STANTON FARMER HURT

William Pusey Steps In Front Of Auto Saturday

William Pusey, a farmer of near Stanton, was driving his farm wagon along the pike Saturday, and feeling cold, jumped from the wagon to walk alongside the horses, and in doing so, stepped directly in front of an automobile driven by Irwin Leach, of Tuxedo Park. Mr. Pusey sustained a broken leg and wrist. He was carried into the home of C. W. Maclary where he was made comfortable until the New Castle ambulance removed him to the Delaware Hospital, Wilmington, where he is resting comfortably.

STUDENTS READY WITH PLAY FOR WOLF HALL

English Department Presents "Dolly Reforming Herself," December 8.

On Tuesday evening, December 8, at 8:15 o'clock, the English Department of the University will present a play in Wolf Hall. The play, a domestic comedy called "Dolly Reforming Herself," by the well known English Dramatist, Henry Arthur Jones, is especially suitable just at this time, for it concerns the making and keeping of New Year's resolutions. Those who attend the performance will be able to make their plans for the new year more wisely than hitherto. The drama was evidently written by Mr. Jones while he was in one of his lighter moods.

The play has been studied and rehearsed through the medium of English 51, a course in Dramatic Expression. Those taking part are: Philip Cohen, '28, William B. Miller, '27, Bernard Nobis, '29, Edward H. Spicer, '29, Joseph Turner, '29, Alvin Wakeland, '27, Floyd Wright, '29, Hazel Chapman, '29, Merrel Pyle, '26, Louise Turner, '27. The production is under the direction of Professor E. C. Van Keuren of the English Department.

The chapter is composed of members residing in Cecil and Harford Counties. Each bank in these counties was represented. John B. Baker, of Frederick, and W. F. Reese and W. S. Stuart, of Baltimore, made addresses. Forty persons were present. Weekly meetings will be held at the Hotel Bayou, Havre-de-Grace on Thursdays.

TOWNSPEOPLE ASKED TO BUY NEW STOCK

Promoters of Proposed Local Ice Concern Seek Capital, According to Reports.

Reports from several business men yesterday indicate that the promoters of a proposed new ice plant here, to be called the Newark Ice Company, are endeavoring to sell capital stock in the firm among residents of this community.

From statements given THE POST yesterday, it appears that a Mr. Blake, employed at the National Fibre Company plant here as engineer, is the only local resident interested in the proposition. Mr. Blake recently moved into one of J. K. Johnston's new houses in the Cleveland avenue section.

It is further understood that the promoters are hoping to erect the plant on the old creamery property near the Curtis Mill, in Deandale. No further advancement in the enterprise is believed to have occurred since the announcements made in the newspapers last week.

POMONA GRANGE MEETS

New Castle Pomona Grange will hold its quarterly meeting at Talleyville tomorrow. This will be the last meeting before the assembling of the Delaware State Grange, which will be held in Dover on December 8, 9 and 10. All matters to be brought before the State Grange and all resolutions must be presented at the meeting tomorrow.

SLEEPS THROUGHOUT HIS OWN HEARING

"Algie" Thomas Awakens In Time To Get 90 Days In the Workhouse, However.

When the majesty of the law had prepared to descend upon a wrongdoer at the bar Saturday night, a delicious thrill of excitement swept around the room. The prisoner had defied all precedent and was peacefully sleeping.

It all occurred when "Algie" Thomas, in a highly nervous condition as a result of drinking strong liquor earlier in the evening, persisted in putting his Ford through rather intricate maneuvers on crowded Main street. It so happened that Algie rammed the auto of Mrs. Belle Meek, of North East, Md., as a climax to his performance, and was thoughtfully removed from the street by Officer Barnes and escorted to Magistrate Thompson's office. The car was held and has been attached by Mrs. Meek for damages to her car.

Algie answered the roll call and immediately dozed off. Throughout the brief procedure of the Law, he is reported by observers to have shown little or no interest. He was gently awakened a few minutes later, however, and presented a handsome fine of $300 and ninety days in jail. The prisoner waived the former and chose the latter, all of which will add about 60 more days to his sojourn.

Thomas was arrested about a year ago on a similar charge and was fined $200.

ANOTHER GRANGE?

GEORGE V. CHALMERS

Chalmers Hailed As Best Scholastic Back

Playing his last scholastic football game, George V. ("Shorty") Chalmers thrilled 2000 people from all parts of the State at Milford Thanksgiving Day. As all Newark knows, Coach Nunn's team tucked away their sixth consecutive D. I. A. A. championship, 35-0.

Why they call this ripping, plunging curly headed youth "Shorty" is a mystery. He scales 165 pounds and stands five feet, eight inches high. But "Shorty" it is, and will ever stick, it appears.

Conceded by every High School football authority as the most finished scholastic player in the State, the sudden thrust into the limelight has no effect whatever upon this young man. Flatter him on his prowess, and he will squirm like a small boy caught stealing apples.

A Remarkable Boy

"Shorty" is one of those rare persons known as "born athletes." By reason of his physique, brains, temperament and sheer love of sport, he stands today as probably the best all-round athlete Newark High has ever seen. In football, he is a young demon; in basketball, a shifty, smooth-working machine; in baseball, alert, brainy and resourceful.

Teammates and opponents alike find in "Shorty" a champion of clean sport, a good fellow on and off the field, and modest to a fault.

GROVES WINS BIG AWARD

Treasurer of Christiana Clay Products Co. Wins Suit

A jury of inquisition, in Superior Court Monday morning, awarded Benjamin A. Groves, treasurer of the Christiana Clay Products Company, judgment for $6956.86, with $278.27 interest, against Thomas D. Just, president of the same concern.

According to Mr. Groves' testimony, he and Just jointly endorsed notes with the understanding that each was to bear an equal share. Mr. Groves said he also paid bills, half of which were to be born by Just. He said Just has not paid him his share, $6956.86. Mr. Groves was represented by William S. Hilles. The Christiana Clay Products Company has been in the hands of receivers for some time.

"ONE, TWO" FOR TYSON

Thanksgiving Day found overcoats welcome in Newark. But in Pinehurst, S. C., a great crowd turned out for the annual holiday race meeting for harness horses.

They saw, among other things, Alicia Dare and Cherry Willis, two stars from the Tyson string, placed first and second in the feature race of the day, the free-for-all. Mr. Tyson has his string quartered at Pinehurst at the present time.

Begin Soon On New Building For Local Bank

Contract Awarded to Pennsylvania Concern at Directors' Meeting of Farmers Trust Company Yesterday.

MAY START WITHIN 30 DAYS

New impetus was given the proposed new home of the Farmers Trust Company of Newark at a meeting of the board of directors of the institution yesterday morning.

The bank entered into a contract with the Tilghman-Moyer Company of Allentown, Pennsylvania, for the erection of the building on a lot 100 feet east of the present building on Main street. This decision on the part of the board, said an official today, assures an early commencement of the excavation for the new bank. It is reported that work may begin within the next thirty days.

Plans Are Approved

At former meetings of the board this fall, plans for both the interior and exterior of the new building have been approved, and everything of a preliminary nature has been done so that there will be no hitch expected in the completion of the building.

With the contract made and work about to start, speculation is again rife as to the disposition of the old bank building. Some weeks ago, it was rumored that the post office authorities were considering it as a possible site for the local office.

REACHES RIPE OLD AGE

Stanton Post Office Discovered To Be 100 Years Old

Established one hundred years ago, the Stanton post office has been managed by seventeen postmasters, Mrs. William Chambers, the present postmistress, being the third member of the Chambers family to hold this position during the century. The post office is located in the Chambers home, the place where the first post office was established in 1825.

At that time Frederick Gray was postmaster, serving five years.

Stanton was originally known as Cuckoldstown, but the name was changed when John Stanton purchased the few houses at that place. While history does not reveal when the name of the town was changed, it is known that Stanton is the oldest town in Mill Creek hundred.

Attends Convention

Mr. R. W. Heim, State Director for Vocational Education, attended the annual convention of the National Association of State Directors of Vocational Education in Cleveland on December 1st and 2nd. Mr. Heim is one of the executive officers of this Association and appeared on the program to discuss "Civilian Rehabilitation."

Mr. Heim will also attend the National Society for Vocational Education Convention in Cleveland on the three days following.

FORMER RESIDENT WEDS

Mrs. Thomas, who, with her former husband, Lee Elliott, lived on Delaware Avenue, is well known to many Newark people. A son, Jack, was a student in High School until last year.

Mrs. Mary Emma Willis, of Chesapeake City, announces the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Edith Willis Elliott, to Leonard Van Holsten Thomas, of Haverford, Pa., on October 24, by the Rev. Robert Bell, Vicar of Old Swedes Church, Wilmington. Trust Company of Newark at a meeting of the excavation for the new bank.

Hold Open Meeting

The following has been sent to THE POST:

The Young Women's Home Missionary Society of the M. E. Church will hold an open meeting at the church, Monday evening, December 14, at 8 o'clock. Everyone is welcome at this meeting. This is a real live society and we invite you to come and join us. An interesting program is being prepared.

LAST MINUTE NEWS

BOY SCOUTS OFFERED WARM MEETING ROOM

Through the generosity of Captain James C. Hastings, commanding Battery E, Delaware anti-aircraft regiment, an offer was made last night to THE POST of the reading room in the Armory here as a meeting place for the Newark Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts. This announcement will likely save the boys' charter, as plans had been made for disbanding unless a warm room could be found. Mr. Hastings said he was glad to be of help to the youngsters. Arrangements for future meetings of the Scouts will thus be altered, it is believed.

FIRST OF "CHRONICLES" TO BE WELL ATTENDED

From ticket sales to date, it is expected that a large crowd of students from both colleges and the public schools as well as townspeople, will witness the first showing of the "Chronicles of America" series in Wolf Hall Saturday night. "Columbus" will be the title of the first picture. Season tickets are being sold and a single admission charge will be made. The Chamber of Commerce, through its Education committee, has recommended the support of the series. Prof. G. H. Ryden is in charge of the entertainments.

KRAMER GIVEN HONOR

Selected By Sport Writer As Member Of All-Star Team

Lou "Huck" Kramer, University of Delaware captain, has been named center on the All-Pennsylvania Conference football team selected by Stoney McLinn, sports writer of the Philadelphia Ledger. In making the selection McLinn said:

"Although there were several star centers in our home State, we shall go into the neighboring commonwealth of Delaware to pick the player of the 'conference.' Captain Kramer, of the Newark University eleven, is the man.

"Kramer was a sure snapper-back, a rover who makes tackles in the open and ruined passes and a leader who inspired his men to do their utmost at all times. For alternate center, we would want Lashley, of Dickinson."

Newarkers Get Diplomas

Before an audience which packed Playhouse, Wilmington, last evening, ninety-eight young men and women were graduated from Goldey Business College at the annual commencement exercises. Samuel Vaulchain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, was the speaker of the evening. Many local folk attended the affair.

Those from this section who completed their courses are: George V. H. Bland, Strickerville; Eleanor Walton, Iron Hill; and the following from Newark: S. Clifford Buckingham, J. Clarence Huggins, Dorothy Hoffecker, Reba McConaughy, Evelyn Worrall and Ida Worrall.

NEWARKERS GET—

MUSKRAT SEASON ON

Riverfront Marshes Mecca for Trappers This Week

The muskrat trapping season opened in Delaware today, and it will be lawful to trap the valuable little fur-bearing animals from today until March 20.

Prospects for a successful season are anticipated by the trappers of this vicinity and Port Penn.

The early fall hides last year sold around $1.25 each, later in the season going as high as $1.50 per hide for the animals caught early. The hides taken in the early part of the season are fully as good as the hides caught later. The skins of the fall hides are black under the fur and the coat is thinner than those caught later. The hides taken later in the season are blood-red under the skin and the fur is thicker and in a better condition.

ADDRESSES RAILROAD MEN

John MacMurray, Jr., Newark Boy, Quoted In "Railway Age"

In the "Railway Age" for October 31st, appears the abstract of an address given by John MacMurray, Jr., son of Rev. and Mrs. John MacMurray, of this town, delivered before the Railroad Club of New York City.

Young MacMurray, a senior at Princeton's civil engineering school, spent last summer at the student summer camp established by the Delaware and Hudson R. R. along Lake Champlain. His speech was one of a number made by young engineers before the club. He was the only speaker not a member of some railroad organization. Older executives complimented MacMurray highly on his clear forceful paper.

CHARACTER BUILDING IN SCHOOLS

Shilling Outlines Plan And Prepares To Send Questionnaire To All Students In High Schools

"Would you like the diploma which will be awarded you upon your successful completion of your high school course to bear the sentence 'Graduated With Good Character,' this sentence written by the principal of your high school and signed personally and not in stamp by that official?"

This substance is the gist of a short questionnaire which John Shilling, assistant in charge of high schools of Delaware, is preparing to send to every high school student in the State of Delaware. While it may seem a simple question as Mr. Shilling first suggested, it is charged with dynamite in its functioning and is a query which Mr. Shilling will ask the students not to pass by slightly, but to give it careful consideration.

"I hope I will not receive the final replies to this question for at least three months," said Mr. Shilling in discussing his idea, "because if it is decided offhand, then it will be forgotten and that will defeat my purpose. I want the students to think it over and be slow about making up their minds, but sure of themselves when they have decided."

