Ag Day: Learn about the birds and the bees (and more)

Thousands of cars drive on South College Avenue every day – right past the buildings that house University of Delaware's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

But few passersby realize what goes on in and around those buildings, said Katy O'Connell, the college's communications manager.

So, for the past 37 years, students and staff in the college have hosted Ag Day every spring to create a buzz around their highly resourceful program.

"It really started as a way for students and the college to come together to promote activities they're doing," O'Connell said. "A lot of people come by us every day and know we have the dairy farm and know we have ice cream, but they don't really know what else we're doing."

And what goes on at the college is a lot more hands-on than your typical class lecture. Dorset ewes, for

Who will be the next YouDee?

Tryouts for next year's University of Delaware mascots YouDee and Baby Blue were held Tuesday in Pearson Hall. Seven students, selected from a first round of tryouts held earlier this month, dressed in the mascot costumes and performed a dance routine and other stunts for a panel of judges that included several former YouDees. Finalists will be announced in May. Read the full story and see photos at www.newarkpostonline.com.

Got Drugs?

Get rid of them during 'Take-Back Day' Saturday

Post staff report

Several state agencies and the federal Drug Enforcement Administration will collaborate to give the public an opportunity to safely dispose of expired, unused and unwanted medications between 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. this Saturday.

Individuals can dispose of unwanted medicines at 31 collection sites statewide, including three sites in Newark, during National Prescription Drug Take-Back Day.

Newark collection sites are the University of Delaware Public Safety Building at 413 Academy St., the Christiana Care Health Services Parking Lot T, at 4755 Ogletown-Stanton Road, and Newark Senior Center, at 200 Whitechapel Drive.

The service is free and anonymous; no questions will be asked. Personal information should be removed from bottles and packages.

Prescription and over-the-counter pills, liquids, and cream medications, and even pet medication will be accepted during Saturday's Take-Back event. Injectables and aerosols are not included in the program, and will not be accepted.

The medications will be collected in specially marked barrels or boxes, and then safely destroyed.

"Unused medications pose a threat to our children, our families and our environment," said Delaware Gov. Jack Markell. "The National Prescription Drug Take-Back Day is a safe way to dramatically decrease the amount of unused drugs in our medicine cabinets, homes and environment."

According to the DEA, a total of 4,465 pounds of unwanted prescription and over-the-counter medications were collected in Delaware during the last drug take-back event in October.

"One of the most common ways for abusers to obtain prescription drugs is by raiding the medicine cabinets and even the trash cans of friends and family members," said Attorney General Beau Biden. "But that also means that one of the simplest ways to fight abuse is to responsibly get rid of drugs that are no longer wanted or needed. The Prescription Drug Take-Back provides an easy, quick opportunity to make our homes and communities safer."

Drug Take-Back Day addresses a vital public health and safety issue. Other methods of discarding unused medicines, such as flushing them down the toilet or throwing them in the trash pose potential health and safety hazards to private and public water systems.

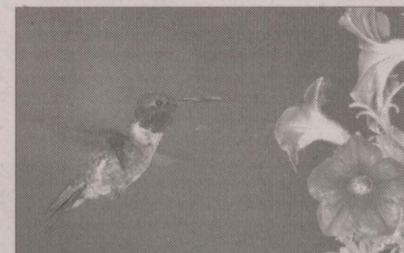

"Prescription drugs have been found in some Delaware water supplies where they may be accidentally ingested by humans," said Rita Landgraf, Secretary of Delaware Health and Social Services. "The Take-Back Day is a coordinated and carefully regulated opportunity to dispose of unused, unwanted and unneeded medications. It also is consistent with DHSS's commitment to addressing prescription drug abuse in Delaware."

Each day, approximately 2,500 teens use prescription drugs to get high for the first time, according to the Partnership for a Drug Free America. Studies show that a majority of abused prescription drugs are obtained from family and friends - often from the home medicine cabinet.

Wild birds need help

Tri-State Bird Rescue & Research is seeking volunteers to help care for injured wild birds throughout the year. A hands-on workshop for new adult bird care volunteers is planned for 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 12.

In order to participate in this workshop, prior attendance at one of Tri-State's information sessions is required. These hour-long information sessions will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, April 28 and at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 5.

