UP FRONT

Farewell, Charlesa

By JIM STREIT

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

NOTWITHSTANDING the "bun factor," Charlesa Lowell quickly warmed the hearts of all she met in Newark when she arrived here just a few years ago. Today, those hearts are heavy.

I and surely many others will gather tonight at the R.T. Foard & Jones funeral home on Main Street to say "good-bye" to a devoted friend. Charlesa died at her Windy Hills home Monday. The cancer that she had fought so bravely for so long finally took its toll. Per her request, we'll celebrate her life tonight.

Family members and long-time friends of Charlesa have long been beneficiaries of her life. Those of us here in Newark have just gotten to know her.

Tonight, we will remember Charlesa as a person who loved her profession. She was passionate about the importance of libraries. She knew the positive impact the information patrons garnered via books, periodicals, and the Internet could have on any person, no matter their age and station in life.

Her co-workers at the Newark Free Library certainly will recall her exemplary spirit, as she led them through the often dusty transformation

Terrifying times

City's popular parade, Main Street event Sun.

FOR more than 50 years Newarkers have participated in or watched the downtown Halloween Parade, followed by Trick Or Treat Main Street.

On Sunday, Oct. 26, the 56th annual event once again comes to downtown.

For a few hours during that day, the downtown is pedestrian-friendly for parade watchers and trick or treaters. Typically, about 3,000 people show up, said organizer Sharon Bruen, a recreation supervisor with the city.

"It's a lot of fun, the lights are on and there's no traffic," Bruen said. "You can't ask for a better place for it all to happen. This has been going on so long, people are always planning ahead of time to attend."

This year the parade marshal is former University of Delaware football coach Tubby Raymond. The parade begins at 3 p.m. at Tyre Avenue and East Main Street

One of the more unique Halloween-type events is a Churchyard Cemetery History Walk given by Ed Okonowicz and Mike Dixon. DSWA officials said they altered their original survey at the request of the Newark City Council. At a Sept. 22 meeting the council was enthusiastic about the DSWA proposal to offer recycling to residents who will pay for it, but wanted changes made in the original survey, including specifying the items that could be recycled.

Truck goes through one home, stops in another

NEW Castle County Police are investigating an early morning crash involving a utility truck and two occupied homes.

On Tuesday, Oct. 21, at 8:18 a.m., county police and paramedics responded to a home in the 800 block of Birchwood Drive after hearing a report that a truck that had crashed into two homes. When police arrived, they discovered a Chevrolet utility truck lodged inside the bedroom area of a residence.

The investigation revealed a 28 year-old male, who was working for a heating and oil company, had gone to the area for a service call. His vehicle was traveling west on Birchwood Drive just past Kingswood Drive when he approached a curve in the roadway. The vehicle left the right side of the roadway, traveled across a front yard, drove completely through a home and came to rest in the bedroom area of a second residence.

Police discovered both homes were occupied at the time of the collision and, fortunately, no one was injured.

The driver was transported to the Christiana Hospital, where he is undergoing treatment for non-life threatening injuries, police said.

The first home struck by the truck has been condemned. Investigators were still inspecting the second home at press time.

The crash remains under investigation. No charges have been filed.

Armed robbery, assault cases open

THE Newark Police Department is investigating a armed robbery that occurred on Duke Street in Newark on Monday, Oct. 20 at 8:33 p.m.

The victim reported that he had just exited his vehicle in the parking lot and was walking to his apartment when he was approached by a white male wearing a black hooded sweatshirt and jeans. The suspect then displayed a handgun and demanded the victim turn over his wallet.

The victim did and the suspect fled on foot toward Library Avenue. Police said the suspect is described as a white male, five feet eight inches tall in his twenties, wearing a black hooded sweatshirt, a red brimmed baseball hat, blue jeans, and white sneakers.

Anyone with information may contact Newark Police at 366-7110 ext. 132 or call Delaware Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Newark police also are investigating the assault on a 21-year-old University of Delaware student inside the Alpha Tau Omega house, 153 Courtney St., early Saturday morning, Oct. 11.

Police said the victim suffered broken left orbital bone which will require surgery for further treatment, two black eyes, swollen lips, and 12 stitches near both eyes, and told officers he was assaulted in his room upstairs while a party was taking place on the first floor.

The victim told police he escaped his attacker by fleeing down a fire escape. The man was treated at the Christiana Hospital emergency room.

No further details are available. Police are continuing their investigation of the incident.

police on Saturday, Oct. 18, at 3:24 p.m. that someone inside a green Subaru shot a flare gun in the 100 block Lovett Avenue, narrowly missing several persons.

Police have a description of the car; investigation is continuing.

Fence hit twice

Twice on Sunday, Oct. 19, a wooden fence outside a home in the 700 block Wollaston Avenue was damaged, police were told at 3:43 p.m.

The homeowner told officers early that day, he had repaired damage to a brace that was snapped by a group of young males. Then, at 1 p.m., he discovered that the fence had been damaged again.

Tires, wheels gone

Four tires and wheels, total value $1,250, were removed from a 2000 Chrysler parked in the 400 block Lark Drive, Newark police were told on Sunday, Oct. 19, at 8:17 a.m.

Lawn 'turfed'

A resident of the 100 block New London Road told Newark police on Sunday, Oct. 19, at 9:15 a.m., that someone had driven a vehicle through her backyard during the night and destroyed her lawn.

The resident told officers that college students who live next door had held a party the night before. The neighbor told police he did host a party but was unaware of anyone "turfing" the adjacent lawn.

Man arrested after struggle with police

Newark police arrested Cory S. Campbell, 21, of Newark, following an altercation at 1:08 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 12, at the Ivy Hall apartments, 400 Wollaston Ave.

Police said two plainclothes officers were working alcohol enforcement in the area when they noticed a man holding an open container of beer in the courtyard.

Police reported the officers displayed their badges and approached the man, who then grabbed the badge. Both officers joined in the scuffle during which an officer's watch was broken and a police flashlight disappeared.

Campbell was charged with offensive touching and criminal mischief in connection with the incident, police said. He was released pending a court appearance.

Dog attack

A resident of the unit block Fremont Road told Newark police at 5:10 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 19, that he was attacked by the family dog.

Police said he was scratched on his arms and neck. Options and warrant procedures were explained to the residents, who said they no longer needed police assistance.

Fence destroyed

After a 12-foot section of fence was destroyed and a man was seen laying in the grass outside a home in the unit block Kells Avenue. On Saturday, Oct. 18, at 1:55 p.m., Newark police were called.

After a foot chase, police arrested Dean R. Brand, 32, of Wilmington, on Wollaston Avenue and transported him to NPD headquarters where he was charged with resisting arrest, disorderly conduct, trespassing and criminal mischief.

Worried about his safety because of what police believed to be heavy alcohol consumption, the suspect was taken for evaluation at the Newark Emergency Center, where officers said he became unruly, screamed profanities, wrestled with police and attempted to bite officers.

Brand was later released on $2,200 bond pending court appearances, police said.

Robbery attempt in Oaklands Tuesday night

THE Newark Police Department is investigating an attempted armed robbery that occurred at 11:50 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 21 in the usually quiet neighborhood of Oaklands.

Police reported that a 19-year-old male University of Delaware student was walking on Cheltenham Road when a vehicle approached him and stopped.

Police said two people got out of the van, one of whom pointed a gun at the student and demanded his wallet.

The victim ran away, and the suspects got back into the van and fled the area. The student was not injured, police said.

A dragnet of the area failed to immediately locate the suspects or the vehicle, a dark green minivan with an angled hood, possibly a Chevy or Pontiac, police said.

Police said both suspects were white males wearing gray hooded sweatshirts and sweat pants. There were two other occupants in the van but the victim could not describe them to officers.

Persons with any information about the incident are asked to contact NPD Det. Bryda, 366-7110, ext. 132, or report anonymously to Crime Stoppers, 1-800-TIP-3333.

Vending rules proposed

Parking restrictions to help business and residents

By DARREL W. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A downtown vending ordinance, the removal of parking meters and creation of a loading zone near the Federal Station post office and prohibiting parking on the north side of Park Drive during night University of Delaware football games will be on the Newark City Council's agenda Monday, Oct. 27.

The new vending rules came about after the city received complaints about how downtown booksellers (Delaware Book Exchange and Lieberman's University Bookstore) were conducting sidewalk sales. The complaints were from other merchants and from the booksellers themselves, complaining about each other's operation, according to city documents.

The new regulations require specific setbacks, sidewalk clearances and requirements that the vending be conducted only outside the person's business within the central business district.

The council took up the issue in August and September, but requested city staff further review the proposed ordinance with merchants, including the booksellers.

Some of the revisions include clarifying that sales or selling is separate from display items not for sale; vending permits are not required for licensed downtown businesses that desire to vend items outside their own store; licensed businesses can vend on other private property outside the central business district; and, the elimination of the proposed rule regulating vending from motor vehicles on private property.

