FOREWORD

If this book does not contain all that you may have hoped it might we ask your patience in judgment. If it does not qualify in all the standards which you consider essential to a book, we again ask that you be moderate in your criticism. But, if, in the future, it will stimulate memories of your days in college, it will have accomplished its true purpose and we who have had a hand in its making will share with you these reminiscences.

TO Mr. H. Rodney Sharp the classes of 1936 and 1937 of the Women's College, University of Delaware dedicate this volume. As a student of Delaware College he conceived a vision of the future of this college. As a trustee of the University he foresaw the larger possibilities of its expansion. The beauty and suitability of the buildings, particularly of Mitchell Hall, his own personal gift, and the arrangement of the planting of the grounds are evidences of his conception of what the campus should become. In all of this development the Women's College has had full share, and recognition is here given of Mr. Sharp's many contributions to the joy and significance of college life.
