover 11-1.

The victories improved the top-ranked Spartans' record to 13-0 and gave them their 27th victory in a row going back to the sixth game of last season.

"It's (Stuller's) work rate, that's the thing that seems to set him apart," said DeMatteis, whose team is also ranked 13th in the nation by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America.

"He has a nose for the goal and he can score in different ways. He can score with power or with finesse."

Local players fuel DelTech volleyball to success

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Delaware Technical and Community College's volleyball team netted a 30-10 record through its first 39 games sparked by a roster with a distinctly New Castle- and Newark-area flavor.

With three matches remaining on its schedule and the Region 16 tournament awaiting after that, only a trip to the national tournament would make this team happier.

DelTech Coach Bill Strickland, a Newark native who graduated from William Penn, later coached Newark's 1996-97 volleyball team to an 18-5 record and third place in the state tournament that season.

He guided DelTech to a 70-20 record the previous two seasons.

"Most of (the players) are returning from last year, which is a real strength," Strickland said. "And four of them are off my Chesapeake Region champion juniors team that I led two years ago."

"And the return of Jessica Truselo (of New Castle) is the big one. Two years ago when she was here we went to the nationals and we had a tremendous team. She sat out last year and she's back this year which really gives us some power in the middle."

In addition to Truselo, a graduate of Delcastle, the Spirit roster includes: Lauren Litwin, a graduate of Padua Academy from Newark; Robin Brzoska, a graduate of Newark; Ashley Moe, of Christiana; Erin Anderson of Glasgow; Ashley Walsh, a graduate of McKean from Newark, and Denise Kenney and Monique McKim, who both graduated from New Castle Baptist.

Lynn Pabian of Padua rounds out the roster.

The Spirit assistant coach is Kendra Maloy, a former DelTech player who is a graduate of Christiana and a former assistant coach at Glasgow.

Strickland said having so many players from close neighborhoods has helped in the team's success.

"There's no question about it," Strickland said. "The girls didn't have to take so much time getting used to each other. Especially the girls coming off the juniors team. They knew the system and I think that's why they finished so well last year. They had a 34-10 record and just missed going to the nationals. It went right to the last point."

"The only problem with this kind of situation is that you only have them for two years. You have such a big turnover. But we have a real good freshman in Ashley Walsh from McKean. She turned out to be a pleasant surprise."

Truselo is the team's leading server, while Pabian, Moe, and Anderson are close behind, Strickland said.

"They're so even, that's what's nice about this club,"

Strickland said. "There's not one real outstanding player who stands head and shoulders above the rest. Everybody's so close in talent and ability that we can go to anybody at any given time."

"Two years ago we had one go-to person. We really don't have a go-to person but in any situation, any girl's as good as the other. And that's what makes it nice."

Strickland said the team is usually shorter than most opponents, but there are ways to overcome that.

"We have to be quicker and we run a multiple offense where we run a lot of fakes and try to keep their middle blocker from moving too much," Strickland said.

Truselo said having so many players from similar areas helps team unity.

"We have a lot in common and we can talk about a lot, she said. "We have better servers this year than the last time I was here (two seasons ago) and we have a lot of good hitters who are consistent and that helps out a lot."

"We have a really strong offense this year," said Moe, who lives in Eagle Glen in New Castle.

(Moe's sister, Natalie, plays on Christiana's varsity volleyball team.)

"Even though I hadn't played with them, I'd seen a lot of them in winter league, so I know how

of Maryland/Delaware

Why every fisherman and boater needs this map

Professor Higbee's® Stream Map of Maryland/Delaware is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind. This new 2 x 3 1/2 foot color map shows virtually all of the 12,000 miles of Maryland/Delaware streams, plus lakes. Now, overlooked streams and lakes are easy-to-locate on one map.

Rave Reviews

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps." --John Piarres, OBSERVER-DISPATCH-LIICA

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake...then 'Professor Higbee's Stream Maps' are without question the finest." --Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"Professor Higbee's Stream Map belongs on the den wall of every freshwater angler and paddler in the region." --Tom Meade, Providence Journal - Bulletin

Watershed Boundaries

Boundary lines for the 16 Maryland and Delaware watersheds, which drain into Chesapeake Bay, are shown on the Stream Map.

The entire Chesapeake Bay watershed covers 64,000 square miles in 6 states. Almost every drop of anything that falls on or spills in the watershed eventually ends up in the Bay.