The sessions and workshop will be held at Tri-State's Frink Center for Wildlife, at 110 Possum Hollow Road in Newark. Volunteers must be at least 16 years old.

To RSVP for a session, or if you would like to volunteer but cannot make one of these sessions, contact the volunteer manager at 302-737-9543, ext. 102 or email jbartley@tristatebird.org.

Tri-State Bird Rescue & Research is an internationally recognized, licensed, nonprofit wildlife rehabilitation organization that cares for nearly 3,000 injured, orphaned, and oiled native wild birds each year ranging from hummingbirds to eagles.

Driveway Failing? Let Us R.I.P. IT!

Recycle In Place

Recycle in Place: When your driveway or parking area has more than just small areas which need to be replaced. R.I.P. is an environmentally friendly method which utilizes the existing failing asphalt as a sub base for new asphalt to be installed on top of. Aside from being environmentally friendly, R.I.P. technology is also cost effective, as it minimizes the need to bring in additional base materials. Recycle in place can be done almost year round, providing weather conditions are dry. Our asphalt recyclers pulverize down deep into cracked, broken down asphalt and stone base to a depth of 6", creating an all new stone base. We then compact the newly created base and let settle. Finally, we pave with 2" of asphalt.

The annual Ag Day event, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. this Saturday, will highlight these and other things happening within the college.

The event will take place right on the college grounds, at 531 S. College Ave.

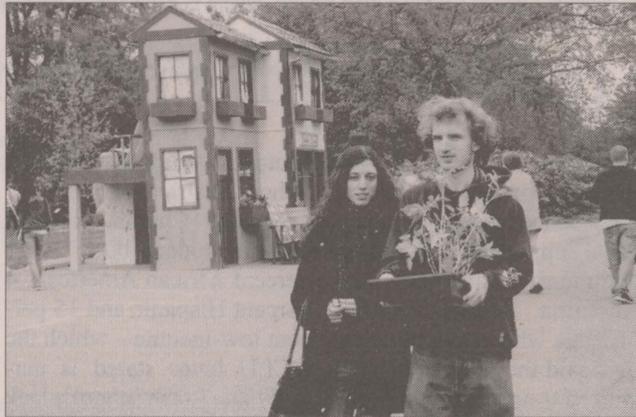

Ag Day usually attracts about 5,000 people, O'Connell said, adding that organizers have noticed a spike in attendance in the past couple of years, which she attributes partly to the UDairy Creamery's success.

One of Ag Day's most popular events every year is the UD Botanic Gardens plant sale, O'Connell said. The sale is going on this week and beginning at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. Visit <http://ag.udel.edu/udbg/events/annualsale.html> for more details.

What's new at UDairy Creamery? Supervisor Renee Poole has the scoop

By Katy Bowman
kbowman@newarkpostonline.com

"From the cow to the cone." How many cows have you milked for the job? have it" — which doesn't always work.

After getting involved in the FFA program as a student at Christiana High School, Renee Poole decided to major in Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Delaware. Now 21, Poole is a junior and has worked at the UDairy Creamery for about a year.

At the creamery, milk from cows on the college farm is used to make ice cream, which is sold at the creamery and other spots on campus.

Poole said that after graduation she'd like to "go someplace warm" and possibly study coral reefs. On the side, she said, "I'd really like to get my captain's license — I already have my boating license."

Poole, who is part of an eight-member team of students helping to coordinate this year's Ag Day activities, took some time out from her busy week to talk about all the sweet stuff going on at her job.

You've worked at UDairy Creamery for about a year. The creamery's motto is

I have actually never milked a cow.

What have you learned about the process of making ice cream?

I've learned that ice cream making is pretty hard work, and can get very messy. Temperature is key when making ice cream; if it doesn't freeze properly, then your ice cream will be no good. It is also very tiring. At the creamery, we hand-mix a lot of our pieces and swirls into the ice cream. You can definitely build some arm muscles!

Working around ice cream all day must be tempting. How do you resist?

It is very tempting, and some people may think that you just get sick of it after a while, but this is not the case. At the creamery, we are always coming up with new flavors, so it is even harder! But I usually just tell myself "No, you can't

Poole

What's your favorite product at the creamery?

