LATCH KEY

Newark YWCA pioneer in providing care

by Neil Thomas

In the 1930s, they were scorned, the children of poor, blue collar parents who were easily identified by the large door keys fastened around their necks.

Today, they are a growing part of our society, the children of people from all walks of life, from single parents for whom employment is a necessity to upper middle class couples who are simply taking advantage of the fresh opportunities of the 1980s as two-career families.

They are the latch key kids, and the Newark YWCA has been a pioneer in the State of Delaware in providing for their needs.

"We have offered a latch key program for 12 years, since 1974," said Rob Tietze of the Newark Y and a member of the Governor's Task Force on Latch Key Development. "From what I have tracked down, this was apparently the first program in the state."

And it has been a thriving one, growing from 12 children its first year to more than 80 today. About 30 children are enrolled in the Newark Y's morning session, and another 50 in its afternoon session.

"The demand has grown all over the country," Tietze said. "It has really become a national social concern."

The concern is for the welfare of school age children who, lacking programs such as that offered by the Newark Y, are left to their own devices in their homes. Often they just settle down in front of a television set.

What the children need, Tietze said, are:

- Adult supervision, direction and attention. "They (the kids) need to know that people care," he said. "A lot get the impression — wrongly so — that because their parents are working, they are being neglected or their parents don't care as much about them."

Tietze sees the Newark Y program as "reinforcing family values and strengthening family values indirectly."

- Structured recreation. "when they get home, with busing, it is often dark out so they don't get a chance to unwind after school and let off steam. Here, they can run around and wind down after the pressures of the school day," Tietze said.

- Creative interaction. There is no television at the Newark Y, so the kids socialize in a variety of programs including music, drama, sports, swimming and arts and crafts.

But the bottom line is caring, Tietze said. "Caring about the kids and caring about the parents. When you care about them, everything else falls into place."

The Newark Y program has two sessions, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. A Christina School District bus picks students up from the Y, located at Park Place and South College Avenue, in the morning and drops them off there in the afternoon.

Ferguson to seek Newark mayoralty

Shue School principal will face Redd

Saying "it is time for a change," Dr. Hugh Ferguson announced last week that he will attempt to unseat four-term Newark Mayor William M. Redd in the April 8 municipal election.

Ferguson, 48, is the principal of Shue Middle School and a resident of North Townview Lane in Woodmere.

One of the major reasons for Ferguson's candidacy is the fact that Redd has been mayor since 1973. "The City of Newark needs a change in administration, someone with fresh ideas," Ferguson said. "It's time for a new vision and a new perspective."

Ferguson's campaign platform will center on four key goals:

- Improving relations between the city government and county and state governments.
- Encouraging economic development.
- Serving in the office of mayor as a councilman-at-large to provide an ear for the concerns of all Newark residents.
- Improving public safety by assessing the needs of the Newark Police Department in light of increasing demands for service.

"We've certainly got to do something about the public safety situation, and not only on Main Street," Ferguson said. "It's a question of whether or not the city can provide citizens the kind of safety it should. The city has grown, and the problems have grown."

Harley S. Hastings

Teacher founded Newark Symphony to help string students

by Neil Thomas

Although Harley S. Hastings began piano lessons at age eight, it wasn't until about six years later that he became permanently fascinated with music. It was in the eighth grade that Hastings began playing clarinet in the bands and orchestras of his hometown of Shamokin, Pa., one of many western Pennsylvania towns which sponsored community bands during the 1930s.

Hastings' love of music led him into a teaching career which began in 1938 in the Caesar Rodney district near Dover. Then, after a dozen years teaching in his native Shamokin, Hastings returned to Delaware in 1960 as the Newark High School band director.

"And I've been here ever since," he said, laughing.

As the Newark High band director, Hastings soon realized that the city had neither a community band nor an orchestra and he set out to remedy the situation. The result is the Newark Symphony Orchestra, a group growing in number and skill which will celebrate its 20th anniversary in March.

What started Hastings on his quest to create a community orchestra was a handful of refugee string players he found at Newark High.

"Several students were studying the violin and cello but there was no place for them to play," said Hastings. "We started getting together after school. Then the one who played violin said her mother played cello and asked if she could come. I said, 'Sure.'"

"Then there were a number of teachers who played strings. Several said, 'I wouldn't mind getting in a group to keep my fingers in practice.'"

"Word got out and it just kept growing."

So in 1962, Hastings formed a small band of just six members. Its first program was during the Newark High Christmas music festival that year.

By March 1966, his band had grown to 30 members and gave its first performance under the name Newark School-Community Orchestra. One year later, it took the name Newark Symphony Orchestra.

"Those first few years were tough sledding," recalled Hastings, who directed the Newark Symphony until 1982 when he retired and handed the baton to Roman Pawlowski.

"When we started, we had no money at all." He credited the largesse of the former Newark Special School District, which loaned the orchestra facilities at Newark High, with making the Newark Symphony possible.

Despite the lack of funds, the organization was rich in people and talent. "It was amazing the people who showed up," Hastings said. "For people who hadn't touched an instrument for years, here was an opportunity to play. We had all ages, from school kids on up through grandparents."

Gradually, the Newark Symphony Orchestra grew. "We were able to build up a successful orchestra and a fine repertoire because success breeds success," Hastings said.

Hastings added that the size and skill of the 1986 Newark Symphony Orchestra amazes him. "I never expected anything quite like this when we started," he said, shaking his head.

"It's been a great deal of satisfaction to me over the years."

to do something that a great many people thoroughly enjoy, and to provide them an opportunity to keep their skills a little bit sharp.

Although he is retired from the schools and as director of the Newark Symphony Orchestra, Hastings is never far from the music scene. He volunteers several hours each week in the Christiana High School music library, and performs with both the Newark Symphony Orchestra and the Newark Community Band.

Hastings never doubts but that he made the correct choice in selecting a career in music. "It's been a very rewarding and satisfying experience over the years," he said.

Harley S. Hastings enjoyed playing in a Shamokin, Pa. community orchestra as a youth, and in the 1960s formed a similar organization in Newark.

Ordinance would put an end to peddlers' range wars

by Neil Thomas

Range wars? A Sooner land rush? On Main Street?

During a meeting that often sounded like it could more easily have been held in Dodge City than Newark, City Council Monday passed an ordinance to regulate the central business district's growing number of street peddlers.

The ordinance sets the annual peddlers' license fee at $150, and will limit those with stands to specific locations on Main Street. City Manager Peter Marshall said it has become necessary to limit peddlers to set sites because of spirited competition for sandwich sales.

"Right now we have range wars with people trying to get the right spots," Marshall said. "Certain areas are good for business and vendors may try to force each other off the spot."

To be fair, Marshall said peddlers will be awarded locations on a first come, first served basis. Applications for annual licenses — and for locations — will be taken in the City Secretary's office beginning March 3.

Sharon Phillips, a four-year veteran of the vendor trade who often sets up her stand near the CVS drug store, expressed concern that she might not be able to claim that location under the new ordinance.

"You have no legal guarantee today," Marshall said. "If someone is there when you get there, you can't make them move. We are doing this on a first come, first served basis. If someone else gets the spot, you'll have to find a new one."

Marshall said the city does not want to promise locations to peddlers because it would, in effect, be awarding franchises on public property.

If there is going to be great competition for locations, Councilman John Suchanec fears the City

Secretary's office will be inundated with applicants come March 3. "I can see the great Sooner land rush," he said.

Marshall doesn't expect that will be much of a problem because the city has just two year-around peddlers.

Council had been considering a $250 annual license, but decreased the cost to $150. In recommending the $150 fee, Councilman Olan Thomas said the peddlers must often follow pedestrian traffic to make money and a lower fee will enable them to purchase more than one location and so retain some mobility.

The ordinance passed unanimously.

Downtown development

Economics professor begins what's next 'phase of Main Street project

by Neil Thomas

One-quarter of the way through his six-month public service fellowship with the City of Newark, University of Delaware economics professor Dr. Jeff Miller has reached the "what's next?" phase of his work.

