STUDENTS TO MOVE BOOKS TO LIBRARY

Be Ready By Xmas

Our new Library is just about finished, and it will be ready for occupancy by the middle of December or by Christmas at the very latest.

Plans for the interior furnishing are now complete and have just recently been made public.

The entire East Wing has been made into a reading room. It is estimated that about five thousand books will be placed around the walls in very attractive bookcases. These are made of walnut to harmonize with the rest of the room.

Privileges For Girls

At the Women's College

A report on Junior privileges has been made by the Academic Council to the Junior Class. Each year it is the custom of the Juniors to petition for certain privileges which they deem themselves worthy of holding. This year, the privileges which have been granted are the following:

It is recommended that the request of the Juniors to be permitted to stop in the drug store after the moving pictures be granted with the understanding that they are to be on the campus by ten o'clock.

It is recommended that the request of the Juniors to be allowed to ride in cars in the town of Newark unchaperoned during the daytime be granted providing that they will agree to the addition of a provision forbidding the use of a car by more than the number of persons which is the legal capacity of said car. "Daytime" is to be interpreted as the time between 8 a. m. and 7 p. m.

Senior-Faculty Game

On Tuesday, Nov. 25th

When knowledge meets ignorance, it is to laugh. Thus when wisdom, personified by the Faculty, meets the abysmal brute on Frazer Field on next Tuesday, there will be ample reason for smiles.

Little can be said of the blissful Senior team without giving too much information. As for the Faculty omens stellar, Dr. Manns, who always carries great weight in football matters, will be the leader. However, he will not stand alone, for Major Underwood will also display his football ability.

This great annual classic of the gridiron will be a wonderful illustration of what happens when second childhood meets childhood. Childhood is the best bet.

Prepare for Jr. Prom

At Women's College

The Junior Class of the Women's College has started preparations for the Junior Prom. This dance will take place some time soon after the Christmas holidays. There have been no definite arrangements made for the dance. So far only the chairmen of the committees have been announced. They are as follows: Music, Sally Calloway; Program, Lillian Deen; Refreshments, Anne Passmore; Decorations, Louise Harris; Patrons, Merrill Pyle and Virginia Chipman.

THE DELAWARE ELEVEN

Freshman Parade

Tonight—By Heck

The Freshman Parade! What's that? Why, that's the biggest "PEP" event of the whole year! That's one of the paramount steps in our victory over Dickinson! Everyone in town will know exactly what that "Freshman Parade" is tonight!

To begin with, all Freshmen must masquerade. The Frosh will report in their costumes at 6:45 p. m. in West-Wing for roll-call. Then the program of the evening will be commenced. The masqueraders will parade through the streets to the snappy music of Director Givan's Band.

After the frolic in the night air, the scene of the fun will be transferred to the Commons in Old College. Here the principal events of the evening will take place. First there will be the contest to determine the best

Educators To Fight For

Free Speech In Colleges

Interference by college authorities with the right of students to hear radical speakers will be fought by a national committee on Academic Freedom just organized by the American Civil Liberties Union, according to a circular sent yesterday to college liberal clubs throughout the country. The committee is headed by Prof. Clarence R. Skinner, of Tufts College, Mass., and includes leading university professors and educators.

The committee in its announcement says that it will not duplicate work done by other organizations "primarily concerned with restrictions on classroom teaching and discharge of teachers for their views." It will deal with "laws restricting

Mock College Hour

Never before in the history of the University has such a glittering array of luminaries representing the faculty graced the boards of Wolf Hall at College Hour, as that which greeted the student body of Delaware College last Tuesday. That College Hour is becoming more and more popular was shown by the number of girls that had to be turned away from the auditorium. The speakers faced the most attentive and enthusiastic audience that ever warmed the seats and were the flattered recipients of vociferous and sincere applause.