My favorite ice cream has to be Mint 'n Cookies. But one of my favorite products we sell is actually honey! When it is in season, the creamery sells honey produced by the bees at the UD apiary.

What are you most excited about seeing at Ag Day this year?

Everything! This is my first year on the team, so I am excited to see all of our hard work really come together on this one day. I think I am most excited for all the demonstrations! We have demonstrations dealing with service dogs, birds and even tree climbing.

Newark Charter School expansion approved

The former Lear Building on Elkton Road will undergo renovations starting in June and will eventually house Newark Charter School's high school, which is expected to look like this and open in 2013.

Plans include $9 million building renovation for new high school

By Katy Bowman

kbowman@newarkpostonline.com

State Board of Education members unanimously approved the proposed Newark Charter School expansion plans last Thursday.

The decision gives school officials the go-ahead to begin renovating the 125,000-square-foot former Lear plant on Elkton Road, about half a mile south of the existing NCS elementary and middle schools.

The Lear building — where car seats for Chrysler Durangos were made until the plant closed in 2009 — will be renovated to fit classrooms for students in grades seven through 12. It will eventually house a full-sized gym, cafeteria, media center, three technology labs, an engineering lab, six science labs and music facilities for band, orchestra and chorus, said Gregory Meece, Newark Charter School's director.

The renovation is expected to cost about $9 million, Meece said.

"It's like buying a house: we'll be getting a mortgage payment and basically our current payment will double," he said.

The payments will come out of the school's operating expenses, money raised through fundraisers and grants from private foundations, Meece said.

"We've always been able to find ways to get what we need through donations, conservative spending and creative financing," he said.

Last Friday morning, Meece admitted he was not sure going into Thursday's meeting how board members were going to vote.

"I'm glad it was a unanimous vote," he said. "It was important that a strong message be sent that this was a good idea."

The proposal to add a high school has had many vocal opponents, including community members and Christina School District officials who at public hearings said they feared if NCS started admitting high-school students, the best students would leave the public-school system.

In a letter to the state Board of Education last month, ACLU Delaware members also asked the board to reject the expansion proposal. The letter cited the low percentage of minority and low-income students attending NCS, compared with the much-higher percentage attending Christina School District schools.

Newark Charter School's current student body is 11 percent African American, 4 percent Hispanic and 15 percent low-income — which the ACLU letter stated is partially due to the school's lack of participation in the state's free-and-reduced-cost-lunch program.

"In all likelihood, this failure discourages low-income families from entering their children in the Newark Charter School lottery," the letter states.

State Board of Education Secretary Lillian Lowery, in her own letter submitted to state BOE members earlier this month, recommended that the board approve the NCS expansion — but only if the school followed certain guidelines, including mandatory participation in the free-and-reduced-cost-lunch program and a community campaign to better advertise the school and its application process.

The school accepts applications from any student living within a designated 5-mile radius of the school. Students are selected at random by a lottery held each year.

Meece said the school had already planned to begin offering free-and-reduced-price lunches starting this fall.

Last Friday, he was already moving forward with construction plans, and met with

Out of the Attic

Exhibit teaches a lesson about Newark's one-room schools

This week's Out of the Attic item is a 2012 photograph of the Newark History Museum exhibit about area one-room schools. Education in the 18th- and early-19th centuries took place in small private schools, or with hired tutors.

Publicly funded schools in Delaware began under the leadership of Secretary of State Willard Hall that resulted in the General Assembly establishing a state education system with the "Free Schools Act" of 1829.

A school district had about 35 pupils and one building. When a district had enough students for two schools, another district was created rather than building a second school within the same district. In effect, each school was its own district and the system grew to have 423 districts.

Inhabitants of the Newark area met on Oct. 11, 1830 to organize a system of public schools. In 1831, Newark citizens built the first area public school on record, referred to as District 31. The building stood for more than 150 years on land behind the present Dunkin' Donuts on Main Street.

Soon, another one-room school, District 41, was built in Newark; the building is now part of the house at 143 West Main St. Both ceased to be used as schools in 1884 when Districts 39 and 41 were united using the new building at 83 East Main St.