Since early January, Miller has been holding small, informal meetings with downtown businessmen to get a sense of their concerns and thoughts for improving the business climate on Main Street.

But now that contact has been made and ideas shared, businessmen, many of whom have been frustrated by failed previous attempts to improve Main Street, are beginning to ask Miller, "Okay, what's next?"

What's next, Miller said last week, will be an attempt to form an organization to move the business community's ideas forward. "The next big phase in the process will be to call a large meeting of the businessmen and put together a Steering Committee," he said.

Miller said such a committee is necessary to guide him in his work and to form the basis of a much-needed merchant's association on Main Street.

"Through talking with the businessmen, it has become even more evident that the lack of an organization on which to move is really a big problem," Miller said.

Without an organization, it has been difficult for merchants to mount Main Street-wide promotional campaigns.

Communications have also suffered, Miller said, explaining that merchants are often unable to voice united concerns about proposed city ordinances which will affect them. Many are even unaware of important actions, such as Sunday openings, by their neighbors.

Miller hopes the Steering Committee will form the basis of a continuing organization to carry on his work once the fellowship is completed. "One of my jobs is to demonstrate that there is enough to be done that it would be worthwhile for the businessmen to pay someone to do it," he said.

Organization is the cornerstone of Miller's four primary goals during his six-month term. The others, which will stem from organization, are: special, street-wide promotions; a study of Main Street architecture; and long-range planning to prepare for the future.

Miller, who believes Main Street is much better off than the downtown areas of many cities, sees a real vitality in the numerous investments being made in Newark's central business district and is optimistic about its future.

He is also optimistic about the remaining weeks of his fellowship. "I am really pleased with the progress so far," he said, "and I would like to keep the momentum going so I can finish off the project on a positive note."

Johnson rezoning

Physician plans Chestnut Hill Road medical center

Stafford

Materials stolen

A total of $4,220 in plywood and sheathing was stolen from Baldini Inc.'s new Stafford subdivision sometime between Monday, Feb. 17 and Tuesday, Feb. 18, according to the Newark Police Department.

Besides taking the construction materials, the thieves broke at least half a dozen windows and caused nearly $300 in damage.

Police are investigating the incident.

In other action this week, Newark police reported the following incidents:

• A man about six feet tall with bushy hair broke into an apartment in the 900 block of Wharton Drive about 5 a.m. Friday, Feb. 21. His entry awakened two women in the apartment, who found him standing in a bedroom doorway and shining a flashlight on them. He left without incident.

• Cash totaling $600 was stolen from a van parked in the 100 block of West Main Street sometime between 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 17 and 9 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 18. The thief broke a window to gain entry into the van, then made off with six bags of coins.

Newark City Council approved the rezoning of a 1.01 acre parcel off East Chestnut Hill Road from townhouse (RR) to business limited (BL) during its meeting Monday night.

Council also approved the resubdivision of the 3.6 acre Northgate Commons parcel off New London Road, approved a new setback requirement in manufacturing office research (MOR) districts and passed first reading of a bill to rezone 612-618 South College Avenue from business limited to general business (BG).

The rezoning of the 1.01 acre parcel off East Chestnut Hill Road near the Haslet Park townhouses was sought by landowner Dr. William D. Johnson for construction of a medical center.

Richard Bauer, an attorney representing Johnson, told Council that the proposed Johnson Medical Center will contain a maximum of 5,000 square feet of space. The center will be used by Johnson and his associates and several additional physicians.

Haslet Park residents attending the meeting said they are not opposed to the proposed medical center, but are concerned about the long-term effects of rezoning the land from residential to business.

Norman Streets, representing the Haslet Park Homeowners Association, said residents are "puzzled" by the need to rezone because the RR classification allows for physicians' offices.

"By opening this up to BL, it will be easier for a successor to seek a variance," Streets said. "We don't want to see something unpleasant there."

Residents also expressed concern that the remaining 3.3 acres of Johnson's tract, which is still zoned RR, could some day gain a business classification as a result of Monday's action. Bauer said townhouses and possibly a day care center are envisioned for that portion of the land.

Newark Planning Director Roy Lopata said that a limited number of physicians are allowed in a building under the RR zoning classification. Johnson hopes to house more than the allowable number in his center and so sought BL zoning.

The rezoning passed by a 4-3 vote.

Council voted unanimously to approve the resubdivision of Northgate Commons, a 3.6 acre parcel of land located west of New London Road between Grays Avenue and Country Club Drive.

Lemley Builders Inc. have proposed constructing 16 semi-detached and one detached single family homes on the site, which is adjacent to the Newark Country Club golf course.

Dennis Lemley, owner of Lemley Builders, said the development will be "upscale" and designed to attract buyers whose children have left home and who no longer need so much space. The two-bedroom units will be priced about $114,000.

Council also voted unanimously to alter the building setback requirements in manufacturing office research districts from 100 feet to 50 feet.

Planning Director Lopata said the change is necessary to encourage developers to place their building toward the front of the lot with parking to the rear.

First reading of an ordinance to rezone the 1.3 acre Delaware Tire Co. property at 612-618 South College Avenue from business limited to general business was also approved by council.

The rezoning is being sought so that the owners can reorient the tire facility in the event that the state widens South College Avenue. Such action by the state could possibly take a large portion of the front parking area of the site.

Public hearing and final action on this proposal will be held during the March 24 meeting of Council.

Castle

Foreign banks

Gov. Michael N. Castle announced last week that Delaware has begun a major effort to attract foreign banks to the state in response to the trend toward regionalization among overseas financial institutions.

Castle said that the Delaware Development Office, the state's economic development agency, is already working with banks in Canada, Great Britain and Japan, and preparing to contact banks in other nations.

Castle said there were two elements to the state's efforts in international banking.

"First, we already have on the books an International Bank Development Act which offers incentives few states can match," Castle said. "Agencies and subsidiaries of foreign banks can conduct a full range of activities without being subject to state taxes on international banking transactions."

Delaware is one of a small number of states which exclude currency transactions from taxation, Castle said, and does not impose document fees.

Second, we are taking the same approach to international banking that has worked so well with domestic banks — a willingness to provide excellent incentives and the ability to move quickly in response to changing conditions in the marketplace," Castle said.

Animal rules toughened

If you walk your dog in Newark without a leash, be prepared to pay a fine.

Newark City Council Monday passed a new animal control ordinance which requires pets to be leashed, prohibits them from being public nuisances and requires owners to clean up after pets which defecate on other people's property.

The ordinance, which passed unanimously, also provides for a 10-day quarantine of animals which bite people and for which there is no proof of rabies inoculation.

The ordinance provides a fine schedule and a mail-in system of fine payment.

Fines range from $10 to $100 for first offenders who have not secured a dog license and from $25 to $200 for the following violations:

• Failing to keep an animal leashed, allowing it to become a public nuisance, allowing it to defecate on someone else's property without cleaning up or allowing it to scatter garbage.

• Failing to properly dispose of a dead animal. It should be buried or taken to a veterinarian or the SPCA.

• Failing to quiet a noisy animal.

Owners can be fined $50 to $200 for the keeping of a vicious animal or cruelty to an animal.

In other action during Monday's meeting, Council:

• Approved first reading of a bill requesting the state to prohibit truck traffic on Old Cooches Bridge Road from Welsh Tract Road north. Trucks have been stacking up in front of residences while waiting to purchase diesel fuel at a Texaco station on South College Avenue.

• Increased the compensation of Alderman Vance Funk from $16,640 to $17,355 per year. Council had earlier defeated a plan offered by Funk to allow an assistant alderman to sit for additional sessions.

'Ashes, Ashes'

Six young people who were trampled to death while waiting to hear their favorite rock group is the focus of "Ashes, Ashes, All Fall Down," a play to be presented by Newark High School at 8 p.m. Friday, March 7 and Saturday, March 8 in the Newark High School Auditorium.

In "Ashes, Ashes," the audience gets a glimpse of the six individuals in a humorous yet touching way as a concerned reporter tries to piece together the events leading to the asphyxiation of a group of kids, each lacking something in his own life that he hoped to find in the rock group Black Orchid.

