Inspiring Speech At Convocation

Dr. Lewis Points Out Forgotten Fundamentals of Education

At the University of Delaware Convocation Exercises, last Wednesday, Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of George Washington University, made the address. He compared the educational methods here and abroad and pointed out the part that proper study in college will play in establishing world peace.

He said that the right type of education which will lead to the understanding of one people by another, will help more than anything else can in obtaining universal amity. Institutions of learning in past years have been too prone either to discard foreign languages or to teach them merely in the correct grammatical way and with little thought of the students being able to really speak and think in the language. To illustrate the latter point he showed how Germans were able to get rich, selling large quantities of products to the Russians while American salesmen were not making enough to pay their rent merely because the former had been taught to think and speak the language. They knew the history and the social background while the Americans did not.

Dr. Lewis quoted four points that Dr. Little, the great chemical engineer, says are necessary for success whether it be in college or out in the world. They are: The simplicity to wonder, the ability to question, the power to generalize, the capacity to apply.

The majority of students who do not pass their courses are those who fail to question and who do not wonder about the things around them.

If one goes to college merely to gain abstract knowledge he may as well invest his money in the Encyclopedia Britannica and amass those facts at home. To be of real value the student must have the facts in such form that he can generalize and thus apply the knowledge to fit his need, he declared.

Dr. Michael Pupine, who as a little Serbian lad came to this country and began life here as a farmer's boy in the lower part of this State, is an example of a man who has followed these four principles. It was through the application of them that he was able to perfect the long distance telephone, Dr. Lewis said.

There are more opportunities in the next thirty years than ever before in the fields of science, medicine, machinery, and farming. The horizon is not bound by the oceans on either side of this continent for there are chances in a number of fields abroad for the ambitious person.

The speaker urged the students to analyze why they were in college and what they plan to do when they get out. "It doesn't matter so much whether you go through college as whether college goes through you," he said. Colleges should prepare the individual for willing and interested participation in the affairs of the world, of his country and of his State and community. Americans today are not as much interested as they should be. Here only fifty people out of every hundred who are eligible, will take the time and trouble to vote. In France seventy-one and in England seventy-six out of a hundred assume this duty and privilege, he asserted.

New Vault Door Here

The huge circular door for the vault of the new Farmers' Trust Company building, now nearing completion, has arrived in town. Its weight is 14 tons, and the door is being unloaded and placed in position today.

The new bank will be ready for occupancy late in December or early in January.

PROPERTY IMPROVEMENTS

Improvements to the fronts of two Newark business places are being rapidly made. Finkernagel is having a glass door front on a brick foundation, which will enclose the porch and store-room of his green grocery store. Willie is the contractor.

Charles Greer is in charge of the work on the new store front of the Washington House.

Two Arrests Last Week For Reckless Driving

Two arrests were made in the vicinity of Newark last week for reckless driving on the highway. In both instances the arrests were made by New Castle county officer George F. Hays, and the cases brought before Magistrate Thompson.

September 24, Charles F. Frock, of Uniontown, Pa., was fined $25 and costs on the charge of reckless driving, and on September 25 Roger Shaw was apprehended and fined $25 and costs on the same charge.

Tilghman Goes To England As Rhodes Scholar

Graduate of University of Delaware Will Have Three-Year Course

Cornelius A. Tilghman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Tilghman, of Smyrna, will sail from New York, Saturday, October 2, on S.S. "Carmania," for England, where he will study for three years at Oxford University, as a Rhodes Scholar from Delaware.

Mr. Tilghman, who was graduated from the University of Delaware in June, 1925, received the recommendation for this scholarship from Yale University, where he was a graduate student at the time the selection was to have been made. By reason of his work at Yale, he received senior standing at Oxford and will be admitted without any examinations.

While at the University of Delaware, Mr. Tilghman was an outstanding student, active in all college organizations, and in his senior year was editor-in-chief of the Review. He is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

Mr. Tilghman has a host of friends, young and old, throughout the State and especially in Newark, where he has spent his college life. His friends at Kells, where he has worked so unselfishly for the past months, are greatly interested in his future, and especially in the news that he has been commissioned to write for the Associated Press, while at Oxford.

James D. Davis, Jr. Goes to Elkton Bank

James D. Davis, Jr., formerly of the Newark Trust and Safe Deposit Company, and trust officer, has been elected assistant cashier of the National Bank of Elkton, to succeed Rodney Frazer, resigned, and entered upon his new duties the first of this week. The National Bank of Elkton is a very strong institution, with assets nearing the two million mark. Mr. Davis is well qualified to fill the position, having been associated with the People's National Bank of Middletown, Delaware, as cashier and director for more than twelve years. Mr. Davis will continue to live in Newark.

BANK OPENING

The Cradle Roll Department of the M. E. Church held its first bank opening Thursday, September 16, in the lecture room. The total amount received from these banks was $64.30, which was given over to the building fund.

MISS WILSON RECOVERING

Miss Frances Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Wilson, of Park Place, was operated on for appendicitis at the Homeopathic Hospital, Wilmington, last Friday. Miss Wilson is recovering rapidly.

Impressive Ceremonies At Mason's Dedication

Seven States Represented at Opening of New Lodge Rooms

On Friday evening, September 24, Hiram Lodge, No. 25, A. F. & A. M., moved from their lodge room in the Wollaston Building, to their new, commodious quarters in the Newark Opera House Building. The room had recently been fitted up especially for their accommodation by Messrs. Johnston and Dayett, both of whom are members of the local fraternity.

The Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Masons of Delaware, James P. Pierce, of Milford, accompanied by his staff, were guests of the local officers at dinner at the Blue Hen Tea Room. Covers were laid for twenty-five.

Later, in the new room, appropriate dedication ceremonies were held by the Grand Officers, after which a program arranged by the local officers was given. Addresses were made by Past Grand Masters George B. Hynson and Edward W. Cooch, Grand Master Pierce, Grand Chaplain D. W. Jacobs and Past Master Benjamin A. Groves, Reverend Zack Wells and Reverend Wilbur F. Cockran. Past Master Groves was master of the local lodge when the Old Hall was dedicated in 1890.

About 125 members were present at the ceremony. Seven states were represented, including New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, North Carolina, and Kentucky.

At the present time, the local lodge is represented on the Grand Master's Staff by Robert S. Gallaher, Senior Grand Warden; and F. Irving Crow, Junior Grand Deacon. These two local members had the honor of participating officially with the Grand Officers in the dedication ceremonies of the new home.

Dr. Harry G. M. Kollock is the oldest living Past Master of the local lodge, having served in 1879.

Prof. Runk's Brother Seriously Injured

Professor C. R. Runk, assistant agronomist at the University Experiment Station, who received word yesterday that his brother, O. N. Runk had had both legs amputated, had this morning received no further details except that his brother's condition was unchanged.

Mr. O. N. Runk is a mechanical engineer, connected with a mining company at Madisonville, Kentucky. Both his legs were injured in some manner so that it was necessary to immediately amputate them. O. N. Runk had only recently returned to the States after spending several years in the Canal Zone.

FORTY HOURS DEVOTION

Forty hours' devotional services at St. John's R. C. Church, which began on Sunday, closed last evening. There have been morning and evening services, and the church has been open at all times for worship. Several out-of-town priests have visited the church.

NEWARK PEOPLE IN FLORIDA

Mrs. Mary H. Rose, who owns valuable property and mortgages at West Palm Beach, wired last week to friends there, asking them to wire her if her interests there were involved. Not having received any reply, Mrs. Rose has concluded that there is no alarming news and that she will receive letters soon, giving her satisfactory details.

Mr. T. H. Ford, manager of the Atlantic and Pacific Store of this town, has received a telegram from his sister, Mrs. B. S. Davis, who, with her son, motored to Miami, leaving here September 1st. Mr. Ford had just received a letter from his sister, saying that she was located in an apartment at Miami, when the press brought the reports of the disastrous storm that had swept southern Florida. Having received no replies to several wires, he was very much alarmed, and had planned to go to Florida, when he received the assurance of the safety of his relatives. The telegram, dated last Thursday read: "Whole city swept. We are safe. Undecided what to do."

Newark High vs. Industrial School

The Newark High School football team will play its first game, at Newark, Friday afternoon, at 3.30. Their opponents will be the Ferris Industrial School, coached by Colonel Tanner. This date has solved a dilemma for Newark, as it was not till this afternoon that they were sure of a date for this week.

Student Activities In Fire Prevention Week

Professor Brinser Has Laid Out Practical Program For Newark School Children

As a phase of safety education, the Newark School System will take an active part in Fire Prevention Week, October 4 to 8. Professor Brinser has had the cooperation of the National Fire Underwriters Association and has applied their program to the various school grades and courses.

During all of next week special attention will be called in the school assemblies to the fire menace and the preventative factors in reducing fire risk. The children will inspect their school buildings to determine fire hazards and will be given questionnaires to take home and fill out after an inspection of their homes. These assembly talks will teach them to observe and think, generally, in terms of fire prevention. They will be impressed with the seriousness of fire in its hazard to property and human life and made to feel their individual responsibility in combating that hazard—to take proper care of matches and their disposal, look for dirty and defective flues, keep rubbish cleaned up and placed in metal containers, examine gas and electrical equipment and, in short, be alert to find and remove any possible cause of fire. They will be made to realize the importance of keeping all fire-fighting apparatus always in condition for instant use as a few moments delay, or failure to operate might cause the death of a human being. The fires in Newark for the past year will be studied and the causes and the possible prevention of those fires determined.

The science courses will teach the construction, care, and use of fire-fighting equipment, and first aid methods for the treatment of injuries caused by fire. The classes in design will work on posters for spreading fire prevention propaganda. The entire school system to take part in intensive fire drills to make instinctive orderly and efficient conduct in the event of fire.

Professor Brinser has laid out a very practical and comprehensive program, correlating all its parts to the various studies in the schools. It will be the means, not only of giving the students a broad knowledge of fire and its prevention, but the work has been so dramatized that it will make a serious impression. The influence of this work should be felt beyond the school children as they will be a medium for disseminating sound and practical facts and information on fire, and how to prevent and subdue it.

Delaware Man Signally Honored

The following article and cut is reproduced exactly as it appeared in the Evening Edition of the August 11 "Paris Times." Each day the "Paris Times" prints an article under the heading "The Man of the Day" about some personage of international importance.

"THE MAN OF THE DAY"

MR. RAYMOND W. KIRKBRIDE.

