HOPE TO MEET GORDON AGAIN

Bayard's 'NASCAR class' given their hero's hood!

NASCAR champ Jeff Gordon, right, and his crew chief, Ray Evernham, stand in Dover beside the brightly-painted car that took him to the top of the racing circuit this year. A damaged hood, similar to the one shown here and signed by Gordon, will be the focus of a fund raiser by Bayard School students next spring. The fifth graders hope to raise as much as $10,000 to further leukemia research. Evernham's son has the disease.

NOT MANY ADULTS would develop grandiose plans for a battered car hood, but 33 fifth graders at Bayard School have a scheme, one they hope will raise thousands of dollars for leukemia research.

Students in Elaine Simmons' class got the good news recently that they will be receiving a damaged car hood from one of NASCAR champ Jeff Gordon's crashed vehicles.

Now, these students in what is referred to as Bayard's "NASCAR classroom" are planning an auction or raffle. They anticipate that Gordon's car hood will raise $5,000 to $10,000 next spring.

Coveted by NASCAR enthusiasts, memorabilia such as car parts are sought feverishly by collectors. NASCAR trinkets are familiar wall ornaments in racing theme restaurants and bars. Ads for such items appear in national and regional NASCAR publications.

"Now that they know they'll have the car hood, the children have decided to give half the proceeds from their fund-raising efforts to leukemia research," said Simmons, who is in her 28th year as a teacher.

One family has a Quorum

By GAYLE K. HART
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

For some families, a Christmas tree surrounded with toys and goodies is only an image seen on television or in a Christmas fairy tale. Employees of Quorum, a local business which provides litigation services in Newark, made the holiday fantasy a reality for a family of eight.

"We were assigned a family of two adults and six children ranging in ages from four to 14 and whose Christmas list included only the basics such as underwear, shoes and coats," said Cas Cavanaugh, Quorum project supervisor. When Quorum employees received a list of each child's needs and a few wants "they jumped into action, even before pay day," said Cavanaugh.

All eight members of the family got everything on their list including gift certificates to restaurants, shoe stores, batteries for the toys and a cash donation of $150. In addition, two televisions were donated along with a toaster oven.

The response from the employees was so overwhelming that "I had to tell them not to bring anymore," said Cavanaugh.

"We will definitely Adopt-A-Family for Christmas next year. It was the best feeling in the world," said Cavanaugh.

Quorum established a presence in Newark two years ago and employs 150 people.

Homicide suspects at large

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Two suspects remained at large yesterday following Newark's first homicide since May 1993 last weekend on Elkton Road.

According to Newark police, around 6 p.m. on Saturday four visitors knocked on the door and were admitted to an apartment in a house between Delaware Avenue and Main Street.

Residents in the house said once inside the group demanded money and a struggle followed. According to witnesses, one of the visitors, identified as Saad Soliman, 17, was trying to hit an unidentified resident with a gun during the altercation and the gun discharged.

Gary Robinson, 17, of Newark, one of the other visitors, was struck in the face and head area. The

Choice apps due Monday

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Last chance to file a Choice application for your child's school next year is fast approaching.

The legislature mandated Jan. 1 of each year as the deadline for those who wish to enroll their children in schools outside their designated feeder patterns for the following September.

Kenneth Brown, director of business and finance, said the district was doing everything possible to alert the more than 700 families who previously have requested particular schools for childcare reasons. "We had our staff calling homes at night to make sure everyone who submitted requests in the past knows of the new policy," said Brown. As many as 1000 calls were made in the effort, according to Brown.

According to Franklin Rischel, assistant superintendent for administrative services in Christina School District, 333 Choice applications for schools within the district were received as of Dec. 22. "We've had about 50 more in the mail since then," Rischel said on Wednesday.

Rischel said the 333 applications received

Police beat

Police Beat is compiled each week from the files of the Newark Police Department by staff writer Ron Porter.

Newspapers swiped

Newark police report that on Dec. 18 at 4:10 a.m. an unknown suspect removed a shipment of newspapers from in front of the Newark Newsstand.

The owner called police and reported that his daily delivery of newspapers were stolen from the sidewalk in front of the newsstand. He informed police he had contacted E.T.D., the distributor, and they had confirmed that the delivery was made at 1:00 a.m. No suspects have been named by police.

Employee terminated

An employee of Klondike Kates restaurant was terminated on Dec. 18 after it was found that he was stealing alcohol from the establishment, Newark police report.

Police report the manager of the Happy Harry's told the manager in November that he had seen a box of various liquors placed beside the dumpster that the two businesses share.

When the manager questioned his employees, no one took responsibility for the box or its contents. The manager then threatened to suspend the group of employees and then one employee allegedly admitted taking the alcohol. The employee was terminated.

Threat made

Newark police report that an unknown suspect left a threatening voice mail message on an employee of Newark Jeep Eagle's voice mail on Dec. 19 between Tues. at 8:45 p.m. and Wed. at 12:20 p.m.

The message threatened to blow up the person and the person's property. The victim played the voice mail message to police and gave the police a possible suspect.

Police are still investigating the incident.

Thieves caught

Newark police, responding to a suspicious person call, arrested two Pennsylvania youths for numerous thefts in the West Main Street area on Dec. 22, police report. Upon arrival on West Main Street, officers noticed a red Honda driving north with its lights off. The vehicle was stopped by police.

During questioning, a fourth subject, a 17-year-old white male, was stopped walking up the street by another officer who had arrived to assist. Upon being questioned it was found he was intoxicated.

The 17-year-old became belligerent and abusive. He was subdued and arrested for underage consumption and resisting arrest.

At this time, Joseph Walling, 17, one of the occupants of the car, fled on foot, and after a short chase, was apprehended by police and arrested for resisting arrest and underage consumption.

Also arrested was Jeremy Bard, 18, the driver of the car. Bard was charged with driving without a license and underage consumption.

Police later found that the suspects had been involved with various theft in the area.

Teacher scratched

Newark police report that on Dec. 15 at 11:15 a.m. a teacher at the West Park Place Elementary School was scratched by a student.

The teacher reports that she took pencils away from the child who then became angered and scratched the teacher on her arm.

The school then contacted the child's grandmother and advised her that the student would be reprimanded for the action and a conference would be scheduled.

Peeper spotted

A resident of Yale Drive reported to Newark police that on Dec. 19 at 4:15 p.m. she was asleep on her sofa next to a sliding glass door when she saw a man outside looking in.

When she got up to get a drink, she noticed that a white male was watching her through the slats in the blinds. The woman informed police that the same incident had happened during the summer to one of her three roommates, but was not reported to police.

Police are still investigating the incident.

remaining three visitors then fled the scene.

The occupants reportedly ran out of the house and nearby residents who had heard the gunshot called police.

Soliman, whose parents reportedly are in Egypt, has no permanent address and does not attend a local high school, according to Newark police. He was apprehended in an Elkton, Md., motel on Dec. 24 around 11 a.m. and was returned to Delaware on Tuesday. He was charged with robbery and weapons violations during the commission of a felony and is being held in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Although Soliman apparently went to the house with the intent to commit robbery, the incident is being investigated as a homicide.

Police have not yet recovered the gun used in the incident. According to Lt. Roy Clough of the Newark Police, the department dragged the Christina River on Tuesday following a rumor but the gun was not found.

Clough said some detectives worked 24 hours straight following the death. "Our entire criminal investigations unit worked full time on this," said Clough.

Houses in the area along Elkton Road are almost all rentals and on the day after Christmas backyards in the immediate area were littered with beer bottles and kegs showing evidence of holiday celebrations. Residents of the house where the shooting took place have not been charged in the incident, said Clough.

Clough would not confirm news reports that drugs were involved in the robbery attempt and said that the State Attorney General has instructed police to limit information released prior to trial.

Robinson, who attended Newark High School until last year, was buried yesterday following a Mass at Holy Family Catholic Church on Chestnut Hill Road near Newark.

Clough said police are continuing an intense investigation of the incident.