Dr. Ryden, alias Green, presided over the exercises and introduced the speakers. After the singing of "America, the Beautiful," led by Dr. Ryden, Dr. Hul-

Delaware Defeats

Geo. Washington In
Best Game of Year

Jackson Breaks Arm

Cherpak Saves Game Three Times for Delaware

The plucky Delaware eleven took their third straight victory by defeating the powerful George Washington team by a 6-0 score. The Capital City boys brought a fast, heavy, well-drilled team to Newark, and after having won from several large colleges and tied the mighty Johns Hopkins team thought the little Delaware eleven would be easy-going. The locals, however, came thru with the best football playing seen on Frazer Field in years. Outrushing their opponents in the first half, they came back to stave off the heavy thrusts of the Washington backs in the final two quarters.

Loehler, former Lafayette star, sliced off yard after yard but was stopped when yardage for a touchdown was needed. Twice Delaware held for downs when their goal was in danger and three times did the diminutive quarterback, Cherpak, save the game.

Red Cross Drive On

At Women's College

The American Red Cross is making its annual appeal for members. In a short talk in chapel the other morning Miss Edwina Long told of the worthy work which this organization has done and is doing. It hardly seemed necessary to remind the students of the work which the Red Cross did in the last war.

The organization works in the schools over the state by giving courses of home nursing to the girls and boys. The membership fee which is one dollar may be paid to the committee which consists of Bertha Staats, '25; Irene Wilkinson, '26; Anne Passmore, '26; Thelma Buell, '27; Dorothy McDaniel, '27; Jean Middleton, '27; Jeanette Shallcross, '28; Katherine Dougherty, '25; Ethel Stengle, '28.

Interesting Items

It is with regret that the students of the Women's College learn of the decision of Mrs. Charles H. Blake, wife of the late Doctor Charles Blake, to make her home in Baltimore, Maryland. Mrs. Blake has always been prominent in civic affairs, and has taken a special interest in the college. She has been a very faithful friend of the college and her assistance will be greatly missed.

Sophomores Defeat

Fighting Freshmen

In the last two minutes of play, Sweeney scored a touchdown for the Sophomores in the Freshman-Sophomore football classic. This touchdown was score enough to defeat the Freshman team 6 to 3. The Frosh scored in the second quarter when Loveland kicked a field goal from the thirty-yard line.

Loveland, Maloney and Reardon stood out for the Freshmen, while Sweeney was the lone star for the victors. Every man fought a hard game, but experience and the push of the Sophomores won the game for them. The second year men blocked one of Loveland's punts in the last quarter and recovered it on the eleven-yard line. After four downs, which netted a first down, and three line plunges, Sweeney scored a touchdown. The time was up, and a try for

Dougherty, Walker, and

H. Lank Speak at Forum

The students of the University of Delaware who were abroad last year under the Foreign Study Plan, had charge of Forum on November 12. Herbert Lank, David Dougherty, Winston Walker and Cedric Snyder told of their trip, beginning with their "send off" from the United States. Herbert Lank told of the time spent on the steamer and of their arrival in France, remarking that up to that time the atmosphere had been entirely American. He described the living conditions and value of money. He also told of the academic life, noting some of the differences between the French system of education and our own system.

David Dougherty explained the sight-seeing tours that had

Some Brick Are Heaved

At the Fraternity Idol

The Circle, magazine of the University of Chicago, takes a few pot-shots at College Fraternity Life. The attack is made by Bartlett Cormack, an alumnus and ikon-buster.

He scrapes at the fraternity idol, the he-man with the Cluett-Peabody chin; "the fraternity is an incubator of politely complacent bores." And now Mr. Cormack puts aside the scraper and lays on with chisel and mallet.

"The fraternity, smugly disapproves of aspirations, ideas, sentiments, or beliefs that conflict with those customary and traditional in the group, and carries along weaklings, who, but for the fraternity's protection and tutoring would never survive. The fraternity man is an echo instead of a voice."

UNIV. OF MEXICO'S

SUMMER SCHOOL

Plans For 1925

The National University of Mexico, which since 1921 has maintained a Summer School for students and teachers of the United States, announces that prospects are most favorable for a record-breaking attendance next summer. Since the first session of the Summer School was held, nearly every American college and university of importance has been represented among the matriculants.