Character building, which is the thought that inspired Mr. Shilling to make such a suggestion to high school students, is something which every progressive educational authority in the country is wrestling with. There have been many suggested forms put forward in the past few years and at the present time there is an organization with headquarters at Washington, D. C., which is striving to focus universal attention on the subject.

This organization has an attractive pamphlet which it is distributing to form a foundation for the thought of character building, but Mr. Shilling has gone a step further than any other educational leader, so far as known. He wants the students to speak for themselves and to think out their own ideas, and his plan is new in having each student winning such commendation to have the lasting testimonial included on their high school diploma.

At the present time the State Board of Education has before it the proposition of allowing students in practically all the grades to be excused an hour or perhaps even more each week, so that they may go to the church of their choice and receive religious instruction. The matter is being held under advisement, and Dr. Harry V. Holloway, Commissioner of Education of Delaware, has drafted a resolution for the State Board of Education to consider, in which he advocates the granting of such absence provided the authorities in every community where the plan is put into operation, can agree amicably upon all the details.

Cannot Teach Religion

"We have no authority to teach religion in the public schools, even if we wanted to," said Mr. Shilling. "It's against the law. But we can try and instruct the students in character building. Anyone who stops to think can realize that if students agree to tell the truth, to be reliable and to demonstrate qualities of good sportsmanship, that they cannot help but make better men and women when they mature. And, if we can help to do this a bit, I feel we shall have accomplished much."

"We have had occasion from time to time to see the need for such a moral trend among students. I am sure our Delaware boys and girls are just as good and just as truthful and reliable as the boys and girls of any other state, and I do not wish to give any other impression. But I also feel that we, like all other states, have need for some such moral and as some may term it, religious stimulus such as cannot help but come along, if the high school students decided they want a certificate when they graduate that carries with it this recommendation.

"I believe thoroughly that it will have much weight in the mind of a possible employer. But the greatest good will come from the consideration the student will give the idea. I am not going to supply them with a code of ethics to start with. I want them to think it out and make up their own code. They must be ready, if they say they want such a recommendation, to make their own regulations and thus stand by what they say they want the public to think of them."—From Sunday Star.

Founds Institute of Animal Economics

James E. Larowe

What the Rockefeller Foundation stands for in the welfare and progress of the world at large, the Larowe Institute of Animal Economics is undertaking in behalf of the Eastern dairy and poultry farmer, according to a news story received here today.

"Dairying is the logical industry of the Eastern farmer," says James E. Larowe, widely known engineer and president of the large manufacturing concern whose donations made the Institute possible, in explaining why the Institute has chosen this field for its activity. "Not only are physical conditions suited to it, but an ever-increasing market is furnished in the rapidly growing population centers nearby. No other farm effort will pay him so well as efficient dairying with poultry raising as a companion enterprise. The Institute will keep the farmer informed on ways to increase his cow and hen efficiency through research and interpretation of the great work of the various agricultural colleges."

CHESAPEAKE CITY BRIDGE TOWERS UP

Massive Lifts In Place and Work Commencing on Roadway Approaches.

Says the Cecil Democrat, Elkton, in its current issue:

Work of construction is being rapidly pushed at Chesapeake City. The construction company in charge of the erection of the vertical lift bridge at the foot of George street, has constructed the two towers and bridge approach leading to them. The towers are 210 feet in height and are said to be higher than the Brooklyn bridge.

The Broad Creek Construction Company, of Elkton, has the contract for building concrete highways on the north and south of the canal leading to the bridge. The highway on the south will follow George street while on the north a new approach is being constructed which will join the main Elkton-Chesapeake City highway at the entrance of the farm of Convent of St. Basil.

There is much controversy between the State Roads Commission and the Commissioners of Cecil county over the repairs and maintenance of the old bridge over Back Creek at Chesapeake City. This part of the roadway in the town will be abandoned by the Roads Commission on the completion of the new vertical lift bridge over the canal. At present time the bridge is in dangerous condition, and it is feared that the heavy traffic during the winter will destroy the structure.

The position of the Cecil County Commissioners as expressed by one of the Board is that his bridge is a part of the State highway. The destruction of this bridge would mean the isolation of a part of Chesapeake City; especially is this bridge important, because of the postoffice which is located across the Back Creek.

Locals

About fifty Cecil County school teachers attended the annual meeting of the Maryland State Teachers' Association held in Baltimore, Friday and Saturday.

The "Christmas Herald," edited by Miss Mollie Howard Ash, has made its annual appearance in the homes of Elkton folk, in the form of a twelve page leaflet.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Elkton Methodist Episcopal Church will hold an apion sale and bake in the Church House on Saturday. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will hold a meeting on Friday evening.

Fire of unknown origin early Saturday morning destroyed the cannery factory in the center of Port Deposit, owned by William Steele.

George Goritz, watchman, could not be located and it is feared that, becoming confused or overcome by the smoke, he perished in the fire.

Fanned by wind, the flames had gained so much headway before the alarm was sounded that it was found impossible to save the plant, attention being directed to the nearby buildings of Campbell Brothers and Ben Dubansky, which were already afire. A call was sent to the Rising Sun fire department for help, but the efficient service of the Water Witch Company had the situation under control before its arrival.

Besides the loss of the building, it is said that the summer's pack of tomatoes was destroyed, at an estimated loss of $10,000. The loss is covered by insurance.

Contractor William P. Stevens will break ground this week for a two-story residence for William J. Davis, on a lot adjoining the property of Ira Moore, recently purchased from the Bratton estate on Locust Lane, Elkton. Messrs. Davis and Minster recently sold their dwelling on Bridge street to Mrs. Anna Wells, for $13,500. It is understood that it will be converted into apartment houses.

YOUR TOWN

A message from Edson R. Waite, secretary of the Shawnee, Oklahoma, Board of Commerce, contains some timely advice. It follows:

"Did you ever stop to think that your town has done much for you; it has been your home and the source of your profit and your happiness. That it is your future home and you should do all in your power to help in its development and progress."

"That you should throw your thoughts and energy into advancing the best plans for its advancement."

"That every citizen has a vital concern in the welfare of the home town, in its upkeep as a municipality and its growth in number, reputation and material prosperity."

"That towns reap exactly what they sow."

"That when they represent to the world a spirit of indifference the world stays away."

"That it is the grasping of opportunities that makes the towns worth while."

"Some towns sit still while opportunities walk around them, waiting vainly to be invited in."

"Some towns expect opportunities to loudly knock and ask to be taken in, but opportunities do not come that way."

"That a town should keep dressed up, not once in a while, but all the while, so that it will appear better dressed and more attractive than other towns."

"That the town is not only a good place to live but a good place in which to make a living, makes the strongest appeal to the outside world."

"That visitors to a town should be given a pleasant greeting and their visits made enjoyable so that they will be pleased with the town and will desire to buy and work and live in it."

"That if a town expects to move ahead in the march of progress it must extend a welcoming hand to the outside world by advertising, thereby showing the people desiring to live in a better town, how wise it would be for them to look at their town before settling."

"That those who are seeking sites for industries or homes are always seeking those towns that are progressive and who tell the world about it."

"The number of new industries, investors and home seekers which are attracted to a town will be in direct proportion to the attractiveness of the invitation that is extended to them."

BANQUET ON DEC. 7th

Bellevue-Stratford Hotel To Be Scene of Annual Winter Gathering Monday.

Former Congressman Walter M. Chandler, of New York, and Captain Irving O'Hay, U. S. Army, retired, will be the principal speakers at the thirty-fourth annual banquet of the Sons of Delaware of Philadelphia, which will be held in the ball-room of the Bellevue-Stratford on Monday evening, December 7.

It is expected that over 500 will be present. Election of officers for the ensuing year will take place, and a musical program will also be rendered. Ladies will be in attendance.

Numerous Delawareans will be present, in addition to those now living in Philadelphia and vicinity, and high officials of the Keystone and Diamond states have been invited to attend.

William V. Smith is the present head of the Philadelphia Sons. John L. Graham is secretary, and Leonard C. Dill is treasurer.

The annual banquet of the Sons is given as an anniversary celebration of Delaware's acceptance of the great document. This fact—that Delaware was first in adopting the Constitution—is emblazoned on the society's banner which is always conspicuously placed above the speaker's table.

The Delaware convention at Dover ratified the Federal Constitution December 7, 1787, three months after the Federal Convention in Philadelphia had concluded its labors. Pennsylvania adopted it on December 12, and New Jersey on December 18.

Organization of the Sons

The Sons of Delaware obtained a charter April 9, 1892, and the late I. Layton Register became the Society's first president. One of the charter members, Richard Fisher, well known in the insurance world, is still active and attends all the affairs of the society, including the annual jaunt of the sons to some point in the home State and summer picnic that has been especially instituted in order that the members may fraternize with non-members who live in Philadelphia and who once a year meet for renewal of old ties.

The society was originally designed to promote social intercourse, tender hospitality and manifest friendship toward Delawareans in Philadelphia and to collect folk lore of Delaware.

We read that some of the autumn fashions are softly feminine. If so, we can guess what sex they are intended for.—Punch.

ADDRESSES MINISTERS

Urges More 'Spiritual Messages from Pulpits; Rev. Sparklin Presides.

The commercializing of religion was condemned Monday morning by Rev. Harvey W. Ewing, of Newark, former pastor of Union M. E. Church, Wilmington, at the weekly meeting of the Methodist Preachers' Association, in Grace Church House. Dr. Ewing used as his subject, "The Atoning Work of Christ," and pointed out the need for ministers to preach spiritual messages to their congregations.

For the first time in several weeks Rev. J. L. Sparklin, pastor of Newport M. E. Church, president of the association, presided. He appointed Rev. George W. Bounds, pastor of Kingswood, Rev. Luther E. Poole, D. D., pastor of Mt. Salem, and Rev. Luther M. Broadway, pastor of Madeley Church, as a committee on nominations. The officers will be elected at the next meeting of the association.

Announcement was made that Rev. J. L. Sparklin had been appointed to succeed Rev. George W. Bounds as Wilmington district representative to the Wilmington Christian Advocate, Mr. Bounds having resigned.

A School Girl Writes Of Old Henlopen

By LILLIAN COVERDALE

(Miss Coverdale, a graduate of the Lewes High School this year, has written the following interesting essay on this famous old Delaware landmark; it is reprinted here from the Rehoboth Beach "News.")

The historic Cape Henlopen Light is situated on Cape Henlopen on the south entrance to Delaware Bay in the Delaware river, just opposite and thirteen miles southwest of Cape May; it is also three miles east of the town of Lewes.

It was built by the British Colonial Government in the year 1764. Cash for constructing the tower was raised by colonial lottery. This beacon at the time in which it was built was one of the largest on the Delaware shore. This light, with the Cape May lighthouse, serves to mark the entrance to the Delaware Bay and Delaware river.

Cape Henlopen Light is the oldest structure on the lighthouse board's list, south of the city of Boston. As that city and Philadelphia were the chief entry ports of the colony, the protection of their approach by water would naturally be the earliest to have attention.

Dangerous Shoals

Mariners who sailed the Atlantic Ocean just off Cape Henlopen very often were stranded in the shallow water. This is proof showing the danger of ships. A very long time ago, when the Hen and Chickens shoal was practically an island, the cattle would wade or swim across the narrow stream between the shoal and the beach and go over to the island to feed for the summer. Then, as the summer season drew to a close, the farm boy would cross the narrow stream and drive the cattle home for the winter from the island. Shoals such as these made navigation along the coast dangerous. The danger was soon seen and steps towards the erection of a lighthouse were begun at once.

The stone and brick with which the lighthouse was constructed were brought into Lewes and landed on an old wharf in the creek. From this wharf they were carried to within about one mile of the site of the lighthouse, and hauled over from there to the present site, probably by ox teams. While there is practically no solid foundation under the Henlopen Lighthouse, it has stood the storms of the sea for many years.

When the lighthouse was built, it was in the middle of a pine forest, and one mile from the ocean shore. It was solidly built of stone and bricks, in shape of a hexagonal pyramid. The building was eight stories high.

This high structure supports a very powerful light that is surrounded by a circular tower. The height of this tower is 106 feet above sea level; 46 feet of this distance is gained by the elevation of the sand dune on which it is based.

Access to the lantern is by a door on the west side of the lighthouse and then up the usual winding interior stairway. The lighthouse contains eight windows and on every landing there is one of these windows. Passing up the stairway we enter the keeper's room. It is not very large and the keeper usually stays there while on watch. This room is immediately below the lantern. Then climbing a small ladder we find ourselves in a room, about the size of the keeper's room, enclosed with glass, in the center of which is the lamp. The lamp is surrounded by lenses. These lenses are of the Fresnel type. They are made up of pieces of prismatic section, set in large frames, the outer surface of which is for the purpose of calculating radii, so that the beams may be sent toward the sea in parallel directions at all angles.

These lenses are kept carefully cleaned and protected during the day time by shades on the inside of the heavy, plain, plate glass of the windows, which close in the lantern chambers. The radius of visibility of the light is seventeen miles.