Station gets go ahead

most track in the Conrail/Amtrak right-of-way will be relocated further south. Property for the 289-space parking lot will be transferred from Chrysler Corporation to DelDOT with access off South College Avenue at an existing signalized intersection.

DelDOT will be responsible for all maintenance, ticketing and towing of vehicles on the property. Funding for the project comes from state and federal monies, said Carolann Wickes, project manager for DelDOT.

As a cost saving measure, DelDOT plans to do the project in phases with phase one to include a new ground level rail platform located entirely east of the South College Avenue bridge just north of the relocated track.

Only a portion of the relocated track to be used for the passenger rail service will be constructed in the first phase. According to Wickes, building in phases is a "cost effective way to start service and develop as needed."

Wickes emphasized that construction on the project will not start until DelDOT has a service contract with a rail company but expect some news "hopefully by the end of January 1996."

Wickes said DelDOT estimates 175-200 people would use the Newark station to go north in the morning if it existed today. By 2010, the patronage is expected to increase 30 to 40 percent.

City council members were generally supportive of the plan although with some reservations. "I agree with the arguments for a station," said Harold Godwin of District One, "but it seems like an awfully expensive ride per person."

Mayor Ronald Gardner said "If you look at the cost per commuter, it's staggering—it always is."

Gardner added, "If you're going to have an intermodal Newark-Elkton plan, part of the mix is rail. We can't make it work if we don't have access to all the modes."

Council member Thomas Wampler said he used to ride the train into Wilmington before it was shut down in the early 1980s. "Many more people would have ridden it if they knew about it," he said.

Plans for the site include general repairs, graffiti removal and security spotlighting of the Victorian passenger rail station presently leased to the Newark Historical Society. According to president Bob Thomas, the group will continue to utilize the station building. A passenger waiting station in very poor condition on the south side of the rail line is not historic and will be demolished.

A TEAM OF 120 EXCEL students at Shue-Medill Middle School came in first in Delaware in the 25th Knowledge Master Open recently.

Shue won the state title with 1356 of a possible 2000 points but EXCEL teams from Kirk and Gauger middle schools with 60 members each also scored above the world average of 1259 points.

"I told them not to be disappointed," said academic coach Marilyn Bryant. "They should be proud to have done better than the world average for middle schools."

Middle and high school students at nearly 3500 schools in 49 states and 12 countries competed via computer to answer the 200 questions in the contest.

Scores were based on speed and accuracy of answers in categories ranging from American history to fine arts.

Each school voted for a captain and keyboardist and answered questions as a team so cooperation and communication was very important, said Bryant.

The Master Opens held each Spring and Fall are designed to stimulate enthusiasm for learning and recognition of academic achievement. Computers allow stu-

Marching band played pop with pomp

By HEATHER LYNCH

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

THE WHALE X-MAS Carol Marching Band thrilled last-minute Christmas shoppers with their off-beat renditions of 1995's most popular songs. The 30-member band kicked off the festivities with an exciting combination of the James Bond theme and "The Christmas Song."

The origin of the quirky song alternatives, said band coordinator Ken Rosenberg, is part "being crazy" and part research. This year, after making a trip to Rainbow Records to ask about the hottest tracks, he put on his creative thinking cap and went from there. Included in this year's lineup was Des'ree's "You gotta be red, you gotta be fat, you gotta be jolly..."

The Christmas Eve performance served as a reunion for some of the former members who have left during the 20 years of performing. When the band launched its first songs to appreciative audiences is a bit of a mystery. Rosenberg said it was either 1973 or 1974. The horn band "Whale", which is still performing around Wilmington, was different than most bands "because we weren't playing disco or Chicago." Drums, flutes and guitars were added to the horns, as band members picked up their feet and began marching. After entertaining crowds at the Concord Mall for five years, Rosenberg said band members decided it might be a good idea to also go to the new Christiana Mall to play. Although mall managers were a bit leery at first, after hearing the band and seeing the audience's positive response, they were won over. "People like us because we do something for nothing," band coordinator and Newarker Ken Rosenberg said.

Rotary gift helps needy

Santa Claus in the form of Val Nardo arrived at a local home on the Friday before Christmas.

"The mother sent me a letter because she doesn't have a phone or car," said Nardo who started Val's Needy Family Fund in Newark 25 years ago. According to the letter, the single mother of three, became ill in July with kidney problems and had no resources other than state welfare.

"It's very sad," said Nardo. "I had to do something."

Nardo recruited his usual sources of food and clothing and then reviewed his list of Santa's helpers for gifts for the three children, ages 13, 11 and 7.

"I remembered one man who said he might have a bike," said Nardo, so I called him up and he said maybe he could get three!

At midnight on Thursday Nardo got the call that three bikes were ready. "I went right out and got them," he said.

Friday morning Nardo and his elves set out in a caravan to deliver gifts, food, a turkey for the Christmas dinner and the three bikes.

"I'm going to share this with other people I know here in the same position as us," said the mother. "I've sort of connected with other single parents since this all happened and we had planned to celebrate together on Christmas Day. Now we can have a really good day."

Nardo said he had many more stops to make before his Christmas dinner. "I'll do Meals on Wheels in the morning and then I'll finally be done," said a smiling Nardo. "I'll just spend the rest of the day with my family."

Donations to Val's Needy Fund can be sent year-round to Val Nardo, 16 Lee Drive, Wilmington, DE, 19808.

Draft plan available for public review

Once again, the draft 2020 Metropolitan Plan prepared by the Wilmington Area Planning Council (WILMAPCO) is reportedly available for public review and comment.

According to executive director Alexander Taft, the complete draft technical document, presented in summary form in September, can be reviewed now through Feb. 1, 1996, at the WILMAPCO offices on Chapman Road, at the main libraries in Wilmington, Newark and Elsmere, and at the planning departments for New Castle County, Cecil County, and the cities of Wilmington and Newark.

A copy is also available at the Delaware Transit Corporation in the Wilmington Train Station.

The 25-year plan proposes goals and strategies to establish the region's first intermodal transportation system. According to the information released by WILMAPCO, 80 percent of its estimated $6.7 to $7 billion cost is for preservation, maintenance and operation of the existing transportation system.

WILMAPCO will hold a public meeting on Jan. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in Wilmington City Council chambers for community discussion of the document contents. Snowdate will be Jan. 24.

Following review by the public and WILMAPCO members, the draft will be submitted to the WILMAPCO council for adoption at their regular meeting on March 7.

KidsKall offers guidance to latch-key kids

By HEATHER LYNCH

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

THANKS TO A NEW hotline offered by the A. I. duPont Children's Hospital, latch-key kids can get comfort, support and guidance just by picking up the phone.

KidsKall, a free service available Monday through Friday from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., offers encouragement, conversation and even help with homework when a hospital volunteer answers the calls.

According to Terri Voelker, director of public relations for the hospital, the volunteers had full-day training sessions to learn how to handle difficult calls, what should and should not be said to kids, and emergency procedures.

Volunteer Andy Shackelford, who found out about the service through his church, said as many as ten kids ranging in age from 6 to 13 have called during the three hour time span.

KidsKall began in January of 1993, after the Brandywine Episcopal Church came to the hospital in search of a long-term volunteer project. Hospital officials were thrilled, as this project had been on hold due to lack of volunteers.

The number for KidsKall is 1-800-543-0003. The hotline is not open on holidays or during the summer.

Christmas tree disposal

Local residents with a used Christmas tree on their hands have a number of options available.

The city of Newark will collect trees at curbside on your regular collection day Jan. 2 through Jan. 12. Residents may also drop off trees at the Newark Maintenance Complex on Phillips Avenue between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays during the same period. Discarded Christmas trees are recycled into mulch for the Newark Parks and Recreation beautification projects.

New Castle County residents can recycle Christmas trees at drop-off sites in county parks. Among the sites are Bellevue, Lums Pond, White Clay Creek and Brandywine Creek state parks, as well as Fort DuPont and Blackbird State Forest. Trees can be dropped-off during daylight hours Dec. 26 through Jan. 15. Mulched trees will be used in county and state forest projects.