■ The Council will hold a public hearing regarding the reinstallation of a 75-foot loading zone and elimination of parking meters on Center Street near Happy Harry's.

The changes were recommended after delivery trucks servicing downtown businesses were instead using the new parking Lot 4 to unload merchandise.

City Planning Director Roy Lopata said the trucks had difficulties maneuvering in the lots, sometimes blocked cars, and on Sept. 16 one truck hit the parking lot booth, causing minor damage.

■ A public hearing will also be held on the elimination of some parking on the north side of Park Drive, from South College Avenue to west of Minquill Drive during night University of Delaware home football games.

City Manager Carl Luft said the ordinance was created after residents on Park Drive presented a petition asking for the restrictions.

Football fans were parking on their street, often leaving no room or causing traffic problems for residents.

The Council meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. at city hall's council chambers, 220 Elkton Road. Call 366-7070 for information.

Hentkowskis honored

JOHN Hentkowski Sr. and John Hentkowski Jr. were recently honored for their donation of labor to install two industrial air conditioning units at the Food Bank of Delaware warehouse in Newark.

The Carrier air conditioning equipment valued at $9,000 was donated by Peirce-Phelps Inc. in Philadelphia.

Hentkowski Inc. donated the labor necessary to install the equipment in the volunteer area of the warehouse.

The company was honored at a recent breakfast.

"It is absolutely great receiving this generous donation," said Lisa Carlisle, volunteer coordinator for the Food Bank of Delaware. "It had been suggested many times by volunteers that we get air conditioning in our volunteer room. Never in my wildest dreams did I think we would get air conditioning. Summer is actually our busiest time of year, where we can have upwards of 700 volunteers. Now our volunteers can be more comfortable sorting and packing food. It is wonderful."

When asked why he made the donation, John Hentkowski Sr. said "I'm a true believer that everyone including myself, family, and company should help in the community. It's everyone's responsibility to give back something no matter how large or small...to help the community prosper."

The Food Bank of Delaware's mission is a community free from hunger.

'The Donald of Delaware' takes opportunity to tout business, Newark

By DARREL W. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

RYAN GERMAN needs to set the record straight. The 25-year-old owner of Caffé Gelato on Main Street may have been named Delaware's bachelor of the year by popular women's magazine Cosmopolitan, but now wants it made clear he's a taken man.

Soon after the November issue of the magazine hit newsstands, German sent out a press release pointing out that he is now engaged to "the perfect woman." That woman is Shannon Canton, assistant editor at Delaware Today magazine. To further prove his point, German attached an 8-by-11-inch photo of the happy couple, who have set a Dec. 18, 2004 wedding date.

German, a graduate of Newark High School in 1995 and the University of Delaware in 2000, said the two were engaged in late August, after Cosmopolitan chose him as one of the nation's "mouthwatering bachelors."

"I feel like the luckiest man alive," German said, referring to his relationship with Canton.

German said he's not exactly sure how Cosmopolitan chose him, but said someone must have nominated him. When magazine officials called to say he was one of the finalists in Delaware, he said he kept putting them off, then directed them to his Web site. Before he knew it, they chose him as the top bachelor in Delaware.

He shot the photo spread for the magazine in early August, traveling to the Hamptons in New York state.

The magazine itself does its best to promote the bachelors with teasers on the cover such as "Hot Guys Inside" and "Sorry, No Bib Included." Inside, German's modest pose has him wearing a jean jacket over a T-shirt. Other bachelors posing next to him are bare chested, many with muscles flexing.

The information about the bachelors is scant but salacious, although German is listed as a restaurateur/entrepreneur.

In the Q and A format, German is asked what his "most rave-worthy body region is." He answers, "My stomach."

I've been lucky to have washboard abs since I was young." To the question of "Fave first move," German responds "Head and back massages."

The magazine also dubbed him "The Donald [Trump] of Delaware." He explains that

ON STAGE

'Emperor's New Clothes' due Nov. 9

THE Kennedy Center Imagination Celebration on Tour's presentation of "The Emperor's New Clothes," at 2 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 9, in Mitchell Hall, opens the 2003-04 Family Performing Arts Series at UD.

A delightful introduction to opera and a humorous interpretation of the classic Hans Christian Andersen tale, "The Emperor's New Clothes" is especially recommended for kindergarten through fifth grade children (ages 5-10).

Set against the backdrop of Andersen's timeless tale of a fashion-conscious emperor, this children's opera also should delight grownups with its mixture of soaring arias, love duets, mystery and slapstick comedy.

Before the performance, a buffet luncheon will be offered at the Blue & Gold Club, Kent Way.

Tickets can be purchased by calling or visiting the Hartshorn box office, 831-2204, and the box office is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Blue & Gold Club pre-performance buffet reservations can be made by calling the restaurant at 831-2582.

UD exhibit captures frozen beauty

A collection of recent oil paintings of Antarctica by artist Jim Woodside is on exhibit at Recitation Hall through Thursday, Nov. 6. Entitled "Polar Paintings," the exhibition chronicles Woodside's trip to the Palmer Station in Antarctica during the winter of 2003 and depicts the stark splendor of glaciers, ice caps and arctic wildlife.

Woodside, who earned his bachelor's degree in fine arts from UD in 1980, received a grant from the National Science Foundation to visually document the landscape and wildlife near Palmer Station. During his artist's residency, he worked outside, frequently painting in gloves through an open portal tent.

Woodside's work has been shown in exhibitions on the East Coast, including an invitational alumni show at the University in 1991. He is director of visual art at Walnut Hill School in Natick, Mass.

"Polar Paintings" will be on display in Room 102 of Recitation Hall through Thursday, Nov. 6. The gallery is

UD ranks 12th among public colleges

THE University of Delaware is the 12th best value in the country for in-state students at public colleges, according to a listing of the top 100 schools in the November issue of Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine.

UD was ranked 14th in Kiplinger's 2002 survey and 24th in its 2000 ranking.

According to the magazine's article on best values in public colleges, "Our exclusive survey of U.S. public college and universities shines a spotlight on schools that combine great academics with reasonable costs."

This year, the magazine also includes a ranking of the best bargains for out-of-state students, and UD is ranked 19th in that listing.

"Kiplinger's ranking further confirms UD's reputation as offering top-notch academic quality at a reasonable cost," UD President David P. Roselle said. "UD is indeed a hot school. We received a record 22,000-plus applicants for this year's freshman class, including more non-resident applications than any other public university in the country. At the same time, we have worked very hard to keep our costs down and to increase financial aid."

For its rankings, Kiplinger's looked at several measures of academic quality, including admission rates, student-faculty ratios, percentage of faculty with the highest degrees in their field, amount spent on instruction for each student, amount spent on library facilities and four- and six-year graduation rates. Schools were ranked by combining quality with such cost components as tuition, mandatory fees, room, board and estimated expenses for books and supplies.

Also included in the equation were the average cost for a student without need after subtracting merit-based grants, the average percentage of need met by student aid and the average debt accumulated by a student before graduation.

Alpha Phi appreciates renovation

Alpha Phi sorority hosted a light dinner, Thursday, Oct. 2, for members of the University of Delaware community who helped to renovate their house.

UD staff worked throughout the summer to make improvements on the house, 158 S. College Ave., which houses 48 of the 86 members of the sorority.

The sorority members invited UD President David Roselle, Matt Lenno, director of Greek Life, all of their advisers, their house corporation board, alumni and those who made the improvements to the house to see the results of the renovation. Sorority sisters also hung a banner from their house to publicly thank all those who worked on the improvements.

The improvements

included ethernet installation in each room, painting, recarpeting and retiling, installation of new washers and dryers, security screens added to all first-floor and basement windows and new locks and doors for all rooms in the house. Alpha Phi's House Corporation Board worked to ensure all of these renovations were completed before the members moved in this fall.

Former Miss Newark crowned queen of New York parade

Former Miss Newark and UD sophomore Melissa Martinez was in high spirits after her recent crowning, but, like true royalty, she remained ever humble. Dubbed queen of New York City's Hispanic Day Parade in a recent pageant, the 19-year-old fashion merchandising major said that although she was honored by the victory, it came as a shock.

"I had no idea whatsoever that I was going to win, so when they called my name I was very surprised," the native of Queens, N.Y., said. "It was the greatest feeling ever and a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. I'm glad I got to experience it-but I never knew it would be so emotional!"

Crowned during a televised judging on Saturday, Sept. 27, Martinez honored her title and Guatemalan heritage in the Hispanic Day Parade on Sunday, Oct. 12, in New York City. Since being crowned, she also has met with several VIPs, including the mayor of New York City, and has attended many functions as a spokeswoman for Hispanic-American culture.

"I think my biggest duty is representing all Hispanics in New York," Martinez said. As a first-generation, Hispanic-American whose parents were both born in Guatemala, Martinez said she also hopes to bring greater visibility to the small Central American country she represented in the pageant.