The University of Delaware Foreign Study Plan is entering the fourth year of an experiment that is likely to have increasing importance in American colleges and to be extended to vastly greater proportions. Delaware found its foreign study plan so successful that it has continued and enlarged the groups which it sends to France every year and other American universities have joined in the movement. The basis of the idea is to allow students at American colleges to spend their Junior year in study at a French university to be credited toward their American degrees as if the work had been done at home. Forty-two students from eighteen different colleges are in France at the present moment working under this plan.

Professor Raymond W. Kirkbride, who is the director of these foreign study groups, is also the originator (Continued on Page 4.)

Hagen Retains Pro Golf Crown

Last Saturday Walter Hagen proved an exception to the new rule and upset an old precedent by winning the P. G. A. championship for the third successive time. This unusual feat was accomplished in the face of winning the medal of the tournament. The tournament was held this year at the Salisbury course, Garden City, L. I. Diego Diegel, runner-up, was disposed of 5 and 3.

The medal scores were close, but Hagen playing his usual cool and deadly game was in front of Diegel, former Canadian open champion, nearly all the way. Hagen's morning round of 69 was within one stroke of the record for the tournament. Diegel had a 71 in the morning.

Child Hit by Auto

Grant, Jr., the young son of Professor and Mrs. Grant Code, narrowly escaped serious injury on Sunday afternoon, when he was knocked down and dragged several feet by a milk truck driven by H. C. Herdman, of this town. Mrs. Code, with the boy, was about to cross the street in front of Purnell Hall, when the child ran ahead of her, directly in front of the car. Only the fact that Mr. Herdman was driving slowly averted a tragedy. The child was apparently uninjured, except for a few slight bruises, and was able to go to school on Monday morning.

T. A. BAKER TO BUILD

Professor T. A. Baker, who recently purchased a lot on Orchard Road between those owned by F. A. Wheelers and George L. Schuster, was given the contract for building a brick and stucco house of English design. Charles W. Greer is the contractor. Work on the foundation began on Monday. The Bakers expect to move into their new home about the first of the year, if weather conditions are favorable.

VESTRYMAN ELECTED

At a special meeting of the vestry of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church last Sunday evening, R. O. Bausman was elected a member of that body to fill a vacancy.

Editors Meet At University

Del-Mar-Va Press Association Holds Fall Meeting at Old College

The University of Delaware acted as host to the members of the Delmarva Press Association last Saturday, when they held their fall meeting in Old College.

A short business meeting was held in the faculty rooms, Old College, where a resolution was made that a suitable memorial be drafted to the memory of Everett C. Johnson; this being the first meeting of the association since Mr. Johnson's death. Colonel Theodore Townsend was chosen as chairman of the committee to draft the resolution and, in accepting, gave an informal talk of his trip to Florida with Mr. Johnson last year as delegates of this section to the National Press Association. He told of an extemporaneous speech Mr. Johnson made at a dinner in Florida, where he chose as his topic "Dreamers." Col. Townsend said it was the most moving word picture he had ever listened to and that at the end of the speech when Mr. Johnson, exhausted by his efforts, left the dining room, an assemblage of 600 people paid him the tribute of silently standing till he had passed from the room.

After the business meeting, the publishers and editors were given luncheon in the Commons. Mr. George Carter, president of the Association, introduced Dr. Hulihan, who made the welcoming address. Dr. Hulihan outlined briefly the development of the University over the last decade and told how its buildings and properties had quadrupled in value in that time, until at present they were worth over two million dollars. He said that at present the degree of the University of Delaware was the equal in standing of the degree offered by any university or college in the country. He gave credit to the press for much of the effort and inspiration in making this possible and asked their cooperation in the future growth of the University.

Dean George E. Dutton, of Delaware College, was the next speaker and gave interesting facts on the enrollment policy of the college. He said that Delaware boys were given first entrance preference regardless of scholastic standing as long as they (Continued on Page 8.)

Delaware 4-H Club Back From Camp Vale

Mr. Cobb's Charges Take Many High Honors

Last week was Delaware Week at Camp Vale at the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, Massachusetts. The twelve Delaware 4-H Club members who attended the camp more than lived up to the standard set by Delaware boys and girls who have attended in previous years, both in their work in the judging contests in competition with club members from twelve eastern states, and in their demonstrations of the growing and uses of the famous Delaware sweet potato.

In the Delaware demonstration booth the six Delaware girls under direction of Anne B. Moore, County Club Agent of Sussex County, made and baked 1,850 sweet potato pies. These pies were sold from the booth by the boys and girls, and the fact that all pies were sold by one o'clock each afternoon was proof positive of the effectiveness of this method of advertising Delaware sweets.

Not to be outdone by the girls the boys constructed a miniature sweet potato farm, complete with plant beds and rows of growing sweet potatoes, demonstrating the care which Delaware growers use in growing the best quality of sweet potatoes. During the entire week the booth was the center of interested groups of visitors at the Exposition. It was estimated that between fifty and seventy-five thousand people passed by the booth during the week.

In their judging work the Delaware Club members added to the records already established in former years, and which have not been surpassed by any of the competing states. Dorsey Kinnamon, of the Oak Grove Club of Dover, won a first honor ribbon.

Newark Men On Safety Committee

Dr. George A. Harter And Joseph
M. McVey, Of This Town
Appointed

Adolph A. Rydgren, vice-president and actuary of the Continental Life Insurance Company, and who is chairman of the sub-committee on statistics for the Delaware State conference on street and highway safety, announced Wednesday night, last week, the personnel of his committee, as follows: Max Bell, Continental Life Insurance Company; Dr. A. T. Davis, secretary of State Board of Health; Dr. Fred F. Armstrong, secretary of Wilmington Board of Health; Coroner Harvey K. Wadman, New Castle county; Coroner William H. Enos, Kent county; Coroner H. B. Hickman, Sussex county; Dr. J. B. Derrickson, president of Delaware Medical Association; Philip Williams, du Pont Company; A. C. Nielson, du Pont Company; W. W. Mack, Dover; A. G. Livingston, Dover; B. D. Bryen, du Pont Company; Dr. George A. Harter, University of Delaware; Joseph McVey, Hercules Company; Dr. Richard Beebe, Beebe Hospital, Lewes; Dr. Roscoe Elliott, Emergency Hospital, Milford; Dr. William Marshall, Marshall Hospital, Milford; Dr. John B. Hutton, Kent General Hospital, Dover; Dr. William E. Smith, Physicians' and Surgeons' Hospital; Dr. Robert W. Tomlinson, Delaware Hospital; Dr. Edgar Q. Bullock, Bullock, Homeopathic Hospital; Dr. James Spackman, St. Francis Hospital.

This committee met in the offices of the Continental Life Insurance Company and outlined the work. Mr. Rydgren pointed out that a knowledge of the facts of the accident statistics was the first essential in the problem of accident prevention. It is expected that the committee will prepare detailed records covering accident casualties of all past records and including the first six months of the present year.

The trends will be compared with the trends of other states and with national figures. An estimate of the economic waste in the loss of life and property will also be estimated by the committee.

A Mile of Motor Trucks

Advancing with the times the Downie Bros. Wild Animal Circus have discarded their obsolete wooden railroad cars and are this season using to transport their gigantic amusement enterprise an immense fleet of motor trucks!

The same high class performance is carried as in former years. Two rings, an elevated stage and a steel arena being necessary to display the fifty great acts and features including the Downie Bros. herd of performing elephants trained by N. W. McKay, former trainer of "Tusko" the world's largest elephant. Included in the herd is "Teddy" the New York Hippodrome elephant who for the past three years has been at the World's largest theatre.

Among the many other American and foreign acts is Capt. Terp and his Australian horses, ponies, dogs and monkeys. Vernon Ott and his educated monkey "Knuckles." Steve Oris, the Montana Cowboy. The De Homan Family of acrobats, contortionists and hand balancers. The Mansfields, rifle experts and sharpshooters. Fidell Ortega and Vernon West, masters of the silver wire. Franklin Bros., novelty perch artists. Misses Rojas and Wilson, the ladies with the iron jaws.

A street parade is given at noon. The most novel circus parade in the world. Forty-nine trucks of about every standard make will be in line. Each and every animal has their palatial auto Pullman. No horse drawn vehicles will be in line. Of course the trained horses will be there as well as the funny clowns, three bands, two calliopes.

Lodge Notes

Mineola Council No. 17, Degree of Pocahontas, held an interesting meeting last Tuesday evening, after which they tendered a surprise party to Mr. McLaughlin, of the Red Men's Home, to celebrate his 81st birthday. Mr. McLaughlin, while a member of the Degree of Pocahontas from Sussex county, is a faithful visitor to Mineola Council and through his advice has helped the local Council out many times. The evening was spent with Mr. McLaughlin telling of his many experiences with the Degree of Pocahontas and Improved Order of Red Men, during the time he was a member of both orders.

Minnehaha Tribe No. 23, I. O. R. M., held an interesting meeting last night, when the following officers

Matthew Thornton, Signer

A surgeon, a colonel, justice of the peace and first president of the Provincial Convention, were some of the offices filled by that versatile signer of the Declaration of Independence, Matthew Thornton, of New Hampshire. The Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia is commemorating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the document.

Thornton was a native of Ireland, but he received his academic education in the schools of Worcester, Massachusetts. He studied surgery under Doctor Groat and practised his profession at Londonderry, New Hampshire.

In the expedition against Cape Breton in 1745, he served as surgeon among the wounded. Thornton's name was affixed to the address to the people of the colony which urged resistance to the Crown in June, 1775.

The New Hampshire signer's opportunities for service to his country followed one another with rapidity. He was elected speaker of the General Assembly in January, 1776. He was appointed in September of the same year by the House of Representatives for one year as Delegate in Congress and took his seat in November of that year.

Thornton was appointed Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas in 1776, and on January 10 of the same year he was appointed judge of the Superior Court of New Hampshire. He was elected to Congress in December, 1776. In 1780 he retired to a farm on the banks of the Merrimack.