The faculty of the 1925 Summer School will be composed of professors of the National University, together with several prominent educators from the

Women's College To

Have Flower Garden

Mr. Lee Rose, superintendent of the University grounds, has ordered a large amount of flower seeds and bulbs for the coming spring. He has done this with the intention of carrying out a flower garden which he tried as an experiment this fall and which he had at the lower end of the Women's College campus.

Whether or not this garden would prove successful was a question in Mr. Rose's mind. However, he went ahead and planted a very thick hedge of single and double petaled cosmos of various colors. These flowers bloomed from around the middle of September until they were destroyed by the frosts of last week. Not only have these flowers helped to brighten the campus, but they have been of great use in decorating the various halls and rooms of the college.

Since this experiment was such a success, Mr. Rose hopes to have an even more extensive garden next spring.

Footlights Club Gets

Ready For a New Show

Under the directorship of Jimmy Grant the new Footlights production, "Who's Who," by Leahy and Grant, is rapidly assuming the action and naturalness intended by the authors in its composition. Deputy, Snyder, Tremaine, Yanowitz, and Stroud are doing good work, and promise to reveal some real amateur acting to the student body when the farce-comedy is played at Wolf Hall.

Snyder, Stroud and Tremaine make ideal feminine characters. Snyder, especially, has the build, and what's more important, the voice. When he remonstrates with "Owen," one can almost feel the presence of some deep-toned, wistful, pleading damsel.

First Meeting of

"Cercle Francais"

The first meeting of the "Cercle Francais" of the Women's College will occur shortly after Thanksgiving with an interesting program in French, which is to include a lecture on the Region of the Pyrenees by Made-moiselle Costex. The president for this year is Catharine Dougherty. Miss Richardson and Doctor Patterson are members of the Executive Council, together with Frances Richards, who was president of the organization last year.

WE MUST BEAT DICKINSON!

Tomorrow we meet Dickinson on Harlan Field. Tomorrow we make or mar our football season. Everything rests on tomorrow and what tomorrow brings forth.

At this time we have only one absorbing interest; and that one absorbing interest is to beat Dickinson. What's wrong with education can wait until later for a solution. Right now we are concentrating upon beating Dickinson.

As far as weight and training go, Dickinson has a better team than Delaware. Two years ago Dickinson had a better team than Delaware, had a team which was one of the sensations of the East, and two years ago Delaware beat Dickinson 21-0.

Delaware won that glorious game because the individual members of Delaware's team possessed a higher grade and a stronger type of moral courage than the individual members of the Dickinson team. It was an instance of an inferior team soundly trouncing a superior team through the medium of a great desire and a glorified spirit.

There is a rumor that the Dickinson slogan is "Beat Delaware and Scratch Her from Our Schedule." We think that the Dickinson men are too much of gentlemen to adopt such a slogan. But it makes no difference what their slogan is. We have one of our own, and that is "We Must Beat Dickinson."

The result of tomorrow's game depends entirely upon how seriously we take our slogan. If every Delaware man on the football squad feels "We Must Beat Dickinson," if every Delaware supporter feels "We Must Beat Dickinson," tomorrow we will beat Dickinson.

We call upon you, who love Delaware, who realize that when you leave Delaware that you will leave a part of your soul behind, we call upon you, whose spirits lovingly haunt Delaware and give life to Delaware's traditions, to get into the game spiritually and to fight to the very end.

We call upon you, the members of the team to fight the greatest game of your lives, to have faith and strength of spirit.

You cannot fail—we cannot fail.

We must beat Dickinson.

Six W. C. Seniors Attend
State Teachers' Inst.