"I entered the pageant representing Guatemala, and it's the country that put me into the running, so I'd like to give it a bigger voice," Martinez said. "I'm also the first Guatemalan girl to be elected queen in the Hispanic Day Parade's 39-year history, so I feel it's an honor to be able to have the opportunity to give the country more visibility. I grew up with a lot of cultural pride, and all through high school it was a goal of mine to raise awareness about Guatemala."

Martinez, who has entered pageants for the past 10 years, said she feels that both the pageant and the parade keep the accent on cultural pride rather than on physical appearance. The judging process, which lasted two days, assigned contestants points on traditional outfits and cultural knowledge, as well as their appearance in formal gowns. Each category was weighted, and Martinez said she believes that her ability to describe her outfit was what made her a frontrunner.

"I described my traditional outfit right down to its borders," she said.

Martinez, who said that she chose to attend the University of Delaware because of its location and academic offerings, believes that her pageant duties will only contribute to her college experience.

"The past two weeks have been a little hectic, but things will calm down after the first month," she said. "Most of all, I see this as a great honor. I'm representing Hispanic women-and of even greater significance, I'm representing Hispanic culture. [Hispanic-Americans] are becoming a bigger population in this country, so when we have opportunities like this, it only makes us stronger and gets us more involved."

Martinez was crowned Miss Newark several years ago and later went on to compete in the Miss Delaware trials for the national Miss America competition.

The Pharisee of Time

By MARVIN HUMMEL

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

SOMEbody in the next room at the party must have set him off — probably excusing his early departure because of an early-morning flight, which would require “cranking up the old alarm clock.”

That set off the Pharisee of Time on a classic rant, something about “healthy people” not needing alarm clocks because they had undamaged internal biorhythms and were in tune with the universe, including the ocean waves and the fullness of the moon.

I went into the next room to hear more of the Pharisee of Time’s peroration (There’s a little bit of the masochist in us all).

The synopsis of his remarks were: “I thank thee, O great Chronos, that I am not like other men— those night crawlers and slugabeds who are so out of synch with the universe that they must resort to the unnatural use of ‘alarm clocks!’...”

He, it seems, unerringly and unfailingly, tells himself what time to wake up, and he and his bio-rhythms get him up without help from any artificial devices or “contraptions!”

Hummel

By the time the onion in his Gibson began popping up and down, its plastic spear not withstanding, he had emptied out the place: Pharisees of any and all sorts never collect crowds — they dispel them.

But he made me think, as Pharisees always do. Am I slugabed? No! Never! (My tires protested as I turned the corner too abruptly! Was I offending their bio-rhythms? What IS a biorhythm?)

I am NOT a “night crawler!” Nor am I a “slugabed!” At worst, I am nocturnally challenged!

That was it! Nocturnally challenged! Still, I thought reluctantly, I do have five alarm clocks, one on my bed stand, one on top of the TV set, a third on the far dresser on the other side of the room.

And, on another little table, old Ben and still older Seth. Perhaps the Pharisee of time was right!

No he wasn’t! A pox on all Pharisees! But he had unnerved me.

To defend myself, I looked up the words involved: “alarm” has a long history and means “a call to arms.” “Clock” comes from “bell,” and I knew their long-time task — to get people going!

■ A retired clergyman and a teacher since 1972, Hummel has contributed to the Newark Post for more than two decades. He has lived in Delaware since 1959.

“...Was I offending their biorhythms? What is a biorhythm?”

Other people in other times and places had needed help, too! But five alarms? Five! Was that an excessive number? (Perhaps the Pharisee was right!)

As I went to bed the next morning, I went over my inventory of alarms. The one next to my bed starts the process of calling me to arms. It says, “Needle-needle-needle-needle-needle-needle,” the aural equivalent of acupuncture. It sends me to the coffee pot downstairs, its job done. Popped up in bed with a mug of coffee, I watch television to discover the news of fresh disasters until the Old School Marm clock on the TV starts chiming in: “Ding-DangDing-Dang-Ding!” Enough already! And I brush both teeth, and, perchance, slip back between the covers!

If this were to happen (and sometimes does), the faraway clock gets mad, and in a demanding and annoyingly dissident way asks me, “Do I have to come over there?!” It won’t. So, I’m getting up! Permanently! (Or at least until tomorrow morning.)

As for old Ben and older Seth, I keep those old relicts of another time and place when and where they served me long and well. I could no more throw them out than a horse lover could send old, spavined Dobbin to the knackers to be made into dog food and baseball covers. Never! Squat, round-bellied Ben and metal-capped Seth will have a home on my dresser until time runs out for me.

Fie upon all Pharisees of Time and their bio-rhythms or whatever it is that wakes them up without assistance from any plugged-in devices or battery-laden callers-to-arms!

As for me: until I am undone, I will never ask for whom my bells toll! They toll for me!

Post script: If the Pharisee of Time wants to talk about what he calls his basic biorhythms, I have a friend Daisy who has enough for both of us.

At her bio-time, she dances around me on her two back legs, utters mock-whimpers and real barks, then gives me a mournful look.

She is so certain that the time has come, she leads me to the leash and vamps me until I clip it to her harness and then projects us to and through the door. Biorhythm that, Mr. Pharisee of Time!

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week’s “Out of the Attic” features a murky photo of the Washington House, built prior to 1850. It stood on the spot where the Stone Balloon is today. In 1964, the hotel and restaurant were purchased by Jimmy Copoulos and renamed Jimmy’s Tavern. A few years later it became Merle’s Tavern and remained that until 1972 when the building was purchased by William Stevenson and he created the Stone Balloon. Photo courtesy of the University of Delaware Archives Photograph collection. “Out of the Attic” features historic photographs from Newark’s past. Readers who have a historic photo and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. ### Ask Newark to letter its name on building Agitation has been started by Postmaster William H. Evans to have the name Newark painted in large letters on the roof of one of the prominent buildings in town, as a guide to both civilian and service fliers. This is pursuant to the suggestion made by Colonel Charles A., Lindbergh that all towns in the United States, over 1000 in population identify themselves in such a manner that fliers can read their names when flying over the towns.

Hog cholera prevalent

Reports coming into the office of the Delaware State Board of Agriculture would indicate that quite a few hogs are being lost from cholera.

The State Board of Agriculture wishes to impress upon the swine owners the necessity of burying all dead animals immediately.

The Board believes that it would be advisable for the owners of swine in vicinities where cholera is prevalent to have their animals inoculated by their local veterinarian.

“Pages From The Past” is compiled from early editions of the Newark Post and its forerunners by staffers. Efforts are made to retain original headlines and style in the reprinting of these items.

High tension wires fall

Last Thursday during the rain and windstorm, a pole carrying high tension wires fell at the corner of Main street and North College avenue. The current was cut off and traffic stopped immediately while the wires were cut away. However, repairs could not be completed until next morning and that portion of the town was without light during Thursday night.

into one of the brightest, most inviting and comprehensive information centers in Delaware.

She was more than a friend of the library - Charlesa was the inspirational spirit that has helped re-energize the Friends of the Newark Library since she arrived at the Library Avenue facility.

And her friends in the Newark Morning Rotary Club, myself included, tonight will remember her smile and how she assimilated into our close-knit, friendly circle so quickly. (However, the mystery car rally she organized surprised us. You just never would have imagined Charlesa would lead us blindly to an evening of bellydancing.)

She was predictable, passionate and dependable, but then she'd surprise you, offering those around her a glimpse into the amazing depth of her personality. This trait is what I believe compelled so many people in Newark to love her.

Charlesa was my age. She is my first close friend to die. This week has been tough.

I'm sure I'm not the only Rotarian who remembers the "happy dollar" she gave at one of our Thursday morning meetings at the Blue and Gold Club about one year ago. She proclaimed proudly that she had been cancer free for five years.

Weeks later, the devil returned.

All of us were amazed by her positive attitude, her high spirits even when the news was grim, and her smile - it never left her face.

Just eight days ago, simply through the luck of the draw, Charlesa was asked to extemporaneously address her fellow Rotarians.

Undaunted by the surprise, she stepped to the podium and shared, with obvious passion, why she believed being a librarian is not only a worthy, but an important vocation. She asked her Rotary friends to urge young people to consider the profession in spite of the "bun factor," which she described as the stereotypical image of a gray-haired librarian with her hair in a bun.

As she spoke, I suspect I was not the only friend who marveled

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Stoddard on 'First State News'

To: The editor

From: Jim Stoddard

I MUCH appreciated the recent Up Front column (Oct. 3) with the banner headline asking for the return of my 1956 weather map.

That date of its construction is probably fairly accurate and it looked a little wacky but got the job done.

I did the weather on First State News for 14 years and am still recognized for that work, which makes me very happy.

It was an honor to be invited into people's homes to give them their daily forecast and I enjoyed it.

I didn't get rich doing it, it was a part-time job and never paid very much. When I started out in 1986 it paid $15 a night.

Sad to say, the newscast will never return.