Learn more at this exhibit about these and other one-room Newark-area schools and more about other aspects of Newark area life and history at Newark History Museum, on South College Avenue beside the bridge on the town side of the tracks. The museum is open Sundays from 2 to 5 construction-company representatives in the afternoon. Renovations will begin in June, he said.

The school will start admitting its first class of 162 ninth graders in the fall of 2013, and will add a new grade each year over the next three years.

Meece said he's excited about working with high-school students again.

"I worked at St. Mark's High School for 15 years and the Charter School of Wilmington for five years," he said. "Every grade level has its own enjoyable things and its own challenges, but I do miss the high-school-aged students. You can use a little more humor, and they get it."

In other school news, Lowery announced Friday that she would be leaving her position for a new job as State Superintendent of Schools with the Maryland State Department of Education.

House Education Committee seeks public's input on charter schools

Post staff report

The House Education Committee will hold a public hearing May 1 to solicit input from citizens on local charter schools.

In recent months, several issues regarding charter schools have emerged. House Education Committee Chair Rep. Terry Schooley (D-Newark) said that holding a hearing so those concerns can be publicly voiced will help outline the issues that need to be addressed for traditional and public charter schools to move forward.

"A lot of the issues that have surfaced recently have been centered on the Newark Charter School expansion, so I have heard a lot of the concerns firsthand," Schooley said. "In addition, other subjects have emerged over the past few months. This hearing will give all committee members an opportunity to hear those concerns. It will be a chance for the public to tell us about areas such as capital spending, moratoriums, preferences and impact issues. Then we can begin to address those concerns in a productive manner. This is just the first step in the process of developing good public policy.

The hearing will convene at 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 1 in the House Chamber in Legislative Hall in Dover.

Homebuyer Fair comes to Newark Saturday

Delaware State Housing Authority (DSHA), in partnership with The Money School and the Delaware Federation of Housing Counselors, will host its second annual Homebuyer Fair from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Christiana Hilton Hotel.

The fair is free for the public to attend and will include more than 40 exhibitors, including realtors, financial institutions and other service providers. Christiana Hilton Hotel is at 100 Continental Drive in Newark.

The event will offer prospective homebuyers – including those who have not owned a home in the past three years – information to make their home-buying decisions less daunting.

Due to the downturn in the U.S. economy and a slow housing market, many prospective homeowners are hesitant about purchasing their first home. But industry professionals say low interest rates and reasonable home prices make this a good time to purchase a home.

"We encourage individuals interested in purchasing their first home to come to the event and speak with our experts on a range of different home buying topics, from home inspections to budgeting to negotiating the right price," said DSHA Director Anas Ben Addi. "With proper planning and assistance from some of the Delaware State Housing Authority's programs, first time homebuyers in Delaware can make the purchase of their first home a reality."

Event participants can learn about the DSHA's programs available to help Delawareans purchase their first home, including details on mortgage rates and closing-cost assistance. The DSHA First-Time Homebuyers Program is a statewide program that helps first-time Delaware homebuyers finance homes at below-market interest rates.

ARE YOU READY TO ROCK?

Styx, Cheap Trick to play Delaware State Fair in July

Post staff report

Delaware State Fair officials announced today that classic-rock bands Styx and Cheap Trick will play at M&T Bank Grandstand at the 2012 Delaware State Fair. Concert tickets went on sale Thursday and can be purchased at www.DelawareStateFair.com.

Tickets will cost $44 for track and stadium seats and $39 for grandstand and clubhouse seating. Tickets for the new orchestra pit section will cost $69.

The venue's new pit section is just feet away from the stage and will be general admission, standing room only.

Spawned from a suburban Chicago basement in the early '70s, Styx is best known for its rock anthems "Come Sail Away" and "Renegade."

Cheap Trick, which also hails from Illinois, released the hits "I Want You to Want Me" and "Surrender" in the late-'70s and are, interestingly, huge in Japan.

Delaware State Fair will be held July 19 to 28 this year.

Tickets for the Miranda Lambert show went on sale last Friday. Tickets for Jason Aldean, Sugarland, Larry the Cable Guy, Casting Crowns, and Justin Moore with Colt Ford are on sale now. Other artists in the Delaware State Fair Summer Concert Series will be announced soon.

Members of Styx will perform at Delaware State Fair this summer.