Discarded trees must be free of ornaments and tinsel and not left in holders or plastic bags. Items of any other type left at the sites may jeopardize the programs.

An important resolution

Several weeks ago, Newark Police Chief William A. Hogan warned other public officials at a meeting of the Town and Gown Committee that there is "significant drug activity" in our city this year.

As the year winds to a close, suddenly a real example—close to home—of the toll that drugs can take on the youth of society smacks our somewhat tranquil consciousness. In what appears to be a botched robbery, a 17-year-old was shot to death two days before Christmas in an apartment on Elkton Road near Main Street and Delaware Avenue.

While the shooting death of Gary Robinson remains under investigation, in published reports to his stepfather linked the fatal shooting to his son's involvement with drugs.

Chief Hogan told the Town and Gown members that Newark police had discovered a heroin supplier on North Chapel Street, crack cocaine in Cleveland Heights and marijuana on North Chapel. A University of Delaware public safety official said his staff has noticed a marked increase here in the use of marijuana by students.

Like it or not, drugs and the violence that often accompanies their use are in our neighborhoods. The threats to Newarkers are real. Drug users often are dangerous and desperate. Television shows like "N.Y.P.D. Blue" once allowed us a safe glimpse of terrible, distant neighborhoods filled with violence and paralyzed by fear. Now we need only look out our windows.

Newark police and other agencies already are doing what they can to attack this problem. Drug arrests in 1995 through November were up here almost 20 percent over 1994. Police say enforcement is hampered by a rise in heroin use.

One of our city's resolutions in 1996 must be to focus even greater attention and resources upon this quickly growing problem.

Recognizing the difference

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

I suppose it is because of my life-long involvement in musical activities that I found a recent story on the entertainment pages of several national newspapers particularly sad. A reviewer reported that Luciano Pavarotti, appearing in a Metropolitan Opera performance of "The Daughter of the Regiment", had cracked on a high note, causing him to leave the stage in distress.

The writer noted, with obvious sympathy, that Pavarotti, like his distinguished colleagues, Jose Carreras and Placido Domingo, is growing older. None of them, he said, can consistently sing the high Bs and Cs by which tenors inevitably are measured. Yet all of them, by choosing somewhat less demanding roles, are still capable of singing with superb vocal quality and style.

When we consider what this trio of accomplished artists has contributed to worldwide enjoyment of classical music and to a wider appreciation of fine singing, we can only hope that this recommendation will be observed.

Certainly, we all understand that Elbert Chance has appeared in major roles with The Brandywiners, OperaDelaware, the Arden Singers, the Brecks Mill Cronies and the Wilmington Music School's Chamber Opera Group.

time diminishes many of our abilities. Most critics complained that soprano Maria Callas continued to perform long after her faded high notes became shrill. Other reviewers commended Beverly Sills for her decision to retire at a relatively young age when she developed a tremolo she considered detrimental to her singing.

These reflections led me to recall a dinner-table discussion I once had with my teen-aged daughter. She was extolling the virtues of a then popular performer and said, "Dad, isn't he a great singer?" And to her surprise I responded, "No, he isn't. He may be a showman, he may be a capable song stylist, but a good singer he is not."

After dinner I asked her to join me and listen to several recordings of men I consider great singers—John Charles Thomas, Lawrence Tibbett and Leonard Warren. I believe this may have resulted in one of those parental successes we rarely enjoy, for my daughter acknowledged that I had conveyed to her satisfaction a distinction between fine singing and entertaining performance.

An excellent opportunity to distinguish between the two was available to those who watched this year's Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York on NBC-TV. Featured in a studio performance was the Metropolitan Opera Company's Jessye Norman who gave an impeccable rendition of the folk tune, "Simple Gifts". Moments later, appearing before the reviewing stand and an appreciative crowd, Carol Channing recreated a scene from "Hello, Dolly", the Broadway musical with which she will forever be identified. Ms. Channing is an icon of the American musical theatre, a larger-than-life character on and off the stage. She need only appear and we feel an urge to applaud this gallant trouper who has given literally thousands of performances before thousands of admirers.

But let us recognize the depth and breadth of the chasm between these two famous ladies. Jessye Norman's voice is unquestionably a

ONE ORGANIZER called it "Newark's largest pot-luck supper." Last Wednesday night's Holiday International Dinner, hosted by the University of Delaware's English Language Institute, certainly did provide a scrumptious treat for those lucky enough to attend. My Venezuelan buddy Alberto had invited me and another friend to be his guests at what he described as a "party."

To tell the truth—because there must be truth in journalism—I went into the Perkins Student Center expecting no more than some potato chips, piped-in music, and light conversation. Certainly there could be no great transcontinental shakes taking place in the Rodney Room?

Well, having myself spent a good bit of time abroad lately, I should have known that our visiting foreign friends would come through with the goods—just like old Santa.

When I arrived the room was abuzz with excited multi-lingual chatter and colorful movement. Alberto told me that nearly forty different countries were represented by the joyful folks seated at the long banquet tables, munching away at all types of delicacies from around the world.

Instead of pretzels and stale cookies, I was happy to dive into exotic salads and rice dishes, roast beef and chocolate cake. The room was full of good cheer and people of all ages were laid back in a way which you would never see at a United Nations bash.

By the time the talent-show portion of the program got started, I was thoroughly warmed up. It was as if I had stepped into another dimension where everyone spoke accented English and there was an open invitation to catch a glimpse of a different culture. I danced a rumba and flirted with a lovely Brazilian (maybe she'll teach me the samba one day), sang along first with Korean folk music and then some Asian flavored rock n' roll, cooled out to classical piano, and shared the excitement of a surprise visit from a South American Santa Claus.

While Alberto shouted and clowned around and my Spanish friend Natalia snapped pictures, I just took it all in and marveled at the way everybody had suddenly found a way to understand each other.

When plane tickets are too expensive and the television too shallow, people themselves provide the gateway to the world, the invitation to new frontiers. On a cold winter's night I had encountered the warmth of real multiculturalism.

To wrap up the festivities, the Latin American merengue dance troop stepped up to the scene. It was actually a little anticlimactic as the handsome couples spun in place and grinned to the canned rhythm.

But hey, as far as those dancers were concerned, they were back on the dance floor at home—and the night was young.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic photo shows Newark High students from around 1915. More information is being sought in regard to this photograph. It appears to have been taken on the steps of the Academy Building which was once used as the high school. Helen O'Rourke Tierney is seated in row two, second from the left. Emily Carpenter is at her left. Anyone who can identify the other individuals are asked to call the Newark Historical Society at 731-0955. The photograph was donated by Helen Tierney. In an effort to provide more complete descriptions of our "Out of the Attic" photographs, volunteer historians of the society are identifying and researching the historic shots. Readers are encouraged to send old photos to the Newark Post. Special care will be taken. For more information, call 737-0724.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Work with parents and lawmakers

To: The editor

From: William P. Cooke
Newark

A recent Newark Post column entitled, "Do opportunities need solutions," by Jack Bartley Ph.D., is a shining example of why it may be difficult to bring positive change to our public schools. In his lengthy column, Dr. Bartley criticized the work of two state legislators (State Representative Stephanie Ulbrich and Senator Rick Hauge) each of whom has devoted an enormous amount of time to the "Choice" bill that is now law.

While reading his column, I got the impression of a teacher who has grown content with the way things are in our public schools. If true, that puts him at odds not only with this writer but also with a majority of Delawareans who are anxious to change the status quo in our schools.

The "Choice" bill promises education reform by allowing parents to choose which public school their child attends. The idea is simple—improve parental involvement in schools while prompting administrators to high levels of accountability. Those states that have "Choice" laws on the books report that administrators have a reason for working closely with parents about the school's strong and weak points. This new relationship has produced new opportunities for parents (and teachers) to have more say about what happens in the classroom.