The only reason it started was that Wilmington City Council made local news coverage a condition to license renewal. So WNS (Wilmington News Services) was begun by Rollins Cable.

That telecast eventually became First State News and was carried on by the various companies that owned the cable system.

In the final analysis, the cable TV executive you want to recall worked for Suburban Cable. That is the company that ended First State News and merged it into the Tri-State Media Network, which did a regional news broadcast much like CN-8 does today.

It is my understanding that Suburban Cable negotiated the license renewal with the City of Wilmington just prior to selling to Comcast. Suddenly the provisions for local news were gone and they had a ten-year deal. So a local news telecast will not be returning to your home screen.

Yeah, I know the production values on First State News could be funny sometimes. We chuckled a lot about it, too.

But there was a caring staff trying to tell the continuing story of Delaware, a story no other TV stations seem very interested in, and that effort is greatly missed.

Hey, if we can get a studio and some air time somewhere, I'll call Comcast and see if they'll donate the 1956 weather map. We can do our own show.

at her spirit and that ever-present smile; we all knew she was to begin dreaded chemotherapy treatments the next morning, just one week ago today.

Charlesa was wrong about one thing.

Last week, she told us that librarians "never get rich." The legacy she left behind proves her wrong.

To Howard, her family and friends, her library colleagues and my Rotary buddies, I offer my deepest sympathy.

OUTLOOK

Couple time

■ Outlook is a weekly feature provided to Newark Post readers by the staff of the New Castle County Cooperative Extension Office.

TIME. Most families feel they never have enough. In many families with young children, that perception is magnified because one constraint never goes away. Kids must be cared for no matter how old they are or how independent. Carving out together time to spend as a couple is a real challenge.

Research suggests that most couples have concerns about the time they spend with their spouses. Concerns related to not being able to develop a quality relationship, fear of losing their partner if enough attention is not given to the relationship, and concern over not being able to catch up on important couple issues.

When asked about the time spent together, couples said the most common time together was during meals. Other times included early Saturday morning or after the kids went to bed. Some couples planned a night or weekend away. Others met for lunch. And some couples noted that time on the telephone during the day helped them stay connected.

Couples indicated the biggest barriers to time away together are finances that would allow them to hire help and trusting others to care for their children. Some couples didn't feel they had the financial resources to take a "long weekend" or a night out. Others said they didn't have a trusted caregiver. They didn't want to leave their children with others who wouldn't take the same care as they did. Some said that they wouldn't be able to relax if they were

Not only UD has bricks...

Re-energized NHS alumni group raises funds with honor walkway

By ELIZABETH COE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

THE Newark High School Alumni Association has regrouped after years of inactivity, and is now sponsoring fund raising events in order to raise awareness of the organization and raise scholarship money for NHS graduates.

The NHS Alumni Association had been in existence for years, but it became inactive in the 1990s. It wasn't until the planning of the Millennium Reunion in the year 2000 that people came forward to restart the group.

In the process of creating a database of graduates for the reunion, the NHS Alumni Association was revitalized, and now has about 25 core members who are actively promoting the organization, according to members.

Membership to the organization is free, and is open to all graduates of NHS and any former students.

The association holds meetings once a month between September and June, and publishes their newsletter, the Honeycomb, twice a year in October and April. The annual meeting in October is when elections for new officers are held.

The organization has two main fundraising campaigns currently ongoing.

Sally Pinto Krapf, a 1969 graduate, is in charge of fundraising for the organization. One fundraising campaign is the "Walk of Fame" at NHS. The walk of fame is a walkway of bricks in place around the flag pole in front of the high school. Bricks can be purchased for $50 for two lines of writing or $75 for three lines. Nearly 100 bricks are already in place, and up to 800 are expected to be sold.

Krapf said that bricks have been given in honor of staff members, students, and graduates of NHS. She also said there will most likely be a dedication ceremony held at the high school to celebrate those who have been named.

Mary Lou McDowell, a 1980 graduate and editor of Honeycomb, said the "Wall of Fame" is a great way to acknowledge people who have made contributions to education.

"They are also great graduation gifts," she said, "and several people have gotten one in remembrance of someone who has touched their lives."

These include one for Matt Focco who was a 1998 NHS graduate who was killed in the terrorist attacks of 9/11 when the plane he was on crashed into the Pentagon.

Alumni pins are also being sold for $5 each. The pins say "NHS Alumni" and have a yellow jacket on them.

The NHS Alumni Association has several committees, including the Scholarship Committee, which is in charge of choosing one high school student per year as a recipient of the $1000 annual scholarship. Applicants must be a junior or senior at NHS with a GPA of at least 3.0 for all four years of high school.

The recipient of the scholarship for 2003 was Katie Lehigh Rhoads who is now a freshman attending the University of Delaware, majoring in elementary education.

There is a catch to the scholarship. Recipients are asked to maintain the database of graduates of their class and keep the addresses and contacts up to date for the Alumni Association.

McDowell said it is also important to try to get new people involved in the organization.

"It seems like in these types of organizations it's always the same people who are involved, and that's why they often die," she said. "So one of our goals is to get new people interested and get them involved to help keep the organization

Local leaders encourage volunteering

Grace Arles, President of the Delaware State Federation of Women's Clubs, and three other members of the New Century Club of Newark—Grace Owen, president; Betty O'Hara, vice-president, and Chris Drake, director—were among 180 women attending the Mid-Atlantic Region Conference of the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC) in Atlantic City, NJ, last week.

Arles and the other Newark women attended a series of workshops and presentations designed to help Federation leaders raise support within their clubs for a wide range of programs and projects that will fill specific needs within their communities.

According to Owen, the two-day meeting also stressed the importance of encouraging more people to get involved in volunteer activities.

“Every community needs more helping hands.”

"Every community needs more helping hands," Owen said. "Women who volunteer through a GFWC club can reach out to those in need and at the same time find new friends and realize a great sense of accomplishment."

In her address to meeting attendees, GFWC International President Judy Lutz talked about her special project, which focuses on the needs of children.

"There are so many ways we can make a difference in the life of a child," she said. "By choosing one or two of the 'Count 10 for Kids' activities, your GFWC club can do so much to enhance the lives of the children in your community."

The New Century Club of Newark's project in the spring for

'Count 10 for Kids' was with two local Girl Scout troops.

The girls competed with each other in doing random acts of kindness, and the troop that had the highest average of good deeds was awarded a cash prize each month by the New Century Club.

In June, the club entertained all the girls and parents at a tea in the Clubhouse at Delaware Avenue and Haines Street.

GFWC is an international organization of community-based volunteer women's clubs which have been working for 113 years to address the most pressing needs of their communities and the world.

It is headquartered in Washington, DC. Newark's club celebrated its 110th anniversary in May.

Recycling could cut city's dumping fees

► RECYCLE, from 1

and education for the DSWA, said last week that his agency has "taken the city's requests a step further" by increasing the size of the brochure, providing more information about the program and more ways to contact the DSWA to sign up for curbside recycling.

Curbside yard waste collection was eliminated from the original proposal because the city already provides that collection, while an addition to the survey includes a detachable post card residents can fill out and send to the authority.

If at least 10 percent of the 6,400 city electric customers sign up for the voluntary program, Aguilar said the authority could begin curbside pickup early next year for those who have signed up for it. If initiated, it would come at a cost of $6 per month for full curbside recycling, including collection of metals, plastics and paper materials.

City resident now must bring recyclables to one of six drop off centers in the city, otherwise it can be disposed of with the regular trash.

Currently, about 500 Wilmington-area residents pay for the DSWA's curbside recycling program.

Expanding the recycling program into the Newark area is the second phase of a county-wide pilot project aimed at reducing the amount of materials going into the Cherry Island Landfill in Wilmington.

While getting 10 percent approval from Newark residents is the minimum, Aguilar said the final decision will be up to the DSWA board.

In order to expand the service into Newark, the authority might have to purchase a new truck and hire new employees.

"We are committed to providing curbside recycling to more people because it allows our vehicles and staff to work at optimal performance," Aguilar said. "While 10 percent [640 residences] would mean a good increase for the program, if 1,200 people sign up then it's a more powerful message."

Newark City Councilman Karl Kalbacher hopes the city can provide a good example for the rest of the state.

"I will sign up for it and pay extra, and I hope our residents support this too," Kalbacher said. "It's important for the environment and makes financial sense too."

Aguilar said statewide studies have shown that the average household has about 61 pounds of garbage per week and about 20 pounds of that could be recycled.

The DSWA is a quasi-governmental agency created by the state Legislature in 1975. It was created to manage state landfills and work on ways to divert waste into recyclable materials.

The authority gets its revenues from tipping fees at the three state landfills, one in each county. No state or county money goes to the authority and Aguilar said the authority will lose money on the curbside recycling program.

In addition to the recycling program, the authority has also proposed increasing the size of the Cherry Island Landfill.

The DSWA's yard waste option was taken off the proposal because the city currently picks up grass over a 26-week period in the summer, leaves over a nine-week period in the fall and during two weeks in the spring.