Second Light Needed

When built the light was not far from the point of Cape Henlopen. Now the strong current that comes down the Delaware Bay strikes the beach between the point of Cape Henlopen and the lighthouse. After a number of years, the point of Cape Henlopen kept extending for a mile north of the location of the main light, and a beacon light was built, of the same material, near the point of Cape Henlopen. It was always called "The Little Light." The same keeper then tended the main light also attended the light on the point—the beacon light. He would go down to the little light at sundown and light the lamps, stay there until midnight, trim the lights and go back at daylight to extinguish them. Oil burners were used for the light at this time.

What was once a narrow stream of water between the Hen and Chickens shoal and the main shore of the ocean has gotten to be in some places a half mile and in some other places two miles from the ocean shore. All of this distance has been taken from the land on the ocean shore.

Ocean Encroaches

In 1860 the Cape Henlopen lighthouse was one half mile from the shore; that is, the ocean shore was one mile nearer the light after ninety-four years. One reason of the rapid wearing away of the ocean shore is the position of the breakwater.

Before the breakwater was built the ocean extended out from the lighthouse and the point of the cape was shorter than it is now. Since the building of the breakwater the point of the cape has been worn away because of the direction into which the current of the ocean was forced to run. Before the breakwater was constructed the ocean waves came straight in upon the beach with their force. After the breakwater was built the current outside the breakwater was forced to come directly on the shore. This force was the usual force of the waves, plus the force of the water driven off from coming into the bay. The lighthouse at this time is charted at 17 miles, although popular tradition credits it with a greater power.

The lamp of the Carcel pattern, burns plain kerosene, which is vaporized under pressure and fed to an incandescent mantle of special size and construction. The light is stationary and is obscured to make the flash, by a screen which revolves about it. The solid portions of this screen cut off the light for a time, then as it revolves it lets the light out again, so mariners can see it plainer. This is regulated by clock work. The light is more than 13,000 candle power.

Deeded to State

The Treaty of Peace at the close of the Revolutionary War gave this light to the United States. The light was ceded by the government to the State of Delaware or Delaware Colony, at this time. Besides the light, also, two hundred acres of land around the lighthouse, and, while William Penn in his grant only permitted the dead timber to be cut out of the pine woods, the Lighthouse Service was allowed to cut any timber it wanted, on that part of the reservation. This colony, about this time, contained about five or six hundred inhabitants. It was, however, one of the most important towns of the state at its time and was large as the city of Wilmington. It was known for its educational advantages.

All vessels leaving Europe to cross the ocean try to make the Five Fathom Bank lightship, which is about 35 miles east of Cape Henlopen. If they pass the lightship steering west, the next light they would make would be the Cape Henlopen Light. Then they take their bearing from the mouth of the Delaware Bay.

Immense Sand Dunes

Sand dunes are sometimes the playthings of both waves and wind, and of the dunes which surround this light, like its fellows all along the Atlantic Coast, this one is liable to fluctuations in both directions. This work of nature is in itself remarkable for its size. It is about two and a half miles long and one mile wide, with an extreme height of 87 feet. This immense pile of sand been continually increasing from year to year, until now the sand drifting westward from the shore of the ocean has completely submerged the pine forest, in the middle of which the Cape Henlopen Light was built, the sand now reaching to the tops of the tallest trees.

The sand is white and of a very fine quality, excellent for building purposes. It is hauled away in carloads by the Lewes Sand Co., to different cities, to be used for making plaster, cement and the manufacture of glass.

The sand hill is visited by hundreds of people from all over the United States during the summer months and on Easter Monday, the day following Easter Sunday. Many travel to the sand hill in mule teams, others on horseback, and a few in automobiles. While at the hill they visit the light, enjoying themselves by walking through the capes or woods and rolling down the sand hill. Every Easter many people have a jolly time at the sand hill.

State Owns 25 Miles of Shore

When De Vries entered the Delaware Bay, in 1631, he had no light-house to guide him, and he came into Lewes creek, or sound, made his settlement where we have erected the monument to his memory. The State of Delaware owns 25 miles of ocean shore between Cape Henlopen and Fenwick's Island, except the private holdings at Rehoboth Beach, and by the erosion that has taken place on the Delaware shore by the Atlantic Ocean, Delaware has lost hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of valuable land.

P-T. A. News

Milford Cross Roads

At Milford Cross Roads School, near Newark, members of the P-T. A. of the community enjoyed a Thanksgiving program with an exhibit of the work of the children of the first grade, illustrating lessons about children of many lands; a song, "Foreign Children," by the sixth grade pupils, in costume; a little play; and a reading on "Illiteracy in China," and also reading the Governor's proclamation concerning Education Week and Illiteracy Sunday. The program was in charge of Miss Eliza W. Cook, teacher of Milford Cross Roads School. Everyone joined in a pleasant social hour at the close of the meeting.

Eight Square

The President of Eight Square P-T. A., George Twaddell, presided at the meeting held on November 24, when both Education Week and the Illiteracy problem were brought up for discussion. Community singing was enjoyed; there were ukelele solos given by David Smith, George Twaddell, Jr., and Hannah Talley; a vocal solo by Mr. Twaddell, and several other selections. Members of the association are looking forward to the school's Christmas entertainment to be given during the third week of December.

North Star

The second meeting of North Star Community Club was held on Tuesday evening, November 24, when the new officers elected at the last meeting assumed their duties. Henry C. Mitchell is the president; Mrs. Norman Cox, the vice-president; Miss Mae Keidel, the teacher, is secretary; and George Pierson, treasurer. New maps have been bought by the association for their school, and a new organ has been secured. They will meet again on December 15.

Welsh Tract

At the meeting of Welsh Tract P-T. A. on the 24th, two new members were added to the roll. A committee was appointed to look out for other new members. It was decided to buy for the school a dodge ball, football, and a book from the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, concerning Health. The children's program included talks on "How We May Win a Book," "Our School Library," and "The Story I Like Best"; as well as impersonations from well known book characters, and a little play.

Colored Associations

Among the colored associations, Christiana met on November 25, to hear a splendid talk given by the Rev. Rutledge; Claymont, on November 23 heard of the proposed night school which is to start in January; and Kirkwood, on the 25th, with 30 members present, enjoyed an entertainment by the Jubilee Quartette of Wilmington, as well as a very good Thanksgiving program by the school children.

Augustine

The P-T. A. of Augustine School No. 87, organized just last month, held its second meeting in the school house on November 27. Definite arrangements were made to have the flag up before the December meeting. After a thorough examination of the building plans were made for much needed repairs, also to be completed by the meeting to be held on December 18th. Dues were paid by all members and three new names were added to the list. The following officers have been elected: President, Mr. Thomas Winward, of Wilmington; vice-president, Mr. Sewell Jamison; treasurer, Mr. George Logan, of Augustine; secretary, Christine B. Middleton, of Wilmington; social committee, Mrs. S. Jamison; membership committee, Mrs. I. Thompson. An enjoyable Thanksgiving program was given by the pupils.

Centre Grove

An encouraging feature of the second meeting of Centre Grove P-T. A. on November 20, was the increased number of parents attending—a total of 48. Horace L. Dilworth, of Centerville, a trustee of the County Workhouse, gave a very interesting talk on Prison Reform. He spoke also to the children, advising them to take advantage of every opportunity they were given.

Mrs. Walter Kelley, president of the association, brought to the attention of the members the work planned to wipe out illiteracy, and she was proud to state that investigation showed no illiterates living in the district. The children's share of the program was a pantomime representing the landing of the Pilgrims and the first Thanksgiving feast.

Forest Oak

There was a good attendance at the meeting of Forest Oak Community Association on November 19. After the business was transacted, the pupils gave their program; the teacher, Miss Debbie A. Jackson, read of the landing of the Pilgrims, in commemoration of the 305th anniversary of that event; and Mrs. Stephenson, Mrs. Cooper, and Marie Stephenson gave an entertaining recitation. The Christmas meeting is to be on December 17.

Summit Bridge

Summit Bridge Colored P-T. A. combined their regular monthly meeting with a splendid Thanksgiving supper, on November 18. Great credit is to be given to the parents and friends of the school for their good work, the aim of which is to raise money to enclose the school grounds. Plans are being made for a rummage (Continued on Page 10.)

AN OVERWHELMING LEAD

Orleans, Co., Vt., Assn. Honors All Go to Eastern States Feeds

The 10 leading individual milk producers, the 10 leading individual fat producers, the 10 leading herds in milk production and the 10 leading herds in fat production, according to the October report of the Meadow Brook Cow Testing Assn., of Orleans County, Vt., were Eastern States fed. The stories in this column have frequently featured splendid records for Eastern States feeds, but this is probably the most spectacular story which has come to the Exchange's attention.

M. W. Clark, the cow tester, tested 250 cows in the month of October, 200 of which were in herds receiving Eastern States feeds. These cows were distributed through 16 herds, 12 of which were receiving Eastern States feeds. Out of the 50 cows in milk in the association which were not receiving Eastern States feeds, not one of these cows ranked in the first 10 in either milk or butterfat production for the month. Out of the 4 herds in the association which were not receiving Eastern States feeds, not one ranked among the first 10 in either milk or butterfat production.

It is interesting to compare the October Meadow Brook report with the report of the White River Junction Assn., for the same month—an association in which the ratio of Eastern States herds to total herds is almost exactly reversed. Though only 6 of the 15 herds tested in the White River Assn., were Eastern States fed, 5 of those 6 herds ranked among the first 10 in milk production and 5 in butterfat production.

Where records are kept, Eastern States Open Formula Feeds prove their worth.

Production records and records showing the returns over feed cost are proving that Eastern States feeds are the most economical offered. These records show these feeds manufactured and distributed by the farmer owned and farmer controlled Mill to be superior. It is because of this definite superiority that more farmers used Eastern States dairy and poultry feeds last month than in any previous month.

For information on the feeds for cows and poultry distributed by the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange, write the office.

CENTURY CLUB

Mrs. Clarence Fraime, of Wilmington, president of the Delaware State Federation of Women's Clubs, was the main speaker of the meeting of the Newark New Century Club Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Fraime, in her address, congratulated the club on its activities and expressed her approval of the educational plan proposed by Mrs. Thomas Manns, chairman of the State educational committee, who is a member of the Newark Club. This plan is to be adopted throughout the State in the near future.

Mrs. Russell Wilson, of Dover, sang a number of delightful selections. She was accompanied by Mrs. Foulkner, of Dover. The latter also played several piano solos.

A short business meeting followed the program. It was announced that $125 had been cleared from the card party given recently at the club house. It was voted to give $25 of this to the Choral Club of Newark High School, and $10 to the Newark Chamber of Commerce to help pay for the evergreen tree recently planted on the old academy lawn on Main street. This tree will henceforth be used in the annual community Christmas celebrations.

Heretofore each Christmas a large tree has had to be bought and put up on the lawn at quite an expense of time, labor and money. The growing tree adds an all-year-round beauty to the lawn and will be a great convenience for the Christmas celebration.

It was announced that the annual Century Club Christmas party will be given in the Club House on Tuesday, December 15. On Friday and Saturday, December 11 and 12, a rummage sale will be held at the club and on Thursday of this week the annual club supper will be given.

At the close of the business meeting refreshments were served by the club hostess, Mrs. George Rhodes. Mrs. S. J. Wright poured.

Among those who aided in serving were: Mrs. Walter Geist, Mrs. James Barnes, Mrs. Harry W. Davis, Mrs. J. Irving Davis, Mrs. Richard Cooch, Mrs. R. E. Saleski, Mrs. Herbert Owens, Mrs. Frank Cooch, Mrs. G. E. Hancock and the Misses Eleanor Duffy, Martha Wollaston and Elsie Wright.

Men's League

All set for the monthly meeting on the 15th of December, Santa Claus will be busy then but not enough to keep the men home. This you know is tournament night. Any man who can plan anything come along. Provision made for most all games (the bones haven't arrived yet) and sides are chosen to add interest. Doc. Manns has challenged all to checkers. Some of the dart, quait, and shufflers are getting swell heads, too. That's easy now, but wait.

Refreshments! I suppose so but who has time for that? Well, this is a week ahead of time for the notice but gives you more time to think how badly you will beat the other fellow.

And then that January meeting. Oh Boy! The judges and jury will all be there and so will the prisoner. More of this later.

Yes, the men are going to help build the church, too. Come prepared for most anything, including a fight.

OBITUARY

Elizabeth J. Bigger

An operation at the Elkton, Md., hospital preceded the death of Miss Elizabeth J. Bigger, aged 53 years, who died there last Tuesday, November 24, 1925. Deceased, who had been living at Summit Bridge, Del., for 47 years, had been ill for a week, but did not undergo the operation until last Sunday. She was the daughter of the late Charles W. and Rachel Bigger and was born in Newark. It was from there that she moved to Summit Bridge. Miss Bigger was an active member of the Summitt Bridge M. E. Church as well as the W. C. T. U. The funeral services were conducted at her home last Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. E. H. Collins, of Harrington, former pastor of Summitt Bridge M. E. Church, officiated, assisted by Rev. McCoy, of Rising Sun, Md., and Rev. E. L. Jones, pastor of the Summitt Bridge M. E. Church. The pall-bearers were: Charles and George Kane, Sam Huschbeck, Herman Bendler, Pierce

Aldrich and J. B. Carrow. Interment was at the St. Georges cemetery. One sister, Mrs. L. E. Griffenberg, of Wilmington, and one brother, Charles S. Bigger, of Summitt Bridge, survive.