Bernard Kelly Dies From Auto Accident

Never Regained Consciousness After Skull Was Crushed in Car Upset

Bernard Kelly, whose skull was crushed when he was thrown from an overturned automobile near town last Wednesday afternoon while on his way to the races at Havre de Grace from his home in Wilmington, died at Union Hospital here on Friday afternoon about 3:45 o'clock. Kelly, with James Maloney, his brother-in-law, who was driving the car, and who lives with him, and Joseph Knox were en route to Havre de Grace and in order to make a short cut turned the car in a dirt road. The car struck a rut and a wheel broke, landing the machine in a ditch. Maloney and Knox escaped with a few scratches. The back of Kelly's head had been so badly crushed that an operation was impossible. He never regained consciousness from the time he was admitted to the hospital. His wife and father were with him until his death.

BANKER AND WIFE MEET INSTANT DEATH

Samuel R. Dickey, 78 years old, and his wife, Anna Rutherford Dickey, 50 years old, were instantly killed last Thursday afternoon, at Aiken, Maryland, when their car was struck by the "Race Track Special" on the B. and O. R. R.

Mr. Dickey was one of the best-known residents of Oxford, Pennsylvania, where he was president of the First National Bank. He was married twice and is survived by two children by his first wife, Professor George Dickey, of Pennsylvania State College, and Mrs. James Conner, of Trenton.

AN OLD SAW

An upper mill and lower mill
Fell out about their water.
To war they went, this is to law,
Resolved to give no quarter.

A lawyer was by each engaged
And hotly they contended;
When fees grew scant, the war
they waged
They judged were better ended.

The heavy costs remaining still
Were settled without pother;
One lawyer took the upper mill,
The lower mill the other.

My mind to me an empire is.—Robert Southwell.

Excellence

"Whoever talks of excellence as common and abundant is on the way to lose all right standard of excellence. And when the right standard of excellence is lost it is not likely that much which is excellent will be produced."—Matthew Arnold.

The Simplicity To Wonder, To Ask

Dr. William Mather Lewis, in his address last week to the students of Delaware University, made two fundamental points that have a great bearing on success in life, no matter what the object may be. The simplicity to wonder and the ability to question.

There are so many of us who are partial successes because we have allowed false pride and self-sufficiency to overcome that simplicity to wonder and ask questions that is inherent in childhood. Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Charles W. Eliot never lost that childhood trait and it was that, primarily, that kept them youthful to the end of their years. To be able to see the interest in the everyday things about us and to probe that interest to its roots, keeps us from the rut, broadens our perceptions; and from our added knowledge of those things, we reap a material reward. But, better than that, it brings us new enthusiasms, and fresh thoughts and understandings every hour which, after all, are the secrets of success and eternal youth.

Father and Son

The estate of Abraham Lincoln's son, Robert Todd Lincoln, who died last July, is valued at $11,125,000. The fact is an illustration of the opportunities for accumulating money in this country. For certainly Robert Lincoln must have started out into the business world with very little capital. In 1859, his father owned some building lots in Springfield, Illinois, two small farms, and his two-story house, valued in all at between $15,000 and $25,000. In 1860, he wrote, "I could not raise ten thousand dollars if it would save me from the fate of John Brown."

This delightful story is told by Carl Sanburg in his "Prairie Notes" of the father whose son later became president of the Pullman Company.

"He (Lincoln) rode from Chicago to Springfield in a car conducted by a man named Pullman, who was experimenting and trying to find out whether the traveling public cared to sleep while traveling, and, if so, what sort of accommodations they liked. Lincoln paid Pullman fifty cents for half a berth, hanging his coat and vest on a peg, kicked off his boots, and, as Pullman told it, 'was sleeping like a healthy baby before the car left the depot.'"

"Soon, however, a passenger who had paid fifty cents for the other half of the berth Lincoln was sleeping in, came to Pullman in a huff, spluttering, 'There's a man in that berth of mine and he's about ten feet high. How am I going to sleep there? Go and look at him.' Then Pullman, in a huff, went to look, and, as he told it, found 'the tall, lank man's knees under his chin, his arms stretched across the bed, and his feet stored comfortably.' He shook the tall man awake and told him he would have to pay a dollar for the whole berth. 'My dear Sir,' answered the tall man, 'a contract is a contract. I have paid you fifty cents for half this berth, and, as you see, I am occupying it. There's the other half,' pointing to a strip about six inches wide. 'Sell that and don't disturb me again.' And Lincoln went to sleep; later he and Pullman were properly introduced and had a laugh over their first meeting.

Yet we are sure that the son recognized greatness as those of his father's generation recognized it; that he placed the richness of his father's life above his own riches, and he knew that his own inheritance had been his greatest wealth.

Delaware Man

with the backing of Mr. Pierre du Pont, of Wilmington, he succeeded in bringing his first group of Delaware students to France for a year's term. Already the idea has become thoroughly established in many colleges and last year Smith College undertook a similar plan independently.

The American students, who form the largest group brought to France so far under the system, are at Nancy improving their French before entering the courses which they have chosen to follow at the Sorbonne and other Paris schools. The subjects pursued are largely literature, history, geography and economics. Beside the formal lecture, the American students have the benefit of individual supervision by tutors who meet them for a one-hour conference at least once a week. This method of directing the student is modeled on the Oxford tutorial system.

To further the purpose of giving each student as thorough a knowledge of the French language and customs, as well as of French literature and civilization, the students are assigned to live in private French families, as far as possible where they will be the only English-speaking persons in the house. The girls, of whom there are twenty-six in the party, are subject to the strict chaperonage under which so many French girls live and are not allowed to go out alone in the evenings. These of the idea. It occurred to him in 1919 when he was a student at Grenoble under the American Army education plan. Some three years later, precautions insure the Americans talking nothing but French during the greatest part of their time here.

The students' trip is planned with great minuteness and attention to detail, and tours to different parts of France, Luxembourg and Belgium are included. It is arranged for the Americans to meet French people in academic and business circles, to be invited to social functions and attend the theatre and opera.

Professor Kirkbride, who is the principal figure in the organizing of the scheme, is a young man. He was born in Pittsburgh, and graduated from Westminster College, at New Wilmington, Pa., in 1913. He came to France in 1918 with Evacuation Ambulance Company 10, and on being demobilized became Professor of French at the University of Delaware. During the summers of the following years he studied in France and elaborated his plan for a systematic incorporation of foreign study into the American curriculum. His idea was adopted by his University in 1922 and the following summer the first group came abroad under Professor Kirkbride's supervision.

The facilities of the study group have already been extended to other universities and colleges beside Delaware, and the organization is being developed with a view to making it thoroughly intercollegiate in the end.

State Board of Ed. To Meet at Dover

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the State Board of Education held in Dover last Wednesday evening, the dates for the annual meeting of the State Board of Education were set for November 11 and 12, at Dover. The board meeting at Dover was attended by Professor W. A. Wilkinson, of the University of Delaware, president of the association; W. H. Jump, of Wyoming, vice-president; Miss Ethel Gibson, of Greenwood; H. E. Snavely, of New Castle; D. A. Petry, Millsboro, and R. E. Shilling, of Milford, secretary of the association.

TO ATTEND PRESBYTERY

Dr. Hallman will attend the meeting of the New Castle Presbytery at Salisbury on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE

He should, of course, have gone right up to her and talked to her. But then there was nothing to talk about. Certainly, if things went on like this he would never know her. No, never.

For months, now, every night, he came to the Public Library and sat and watched her as she glanced over the magazines in the reading room. Once, he had gone close to her and was going to stop.

She knew, he felt, that he was watching her. At times, there was a glint of invitation in her eyes. But then he had known so many girls who had the same expression, partly from habit, partly from a sub-conscious desire to appear pleasing. Things went on like this for four months.

He came and watched her. Then she gathered her things and left the building. She wore tiny slippers, even in February. He liked to look at her slippers. There was a certain delicacy about them which charmed him. Most women looked ugly when you glanced at their footwear. And, especially, he liked to look at her just as she was tightening the collar of her squirrel coat about her cheeks. He was never able to make up his mind what to do her hair was.

Then one night she didn't come. He waited for her, and then he went home. She would be there the next night he told himself. But a week passed and he never saw her. In a month she was, he felt, a dream which he could always think about when he grew sad. As he grew older, he worked hard. But he would never forget her. He could never forgive himself for not speaking to her.

Then one day he was invited to run down and spend a week with a friend by the sea. When he came down to dinner that night she was standing in the drawing-room smoking a cigarette.

"Hello," she said, when he entered the room. "Oh, yes," he said, "hello." "I've had a difficult time in making it possible so that we two could get together," she said, coming over to him.

"Indeed," he said. "That is really charming of you. Tomorrow I want you to meet my wife. She'll be down in the morning."

"My husband is in the other room," she said.

bon in potato judging in competition with the boys from the potato states of Maine and Vermont. His club mate, Charles Pardee won a third ribbon in this class which included about twenty-five boys.

Mabel Culver and Edith Staples, of Bridgeville, both won first honor ribbons in bread judging, and stood at the top of the list of champion bread making teams from the other states.

Elizabeth Wilson, of Dover, and Frances Sartin and Louise Warner, of St. Georges, all won second honor ribbons in clothing judging, and as a group scored more points than any other state in this class.

Claudel Cannon, of Bridgeville, and Louis Edgelle, of Greenwood, won first and second honor ribbons for their corn judging.

In speaking of these honors, A. D. Cobb, State Leader of County Agents, who was in charge of the group said, "We are particularly proud of this group because we did not give them any special training in judging for these events. What they knew they learned in their regular club meetings and project work. It has proved to us that we are getting over to them essential facts in connection with their farm and home projects."

Dedicated to Pies

This issue of the Camp Vail News is being put out as a Pie Special, in recognition of the way in which Dad Cobb's Delaware bunch have captured the New England crowds with their Sweet Potato Pies.

Up here we're used to pie three times a day and between meals. Only in Rhode Island health clubs and the Camp Vail mess has pie for breakfast been displaced by food. We can eat it with knife, spoon and fork or, if the occasion requires, without any tools at all. This is the test of a real Yankee—if he can flip a piece of custard pie upside down on his thumb and eat it without spilling a drop—he's one!

We can make pies of everything from rhubarb in April to cranberries in November and then not satisfied with that mix up a filling for mince-pie which is first cousin to our other famous mixture—hash!

But we must admit that Delaware has taken a spoke out of our wheel and created a pie that has put our pies in the shade. No doubt these hundreds of pie-wagons that criss-cross New England will be featuring Delaware sweet potato pies. With mouths too full for utterance we hereby subscribe to the matchless perfection and complete satisfaction that characterize the Delaware Sweet Potato Pie!