Why would Dr. Bartley criticize any plan for public education reform that had these goals in mind? After all, improving the administration of public schools and establishing close relations with parents was a major concern of Delawareans in a recent University of Delaware survey on the condition of education in Delaware.* That is why Dr. Bartley's criticism tests my patience. His efforts at protecting his turf come at the expense of positive change in our public schools.

Unlike Dr. Bartley, I am not a teacher and I do not have a Ph.D. But if I did, I would spend less time writing critical newspaper columns and more time working with the parents, lawmakers and others who have legitimate plans for improving our schools. That is, unless I were too content with the way things are in our public schools.

Neighbors helped neighbors

To: The editor

From: Jane Tripp
Newark Area Welfare Committee

"Neighbors Helping

Neighbors" is the motto of the Newark Area Welfare Committee. Every Christmas literally thousands of Newark residents work with the committee to carry out that mandate.

On the Friday morning before Christmas, four hundred large boxes of food sat in rows in the Newark United Methodist church building arranged by size of family. Postcards had been sent to families referred to the Committee by the City government, the Senior Center, the Hudson State Service Center, and individuals, so those in need knew when and where to pick up the box especially packed for their family. Each box contained a personalized greeting on a Christmas card. Two flatbed trucks loaded with turkeys waited in the icy parking lot. By shortly after 6 p.m. most of the food had been distributed and what remained was taken to the Hudson State Service Center for later distribution.

This annual Christmas food distribution is coordinated by the Newark Area Welfare Committee but is truly a community effort. Food is collected in college dormitories, and at schools, churches and businesses. Turkeys are collected by church groups, civic organizations and individuals and stored in home freezers and at the Louis Dreyfus Food Distribution Center. Children's books, small toys and jars of baby food were contributed and available along with the boxes of groceries. During the four days before the distribution, groups from Cub Scout age to seniors worked long days to pick up food, and sort and pack it. High School students with strong backs helped recipients take boxes and turkeys to cars.

The Newark Area Welfare Committee would like to thank all the schools, churches, civic associations, clubs, businesses and individuals who make this community effort possible each year. Thank you all for sharing and may 1996 be a good year for you and your families.

Nicest gift of all

To: The editor

From: Marcy and Jay Cornell
Newark

My husband and I would like to express our heartfelt thanks to a young man who gave us one of the nicest Christmas gifts we've had in a long time.

On Friday night, my husband lost his wallet. While he was still out looking for it, I received a call from a young man who told me he had found it. He even offered to bring it to our house.

He arrived and returned the wallet and would take nothing as a reward. I even ran after him and tried to press the money in his hand. All he asked was that someone would do the same for him one day.

Thank you, Pierce Anderson, for being kind and thoughtful, and above all, honest. You turned what could have been a rotten experience into a lesson of joy and an affirmation of what's good in people.

Tots get toys from Santa

Newark police tried to make Christmas brighter for local children on Saturday night by handing out over 120 gifts in the Cleveland Heights section of Newark.

According to Curt Davis, police information officer, the department has been distributing toys collected by the U. S. Marine Corps in their Toys for Tots program for the past four years.

Corporations, companies and individuals donate new, unwrapped toys at drop off points throughout the county," explained Davis. "Local communities arrange to collect and distribute whatever we can for local children."

Saturday night's event featured Santa Claus arriving on a fire engine in the Terrace Drive block of Cleveland Heights. Community leader Kathy Parker and two other volunteers had previously notified the lucky recipients who lined up to meet Santa and receive their gifts.

"The Aetna Fire Company is fantastic," said Davis. In addition to providing the fire apparatus and lighting, company members let the children climb aboard the fire engine for a close-up look after they see Santa Claus.

The entire event only takes an hour, but makes a big difference for the Newark community, according to Parker. "We try to make sure all the little kids get a present although we have some as old as 13," Parker said. "The expression on the faces of the littlest ones when they see that fire truck is really something."

This is the third year the Cleveland Heights Association has been involved and Parker said they intend to continue. -Mary E. Petzak

Recognizing the difference: true artists

► CHANCE, from 4A

God-given gift that has been refined through hours of intensive study and practice.

The rich quality of her voice and her subtle nuances of volume and phrasing, her breath control, support and interpretation are those of a consummate performer. Carol Channing's voice, with a range that barely exceeds an octave, resembles sandpaper on a rough surface.

She breathes in the wrong places and no one will accuse her of subtlety in presentation. Yet she is entertaining.

My thought for today is that there are many persons who attempt to sing.

Among them are a multitude with little or no ability, some capable song stylists, a few charismatic entertainers, and a very limited number of true artists.

We may enjoy as many as we like, but we ought to know the difference.

Bayard students expect to meet top NASCAR racer

► NASCAR, from 1A

The rest will be used by the class for trips, projects and equipment.

The charity the students have picked has a direct relationship with Gordon, who has ties to Simmons and the Wilmington area.

Gordon's crew chief is Ray Everham, of Harrisburg, N.C., whose young son fell victim to leukemia. Last year, when racing hero Gordon was married, instead of sending a wedding gift, Simmons' 1994-95 class sent $60.74 to the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, earmarked in honor of the young Everham.

This school year's youngsters, caught again by Simmons' unabashed enthusiasm for Gordon and NASCAR racing, wrote letters to the crew chief, asking for a car part so that they, too, could support leukemia research.

One 10-year-old Bayard student wrote, "A year ago, my friend developed a fatal illness. I had worked with him closely. At first, I just helped him with school work but soon we became best friends. I wish there was some way we could have helped him survive." The youthful writer told Everham, "We would like to be able to help Ray Jr. and others with leukemia survive."

Simmons' love of NASCAR and admiration of Gordon came out of her husband's work at DuPont. When the chemical giant signed on with then-rising star Gordon three years ago, Bruce Simmons' work in DuPont's refinishing department put him in touch with NASCAR activities.

When the teacher attended her first NASCAR event at Dover Downs in 1992, she said she "couldn't have cared less" about the race and all the "smelly exhaust. I had the same impression as many others—that the race was a loud, noisy, unruly event."

But her stereotyping dissipated quickly when Simmons observed the many families and "corporate types" at the Dover event and she was treated to a tour of the pit area. "I was turned on immediately," she recalled.

It was only days until her newfound love sneaked its way into her Bayard classroom.

"Rusty Wallace knocked Jeff

Gordon out of a race that week. I had the students write a paragraph about things that happen to us that are unfair," she said. "The students responded with greater interest and enthusiasm and their compositions were very interesting."

"I thought 'maybe I'm on to something here' and began to incorporate NASCAR events into my teaching plans," she said.

Focusing on Jeff Gordon, she had her students scan newspapers for the latest news about the rising star on the NASCAR circuit. She worked NASCAR terms and events into spelling lessons. Geography classes included a close look at the cities where racing events are held. Even mathematics problems suddenly had a NASCAR twist. Questions such as "If a van carrying parts for Jeff Gordon's car left Charlotte at 9 p.m. heading for Daytona, how long would it take..." replaced less topical ones but retained the important elements and educational goals of the Christina School District curriculum.

"The response from the kids was amazing," she recalled. "After 28 years of teaching, I felt like a new teacher with a new twist that was turning kids on to learning."

In 1994, rising NASCAR star Jeff Gordon visited Bayard School and autographed Elaine Simmons' shirt.

NASCAR, from 6A

Simmons expanded her NASCAR focus. Her children even wrote fan letters to Gordon — letters that were edited healthily by the teacher and sent back for rewrite after rewrite.

To the surprise of many, after completing his first year on the Winston Cup circuit, Gordon came to Bayard School in Wilmington to meet Simmons and his young admirers. The event was covered by a national television network and included in a five-minute segment about the racing circuit. The students spent weeks boning up on NASCAR trivia and developing questions that amazed young Gordon and his associates.

Last school year, Simmons continued NASCAR-mania in her classroom.

Five girls in her class, including Kelly Kerrigan of Newark, gave up their recesses, donated goods for sale to fellow students and operated a school store that raised the $60 that was sent to leukemia research as a "wedding gift" to Jeff Gordon.