CHAMPIONS FOR SIXTH CONSECUTIVE SEASON

NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL SQUAD, 1925

With their sixth straight D. I. A. A. Championship folded up and put away, Newark's schoolboy eleven has set up a record that will no doubt hold for many years.

With but a few exceptions, it was a green team that swept through the season without a defeat. On paper, there have been better teams during the past few years, but there have been none which fought harder for victory.

Take Jack Dayett and George Cook. Here were two youngsters, playing their first year of football against guards and centers which outweighed them in every game. They were green, but Coach Nunn was never worried about the center of his line. Take Whiteman and Medill, halfbacks, and Morris, quarterback, who with Shorty Chalmers, made up a powerful backfield; take young Winny Mayer and Don Armstrong at ends. All of these men were inexperienced to a large degree, but with careful, patient coaching and their own love of the game, they developed into good football players in one season. Riley, Manns and Malcolm Armstrong steadied the line at crucial times, and Chalmers, calling signals, had the utter confidence of every man.

Captain Dick Manns was an aggressive, hard working leader for the team at tackle.

To Coach Nunn goes a great deal of credit for the splendid season. He gave his team good solid plays, drilled them thoroughly on fundamental, taught them to follow the ball, and instilled a stype of sportsmanship in them that was a pleasure to see. It was no mean task to build up a championship team from the wreck of last year's machine. But he did that very thing by his patient, thorough methods.

The accompanying table outlines clearly the season's scores. Of the Newark touchdowns, Chalmers scored 16 and kicked 28 goals from touchdowns. Medill was next high scorer with 6 touchdowns. Then follows Riley with five and Whiteman with four, and the balance scattered among the balance of the squad.

Milk Producers From Four States Gather
At Annual Inter-State Association Meeting

Elaborate Program For Members And Wives Held In Philadelphia Last Week; Cecil County Man Elected A Director

The ninth annual meeting of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association, operating in the Philadelphia Milk Shed, and the ninth annual meeting of the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., were held in conjunction on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 23rd, 24th and 25th, at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia.

The sessions of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association opened on Monday, November 23rd, at 10 a. m. in the ballroom of the hotel.

This organization represents about 20,000 dairy farmers located in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, supplying fluid milk for consumption in practically all of the large cities and towns in their territory.

Over 800 delegates from the association's local units throughout the territory and members of the association were in attendance.

Nomination and election of eight directors to serve for three years, reports of officers and department heads, and the discussion of programs and plans for the future conduct of association affairs were considered in the morning session.

The following directors were elected: E. Nelson James, Cecil County, Maryland; J. W. Keith, Queen Anne County, Maryland; H. I. Lauber, Juniata County, Pennsylvania; E. R. Pennington, Kent County, Maryland; H. S. Stewart, Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania; S. U. Troutman, Bedford County, Pennsylvania; A. B. Waddington, Salem County, New Jersey; J. T. Tallman, Burlington County, New Jersey.

The directors of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association held their organization meeting during the afternoon and the following officers and members of the executive committee were elected:

President, H. D. Allebach, Montgomery Co., Pa.; vice-president, Frederick Shangle, Mercer Co., N. J.; treasurer, Robert F. Brinton, Chester Co., Pa.; secretary, Robert W. Balderson, Delaware Co., Pa.

Executive Committee—H. D. Allebach, chairman; Frederick Shangle, Mercer Co., N. J.; E. B. Waddington, Salem Co., N. J.; E. Nelson James, Cecil Co., Md.; Frank P. Willits, Delaware Co., Pa.; Robt. F. Brinton, Chester Co., Pa.; E. H. Donovan, Kent Co., Del.

The afternoon session of the association embraced reports of the president, H. D. Allebach, addresses by R. W. Balderson, Secretary of the Philadelphia Inter-State Dairy Council, C. I. Collee, Director of the Quality Control Department of the same organization, and Dr. Clyde L. King, Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. H. D. Allebach, president of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association, outlined his annual report under the various department heads, saying in part that the organization now numbers 20,000 active members, dairy farmers in the Philadelphia Milk Shed.

He showed that the price paid the farmers for fluid milk in this district on the whole was equivalent to the world's market price and that during the past month an increase of twenty-three cents a hundred pounds had been made by co-operative buyers.

The average price paid producers in this district was a trifle over seven and a quarter cents a quart for market milk delivered to Philadelphia.

Delaware Goes
Down Before Big
Dickinson Team

Pennsylvanians Topple Frostburg's Men 23-0 In Thanksgiving Day Game At Carlisle; Kramer Stars In Last Battle

LINE ATTACK TOO STRONG

The Blue and Gold of Delaware bowed in defeat to their ancient rivals, Dickinson, at Carlisle, Thanksgiving Day. Three touchdowns and a safety gave them the edge, 23-0.

Delaware presented at times a stubborn defense. At other times during the game the Maroon backs tore through tackle and guard for big gains. Their touchdowns were mostly scored from end runs with Captain Books, Sweely, and Harter alternating in carrying the ball.

The last game of the season drew a big crowd to the Carlisle field. The Delaware contingent, although small, were heard and rooted loud and strong for a lost cause. Captain Lou Kramer starred for the Newark collegians. Playing his last game of his career, he smeared plays right and left and was the one big defensive ace. Delaware opened up with a clever forward passing attack, but never mustered up the punch to carry the ball across from the scoring zone.

Dickinson was penalized for costly losses throughout the entire game, mostly for holding, and certainly lost several scoring opportunities thereby. The visitors were light and wiry and stood nobly against the crushing line bucks and good interference of the heavy Red and White eleven.

The visitors won the toss and chose to defend the south goal, Cherpak receiving the initial kick-off from Watson. A volley of forward passes, gaining 25 yards for the Delawareans, ensued and Dickinson retaliated on getting the ball by a series of line crushing attacks, only to lose the ball on downs. Delaware returned a fire of forward passes against an ineffective defense, the quarter ending with no score.

In the second period Sweely, for Dickinson, intercepted a forward pass, and Captain Books, Carpenter and Sweely started a zig-zag parade down the field by end runs, ending in Books scoring a touchdown from right end and kicking goal from there. Dickinson, 7; Delaware, 0.

Watson kicked to Cherpak, who made centerfield and on Delaware's kicking Wooten recovered a scrambled ball. Books then infused real excitement into the game by intercepting an opponent's forward pass and rushing through the visitors' 45 yards to their 13-yard line. Harper shoved over a touchdown. Books kicked goal. Score: Dickinson, 14; Delaware, 0.

Watson kicked to Captain Kramer but Delaware lost on downs, notwithstanding a 15-yard penalty on Dickinson for holding. Score end of first half: Dickinson, 14; Delaware, 0.

In the last quarter a forward pass, Sweely to Books, gave the latter a touchdown on a goal therefrom and later on a return kick by Sweely, the ball was booted to Delaware's goal line, where it was spotted by a Dickinsonian. The line-up:

The Chafing Dish

by Neil Farmer

At rare intervals a street-car rumbles down the street, automobile tires whirl over the asphalt, or sepulchral footsteps sound on the pavement.

A lone window gleams yellow in the black wall of the house across the way.

No doubt some youth, with ambition gnawing at his heart, is defying Morpheus in an attempt to teach himself "Success"—without knowing what it is.

A young and eager soul that some day must learn hope is but a phosphorescent nothing.

A boy whose dreams will soon be frostbitten and whose life will become as a tree in winter, dumbly stretching forth its leafless branches to the stars.

Fool, put out that light!

Flee not from sleep, the true thesaurus of solace.

Rather rush to the arms of slumber and embrace it, and, perhaps, you will dream.

But the light is not extinguished.

Hope, you have much to answer for: you are the sire of all unhappiness; and knowledge is your Delilah.

For what is life but a sudden glare of artificial lucidity, a swift and dizzy whirl with love and logic, and then a thrust into oblivion?

Can you give a better definition?

But I must be careful or I'll be making some of you think.

And far be from me, a feeble juggler of languid metaphors, to be the innocent author of even a temporary epidemic of insomnia among the ardent readers of this wizened column.

I should as soon try to "skin" Sol Wilson, or wash the windows in the postoffice, or invite Doctor Patterson to call at four in the afternoon and not have tea.

So you see how irreproachable, how purely pure and of what bleached impeccability are my intentions.

Nevertheless, I have no doubt that there are those among you who will not hesitate to credit me with a sort of Mephistophelian sense of humor, or a heinous sarcasm, or even a mephitic cynicism.

O tempora, O mores!

But if there are those among you who will viciously accuse me of laughing up my sleeve, allow me to solemnly assure you that you do me a grave injustice—I am writing with my sleeves rolled.

POTATOES SCARCE AND FIELD DIRECTOR FOR PRICES ARE SOARING SCHOOL SPORTS

Market Short As Crop During 1925 Falls Off by Million Bushels.

White potatoes this year have soared to unheard of figures after several years of comparatively low prices. The northern late potato producing States, upon which we are dependent for our winter's supply, are unusually hard hit through early drought and later through rot and freezing temperatures, says William B. Duryee, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture.

The national potato crop, as estimated for November 1, is placed at 346,563,000 bushels, compared with 454,784,000 bushels last year. This cuts the per capita production from the average of about four bushels to a little more than three bushels this season. This does not tell the whole story, however, declares the secretary. The eight major late crop States have only 78 per cent of their average crop, and all the late crop States combined have only 75 per cent of last year's production. Very little relief can be expected from Canada, as the crop in that country is reported to be 15 per cent less than last year's production and foreign imports are unlikely.

Potato shipments have been heavy this fall, a larger percentage of the crop than usual has been moved to consuming markets and the market has recently weakened. The weakness is looked upon as only temporary, however, and higher prices are looked for by the trade before spring.

D. I. A. A. Outlines Program for Coming Athletics Under One State Head.

It is expected that beginning with January, or as soon thereafter as a suitable man can be secured, that the Delaware Interscholastic Athletic Association will place a field worker in service who will look after athletic competition between Delaware high schools the coming spring.

Last year, at the meeting of the Legislature, an effort was made to obtain an appropriation for the employment of a physical director, who should not only have charge of school athletics throughout Delaware, but should also combine the qualities necessary to aid delinquent physical pupils and aid those who needed corrective exercises.

But the pressure for other appropriations made it so that the Legislature made the appropriation it thought sufficient and this, with all the many avenues for which school funds were needed, was not enough to engage a physical instructor of the talent needed and consequently the State Board of Education let the matter drop. At the next session, the State Board will likely ask for an added appropriation sufficient to cover such instruction.

In the meantime athletics in the schools have not received the attention they should if one person employed solely for that purpose had been in charge. But the D. I. A. A. has now come forward and it is agreed that the organization will furnish the funds to employ such an athletic leader for the next six months at least. The financial resources of the organization will warrant such expenditure and this may be the necessary illustration and demonstration to the next Legislature to appropriate enough money to engage an athletic director.—Ex.

However, if some of you still are inclined to maintain that I am guilty in the first degree of unkind and disguised criticism, of adverse criticism under a thin gauze of slapstick comedy, then you, who yet persist, must look into your own hearts for the answer.

Really, though, I think that there is slight cause for my effort at self-defense.

I doubt if these unctuous words will deprive anyone "in Newark and vicinity" of any portion of their usual amount of sleep.

For, like the rest of America, this delightful little village appears to be on a seven-year intellectual and spiritual fast, beginning all over again each succeeding year.

And who is he who would dare to steal the incense of self-conceit that you burn before your souls in gilded tea cups?

Where is he who would have the courage to endanger his contentment and, perhaps, his livelihood by preaching to you the truth about yourselves?

But then who can do it better than your own conscience?

And here I have started out with trolley-cars and am come to ask impertinent questions about things with which I should have no concern, questions which you, no doubt, asked yourself and answered long ago, when I was in the short-trousers, or apple-stealing, age.

But this space must be filled, and I feel confident that you big-hearted, unselfish citizens, you persons whose proper abode should be Utopia, or Heaven, or some other outlandish place, you who never gossip about your neighbors nor try to "outshine" your social rivals, I feel, in short, that you all will receive this overflow of rhetoric kindly, placidly, unconsciously.

And feeling confident of this, I experience no hesitation in now sending this "copy" out to the linotype man.

sale and an entertainment near Christmas time.

Taylor's Bridge

The meeting of Taylor's Bridge Community Association on Friday evening, November 20, was well attended. The president, Mrs. Arthur Ginn, presented in a very efficient manner the illiteracy problem which is being talked of at Parent-Teacher meetings through the state. The program consisted of an observation of Education Week, a demonstration by the school children, and a recitation by Miss Elizabeth Kimmey and two vocal selections by the Misses Elizabeth and Alberta Kimmey, Lillian Alfrey and Martha Boyer. Refreshments were served during the social hour at the close of the evening.

Yorklyn

A large number of members and visitors attended the meeting of Yorklyn Community Association on Friday evening, November 20. After the opening exercises, the president, James P. Kane, gave some facts concerning National Education Week, as well as a talk on the Thrift movement in the schools, stating that the children in Yorklyn School saved $900 in their School Savings Fund last year. The parents were then urged to have their girls join the Girl Scouts when Mrs. O'Brien comes to organize a troop in Yorklyn on January 8, 1926.