Success in restoring the Bay begins with each individual protecting his or her own watershed. You can also help by becoming a member of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, and supporting its efforts to reduce pollution, protect and restore habitat, restore fisheries, and educate and involve more citizens. The Bay belongs to each of us. Its survival depends on our actions today.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology--the Maryland/Delaware Stream Map was created.

A portion of the purchase price helps the important efforts of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

ing." Left wing Jessica Coombs has sparked the Yellowjackets this season by scoring 11 of the team's 24 goals.

Goalie Megan McMillan has anchored a Yellowjacket defense that has allowed 15 goals.

Against Glasgow, Newark's starting defensive backline of Laura Devenney, captain Liabeth Yohannes and Kelly Jarrett did a consistent job of breaking up most of the Dragons' attacks.

Although the Dragons managed a couple dangerous chances on McMillan, she finished with one save.

"We just took it one game at a time and tried to win them," said Newark Coach Jennifer Rowles about her team's approach to the season.

"We should be 6-5, not 4-5-2. There were a couple games that were real tight."

Three of Newark's losses were by one goal, while 3-1 losses to St. Elizabeth and Caravel came when both opponents scored in the final minutes. Against Glasgow, Newark finished with 27 corners and 22 shots.

"But they played their hearts out," Rowles said of her team. "They play 100 per cent and I'm just really proud of them. It's been an exciting season and I just hope that this tie doesn't pull them down and that they keep their spirits up."

For Glasgow, its problems this season revolve mainly around a lack of offense. The Dragons had only scored about 15 goals after the Newark game, according to Glasgow Coach Gretchen Loose.

Defense has been one of Glasgow's bright spots, with Kutys averaging between 10 and 15 saves per game.

"She's really kept us close in many of her games like Brandywine and William Penn and the tougher teams in our conference," Loose said of Kutys.

Against Newark, Kutys finished with 10 saves in regulation, then used her quick pads to deny at least two close-in chances in the 10-minute overtime.

"She was their saving grace," Rowles said.

Although Loose would have preferred a victory, she said she was pleased her team kept battling.

"They never gave up," Loose said. "Overtime is hard. You're spread out because it's seven-on-seven (instead of the usual 11 aside) and the girls had just played 60 minutes and then they have to play another 10 minutes."

"Going 0-0 with the shots they had on goal. I'm proud of them."

what I expect of them."

Bussiere said Glasgow's success over the years has been based on organization and discipline, and when they haven't shown that, they've stumbled.

"Last year was the perfect example," Bussiere said. "We didn't have any player out there who you looked at and said, 'Oh, man, he's great.' But what you saw was a team working together and disciplined in their games together. We're all on the same page."

"And that's another thing we stumbled with a little bit early in the year. Even though most of these guys are returning players, getting the right guys at the right positions at the right time, when we didn't have that, our organization was horrible. And as a result our discipline was really bad and that's why we were unsuccessful."

Bussiere said although the goals-against average for his team was low early in the season, the lack of organization resulted in fewer goals for.

"That's coming along though. It had to," Bussiere said.

"Lately we've been breaking out and scoring goals and it's just because the team's getting confidence," said Scholl, who's been a varsity player for three years and a starter for two.

"I think because of the confidence we're just going to get stronger and stronger."

"And our defense is definitely one of the premier defenses in the state."

► HENS, from 23

Villanova, which is also fighting for an 8-3 season and a playoff berth. A win on the Main Line is no lock.

After two straight losses Delaware needs a victory over anybody. The first in line is Northeastern Saturday afternoon in Boston.

The Huskies are just 1-6 and are on a six-game losing streak. One of the losses was a 77-0 defeat at the hands of UMass.

"We're not very happy with where we are," said Northeastern coach Barry Gallup. "We've really struggled. We started the season and thought we were going to have a pretty good team. It hasn't worked out that way."

Gallup also knows he's not catching Delaware at the best of times.

"I know we need a win," the coach said. "Unfortunately, I know Delaware has lost two in a row and hasn't lost three in a row in 10 years. I know they'll be ready to play."

One difference the Huskies will see in the Hens this week is at quarterback.

Starter Matt Nagy injured his ankle against UMass and senior captain Brian Ginn will get the start this week.

"Nagy will be out at least a week," Raymond said. "But we have a very capable guy — maybe even better — in Ginn."

"Ginn's a better artist and technique guy. He's a leader and I think the kids will respond. I don't expect any drop off."