Six members of the Senior Home Economics class attended the State Teachers' Institute on Friday, November 14. The Seniors who attended were: Mary Baker, Pauline Moore, Florence Stidham, Mabel Conway, Anna Frazer, and Dorothy Nunn. The members of the faculty who were present at the sessions were: Miss Kelly, Miss Parker, Miss Taylor, and Miss Allen. About two hundred and thirty people, teachers from throughout the State of Delaware, attended the Institute sessions. Since the girls from the Women's College were primarily interested in Home Economics, they attended the Sectional Meeting for Home Economics Workers on Friday afternoon. This was followed by a business meeting of the State Vocational Association, and in the evening, a banquet given by the State Teachers' Association.

In the sectional meeting on Friday afternoon, Miss Ethel Parker, head of the Home Economics Department of the Women's College, gave a lecture on "Budgets." Miss Rachel Taylor, head of the Art Department talked on the "Teaching of the Christmas Art Problem." Miss Elizabeth Kelly, Instructor in Textiles and Clothing talked on the topic, "Demonstration as a necessary part of the teaching of clothing."

All of the meetings were held in the well equipped new school building. The banquet was held in the People's Church. Mr. Everett Johnson, of Newark, was the toastmaster. The new officers for the coming year were introduced. The speakers were Mr. Thomas, of Penn State, and Mr. Woody, of the University of Michigan.

Orientation at W. C.

Miss Marguerite H. Burnett of Wilmington was the speaker at Orientation on Thursday, November 13. Miss Burnett is the State Director of Immigrant Education and her subject was "Americanization."

The speaker at Orientation on Thursday, November 20, was Mrs. Clase.

Dickinson Has Heavy
Well-Drilled Eleven

Delaware faces the powerful Dickinson eleven tomorrow afternoon in Wilmington. The Carlisle eleven has as great a team as the one moulded by Glenn Killinger a few seasons ago. Dickinson will be represented tomorrow by one of the best-drilled teams in Pennsylvania.

The husky lads of Coach Lightner have lost four contests: Allegheny, 7-0; Quantico Marines, 14-0; Lehigh, 15-6, and Muhlenberg, 36-0. Included in the many victories of the Dickinsonians are Franklin and Marshall, 20-7; Villanova, 14-0; Gettysburg, 20-12, and P. M. C., 7-0.

Dickinson hopes to win tomorrow by the heavy line, Rupp's punting and the off-tackle smashes of Nye, Sweely and Carpenter. The Carlisle boys can be conquered by open formations and diversified forward passing for the "boxed-in" defense method.

Sweely, who starred against the all-star Quantico Marines, will start, together with Rupp, Nye and White. The latter is a former Wilmington High boy whom Coach Lightner uses to back up the line and offensively-center rush. Center will be a weak position on the Dickinson line as Crooks, former Chester High star, has been switched from tackle to the center pivot position. One side of the Dickinson line is especially strong—left side—with Captain Roth, Snell and Milligan. The right side is less experienced with Beyon, Peck and Biaz and somewhere between these three men there must be a WEAK SPOT!

As to Dickinson's forward passing it goes via Rupp or Rupp to Biaz—short forwards. Carpenter, right half-back does the end-running, mostly around right end. Sweely, White, together with Rupp are very good punters, and P. Rupp has been running back punts for a season's average of thirty yards. Nye specializes at drop-kicking. Sweely and Nye are heavy line buckers. The Rupp brothers are versatile in open formations. Carpenter catches punts, runs the ends and is fast and heavy. Nye may be shifted to right tackle for tomorrow's battle.

Relations Between
College Men and Girls

The relation between men and women on a college campus is not only an interesting topic but also a vital problem in every university and college.

Dr. Crooks, in his address to the students at vespers on Sunday evening, showed the importance of the topic, and illustrated the need for careful consideration of the problem by every member of the student body.

The relation between either the men or women students and the faculty, Dr. Crooks said was of more importance than we realize. It is in accord with American college standards, and should be encouraged as long as it results in a clear, unbiased friendship.