Hillside

The schoolhouse was well filled for the meeting of Hillside P-T. A. on November 19. The membership committee reported progress toward their goal of 100 per cent membership. It was decided to buy plates and spoons for use at the school. The program included a talk by the teacher, Mrs. Zebbley, on illiteracy; a Thanksgiving play by the children in costume; songs, recitations, and a humorous play by the older girls.

Middletown

Both Mrs. John B. Cleaver, State Treasurer, and Dr. Richard Watson Cooper, of the Service Citizens, spoke at the meeting of Middletown P-T. A. on Thursday evening, November 19, their subject being the illiteracy campaign. The program consisted of songs by Mrs. Townley, accompanied by Mrs. Johnson, and Thanksgiving selections by pupils of the second grade.

Stanton

At the meeting held in the Friend's Meeting House on November 20, the Stanton Community Association celebrated the burning of the note they had assumed in order to place curbs and gutters through their town. This was the cause of great rejoicing, for members of the association now feel free to take up the work outlined by the State Association. Two new teachers at the school are doing excellent work; the children are busy selling candy to raise money to buy a flag pole, and plans are on foot to beautify the school playground.

Mt. Pleasant

At the meeting of Mt. Pleasant Colored Association on November 25, plans were made for a Christmas entertainment for the benefit of the Victrola fund. The parents were told of the night school which is to start in January and many seem to be very enthusiastic over this opportunity to learn.

Union

About 40 were present at the second meeting of Union P-T. A., near Newark, on November 24. There were five new names added to the membership roll. A fine display of useful things made in the Manual Training and Sewing classes was found interesting to the parents. It included book ends, neck-tie racks, match scratchers, picture frames, decorated and stanced; with button bags, sewing bags and paper beads, the work of the girls. Several other projects will be worked out between now and Christmas time, so that they may be used as gifts.

Days when we scour the house for some secure hiding place—when there are deep mysterious whispered conferences—when bundles are smuggled slyly and stealthily into locked closets.

In short the days of our Christmas shopping are here—and they're not tarrying either.

Of course we all do our shopping early—we long ago learned the disappointment and discomfort that comes from tardy shopping.

But the EARLIER we shop means of course that much more peace of mind and the best selection.

And now—where will we select our Christmas Gift?

If it is a gift that you would expect to find in a furniture store here are five big floors literally crammed with suggestions.

And you have, too, the satisfaction of knowing that anything you select here is rightly made and rightly priced—that a gift from Megary's always implies quality.

And of course there are children's chairs and rockers and, most important, a very complete range of high chairs and warm crib blankets and comforts

For more elaborate gifts here are some beautifully made and beautifully upholstered pieces—chaise lounges and comfortable davenports and some unusually fine bedroom suites and odd pieces in the new enamels or the very popular maple—and poster beds and Colonial chests of rich mahogany.

We're ready for your visit, our stocks are complete and of wide range.

The best time to buy is now when we can give you better service and your selection is of course more complete than it will be later on.

HIGHWAYS BUDGET IS PROBLEM AT MEETING

State Commission Met In Dover Yesterday to Outline New Year's Finances.

How many new miles of highway will be constructed by the State during the year 1926, and how every penny of revenue received from the issuance of automobile license tags and gasoline tax shall be spent, was decided at a meeting of the Highway Commission of Delaware at Dover on Tuesday. In effect this was the annual meeting.

1. Paul Jones, secretary of the commission, prepared a budget for the coming year, his figures being used on the receipts for this year up to November, and the revenue from November and December being based on the receipts of the year previous. In this way the sum of money estimated in the receipt column is never as much as it really turns out to be because the automobile industry has been constantly growing, and thus the receipts are always more than the estimated figures.

According to officials of the Highway Commission, economy has been the marked feature of the department in the past year and the figures prepared for consideration by the commission for 1926 bear this statement out.

The second outstanding detail of the new budget, is that after all charges and expenses have been met, including sinking fund and interest, there will be a surplus the coming year of $109,005 with which to build new roads. As a matter of fact that sum will be larger, but according to the law expenditures must be based on the estimated budget. This surplus will warrant the issuance of bonds totalling $1,557,000, or about the value of fifty miles of highway. With the money from bond issues already arranged in Kent and Sussex counties, there is also available from county funds, sums totalling $800,000 in Sussex and $230,000 in Kent with which new highways can be constructed, so that taken as a whole, the county and state funds available now for new roads, from seventy miles upward can be built the coming year if the Highway Commission so decides.

Of much interest to every motorist are the figures showing the two items of revenue. From license fees of motor vehicles and operators of same it is estimated the receipts for 1926 will total $675,000.

The two-cent tax on gasoline, it is estimated, will bring in $325,000 during the coming year. This is an increase of $95,000 since 1924.

CENTREVILLE GIRL CRUSHED IN ACCIDENT

Viola Walls In Critical Condition at Elkton Hospital Following Accident Friday.

Reports from Union Hospital early this week indicated little change in the condition of Miss Viola Walls, aged 20, of Centreville, Md., who was seriously injured in an automobile accident near Glasgow early Friday morning. She suffered a crushed skull and other injuries.

As a result of the accident the state police arrested Franklin Burke, of Chester, Pa., charged with assault and battery. At a hearing before Magistrate Stradley later in the morning, Burke was held in $2,000 bail to await the outcome of Miss Walls' injuries.

Miss Walls had spent Thanksgiving Day with her parents at Centreville and was returning to Chester, where she is employed. The accident, according to Burke, occurred while the automobile was moving at a moderate rate of speed, and is attributed to the slippery condition of the road. Burke said when he applied the brakes to go slower, the machine skidded across the road and crashed down the embankment, pinning Miss Walls beneath the wreckage. Burke escaped injury.

A passing automobilist hurried the injured girl to Elkton but at the hospital it was found her condition was such that an operation could not be performed.

4. Service work of the association, including the adjustment of complaints, providing market information through the Milk Producers' Review, collection of bills and improvement in the system of marketing through the establishment and direction of truck routes.

A report of the secretary, Robert

W. Balderson, was largely of a statistical nature.

The membership of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association has grown steadily. In 1919 its membership numbered 10,538, while today it numbers 19,830. There are 275 local organizations in the various counties of the Philadelphia Milk Shed—comprising 45 counties in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

The association has an accurate record of all the co-operating milk producers in its territory, and maintains complete data as to its members' operations.

Ladies Entertainment

The wives of the members of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association and their guests, the wives of the delegates to the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation were entertained by the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association and the Philadelphia Inter-State Dairy Council at their headquarters in the Boyertown Building, 1211 Arch street, Philadelphia, where demonstrations of the educational programs of the Dairy Council were made and a luncheon, prepared by the Nutrition Department of the Dairy Council, was served. Over 75 ladies attended.

THE PLAYHOUSE

New Bookings

On Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon this week the merry melange of music, comedy and frivolity entitled "Oh, Oh Nurse," which will terminate its road tour in Wilmington immediately prior to its New York engagement, opening at Ziegfeld Cosmopolitan Theatre there on the following Monday. Playhouse patrons are assured by the Playhouse management that this delightful musical comedy will surely please even the most discriminating taste for musical attractions.

On Thursday or Friday, December 10 or 11, Mr. Arthur Hammerstein, producer of "Rose Marie," will present the most pretentious theatrical offering of his career entitled "Song of the Flame," featuring Miss Tessa Kosta and a distinguished company of two hundred people embracing Russian Choral Singers, American singing ensemble, a superb cast supporting Miss Kosta, and its own special symphony orchestra under the direction of Mr. Herbert Stothart who co-authored the music. The gorgeous stage settings were executed by Joseph Urban, the book and lyrics by George Gershwin and Herbert Stothart, the costumes designed by Mark Mooring and the many dances staged by Jack Haskell. As a whole this attraction promises to be the musical comedy-operatic hit of this country today, and the Wilmington Playhouse is most fortunate in obtaining such a colossal theatrical conception.

For the entire week commencing Monday, December 14, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday, the Messrs. Shubert are presenting their world famous operetta of charm, romance, youth, beauty and melody entitled "The Student Prince, in Heidelberg," said by many critics to be the most glorious musical play of our time. This attraction will be presented in its entirety exactly as seen for two engagements last season at the Shubert Theatre, Philadelphia, and as now being presented in its second year at the Jolson Theatre, New York City. The company is composed of one hundred and eight people including a male chorus of sixty voices, and the merit of this organization is absolutely guaranteed by both the Messrs. Shubert and the Playhouse management. The book and lyrics were written by Dorothy Don-nnelly, former star of "Madame X," and the production is staged by J. C. Huffman, music by Sigmund Romberg, and the entire production under the personal supervision of Mr. J. J. Shubert.

For Monday evening, December 21st, the Baltimore Folly Theatre Yiddish Company will return for one performance.

For Christmas and the day following the Messrs. Shubert will present an edition of their now famous "Artists and Models." This attraction of mirth and merriment is an ideal one for the holiday season.

Now it is said Philip La Follette will be a candidate for Senator Leconte's seat. Well, if Wisconsin folks are so fond of the La Follette brand of politics, we suppose we must let them have their Phil.—The Florence (Ala) Herald.

NEWARK, DELAWARE, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1925

NUMBER 44

PRESIDENT GIVES REPORT OF HIS STEWARDSHIP

WASHINGTON'S CROSSING OF THE DELAWARE

The tale of one of the most heroic and significant chapters in American history, that of Washington's Crossing of the Delaware and the resultant victories at Trenton and Princeton, will be told in terms of stark realism to the millions of visitors to the Sesquicentennial International Exposition which opens in Philadelphia, June 1, 1926.

In the exhibit of New Jersey, which embodies the reconstruction of the Hessian barracks at Trenton, will be portrayed the site of the battle that marked the turn of the tide of American fortunes during the Revolutionary War.

The winter of 1776 marked the darkest days of the Colonial cause. When the fate of Independence seemed doomed to disaster, when the colonists felt that theirs was a struggle without gain, and when faith gave way to dismay, it was Washington to whom the people looked for hope and courage. The tale of his crossing of the Delaware has become an epic.

Howe held Philadelphia, Cornwallis was at Princeton, and Rall with 1400 men, mostly Hessians, was at Trenton. The small army at Valley Forge, challenged by the hardships of a severe winter, endured the ordeals of starvation and cold. Weary, half clad, poorly-shod men responded to Washington's orders to advance. In a cold and blinding snow the army began its march to Trenton. Undaunted by the distance the soldiers trudged the white snow for twenty miles, leaving behind a trail in their footprints of blood.

On the night before Christmas, 1776, on the west side of the river and nine miles above Trenton, Washington determined to attack the force of Hessians quartered in that city. He divided his forces into three columns and ordered them across the Delaware. Two columns were forced to turn back because of the difficulties of the passage. A terrific storm and an ice-filled river demanded every atom of strength. It remained for the third column, with which Washington himself marched, to cross the river to the north bank, advance eight miles through sleet, and surround the Hessians.

On Christmas morning in the midst of the revelry of the Hessians, who, boasting of their prowess and invincible strength, were celebrating the Yuletide, Washington made his surprise attack. He forced them to battle and captured a thousand men. Rall was killed in battle and the Hessians were taken to Pennsylvania as prisoners-of-war.

With renewed impetus, Washington and his forces recrossed the Delaware and again faced the enemy, who concentrated a strong force at Trenton. Leaving the camp fires burning brightly, he slipped away during the night, passed the British flank, and on the morning of January 3, 1777, defeated a strong force at Princeton.

EDMUND BURKE

Mr. Burke, who sang here two weeks ago, plays a leading rôle in "Song of the Flame."

Playhouse Offering Two Gigantic Musical Plays During This Month

"Songs Of The Flame" And "Student Prince" Mark Height Of Present Wilmington Theatrical Season; Manager Finney Busy With Host Of Details

Manager Earl Finney of the Playhouse in Wilmington, is offering this month two of the largest musical plays of the current season for Newark theatregoers, "Song of the Flame," with Tessa Costa and a distinguished cast of 200, and "The Student Prince," the year's most popular musical production.

In company with Mr. Milton Bejack, manager of the "Student Prince" company, Mr. Finney paid a visit to Newark friends yesterday. He was in consultation with the deans of both the Men's and Women's Colleges, relative to a proposed student rate for the Romberg masterpiece next week.

As this is normally the height of the theatre season, Mr. Finney has engaged these two offerings for Wilmington. They are far and away the largest productions to have ever shown in the State on two successive weeks.

Hammerstein Directs

Arthur Hammerstein, the producer, and Otto Harbach, who wrote the music of "Song of the Flame," are at the Hotel du Pont supervising the finishing touches to the weeks of rehearsals already held in New York city.

Playgoers have cause for congratulations in the quality of attractions booked for the next three weeks. Indeed the list reads like a metropolitan city theatrical offering, beginning with the "Song of the Flame," to be followed by the Messrs. Shuberts' world-famous operetta, "The Student Prince," and closing with another happy edition of the now famous "Artists and Models."

"Song of the Flame" opens at the Playhouse Thursday night for a three nights and Saturday afternoon engagement. After many weeks of rehearsal in New York City of the big production with its cast that includes an American singing and dancing chorus of 75 and an art choir of 80 distinguished Russian singers of the Czarist regime, Mr. Hammerstein expects it to be one of the most pretentious musical offerings of years. Mr. Hammerstein is personally directing the production, which has cost $250,000.