HIGH SCHOOL CLASSES TAKING FIELD TRIPS

Hand Training in Farm Practice

Mr. T. M. Malin's High School class in agriculture have been checking up the results of a field trip they made one week ago last Monday to the Mayer farm on the Elkton road.

Vincent Mayer, one of the members of the class, has an exceptionally fine flock of white leghorn chickens, numbering about 60, which the class culled, putting 19 culls in a separate pen. Up to yesterday, none of the culls had laid a single egg while the remainder of the flock had averaged 25 eggs a day. Mr. Malin explained that this was a good average for the season as many of the hens are moulting. On the first clear day the class expects to re-visit the Mayer farm and cull a flock of Rhode Island Reds. These field trips have added a great deal of value to the course, giving an increased interest to the study and bringing the students into first hand contact with actual conditions and problems in practical farm work.

DINNER PARTY AT WOMEN'S COLLEGE

Dean Robinson, of the Women's College of the University of Delaware, will give a dinner party in the new dining room tonight at 6 o'clock in honor of President and Mrs. Hüllihen of the University, and Dr. and Mrs. Odell, of Wilmington. President Hüllihen and Dr. Odell, who is director of the Service Citizens of Delaware, will sail on Saturday for France, where they will spend several weeks in the interest of the development of the foreign study plan of the university.

Other invited guests are members of the Women's College Committee and their wives, members of the advisory council and their husbands, and those who have planned the construction of the dining-hall. The guests are: Dr. and Mrs. Hüllihen, Dr. and Mrs. Odell, Judge and Mrs. Charles M. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Scott, Mrs. A. D. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rodney Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre du Pont, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Tarbuton, Gerald Montaigne, and Miss Alice P. Smyth, of Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Evans, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bancroft, of Wyoming; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Messick, of Bridgeville, and Dr. and Mrs. Bevan, of Suwanee, Tennessee.

RALLY DAY LAST SUNDAY

Rally Day at the Presbyterian Church last Sunday was a very happy occasion. The attendance was large and the program well planned. Dr. Matthews, of the University faculty, sang a solo; the girls' choir also furnished music, and Professor Barkley, of the University faculty, gave an interesting informal talk to the children.

Sunday was promotion day in the Sunday School and promotion certificates were awarded. The offering has been sent to the Asheville Farm School, Asheville, North Carolina.

LOUIS HANDLOFF RECOVERING RAPIDLY

Mr. Louis Handloff returned last Saturday from Philadelphia where he had spent nine days in the St. Agnes Hospital. Mr. Handloff was suffering from a severe case of ivy poisoning which became so virulent that it attacked his nervous system. We are glad to report that his condition is much improved and that he expects to be around again in a few days.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE

Sophomore elections, held over from last year, gave the following results: Anne Whaley, president; Rosalie Stogel, secretary; Agnes Thoms, treasurer. The vice-presidency is a tie between Helen Stayton and Eleanor Edge.

Mrs. A. D. Warner has given a beautiful new rug and draperies for the Warner Room.

Stunt night on Monday was the usual ridiculously funny performance, with unusual demands by Sophomores and both clever and stupid responses from Freshmen. The latter had been requested to appear in newspaper costume, socks and no shoes, and each one to have her hair plaited in thirty braids. Upper classmen and a few friends witnessed the humiliation of the newcomers, and heard the rules read which shall entirely complete their subjugation. The insignia of the Freshman this year is a white cap, tied under the chin with a green ribbon. Among the temporary rules is one of having to carry their books in a pillow slip for one week; to copy the rules on a slate; to use no cosmetics, and other autocratic measures.

That Dempsey and Tunney do not "rate" with Women's College Freshmen, when compared with the Delaware College students is evident from the following bit of conversation heard on the campus Thursday:

Commuting Women's College Student: "Wish you could come over tonight and hear the fight on the radio." Women's College Resident Freshman: "But that fight came off last night."

C. W. C. S.: "I know it didn't." W. C. R. F.: "I know it did. One of the boys told me so. The Freshmen won!"

Children's Eyes

Do not neglect them. Have your child's eyes examined now, so that you may know their real condition. Proper glasses may help them to become the success in life that you desire them to be. If they do not need glasses we will tell you so.

Pinkie, Daisy and the Bay Mare

by
EDNA SPRINGER PAINE

Pinkie, Daisy and the Bay Mare, surrounded by a herd of satellites, occupied the particular Berkshire pasture in which it was our destiny to pitch our tent after long days of leisurely wayfaring. Unconscious that we were objects of unbounded curiosity to the grazing herd on the pasture hillsides we slowly pitched our tent and set up camp housekeeping.

Large stones from the brook formed a rudely constructed hearth where dangled our pot-hooks from a crane of sapling maple. Soon, by industry and perseverance, our hearth was decorated with a tempting array of food to be cooked over our blazing fire. We went about our preparations oblivious to the advancing cattle who stopped frequently to wrench mouthfuls of the rich grass as they slowly bore down upon us.

We received no intimation of our danger until the camp was fairly taken. Looking up we saw ourselves surrounded, the objects of a great and insatiable curiosity. No amount of waving of arms and sticks, or stentorian shouting produced the slightest effect upon them. They simply lowered their heads and blinking their eyes continued to stare at us. Pinkie, the red cow, embodiment of determination, advanced upon the hearth rich with spoils. With a shriek the cook gathered to her bosom the coveted food and retreated precipitately to the innermost recesses of the tent.

Nothing daunted Pinkie sniffed the Rinsos, then placidly ate it, green box and all, lusciously drooling all the while. When the last delicious bit had been made away with she eagerly sniffed and licked from the ground the few grains that had drifted from the already consumed box. The tenters, frozen with fascinated horror at the unexpected sight, were quite overcome when next Pinkie calmly devoured the Magic Mit! That was too much but no amount of persuasion could induce her to cough up her prize.

The campers spent an anxious, restless night. Intervals of sleep were made uneasy by dreams of putting the red cow to soak in Rinsos and scouring her with the Magic Mit. Next morning the herd was watched for with undisguised anxiety. Pinkie, greedily curious, was of the number.

Daisy and the Bay Mare each came in for their little episode. When later the caretaker of the farm came at our request to talk over the erection of a barbed wire fence for our protection, Daisy, the glossy black pony, with ears pricked forward and a wicked gleam in her bright eyes, slipped up behind the caretaker and quick as a wink nipped his box of tobacco from his pocket and made off with it as fast as her slim little legs could gallop. After much shouting and a deal of running the box was returned to its rightful owner.

As for the Bay Mare, she was vicious and everybody was warned to give her plenty of space. She showed her vindictiveness and resentment of the restriction of a fence by biting one of the black nondescripts and kicking him sprawling through the fence. The damage was repaired and now they stand a still curious but subdued herd with their heads over the fence viewing us with sleepy interest. Occasionally their eyes close and their heads droop only to be brought up by the barbed wire and to a realization they, not we, are the intruders.

Radio Advice From An Expert

Herbert E. Metcalf, Radio Engineer of the Magnovox Co., Oakland, Calif., gives some simple yet sound advice to all radio fans who wish to get the best results from their sets, when he says:

"Everyone knows that the one cardinal virtue of a first-class radio set is soldered connections. The fact that every point should be carefully cleaned and then securely soldered, has been brought forcibly to our attention in practically every written article about radio set building. We are also continually being cautioned about soldered antenna joints and proper ground clamps.

"When we buy any set of good quality, we naturally take it for granted that all joints are secure, because they are most carefully tested before being sent out. We then install our set, solder all antenna joints, put in a good ground clamp, scrape and carefully apply all battery connections, and everything is fine, until some day we hear a noise such as caused by a poor connection somewhere. Perhaps the noises get worse and worse, and upon investigation find all joints still secure—what then?

"The fact is that there are at least 22 contacts in a 5-tube set which cannot even be soldered. Twenty of them are tube prong contacts, and the other two are the battery switch and the rheostat. Dirt on any one of these will be a fruitful source of noise. Many tubes have solder (lead alloy) on their base prongs. This solder rubs off onto the socket contacts, oxidizes, and makes a high-resistance, noisy connection. The battery switch is often liable to 'dirty up' after continued switching, and must be cleaned. The same with the rheostat. Imagine trying to run an automobile and never cleaning the distributor or timer. A dirty distributor contact in a motor causes missing—a dirty switch or rheostat contact causes noise in a radio set.

"The remedy is of course—cleaning. Keep the tube prongs bright and shiny—solder will oxidize and blacken more quickly in some climates than others. It is not enough to clean the prongs—clean the socket contacts also. Clean the battery switch contacts as you would a distributor in an automobile. If the rheostat needs cleaning any movement of the knob will cause the noise to change. Fine sandpaper may be used, or even a pencil rubber—but never use a file or hard emery cloth. It's just the very surface that's oxidized, and a light cleaning until the metal is bright is sufficient.

"The next time the set gets noisy, try cleaning the contacts—or better yet, why not do it regularly and not have to apologize for a dirty contact during a concert."

The "Miracle To Be Shown Next Week

Beginning Monday Night In Metropolitan Opera House Play Will Continue Five Weeks

Philadelphia is to have an opportunity to show its civic pride in its appreciation of things artistic, when Morris Gest presents Max Reinhardt's wonderful creation for the theatre, "The Miracle," at the Metropolitan Opera House, during an engagement limited to five weeks, beginning October 4.

Mr. Gest is bringing "The Miracle" to Philadelphia at the invitation of a committee of leading citizens and art-lovers and patrons. The Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial production of this gigantic and marvelously beautiful music-drama-pantomime-spectacle will be the only one in the East this season, and the only one, with the exception of those in New York and Boston, where a money guarantee has not been required. This will be the seventh American city in which "The Miracle" will have been offered. The others were Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis. Following the showing here, "The Miracle" will go to Kansas City, Los Angeles and San Francisco, at the behest of chambers of commerce and civic bodies of those cities.

"The Miracle" has been presented in seventeen European cities. After many years of negotiations, Mr. Gest finally induced Mr. Reinhardt, European master of stagecraft, to come to America to stage the greatest production of the beautiful and impressive drama in this country. This brought about the epoch-making production which will be presented here. It marks the greatest innovation in the history of the theatre in the entire world. To present the American production necessitated the transformation of the theatre or auditorium in which it is to be shown into a marvelously beautiful twelfth century Gothic cathedral, which forms the sole setting of "The Miracle."