In spite of his growing popularity, Gordon last spring met again with Simmons' students during an appearance in Wilmington hosted by DuPont. The Bayard students were featured in a 10-minute segment on The Nashville Network's "Inside Winston Cup" series.

Many parents and Bayard's top administrator believe there is great value in her unusual approach to teaching fifth grade.

Kelly Kerrigan's mother, Michelle Scott, believes Simmons' integration of NASCAR into the classroom paid big dividends for her daughter.

"My daughter had never been interested in reading a newspaper before," she said, "but when Mrs. Simmons incorporated NASCAR into reading and math, suddenly Kelly was looking through the newspaper like never before."

"The kids in that class were interested in learning," the Newark mother said, "they were never bored. Mrs. Simmons made learning

Bayard principal Steven E. Lee concurs. "Elaine Simmons has been very effective using her interest in NASCAR as a motivational and learning tool."

"Her children have been able to identify with a national hero (Gordon) and be part of that," Lee said. "When I saw the look on the kids' faces as they were meeting with Jeff Gordon last spring and the year before, I knew their hard work and thoughtful preparation was worth it!"

With the rising demand for his time, will Simmons' students be able to enjoy the unthinkable and meet with NASCAR champ Gordon for the third year in a row? "I believe so," she says, anticipating that the children will be able to present the proceeds of their fund-raising efforts to Gordon during a promotional tour through Wilmington before the June 2 race in Dover.

The damaged hood from Gordon's car, signed by the champ, will be on display late next month at All Pro Sports in the Park & Shop Shopping Center on Elkton Road in Newark. Shoppers and enthusiasts can view the coveted car part and participate in the students' fund raiser there.

For more information, contact Steve Monjon at All Pro Sports, 731-0929, or Elaine Simmons at Bayard School, 429-4118.

'I'll be wearing pink slippers and a muu-muu'

TWO NIGHTS AGO, I pumped gas wearing pink bedroom slippers and a woolly cap with ear flaps tied under my chin.

I was called from my snug townhouse late to pick up a friend, a foreign exchange student from Japan whose bike lock had frozen on her. It was one of those ten-degree nights. I was tired from a day of Christmas shopping, shoving, haggling, wrapping. I shuffled out of my house in my pink slippers and tied the woolly cap—did I mention its tassel?—under my chin and headed out.

Of course, I have since wondered about my style future. I realize that this is the first step toward an eventual life of wearing muu-muus to the pool and curlers to the grocery store.

Granted, some women can pull off muu-muus. My grandmother won a hoola contest at Villa Bellemont wearing a beautiful muu-muu to their Fourth of July picnic. And I have to say that there are also those who look pretty good in curlers at the grocery store. I, however, am not one of these people. Muu-muus make me look hippy and curlers bring out the Martian in me, not to mention they always pinch my head.

That night in my pink bedroom slippers and woolly hat, I looked too pathetic to even deserve to be on a glamour magazine's no-no page with my eyes covered by one of those little black boxes. They're usually reserved for the minor fashion mishap: incompatible hues of yellow, a sturdy handbag mismatching glamorous high heels, a suit that bunches, pantylines.

I'm so out of fashion that if a picture of me from that night had shown up on a fashion editor's desk I might have become the new rage. "Fabu!" I can hear someone gasping. "Demeitre! Look at this!" Suddenly, models are charging down Paris runways in pink slippers and woolly caps.

But for now it was a humiliating gaff. The other gaspumpers couldn't even make eye contact. At first, I wanted to stop each one and explain. I think I even mumbled incoherently to the cashier something about having just gotten out of the shower, damp hair, not wanting to catch cold. She smiled patronizingly and I slowly grew indignant. I boldly shuffled to the pumps, fought the hose and nozzle and tanked up. I thought, I have every right to be here in my slippers and woolly cap. What kind of society straps people into the confines of appropriate dress codes? Why don't we all wear Chairman Mao uniforms while we're at it? I'm an American, a rugged individualist! I thought of starting a revolution, but it was really chilly. It wasn't rally weather. I got in my car and turned up the heat.

Although I'm no fashion plate, I blame this fashion faux pas on the holidays. It was a mini-holiday stress-related fashion breakdown, maybe even a cry for help. Maybe it warrants a trip to one of those spas thinly disguised as a mental institution. I'd promise to talk in group about how I peed my pants once in second grade in exchange for a nice stress relieving massage. Really, I'd settle for a nap on a leather couch.

This isn't my first mini-holiday stress-related fashion breakdown. This Halloween, I wore an orange sweater in honor of pumpkins, but really I just looked sallow, orange not being my color. This alone wouldn't be so bad. In fact, if I'd been chosen for a magic magazine make-over, the fashion designer would have simply changed my sweater, labeled me a "spring", wrapped me in blue, promoting a Color Me Beautiful book.

The real problem was that I dressed my ten-month-old daughter, Phoebe, in a pair of shiny velour leopard-print leggings. It was unclear to me whether she was a leopard or a Miami housewife. It was unclear to everyone from playground—their children prancing around as bumblebees and cute clowns—at the Milburn Orchard's hayride whether Phoebe was in costume at all or whether she was the victim of her sallow-looking mother's poor taste.

My main concern is passing on bad fashion to my children. There must be a twelve-step program designed especially to break this type of cycle.

The bottom line is that holidays are stressful, but soon there will be a new year and in that new year may your colors never clash, may your pocketbooks always match your shoes, may the position of your pantylines remain a secret!

And for anyone who saw a woman out in pink slippers and a woolly tasseled hat at the gas station a few nights ago, wait until you see what's hot this spring in Paris!

Local sailor departs on Navy submarine to Arabian Gulf

By CHAD MCKIMSON
SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

SAN DIEGO — Spending six months beneath the ocean's surface with 140 people in a space no larger than a small house without being able to see daylight for weeks on end would be considered an arduous existence for most people. However, to Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Sean P. Kelley, the 23-year-old son of Lawrence Kelley of Wilmington and son of Wanda Love of Newark, this is an exciting and rewarding way of life.

Kelley and the rest of the crew of the fast-attack submarine USS Portsmouth departed San Diego on Dec. 1 on a routine deployment that will take them halfway around the world.

Kelley, a mechanic on the Portsmouth, operates and maintains the engines used to power the submarine. He finds that being a crewmember on the submarine has been a positive experience.

"Being on the Portsmouth has allowed me the opportunity to put my technical training to use," said Kelley, a 1990 graduate of St. Mark's High School.

Operating at depths of greater than 400 feet, the Portsmouth combines stealth with tremendous firepower. Possessing some of the world's most advanced weapons, the San Diego-based submarine is able to protect Navy battle groups from potential enemy ships and submarines, as well as conduct offensive and special warfare missions.

State-of-the-art computers, sonar and navigation systems also make the 6,900-ton submarine an exceptional combat search and rescue and coastal surveillance platform.

As part of the aircraft carrier USS Nimitz Battle Group, the crew of the Portsmouth spent months preparing for the overseas deployment and the training has paid off for Kelley as he heads for the Indian Ocean and Arabian Gulf.

"The training increased my confidence in myself and my co-workers' ability to handle any situations that arise," said Kelley.

During the deployment Kelley will spend most of his time working, but he still wants to accomplish some personal and professional goals during the deployment.

"I am going to push myself beyond my personal best. I am also looking forward to traveling to other countries," said Kelley.

Today, the U.S. Navy has submarines, ships and aircraft on station from the Adriatic Sea to the Arabian Gulf. Submarines like the Portsmouth can respond on short notice to crises around the world.

Although routine deployments often require Kelley to work some very long hours and keep him away from the United States for extended periods of time, he still thinks it is important for submariners to deploy.

"We have to maintain the U.S. Navy's position as the superior sea power of the world," said Kelley, a four-year Navy veteran.

Although the Portsmouth and its crew will remain undetected while they are on deployment, each crewmember will have his time in the spotlight.

The Portsmouth is scheduled to return home in May 1996.

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Sean P. Kelley sets sail in the USS Portsmouth, a 6,900-ton submarine.