Mr. Hammerstein will star Miss Tessa Costa, already famous prima donna, in his new, magnificent production. Assisting her will be such celebrities as Edmund Burke, baritone, now a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Hugh Cameron, comedian, who became the talk of Broadway as the possessor of "whispering shoes" and who has supported more stars on the American stage than usually falls to the lot of even the best of principals; Dorothy Mackaye, the clever little dancing comedienne, who comes to "Song of the Flame" from the New York "Rose Marie" Company, and Allan Rogers, tenor, late with Walter Damrosch's New York Oratorio Society. There are others, of course, of equal prominence, histrionically. All will sing and dance to the music of the company's own symphony orchestra of 50 pieces under the direction of Herbert Stothart, who with George Gershwin wrote the music.

Special Train Needed

A special train of five cars rolled into French street station Monday afternoon from New York, carrying the 200 members of the company that will present "Song of the Flame." It is the largest company that ever appeared in a Wilmington production, equaled only by that which rehearsed David Warfield's "Shylock" at the Playhouse, which play, however, was not presented at that theatre, it being canceled at the last minute. The cast of "Song of the Flame" is so large that the dressing rooms at the Playhouse will not accommodate it, so a suite of office in the duPont Building has been secured for additional dressing rooms. A private elevator will be used by the players to and from those dressing rooms and a canvas canopy covers a passageway from the elevator to the Playhouse stage.

Dinner To the Ladies

The men of the Baracca Class of the Presbyterian Sabbath School will give their fourth annual dinner to the ladies of the Sunday School on Friday night, December 11th, at 6:30 o'clock sharp.

Law And Order With Harmony Urges Coolidge In Biennial Message

President Sends Document To Be Read by Clerks In Each House; Discusses All Leading Issues Confronting Country

Washington, Dec. 8 (Special)—President Coolidge today went back to the old custom of sending his Congressional Message to the capitol. It was read by clerks in each House immediately after the session convened at noon. He thus brought an end to the personal visits of Presidents on such occasions, instituted by the late Woodrow Wilson.

Both Senate and House chambers were well filled with members today, as were the galleries. All listened carefully to the message, in which the attitude of the White House was given on many important issues of the day.

SYNOPSIS OF MESSAGE

President Coolidge in his message to Congress made a literal report upon the state of the Union. The condition of the country, he said, was one of progress and prosperity. Further improvements were to be secured by perfecting details of management, not by new or radical adventures. Congress is a national, not a local government body. That must be borne in mind, for local self government is one of our most precious possessions.

Government Economy

The wealth of the country, he said, is private not public. No right exists to levy on a dollar or to expend a dollar of the money of the people except for a necessary purpose. Progress has been made. The expenditures for 1925 were five times as great as in 1916, the last pre-war year, but if debt and war time expenses and obligations are deducted we find that the general governmental outlay is only slightly more than twice as large as in 1916. The real improvement must come not from additional curtailment of expenses but a more intelligent spending. Our economy must be constructive. That is economy in the best sense. It is an avoidance of waste that there may be the means for an outlay tomorrow.

Public Debt. Its Reduction

We still have an enormous debt of twenty billions of dollars. Our expenditures are close to $30 for every inhabitant and for the average family a tax, directly or indirectly paid, of $150 for national purposes. To this local taxes must be added. Our war debt has been reduced six billions of dollars, which means an annual saving in interest of close to two hundred and fifty million dollars. The sooner the debt is retired the more will the tax payers save in interest. It has always been our policy to retire our debts; the Civil War debt was retired in 23 years. Referring to the argument lately raised, that our debt should be allowed to run for 62 years, as in European countries, the President said that in the retirement of a billion dollars of the debt in twenty years, at 4 1/2%, the cost to the taxpayers is a total of one billion eight hundred and fifty million dollars, while if the same sum is paid at the end of 62 years the cost is three billion six hundred and thirty-five million dollars, or almost double.

Taxation, the Revenue Bill

While admitting that the income tax exemptions, as set forth in the new revenue bill, go somewhat further than he should have gone, and go as far as he thinks it is safe to go, the President commends the bill as submitted and the patriotic attitude of the members of the ways and means committee which framed the bill. He says he is advised it will be through the House by Christmas and he hopes Congress as a whole will follow this course so the tax payers can have relief by the time their first tax payment is due in March. The aim in reducing expenditures, he says, is to reduce taxes, not to benefit the rich but all the people, to encourage industry that employment may be plentiful, to make business good that wages may be good to encourage prosperity that poverty may be banished from the homes.

Locarno Agreements

The message stresses the importance of the Locarno pacts for the peace of Europe and the world. Today a firmer friendship exists and the world. Today a firmer friendship exists between America and the rest of the world than has ever existed at any previous time. America, the message recites, took no formal part in the negotiations, but on July 3rd, in assachMusetta, the message recites, the President publicly advocated such an agreement. By precept and example America has thus aided. When finally adopted, the message says, the natural corollary to these treaties should be further international contracts for the limitation of armaments on land and sea.

The World Court

The proposal pending before the Senate for nearly three years to adhere to the protocol establishing the Permanent Court of International Justice was made depending on four conditions: first, that by supporting the Court we do not assume any obligations under the League; second, that we participate upon an equality with other states in election of judges; third, that Congress shall determine what part of the expense we shall bear; fourth, that the statute creating the Court shall not be amended without our consent. To these I have proposed an additional condition, that we are not to be bound by advisory opinions rendered without our consent. The Court derives all its authority from the statute and it is so completely independent of the League that it could go on functioning if the League were disbanded, at least until the terms of the judges expired. No provision of the statute seems to me to give the Court any authority to be a political rather than a judicial court.

"We are not proposing to subject ourselves to compulsory jurisdiction. If we support the court, we can never be obliged to submit any case which involves our interests for its decision. Our appearance would always be voluntary, for presenting a case which we had agreed might be presented. There is no more danger that others might bring cases before the court involving our interests which we did not wish to have brought, after we have adhered, and probably not so much, than there would be of bringing such cases if we do not adhere. I think that we would have the same legal or moral right to disregard such a finding in the one case that we would in the other.

"If we are going to support any court, it will not be one that we have set up alone or which reflects only our ideals. Neither will it be possible to support a court which is exactly perfect, or under which we assume absolutely no obligations. We shall not find ourselves bearing a disproportionate share of the world's burdens by our adherence, and we may as well remember that there is absolutely no escape for our country from bearing its share of the world's burdens in any case."

In regard to the matter of foreign debts that have not yet been funded, the President said, "Every reasonable effort will be made to secure agreements for liquidation with the remaining countries, whenever they are in such condition that they can be made."

The President also touched upon the matter of alien property, the matter of immigration, and national defense. On this latter subject the President stated that aviation is of great importance, and that the Department of War, Navy, and Commerce, should each be provided with an additional Assistant Secretary whose duties would be to give special attention to air navigation, both

Ohio College Trying Out New "Frat" Plan; Faculty Is Governing Board

Muskingum College Believes It Has Found The Ideal Type Of Fraternal Life On The Campus; Faculty Rents Cottages For Societies

An experiment, which may affect the campus life of many colleges and universities in the entire country, and perhaps the world, has just been inaugurated at Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio. Briefly it is a sincere effort to realize the advantages of fraternal life without the disadvantages which thus far in campus history have accompanied it.

Muskingum College never has allowed fraternities, male or female, upon her campus. As the human instinct is gregarious, there has been a desire for some sort of social club life. Several strictly local social clubs organized, although they had no sanction by the administration of the college. Some of them even adopted Greek letter names. This led to some discussion especially among the older alumni as to their right to be on the campus.

Last June the Board of Trustees, after careful consideration, authorized the Executive Faculty, the administrative body of the college, to draw up a plan of operation with regulations which would retain the advantages and benefits of the social club life without the accompanying evils. The result is believed to be unique in college annals and is expected to solve the problem of Muskingum College as well as that of many other institutions over the country.

Plan Outlined

The plan provides for the organization of clubs, which may not bear any Greek or other name suggesting a fraternity, and whose charters are obtained from the Executive Faculty. The constitution of each club must be submitted to and approved by the Executive Faculty. No change in the document may be made without consent of the Executive Faculty.

Those clubs which may wish to maintain individual homes, may do so by communicating with the Executive Faculty which will endeavor to rent such building as will suit the club, and then sub-let it to that club. Where a separate home is maintained by a club, either a member of the faculty or other responsible person approved by the Executive Faculty, shall reside in the club house.

New students in the college may not be extended an invitation to join the club before the Friday nearest the fifteenth of March, following their admission to the school. Their initiation into full membership shall occur not later than May 15, and "tasks" imposed together with initiation shall require not more than one night, and shall take place wholly within the club quarters. Students of more than one year's residence at the school may be invited to the club at any time and the period of probation shall not exceed two months.

Council Appointed

The plan advanced by the Executive Faculty also includes the formation of a Council which is to be composed of at least two members from each club and two from the faculty. This council shall generally supervise and counsel the various clubs.

All the clubs, with one exception, now existing on the campus have ratified the plan and President J. Knox Montgomery has just finished signing charters for these organizations. Much of the plan has been worked out by President Montgomery, who is a keen student of human nature, in connection with a small committee of the Faculty. So long as the club abides by the spirit and rules formulated, it can exist and flourish; but the moment the rules are violated the Executive Faculty may and will revoke the club's charter. Through this faculty supervision, such evils as fraternity politics, snobbishness, excessive expenditures, etc., are expected to be eliminated. Dr. Montgomery has announced that any schools desiring complete information concerning the plan, may obtain same by writing to him.

PORK MUST BE PROPERLY COOKED

Dangers of Disease Impossible If Care Is Taken In the Kitchen.

Of all the animals which man uses for food the pig is probably the most voracious.

Pork, because of its excessive amount of fat, has a high fuel value but is difficult for many digestions. It should not be served on a hot day. It is heavy, rough food for the out-of-door worker, for the man who, because of the physical effort required by the nature of his work, needs food rich in fuel values.

All pork products should be cooked thoroughly.

Trichinosis, more generally known as trichinosis, is a common and important disease of hogs readily communicated to man. It is produced by an animal parasite called Trichinella Spiralis, a round worm which lives its life cycle in the hog, in the rat or in man.

It has been estimated that from 1 to 2 per cent of American hogs are infected with this parasite.

Rapid Growth

When infected meat is eaten and these muscle cells are broken up and dissolved in the stomach, the larvae are set free and enter the intestines, where they find conditions which favor a rapid growth.

Within two or three days these larvae develop into full grown worms.

These young parasites finally imbed themselves in the muscles, grow rapidly in size, take on their spiral form and soon begin the formation of a cyst. Cysts occur usually about a month after infection.

The worms do not persist in the intestine for long. They usually appear within five or six weeks.

A hardening around the cyst in the muscle frequently takes place within six months after the infection. Parasites may remain alive for many years.

If the host does not die these parasites will finally be absorbed or themselves become hardened. If they are sufficient in number, death may take place within a few days.

The acute form of the disease is serious and is characterized in many by two stages, the first, or gastro-intestinal stage, and the second, the stage of general infection.

The symptoms of the general infection stage are fever and intense pains in the muscle. It is estimated that the average death rate for trichinosis is about one-half of typhoid fever.

Pork Sausage

Perhaps the greatest danger of all from trichinae lurk in pork sausage.

Trichinosis is easily prevented. The organisms can be destroyed and the infection prevented by properly cooking all pork products. A temperature of 160 degrees Fahrenheit kills the parasite.

Pork, properly cooked, therefore, may be eaten without danger of infection. Fresh pork should be cooked until it turns white. Pork which is red in color at the center of the piece or near the surface is not thoroughly cooked.

Dry salt pork, smoked pork and pickled pork, provided the curing process has been thorough, are as a

3 Reasons To Die; None To Live

Elijah Bodett, 77 years old, retail shoe dealer of Churchville, New York, had "no reason to live and three good reasons to die," so he took the shortest way out, according to official investigation reports.

Mr. Bodett's body was found in an alley. His throat was slashed.

In his pockets were found three letters, one addressed to a Spencerport undertaker, one to Coroner Atwater and one to his wife, son and daughter.

The letter to the undertaker said, in part:

"I have not one reason to live and three good reasons to die. They are: Peace, quiet and comfort."—Baltimore Evening Sun.

rule, safe so far as trichinosis is concerned.

Gifts for the Young Fellows From the Store that Serves Them

YOU can never go wrong on gifts for him if you know the shop where he buys his things. Nearly everyone in Newark knows the "Quality Shop." It's a real Man's Store. We even might know just what he likes in colors, his taste in hosiery and how he is gloved. At any rate, we can help you fathers, mothers, sisters and—shall we say sweethearts—in picking out just the thing He wants. Get that habit—and Christmas shopping for Him will be easy.

Now When It Comes to Ties

Figured silks, soft crepes and the always popular regimental stripes for the young man and the solid distinctive tie for the older are wanted this year. We have them all—at mighty attractive prices, too.

Whose Going Away This Christmas?

All right, just give a glance at your wardrobe. With the rush of buying other things, don't forget that good looking shoes finish off the well-dressed man these days. We mention the Crosley—for young and old. You can see it any day in our window—and it looks even better on the foot.