The point is that the beautiful legend of "The Miracle" had been performed as a "miracle play" back in the Twelfth Century in the church, out of which the modern theatre grew. It was Morris Gest's and Prof. Reinhardt's combined idea to bring the theatre back to the church. To carry out this idea, they called in Norman-Bel Geddes, young American stage and scenic artist. Mr. Geddes spent seven months on the creation of the designs. The original cost of "The Miracle" was $612,000. The estimated cost of presenting "The Miracle" in Philadelphia during its engagement there, including the expense of transforming the Metropolitan Opera House for the purpose, is $490,000. Hundreds of thousands of persons have seen "The Miracle," and all records of box-office receipts for a theatrical attraction have been greatly exceeded wherever it has been presented.

When "The Miracle" is shown here it will have the same wonderful cast of principals that it has had in other cities, including New York. Lady Diana Manners, famous English beauty, youngest daughter of the late eighth Duke of Rutland, will be seen as the Madonna, a role she created in the American production. She also will alternate on certain evenings with Elinor Patterson, Chicago heiress, and Iris Tree, daughter of the late Sir Herbert Beerbohm-Tree, England's noted actor-manager, in the part of the Nun; and Madame Elizabeth Schirmer, Other principals who will appear in the Philadelphia production of "The Miracle" are: the great Reinhardt, actor and pantomimist; Luis Rainer, in the role of the Shadow of Death; Orville Caldwell, as the Knight; Lionel Braham as the Count; Schuyler Ladd as the Prince; Fritz Feld as the Piper; Mariska Aldrich as the Abbess; and Maria Cherer-Bekke as a Czar's Dancer.

Before Dr. Karl Vollmoeller, the author of "The Miracle," gave the familiar medieval legend the form in which it is presented, the story already had gone through a number of transformations. Its origin lies in the midst of medieval times. The original story, though never written on parchment, or printed in books of the early printers, is one of the treasures of ancient folklore, which, like so many melodious and soulful folk songs, has retained its original freshness and charm for hundreds of years.

Seats are now on sale at the Metropolitan Opera House Ticket Office, Weymann's Music Store, 1108 Chestnut street, and Gimbel Brothers.

A Real American

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

If Calvin Coolidge had been the silent man he is reputed to be in Washington to be, he would not have talked so freely and so fully to Bruce Barton. His friends have always said that in social intercourse among intimates he is genial and communicative. Mr. Barton is a friend, and when he told the President that there were a lot of questions the people would like to ask him if they had the opportunity, the way was opened to put some of the questions. Mr. Coolidge answered with an engaging frankness and disclosed himself as a very human sort of person, possessed of uncommonly sound common sense.

He was reared in a small country hamlet, and likes to go back there and putter around at the things he used to do as a boy. There are thousands of men who have gone from the farms to the towns and the great cities who feel the same way. If the farm on which they grew up has passed out of the family, many of them buy it back for the sake of the old associations. Mr. Coolidge's ambition as a boy was to be a storekeeper, an ambition entertained today by tens of thousands of small boys in the farming communities all over the country. He read poetry in his youth, Tennyson, Scott—he could recite long passages from Scott—Eugene Field, James Whitcomb Riley, Rudyard Kipling and Milton. He likes the parts of the Bible written by St. Paul. He has never attempted to decide who is the greatest man in history because the great are all so different.

He thinks every girl should marry and thinks that those men and women who have achieved distinction without being married have worked under a great handicap. "How can there be any doubt about it?" he asked. "A man who has the companionship of a lovely and gracious woman enjoys the supreme blessing that life can give. And no citizen of the United States knows the truth of this statement better than I." Regarding the attractions of the presidency, and he admitted they were many, he said that when he was a boy he wanted to do something else beside farm and that the same disposition had followed him through life, a disposition that he still holds, even in the White House. "Mrs. Coolidge and I say to each other sometimes that we wish we could go home," and he reflected that contentment is a difficult lesson to learn, but that, after all, most people are about as well off as they can be.

He has given no thought to what he will do when he leaves public life, but he explained that he owns a farm in Vermont, on which he could make a living for his family, and that he still has his law office in Northampton, to which he could return.

The President's talk discloses him as a calm, philosophically minded citizen who can understand the people because he is one of them, with the same loyalties and faiths that control the lives of the decent folks who constitute the great mass of the American citizenry.

"Like a very young person, I imagined it was with Work alone, and not also with Folly and Sin, in myself and others, that I have been appointed to struggle."

FARM ISOLATION NOW VANISHING

As long as there have been cities there have been paved streets, and asphalt, which we think of usually as a modern product, was used in ancient Babylon by Nabopolassar, who was the first to use it for street construction.

His son, Nebuchadnezzar, followed his example, and upon one street, of which he was particularly proud, caused to be placed a tablet calling upon his people to "traverse this street in joy" and wish him "eternal age and well-being."

Pompeii built sidewalks of asphalt, and was the first to raise the center of her asphalt streets in order to drain off the water.

Modern highways are transforming farm life in many states, relieving it of its loneliness and placing it in ready contact with all that is going on in the world.

Good roads present more than merely tourists zipping along the highway, or trucks moving from town to town. The finer picture is that of rural homes linked together, with the men, women and children of the farms brought nearer one another.

Social life in the farming sections is possible today, because of the constantly increasing web of hard-surfaced roads, and such life is becoming the envy of city folk.

Only a few years ago, there was little or no state highway constructed that is now proving an aid to consolidation of rural schools.

"Today is the tomorrow we worried about yesterday."

Secretary Hoover To Address Meeting

Final Session of State Conference on Street and Highway Safety to be November 12

The Governor's Advisory Committee for the State Conference on Street and Highway Safety met in the Supreme Court Room of the State House, Dover, last Tuesday. In addition to Governor Robinson those present were: C. T. Bridgman, chairman; C. D. Buck, F. S. Williams, W. F. Allen, Eliza Steele, L. A. Drexler, J. G. Sheaffer, John C. Saylor, N. T. Booth and W. D. Smith. The reports of the various sub-committees were received and that on Railroad Grade Crossing being of particular interest because a definite result had been achieved by the Conference in that the J. E. Rhoades & Sons Company and the Diamond Ice & Coal Company whose employees comprise 99 per cent of the 11th street and B. and O. grade crossing travel, in Wilmington, had agreed to the closing of this crossing and the use of the Pennsylvania avenue underpass in the interest of safety. Other committees which reported are as follows: Statistics, Traffic Control, Education, Law Enforcement, Publicity and Public Relations.

Announcement was made by the Director of the Conference, C. T. Bridgman that Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover had been invited to address the final Conference meeting on November 12 which would be presided over by Mr. H. P. Scott, Sr., who is Conference Chairman on Public Relations. Sidney J. Williams, Director of Public Safety Division of the National Safety Council who was consultant to the two National Street and Highway Conferences has accepted an invitation to address the afternoon session. As the Governor will be in Maine on the date of the Conference, Lieut. Governor James Hall Anderson will present greetings on behalf of the State. The Conference meeting will be held in the Dover Opera House and the public is invited to attend the sessions. The next meeting of the Governor's Advisory Committee will be held in the State House October 13, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of considering the first draft of the sub-committee reports.

As the State Highway Department will hold a public hearing relative to the closing of the Brenford and Kirkwood grade crossings on this date it is expected that the members of the committee will attend the hearing in order to obtain the sentiment of the public relative to the doing away of these two hazards.

The personnel of the Grade Crossing Committee, which is one of the most important of the Conference, was announced by Senator L. A. Drexler of Bethany Beach, chairman of the committee, as follows: J. G. Sheaffer, C. D. Buck, Charles E. Grubb, John C. Saylor, Claude P. Hearn, Charles W. Hardesty and W. D. Smith. Messrs. Drexler, Buck, Sheaffer and Smith have been authorized to act as the Executive Committee to secure necessary information for the use of the Conference. Chairman Drexler in making this announcement pointed out that there were 435 public grade crossings in the State and the work of the committee will first consist of a survey of each individual crossing for protection, visibility, traffic, road condition, etc., and study of the reported accidents at these various crossings.

Dover Presbyterian Church has a history before the formation of the United States. According to records, the first house of worship built of logs, and stood on the west corner of Governor's avenue and Bank lane. The corner brick of the old church was laid August 1790, by the Rev. John Miller, who forty-two years ministered to this congregation.

There were 113,235 packages of goods shipped by rail from the peninsula during the first seven months of the year 1926.

Pershing To Be Guest at Exposition

General John J. Pershing will visit the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia on October 8 as the guest of the Military Order of the World War, which will hold its annual convention in the "Sesqui City" from October 7 to 9. The commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the World War will be the guest of honor at a banquet and military ball to be tendered in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel after the visit to the Exposition.

High government officials, including scores of prominent officers of the army, navy and marine corps, together with nationally known figures in the civic and patriotic life of the Nation, will also be guests at the dinner.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the Philadelphia Chapter of the Order for the entertainment of the distinguished visitors and the delegates who will come from all parts of the country. Major Robeson Lea Perot, 137 Harvey street, Germantown, Pa., is chairman of the executive committee of the National Convention.

A special program will be arranged for the reception of General Pershing at the Sesqui Exposition. He will be accorded a full salute by the battery of cannon at Camp Anthony Wayne, the model army camp in the Exposition grounds, and will be escorted on his tour of inspection by the highest army and navy officials stationed in Philadelphia.

Many of the delegates to the convention are planning to remain in the "Sesqui City" after the conclusion of the meeting to take part in the annual convention of the American Legion, which will be the largest gathering of men ever to assemble in Philadelphia or any other city.

The business sessions of the Military Order of the World War have been cut to four in order to give the delegates time to take part in the extensive program to be held at the Exposition. A tour of the historical places in the city will also be a part of the scheduled events.

Railroads have made a special rate of one and one-half times the regular one-way fare for a round-trip ticket from all points to Philadelphia because of the great number of reservations made by delegates to the convention.

Farmers Mutual to Inspect All Risks

The Board of Managers of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the State of Delaware at its quarterly meeting held recently, at its home office, 833 Market street, decided to adopt an inspection and educational plan, whereby all its risks would be inspected.

This company, the oldest fire insurance company incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware, is applying every possible means to prevent fires and to give its policyholders the very best service. The managers feel that, through the cooperation of the policyholders in eliminating any hazards which may be existing on their property, this plan would have a tendency to assist in decreasing fire losses. This reduction would be reflected in lower net cost, as the company returns all unused premiums after losses, expenses and reserve have been deducted.