Romance, big hair will take center stage tonight

The 1980s tale of two friends' post-college adventures in romance will debut on the Chapel Street Playhouse stage tonight at 8 p.m.

"Isn't It Romantic," written by Tony Award winner Wendy Wasserstein and directed by Nancy Storch, will run through May 5 at the playhouse, at 27 N. Chapel St. in Newark.

The play tells the story of former classmates Janie and Harriet as they attempt to navigate the "real world" after college. For Janie, the real world involves a romance with a Jewish doctor who calls her "Monkey," while Harriet embarks on an affair with her married, corporate boss.

"Isn't It Romantic" stars Madi Houff, Jess Eppler, Jed Bulgrien, Michael Collins, Rachel Barton, Pete Matthews, Gini Brosius and Fadi Greene.

Show tickets are $5 for students, $10 for seniors and $15 for adults.

Summer camp:

Where kids can keep on learning

By Katie Daly-Jones
Extension Educator

It may seem far off, especially to those with tests and projects still to finish, but the end of the school year is indeed fast approaching. While a three-month break from school is something everyone looks forward to, there are also some downsides to being absent from a learning environment for that long. According to the National Summer Learning Association, most students lose about two months of grade-level equivalency in math skills over the summer months. And the U.S. Department of Education cites that youth can lose as much as 25 percent of their reading skills during summer break.

This learning loss impacts the following school year, as teachers often have to spend about four weeks re-teaching information that children have forgotten. So how do we curb this loss of knowledge and help our children continue to learn in the summer?

There are many summer programs available to keep kids engaged, active, and involved in the learning process. One way is summer camp. Camp is a place where every child has the opportunity to thrive and learn valuable life skills. There are camps suited to every type of interest, including sports camps, environmental camps, cooking camps and general-interest camps. In this unique learning environment, youth are engaged in activities that allow them to learn about teamwork, leadership, and self-esteem.

These important skills support the learning that youth do during the school year.

Other camps provide structured-learning opportunities as a part of their daily activities. Maybe it's an aerospace class where children build their own rockets and learn about the laws of motion, or an animal-science class where they learn about life cycles and food systems. All give participants intense learning experiences that will keep their minds sharp and active. Who knows — they might even discover a possible career path.

Camp gives youth the chance to try something new in a safe and caring environment. In addition to increasing, rather than losing, knowledge over the summer, kids also develop important life skills such as responsibility, resourcefulness, citizenship, caring and communication.

But let's not forget about the importance of "playtime." The American Academy of Pediatrics has stated that play is an integral part of learning, as it contributes to the cognitive growth of children. And what better place to play than at summer camp?

There are plenty of options for kids to play outdoors in the summer — vacations, the community pool, sports practices — and don't forget to add camp to the list. Camp provides kids with a place to learn about themselves and the world around them; they'll keep their math skills sharp without even realizing it! For more information about 4-H summer camps in your area, visit http://ag.udel.edu/extension/ncc/4h/ncc\_camps.html

Glasgow baseball players, coach enjoying the fruits of their labor

By Jon Buzby
Special to the Post

Twenty years ago when Antwain "Mack" Haman took the baseball field as a player at Glasgow High School, he was focused on where the sport might take him down the road.

After a stellar high-school career, Haman played at Coastal Carolina University and then spent four years in the Orioles' minor-league system. A few surgeries brought an end to his big-league dreams, and Haman found himself back at his alma mater, where from the start, he focused on resurrecting a struggling baseball program.

Haman knew it would take time to turn the program around, and in his first three seasons, the Dragons won a total of just six games.

"I knew what I had before I took the job," Haman admitted about the early struggles. "I knew my staff and I could one day change baseball back to what everyone once knew it was here at Glasgow. I am glad things are slowly changing in a good way."

Glasgow (5-3) is led by a group of juniors and seniors who have played through the frustrating years and are now enjoying the fruits of their labor.

"This year has been fun for my kids so far," Haman said. "We have been working hard on and off the field."

Leading the way on offense is junior Zach Zervas, who plays third base and pitches. The right-handed hitter is batting over .650.

"I have been coaching for 12 years and I truly can say that this kid will probably end up being the best I have ever coached," Haman said. "He sees the ball very well. He reminds me of Kevin Mench (a former St. Mark's standout, UD All-American and major-leaguer) because of how he recognizes the pitch right out of the pitcher's hand."