Just a Word To the Fathers

Have you ever thought what a great hit you would make with the boy to write him out a check and say, "Go on down now and buy yourself a suit for Christmas?" Seems unromantic, doesn't it? But in many cases you will have struck just the right chord in him.

And speaking of clothes for the well-dressed young man, as well as for father himself, there's one—The Society Brand—which is a standard in itself. The nicety of design, thorough workmanship, and attention to little details which go towards long wear, make these suits the finest sort of gifts from Dad.

Hosiery May Not Be Seen-Nowadays

But it feels mighty good to know that you've got the right weight and color for this season's wear. No more practical and wanted gift was ever invented for mankind than a pair of good hose. The world over, Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without somebody thinking of getting them for the Man. Don't just say "Any kind," come in here and let's talk it over. We might know just what he prefers. Which, of course, will make his "Thank You" come right from the heart.

LIGHTNING PLUS IMAGINATION

Fear of lightning is far out of proportion to the grounds for it, according to the revelations of a survey made by Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, Massachusetts Commissioner of Agriculture, says the New York Times. This survey showed that the chance of death by lightning is only one in more than a million.

In the course of five-year periods in Massachusetts only nineteen persons were killed by lightning, an average of 3.8 persons a year. This is only one ten-thousandth of one per cent, of the State's population. It figures but one chance in 1,013,770 of a person's being killed in the Bay State by a bolt from the clouds.

The survey indicated that the man on the farm is ten and a half times as likely to be struck by lightning as his city brother, because of the scarcity in rural communities of steel-framed buildings, trolley wires, etc., that in the city relieve much electrical tension while a thunderstorm is gathering. But Dr. Gilbert assures the farmer that if he is in a house properly equipped with lightning rods, he is in no greater danger than the city man. The farmer is 20,000 times safer from harm than a man dodging motor traffic in a large city.

Dr. Gilbert's survey was made primarily to determine the extent of the damage to crops by thunderstorms. He found that while these storms caused thousands of dollars' worth of damage to crops at times, they aid agriculture much more than they harm it. The rainfall they bring saves large areas of products that would otherwise perish.

Out of pure humaneness one must say that few dogs are so homely as the dog drawn by the cartoonists.

GOLDFISH--The Bane of the Expressman's Life

"Goldfish," said an official in the office of the American Railway Express recently, when asked to name the commodity most difficult to handle in transit; and if not the most difficult, then surely one of the most difficult, he added. The company handles thousands upon thousands of them yearly, hospitals, it seems, being the largest purchasers of goldfish, where they are considered beneficial and restful for nervous patients. Indiana boasts the biggest goldfish "farm." At the hatcheries of the Grassyfork Fisheries some 5,000,000 young are raised each year, there being 10,000 mother fish, the whole outfit requiring the constant services of fifteen experienced persons.

This goldfish farm owes its creation to an advertising campaign some twenty years ago, when a well-known washing powder concern offered gold fish for coupons from its product. Asked to raise them to meet the demand, Eugene C. Shireman started the farm. Today there are 600 acres of gently rolling hills, with 180 ponds, terraced and fed, as are the sorting houses also, by innumerable springs, with a continuous supply of fresh water.

In addition to the common goldfish raised in the Grassyfork Fisheries are comets, Japanese nymphae, American fantails, Chinese Moors, Japanese fantails, Chinese red telescopes, lion heads, orandas and calicoes. Caretakers are kept particularly busy during the spawning season.

When the mother fish have deposited their spawn on nets especially constructed for the purpose, the spawn is put into hatching tanks and kept there for two or three weeks. The baby fish are transferred to ponds when they are old enough and fed on mush of cornmeal, wheat and oats, which is cooked in large steam cookers. One hundred and twenty ordinary washtubs full of this mush are needed for the young fish daily.

How They Are Collected

The goldfish is able to live for a very short period out of water, and when the young fish are a few months old and are ready for shipping, they are collected by the simple method of draining the ponds. This is done slowly, the receding water facilitating the taking of the fish in nets, after which they are hauled in tubs to the sorting houses, graded according to size and kind and put in small concrete tanks. Here they are allowed from three to five days to accustom them to changed conditions entailed by removal from the pond. This is technically called "hardening."

The recipient of a can of goldfish should realize how much personal care the expressman's charges have received. Careful directions appear on the label attached to every can of goldfish shipped. Every one concerned is requested to:

1. Handle carefully.
2. Change the water every twelve hours, but remember that too sudden a change of temperature may kill the fish. Therefore pour off only half of the old water and add the same amount of cool, clean water. Fill the cans not more than three quarters full, as too much water does not leave enough room for air.
3. Make a notation on the tag when the water is changed, so that the next employee handling the fish will know when to change it again.
4. Do not feed en route, as the food will sour and cause gas that is apt to kill the fish.
5. Don't smother the fish. They breathe and must have plenty of oxygen. Leave an air space in the can from the handles up and do not pile packages on top of it nor load it in sealed cars. When the fish come to the surface and gasp this indicates that the oxygen in the water has been exhausted and the water should be changed.
6. Keep the cans out of the sun in Summer and away from steam pipes and stoves in Winter. Don't allow the water to freeze.

Live When Frozen Solid

7. Remove dead fish which float on top of the water. Some fish will live for a long time even though frozen solid and can be gradually thawed out in a warm room.

8. If there are any great numbers of the fish dead give the can a complete change of water, but be careful as to the change of temperature. Do not use ice cold water in Winter.

9. Watch the actions of the fish closely. When they show signs of exhaustion or sluggishness it is good to add a teaspoonful of table or sea salt and then shake the can a bit, which induces oxygen in the water. This is also found to be beneficial in keeping the fish alive.

10. Deliver fish promptly upon arrival at destination point.

While some of these directions may be a bit unscientific, the express company's official commented, the result is, generally speaking, correct and serves to keep down the losses, although a certain percentage of loss is inevitable.

Many shippers, he said, use a can so constructed that a small piece of ice can be placed on top. This melts gradually, and, dripping slowly through the holes in the top of the can, helps keep the fish alive and is especially beneficial when they are very delicate. The ordinary goldfish, however, is exceedingly hardy and not easily injured. It is well known that a small tank containing ordinary goldfish may gradually freeze into an almost solid block of ice, the fish in the center apparently suffering no harm, if the ice is gradually thawed out.

Following is a brief description of the comets, nymphae, telescopes, Moors, etc., mentioned as raised on the Indiana goldfish farm.

The Comet is longer and slimmer than the ordinary goldfish and the fins in particular are very much longer and more free-flowing. It is an exceedingly rapid and graceful swimmer and very hardy.

The Japanese nymph has a full-rounded, short body with a straight, well spread, not drooping tail. The upright or dorsal fin, spreading up from the center of the back, is large and erect.

This One Has Two Tails

The fantail is a double-tailed goldfish, with long body, but fins not highly developed.

Chinese Moors are an immense velvety black, with the body and fin development of the fringed tail.

The telescope goldfish has large, projecting eyes, somewhat suggesting a telescope barrel. Seen for the first time they give one quite a shock. It is of Chinese or Korean origin.

The lionhead, sometimes called the buffalohead, takes its name from a thick growth over the gill plates, giving the head somewhat the effect of a very large raspberry. It has a very short, thick body and no dorsal fin. The doubletail is very short but wide. The oranda has a dorsal fin and longer fins and tail than the lionhead, although the head is a modification of the lionhead. The long tail is double.

The calicoes take their name from the colors which they display. Whether a calico telescope, with round body, wide-spread tail and protruding eyes, or a veiltail calico telescope, with soft, sweeping, very long tail, the calicoes are much admired for their brilliant shades and mottlings—bright reds, blues, yellows and other colors.

Under proper conditions goldfish live to be thirty years old. In good aquarium conditions they live from ten to twenty years. Their actual average life span is said to be only six weeks, due to general ignorance in regard to their care.

DIVORCES INCREASE; MARRIAGES DROPPING

So Says Report from Washington Department of Commerce Concerning Delaware.

According to figures just made public by the Department of Commerce at Washington, the number of marriages in Delaware increased 103 in the year 1924 over 1923 and the number of divorces increased twenty. There were 1236 marriages performed in Delaware last year, as compared with 1339 in 1923. The number of divorces granted was 177, as compared with 157 in 1923, an increase of 20 divorces.

According to the figures a total of 1,178,206 marriages were performed last year in the United States as against 1,223,924 in 1923. Divorces in 1924 totaled 170,867 as compared with 165,096 for 1923. Marriage ceremonies decreased 45,718, or 3.7 per cent. Divorces increased last year by 5771, or 3.5 per cent over the number reported for 1923.

Bausman Sums Up Work Of Year Throughout County

Agricultural Agent, In Report To Farm Bureau Last Week,
Reviews Each Farming Industry In Turn

R. O. Bausman, New Castle County Agricultural Agent, reviewed the work of the Farm Bureau and the University of Delaware Agricultural Extension Department for the past year in a lengthy report submitted to the New Castle County Farm Bureau in session at Stanton last Wednesday. There has been a large amount of experiment and survey work carried on in the county during the year.

The morning session was devoted largely to business and hearing of reports while there was a number of interesting addresses in the afternoon. Miss Kathryn E. Woods, of the University of Delaware Extension Department had charge of the women's program. Among the speakers in the afternoon were John D. Reynolds, of Middletown, president of the Delaware Federation of Farm Bureaus; Dr. Claude L. Benner, of the University of Delaware who spoke on "Future of Agriculture in Delaware," and C. R. Lee, of the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange.

Mr. Bausman in summarizing his report says:

Farm business surveys conducted in the Middletown Area indicate that the increase in the prices of field corn and wheat during the period of 1922 to 1925 as compared with the period of 1911 to 1914 was comparatively small. However, the increase in the prices of sugar corn, tomatoes, and asparagus during these two periods was 47 per cent, 80 per cent and 139 per cent, respectively. Apparently, the increasing population in eastern urban centers is creating a greater demand and consequently an increasing price for green and canned foods. These data are essentially applicable to the southern half of the county. However, in a general way they apply to the entire county.

This survey showed that those farms in the Middletown Area that had only two sources of income, namely, wheat and milk, returned an average labor income of $-186. However, those farms that had five or more sources of income, that is, those farms that supplemented wheat and milk with the production of sugar corn, tomatoes, asparagus and poultry products, returned an average labor income of $969. Apparently, those farms that had supplemented wheat and milk with the production of the intensive type of crops had developed systems of farm organization and management that permitted the growing of crops or enterprises that returned wider margins of profit, that gave a better distribution of labor, and that reduced the risk of farming.

The certified seed potato demonstrations conducted during the last seven years showed that certified seed, on the average, produced yields at least twice as great as the yields from home grown seed. The use of certified seed potatoes has now become an established practice. The demonstrations during the period of 1923 to 1925 showed that the plots seeded with certified seed potatoes produced an average increase of 41 bushels per acre over that of the plots seeded with second generation seed. Considering the fact that the farmers in the potato growing area, generally, receive as much for their table stock as the certified seed costs them delivered at local shipping points, and in view of the results of these demonstrations it is indeed conservative to state that it would be difficult for the farmers in this area to invest money to a better advantage than to purchase certified seed potatoes annually.

Farm management studies indicate that 17 per cent of the total farm expenses in the southern half of the county were for purchased dairy concentrates. These studies also indicate that those farms that were growing and feeding alfalfa hay were appreciably reducing this item of expense. Five alfalfa demonstrations are now under way. Although the weather conditions have been unfavorable yet with average weather conditions this winter the demonstrations should be in a good state of production next season.

The poor quality of the pasture produced is, doubtless, a major contributing cause of the large amount of purchased dairy concentrates used. A limited number of sweet clover demonstrations have shown that sweet clover pasture has at least twice the carrying capacity as the ordinary rotation pasture. Four sweet clover demonstrations are under way. Even though the weather conditions this season have been severe, yet the stand of sweet clover is fair and should produce a fair amount of pasture next season. The fact that practically all of the seedings of red and alsike clover this season are a failure indicates that sweet clover gives more certainty of a stand than does either of the other clovers.

From 25 to 30 per cent of the tillable area in the southern half of the county is in wheat. Farm business studies have shown that it is imperative that this wheat acreage be supplemented with better paying cash crops if these farms are to produce reasonable returns. Soy beans is a crop that fits in with the crop rotation of this area. Four soy bean demonstrations as a cash crop are under way. The two demonstrations that have been threshed show an average yield per acre of 15.5 bushels. This yield is below the average due to poor weather conditions. The average yield per acre of soy beans in the area is about 18 bushels. The average farm price for soy beans ranges between $2.00 and $3.50 per bushel. The average yield per acre of wheat is 22 bushels. The average price is about $1.00 per bushel. These demonstrations indicate that soy beans could supplement and even supplant a portion of the wheat acreage of this area to advantage.

Local corn shows have been a means of stimulating the selection of improved types of seed corn. The County Agent is aiding several local granges in holding corn shows this fall.

A seed corn survey last spring indicated that only about half of the seed corn in the county was in a condition to warrant its use for planting. Farmers were not only advised of this condition but they were advised relative to sources of corn showing a germination and freedom from disease that would warrant its use for seed.