City residents don't pay a designated fee for the city's twice-a-week garbage pickup. However, the city refuse division's operating budget was about $2.3 million in 2002.

In 2002, the city paid the DSWA about $706,000 to dump garbage at the Cherry Island Landfill. But because the fees are based on tonnage, if more city residents recycle it could cost the city less.

■ For information contact the DSWA at 1-800-404-7080 or visit its Web site at www.dswa.com running so we can start doing more fun things like dances and other community events"

Sponsorship is also available through the NHS Alumni Association newsletter. For $100 any NHS graduate can have a business card printed in the Honeycomb.

The association also tries to promote graduates of NHS by encouraging members to reach out to one other when they need services. The organization is currently working on putting together a business directory.

Gail Hutchison Russell, a 1970 graduate and vice president of the association, said she joined because she wanted to do something for the community.

"I work with a lot of fun people and I think it's interesting to stay in touch with graduates and be able to see them even after so many years," she said.

McDowell said she joined the NHS Alumni Association because Newark's history is important to her and her family.

"I guess you could say community service and involvement is genetic!" she said, "I want my kids to grow up to be a part of this too."

worried about what was happening at home.

Most couples that did take time for themselves said they had to plan for it. Some of the strategies used include, putting it in their calendar, soliciting other family members or friends for help, and saving money for a long weekend or night out.

Keeping your relationship strong keeps the family strong. Consider time with your spouse or partner as an investment in each other and your family. Discuss budgeting money to hire some help periodically so you can get away. Consider creating a cooperative arrangement with trusted family members or friends who can care for your children while you take a few hours or weekend for yourselves.

Recognize that others may not be supportive of the priority you place on your relationship with your spouse or partner for couple time. Make an effort to relax when you're away and trust the people you have left in charge.

EDUCATION NEWS FOR NEWARK FROM LOCAL SCHOOLS

NOTEPAD

Family Literacy Day in Dover

FROM helping your child to read to understanding the state testing programs and preparing seniors for college, the answers to those questions are at Delaware's Seventh Annual Family Literacy Day Celebration, Saturday, Nov. 1, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Delaware State University, MBNA Building, in Dover.

Workshops, exhibits, children's activities, guest readers, give-aways and free food will be available.

Representatives from public and private schools, including the Christina District, will be present.

The event will kick-off November as "Strong Families, Strong Schools Month" as declared by Gov. Ruth Ann Minner.

For more information, call 571-1536.

Free shuttle service

The Christina School District Department of Transportation offers a free shuttle service for those parents who do not have transportation to get to their child's school for parent/teacher conferences. If you are in need of

Science reinforces all other learning

By ROBIN BROOMALL

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

FROM kindergarten to 12th grade, the students of the Christina School District are using technology to help with reading, writing and math.

■ High school students design flyers and brochures in graphic arts classes, using computer software and a color copier. Fourth graders on trips take pictures with digital cameras and video equipment and later have project reports. Science classes use digital probes to record data.

■ Music classes have digitalized keyboards. Power Point is used by elementary students to present team reports.

■ Libraries have lost those bulky card catalogs and are being completely modernized, using the OPAC on-line system for library research. Three schools - Kirk and Gauger-Cobbs Middle schools and Christiana High School are working as a test program to have their libraries accessible from home.

DANIELA Cardona and her mother Micaela worked intently on their math chart, adding and subtracting to fill in the blanks. They quickly finished the assignment and raised their hands high in the air hoping to be the first ones to finish.

Teacher Rosa Alicea collected the cards and reviewed the answers with the 25 second-graders and their parents.

The Cardonas were among 150 families who participated in family math night for bilingual students and parents Wednesday, Oct. 15, at Wilson Elementary School.

This was the first time three schools - Wilson Elementary, Bancroft Intermediate and Pulaski Intermediate - partnered

Students are connected

► TECH, from 12

Students at the intermediate grades are using Fast Forward, a program developed by Scientific Learning Corp. to improve memory, word-recognition, and information processing skills. It was used for the first time at Stubbs Elementary School last week. Students wear headsets and play games on the computer, which involves listening closely to sounds and following directions. The results of each session will be used to assess the child's strengths and weaknesses.

More than 5,000 computers are available to students in the district, with most connected to the Internet.

On the operational side, the school district is also completely computerized, with administrators able to track what the students eat for lunch, where they live, and what days they were absent. Most teachers use their e-mail to keep in touch with district offices as well as parents.

The ratio of Christina students to computers is 3.5 to one, however, that figure can be misleading because there might be several computers in one room when another class will have only one computer at a workstation but access to a traveling lab with 30 wireless computers.

Even though computers are available in all the 1,163 classrooms, Michael Epler, director of instruction for the district, technology is looked at as just another tool to help the students in their learning.

"Technology is a tool that is used in every area," Epler said. "It's integrated in the regular lesson, in planning, word-processing, spell check, vocabulary development."

With TV programs, Internet, computer games, and fast paced activities, today's children, early on in their development, begin to process information and classify things in their brains differently than their parents did, Epler explained. There is a different impact on how children receive and process information. Computers are considered the norm for children today.

"It's a tool for learning, similar to the chalkboard," Chuck Longfellow, director of technology services, said. "The style of learning may change but the objective is still the same."

One credit in computer literacy is required by the state of Delaware for graduation. That level of competency is now being completed at the middle school

Charter school applications due Dec. 5

The Newark Charter School is accepting applications for grades 5 to 8 for the 2004-2005 school year. The open enrollment period ends Dec. 5, with applications available at the school office at 2001 Patriot Way or from the school's Web site.

Enrollment is open to all Delaware residents. In the event the number of applicants exceeds the number of openings, a lottery will be used to select students, with preference given to siblings of current students and to students living within a five-mile radius of the school. Students who have been on a waiting list in the past must re-apply for the 2004-2005 school year.

An Open House for students and parents will be Sunday, Nov. 9, from 1 to 3 p.m. For information call 369-2001 or visit www.k12.ed.us/ncs.

► MATH, from 12

to offer the program for kindergarten through sixth graders and their families. Although separate events have been held in the past, administrators realized that many families had children attending all three of the schools and it was challenging for the parents to attend three separate math programs.

"Having the event at Wilson enabled us to coordinate our parent education initiative for bilingual families," said Helen Spacht, principal of Wilson School. "Hosting our family event here makes it convenient for parents to get involved in their children's education."

Free transportation was made available from the Wilmington schools to Wilson.

Students and families went through sample math lessons with both Spanish and English teachers at each grade level. It gave parents a chance to better understand how math is taught in the elementary grades and the terminology used so they will be able to help their children with homework assignments. Each grade level had a take-home packet that included more math activities that parents and students can complete together.

Micaela Cardona admitted trying to help her daughter with homework was challenging.

"When I went to school, math was different. I don't always understand what they are supposed to do. We have a second and a third grader and have to help them with their homework," Cardona said. Her husband was attending the third grade session that night.

"Our purpose in holding this event is to better explain standards-based math programs in Spanish to bilingual parents," said George Steinhoff, principal of Pulaski. "The math instruction is difficult enough for parents to grasp without the language barrier. This is one way we are working with our bilingual students and parents to improve student achievement."

All three schools have seen a steady increase in the number of bilingual students and parents who speak little or no English. In this school year, 10 percent of Bancroft's 1,016 students are bilingual. Pulaski has 15 percent of its 533 students and Wilson has 33 percent of its 566 students identified as bilingual.

NEWARK POST ♦ POLICE BLOTTER

▶ BLOTTER, from 2

parked in the 300 block Chickory Way, Newark police were told on Saturday, Oct. 18, at 8:46 p.m.

The car's windshield was broken and paint was chipped. Damage was estimated at $700, police said.

Assault charge

David J. Sadowski, 49, of Newark, was charged with assault following an altercation inside a home in the 1000 block Barksdale Road on Saturday, Oct. 18, at 7:47 a.m., Newark police said.

Taken to hospital

A man found laying in front of the Continental Court apartments, 65 S. Chapel St., on Saturday, Oct. 18, at 3:11 a.m. was taken to Christiana Hospital by the Aetna ambulance, Newark police reported.

The California man, 23, was in town for homecoming. Friends told police at the hospital that the victim had been drinking at a party.

The man was treated for an eye laceration, police said. The victim could not recall what happened.

Man injured

Newark police were called to investigate a possible assault on Friday, Oct. 17, at 7:22 p.m. when alerted that a man had been seen stumbling in the roadway near 799 Chrysler Ave.

Officers discovered a man, 26, disoriented, confused, his face bleeding and swollen. He did not know what caused his injuries, police said.

The man was taken to Christiana Hospital for treatment.

$30,000 damage

After vandals poured dirt into the oil fill cap, the engine of a bulldozer was destroyed, Newark police were told on Friday, Oct. 17, at 3:15 p.m.

The owner told police it would be necessary to replace the engine at a cost of $30,000.