The last of the relationships which Dr. Crooks mentioned was the one upon which he laid the most stress. It was the relation between men and women students. Just how far can college men and women carry their friendship? Why should there not be intimate friendships between the men and the girls? Surely, there is no better place for worthwhile friendships to be formed than at a college where practically all of the students are on the same social and intellectual level. College friendships are beneficial to both the men and the women when they are carried on in the right way, but in every case, there should be a definite understanding con-

A Tip On the Market

A Bachelor Girl is an old maid with an abundant supply of common sense. But, alas, this specimen of homo sapiens has also been placed in the discard together with the flapper, woolen nightgowns, the free woman, Lydia Pinkham, the girl chanting about her career, morning and evening prayers, and garters. What does this change mean? Simply this: old Friedrich Neitzsche has been swallowed whole by the fair ones. Today the women are admitting they have one purpose in life. There will be no prize offered for the right answer. The chimera of Elaine wasting away in her tower for a sheik like Lancelot is another fable that has faded out of sight with Santa Claus and the Stork. This very afternoon the poor working girl, the sub-deb, and the college maiden are planning to get a man. One will do as well as another. It is only a matter of being lucky if one chances on a good one. Glance at this bit of choice information received over the wire from our News Bureau at New York City:

"At Wellesley they manage things in a quaint way. The college gives a course in love and marriage. The love-lorn and the heart broken at Wellesley receive first-aid right on the campus."

Truly this is evidence of a change among the fair sex. Of course, there has always been that underhand conspiracy among the immediate members of the girl's family to put the match over with a punch, but here we find one of our best institutions offering a course that will scientifically guarantee results or your money back. Naturally there will arise some adverse criticism. But what could be more Christian in spirit? Consider the great horde of left-overs and wallflowers that will now seek admission to the Wellesleyan halls of learning; with their diplomas in hand they will be efficiently equipped to enter the lists with their sisters of the chorus.

The old order is changing—the same as it changed from hobble skirts to the flapper; from the flapper to the present-day hour! Why all this cant from our different universities if this is not so. Why does a faculty decree at Baylor prohibit undergraduates to marry unless the couple spend a year's honeymoon outside of the college? The girls, at best, have tried the trick of ensnaring unthinking fellows with the cloak of the Bachelor Girl, the Feminist, the Intellectual litterateur, and whatnot. . . . Their old tricks have failed. They're getting new ones to put in their bag.

Now, the dean of the school of Arts and Sciences at the University of Texas is of the opinion that the decree forbidding marriage between students while undergraduates is "illegal."

At the University of Delaware if any student is married while erning standards, ideals and morals of both the man and the girl.

Miss Kathryn Ladd, president of the Student Self-Government Association, recently attended a conference of Student Government Councils at Vassar College.

she is an undergraduate she is invited to live with her husband and her name is forthwith scratched from the records. But (and here one cannot help from smiling) if the fair lady is already married before she seeks admission, she is allowed to roam the halls of learning at her leisure and in what manner she pleases.

The plan that is here suggested is this: namely, that our university adopt the lovable curriculum that Wellesley is using. Also that we have the same courses at the Men's college. The student body, at least, would be something like 500,000 inside of three months. The University would then be independent of the legislature; we would have bigger and better libraries to help us along in our education; and possibly, the increased faculty would register such names as Rudolph Valentino, Elinor Glynn, Nita Naldi, and Ben Turpin.

It is a plan worth considering. I am truly altruistic in offering it to the public, because a fair one has already picked me out. And to prove my sincerity I offer my services gratis as press agent.

For what better advice could be given to any college couple than these few wise words that the Editor demanded to be placed at the end of this article: WE MUST BEAT DICKINSON!

Thanksgiving Dinner
At the Women's College

The Thanksgiving dinner at the Women's College will be given on Monday evening, November 24.

The guests will be as follows: Governor-elect and Mrs. R. P. Robinson, Governor and Mrs. William D. Denney, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hulihan, Dr. and Mrs. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Everett C. Johnson, Mrs. A. D. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hall Anderson, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Frame.

The program will include speeches by the presidents of each class, by Dr. Hulihan, Dean Winifred J. Robinson, Mrs. A. D. Warner, Miss Rena Allen, and Mr. Everett C. Johnson.