A graduate thesis written at the University of Delaware shows that from 10 to 25 per cent of the wheat in New Castle County carried stinking smut balls. Two meetings were held in the wheat growing area where the copper carbonate method of treating seed wheat for stinking smut control was demonstrated. Two demonstrations are under way showing the value of this treatment in the control of smut in wheat.

The average annual milk production of the dairy cattle in the county is about 3,000 pounds. Farm business studies showed that, apparently, it was only those herds having an average annual milk production per cow of 5500 pounds and over that had an appreciable influence in improving the labor incomes. Three feeding demonstrations are under way showing the influence of alfalfa hay and sweet clover pasture in increasing the average milk production and reducing the cost of milk production. Records are being kept of amount and cost of feed fed and amount and value of milk produced.

Poultry is an enterprise eminently adapted to this county, yet only about four per cent of the farm income in the southern half of the county, on the average, is derived from the sale of poultry products. The percentage of the farm income derived from poultry products is somewhat higher in the northern part of the county. A poultry extension program is now under way under the direction of the Extension Poultryman. The essential purpose of this program is to advise farmers relative to the fundamentals of poultry management with the thought of making the poultry enterprise a measurable source of income.

Eight poultry culling demonstrations have been held this fall. Fifty-four poultry record keeping calendars have been delivered to individual farmers. These calendars will give the farmers a more intimate knowledge of the performance of their flocks and will put the Extension Poultryman and the County Agent in closer touch with the individual farm flock problems.

Thirty-two per cent of the total farm expenses in the southern half of the county were for labor, according to farm business studies. The most noteworthy example of a farm practice that is extravagant in the use of labor is the method of harvesting field corn. Two demonstrations showed that the average cost per acre for man labor in harvesting corn through the use of the present method was $11.56. The average cost per acre for man labor in husking corn from the standing stalks was $2.30, a saving of $9.26 per acre in favor of the latter method.

The foregoing projects have been carried on with the thought that they would be incorporated into a balanced system of farm organization and management. Five farms are gradually making adjustments leading to this system of farm organization. Estimates based upon the most reliable data available show that the total receipts of the present rotation, for a farm having 200 tillable acres, would exceed the expenses of man and horse labor and fertilizer by $802. The total receipts of the suggested rotation would exceed the expenses of horse and man labor and fertilizer by $2779, giving a balance of $1977 in favor of the suggested rotation. Credit was not given for the increased net returns from the dairy herd as a result of the suggested organization. Records will be taken annually of the individual farms with the thought of measuring the influence of this system of farm organization and management upon the net financial returns.

A farm business survey was taken in the Middletown Area last fall. This area is representative of the type of farming in the southern half of the county. The bulletin "Farming for Profit in the Middletown Area," will soon be off the press. The better paying systems of farm organization and management were discussed at a farm business meeting and a farm business tour held in the Middletown Area. Plans are now nearing completion for a farm business survey to be made in the Hockessin Area this fall. This area is representative of the type of farming of the northern half of the county.

A piece of investigational work conducted at the University of Delaware, namely, "Problems in Marketing Delaware Grown Wheat," was discussed at a meeting in the wheat growing area of the county. It will probably be five years or more before the farmers of this area are ready to develop wheat marketing organizations.

City Furniture Firm To Expand Business; Issue $100,000 In Stock

Miller Brothers, Through Nathan Miller, President, Outlines Plans To Increase Floor Space In Present Building

Once more the Miller Brothers Company, Ninth and King streets, Wilmington, plans a large expansion of its business. As part of this expansion program, Miller Brothers Company is offering an opportunity to its customers and friends to sub-

Delaware. By 1914 it had so outgrown its surroundings that a new location was sought and the present store at Ninth and King streets, which has been completely remodeled, was brought. From there during the past eleven years, Miller Brothers scribe to an issue of $100,000 cumulative seven per cent preferred stock of the company. This issue is for perfecting, developing and expanding the physical properties to accommodate an increased business.

An outstanding feature in connection with this issue is that it is being offered to customers and their friends at par value, $50 per share, and can be bought on the partial payment plan or by payment in full with subscription. The purpose of this is to further build up the rapidly-growing good will of the people of the large area served by this store.

Nathan Miller, president of the Miller Brothers Company and its founder, has operated and directed the business along the lines of volume business, serving the greatest number of people with small profits, quick turnovers and the generous extension of a very liberal deferred payment plan.

Miller Brothers Company is one of the leading furniture stores of Wilmington and the mercantile tax reports show it to be doing more business than any other furniture store in the city. The business has grown so that it has become recognized as a civic proposition and a real asset to the community.

Its development and growth have been sound and sure. In 1900, twenty-five years ago, the business was founded as a partnership. In 1905 it was incorporated under the laws of have furnished the homes of thousands of people.

Miller Brothers Company is well established, serving people at many distant points as well as countless numbers in Wilmington, rural Delaware, and nearby Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and New Jersey.

The business office of the company, the Wilmington Trust Company, Second and Market street office, or the National Bank of Delaware will receive subscriptions.

The stock may be redeemed, at the option of the company, as a whole or in part on dividend payment date, on 60 days' notice, upon payment by Miller Brothers Company of $52.50 per share, plus all dividends, accrued and unpaid.

The present floor space covers four floors and the basement, each being 68 by 100 feet, giving a total of 34,000 square feet of floor space. This space will be increased by additional floors to the extent of about 15,000 square feet.

The Miller Brothers Company was the first establishment in Wilmington to establish a co-operative profit sharing system with its employees and it now is to extend this same principle to its customers and friends.

The reason so few widows bob it is because there is nobody to tell them not to.

NEW STAR SIX IS NOW ON DISPLAY

The Star six cylinder 5-passenger coach, one of three models in the new Star Six line, is a big roomy automobile,—five passenger in fact as well as in name. One of the models is now at the Rittenhouse Motor Co. showroom.

It has the virtue of not merely seating five persons, but of seating them comfortably.

Tall men, the six-foot or taller type, will enjoy riding in this model, there is so much leg room front and rear.

Stout people, people of large girth and wide proportions, will find comfort in the wide generously upholstered seats of the Star Coach.

Included in the Star Six line, is also a Coupe and a Coupster.

Several features of these models should appeal strongly to the automobile buying public.

While nominally two-passenger cars, they will comfortably seat three adult persons. Thus, families of three need not purchase five-passenger capacity in order to meet their requirements.

The unusual carrying capacity, 19 cubic feet, of the rear decks of both Coupe and Coupster recommend them to salesmen and others obliged to carry a large amount of baggage or other material.

Sombody is always shooting through the loopholes in the law.

EUROPEAN INTEREST HIGH; MANY NA- TIONS AT SESQUI

European interest in the coming Sesquicentennial International Exposition is so great that fourteen European countries will participate either officially or unofficially, according to Captain Asher C. Baker, Director of Foreign Exhibits, who has just return from a 30,000 mile trip abroad.

Captain Baker visited all of the principal European countries during the past five months in order to arrange for the exhibits of foreign nations following the invitation of President Coolidge extended to all countries with whom the United States has diplomatic relations.

"The enthusiasm of these nations with regard to the coming Exposition is such that it presages a triumph for the purpose of the Exposition along international lines," he said, "I can definitely state that the following countries will be represented, either in an official or unofficial capacity: France, England, Belgium, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Bulgaria, Roumania, Switzerland, Italy and Spain."

Captain Baker explained that unofficial participation meant that in countries where the government had not made any official appropriations, groups of manufacturers, trade bodies and commercial organizations were arranging to have exhibits displayed which would show the development of their country, along these lines.

The revision of the plans of the Exposition would not in any sense impair its success, Captain Baker asserted. "The scope of the Exposition has not been changed," he said, "and I have every reason to believe that a number of foreign nations will erect their own pavilions and, in addition, display some of their products in buildings to be provided by the Exposition for competitive award."

The development of fine arts in Europe will be shown through displays of paintings and sculpture which depict the modern tendency in art from Poland, France, Belgium, Holland, Sweden and Norway. France, famous for its exports of millinery, gowns, perfumes, fine leather goods and lingerie, will arrange for a display along these lines. While the French parliament adjourned before making an appropriation, Premier Briand assured Captain Baker that his financial aid would be forthcoming at the next session before the opening of the Exposition.

Belgium's colonization of the Congo district and their rubber plantation holdings will be shown in their exhibit.

England will display cutlery, fine linens and crockery in addition to a reproduction of the Taj Mahal, considered by many to be the most beautiful building in the world, which will be a feature of the Indian Pavilion, sponsored by Lord Birkenhead, Secretary of State for India.

A display of the porcelains for which Denmark is famous will feature the exhibit of that country.

Poland, one of the richest agricultural countries of Europe, will build an 18th century villa with gardens. A site has already been selected in the Exposition grounds for this purpose.

Czecho-Slovakia will present a Moravian farmhouse showing the national life of that country.

The Austrian Tyrol, the land of enchantment, will be reproduced in miniature together with a display of the artistic industries of the country. Hungary has accepted officially and has appointed a commission to study

Hosts to Athletes Thursday Night.

The Delaware football varsity squad, their coaches, managers and members of the Athletic Council, were guests Thursday evening of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hulihan at "The Knoll." A sumptuous dinner was spread before the athletes, and it is reported that they did full justice to it.

During the evening short talks were given by Professor Howard K. Preston, president; J. Pearce Cann, J. Alexander Crothers and Dr. A. S. Eastman, of the Athletic Council; Dr. Hulihan, Coach Frank Forstburg and Captain "Lou" Kramer who led the Blue and Gold on the football field the past season.

Others present at the dinner were Torbert, Wootten, Davis, Coppock, Hubert, Beatty, Loveland, Barkley, Creamer, Reybold, Owens, Glasser, Weggenmann, Cherpak, Lehman, Hanson, McKelvey, Patchell, Manager Atkins, Assistant Manager Donohue and Assistant Coach Myers.

Ditched!

No matter how new and shiny the automobile is, and how proud is the owner of it, the car is just crowded right off the road by the new yearly model, into the ditch of depreciation. On goes the new yearly model until another date on the calendar crowds it, too, into the past as a last year's car, no matter how good its condition still may be. Of course, that's waste. A better economic policy is to keep models up to date all the time, so the owner can drive them for the full mileage built into them without being embarrassed in the presence of his friends by being crowded into the last year's class by another annual model.

M. E. Sunday School

Interest in the Sunday School at the M. E. Church continues to grow. Attendance is averaging 260 or more. A number of the classes have had perfect attendance lately but some are still far short.

Special interest and a good surprise to most every one was the appearance of an orchestra in the Junior and Intermediate Departments the past Sunday. Three string instruments and two wind instruments reported at the practice on Friday evening from 6.30 to 7.30 in the Church and Christmas pieces occupied the time. Sunday the orchestra played in the regular Sunday School service. There are four more who have been practicing with us but were not out Sunday. The practice is not restricted to any denomination

ODE TO A TYPEWRITER

JACK EDWARDS in the "Linotype News"

Midnight past . . . an hour past . . . to his knees—to pray . . . The scarred right hand gripped more tightly yet the sword hilt . . . Out flashed the great blade to the ready . . . Weirdly, awfully, along the glistening, gleaming length of it, like a frenzied flood of molten death fire, flashed the lantern's rays—and hurled additional dervish phantoms about the door—the fatal door . . .

Its song is becoming familiar. Every night for the last week and more it has been caroling. Promptly at midnight it begins, and lifts its way along, with varied pauses, to one o'clock . . . one thirty . . . one forty-five. Round two its singing ceases, leaving the shadow haunted court to reluctant and brooding silence.

One of many such machines in this house, that particular one stands out. Others there are almost as ambitious, nearly as late working. But none of them is quite the same as it. It has a hilt all its own. It has a heart. It has a soul.

Who can be guiding its song? A man of some sort, of course, for this is a man's club. His window is raised a little, but the shade is low—an amber shade. Can it be a mere boy looking bravely out over a troubled world, strong and joyous in his heaven sent belief that deep within his own heart he holds the answers to its countless problems—the panacea for its many ills—the song of songs—of hope and guidance—for the ages yet to be? Or is it, possibly, a man of middle age still struggling with himself, still adjusting his life to the world life and its inexorable laws? Not an aged man, of course, for this is a club for younger men. A mere boy it must be—just listen to the hilt! Click-i-ty click! Click-i-ty Click! Click! Click!

What can it be singing? Perhaps it is a newspaper story—a feature for a Sunday paper—a throbbing editorial—a first novel.

Can it be an illiad of adventure? . . . Down the murky way between the tavern and the coach house, slowly, tensely, they glided—the tall cavalier with his mud splashed cape close about him, his dripping plumed hat pulled low over sinister eyes, his scarred right hand gripping his sword hilt—the hilt of the long, heavy blade that extended below his cape, the dripping scabbard of which, as they glided on—slowly, tensely on—brushed with slippery rhythm against the clay flecked flap of the left of his heavy riding boots. Behind him quaked the landlord, fatty fearful, teeth chattering, eyes of rolling yellowish whiteness over trembling jowls of yellowish gray, as he showed the way—from the rear! . . . Beyond, above the cavernous doorway, a green lantern flickered and sputtered—hurled dervish phantoms about the door . . . On they glided, slowly, tensely on . . . Before the door the leader paused—let fall his cape. Stooping to catch the garment, the landlord crossed himself and dropped