The damage apparently took place while the earthmover was parked on the Newark reservoir construction site, 241 Paper Mill Road.

Assault at NHS

Newark police were called to Newark High School, on Friday, Oct. 17, at 7:54 a.m. after a teacher, 49, was shoved in the school's hallway by a disruptive student.

No criminal arrests were made.

Charges pending

Assault charges are pending against a man accused of forcibly entering a home in the unit block Westfield Drive at 1 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 16, and assaulting a resident, Newark police reported.

The resident was struck in the eye and shoulder with a wine bottle wielded by the intruder, who had been told not to enter the home.

Police said the man could not be arraigned immediately due to his high blood alcohol content.

Truck taken at 7-Eleven

A 2000 Ford truck was stolen from outside the 7-Eleven, 202 Elkton Road, at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 15, while the owner was reading magazines inside the convenience store, Newark police said.

The owner had been in the store less than two minutes when the theft was discovered. The keys had been left inside the truck and the doors were unlocked, police were told.

An immediate police search of the area failed to locate the stolen truck, which was valued at $20,000.

Fight at Newark

Two youths, 16, were arrested by Newark police following a fight inside the Newark High School cafeteria, 401 E. Delaware Ave., at 12:34 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 14.

School administrators told police that as the two were being taken from the cafeteria to the school office, one of the teens punched a hole in the drywall of the hallway.

Both were charged with disorderly conduct. One youngster also was cited for possession of marijuana after a green leafy substance was discovered in his book bag by officers.

Both youths were released pending Family Court appearances, police said.

Shoplifting arrests

Two women were charged with shoplifting after they were seen by Pathmark store personnel concealing 14 DVDs on their persons, Newark police were told on Tuesday, Oct. 14, at 11:13 a.m.

Mary M. Graham, 20, of Bear, and Kristi L. Green, 19, of Middletown, each were charged with shoplifting. Graham also was charged with receiving stolen property after other DVDs were discovered during a search of her vehicle, police said.

Both were released pending court appearances.

Fatal crash on I-95

A 26-year-old Virginia woman was killed in a traffic crash that closed northbound I-95 for three hours around 2 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 20.

The woman, Liping Ma, was a passenger in a 1998 Ford Mustang driven by William J. Hoffner, 19, of Virginia. He was driving south on I-95 when, just south of the Salem Church Road overpass, the vehicle veered into the grass median before hitting a guardrail and spun into the northbound lanes before coming to stop.

Hoffner and his 22-year-old wife Jing-Jing were transported to Christiana Hospital and suffered from unknown injuries, while the other female passenger was pronounced dead at the scene.

State police said it appears that none of the occupants were wearing seat belts at the time of the crash.

Arrests made in car break-ins at schools

Delaware State Police have charged two men for a rash of car break-ins at area schools.

Eligio T. Cintron, 37, of Wilmington, and Radee L. Prince, 23, of Marshalton, were arrested for breaking into more than 35 cars parked at area high schools during school hours and during football games.

The break-ins began when school opened for the year Sept. 3 at Brandywine High School. From then on the two allegedly struck at McKean High School, William Penn High School, Dickinson High School, Christiana High School, Hodgson Vo-Tech and Sanford School.

The two were captured Saturday, Oct. 11 when a state trooper saw the two breaking into a car parked in the student lot at Concord High School, near Ebright Road. Cintron was taken into custody and Prince was captured after a foot chase that ended on Naamans Road, police said.

Troopers have charged Cintron and Prince with 110 criminal charges including theft, attempted theft, conspiracy, trespassing and possession of burglary tools. They were arraigned and committed to the Department of Correction in default of $110,000 cash bail.

The pair allegedly stole more than $26,000 in stereo and electronic equipment and caused more than $8,000 in damages to vehicles.

Troopers recovered very little stolen property and believe the items were sold.

Alcohol, noise violations detailed

Officers of the Newark Police Department have continued their stepped-up enforcement of alcohol-related and noise laws.

Marked units and special plainclothes details operated here during what police describe as "peak party periods." Officers out of uniform also conducted "Cops In Shops" details in Newark liquor outlets. Alcohol-related arrests climbed during the University of Delaware's Homecoming Weekend. Some of the recent arrests include:

Adib B. Rushdan, 20, of New Castle, noise violation, at 34 Madison Dr., on Sunday, Oct. 19, at 4:18 a.m.

for three council seats — are expected file papers. Godwin said he filed early because he had been told that rumored mayoral candidate Vance Funk III was telling people he (Godwin) wasn't going to run.

Funk said he never told anyone Godwin wasn't a candidate and would have no reason to do so. The two apparently had a civil but pointed phone discussion about the rumors last week.

In addition, Funk said that while he has talked to others and hinted at a possible run for mayor he has not made a final decision. He said he pulled nominating petitions recently but has not filled them out or turned them in.

"Basically what I am doing is talking to friends and family to see if it's the right thing to do," said Funk, not wanting to elaborate.

Signs urging "AdVance the city" have begun to appear in some Main Street storefronts and Funk passed out election stickers at Community Day in September.

Godwin admits filing early is a "highly unusual move," but it also shows that the mayor is letting the competition know he's ready for an election fight.

"We usually don't get serious about elections until February, but I wanted to get the message out and had to make it official," Godwin said.

The mayor's post is a three-year term.

Meanwhile, the council seats of Karl Kalbacher (District 3),

Frank Osborne (District 5) and Chris Rewa (District 6) are up as well. Of the three, only Osborne said he has not decided if he will run again, or when he will make a decision.

Council members are elected for two year terms.

Kalbacher was first elected in 1998, running unopposed. He was elected two more times, each time unopposed as well.

"I will definitely run for council again, but I don't plan on filing for a while yet," Kalbacher said. "I have enjoyed the work and welcome the opportunity to serve the community again."

Rewa is seeking her third term and "absolutely" plans on running.

"I'll probably file after the first of the year sometime," she said.

The last day for all candidates to file is March 15, 2004.

■ Mayoral race

WHILE Godwin is a known political commodity — having served on the council since 1987, including mayoral victories in 1998 and 2001 — Funk is a self-described newcomer to local politics, but not a newcomer to the Newark community.

His law office has been in the city since 1973, while his work in real estate settlement workload once earned him the nickname "Mr. Settlement." In addition, he is well-respected, is an active member of the Newark Senior Center board, has several youth sports, is a 1965 graduate of the

- Election day is April 13, 2004
- Last day for candidates to file petitions is March 15.
- The last day for city residents to register to vote is March 22.
- City offices up for election are mayor and council seats in district 3, district 5 and district 6.
- Residents must register with the state Department of Elections, in the Carval State Office Building in downtown Wilmington by calling 302-577-3464. Forms can also be mailed.
- One or two special registration days within the city will be held prior to the registration deadline.

University of Delaware and is a spokesperson for the Delaware Stroke Initiative.

He earned his law degree in 1968.

He has lived in the greater Newark area since the 1970's but moved within city limits in October 2002.

Funk did not want to publicly discuss why he would challenge Godwin or what issues he thinks are important until he makes a final decision about his own candidacy.

Godwin said regardless of his opponent or opponents, he looks at elections as a time to discuss issues and ideas.

Godwin said he is proud of his accomplishments, including overhauling the city water system to make the city "water independent," but looks forward to working on issues such as downtown parking.

"Challengers always try to find something ... it requires incumbents to say what they have done and prove why they should remain in office," Godwin said.

Godwin said if challenged he would expect to raise between $10,000 and $15,000 for the campaign. He said he has a few thousand dollars left over from previous campaigns.

Aetna's Austin 'humbled' by award

By ELIZABETH COE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

AETNA Hose, Hook and Ladder Co. fire police officer Stephen P. Austin was recently honored by the national Burn Foundation for his leadership and commitment to fire service organizations locally and nationally.

Austin, presented with a crystal sculpture Oct. 11 at the organization's 30th anniversary event at the National Constitution Center in Philadelphia, has been involved in fire service for 40 years, including 29 years with Aetna. Pennsylvania Legislator Curt Weldon was also honored.

"I was humbled to receive the award," said Austin, a Newark resident. "There were so many important people there, including members of Aetna. I was very happy to have people from Newark there with me."

Other Aetna members present were fire Chief Steve Kavanagh and vice president Jon Townley.

Austin has held various positions with Aetna including ambulance lieutenant.

"I've been fortunate to receive a lot of awards in the past, but the most important thing I have been able to accomplish in my career is my membership with Aetna," Austin said. "That is what this is really all about."

Austin also served as president of the Delaware Volunteer Firemen's Association and served as chairman of the National Fire Protection Association's Technical Committee on Fire Investigator Professional Qualifications from 1990 to

What are could they possibly be thinking?

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Allen Sessoms
President,
Delaware State University
Dover, DE

Dear Dr. Sessoms:
I know I'm probably in the minority based on the lack of other opinions and editorials coming from the state's biggest news organizations, but I couldn't with good conscience sit idly by and let this whole I-A thing go by without offering a dissenting view.