The toast-mistress will be Miss Kathryn Ladd, president of the Student Self-Government Association.

costume. Then—the performance of skits! This promises to afford much amusement. Third, there will be a contest in new, original college songs and yells. Fifty dollars in prizes will be awarded to the various winners of the different events by the Student Council.

The chief speaker of the meeting will be Mr. Everett C. Johnson, a man who needs no further introduction to the students of this college. Smokes, cider, and pretzels, unlimited in quantity, will be furnished by the Student Council.

The Freshman Parade is one of Delaware's aged traditions! Friday night is to be a perfect and never-to-be-forgotten night—one to be justly recorded on the annals. Let's make this night the eve of another glorious victory over Dickinson!

pak, get a Washington back when he made a mad rush for our goal line.

The wonderful open field running of Gibson was the outstanding factor in the victory. The former Wilmington High halfback intercepted a pass and ran sixty-five yards across the goal line but was called back twenty-five yards for having run out of bounds. In the final minutes of the game Gibson grabbed another of Loehler's forwards and dashed through the entire George Washington eleven for the victorious touchdown.

The game was played in a drizzling rain with snow falling at intervals. This kept the two teams from opening up their open formations although George Washington attempted several "squad" formations in the dying moments of the game.

Captain McKelvie, Kramer and Beatty excelled in the line with Lohman, Owens, Torbert, Reybold, Pedrick, McKaskey and R. McKelvey playing wonderful football. In the backfield Wooten played well until relieved by Gibson. Hubert and Weggenmann played a wonderful game, with Hubert getting his punts off quickly and for long distances. Hubert's punts went for forty to fifty yards every time, and considering the unfavorable weather conditions, this was decidedly remarkable.

The blow, however, in the game was the injury to Jackson who has been playing wonderful football this season. The Dover quarterback had his arm broken and will be out of the Dickinson battle. Prior to his injury Jackson had been cleverly directing his backfield, and his injury will be a severe jolt, coming on the eve of our greatest game.

For the invaders Loehler was the big threat with Lamar and Wagner coming in for a goodly share of applause.

United States. Most of the courses will be conducted in Spanish, thus being of inestimable value to students and teachers of this language; however, a number of general culture courses will be offered in English for the benefit of students having no knowledge of Spanish.

Mexico City is cooler than Denver during summer months, thus being an ideal place for study. The many sight-seeing trips to be offered under University supervision will include visits to world-famed archaeological ruins, pyramids that rival those of Egypt in size and interest, and to many other places of archaeological, historical or scenic interest.

The National University is taking a leading role in the work that is being done to promote a mutual feeling of good will among the intellectual classes of Mexico and the United States, and it is through the medium of the Summer School that this work is most effectually being carried forward. Complete information regarding the 1925 Summer School may be obtained by addressing Sr. Manuel Romero de Terreros, Secretary of the Summer School, Universidad Nacional de México, México, D. F.

Across Another Man's Desk

Those looking forward to careers in business often associate the big accomplishments with men in private offices, who sit back of massive desks. As a matter of fact, there are many important men in an organization like Westinghouse who seldom use a desk or office at all. They achieve by going to other men's offices. They are termed "sales engineers".

George Westinghouse, for example, rendered his greatest service to industry and mankind not merely by perfecting alternating current but by selling it—in the face of the stiffest kind of opposition.

Authorities declared it was impractical; laws were urged against it; yet the salesman, Westinghouse, threw back of alternating current, the strength of his selling personality—with results that can be witnessed in every branch of industrial life today.

Following the example of its Founder, the Westinghouse organization includes a body of engineers whose work is to carry electrical advancement into every nook and corner of the world. They have sold electrification to the factories, the farms, the homes, the railroads, the mines, the ships. They are mechanical and electrical, engineers whose imaginations are fired, not merely by engineering achievement, but by the benefits from such achievement to "the market".