The infield is anchored by sophomore second baseman Mike Hand, who, according to his coach, "is the truth" on defense and also effective at the plate.

"He is small," Haman said of his No. 2 hitter, "but you won't be able to tell that when he puts the ball in play."

Senior centerfielder Jeremy Euston patrols the outfield and also pitches. Haman looks to Hand and Euston as key leaders on the team.

"These two guys are natural born leaders on the diamond," Haman said. "Both are very good baseball players and they work very hard in practice to improve their games. And on game days I have seen them make hard plays look easy."

On the base paths, junior shortstop Dominick Donato has already stolen 10 bases. The leadoff hitter's ability to get on-base and then get himself into scoring position has helped produce several of the Dragons' runs this season.

"He is a fiery player that any team would love to have," Haman boasted.

Senior Alex Sanchez bats fifth and splits his time in the field between left field and catcher. The right-handed batter boasts a .350 average and, according to Haman, "Is truly the heart of our team."

While the players' stats are impressive, as are the number of wins compared to recent seasons, the school is perhaps proudest of its baseball team's accomplishments off the field.

"What I am the most proud of is their growth as citizens," athletic director Jeremy Jeanne said. "We try to teach our athletes how to be good role models and good citizens. The team has displayed wonderful sportsmanship, and under Coach Haman, they have been involved in the community."

Haman is focused on instilling in his players that there's more to winning than outscoring opponents.

"We don't have the so-called big-name players, and so it's nice to have players come in and just play hard and learn the way we coach," Haman explained. "I have a great group of kids who take baseball seriously, and that's what's changing Glasgow baseball."

"I am also proud to say that our team GPA is over 3.4," Haman added. "That's winning, in my eyes."

POLICE BLOTTER

State police seek public's help in ID'ing Speedy Mart robbery suspect

Delaware State Police Robbery Unit detectives are seeking the public's help in identifying a suspect who committed the armed robbery of a gas station in March.

During the robbery that occurred at the Speedy Mart located in the 1200 block of Capitol Trail at 8:34 p.m. Sunday, March 25, a male suspect entered the store just prior to closing and placed items for purchase on the sales counter. At this point, a second male suspect entered the store, vaulted the sales counter, displayed a knife and confronted an 18-year-old male employee. The suspect then demanded cigarettes and money from the store register. The employee complied and turned over an undisclosed amount of money and cigarettes to the suspect. The suspect fled from the business and was last seen running towards the rear of the building. The second male suspect left the store shortly thereafter without buying the items he had placed on the sales counter. He fled in the same direction as the suspect.

One of the suspects is described as a black male, 6 feet to 6 feet 4 inches tall, 200 to 220 pounds, with brown eyes. He was last seen wearing a blue jean jacket, plaid shirt, khaki pants, and had a red mask covering his face. He was also armed with a knife.

The Delaware State Police are asking anyone who may have any information in reference to this incident to contact the Robbery Unit at Troop 2 at 302-834-2630 ext. 214 or ext. 6. Citizens may also provide a tip by texting keyword "DSP" plus your message to 274637 (CRIMES). Tipsters may also provide information through lines maintained by Delaware Crime Stoppers at 800-TIP-3333. Callers can also submit information via the internet at www.tipsubmit.com.

Man involved in accident, speeds off when police arrive

On Tuesday, April 17 at 12:22 p.m., a police officer arrived at the corner of West Delaware Avenue and South College Avenue, responding to a report of a collision involving two motor vehicles. As the officer approached the scene, he observed one subject enter his vehicle and erratically drive away from the scene.

The officer followed the subject and began to make a U-turn when he saw the subject run a red light and then pass vehicles while driving on the wrong side of the road.

The officer lost sight of the vehicle and radioed to other officers for backup. A new officer stopped and arrested the suspect, Jonathan Quinn, 34, of Newark. Quinn was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled substance, leaving the scene of an accident, driving a vehicle under the influence of drugs, aggressive driving, failure to provide information at a collision scene, making two improper turns, running three red lights, driving on the wrong side of the road and first-degree reckless endangerment.