The play was written by Joseph Robinette with music and lyrics by Joseph Robinette and James R. Shaw.

Cast members include Tyson Boles, Barbara Boyle, Drew Cottle, Mark Evenson, Melanie Hall, Cliff Nickerson, David Nickerson, Allison Raffel, Stacie Ruiz, Felicia Scarangello, Mike Scott, and Kyra Teis.

Donald Morgan directed the play with the help of student director Marji Eldred. Black Orchid members, under the direction of Lloyd Ross, are Tina Stixrud as lead vocalist, Evan Barrett on lead guitar, Jeff Gershman on bass guitar, Loren Barton on drums, and Katy High on keyboard.

Mark Friedley is responsible for the technical aspects of the production.

Tickets are $2 for students and senior citizens, $3 for adults.

Concert

Jackie Pack

Jackie Pack, acclaimed children's performer and folksinger, will give a children's concert at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 8, in the Newark New Century Club, at the corner of East Delaware Avenue and Haines Street in Newark.

The concert is a benefit for the Newark Center for Creative Learning.

Pack, who is from the Philadelphia area, gained public recognition as a children's performer when she co-produced and starred in the KWTY-TV children's series, "Horatio & Me." In 1984 she recorded the early childhood album, "Hambones and Other Recipes."

Pack is a music therapist at Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children on a grant from the Philadelphia Folksong Society with matching funds from the hospital.

She is currently in her sixth season of performing for the Young Audiences Program of Eastern Pennsylvania and in her third season with the Young Audiences Program of New Jersey.

Admission is $2 for children and $4 for adults. A patron ticket for $25.00 includes two reserved seats, name on the program, and a reception with Jackie Pack after the concert. For ticket information call 368-7772 or 368-4813.

Independence

Julian elected

Francis Julian was elected president of the Independence School board of trustees during its February meeting.

Julian replaces David Babson, who had been president for the last four years.

In accepting the position, Julian acknowledged the many accomplishments of the Independence School and the effective leadership provided by Babson and all members of the board.

Julian remarked on the many challenges facing independent education, and the Independence School in particular. The Long-Range Plan recently adopted by the Independence School is an important guideline for the school and its plans for future growth. The need for additional land, a new pre-school/kindergarten and a full size gymnasium and stage are the most immediate priorities for the school's growth, he said.

"The school's tuition remains very competitive, and our enrollment, currently about 400, speaks well for the future," Julian added.

Prior to being named president of the board, Julian served as chairperson of the Building and Grounds Committee and, most recently, as secretary of the board. James Yetman is the new secretary.

Julian is associated with Eastern States Construction. The Julians have three children — Lisa, Christine, and Amy — attending the Independence School.

Former president Babson was honored with a special presentation during the school's annual board/faculty dinner. He was cited for his work as president of the board, as a founding parent and a president of the Independence School Parents' Association.

The school also announced that it has established its first named scholarship in honor of Mr. and Mrs. David Babson.

Craftsmen interested in reserving tables for the Independence School May Fair to be held Saturday, May 3 should call now.

For information, contact Martha Staten at 239-6438.

The May Fair will be held 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, May 3 at the school on Paper Mill Road near Newark. The rain date is Sunday, May 4.

AFS

Host families needed

Newark area families are invited to have an international experience without leaving their homes.

The American Field Service student exchange program is seeking host families in the area for the 1986-87 school year.

Families may host exchange students from one of 65 different countries.

Although host families need not be rich to participate, consideration should be given to the cost of bed and board for a high school student. The IRS does permit AFS host families to deduct $50 a month during the time the student lives with them.

Host families vary in size, age and income, and include two parents with children, single parent families, young parents, single people and older couples. AFS students also come from diverse backgrounds.

The organization provides the international transportation costs to bring foreign students to the United States, covers the students' medical costs and provides them monthly allowances.

Newark area families interested in participating as AFS hosts should contact Beverly Stoudt at 368-9354, Leann Still at 453-0362 or Leanna Williston at 737-1416.

Newark Lions

Teen-of-the-year

The Newark Lions Club is accepting nominations for its annual Newark Teenager-of-the-Year award.

Boys and girls between the ages of 13 and 19 who live in the greater Newark area (the 07111, 07113 and 07102 Zip Code areas) are eligible.

The Newark Lions will present one boy and one girl with cash awards of $150 each. Selections will be based on behavior patterns, school records and community activities.

Any church, synagogue, civic association, service club, business, industry, school or individual may submit nominations. For more information, contact Bill Bohning at 731-5134 or Gene Pierce at 731-4892. Applications must be received by April 1.

Films

Newark Library

Three films will be shown during the Newark Free Library's Preschool Story Hour on Tuesday, March 4. They are "Elmer the Elephant," "Fox and the Jug" and "Little Hiawatha."

Preschool story hour is offered to children ages 3½ to 5 on Tuesdays. It is held at 10:30 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.

For information about the program, call the library at 731-7550. Newark Free Library is located at 750 Library Ave., across from College Square shopping center.

YWCA/ from 1a

Both sessions are open to children ages 5-14.

The morning session begins at 7 a.m. and the afternoon session lasts from 3-5 p.m. All-day care is provided on certain holidays, and a summer program is also available.

Parents pay based on their income levels. Costs range from $15 per month to $90 per month. Currently, the program is full and even has a 10-person waiting list, Tietze said. There are no plans to increase enrollment at the Newark Y itself, but officials are considering satellite programs throughout the Newark area.

"Enrollment now is pretty high," Tietze said. "We really couldn't handle more than (the 60 we now have). We don't want to get in the position of providing mass child care because we want to keep the quality up."

He said the Y program strives for "hominess, friendliness and a personal touch."

"We know everybody by name," he added. "The kids know us and the parents know us. That makes everyone feel comfortable."

Yet, while the Newark Y doesn't plan to increase enrollment at its current site, Tietze said officials are aware of a growing need for latch key facilities.

"The need is there," he said. "There is definitely a shortage of availability of facilities."

The Newark Y hopes to develop satellite programs in the area, "mainly because there is so much demand on this program," Tietze said. However, he said there is need enough for schools or other non-profit agencies to set up latch key programs. "There is room enough for a lot of different ways of handling it," he said, "and a lot of room for creativity in programming."

For more information on the Newark Y's latch key program, call Tietze at 368-9173.

The Jacob Thomas Co. wall paper factory once stood on what is now the site of the University of Delaware's Hollingsworth parking lot.

We all know that time changes everything, but it is still difficult to imagine all of the large successful industries that have existed in Newark and are now gone and, for the most part, forgotten.

One such business, was the Jacob Thomas Wallpaper Co. Thomas came to this country from Germany in the late 1880's. A graduate of Heidelberg University, he came here to work in the wallpaper industry with a company in Springfield, Mass.

The Newark factory Thomas later used was built in 1890 as the Theodore C. Knauff pipe organ factory. It was this business that introduced electricity to Newark and, by agreement with the town council, provided electric service to the surrounding area.

On Jan. 2, 1891, Main Street was lighted by electric street lights for the first time with power provided by the Knauff factory.

The organ business never got off the ground and in 1892 the City of Newark purchased the power plant for $3,200.

In 1897, Thomas Davis converted the organ factory to a wallpaper plant.

Jacob Thomas became a partner in 1898 and at that time the company became known as the Jacob Thomas Wallpaper Company.

The company prospered for 20 years before being destroyed by fire on Jan. 11, 1918. It burned for several days and as late as Jan. 16, Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co. had to return to the scene to extinguish outbursts of flames.

One hundred people lost employment as a result of the disaster.

The Thomases and their three sons — Joseph, Otto and Adolph — lived in a large Victorian home located at 20 W. Main St. next to what is now Raub Hall.

Soon after the fire, they moved to

The Society will hold its next public meeting at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 12 in the Rodney Room of the University of Delaware's Perkins Student Center on Academy Street. All meetings are free and open to the public.

Wanted: A Big Brother

Nine-year-old Robbie, an active and enthusiastic Newark youth, is one of 70 local boys who are waiting for a match with a Big Brother volunteer.