Tips for keeping holiday house plants bright

NEWARK OUTLOOK

FROM THE STAFF OF THE COOPERATIVE EXTENSION OFFICE AT UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

THE WINTERTIME GARDEN center and grocery store shelves are filled with a number of brightly-colored ornamental houseplants to give or to receive. There must be special appeal to people for the bright reds and pinks, and palest white common to all these plants that help relieve the gloom of the shortest days of the year.

These plants have been grown under ideal conditions in greenhouses with high humidity and light levels, customized fertilizer blends and pesticide applications, and carefully regulated temperatures. Imagine the shock these plants experience when we bring them into our relatively cool, dry, dim homes.

So here are some of the common holiday plants and tips on keeping them their beautiful best.

Poinsettias are one of the most familiar plants of the season. For years consumers had only the most basic color choices of white, red or pink. Recent developments are providing consumers with an expanded palette of salmons, lemon yellow, ivory and marbled blends of the colors. Poinsettias are native to Mexico, where they grow as six-foot shrubs.

Modern cultivars of poinsettia will retain their colorful bracts surrounding the tiny yellow true flowers for many weeks with proper care. Bright light is important, as are warm, draft-free temperatures. Thoroughly water the plant when the top of the soil feels dry, but before the plant looks wilted.

My favorite blooming houseplants are the jungle cactuses. There are several different species and hybrids that are named according to the time of the year they tend to bloom without special treatment—Easter, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. I have an old-timer that I inherited from my great-grandmother. It is the "Thanksgiving" species with white flowers that usually starts blooming starting late November to mid December. It doesn't usually bloom every year—rather it sets flowers every second or third year. Modern hybrids have been selected for their free-blooming characteristics and wide range of colors. A selection of a "Christmas" type in my home blooms in November and again in April or May. It's a bright cherry red, but colors ranging from white through pink, peach, and scarlet are available in the trade.

The biggest mistake people make with the jungle cactus is over watering. This makes the plants susceptible to fungal and bacterial rot infections at the base of the stem. Give the plant direct sun exposure in the winter and water only when the surface of the soil feels dry. When the last bloom fades, let the plant get drier between watering. Resume more frequent watering again in the spring when active new growth starts. Give the plant some protection from direct sun in the late spring and summer. Fertilize a jungle cactus monthly spring through late summer with a flowering houseplant product. Newer varieties probably won't need special dark treatment in the fall to induce flowering, as did older varieties.

Cyclamens are dramatically beautiful plants. They bear downward pointing flowers on gracefully curving stems held above silversplashed, scalloped foliage.

Unfortunately cyclamens are doomed to a brief if not flamboyant life in the home. Once the blooms fade, the foliage soon follows suit, because the indoor climate is totally unsuitable for the health of this plant. People and furnishings would not be able to tolerate the damp and clammy environment this plant enjoys.

For maximum decorative life, choose a plant with many well-developed buds, but few fully open flowers. The color choices vary from white through pink, deep rose and cherry red.

Place the cyclamen in bright light. A shallow tray lined with pebbles and filled with water may help raise humidity around the plant enough to forestall premature death. Water a cyclamen by setting the pot in a pan of water to soak up moisture from the bottom. Watering from the top and wetting the foliage can encourage foliar and stem rots that are so problematic with this plant. Be attentive to pinching off faded flowers and yellowed leaves to further reduce incidence of disease.

The most charming plant of this holiday decoration group in my opinion is a garden vegetable! The booming market in hot peppers has also encouraged a wide range of releases of compact ornamental pepper plants with brightly colored fruit. Foliage ranges from bright grass-green to deepest purple-black. Immature fruits generally run the gamut from deep green to dark purple, by many mature to shades of yellow, orange, scarlet and ruby red.

The shape of the fruit is just as variable—perfectly round spheres, blunt cones that resemble Christmas tree bulbs, and slender pointed forms. The fruits are edible, but most are searingly hot. I advise against eating ornamental peppers because they may have been treated with pesticides that make them unsuitable for consumption.

Give an ornamental pepper direct sun and enough water to keep the soil evenly moist, but not soggy. You may collect the seeds from the mature fruits to start indoors in late winter. Transplant the seedlings out to the vegetable or flower garden in mid May.

No resolutions, just the list

PARDON ME. DO YOU know where 1995 went? It just got underway and all of a sudden it is just about over. It is really an old year now. This is the last time this year you and I will share some time on the topic of The Arts.

This is the time of year when everyone is giving everyone else New Years Resolutions—and you know how welcome they are! A roommate from my undergraduate days and I once held a contest about resolutions. We each made resolutions for the other and then had a race to see who could break all of his first.

Well, dear reader, we have been together quite a while and I am not going to spoil our relationship by giving you a lot of resolutions. Rather, my New Year offering to you is a list of telephone numbers. Yes, telephone numbers! The idea is to see what you will do with these numbers in 1996.

You and I obviously share an interest in "The Arts"—I write it and you read it. Many of you even give me feedback. By the very fact you are reading this column, you are obviously interested in the fine and performing arts. Perhaps this list will help you get even more enjoyment from the arts in 1996, but that is up to you. I am just giving you the numbers, no strings (or resolutions) attached. OK?

The first number I want to share with you is that of Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts, "The Grand Old Lady of Market Street," the Grand Opera House at 818 Market in Wilmington. The number there is 302-652-5577. If it's musical, be it symphony, recital, opera, choral, you can find it at the Grand throughout the season. The Grand was returned to us from oblivion in our bicentennial year and has grown each year to be more a part of our lives in the performing arts. 302-652-5577!

The next number in your gift list is that of the Delaware Symphony Orchestra and its headquarters on West Tenth Street, 302-656-7442. They offer a series of classical concerts each month at the Grand and four chamber music concerts in the Gold Ballroom of the Hotel du Pont with a special "pastry intermission." A wide variety of prices are offered including student "rush" tickets. Stephen Gunzenhauser oversees things there and provides delightful evenings of the world's great symphonic and chamber literature for us all. 302-656-7442!

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

Delaware's only professional theater company located at 200 Water Street. The Delaware Theater Company. The DTC number is 302-594-1100. Cleveland Morris founded the company in 1978 in an abandoned fire hall and now presides over one of the finest intimate theaters it has ever been my pleasure to attend. Their five-play season has three left and each is offered in several performances. 302-594-1100!

Opera Delaware is in its 51st season and ensconced in its new home at 4 South Poplar Street. The number is 302-658-8063. OD has been growing professionally and in national reputation over the years. They offer two major opera productions each season, one in the original language with supertitles and a lighter one in English. All performances are at the Grand Opera House. 302-658-8063!

The Delaware Art Museum at 2301 Kentmere Parkway has one of the finest Pre-Raphaelite collections in the world. It also houses a superb collection of American illustrators. DAM's number is 302-571-9590. Many traveling exhibits highlight their season and the museum is home to one of the finest art education programs anywhere in the country. You can even rent paintings for your home or office. 302-571-9590!

The Hagley Museum and Library on the banks of the Brandywine is the ancestral home of the du Ponts and the site of the Elutherian Mills, the beginning of the du Pont empire. The number is 302-658-2400. It is among the world's finest industrial museums and research facilities but with a special interest in our area as well. There are many special programs there with a broad public interest including exhibits, demonstrations and family outings. 302-658-2400!

Also nestled on the banks of the Brandywine, but in Pennsylvania, is the Brandywine River Museum. This is a converted mill and its reputation is now world-wide. You may call them at 610-459-1900. It is very close to the home of the Wyeth family and frequently has exhibits of their works as well as other American artists. Sculpture, jewelry, model trains and toys are also high on their exhibit list. 610-459-1900!

Close by the BRM is magnificent Longwood Gardens, the former estate of Pierre S. du Pont in Kennett Square, Pennsylvania. The number at Longwood is 610-388-1000. Not only is it one of the world's premiere horticultural display areas, it plays host to over 300 concerts a year in both indoor and outdoor theaters. 610-388-1000!