Six vehicles broken into in Villa Belmont

Six different people whose cars were parked in the Villa Belmont community reported Sunday morning, April 21, that their cars had been burglarized and/or damaged overnight.

Items reported stolen include CDs, sunglasses, a stereo system and two radar detectors. Damage to several of the cars included broken windows and bent frames.

The stolen property is estimated at around $1,500, while physical damage to the vehicles is estimated at around $500.

Newark Police used the InforMe citizen-notification system to alert residents of the nearby community of the crime and urged them to lock up their vehicles.

Police seek man for reportedly harassing ex-girlfriend

New Castle County Police have warrants on file for Allen Luckett (above), a 46-year-old male who resides in the 100 block of Beech Drive in Elkton. Officers have learned that he has been continually contacting his ex-girlfriend over the past several months, even after being told by police on several occasions to have no further contact with her.

Early Thursday morning, April 12, county police responded to the community of Springwood for a report of a domestic related harassment. When officers arrived, they learned that the 49-year-old female victim's ex-boyfriend had been visiting her home, place of employment, and contacting the victim's family and friends in an attempt to have contact with her.

The investigation revealed that Luckett has been responding to the female's residence unannounced and continually attempts to contact her and her family and friends by phone. The subject has also ignored officers' commands on several occasions to have no contact with the victim.

Anyone with information as to the whereabouts of Allen Luckett should call the New Castle County Police Department at 573-2800 or 395-8172 (attn: Ofc. N. Jackson). Citizens may also provide a text tip at 847411 (TIP411); begin your message with NCCPD and then type your message. Tipsters may also call Crime Stoppers at 800-TIP-3333.

Keys taken from home, car stolen

Sometime between 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 18 and 3:10 a.m. Thursday, April 19, an unknown suspect or suspects removed the front window of a residence on the first block of East Park Place and removed car keys from the home, then made off with the victim's car, a grey 2007 Honda Civic with Pennsylvania tags. The crimes are classified as a burglary in the second degree, theft of under $1,500 and theft of a motor vehicle.

Another car stolen

On Sunday, April 22 between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m., an unknown suspect or suspects removed keys from the bedroom of a residence on the first block of Annabelle Street and used them to drive off with a 2007 black Chevy Tahoe with Texas tags. The crime is classified as theft of a motor vehicle.

Earl L. Brown, Sr.

Earl L. Brown, Sr., age 75, of Newark, passed away peacefully at home on April 17. He was born May 26, 1936 to the late Paul Raymond and Linda Mae (Carter) Brown.

Brown

Brown was an auto mechanic by trade and also worked in the drywall and flooring business. He enjoyed helping others, barbecues with his family, which he called his "Mafia," playing guitar, antique cars and telling jokes. Brown was a father of few, dad to many and loved by all whose life he touched.

He is survived by his loving wife of 39 years, Leona (Lee) M. Brown of Newark; sons, Earl L. Brown, Jr., and Russell J. Brown, both of Delaware; daughters, Belinda Nelson of South Dakota and Anna M. Brown and Melissa Brown, both of Delaware; stepson, James Wilson of Kentucky; step-daughter Bonnie Stephens of Delaware;

13 grandchildren; and 23 great-grandchildren. He is also survived by his brothers, James E. Brown and Raymond P. Brown, Jr. of Delaware; sisters, Florence Hall, Ruth Hurst and Shirley La Francis; and all of his extended family. Along with his parents, Brown was preceded in death by his brother, Herschel Brown.

The family would like to thank Vitas Hospice and all of Brown's caregivers.

Services were held at 11 a.m. Saturday, April 21 at R.T. Foard and Jones, Inc., 122 W. Main St., Newark. Burial followed at Silverbrook Cemetery. To send condolences, visit www.rtfoard.com.

where he worked for Palm Beach County in the Surveyors Office. He retired in 1988. He loved attending church and had a passion for flowers and yard work. He also loved animals and children. Schlingloff was a kind and loving man who will be greatly missed.

He is survived by his loving wife, Joyce Schlingloff of Newark; stepson, Douglas Brewer, his wife Bev and two daughters, EmmaLeigh and Laura; and stepdaughter, Lisa Nokes, her husband Troy and her daughter, Amanda.

At the request of the family, services were private.