Robbie has lots of energy and participates in many sports, including baseball, bowling, basketball and football. He enjoys being outdoors, playing video games and eating pizza.

The opportunity to see a University of Delaware Blue Hen football game and a Philadelphia Phillies baseball game are two of his favorite memories.

Robbie, a Brookside Elementary School third grader, likes school and enjoys calculating math on his classroom's computer. He hopes to be a lawyer some day.

If you are interested in becoming a Big Brother to Robbie, or to any of the other youths awaiting matches, call Newark Big Brothers/Big Sisters office at 368-0202.

Newark Library reference desk fields variety of questions

Joseph Tierney must have the most succinct job description on record. "I answer questions," he says matter of factly.

That Tierney does, as the reference librarian at Newark Free Library, a post he has held for 10 years.

Tierney and other library staff members he presses into service man the battlements of the reference desk, that bastion of knowledge frequently besieged by puzzled Newarkers firing barages of questions.

Usually, Tierney says, the job isn't terribly exciting. He even admits to falling into a rut answering the same questions over and over again for children writing school reports and people in search of an agency to which to address consumer complaints.

But every once in a while Tierney faces a question so peculiar or so challenging that it gets the adrenalin flowing again.

"It is easy to recall what was probably the strangest one I've had," Tierney says, laughing at the thought of it.

"A man called and he was looking for the etiquette on the proper way to hand toilet paper. I looked and looked but I couldn't find the answer. I told him the paper should probably roll over the top but he didn't agree."

"You get things like that every now and again."

Mostly such questions pop up when local business are running trivia contests. "Then," Tierney says, "we get a lot of people calling. They hear a question on the radio and want the answer right then. When you tell them you'll look it up and call them back, they're no longer interested."

Tierney, by the way, searched the library's resources to find the name of Howdy Doodly's sister.

The question is included in the game "Trivial Pursuit" and was popularized locally by a utility company's television commercial. He found that Howdy Doodly didn't have a sister (the game claims he did, and that her name is Heidi) but that he did have a cousin.

The questions which Tierney enjoys most are those which require some scouting and thinking.

He recalled a question about a firm's change in corporate headquarters, a change which occurred several years ago. After checking a business yearbook and finding it didn't contain the information, he was stumped — briefly.

But Tierney then turned to the New York Times Index. He scoured it and found the answer.

"It's kind of interesting and challenging when you get something like that where you have to dig to find the answer, where there isn't a clear cut path to take," he says.

"It's nice to say you found the answer — and that you didn't strike out."

More often, however, the

Museum to host 'South of Winter'

"South of Winter: Scenes from the Aransas Wildlife Refuge," a photographic exhibit, will be on display at the Delaware Museum of Natural History from March 8 through April 6.

The Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Gulf Coast of Texas, with its 70,000 acres of beaches, bays, estuaries, savannahs, and marshes, is an area of ecological richness. It is the home to vast numbers of mammals and birds, including one of America's most endangered species, the whooping crane.

Through the work of wildlife photographers Steven Wilson and Karen Hayden the quiet beauty, natural drama, and startling humor of this area is revealed. From delicate butterflies to lumbering alligators to the aerial altercation of two egrets, Wilson and Hayden have captured the lives of the inhabitants of Aransas.

Above all, these large color photographs convey the constant activity of the occupants of Aransas — prairie chickens mating, spiders hunting, hawks in full dive towards their prey. These are contrasted with peaceful pictures of the forest canopy at dusk, birds framed by the setting sun, and a crescent moon over a settling flock.

In the late 19th century, there were major threats to wildlife in this region due to the expansion of farming, land drainage, egg collecting, and hunting. In the 1930's, thanks to the efforts of J. N. Darling and others, there was a growing conservation movement in this country, and in 1937, the government purchased 47,000 acres from a San Antonio banking family that became the basis of the Aransas refuge.

Aransas is now a thriving refuge. Since 1952, when the whooping crane population was at its all-time low of 21, the species has rebounded to 80 at last count. This success story is mirrored by the overall abundance of wildlife. This encouraging state of affairs has continued in the presence of active oil-drilling — a good example of the way in which business and conservation interests can cooperate.

The exhibit was originally organized by the American Museum of Natural History in New York, where it was shown in 1983, and is being circulated nationally by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service with support from Conoco, Inc. Its display at the Delaware Museum of Natural History is also due to the support of Conoco.

On display with the "South of Winter" photographs will be rarely exhibited mammal and bird specimens native to Aransas from the Delaware Museum of Natural History's large collections.

The Delaware Museum of Natural History is located on Del. 52, the Kennett Pike, five miles northwest of Wilmington. The museum is open Monday through Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Sunday from 12:00 to 5 p.m.

Admission is $2.50 for adults, and $1.75 for senior citizens, students, and children six and over. Children under 6 are admitted free of charge. For more information, call 658-9111.

Show proof that men, boys enjoy similar toys

"The difference between men and boys is the price of their toys." Where does The NewArk Post come upon such wisdom? That's easy, we sent a reporter and photographer team to cover the giant Greenberg Model Train Show at Convention Hall in Philadelphia this month. Both floors of the huge building were given over to trains of various sizes, ages and cost.

When some of us were children, a Lionel train with a GG-1 engine, three lighted passenger cars, track on which to run the set and a transformer for power retailed for $67.50. At the Greenberg Train Show the engine alone now is "on special sale" for "only" $375.00! That's some difference.

Not all of the toy trains were so outrageously priced. There were many bargains to be had as the Post team roamed the building during the long weekend.

Maybe railroading has lost some of its interest for younger Americans, but for many of them at the show, the interest was very high. These were not just kids along for the ride with dad. Some of them spoke with great interest and authority about motive power, rectifiers, girder track, various scales and much more.

The largest operating scale at the show was  $\frac{3}{4}$ " (that means that  $\frac{3}{4}$ " of a model equals a foot of the real thing) and was used for the building of the Fallon Street Elevated Passenger System. The system is the brainchild and handiwork of Jimmy Sparkman of Philadelphia. The system is so large, according to Sparkman, "...that I can only run it here at Convention Hall. If it weren't for the Greenberg show, I would never get to show it off." There is no price tag on these one of a kind, built from scratch cars. A photo of the builder with one of his cars appears with this story.

The smallest operating gauge at the show was "Z" gauge. It was so tiny that a layout may be built in an attache case. Such a layout was on exhibit at the show — honest!

Model railroaders are not isolationist. Clubs abound in the area and your NewArk Post team was besieged with invitations to come to visit or join. Many Newark area residents were there to see, to talk and to buy. Buying is the largest scale activity (no pun intended) going on at the big show.

It is really difficult to estimate the tens of thousands of dollars which changed hands, all without sales taxes and receipts, during the Greenberg Show. Some of the older, rarer sets go in excess of a thousand dollars. At the other end of the scale, there were cars and engines well under twenty dollars.

Who is the man behind all the excitement? He is Dr. Bruce C. Greenberg, a former college professor who gave up academia for the fun of model railroading. The rewards have obviously been worth the career change. His whole being is devoted to helping Americans enjoy model railroading. He does a super job judging by the numbers of men, women and children packed into Convention Hall.

If you missed this show, fear not, the Greenbergs will be back; both members of your reporting team hope they will get assigned again next year. After all, reporters were (are) kids too.

reference librarians face mundane questions. Addresses, financial information, background on companies, even help with homework.

It is generally easy to find the correct answers, Tierney says. "Sometimes you can go to one book. After 10 years, I have a pretty good reaction, a pretty good idea of where to start looking for something."

Sometimes — as when people call or stop by to get help with a particular calculus problem — Tierney can't help.

"If they come up with an area I know nothing about, I'll be honest and tell them I don't know. You can't fake it," he says.

Rather, he will lead them to a general reference book.

Bassoonist Timothy McGovern, who recently won a national competition for woodwinds and voice, will appear in recital at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 2 in the Louds Recital Hall of the Amy E. du Pont Music Building at Amstel Avenue and Orchard Road.