"Ability, stability, and utility are attributes that aid in the climb upward."

Harvard To Raise $5,000,000 Fund

Ennalls Berl Named As Local Chairman; Campaign To Open In October

The announcement of the Regional Committee for Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia for the Harvard Law School endowment campaign contains the names of three Wilmington attorneys. E. Ennalls Berl was named as Delaware chairman with George N. Davis and Thomas M. Keith to serve with him. The mark has been set at $5,000,000 and the campaign will be national in scope.

The other members of the Regional Committee are: William C. Coleman of Baltimore, chairman; Clarence K. Bowie, Richard F. Cleveland, Frank B. Ober, Reuben Oppenheimer, W. A. Parker, Aubrey Pearre, Jr., and Robert W. Williams of Baltimore; Frank H. Jacobs of Towson and Edward B. Burling of Washington.

The country has been divided into eighteen regions and while the committees have just recently been selected, considerable interest has been aroused, not only among Harvard Law School Alumni, but among the legal profession throughout the country, and more than a fifth of the fund sought has already been subscribed to, although the campaign does not officially open until October. Of this $750,000 is a conditional gift from the General Education Board and its first contribution toward legal research. $400,000 has been subscribed privately.

The fund will be used for two major purposes: Maintenance of the traditional high standards of professional education at Harvard Law School, conducting of legal research devoted to such practical ends as adapting the law to meet complex conditions of modern life. The so-called "crime-problem," more effective organization of the courts and the development of business law to meet new requirements are among the objectives towards which the legal research is to be directed. Referring to this program, Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard Law School has announced:

"What research has done for the prevention and cure of disease, what it has done for engineering and what it has done for the technical arts, it may well do for the law. The call for research in law is especially strong.

"American law schools can render a real service, not merely to the profession, but to the economic and business interests of the country, and to every citizen, by carrying on the scientific investigation on which the law reforms of the future must go forward."

"Public order is fundamental for our economic structure as is public health. Behind one quite as much as the other there must be continuous scientific research. The proposed plans for the development of the Harvard Law School have been worked out, and will be carried out, in the hope that in the future it may be able, not only to train lawyers, but to make a fundamental contribution to the upholding and development of justice through American institutions."

Treat Seed Wheat to Prevent "Rust"

Dr. J. F. Adams, plant pathologist of the University of Delaware and the State Board of Agriculture conducted two field meetings on Thursday and Friday, demonstrating to the farmer the treatment of seed wheat to control smut, or "rust". The meetings were held on the farms of William H. George near Severson's Church on the Smyrna Woodland Beach road and at the farm of James B. Thompson near Cowgill's Corner.

The meeting for the benefit of the wheat growers in the central part of Kent county was held on the farm of James B. Thompson on Friday afternoon. The meeting on the farm of William H. George, east of Smyrna, was held on Thursday afternoon and many farmers in the central and northern sections of the county attended.

These demonstrations consisted of treating a few bushels of wheat with the dust disinfectants which were used in the field meetings held in the county last year. The object in using these several different materials is in order to demonstrate to the farmers this method of dust treatment, and also to make a comparative study of the effectiveness of each kind of material on the complete control of the stinking smut.

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

Hot Indian pudding with vanilla ice cream on the side is a popular New England combination.

Dill pickles are made by putting them in a mild salt solution with dill herb to give distinctive flavor. The United States Department of Agriculture will tell you how to do it.

Grated raw carrots may be served with other raw vegetables. Combinations such as raw carrot, cabbage, celery, turnip, green pepper, and onion, in almost any preferred proportions, are recommended because of their high vitamin content.

SAFETY FIRST

W. P. FISHER

W. P. Fisher, known to his friends as "Bud," drives a Bell Telephone truck.

Fisher is an employee of the Diamond State Telephone Company, and his motor truck for several years back has annexed one of the coveted insignia that means a year free from accidents. "Bud" is going strong this year and has high hopes of acquiring another safety tag for 1926.

You cannot afford to be without an advertisement in the telephone directory. . . . It brings buyers.

DAGSBORO-PINE NECK SECTION DEVELOPING

Telephone Company Spending $7,000 for Telephone Plant Here

Approximately $7,000 is being spent by the Diamond State Telephone Company for building telephone lines along the Dagsboro-Clarkville Road between Dagsboro and Pine Neck and for making telephone extensions to Sandy Landing.

Since the recent completion of the Dagsboro-Pine Neck Road through this fine farming region, the entire section has been developing, with a consequent need for telephone service.

Although the situation at Sandy Landing is pointing toward the development of a summer colony there, rather than an all-the-year development such as is growing in the former section, nevertheless the need for telephone service during the summer months is already being felt. The Delaware Y. W. C. A. has already established a summer camp along the beautiful Indian River, and the desirability of the section for vacation bungalows means that telephone service will be required. The Telephone Company is planning to have lines connecting with this section before next summer.

Enough wire will be placed in both sections to take care of anticipated future growth. Groome Marcus, Construction Foreman for the Telephone Company, is already at work on the job along the Dagsboro-Clarkville Highway. About 250 poles will be placed in both these operations to carry the telephone lines that are to be installed.

TELEPHONE CO. MOVES POLES ALONG ROADS

About $30,000 Being Spent for Broader Highway Program

The "better road construction program" inaugurated by the Delaware State Highway Department is being anticipated by the Diamond State Telephone Company, according to J. H. Baldwin, District Engineer here for the Telephone Company.

About $30,000 is being spent by the Company, according to his estimate, for moving pole lines back from the present highways in different portions of the State and for replacing old poles in preparation for the wider State roads.

DE POST HIGHWAY, NORTH OF DOVER, AFTER POLE LINES WERE MOVED

Work has been in progress for some time. Telephone service will not be interrupted during the process. Approximately 1200 poles are involved in the "moves."

Up to the present time about 700 poles have been transferred from old locations to new ones farther back from the State Highways, and about 100 new poles have been placed.

The State Highway program covers the entire State. Some of the recently completed roads include the Middletown-to-Townsend Road, the Dover-to-Littlerock Road, Milford Crossroads to Limestone Road, Sharptown-to-Laurel Road and the Bethany Beach-to-Shellyville Road. Work is now in progress on the Milford-to-Cedar Neck Road.

The Middletown-to-Townsend Road work cost in the neighborhood of $6000 alone. Some of the poles had to be moved ten feet and others as much as thirty-five feet.

In some places, individual poles had to be lifted over a gulch or a creek. A hole-digging and pole-placing machine was used in digging the holes and setting the poles. This considerably reduced the time and labor element involved in the work. Foreman W. E. Curtin, with a crew of telephone construction men, was in charge.

When finally completed, the program should give Delaware a network of State roads that is not surpassed anywhere. Banked roads at turns, smooth macadam highways and the absence of steep grades should create a system of boulevards that will give Delaware a high place among the States that make "good roads" a feature.

Operator Married

Miss Thelma Langford of the Holly Oak central office of the Diamond State Telephone Company was recently married to Louis Daugherty of Wilmington.

MORE LINES FOR NEW TELEPHONES

Diamond State Company to Place New Cable South of Holly Oak

Plans are already under way by the Diamond State Telephone Company for installing a new cable carrying additional lines for telephones in the residential section adjacent to the Philadelphia-Wilmington Pike, south of Holly Oak.

This was the announcement of R. L. Dodge, District Superintendent of Plant for the Telephone Company. The new cable will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000.

About 1200 miles of wire will be placed. Construction work will be done under the direction of Groome Marcus. Most of the new wire will be in underground cables.

The new lines will provide circuits for growth in this rapidly developing residential section. The work is to be pushed to completion, so that the additional lines will be available for use as soon as possible.

During the last few years the region in and around Holly Oak has been rapidly expanding. Telephone engineers are planning to have these new installations in place in order to be able to furnish facilities when they are needed.

Telephone Traffic Heavier

Local and toll telephone calls in Delaware have increased since Labor Day, according to J. H. Christensen, District Superintendent of Traffic for the Diamond State Telephone Company. They are now approximately 15 per cent greater than the August figures, he said.

The opening of the schools and the return of people from their summer vacations are the chief factors that caused the increase, explained Mr. Christensen.

TELEPHONE OPERATOR SAVES DROWNING MEN

Mary Dyer of Wilmington Is Heroine at Atlantic City

MARY B. DYER

Mary B. Dyer, 209 North Canal Street, Wilmington, member of the American Red Cross and a telephone operator for the Diamond State Telephone Company at Wilmington, played the role of a heroine in Atlantic City recently when she rescued two men from the surf between Ohio and Kentucky Avenues.

Miss Dyer, who was temporarily transferred to Atlantic City as an operator during the summer, was on the beach when two youths, caught in the undertow, were carried out beyond their depth. A lifeguard containing six men went to the rescue, but when close to the drowning youths, capsize.

Without hesitation, Miss Dyer entered the water and swam to their aid. She reached the overturned boat and held up one of the struggling youths until the arrival of a second lifeguard.

On her way back to shore, the young woman came upon another man who had gone to the rescue and become exhausted. She aided him back to the shore.

Miss Dyer is well known in Wilmington. In addition to her duties as an operator at the Wilmington switchboard of the Telephone Company, she is also an instructor in the Wilmington Chapter of the Y. W. C. A.

Thousands consult the telephone directory daily. Join the advertisers in its columns and keep your business in the swim. Rates are surprisingly low.

New Employee

MISS MILDRED E. BRACKIN

Miss Mildred E. Brackin was recently employed by the Diamond State Telephone Company. She is taking care of work connected with the cashier's duties in the Wilmington Business Office at 6th and Shipley Sts.

World's Series To Start Next Saturday

New York Yankees And St. Louis Cardinals Play First Game In New York

With the Battle of the Century now history, the next event approaching it in popular interest will be the twenty-third annual World Series starting next Saturday afternoon at the Yankees' Stadium in New York. The principals in this struggle will be the St. Louis Cardinals, monarch of the National League, and the New York Yanks, who cinched their hold on the American League pennant last Saturday by taking a double header from the St. Louis Browns.

The first two games will be played in New York Saturday and Sunday, then St. Louis will play host of a World Series, for the first time, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. If the issue is not settled with that, the two groups of contestants with their camp followers will make a trek to New York for a sixth game. Should a seventh game be necessary, under a new ruling it will be automatically allotted to New York instead of tossing a coin as was the former custom.