Valania

What in the name of the BCS are you thinking?

It's one thing for Marshall to go from I-AA to I-A, but list me all those other schools that have been successful in the transition.

How does a school that has a hard time filling its 5,000-seat stadium (if you can call it that) propose to get put over 15,000 people in a 30,000-seat stadium?

What 30,000-seat stadium are we talking about anyway? As a matter of fact, there are thousands (yes, thousands) of high schools in this country with better facilities than Delaware State.

I know you think that a I-A football team will attract students and money, but that really only works if you're one of the 35 or 40 schools in the country. And correct me if I'm wrong, you haven't won any games this year in the powerful MEAC. You're

Newark nips Glasgow in thriller

Turner's late TD lifts
Jackets to victory

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark sits alone on top of the Flight A Conference standings after an incredible, last minute 14-7 victory over cross-town rival Glasgow Friday night on the Dragons home field.

Newark's Junior defensive back Chet Turner was the unlikely hero, picking off a pass from Dragon quarterback Pete Folke with 35 seconds left in the game. Turner caught the ball after it deflected off the hands of Dragon's A.J. Willis, and then sped 32 yards, untouched, into the end zone before a stunned capacity crowd.

"The ball bounced right off of his hands," said Turner, "but once I caught it, I knew I had to take it home," he said.

This was Turner's first start in several weeks due to an injury early in the season.

Newark is now 6-0 on the season, and 3-0 in Flight A. Glasgow, off to its best start in a decade, dropped to 5-1 overall, and 3-1 in conference.

"This was an excellent high school football game," said Newark coach Butch Simpson. "We were fortunate to win this game tonight. Quite frankly, coming in, I don't know if I was very confident because I felt they had a lot of weapons and a lot of tough people," said Simpson.

After a defensive-minded and scoreless first three quarters, Glasgow got on the board early in the fourth period.

The scoring drive began with Folke just missing senior tight end Dan Abbott on a long pass play. Abbott had slipped behind the Yellowjacket defenders thanks to some well-executed play action by Folke, and would have had an easy touchdown.

On the next play, Willis sped around the left side for a 46-yard gain.

After several more runs, Willis then raced 25 yards for the touchdown to cap a five-play, 83-yard drive.

On Newark's next possession, junior running back Sam Cotton carried six straight times, with most of the runs going around the left side.

UD rips Rhode Island 55-10

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The University of Delaware defense forced six turnovers and held Rhode Island's triple-option attack to just 277 total yards on the way to a commanding 55-10 Atlantic 10 Conference football victory Saturday afternoon at Delaware Stadium.

The No. 4 ranked Blue Hens, who got four touchdown passes from senior quarterback Andy Hall and 268 total yards on the ground, remained undefeated at 7-0 (5-0 Atlantic 10), its best start since 8-0 in 2000, and won for the 10th time in its last 11 home games. A sun-drenched Homecoming crowd of 20,795 saw Delaware improve to 26-2 vs. Atlantic 10 opponents on Homecoming. The Hens led 35-0 at halftime and were up 45-0 before the Rams finally got on the board with 1:49 left in the third quarter.

"Going into the game, I thought Rhode Island was the best team we've played all year," said Delaware head coach K.C. Keeler, a former Delaware standout who is now 28-3 all-time in games at Delaware Stadium as a player and coach. "When we got up on them, though, I thought that close loss to Villanova last week came back to get them. It was tough emotionally for them."

Christiana impressive in romp over Delcastle

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Christiana's offense took control by scoring early and often, as the Vikings earned a home victory over Flight A conference opponent Delcastle 41-8, Saturday afternoon.

The Vikings employed a relentless running attack throughout the game, using the skills and experience of seniors Tommy Brooking and Kenny Hall, and the talents of junior Lewis Carter. The team scored three first-quarter touchdowns, and added two more in the second period, while building a 34-0 halftime lead.

Christiana coach Marvin Spence said his team's strength is focused on a strong running attack.

"We knew they were bigger than we were, so initially we wanted to run outside, because we have some backs with some good speed," he said. "We figured if we could run outside successfully, and get them worried about outside plays, then we could hit back up inside."

Brooking opened the scoring early in the first quarter with a one-yard plunge, followed by a 29-yard run by the fleet-footed Hall. After the Viking defense recovered the first of several Delcastle fumbles, Carter raced 20 yards for a score. Jeff Houser was successful on two of his three PAT attempts.

In the second quarter, Christiana's dominance continued. Four minutes into the period, Viking linebacker Jason Powell recovered another Cougar fumble, and ran for a 29-yard touchdown.

About four minutes later, Chris Ennis brought the crowd to its collective feet by scoring on a 75-yard punt return. During the run, Ennis broke numerous tackles and changed directions several times, before breaking into the clear for the last 20 yards.

"That was an electrifying run, and one of the best I've ever seen in high school football," said Spence.

Later in the game, Ennis recovered a fumble to thwart a Delcastle scoring attempt. On the play, Cougar quarterback Kyle Piazza hit Eric Fletcher on a long bomb, but the ball was knocked loose short of the goal line by Christiana's defensive back Sedale Truitt. Ennis then pounced on the ball in the end zone for a touchback.

Delcastle's only points of the day came in the fourth quarter when Piazza scored on a seven-yard run, and he added the two-point conversion.

"I was very pleased with our effort today on both sides of the ball, hopefully, we will continue to build and improve as the season progresses," said Spence.

Both teams are in action Friday night for conference games. Christiana travels to McKean, while Delcastle is on the road to play Middletown.

St. Mark's soccer edged by archrival Salesianum

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Put another classic Salesianum —St. Mark's high school soccer game in the record books.

Senior Steve Cavalier scored on a penalty kick to lift Salesianum to a 3-2 victory over Catholic Conference arch-rival St. Mark's Tuesday night at Baynard Stadium in Wilmington.

Cavalier's goal came in the 75th minute of action, moments after St. Mark's had tied the score on Mike Piecuch's second goal of the game, a blistering shot from long distance.

The play occurred after a disputed handball call on a Spartan defender in the 18-yard box. Cavalier beat backup keeper Jason Gilfillan from short range, after starter Dan Mangat was given a yellow card for misconduct.

Salesianum coach Scott Mosier said it was a good, hard-hitting, physical game to the end.

"It was the type of game you expect from St. Mark's. It doesn't matter which is the more polished team when these two teams play, you can toss a coin in the air, because the intensity is so high."

The game opened in typical fashion with relatively even play through the first 20 minutes. The usual crisp passing game by the Sals was disrupted by the tenacious Spartan defense. Both teams had several good scoring chances, until Piecuch scored in the 33rd minute to give St. Mark's a 1-0 lead at intermission.

St. Mark's came out flying in the second half and nearly scored in the 41st minute, but Sals freshman keeper Brandon Dombrowski came up with several big saves.

The Sals tied the score in the 61st minute on a goal by senior Ryan Dougherty.

Mosier said he's the team's "go-to" guy in tough situations.

"He's a real gamer. When the game's on the line, Ryan's the guy that works the hardest, and gets the job done," he said.

Salesianum then picked up some momentum from Dougherty's goal, and got off two high percentage shots. But this time Mangat was equal to the task in making great saves.

In the 68th minute, Dougherty again found the range on a fine crossing pass from junior Ryan Burke, who assisted on both goals.

Salesianum, the defending state champion, improved its record to 11-0-3 on the year.

St. Mark's record drops to 10-

2-2 on the season. The defeat marks the first time in a number of years the Spartans have lost two games in a row.

Spartan coach Tom DiMatteis said he was pleased with his team's effort despite the setback.

"We didn't do anything to lose the game. I'm really proud of them, we've been coming back all year in situations where we're down late in the game. It's just something about these guys, they played great," he said.

UD to induct eight into Athletics Hall of Fame

A group of three women and five men, representing eight different sports, make up the seventh class of the University of Delaware Athletics Hall of Fame announced Monday by UD Director of Athletics Edgar N. Johnson.

This year's class, which includes record-breaking student-athletes and coaches, brings to 60 the total number of former UD athletes, coaches, and friends who have been honored. The Class of 2003 will be inducted into the Hall of Fame in a ceremony Friday, Nov. 14 at the Bob Carpenter Center and will be recognized prior to the Delaware vs. Massachusetts football game Saturday, Nov. 15 at Delaware Stadium. Plaques listing the accomplishments of each of the honorees will hang in the concourse of the Carpenter Center.

The class of 2003 includes three-sport standout Lauren E. Baugher (Delaware '97), record-setting All-American football fullback Daryl W. Brown (Delaware '95), wrestling All-American David G. "Dave" DeWalt (Delaware '86), legendary 36-year baseball head coach Robert M. "Bob" Hannah (Delaware '64), record-setting basketball forward Colleen McNamara Cimador (Delaware '95), standout All-American football lineman Anthony E. "Tony" Stalloni (Delaware '47), women's athletics pioneer and outstanding volleyball coach Barbara L. Viera, and turn-of-the-century baseball pitcher and coach and Baseball Hall of Fame member Victor G. "Vic" Willis. Stalloni and Willis will be honored posthumously.