McGovern will be accompanied by Ruth Palmer, piano. Sponsored by the University of Delaware's Department of Music, the event is free and open to the public.

For the afternoon program, the following selections will be performed: "Concert for Bassoon in B-flat Major, K.V. 191," by W.A. Mozart; "Sonatine for Bassoon and Piano" by Alexandre Tanman; "Romances, Op. 94," by Robert Schumann; and "Sonata for Bassoon and Piano" by Camille Saint-Saëns.

McGovern, who is on the university's music faculty as instructor of bassoon and member of the Del 'Arte woodwind quintet, won the 13th Annual Young Artists Competition sponsored by Performers of Connecticut in December 1985. From 116 entrants competing in woodwinds and voice, McGovern was awarded first prize — the Heida Hermanns Award — and a number of concert engagements.

McGovern has performed professionally with the Elgin Symphony, the Sheffield Winds, the Illinois Philharmonic Orchestra, and the Illinois Chamber Symphony. He has also been a member of the Duluth Symphony, the Chicago Civic Orchestra, the Plymouth Symphony, and the St. Cloud Civic Orchestra.

THE ARTS

by Phil Toman

It was just over 20 years ago that one of my favorite people walked into my office on the second floor and said, "Phil, I've got a great idea."

The sun was well over the yard arm and I was ready for a bit of pleasantness. I put my pen in its holder, leaned back in my chair, motioned my friend to seat himself, smiled and said, "Shoot." He did.

"Let's start a symphony orchestra here in Newark."

There was a long pause. Musically speaking, one might even call it a grand pause.

"Start a what?"

"A symphony orchestra."

"Here?"

"Sure, Newark is ripe for it."

Another grand pause.

I didn't need much persuading.

He was right. The man with the idea? Harley S. Hastings, founder and music director emeritus of the Newark Symphony Orchestra.

The formulation was to be scored both presto and lento. Those who knew and trusted Harley were on the bandwagon shortly. Others had to be convinced.

Where did Harley's idea come from? It came from the mind of a dedicated musician who has a deep sense of community. While he was band director at Newark High School he realized that the Newark Special School District had one of the best band and choral programs in the state, but no string program. He began one in the basement of Central Junior High School.

Soon some of the students asked if their siblings who also played could join after school to practice and then parents wanted to join. The photo which appears with my column today is of the very first public performance. It was a seed. It has borne beautiful fruit.

The first performance was in the orchestra pit of the Newark High School Auditorium. It was just a small part of the Christmas arrangement of Georg Friedrich Handel's Pastoral Symphony from his oratorio "The Messiah." Harley had arranged the music for the small group. I was fortunate enough to have been in the audience that Sunday and to take the picture which has now become part of our community's music history.

The applause was nice, nothing like the standing ovations which were to be poured out on Harley S. Hastings and the Newark Symphony in the years ahead. Something else, more important than applause, did happen. People came and asked about joining for the sheer joy of making music.

The Newark Symphony has had three incarnations. The first was as the Newark Schools-Community Orchestra; the second, The Newark Schools-Community Symphony Orchestra; the third, the Newark Symphony Orchestra.

This newspaper reported on the progress of the orchestra from the very early days. In those days my column was called "Mostly Music." While I wrote a great deal about the orchestra and its conductor I never reviewed performances because I felt too close to everyone, having gone through the labor pains with them. Looking back on those clips has brought back many memories.

Things did not always go smoothly. There were problems. They were overcome.

Whatever term you like to use, prime mover, spirit, heart, soul, etc., when it comes to the Newark Symphony there is only one person to whom it can apply. Harley S. Hastings. Harley is a man small of stature, but large in feeling, love and drive for community service. He could always find humor in set backs, excite people to join in the struggle with him and be very quick to share honors but very slow to share any blame.

It all began like this. This photo shows the first public performance of what was to become the Newark Symphony Orchestra. Harley S. Hastings is conducting the chamber group in a performance of Handel's "Pastoral Symphony," which he arranged for them. The scene is the orchestra pit of Newark High School during a performance of the school's annual Christmas program.

Harley was the winner of the Wallace M. Johnson Community Service Award of the New Castle County Chamber of Commerce, the highest award our county can give for selfless service to others. Another standing ovation that night, too.

Time came to retire from his music supervisor's position in the public schools. No slowing down with the orchestra. More years of hard work were to follow. Then, four seasons ago came the word that Harley would pass the baton. Could the orchestra survive? This would be the ultimate test of the kind of organization he had built.

Roman Pawlowski picked up that baton which had been so carefully used for 17 years. The orchestra has not only survived, it is growing and developing. The life which Harley S. Hastings had so carefully breathed into his idea, nurtured through good and bad times was in good hands. We are all the richer for it.

The 20th Anniversary Concert of the Newark Symphony Orchestra will be held Sunday, March 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Louis Recital Hall of the Army E. duPont Music Building. Both Harley and Roman will conduct a most ambitious program of Mozart, Grieg and Tchaikovsky. This is your chance to see music history in our community.

A Triple Tip of The Toman Topper, Harley, ya dun good!

OPINION

If you want to vote in the April 8 Newark city election, be sure you are registered.

The city registration process is completely separate from registration for state and federal elections, so even if you voted in the last presidential election you might not be eligible to vote in the municipal election.

To be sure you are registered, check in at the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Rd.

If you aren't it is not that difficult to become registered. Just stop by the cashier's desk on the first floor of the Municipal Building weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

And if you can't make it during the week, the city has one more weekend registration session scheduled. It will be held from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, March 15 in the Municipal Building.

State Sen. James Neal and Newark city officials are to be complimented on their response to the outcry of residents on Old Cooches Bridge Road who are being disturbed by truck traffic.

Trucks are using the northern-most reach of the road to fill up on inexpensive diesel fuel at the Texaco station on South College Avenue. And so many are drawn to the pumps that they stack up in front of homes on Old Cooches Bridge Road, often blocking driveways.

"It's a terrible situation," said Newark City Councilman Louise Brothers, who represents the area. "People can't get in their driveways and there are fumes." Amen. It's one thing to do a good business, but it's another to take on more business than your facilities can logically handle and so become a nuisance to your neighbors.

Neal plans to ask the state to make that portion of the road off-limits to large trucks, and City Council voted unanimously to support Neal's efforts during its meeting Monday.

Let's hope something can be done... and soon!

Statutes of liberty

Editor:

The Delaware Division of the American Association of University Women is celebrating Women's History Week/AAUW Week (March 2-8) by participating in a campaign to "restore the statutes of liberty" through passage of the Civil Rights Restoration Act (HR 700) by the 99th Congress. This Act will reaffirm and restore the broad coverage of federal civil rights laws for the elderly, the handicapped, minorities and women which were in effect from 1964 to 1984.

In a ruling by the Supreme Court (Grove City College v. Bell, 1984) the civil rights laws that had been in effect for 20 years were narrowly limited in interpretation. The rules were no longer applicable to an entire institution but only to the individual department receiving federal dollars. Strides that had been made by women, minorities, the handicapped and the elderly are no longer assured.

Fortunately, the Supreme Court's opinion can be easily corrected. Many members of Congress-Republicans, Democrats, men and women-have joined forces to clarify and restore the original intentions regarding all four statutes: that any receipt of federal financial assistance will trigger institution-wide coverage. Discrimination should not be underwritten by the taxpayer.

Please join AAUW members in a "yes" for liberty for all-including the elderly, the handicapped, minorities and women. Tell our Congressmen Joseph Biden, William Roth and Tom Carper that you believe in the Statue of Liberty and what she stands for and that you want the "statutes of liberty" restored by passage of the Civil Rights Restoration Act without crippling amendments.

Swimmers from the Newark YMCA cheer on a teammate during Sunday's championship meet at Carpenter Fieldhouse on the University of Delaware campus.

'Y' swim championships

Newark youths win titles, set six records

by Bruce Johnson

The starter silenced the crowd and lifted his gun into the air. It's muffled pop echoed off the walls, only to be drowned out by the splashing sounds of eight bodies slashing through the water. The capacity crowd of family and friends cheered their favorite swimmers with various cries of encouragement.