There is the usual difference of expert opinion as to the chances of the respective contenders. The Yanks are hardened World Series veterans, while this is the first time that St. Louis has won a pennant in either League. However, this has been a season of reverses for top-notchers in the world of sport, and the novelty of the situation may give the Cards a fresh enthusiasm and added zip that will carry them over. On the other hand, the Yanks have showed their right regard for anything from Missouri by taking the last two deciding games from the St. Louis Browns by a large majority of runs. Mr. Ruth made a particularly contemptuous gesture by banging out three homers, bringing his season's total up to forty-seven.

Johnson and Goslin At Harlan Field

Perhaps the best baseball team to invade this section in recent years will be seen in action on Friday afternoon at Harlan Field at Wilmington, when Earl Mack's American League All-Stars will engage Hildale, three-year colored champions of the country. Hildale has always been able to take care of major league competition and has been fortified with players from other colored teams for the game in Wilmington on Friday.

Walter Johnson, favorite of every fan, and "Goose" Goslin, of Salem, N. J., slugging outfielder, have been recruited from the Washington Senators by Mack and this pair should make a great drawing card by themselves. Heinie Manush, of the Detroit Tigers, champion batsman of the American League this season; George Burns, of the Cleveland Indians, world's champion two-base hitter; Bing Miller, formerly of the Athletics and now with the St. Louis Browns; Moses "Lefty" Groves, Jack Quinn, Cy Perkins and Jimmy Dykes, of the Athletics; Wally Schang, formerly of the Yankees and now with the Red Sox, and Freddy Heimach of the same club are others who will be with the All-Stars.

The game will be played at Harlan Field in Wilmington and will start at 3.30 o'clock.

Penn Opens Strong

The University of Pennsylvania opened the football season Saturday by smothering Franklin and Marshall 41 to 0. The heat and a paucity of reserves were too much for F. & M. and Penn experienced no difficulty in advancing the ball at will. It was more like a relay race than a football game for Pennsylvania as she passed the ball to a fresh group of runners each period.

If there is any indication in opening scores, Penn will have a walk-over on Thanksgiving Day. Cornell took on little Geneva, but the best the Big Red Team could do was to dispose of them 6 to 0.

HELP THE GOOD TREES

The farm woodland will be improved by the removal of trees which have been overtopped by others and have had their growth stunted; diseased trees, or those seriously injured or extremely liable to injury by insect attacks, as chestnut in the region subject to blight or birch in the gipsy-moth area; badly fire-scarred trees; of the less valuable species; crooked, large-crowned, or short-bodied trees, which will not make good lumber and which are crowding or overtopping others; slow-growing trees which are crowding fast-growing kinds of equal value; sound dead trees, both standing and down.

Delaware Sophs Outscore Frosh

In a seven-inning game at Frazer Field Saturday afternoon, the University Sophomores mastered the Freshmen by a score of 5 to 1.

The feature of the game was the pitching of Cosgrove of the Sophs, who yielded but two hits and struck out twelve. Long of the Sophs made the longest hit of the game, a two-bagger. The score:

Delaware vs. Drexel Frazer Field Saturday

Delaware Squad Being Driven Hard For Opening Game

The University of Delaware football eleven will open its season with Drexel on Frazer field, this Saturday afternoon. Drexel has already played its first game, being defeated last Saturday, 35 to 0, by the strong team from Georgetown.

This year, as an experiment, Drexel has done away with paid coaches and is giving a thorough test to the faculty coach system, which seems to be becoming popular with small collegiate institutions and some large colleges where the commercialization of sport is finding strong faculty and even alumni opposition.

Captain Ollie W. Reed, U. S. A., Commandant of Drexel and Professor of Military Science and Tactics, is head coach. Dr. Ernest J. Hall is backfield coach.

Captain Reed has had many years of playing experience, mostly in the line. He first played football at the Kansas State Agricultural College in 1916, and then with various service teams in France and Germany, where he served during the war. Since the war he has played with and coached such service teams as the Quartermaster Corps eleven, the Fifth Regiment team and the First Corps War team in 1918.

Professor Hall, who teaches English, is a graduate of Allegheny College, where he was a star halfback a decade ago, when the speedy little college annually battled its big sister, University of Pittsburgh, and quite as often as not, spoiled the big western college's record by a tie or even defeat.

Drexel's new football coaches are of the modern school and favor an open game played by a fast team.

With the opening game on Saturday with Drexel Institute, the Blue and Gold squad are being put through strenuous work-outs by Coaches Forstburg and Doherty. Considering the quality of the material on hand, the coaches have not been at all satisfied with the results of the scrimmaging. No line-up will be announced for this game until Friday.

In the early practice of last week the linemen didn't show finished form in several days of tackling practice were necessary to whip them into shape. The drills, the early part of a week, have stressed tackling and kicking men out of play, working to build a defense that will enable the back field to give ground, gaining inference.

The back field lacks weight, but this offset by plenty of speed. A varied, deceptive, running and passing game will be the features of the Delaware attack. The speed and open field mowing of Loveland, Riggins and quillance will make this type of play effective provided they have plays to fit them.

Thursday will be devoted to signal drill and Friday to the final polish for Saturday's game. The chances of winning a berth are still fairly open all candidates who can show smart football. It is likely that several freshmen will be given a chance on Saturday.

Ursinus, the Blue and Gold opponent for next week, lost 12 to 0 to Temple last Saturday. Rutgers, a new and powerful team on this year's schedule, took Manhattan into camp Saturday by a touchdown and safety. Of the eight games on the University schedule, five will be played away from home. After this week Delaware will travel till November 13, when they will be "at home" to Galvudett.

Editors Meet

had the required entrance credits. Dean Winfred J. Robinson, of the Woman's College, spoke briefly and expressed the wish that the next time the Association met in Newark, they would come as guests of the Woman's College.

Mr. A. G. Wilkinson, fourth speaker, told of his trip to France in connection with the Foreign Study Plan of the University. He told how the eyes of the college world were on Delaware as the instigator of the idea and said that the present group was holding first position in the work. Mr. Wilkinson said that the idea was growing and the next year's group from Delaware would undoubtedly be much larger. He pointed out the practical benefits of the plan in fostering a better understanding between nations and as an aid to foreign trade and diplomatic affairs.

Walter Dent Smith, secretary of the Delaware Safety Council, gave an address on "Safety First" in which he outlined the importance and the far-reaching influence of safety education.

Colonel Townsend, of the Milford Chronicle, and W. D. Bratton, of the Cecil County News, spoke at the luncheon in eulogy of the late Everett Johnson.

Mr. Carter made the closing address, expressing the appreciation of the Association for the hospitality of the University of Delaware.

The members of the Press Association attending the meeting were George Carter, president, News-Journal, Wilmington; William F. Miller, secretary, Every Evening, Wilmington; Herman C. Taylor, Dover; Murray J. Ewing, Cecil Whig, Elkton; W. D. Bratton, Cecil County News, Elkton; C. J. Pyle, News-Journal, Wilmington; Chas. B. Jacobs, Jr., Newark Post; G. R. Denton, Maryland; C. J. Morgan, Wilmington; Col. Theodore Townsend and G. Marshall Townsend, Milford Chronicle; George Carey, Newark Ledger and Joseph H. Martin, Sunday Star, Wilmington.

"Man is ever the prime object to man."

Cadet Officers Named For Univ. Battalion

Palmer M. Craig, of Wilmington, a senior, has been appointed cadet-major of the R. O. T. C. battalion at the University of Delaware. Announcement of the appointment of the cadet officers and the cadet non-commissioned officers has just been made by the Military Department of the University. The appointments other than cadet-major follow:

Captain and adjutant, William G. Lohman; captains, David C. Cathcart, Ira T. Ellis and Raymond R. Pippin. First lieutenants, Robert W. McKelvey, Edwin H. Beatty, Mark N. Donohue, Herbert Clark, Jr., Paul W. Gillis, William L. Ellis and Harold N. Edwards, the latter with the band.

Second lieutenants, Paul M. Hodgson, George F. Hardesty, Erwin A. Yeager, Donald M. Yost, Leroy M. Haisch and Marshall M. Manns.

Cadet technical sergeant (sergeant major), Alfred D. Vincent; first sergeants, Clifford J. Callaway, John E. Harper and Leo J. Sweeney; staff sergeants, Curtis C. Hanby, Jr., James M. Maddox; platoon sergeants, Vance P. Mendenhall, Edward P. K. Meredith, Perry B. LaCates, Frank R. Grier, Theodore S. Beck and Philip Backstein; cadet sergeants, William A. Wooten, Everett L. Moore, John M. Coffin, Harry L. King, Ross M. Lanus, Jr., Raymond W. Russell, Richard T. Warner and Charles Rosenberg.

Inspiring Speech

The State is now paying for education merely as a philanthropist. It expects, and has every right to expect, that the sons and daughters that it helps to educate will repay this by becoming better citizens.

Heretofore too much stress has been put on the years in school and too little to the transition periods from high school to college and from college to the great business of the world outside after college days are over. That modern education should remedy this, was the opinion of Dr. Lewis.

In closing, the speaker urged the students to hold fast to that which is good, and not to let their religious life be worried by the controversies going on in the non-essentials of religion, for the teachings of Christ are the greatest force in the orderly progress of civilization.

Prior to Dr. Lewis address, Dr. Hullahen made the following announcements: "The Physics Department is announcing an advanced course in physics this year which it has not been able to offer heretofore for lack of necessary equipment. This course is now made possible by a generous contribution of $2000 from Mr. Lamont du Pont to make possible the purchase of the necessary apparatus for this course. Mr. du Pont has also promised a subsidy of $600 a year to the Department of Physics for the continuation of Dr. Paine's research work begun at Harvard University."

"I am glad to be able to announce that the new building containing the dining room and kitchens at the Women's College is ready for use."

"The new dormitory, unfortunately, has been held back by two strikes, one in the plant in another State from which the marble for the doors was purchased, the other in the slate works providing slate for the roof. These two setbacks have delayed the completion of the dormitory but the contractors believe that it will be possible to completely finish the building and have all floors ready for occupancy within the next two or three weeks."