There you are, my New Year's gift to you—NO pressure and NO resolutions! What you do with my gift is entirely up to you.

I wish for each and every one of you a happy, prosperous and peace filled 1996! I hope we shall be together each week right here.

This is the interior of Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts, The Grand Opera House. Its telephone number is 302-652-5577. Read THE ARTS to find out why you need this telephone number!

Cop cards are winners with kids

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

POLICE TRADING CARDS, which premiered in Newark last April, have been so popular that after only eight months the police made good on a pledge to reward the first collectors of a complete set of the cards.

"They chased (the police) down the street," said Tracey Sweetman, mother of two of the first winners, 3-year-old Kaitlyn and 7-year-old Kyle.

Joan Phipps, mother of 2-year-old Brian and 5-year-old Alex agreed. "They ran 'em down every time they saw one in a car or on foot patrol."

Phipps said they didn't know about it until the summer began so they had to hustle to catch up. Alex Phipps said he was collecting "all summer and fall."

Kathy Maxey, mother of 7-year-old Alicia said "Every time they saw a police car we had to go out and track them down." Maxey said the police also gave away the cards at community events like Newark Nite.

As a reward for their efforts, the five children recently received gift certificates and presents from chief of police William Hogan. "The certificates are for All-Pro Sports across the street," said Hogan in making the awards. "You can make your parents go right over there now and spend them."

Police information officer Curt Davis said the certificates and presents were paid for with proceeds from the sale of some uncut sheets of the trading cards to officers and friends. "We also had a donation from an unnamed city resident," Davis added.

The department plans a second set of the cards as soon as additional funding comes from a drug-prevention grant. Hogan emphasized that no city funds are used in this project. "We use the cards as part of our outreach and drugs program," said Hogan. "Each card has a drug message on the back."

The first set of cards, organized by Officer Jim Weldin, highlighted the foot patrols because they have the most "face-to-face" contact with the public. The next set will include detectives and administrators, including Hogan.

Steve Hughes of Studio H donated extensive amounts of time to take the police photos with Weldin's help. "They deserve a lot of the credit for this project," said Hogan.

Woodchucks: relaxed atmosphere, good food, good sports

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL sports bars share a common characteristic: their patrons return night after night because they feel relaxed there. That is what Ray Eli, owner of Woodchucks, hopes to achieve.

Eli, a 1989 graduate of Christiana High School and self-professed sports-nut, opened Woodchucks about six months ago.

"I wanted to offer a place where people could go and just relax," said Eli. "We are very personal with the people who come through the door and I meet almost all of them. They should feel welcome here."

Woodchucks, named after Eli's pet terriers, Woody and Chuckie, is airy and uncluttered. A large angular island bar is flanked by a television, dart and video machines on one side and a dining area on the other. The dining room has plenty of round black tables with contemporary seating for 52, a 48-inch satellite television, and an acoustic stage. The acoustic stage will come to life with professional entertainment and open-mike on Thursday nights in January while major sports are somewhat off-season. A pool table is located in an adjacent wing.

So far, the white walls are sparsely dotted by a few pennants, boxing gloves, and other athletic embellishments. Woodchucks relies on regular customers to provide most of its color.

Monday night football, sporting events, and Friday night buffet (free from 3-8 p.m.) brings them together.

The menu at Woodchucks is hearty. It was developed to suit hefty appetites. On it you will find "Upper Deck" sandwiches for around $5 like: hot roast beef, grilled chicken, cheese steaks, burgers, crab cakes, clubs, and meatball. Dinners, which include a side salad, potato and vegetable, are around $10. There are also warming soups and appetizers.

The Sumo cheese fries ($4.50), as well as the Rodeo nachos ($5.50), are overwhelming and literally overflow their dinner-size plates.

Saturday, until 5 p.m., kids under twelve accompanied by an adult eat free from the children's menu.

Woodchucks caters to private parties. Slamdunk Happy Hour offers 75-cent Budweiser, Bud Ice, and Honey Brown 16-ounce drafts.

Hours of operation are from 11 a.m. until midnight on weekdays and 1 a.m. on weekends.

DELAWARE FINISHES OFF WIDENER WITH TOUGH DEFENSE IN 81-38 WIN. 2B

1995: counting up the great moments

NOW THAT EVERYONE has eaten more food than they ever thought they could, now that everyone has taken back that gift that no one would ever want, now that high school and college athletes are on break, sports writers struggle to produce memories from a memorable year.

I have never been a big fan of these columns, but with limited sports activities and a lazy brain from a full stomach, I have decided to follow the norm, and set down the Newark Post's best and worst of 1995.

Best team - This award no doubt goes to the state champion Glasgow High boys soccer team who finished the season 19-1-0. The Dragons were ranked No. 1 by The News Journal all season until they were defeated late in the season by an upset-minded Christiana team. Along with the recognition given to them in the state, Glasgow also earned national recognition as they were ranked No. 25, No. 23 and then finished the season No. 21 in the Umbro Top 25 Boys Soccer Poll published in USA Today. They battled their way through the state tournament field and won their first ever championship in overtime of the final game against Salesianum.

RON PORTER
THIRD & ONE

Best game of the season - The quarterfinal game of the Delaware Boys Soccer Tournament. This game had all the makings of a classic. Newark battled Salesianum in four overtimes with no winner decided. As the rain poured down, the game would have to be decided by penalty kicks. When the final ball had been kicked, Salesianum had won a game that either team was worthy of winning. For all those wondering, the St. Mark's-William Penn state title basketball game was a very close second place.

Most improved of the season - This goes to the Glasgow High volleyball team. The Dragons used teamwork and Beth Olney to knock No. 1 Ursuline out of the state tournament in the quarterfinal round. A tough Newark team ended their dream season in the semifinal round of the state tournament, but this was truly a team that believed in themselves and showed the whole state if you try hard enough dreams do come true.

Spartans finish fourth in Classic

By RON PORTER
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

WHEN THE THIRD annual Mid-Atlantic Wrestling Classic had ended on Saturday night, two St. Mark's wrestlers were left in the finals bracket, and they had both been beaten.

Lost to was the Governor's Cup, the award given to the Delaware team that finished highest among the tourney's nine Delaware schools.

That award had been taken by the Spartan rival William Penn.

The Colonials scored 160 points to capture third place, while St. Mark's finished with 147 and the fourth-place prize.

The team title was taken by the nations No. 1-ranked team, Blair Academy.

Spartan wrestlers Kyle Talley and Corey Frederick landed spots in the finals early Saturday afternoon, but were up against some tough competition to win individual titles.

Talley earned the right to wrestle in the 145-pound finals after winning his semifinal match 6-4 over a wrestler from Timberlane, N.H.

In the championship round however, things were a little bit less welcoming.

Talley faced DeMatha, Md. wrestler Rob Alexander. Alexander scored six points on Talley and allowed Talley only two, as Alexander won the match by decision.

In the next match, another

Spartan women win in classic, Baker scores 20

By RON PORTER
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The St. Mark's High girls basketball team came to the first round of the Diamond State Girls Scholarship Classic Wednesday night and turned up the heat.

Although the Wilmington High gym was already warm from two previous games, the Spartans used first and second quarter scoring explosions to defeat Seton High School 66-35 in Classic's Classic Division.

The Virginia boarding school's team wasn't able to handle the Spartans' Stephanie Baker, and when the rest of the St. Mark's team got involved, things got out of control.

Baker finished the game with 20 points, but it was Allison LaFazia's 16 and Julie Kizywicki, Toni Swan, Katie Phipps and Cara Erskine that the Conquistadors had real problems containing. Combined, those girls scored 21 points, and left the Seton defense confused as to which player to cover.

"Stephanie and Toni played real well," said St. Mark's Coach John Fiorelli. "But teams can no longer just key on those two players. They must account for everyone on our team."

In the Spartans first game of the season, Swan and Baker looked as if they would be the bread and butter of the St. Mark's team this season.

As the Seton High coaches yelled to contain Baker because she "was their team," other Spartans took it to heart.