Moments later a hand ascended from the water to touch the wall and halt the electronic ticking of the scoreboard timer. A small face appeared from the pool and whisked the water from her head. She looked from the scoreboard to the other swimmers, then turned to the crowd to search for her family. After a proud wave to the celebrating kinfolk, she got out of the pool to dry off and let another young swimmer have her moment in the limelight.

This was an oft-repeated scene during the annual YMCA-YMCA girls swimming championships held Sunday in the University of Delaware's Carpenter Fieldhouse. Newarkers were represented on three local teams—the Cecil County YMCA, Newark YMCA and the Western Branch—with girls from these pools gaining 14 first place finishes and setting six meet records.

Overall, 280 girls ranging from six to 18 competed in — 114 races. There were 40 champions and 14 meet records.

"We're really pleased to see 14 records broken today," said meet director Jeff Miller of Newark. "We're pleased to see swimming coming along and the kids improving. It's good competition and it's good healthy exercise, and you can see how strong these kids are."

For the swimmers, the thrill of the competition and the opportunity to be with friends far outweighed the fitness aspects of the sport.

"It's a lot of fun," said 11-year-old Shelby Sokol from the Newark YMCA team. "All your friends are with you and it's just a lot of fun."

"It's a chance to see what strokes you can do well, and to see who you can beat and who you can't," said 10-year-old Veronica Solony. "Those you can't beat this year you try to beat at next year's championship."

As well, the Olympic-type facility at Carpenter added to the excitement and the overall experience for the kids. "The atmosphere is really great," said Cathy Currie, who coaches at Newark YMCA. "It makes them swim faster. It's like a big race and it makes it seem like they're in a big show. It makes them want to do great."

"It's great to swim in a facility like this, with all the gadgetry," said Miller. "Especially for the little ones, like the eight year olds, this becomes an intense-type of thing for them."

Miller added that the experience goes beyond enjoyment and becomes one in which the girls must cope with the joys and frustrations of competition. "They learn a great deal about having to deal with situations that they will face throughout their life," said Miller. "They mature a lot from this experience."

Cecil County YMCA swimmer Wendy Henderson was the big winner on the day, gaining four victories and setting four meet records. Henderson won the 14 and under 200-yard individual medley (2:21.98), the 14 and under 100-yard butterfly (1:04.68), the 14 and under 100-yard freestyle (56.62) and anchored the 200-yard freestyle relay team (1:47.79) of Kim Armstrong, Erin Paulitas and Michelle Agnew.

Cecil County's Melissa Dalrymple was a triple winner, gaining victories in the 12 and under 200-yard individual medley (2:28.15) and the 12 and under 100-yard freestyle (1:00.87). She also teamed with Annie Armstrong, Susan Craig and Terry Miller to win the 12 and under 200-yard freestyle (1:54.38).

Annie Paulitas, also a member of the Cecil County YMCA team, recorded two victories, including a meet record in the 10 and under 100-yard freestyle (1:05.83) and a victory in the 10 and under 50-yard butterfly (33.29).

Cyndi Lutes from the Western Branch YMCA also recorded a new meet record, winning the open (15 and older) 100-yard butterfly (1:04.68).

Other winners were Annie Marshall, who captured the 14 and under 50-yard freestyle (26.79) and teamed with Michelle Agnew, Heather Bates and Kim Armstrong in the 14 and under medley relay (2:06.14). Agnew was also victorious in the 14 and under 100-yard breaststroke (1:13.87) and Bates captured the 14 and under 100-yard backstroke (1:08.95).

Mary Ann Link of the Newark YMCA won the open 50-yard freestyle (26.55).

Local girls basketball teams prepare for states

by Bruce Johnson

First round competition in the 1986 girl's state basketball tournament will begin Wednesday, March 5, with three area teams competing.

Newark High School will face Claymont at Christiana High School at 6 p.m., Glasgow will travel to Cape Henlopen High School to face Laurel at 7:30 p.m., and St. Mark's with one game remaining, will most likely earn a Catholic Conference invitation and face Wilmington at Brandywine High School at 6 p.m.

Christiana elected not to participate in this year's open tournament.

On Friday, St. Mark's met defending state champion St. Elizabeth, bowing 52-45 in the Catholic Conference contest.

The Spartans led throughout much of the first half on the strength of good defense and the fine play of point guard Liz Burns (seven points). However, the Vikings were able to score the last three points in the half with less than 27 seconds left to tie the game.

In the second half, the Spartans started slow and were outgunned 19-9 in the third quarter.

However, St. Mark's battled back and pulled within three points at 47-43 just over four minutes remaining in the game before the Vikings pulled away, outmussling the smaller Spartans.

"We have a tendency to come out slow in the third period," said Spartan head coach Sue Ridge. "It's something that's been bothering us all year. Tonight we came out real lethargic and the next thing you know, we're down by ten."

The Spartans had their chances to overtake the Vikings but missed several key free throws late in the game. "We fought back but missed seven free throws in the fourth quarter, and five of them were in the one-and-one situation so we never got the second one and they knocked most of their's down."

In an earlier meeting, the Vikings had upended the Spartans by a margin of 22 points.

Considering a 53-47 victory over powerhouse Archmere on Feb. 9 and the strong performance against St. Elizabeth on Friday, the Spartans appear to be playing much better and with more confidence going into the state tournament.

"A win tonight would have helped, but the way they played they know they can play with the best," said Ridge. "We can do some things better but, overall, it was a good effort. I think we're ready for the tournament and it seems to be coming together at the right point."

Lois Bukowski led the Spartans with 16 points against St. Elizabeth.

Earlier in the week, the Spartans disposed of Padua 40-25. Bukowski paced the Spartans once again with 14 points and 17 rebounds. Liz Burns added nine points and seven assists.

The Spartans are 4-5 in league plete their regular season schedule.

In other girls basketball action, Newark ended its regular season with a win over Brandywine 36-24 to complete the campaign at 10-4 in Blue Hen Conference Flight A and 15-5 overall.

Tawana Williams teamed with Suzanne Sysco to score 22 points in leading the 'Jackets over the Bulldogs.

Earlier in the week, the 'Jackets suffered an embarrassing loss to undefeated William Penn, 71-36. The 'Jackets jumped out to an early 8-4 lead with less than two minutes to play in the first quarter before the Colonials scored four consecutive baskets to take the lead for good. The Colonial surge deflated Newark, which was outscored 45-16 in the second and third quarters.

In fairness to the 'Jackets, some of the players were not 100 percent and Newark head coach John Holland emphasized the first quarter as a testament to the potential of his team.

"I think we can play with them. I'd like to see them again because I think it would be a different story," said Holland after the game. "I think the kids know they can play with them. The score doesn't indicate how the game went. We made mistakes but they were our mistakes, they didn't force them on us."

Beth Brockell led all 'Jacket scorers with 12 points.

In other action, Glasgow defeated Christiana 71-20 to complete its season with a 5-8 record in Flight A and 7-11 overall. Kelly play and 11-8 overall and will face Wilmington on Thursday to com-

Kane scored 28 points for the Dragons.

Christiana finished its season at 1-19.

★ SPECIAL NOTICE ★

ARE YOU A NEW HOME BUILDER?
ARE YOU AN UNHAPPY HEAT PUMP OWNER?
DO YOU LIVE OUTSIDE THE CITY'S GAS MAINS?

SCHAGRINGAS GIVES YOU 6 REASONS TO:

"DUMP THE PUMP!"

What you don't know about electric heat pumps can hurt you! Families who bought and paid for an electric heat pump in the 70's—are still paying, in high heating & cooling bills, expensive maintenance & lowered standards of comfort. Here are the "cold" facts:

FACT #1:

A "BACKWARD" HEATING SYSTEM: Electric heat pumps work the other way around. They deliver the most heat when the outside air is relatively warm—say between 45-50°F. Their ability to deliver heat actually goes down the colder it gets.

FACT #3:

A PROPANE GAS FURNACE COSTS LESS: Initially, the purchase price of an efficient gas furnace is hundreds of dollars lower than a heat pump. Plus a high efficiency gas furnace doesn't need a backup system.