"Students and faculty of the University will be interested to know that again there are considerable number of Delaware graduates of last year and the year before who are going on with graduate work here or elsewhere. Cornelius Tilghman goes to Oxford as Rhodes Scholar, replacing Gray Carter, who has returned and will enter Johns Hopkins Medical School this week as a junior. "Jimmie" King goes to Harvard University for graduate study in the classics, in which department he has been awarded a scholarship. Francis Cummins continues his studies for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania, where he has won one of the coveted Harrison Fellowships of the value of $1000. Russell Turner, Winston Walker and Courtland Houghton are also continuing their graduate studies at Pennsylvania. Richard Long expects to go on with his work for the Doctor's degree at Princeton. R. W. Jones, F. H. Hedger, and Marvin Ewing will do graduate work here in Delaware in connection with their duties on the instructional staff. Murray Hanson, Albert Simon, Harley McCabe, and Clyde Davis are reported as planning to enter the Harvard Law School. Homer Blake is reported as entering Cornell for advance work in physics. Frederick Mullineaux is on the instructional staff at Rutgers and

High School Ready, No Opponent Selected

D. I. H. A. Has Slipped Badly On This Year's Schedule

Coach T. M. Malin, of the Newark High School football squad, is in the irritating position of having a team primed and ready, but, due to the laxity of the D. I. A. A., with no opponent to point for.

The D. I. A. A. schedule was not posted till yesterday and due to the regulation that teams in the league have to give first preference to the D. I. A. A. schedule, Newark was not able to sign a definite date for Friday of this week. Games for that date have been pending with West Nottingham, Goldey and the third team of the University. Up to press time it had not been decided who would be closed for this Friday.

The High School team this year promises great things. There are a majority of veterans on the first squad and the whole team shows football sense and spirit with a superabundance of fight and aggressiveness. Keen competition for positions has kept all candidates on their toes.

The line-up for the opening game will probably be as follows: Backfield—Riley, captain and fullback; Morris, quarter; Jaquette and Whitmore, halves. The line—ends, Vincent Mayer and Bill Doordan; tackles, Vansant and McMurray; guards, McDowell and Cook; center, Dayett.

Riley, captain and fullback, is the most powerful man on the team, weighing around 180 and exceptionally fast for a man of his size. Morris at quarter and Jaquette at halfback are last year men and weigh in the neighborhood of 160. Whitmore, halfback, is light, about 135, but Mr. Malin rates him the equal of any broken field runner he has ever seen on a high school team. The substitutes is also taking advanced work. Helen Simon will be at Bryn Mawr fellowship in French.

"The Foreign Study Group which sailed July 17 from New York with Professor Kirkbride and Miss Caroline Fitzwater was much the largest group that has ever gone abroad from this country for undergraduate foreign study. The number is now in the Group is 44."

Dr. Hullahen said that he was much gratified by the attitude of the Student Council and the Sophomore class in the stand they were taking in regard to certain objectionable practices which had been on the increase in the past few years in the relations between the two under classes.

The exercises were opened by Rev. R. B. Matthews with the invocation and a reading from the Scriptures. This was followed by the singing of "America." Rev. H. E. Hallman, of the Newark Presbyterian Church, pronounced the benediction.

Herbert S. Murphy and Hyman A. Yanowitz received degrees of Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Arts, respectively.

University Coaches Guests at Luncheon

Coach Forstburg, of the Delaware University football team, and his assistant, Gerald P. Doherty, of Wilmington, will be entertained tomorrow at the weekly luncheon of the Wilmington Chapter of the University of Delaware Alumni Association.

The meeting will be held at McConnell's Cafe and will be the first opportunity many of the alumni have had to meet the new assistant coach, tute backfield men have all shown strong football. Smith and Frank Mayer are freshmen, Zabenki is also available for the line, and Williamson, besides being second string quarter, can play end.

The line is light, averaging 140, but fast charging. They are all veterans, but McDowell and McMurray, Dayett was out of early practice with an injured hand, but is shaping up well. The line substitutes are Walton, guard; Amos Jacquette, center, and Wilson, tackle.

The D. I. A. A. includes seven teams in the league and will start the season October 8. The schedule is:

Southern Half
October 8—Laurel at Seaford and Millsboro at Georgetown.
October 15—Georgetown at Laurel and Seaford at Millsboro.
October 22—Millsboro at Laurel and Seaford at Georgetown.
October 29—Millsboro at Seaford and Laurel at Georgetown.
November 5—Seaford at Laurel and Georgetown at Millsboro.
November 12—Georgetown at Seaford and Laurel at Millsboro.

Northern Half
October 8—Newark at Dover.
October 15—du Pont at Newark.
October 22—Dover at du Pont.
October 29—Dover at Newark.
November 5—Newark at du Pont.
November 12—Dover at du Pont.
November 19 has been reserved to play off any tie games and the following week, November 25, the championship game will be played.

Three things are given ment to do: To dare, to labor and to grow. Not otherwise from earth we came, Nor otherwise our way we go.

The annual session of the Knights of Pythias Sisters closed with the meeting on Thursday, September 23, at Pythian Castle, 907 Washington street, Wilmington. The feature of this closing meeting was the election of Mrs. Mabel Hill of Newark as Grand Chief, to head the Sisters for the coming year.

Mrs. Hill is one of the most popular members of the Grand Temple and her election was received with great favor. During the past year she filled the office of Grand Senior. Both Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Dora C. Dorman, Caesar Rodney Temple No. 3, Wilmington, were showered with gifts at the close of the session.

In honor of Mrs. Hill's selection the annual meeting of the Grand Temple next year will be held at Newark. Friendship Temple will entertain.

All other officers of the Grand Temple were moved up one step. The last office on the list, that of Grand Guard, was filled by Miss Lottie J. Jolls of Middletown.

Mrs. Julia Keuborth of Wilmington was elected to grand trustee for a term of three years. Anna Pinder of New Castle, retired as trustee, closing a three-year term.

The meeting Thursday night closing the affair for this year was attended by more than 300 persons. Mrs. Sally Wharry of Wilmington presided at the memorial service for deceased members during the past year. The deceased are: Mrs. Florence Brey, past chief and charter member of Delaware Temple, No. 1, Wilmington; Edwin Paynter, Delaware Temple; Mrs. Mary F. Reilly, Caesar Rodney Temple, Wilmington; Clayton Hearne, Delaware Temple. The service was open to the public. It was followed with the initiation of twelve new members.

The gifts included a past grand chief's jewel presented to Mrs. Dorman; past supreme representative's jewel, to Mrs. Bertha K. Simmons, Delaware Temple; and flowers and linen and glassware to Mrs. Dorman, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Simpson and others.

At the memorial service, the charter of the Grand Temple was draped by Beatrice Wharry, Eva Brice, Ruth Vernon, Elizabeth Stroud and Mildred Braddock, of Delaware Temple. Rev. Zack W. Wells, of the M. E. Church, New Castle, spoke. Selections were sung by the Epworth Choir.

Other officers elected, follow: Grand Senior, Sophronia Hewlett, Temple No. 5, New Castle; Grand Junior, Edith W. McLean, Delaware Temple; Grand Manager, Sophie Wigglesworth, Delaware Temple; Grand Mistress of Records and Correspondence, Ethel Talley, Purity Temple, No. 4, Grubb's Corner; Grand Mistress of Finance, Edna Tweddle, Liberty Temple, No. 9, Clayton; Grand Protector, Ella Vincent, Temple No. 8, Delmar; Grand Guard, Miss Jolls, Middletown.

CINDER CONCRETE

Cinders are not suitable for use in mixing concrete that is to be subjected to heavy loads or abrasion. Cinder concrete, on account of its light weight, is commonly used for filling between sleepers of floors and grading roofs and for fireproofing, for which it is very effective. Select cinders composed of hard, clean, vitreous, clinkers, free from sulphides, soot, and unburned coal or ashes. As a precaution against the presence of small amounts of detrimental substances, cinders should be soaked thoroughly with water 24 hours before being used. If clean they will not discolor the hands.

Greenwich Village Follies

With its wealth of color, its clever comedians, singers and dancers and large ensemble of vivacious dancing beauties, the "Greenwich Village Follies" with McIntyre and Heath will come to the Playhouse, Wilmington, for three days, beginning Monday, October 4th, with a special matinee on Wednesday.

John Murray Anderson is responsible for the latest edition of the "Follies" to be seen here and he has embodied in it everything that the heart of a revue lover could wish.

In cast the "Greenwich Village Follies" is a veritable treat as the roster embraces the names of revue stagehand's most noted luminaries and includes McIntyre and Heath, unquestionably two of the most popular revue stars and comedians of the present generation. The names of McIntyre and Heath have graced the "electric" sign afront of more theatres than any comedians of their time. Every negro comedy skit, comedy song and comedy dance used this season by McIntyre and Heath are absolutely new. Others in the cast are Janet Winters, Leonard Sillman, Frances Dewey and forty vivacious dancing beauties who rollick through two acts of lavish presentation and form a most pleasing background to the distinguished cast.

With this combination it is absolutely safe to look forward to the coming of the latest edition of the "Greenwich Village Follies" as the musical event of this and many other seasons.

SUNDAY

town. Automobiles smashed. I lived on coconuts for three days. There is no food, no water, no gas, no light. I worked Saturday night, all day Sunday and Sunday night, setting poles and putting up wires. I will be able to get sleep tonight.

"There were 200 people in one of the hotels that blew over; 150 were killed, the other 50 badly injured. The ambulances and patrol wagons have been running steadily for four days and are still running, and the hospitals, schools, or any buildings fit to put wounded people in, are full. They won't let anybody leave town or come in. A lot of people tried to leave, but could not. They are putting the big bugs to work. Everybody has to be off the street by 6 o'clock. I have a pass, can go anywhere in Florida.

"I tell you, I thank God I am still alive. This town was the best-looking town you ever saw, but now it is a total wreck. I was over to the beach and counted 150 people laying on the beach dead, after this many days.

"The store-keepers that had any supply in were charging a high price, but the police made them give it away. They were charging 75c for a loaf of bread; 25c for a can of sardines; 50c for 6 hot dogs.

"The company I am working for put up a bunk room and I do not have to pay anything for food.

"They found 7 dead bodies on the street I live on, washed in from the ocean, I guess. The storm only blew a window out of the house I stay in. The only good stores were completely wrecked—all the pretty flowers washed away; water was 2 feet deep, but in an hour, it had gone down. There were 8 airplanes burst, nothing left of them.

"I am writing this by candle-light. I guess the people wonder how I am getting along; if they ask, tell them 'fine.' I received your letter today.

Your loving son,
Eugene Thomas."