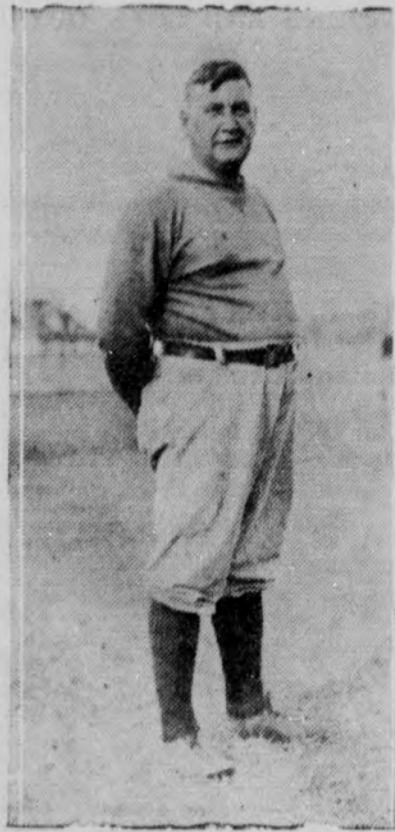

Engineering needs men of sales ability and sales personality; and industry needs to have them in engineering. Organizations like Westinghouse, must sell before they can serve.

A Casual Column of Collegiate Comment

Some persons take life as merely a period in which to kill time—all that they do is wait for death, and make the waiting bearable by artificial stimulation of the senses. Of course, they don't realize that this is true.

The happiest times in life are when one can just live along and enjoy things as they happen.—Morley.

An optimist is a young man setting out for the Library at eight o'clock in the evening. A pessimist is the same young man returning at ten o'clock. Don't, for goodness sake, ask which library.

Love is said to be blind; but I know lots of fellows in love who can see twice as much in their girls as I can.—H. W. Shaw.

Democracy is often just another way of saying hypocrisy.

Nature is a kind mother. She couldn't well afford to make us perfect; so she made us blind to our failings.—H. W. Shaw.

Chance

The most astonishing fact about life is, perhaps, its irregularity. At least, this is one of the most interesting features. By irregularity, is meant how the course of each of our lives can be so easily changed; how some of our lives flow through the years like streams through low flat country, almost direct to the sea with few changes of direction; how the lives of others appear as mountain streams, where a haphazard rock, or a chance boulder, may almost reverse their courses. It is truly fascinating to observe what a tremendous influence mere chance has in our actions, our thoughts, our philosophies, even in our births and deaths.

Complete self-confidence is a weakness.—Chesterton.

The woman who says she hates cavemen should be won by throwing her through the windshield of the car, or by choking her with an inner-tube.

A certain fair Junior received a letter in which "he" said he had been very busy doing library work.

"Are all men false?" questioned the fair Junior mournfully.

It must be awfully unexciting to be a man and not to be able to change one's mind when one wishes.

There was once a professor who did not give outside reading assignments, did not kick about holidays, did not bore one to death with lectures, did not give less than A's in his courses. He is in the business world.

A women's club has decided that Adam was the characteristic man. He ate the apple because it was forbidden. If the serpent had been forbidden, he would probably have eaten that instead.

What every woman believes:
That all men are attracted to her.
That the salesman always sells her shoes too small.
That she is misunderstood.
That she is different.
That Belasco does not know what he is missing.
That beauty is only skin deep, but if you save the surface you save all.
That all men are attracted to her.

The Editor Receives Some More Applause

Fellow students, where is your sense of gratitude? You have been reading for two months the words of wisdom and erudition appearing in this paper, I mean the ones written for your intellectual betterment, and not one of you, as far as I have been able to determine, has offered the author one word of appreciation. I, therefore, have taken it upon myself to speak a few words to this gentleman, and, although I feel unequal to the task, tell him how we appreciate his efforts to pull us out of the rut.

Most learned and august sir, I wish to thank you from the bottom of my heart for your earnest attempts to show us, the members of the student body, just how deficient and inferior we are. If there is any student in this College who does not realize that he is, intellectually, little better than a moron, it is through no fault of yours. Rather does it strengthen your assertion "that the University of Delaware student would be a sorry chap if he were placed side by side on the intellectual line with a Dartmouth, Columbia or a University of Virginia student."