FACT #5:

ELECTRIC HEAT PUMPS: THE TECHNOLOGY OF WASTE: Heat output is reduced the colder it gets outside; heating bills then are higher because the unit has to work harder & harder; electric heating strips are often needed to maintain warmth.

FACT #2:

THE INDOOR "WIND CHILL": The heat pump has to move a great deal of air—creating drafts—because this air is at a low temperature (say 95° as opposed to 130° for a gas system) electric heat pump owners complain of chills.

FACT #4:

PROPANE GAS HEAT REQUIRES LESS MAINTENANCE: A propane gas furnace is a simple technology that has had the bugs worked out of it for years. Its life expectancy is 20+ years! Compared to 7-10 yrs. of the electric heat pump.

FACT #6:

YOU SAVE WITH PROPANE: Propane gas is 50% cheaper than electricity per BTU. The more electric appliances that are replaced with propane; the MORE you save. With an L.P. Gas Hot Water Heater, an average family of 4 can save up to $350/year over electric!

WRESTLE/from 1b

has the opportunity to wrestle with Kurt," said Milstead. "(Fierro) does it every day. He tries to attack Kurt as others should and he learns from him."

Another wrestler who learned from Howell was William Penn's Murphy. It took Howell only 3:42 to record his 28th victory of the season and his 104th in his four-year career at Newark. Howell completely dominated the match, and Murphy scored only when Howell would let him up for a one point escape to take the Colonial down again. It was a typical exhibition of Howell's capability and his machine-like precision and flawless style.

"That machine is technically perfect," said Milstead. "Kurt could win the state championship at any weight. He's got everything. Kurt Howell as a freshman was terrific and Kurt Howell as a senior is awesome."

The end of a rewarding night for Newark High was capped off by heavyweight Tom Bockius, avenging his only loss of the season by pinning William Penn's Matt Snook at the 2:42 mark of the first period.

Due to length of the tournament, Bockius had to wait more than three hours for his match with Snook but said that the wait did not bother him. "Usually it does, but tonight I just relaxed and talked to people and enjoyed it a whole lot more instead of getting all worked up," said Bockius, who is bound for a football career at the University of Delaware.

"He's a good kid, but I felt like I made a lot of mistakes and put too much pressure on myself last time. Tonight I felt I could do a lot better," he added.

Bockius took control at the outset of the match and appeared to wrestle more intelligently than during his last meeting with Snook. "One of the big problems we saw the first time was that he wasn't very smart in that he kept doing the same things and didn't change his patterns," which William Penn had scouted," said Milstead. "We had to get him to be more conservative and use his weight properly. Tonight, he used his weight and that helped a lot."

Newark's Brad Howell (132) placed second in the tournament and senior Brett Tomashek (126) placed fourth.

Another team that will fare well in the state tournament is Glasgow. The Dragons had eight wrestlers qualify for the state tournament, four of whom competed in the Blue Hen Conference finals.

Paul Hoff (132) defeated Newark's Brad Howell 6-5, while Jimmy Marvel (145), Russell Grant (155) and Keith Truitt (185) placed second. Chip Hill (112) claimed third place.

In the match with Howell, Hoff was able to gain an escape with - and the point which spelled victory - eight seconds remaining in the match after Howell had tied the score with a reversal with 28 seconds left. "Before the match I was just thinking about what I should do but once I got there, my mind went blank," said Hoff. "I was just trying to keep away from his underhook. He's a wall."

Christiana scored three third place finishes with Ewan Coughlin (98) gaining a decision, Andy Moore (138) winning in overtime and Arnie Dunn (185) winning decision.

In the Independent Conference tournament, St. Mark's qualified 11 wrestlers for the state tournament. Four spartan wrestlers gained first place medals, those being Paul Maguire (132), John McColgan (145), Eddie Mendez (155) and Brandon Little (167).

Special registration for youth baseball and softball leagues sponsored by the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation will be held 5:30-7 p.m. Tuesday, March 4 in the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Rd.

The city sponsors four programs: t-ball, for youths ages 6 and 7; coit league, for youths 8 and 9; pony league, for youths 10-12; and ponytail league, a softball program for girls ages 9-12.

After March 4, youths may continue to register weekdays in the Municipal Building. However, returning players who register after March 24 will not be guaranteed placement on their team of the previous year.

The fee, which includes shirt and insurance, is $14 for city residents and $16 for non-residents. Practices will begin in April and league play will begin in early May.

Brandywine Motorsport

The Brandywine Motorsport Club will hold its Rosebush XX-VIII Road Rallye on Saturday, March 1.

Alderman

Miami race

George Alderman Racing has entered two Nissan 280-ZXs in the fourth annual Lowenbrau Grand Prix of Miami street race to be held Saturday, March 1.

George Alderman will drive his Nissan Turbo in the 45-minute sprint race. Louis Baldwin will drive the team's non-turbocharged Nissan, a car he co-drove to a third-place class finish at the 24 Hours of Daytona. Both cars will compete in the GTU class for cars under 3.0 liters engine displacement.

The 45-minute sprint race is a contrast to the 24-hour race in many ways. "We don't have to worry about saving the car," said Alderman. "We'll drive all out for this one."

"Qualifying will be very important," said Baldwin. "The course is narrow and is lined with concrete barriers. It won't be easy to pass so we'll want to be far up in the field at the start."

The Bridgestone Tire, CAM2-sponsored Nissans will compete on a new 1.87-mile, 12-turn street circuit. The course incorporates a stretch of Biscayne Boulevard in downtown Miami and a newly-paved section through an adjacent park.

Qualifying, practice and the race are all scheduled for Saturday, March 1. The race starts at 4:30 p.m. and will be taped by the USA cable network for future broadcast.

Spartan setback

Coach concerned after loss to archrival Salesianum

by Bruce Johnson

St. Mark's High School head basketball coach John Fiorelli sat slumped on a bench outside the Spartan locker room. He had just watched his team self-destruct, losing 60-49 to archrival Salesianum after being outscored 25-14 in the final quarter.

It was the second time this season that the Sals had defeated the Spartans, and Fiorelli's facial expression showed the signs of emotional fatigue as he discussed his concern over the Spartans' play.

"A lot of our mistakes are glossed over when we jump out to early leads or play weaker teams," said Fiorelli, "but they come to surface in tight ball games. I just think we're not playing good ball in tough situations and against better teams."

The Spartans had fallen behind 24-21 at halftime only to battle back and take a four point lead at the beginning of the fourth quarter. But the final quarter found the usually disciplined Spartans out of position defensively and in foul trouble.

"We were caught out of position on defense at least four times in key situations," said Fiorelli. "We had three of our starters in foul trouble, and the way I look at it, a lot of the fouls were not good fouls like stopping breakaways. It was just a matter of being out of position and getting beat to the spot defensively."

"We've got to beat a team like Salesianum because they don't have good team quickness," Fiorelli added. "If we can't beat them (in a) man-to-man (defense), then we can't play anybody man-to-man. It was just a bad game."

Another problem for the Spartans was penetrating the Salesianum zone defenses. Often times, the Spartans would pass the ball around the perimeter looking for an opening but rarely finding one. With the game in the final stages and leading scorers Scott Dyer and John Burton in foul trouble, the Spartan offense often seemed disjointed and tentative.

When John Burton sank two free throws to give St. Mark's the lead at 46-47 with 3:20 left to play, the team would fail to score again until there were two seconds left in the game.

"Johnny had 31 points the other night (the Spartans defeated St. Elizabeth 77-59 on Friday night) and I guess everyone figured with him in, they could take a snooze and let him play," said Fiorelli. "But when he wasn't around, no one knew what to do and everyone was standing still."

SWIM/from 1b

no competition. We wanted to prove something."

Area athletes on the whole excelled in the meet. In girls competition, Newark's Henderson finished second in the 200-yard freestyle (1:58.42), in addition to her first in the 500.