Officially frustrated

Raymond, doing his best not to, pointed out some problems with the officiating against UMass.

The Hens were hurt by holding penalty that called back a touchdown, a pass interference call deep Delaware territory and a controversial penalty for excessive celebration after Butter

Pressey's touchdown.

"I sat in the rules meeting and the officials showed video of about 35 plays that were excessive and about 35 that were not. I think that was ridiculous."

"When you're going good and everything's bouncing your way, you never see officials like that. When you're losing, they're all over the place."

Mistake prone

Delaware has been hurt badly by simple mistakes this season. Penalties, turnovers and just missed assignments have been keys in the Hens' losses.

"Some of it is just without understanding," Raymond said of the mistakes. "It's like raising kids. Some of it is just really bewildering."

they play," added Moe, who was a second team all-Blue Hen Conference selection and played in the senior all-star game.

"It's good having teammates from all the same area because we can keep close ties."

Moe said with a laugh that she started playing the sport only because her friends "made me play."

"Now I'm the only one that's still playing out of all of them."

"I like everything about (volleyball). It's intense. It's just a really fun game to play. I love digging the ball and having a girl on the other side serving thinking she's going to get an ace and then I dig it and she doesn't get the point."

"And I like to get kills on people. It's always fun to put a ball down on the ground."

Litwin, a resident of Salem Woods who is DelTech's team captain, started playing volleyball in the fifth grade for a Catholic Youth League team.

"We have a lot of talent," Litwin said. "I've played with and known most of these girls for a while. We come across hard teams, but we definitely stay with them."

"We get four-year schools contact us a lot because they like junior college players," Strickland said.

SUPPORT the REFERENDUM!

Increase Water Supply And Preserve The Environment!

We support the November 2 referendum to acquire the former Koelig property for a reservoir for the City of Newark. The facility would help solve the City's water supply problem in a manner compatible with natural resource protection, and prevent future development of the property. The proposed reservoir site does not compromise any ecologically sensitive lands and would preserve the surrounding open space as a valuable amenity for City residents. We encourage the City's voters to support the referendum on November 2.

Kirkwood Soccer Club expands Newark tops CHS

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Talk about a growth spurt. Included in a celebration scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 30, to mark its 25th anniversary, the Kirkwood Soccer Club will sign a new lease to expand its site from 25 acres to about 60.

New Castle County Executive Thomas P. Gordon will be on hand to sign a 50-year lease, said club president Elaine Manlove.

The site, on Delaware 9 south of New Castle, has 13 fields and an indoor arena. About six to eight fields and another indoor field are in the planning stages, Manlove said.

About 2,000 children play on Kirkwood teams year-round at the site and numerous area fields. In addition, hundreds of players from teams and leagues from neighboring states also use the facilities.

The club hosted four outdoor tournaments last year. According to a survey done by the University of Delaware, the tournaments helped bring in a million dollars in revenue to the county, Manlove said.

"I think what happened was when (county officials) came back last year to renew the 10-year lease they realized how many kids come to play here," Manlove said.

The club had renewed its 10-year lease, for which it pays one dollar per year, with the county last year.

Manlove has been involved with the club for 16 years. Her husband, Wayne, is a Kirkwood coach.

Manlove said she got involved with the club when her first son began playing when he was about five years old. Three sons are still playing with club teams.

Gone are the early days when coaches had to do things like pick up nets at the home of another coach who lived close to one of the area fields which had to be used, Manlove said.

The coach of the last games that day then had to collect the nets and bring them back to another member's garage.

"The biggest thing to me is that families nowadays think 9th (the complex) is just there. It's a given," Manlove said. "Before me the people had a real vision; the board and parents involved. And they worked really, really hard."

Manlove said people should remember that the club is open for anyone to join.

"I think some people have the idea that we serve kids in that area," she said. "We serve the entire area. We have kids coming from as far away as Ocean View (Sussex County) from a rep team."

Elected officials statewide have also been invited to Saturday's birthday party, and some Delaware Wizards may appear.

For information about the club, call 322-4220.

half at 7-0.

The Vikings fought adversity throughout the game. Two-way player Virgil Rush was ejected early in the contest after a confrontation with Haman, and injuries during the game to Ransome and halfback Danny Foster tested the depth of Christiana.

"Our kids have nothing to be ashamed of," said Vikings head coach Marvin Spence, who saw his team drop to 4-2 overall and 2-1 in the conference.