LaFazia did it at both ends of the court.

She dominated on the offensive and defensive boards, and more than once snuck inside to receive a Swan pass and score the point.

Erskine battled defensively and came up with two key steals that frustrated Seton guards and allowed their team to score only four points in the first quarter.

The Spartans ran off to a 12-0 lead before Seton guard Therese Pennefather, who scored 21 for the Conquistadors, stopped in the lane and shot a jumper to break the Seton slump.

St. Mark's picked up where they left off in the second quarter, jumping out another 12-0 run, making the score 26-5.

Pennefather again scored on a jumper to break that burst, but by that time it was too late. At one time in the third period the Spartans led by as much as 30 points.

That came with Erskine on the line, as she made both foul shots to make the score 45-15.

It was a welcome surprise to a cautious Fiorelli.

"You can never tell with an out-of-state team," said Fiorelli when asked about his team's response to the competition. "We heard that they had two good players, and they do have two good players, but we played great defense and ran the floor very well. We got everyone involved and that made the difference."

In the end, with Swan and Baker resting on the bench awaiting Padua which they played Thursday, the rest of the Spartans did what a team does, kept the winning ways going.

Dragons bitten by Cougars despite 2nd half comeback

By RON PORTER
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

As Darnell Vaughan sat helplessly on the bench with a thumb injury, his Glasgow High teammates were out rebounded 50-36 by Delcastle Friday.

The sophomore bigman injured his thumb in gym class, playing basketball, and while he sat the Cougars defeated the Dragons 59-50.

"With Darnell out nobody wanted to shoot in the first half because they all felt the pressure on them," said Glasgow Coach Don Haman whose team outscored Delcastle 24-22 in the second half.

But the real problem, said Haman, was the lack of rebounding by the Dragons, both offensively and defensively.

Haman said in some cases the Cougars had three and four attempts at offensive shots. That allowed for the Cougars to dominate the first half and jump out to an 27-16 lead at the half.

It just so happened, Vaughan is the Dragon's leading scorer, and one of the biggest Dragons on the court that can do his share of rebounding.

That gym class basketball game better had been good.

"He's valuable on the court for his leadership as well his shooting," said Haman who said Vaughan will return to battle Newark after the holiday break. "Without those things, we were hurting."

"We lost by 10, but right towards the end we were within four," said Haman. "Those second shots hurt us."

It took until the second half, but

Concord kicker on national team

By DAVID G. W. SCOTT
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Concord High's Shelby Berkheimer has been named to the Under-17 National girls soccer team after participating at regional tryouts in Poca Raton, Fla. over Thanksgiving.

Berkheimer becomes the first woman in Delaware history to make the national team.

The junior goalkeeper competed in the tryouts which take place each year as a regional tournament. Players are evaluated by their play in game conditions and then selected to the team.

"The best thing is that you get to know the other players," said Berkheimer.

Glasgow High assistant coach, Fran Kulas, who trains Berkheimer and U-16 national goalie Bryheem Hancock, was excited about the news.

"Over the last year, Shelby has grown as a player and a player," said Kulas. "Her attitude in training is what has taken her this far and she deserves every bit of the notice she's gotten."

Kulas added, "This is also good for area players. They now have a realistic goal to set for themselves of making the national team."

Berkheimer agreed, "No one looks at Delaware and there are a lot of good players in the state."

Asked if she thought her inclusion on the national team would help other Delawareans gain notice, Berkheimer said, "I hope it does."

Bailey named to All-American football team

University of Delaware football team strong safety Kenny Bailey has been named to the 1995 American Football Coaches Association (AFC) All-American squad.

Bailey, a 5-11, 200 pound junior from Harrington, De. was one of 24 players selected to the team and the only player from the Yankee Conference recognized.

The team is selected from a pool of 1-AA coaches.

Bailey, who earlier this season was named second team All-Yankee Conference, was the Hens' second leading tackler with 114 stops, including 83 solo hits.

He had one tackle for loss, forced three fumbles, intercepted three passes, and broke up 12 passes.

He returned an interception 75 yards for a touchdown versus Youngstown State.

Just a junior, he already holds Delaware records for career tackles by a defensive back (295) and career interception yardage (315).

Bailey is the 31st Delaware player to earn first team All-American honors and the 18th to be recognized on the AFCA first team.

The honor marks the fifth straight year at least one Delaware player has been named to the team.

Defensive back Warren McIntire earned first team A honors in 1991, defensive end Matt Morrill was named to the team in 1992 and 1993, and fullback Daryl Brown was selected last season.

The University of Delaware basketball team, with guard Bruce McCullough shown above, handed Widener University a 81-38 loss last Friday night. The win pushed the Hens record to 4-3 and dropped the Pioneers to 4-5. Head coach Mike Brey and his team will begin their North Atlantic Conference season on Jan. 4. The season will end with the NAC Tournament, which will be played at the Bob Carpenter Center and will begin in March. Delaware shot 58.8 percent from the field, while Tyrone Perry made two three-point field goals to extend his streak to seven, a Hen record. Perry had made five straight in Delaware's loss to Duke University last Tuesday. Delaware led Widener 37-14 at the half. They scored 14 unanswered points with just over six minutes left in the half to make the score 28-4. Brey talked about gaining momentum going into the months of January and February and emphasized the fact that the tournament would be played at

Keppel finishes spiker career

Amanda Keppel, daughter of Gordon and Julie Anne Keppel of Newark, ended her collegiate volleyball season helping West Virginia Wesleyan College advance to the NCAA Division II Women's Volleyball Championships quarter-finals.

The Bobcats lost to two-time defending national champion Northern Michigan University at the "Elite Eight" at Barry University in Miami Shores, Fla.

Keppel, a sophomore middle hitter, played in 53 games registering 116 kills, 68 digs, and 16 blocks in 1995.

The Bobcats swept to their fifth consecutive West Virginia

Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title, extending their conference winning streak to 80 matches.

Keppel, a elementary education major, played in her second national championship tournament in two years.

"Amanda had a great season," says head coach Tia Brandel. "She showed a lot of confidence and poise on the court in pressure situations. If she wasn't in the starting lineup, she was pushing the starters to their best. I expect a lot from her next year."

West Virginia Wesleyan College offers more than 50 academic majors in the liberal arts and career-related fields of study.

'95 ends with feast of memories

► BEST-WORST, from 1B

high school—St. Mark's High earned the most trophies this season as they won the girls cross country and girls volleyball championships. Earlier this year the boys basketball team won the title in a thrilling game on a last-second shot over William Penn. They also won the girls swimming tournament, and the state wrestling title.

Biggest disappointment — The University of Delaware football team's 52-18 quarterfinal loss to McNeese State. Delaware had played top-caliber football all season. Then, when the team played a top-caliber program, they crumbled. It was the wrong time to go sour, and ruined what was a sweet season overall.

There were so many events in 1995 that make great memories. But as the turkey begins to effect me, I grow tired.

So it's time for a nice nap where I will dream of a 1996 sports season that is sure to top the previous one.

For those who were forgotten for their achievements, I apologize, but please don't wake me from my slumber.

I hope your New Year is full of football and food.

Delcastle defeats GHS with rebounding

► GHS, from 1B

Glasgow. Guard Antwan Bell emerged from a two point first to score 11 of his 13 points in the second half.

Along with Bell, Cee Cee Whittle stepped up to try and fill Vaughn's shoes.

Whittle looked like a player from Villanova on defense by the name of Kittles, and put relentless pressure on the Delcastle guards.

"He was our power man," said Haman. "He did an excellent job on defense."

As for the next opponent, Newark, Haman said the two teams match up well against each other. "It may come down to two wants it more," said Haman.

Both teams boast a guard oriented offense that relies on outside shooting and defensive rebounding to make the difference.

Newark has Clarence Dorsett and Corey Wallace, while Glasgow has Vaughn and Whittle.

With the two teams coming from the same district, the emotion factor is a no brainer.

Put any two teams from the Putnam School District on the same court or field, and Haman said it's always a big game.