Newark's diving squad also fared well, with Christa Vaughn earning a third place in addition to Davis' first. Barb Johnson's second in the 100-yard backstroke (1:03.58) rounded out the Newark individual medalists. The Jackets also got a third in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

In Julie Dively, the St. Mark's girls squad had its individual medalist. Dively earned a first in the 200-yard freestyle (1:58.25), as well as a third in the 500-yard freestyle (5:15.55).

For the boys, McKenzie of St. Mark's came in first in the 100-yard butterfly (53.55) and second in the 200-yard freestyle (1:48.25), in addition to his fine showing on the 400-yard freestyle relay team.

Other relay members did just as well. Kolman snagged a second in the 200-yard individual medley (2:03.53), as well as the victory in the 500. Kolman's brother Mike got a second in the 100-yard freestyle (48.94) and a third in the 50-yard freestyle (22.84).

For Newark, Ben Farina earned a third in the one-meter diving competition.

Team wise, the Newark girls snatched second place from A.I. duPont. In the boys race, St. Mark's easily took third.

"Basically, we were looking to push A.I. down in the competition," said Newark's McIntosh of her team's fine showing. "We knew Ursuline had things wrapped-up, so we just concentrated on second place and A.I. looking back, I think our divers were key to the outcome (24 of Newark's 85 team points were scored by divers), as was Wendy's strong showing. But just as important were the girls that had to maintain standings in their events, like Barb and Dinalynn (Bartoletti)."

Said Kapa of St. Mark's on the boys action, "I'm real happy with what these guys did tonight. I feel we fulfilled our goal, which was to place our four best swimmers in the finals, and I was pleased how they performed — especially the state record; that was the highlight."

Other team standings: Newark boys, fifth; St. Mark's girls, fifth; Christiana girls, tied for seventh; Glasgow girls, eleventh; Christiana boys, twelfth; and Glasgow boys, thirteenth.

I USED TO DRIVE FOR PLEASURE. NOW I DART FOR FUN.

I was always on the go. Then the doctor said my driving days were done. Well, I wasn't going to sit in a rocker all day.

My son suggested DART. It's safe, comfortable, and priced right for my modest income.

Now I DART to museums, malls, even to visit my family and friends without a worry in the world. And that's my idea of fun!

Infants' formula must be prepared properly

"Although breast milk is regarded as the most desirable source of nutrients for infants, mothers who choose to formula-feed should be assured that their infants will grow and develop normally," says Dr. Sue Snider, University of Delaware extension food and nutrition specialist. Commercial formulas now closely approximate the nutritional characteristics of human milk, says the specialist. In addition, special formulas are available for low birthweight infants and those with severe allergies.

Snider cautions against using cow's milk during a baby's first year. "Cow's milk doesn't supply nutrients in proper amounts for a growing baby," she says.

One advantage of bottle-feeding is that other family members can get involved during an infant's mealtime. This helps develop family unity and allows a mother some free time for rest and relaxation. Formula-feeding may also provide a less stressful transition for a woman returning to work—a caregiver can easily bottle-feed her baby.

Unlike breast milk, which is ready to feed whenever an infant is hungry, formula must be prepared beforehand. "Read directions carefully," advises Snider. "Some commercial formulas are ready to feed. They only need to be placed in sterile bottles and heated. But liquid and powdered concentrates must be mixed with water before feeding. If a formula is mixed incorrectly, it may be either too diluted or too concentrated for a baby. Either way, it's improper nutrition."

Snider cautions against contaminating the formula during preparation. "First, take care to wash your hands and all utensils, including the outside of the cans of formula, bottles and nipples."

Once opened, cans of formula should be covered and refrigerated. Formula left in a bottle after a feeding must be discarded, says

Snider, as the baby's saliva has contaminated it.

Finally, don't force a baby to finish the formula in a bottle when he or she is obviously satisfied. Snider says frequent overfeeding can lead to an overweight baby.

This is the second of a three-part series on feeding infants

Free course

Babysitting tips

Babysitting is a responsible job. Do you know how to keep children entertained, which snacks are the most nutritious, or how to handle an emergency?

A free babysitting and child care course is being offered by 4-H and the American Association of University Women.

Participants will learn about child development and creative activities and books for children, as well as how to prepare nutritious snacks and handle emergencies. They will also learn to make a babysitter's bag, containing inexpensive and fun activities for kids.

The course will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, March 8 and 15, in Room 032 of Townsend Hall on the University of Delaware campus. For more information, call the Cooperative Extension Service at 451-8965.

Series

Dietary fat

Studies indicate that the average American diet has 40 percent of its calories from fat when the recommended level is 30 percent. People can read a great deal of information, hear of various techniques to reduce the fat and cholesterol, yet there still may be questions.

Debbie Amsden, home economist for the New Castle County Cooperative Extension Service, will present a three-week series of programs to address the issues related to fat and cholesterol in the diet.

The course is designed to help those who want to reduce this health risk factor and for those who need to reduce the fat and cholesterol in their diet.

The course will include how to adapt recipes, how to find out how much fat and cholesterol is in a food, options when eating in a restaurant and demonstrations of how to reduce the fat and cholesterol during food preparation. Also discussed will be the known relationships between fat and cholesterol.

The series will be held March 5, 12 and 19 at Townsend Hall at the University of Delaware in Newark from 1:30 - 3 p.m. The program, open to all, is free. However, people interested in participating are asked to register by calling the New Castle County Cooperative Extension at 451-1239 by Feb. 26.

Kids have variety of personalities

Why is it that repeated scoldings roll off the backs of some children, while other children crumble under one harsh word? Why is one child always in the center of activities and another child always an observer? University of Delaware extension home economist Debbie Amsden says it's probably due to personality type.

Amsden notes that the book "Please Understand Me: Character and Temperament Types" by David Keirsey and Marilyn Bates takes a close look at differences in children's temperaments. It outlines four personality styles common to children.

"As children grow, they show basic differences in their approaches to life," says the home economist. "Temperament refers to the unique mental and emotional characteristics of an individual. But it's important to realize that these are just basic types, and that no child fits neatly into one category. Rather, a child will show some characteristics of several types."

Thirty-eight percent of children fall into the sensible, playful, adventurous group. They want to be involved in many activities at once and have difficulty being quiet for even short periods of time, says Amsden. In elementary school, they may have difficulty organizing and preparing for class, doing projects and completing a task. They enjoy team play and competition and accept helpful criticism.

Sensible, judicious, responsible children thrive on a predictable schedule. They account for more than one-third of the population of children. As preschoolers, they like to please adults. Because their love of routine helps them settle into school, duties like cleaning the hamster cage, collecting the milk tickets and watering the plants are considered rewards.

It is essential that parents and teachers do not place unrealistic expectations or pressures on these young children, says Amsden.

Intuitive, thinking children are information seekers. They often prefer to stand back and watch things happen rather than be directly involved. They're always asking "why." They have a logical and scientific view of the world. Such children enjoy technology, experimenting and collecting, yet are susceptible to under-achievement if their ideas are ignored. Keirsey and Bates suggest that 12 percent of the population of children falls into this category.

Intuitive, feeling children, also about 12 percent, are happy but need to be reassured that they're loved. They're often sensitive to criticism of themselves and others and prefer democratically run situations, as they have a strong desire for social justice.

They often don't do well in competitive situations because they identify with the pain of the loser, even if they are winning. They need adults who are accepting, and who genuinely respond to their feelings, ideas, and opinions.

"A knowledge of your child's personality type can help you understand your child and better guide his or her behavior," says Amsden.

For example, the kinds of strengths that parents encourage vary from child to child. Children should be encouraged toward activities that suit them, not just those that are currently popular or appeal to parents, she says.

One child may be a natural artist, while another has athletic promise. Parents should direct each child accordingly, but still encourage a variety of activities.

Children may require different types of discipline, too. "A warning may be enough to correct the behavior of one child," says Amsden. Others may not heed a warning and must suffer further consequences, such as having privileges revoked, before they change their behavior, she says.

"Understanding temperaments can help parents appreciate the differences in their children," explains Amsden. "It can also reduce the urge to stereotype or force children to behave in a predetermined fashion and allow them to grow in their own special ways."