"Newark is just so tough with those elephants up front (Kwame and Orien Harris and Micah German). We need to keep playing well and 8-2 might get us in (to the state tournament)."

The Yellowjackets' offense began to take control early in the second half as they began the second half at their own 30 and used their size advantage to pound the ball at the smaller Vikings. Alternating runs by Montgomery and Haman, the Jackets drove to the Vikings four yard line, highlighted by a 32-yard run by Haman on a crucial third and eight.

From the four, Montgomery took it in for his first score of the night and Newark had a 13-0 lead.

"The linebacker skirted by me and I cut it up inside for the score," said Montgomery, who like Haman is playing his first season with the Jackets.

"I'll have to give all the credit to the offensive line and my fullback (Brandon Snow)."

After an unsuccessful PAT attempt, the Vikings got the ball back on their own 30, but the wet conditions produced the evenings first turnover, as Brennan jumped on the ball to put the Jacket offense in scoring position again.

Two plays later, Montgomery slashed his way in from 15 yards out and Newark had a 19-0 lead. The pass attempt for two points was knocked down.

Quarterback Jeff Tatnall continued to run the offense for the Vikings and alternating runs by Ransome and Foster, Christiana launched its best drive of the game and drove to the Jacket 14.

Once there, Newark's defense drew a line in the mud and led by the Harris brothers, German, and sophomore John Parkinson, they ended the Vikings' best chance to score, highlighted by Haman batting away a pass from Tatnall to Jon Watson in the corner of the end zone on third down.

With the rain turning the field into a quagmire, the two teams slugged it out over a sloppy fourth quarter without further scoring.

"This has been a grueling six weeks," said Simpson. "Four out of our first five games were on the road (including games against Salesianum and No. 1-ranked Caesar Rodney) and when we finally get home we get weather like this."

If Simpson thinks the past six weeks were tough on his team, one only has to wonder how his opponents would rate it.

The Yellowjackets host Alexis I. du Pont on Friday (Nov. 29), while the Vikings are at home against Brandywine in a key Flight A battle the following day.

Caravel gets back to winning ways

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

In conditions more suitable for migrating salmon than playing football, Caravel Academy faced the task of halting a two-game losing streak against Howard Career Center.

The driving rain that also fell all night on the spirited Homecoming Day crowd, however, wasn't enough to sink the Bucs' hopes, as they used one big offensive play and some key defensive efforts to earn a 7-0 victory.

Caravel, which had fallen to Interboro and Penn Wood the previous two weeks after winning its first four games, improved to 5-2, keeping its hopes alive for a berth in the Division II state tournament.

Caravel is off until Nov. 5 when it hosts Kent Island (Md.), then finishes with St. Elizabeth at home Nov. 12 and Archmere on the road Nov. 20.

Howard, a Blue Hen Conference Flight B school, slipped to 1-6.

"Certainly any time we can get a win I'm real happy, but the truth of the matter is we're disappointed," said Caravel Coach David Needs.

"We saw this as a game for us to really accelerate and get our program back and get that attitude out of our system, having lost to two very good football teams. Our kids haven't gauged that yet. They just saw that they've been beaten up, and they don't understand that being beaten up by a real good football team is a lot different than being beaten up by a not-so-good football team."

"And we did not play tonight like we were a good football team. A good Delaware football team."

The first half featured little for either team to feel good about, as the conditions made the footing treacherous and ball-handling a questionable feat on each possession.

Both teams had difficulty sustaining any drives, and the several fumbles by each team ensured that.

The decisive moment of the game occurred late in the second quarter. With Caravel's Mike Price at quarterback for starter Chris Radel, whom Needs said was still ailing from a badly bruised leg sustained the previous game, the Bucs faced a third-and-five from their own 37.

Price passed to Antoine Newsome, who was able to outrun Howard's defenders for a touchdown. Adam Chandlee kicked the point-after to make it 7-0.

"It was just a streak, straight down the field," Newsome said of the play. "I beat the man and Mike Price put it out there."

"(The footing) was pretty slippery. But as soon as I caught it I knew I had to go, so I just put on the speed and beat him."

After the Homecoming half-time ceremonies, which highlighted the evening's celebration of the school's 20th anniversary, the third quarter began with the rain still falling in torrents.