Just to prove that you were right, I walked up to a Senior the other day and said, "Sir, what is the nickname of the King of Siam?" And of course he did not know. You bet your life, intellectually, this place is nil. But what surprises me

The one triumphant and unanswerable epigram of mankind, the grandest and most resolute utterance in the face of implacable fate, is the snore.—Morley.

Now-a-days it appears that we haven't time to be intelligent. But one must not do anything to slow up the progress of "Progress."

DR. SYPHERD
President Athletic Council

most is to find a fellow as smart as you are down here among us poor degenerates. It just goes to show what a man can do: compelled to make the best of a "preparatory school" education, and surrounded by men with little or no mentality, you, personification of wisdom, have learned all there is to know. Miracles are with us still. Not content with your achievements, your are lighting the way for others. Such is ever the way of the truly great

I have only one suggestion to offer; if you could only arrange to have some "real" college man come and speak to us, I know he would have an uplifting influence on us.

IGNORAMUS.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Judging from the manner in which you use the possessive pronoun "their," Ignoramus, a bit of culture would not do so much damage.

Druid Din

Any Freshman who aspires to become a member of the Druid Society can ascertain his eligibility by asking himself the question, "Have I rendered any service to my Alma Mater? Is the service of sufficient value to warrant membership in a society which for many years has boasted of Delaware Men, men of character and initiative?"

NO MAN DESERVES TO BE CALLED "A Druid"—NO MAN DESERVES TO WEAR THE DRUID HAT AND PIN WHO CANNOT GIVE SATISFACTORY ANSWERS TO THESE QUESTIONS. The Druid Society is a worth-while college organization, and should be composed of worthwhile college men, who are not merely "good fellows," but who have the ability to accomplish—to produce results.

Students To Move Books

The West Wing is divided up into a large periodical room and six smaller seminar rooms. The periodical room is to be fitted out much the same as the reading room, but the magazine racks are so constructed that they will display the whole cover of each magazine.

It has not been determined, as yet, just how all of the seminar rooms in this section are to be used, but it is likely that one will be used as the Librarian's office and another as the Review room.

The big hall under the dome is to be known as Memorial Hall. It will have cloak rooms to the left of each main entrance. On the north side, the catalogue will be placed in the wall, and directly across from it will be the delivery desk. The room over this main hall will remain unfurnished for the time being.

All books that are not to be found in the main reading room will be on shelves in the basement.

When everything is ready, the students will be given a holiday in order that they may assist in transferring the books from the old library to the new one. Only the most necessary books will be moved in this manner, and the rest will be hauled by truck and stacked later.

Then it will be possible to tear down the old library and remove forever its traces from the campus.

lihen, alias Walker, exhorted the boys to consider the "skirts" at all times, especially at the Dickinson game. Dr. Foster, alias Tilghman, outlined the life of Shakespeare emphasizing the perils of college life during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. As usual, Long was admonished to park his "Wrigley" behind his ear.

Dr. Bevan, alias Coale, explained the ideal system of marking examination papers, patents for which are pending in Washington. He also related his hectic experiences in France with Professor Mosher.

Dr. Harter, alias Dale, expounded the importance of the stars especially in the study of mathematics. Professor M. V. G. Smith, alias Warner, held the students spellbound by his lucid explanation of Einstein's theory without falling off the stage. Dr. Sypherd, alias Stroud, provided the audience with "aesthetic thrills" by showing how unfortunate indeed is the college student of today who cannot or will not pronounce their P's and Q's correctly.

Dr. Patterson, alias Yanowitz, had the audience in tears—of laughter—by his narration of his Valentinian experiences while in South America. He discoursed on the marvels of South American scenery and the Marmon car. In an interview, Dr. Patterson told the representative of the "Review" that he confidently expects to make the Marmon the most common car on the campus, and that several Freshmen are thinking very seriously of leaving college and going to South America.

Professor Merrell, alias Yanowitz—Yanowitz seems to possess a dual personality—explain-