On its second possession of the quarter, Howard managed to go 13 yards to Caravel's 46. Although the Wildcats were forced to punt, the line-drive kick skidded out of the hands of Caravel's R.T. Plumsy and was recovered by Howard at the Bucs' 18.

Howard's first play resulted in a two-yard loss. On second down, Plumsy came up with his second interception of the game. This one was at the goal line, and he returned it 50 yards down the left sideline to the Howard 40.

The field conditions helped keep both teams inside the 30 yard lines virtually the rest of the game. But Caravel's defense came up with a critical stop with about three minutes left in the game when it stopped the Wildcats on fourth down at the Bucs' 27.

Then, on their next possession with about two minutes to play, running back Corey Heath slogged for a short gain on third down to give the Bucs a first down.

With Howard out of timeouts, Caravel was able to run out the clock.

"It feels good," said Newsome about ending the two-game losing streak. "I think we're going to get back on track now. Tonight, we didn't played up to our potential, but we're going to get better."

"The defense stepped it up. The whole defense played good."

"(The conditions) were horrible," said Price, who had started at quarterback last week. "I had trouble with the ball the whole game."

"But you've got to do what you've got to do, and I got that pass to Antoine and hoped that was all we needed."

My friends, there is a way of Hope. There is a way into the Light. That simple way lies through brotherhood and love.

Online home equity loan takes 15 minutes, says AAA

A new online service allows AAA members to apply for a home equity loan or line of credit in less than 15 minutes from their homes, according to AAA Mid-Atlantic.

"Homeowners also can obtain a loan check without ever leaving home," AAA manager of product development Rick Rugel said. "When a loan is approved, the necessary documents and check can be sent to the applicant's home."

To apply online, go to website: www.financial.aaa.com.

and click on the banner for home equity loans. The application, which uses 128-bit encryption—the highest form of security, also has a link to a variety of financial calculators to assist users in making decisions.

"Applicants need the estimated value of the home and, if applicable, the estimated balance of the mortgage," said Rugel.

Applicants must also provide their AAA membership number. Within 15 seconds of submitting the application, users will receive a message, on the screen, saying the application has been received. Conditional approval may be given at that time or later in the day—generally within three hours.

Final approval takes five to ten days while the house, offered as collateral, is evaluated. Loan documents and a check can be sent to either a member's home or select AAA Mid-Atlantic offices.

Home equity loans and lines of credit can be used for virtually anything including home improvements, automobiles, tuition and debt consolidation.

Interest from these loans may also be tax deductible.

Auto loans through the same website may also receive approval in as little as 15 seconds. PNC Bank, in Pittsburgh, developed both applications.

AAA Financial Services offers a full range of financial products to AAA members through MBNA America and PNC Bank, FSB, and its affiliates, an equal housing lender.

AAA Mid-Atlantic, a not-for-profit organization headquartered in Philadelphia, Pa., is the fourth largest AAA-affiliated automobile club in North America. Serving more than 2.3 million members in Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the District of Columbia.

Use professional storage services when moving

Storing your valuable possessions in a professional warehouse has advantages that can protect your goods and save wear and tear in the long run, says a moving company executive.

"Because storage facilities in the moving industry are designed and built to handle all of a family's valuable furniture and other goods, they are more secure and offer more protection than most self storage," says Cathy Hopkins Grieco of Hopkins Moving & Storage.

In addition, Grieco points out, moving company personnel are experienced in handling, wrapping and stacking fragile household goods so that damage is kept to a minimum. "And don't just assume that professional storage is that much more expensive; in many places, particularly in metropolitan areas, it is very competitive."

Grieco explains that your goods are more secure in a moving company warehouse because access is limited and tightly controlled and most have alarm systems and outside security. Also, the strong brick and block construction of warehouses provides additional security. Another security measure moving company warehouses have are sprinkler systems to protect goods against fire.

Professional warehouse construction gives better protection for your possessions, too, Grieco says, because the thick walls keep temperatures more uniform and keep water out. "Many companies offer special temperature-controlled sections in their warehouses for storing such items as valuable antiques and art work. Warehouses that store the possessions of federal government and military family are also required to hire exterminators so that insect and vermin problems don't develop.

"When buying storage services, by all means be a good consumer," Grieco concludes. "Determine your needs and compare professional storage facilities with self-storage."

Hopkins Moving & Storage is an agent for Paul Arpin Van Lines. For more information on storing your valuable goods, call 322-5421 or send an email to Info@arpin.com.