Jackets still undefeated

► NEWARK, from 18

Cotton's one-yard run, with 7:55 remaining, tied the score at 7-7, and set up Turner's last minute heroics. Cotton had a busy night, collecting 222 yards on 42 carries for the Yellowjackets.

"Sometimes I'm guilty of taking Sam for granted," said Simpson. "He's a 160 lb. junior, and he's a warrior. Sam runs the ball as hard, and tough, and determined, as any running back in the state, and it doesn't matter what size you are." Newark had a good opportunity to score in the first half, but was kept out of the end zone on an interception by the stingy Dragon defense.

Glagow coach Mark DelPercio said he felt the team will respond well to its first loss of the season.

"We'll be fine, it's going to hurt for a while, but we have a good team, and people haven't seen the last of our football team," he said.

This Saturday, Newark takes on William Penn in New Castle. The 1-4 Colonials are coming off a 22-0 loss to conference rival Middletown.

The Dragons will play their first road game in several weeks when they battle Brandywine, also on Saturday afternoon.

Delaware up to No. 3 in the polls

► HENS, from 18

Rhode Island, which had a three-game win streak snapped in last week's last minute 21-17 loss to No. 3 ranked Villanova, fell to 3-4, 2-3 Atlantic 10. The Rams lost three fumbles, threw three interceptions, two by Delaware junior safety Dave Camburn, and gave Delaware the ball at its own 19-yard line after a bad snap on a punt to set up another Blue Hen score. Rhode Island managed just 179 total yards rushing, well under their average of 353.3 yards per game that ranked No. 2 nationally in NCAA I-AA entering the game. Delaware's entered the game ranked fifth nationally in rushing defense at 85.7 yards per game.

Delaware reached a season-high for points, its fourth highest ever in an Atlantic 10 game, and its 463 yards was the second highest total this season. Delaware has now surpassed 400 total yards in eight straight games since last season. Rhode Island suffered its biggest loss vs. a I-AA opponent since a 51-0 setback to Idaho State in the 1981 NCAA I-AA playoffs.

Senior Germaine Bennett led a Delaware ground game that piled up 268 yards with 91 of his own and freshman Niquan Lee added 58, including a 37-yard scoring jaunt up the middle with 12:18 left for his first career touchdown. Kicker Brad Shushman also converted two field goals to lead the UD charge.

UD duo takes A-10 honors

The Atlantic-10 named Hall its Offensive Player of the Week and senior defensive end Shawn Johnson its Defensive Player of the Week.

Hall, a Walter Payton Award candidate, completed 16 of 22 passes for 153 yards and four touchdowns, the most touchdown passes by a Blue Hen since 1998, in just over a half of action. Junior wide receiver G.J. Crescione hauled in two touchdowns, a 19-yarder with 3:20 left in the first half that gave the Hens a 28-0 lead and a 57-yarder from Hall on the Hens' first drive of the second half. Hall also fired a two-yard touchdown pass to fullback Sean Bleiler and a five-yarder to David Boler just 19 seconds left before halftime.

Hall also rushed for 71 yards on six carries. It is the second time this season that Hall has received the A-10 honor.

Johnson led an outstanding defensive effort with seven tackles, including three for losses, a sack, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery. It was the fifth straight game that Johnson has registered a sack.

Hens up to No. 3

If there's any question about which I-AA conference is the toughest, just check out the latest I-AA rankings. There are three Atlantic-10 teams in the top five.

Delaware, Villanova and UMass all moved up in the weekly I-AA poll.

McNeese State remains No. 1 but Western Illinois' loss enabled Villanova to move up to No. 2 and Delaware to move up to No. 3. Montana is now No. 4 and the Minutemen are No. 5.

I-A idea not one that will work at DSU

► POST GAME, from 18

not even a top 35 I-AA program.

Bill Collick and Joe Purzycki worked miracles to make the Hornets something the state, school, alumni and students could be proud of. Now look what you have. (By the way, that was real smooth and classy way to get rid of Ben Blackhall. Maybe you do have some of that I-A professionalism already.)

It would be one thing if this was a temporary lull your program was going through, but I'm having a hard time coming up with all the past seasons that you were jamming standing-room-only crowds of close to 15,000 into that state-of-the-art stadium of yours.

How have those I-A schools like Western Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Louisiana Tech and Boise State done in attracting big money donors and thousands of high-end student applications? It really doesn't happen and those schools have had a little bit of success in their I-A bottom-feeder conferences.

It doesn't happen at schools like that. It doesn't matter if they're I-A or I-AA or II or III.

Take a look at what you have there in Dover. The fact is, you're way closer to being a Division III athletic program than a I-A program.

The only other way to make money at I-A is to prostitute your athletes out for big money away games at Nebraska and Virginia Tech where you can get a payday and your kids will get thumped.

Ahh, that's giving it the old college try.

Let's look at the numbers though. You bring in $77,000. Right now, the cost is over $1 million. A I-A program will cost up to $12 million annually - that's before one new facility is built. It doesn't take a DSU accounting degree to figure out those numbers aren't particularly in your favor.

Yes, I understand there's nothing wrong with dreaming big. But putting your whole institution in financial peril to have a borderline I-A program shows a stunning lack of sense.

I know you have a lot of people whispering in your ear that this is possible, if not probable. I just wanted to make sure you knew that there are some of us out here that think it will be much more difficult than you're being told.

Despite my reservations, I do, however, wish you luck in your endeavor. I'd be happy to be proved wrong.

Cosmo leads to clever promotion on national television

► BACHELOR, from 3

he's always been entrepreneurial, opening a muffin stand in front of his Newark home when he was 11 years old, then while attending UD starting a house-painting business which earned him enough money to secure a loan to open his restaurant when he was 21 years old.

As folks in the area know, German can be aggressive and opportunistic when it comes to his business, which after three years is a success by all accounts with a restaurant, the gelato specialty, catering and distribution.

He also realizes that his zeal and drive can rub people the wrong way at times. He said it makes him feel bad that some might think he's "cocky," and understands that he needs to improve on how people perceive him.

"I'm sure when I was 21 I was probably more cocky and I realize it's not a good attribute, but I also think certain aspects of an entrepreneurial spirit can be taken the wrong way," German said. "I'm just striving to do the best job I can for customers, and I know they and the city have allowed us to be successful."

What he is focused on, and continues to push, is his business, and by extension downtown Newark, which he said he loves and where he plans on staying. He's always first to get involved in anything to do with downtown, supports a variety of organizations, and isn't afraid to say what he thinks.

Just two weeks ago he spoke to the Newark City Council about a planned repaving project next summer. He suggested the work begin at 9 p.m. instead of 6 p.m., because it would have less impact on businesses. German then volunteered to lead a task force to make it happen.

As part of the Cosmopolitan promotion, German and other bachelors were flown to New York for a segment on "Good Morning America" with Diane Sawyer. But German was thinking about more than promoting his own looks. He planned ahead and lugged a large container of gelato (similar to ice cream) because he knew the bachelor's segment was being followed by a segment on Italian cooking. First, he kept the Italian dessert cool in a New York hotel restaurant overnight, then packed it in his friend's refrigerator, although they kept the door closed with rubber bands.

While awaiting his appearance at "Good Morning America," the tub of gelato was by his side. Before his segment he asked the producer if he could take a sample of his gelato to Diane Sawyer as a segway into the Italian segment.

"The producer thought it was a great idea," German said. "So, I go out there and I was only supposed to talk with Diane, but couldn't resist asking if Charles (Gibson) wanted a taste too. So then he came over, I was able to say something about my restaurant and Newark, and it worked out real well I think."

Historic mill area hosts Revolution

By ELIZABETH COE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

AFTER sustaining heavy damage caused by September's flooding and a hurricane, the Wilmington & Western Railroad and historic Greenbank Mill, both near Red Clay Creek at Kirkwood Highway and Newport Gap Pike are in operation once again.

The Sept. 15 creek flooding and the Sept. 18 and 19 Hurricane Isabel devastated both historical institutions.

The railroad suffered about $5 million in damage, while Greenbank Mill had an estimated $300,000 in damage.

■ The railroad

About 70 percent of the railroad's 10.2 mile track was washed away or unusable, including the destruction of six wooden trestles.

Executive Director David Ludlow said that weeks after the damage the non-profit group's board committed to getting at least a portion of the operation up and running, and eventually rehabilitating the entire system.

On Oct. 18, the railroad started toward those goals, with limited operations of the Greenbank Local Trains to Wilmere and Brandywine Springs Park.

The train will operate through Nov. 16, departing Saturdays and Sundays every 30 minutes between 12:30 and 3 p.m. Costs are $5 for adults, $4 for seniors and $3 for children.

Also, the Santa Claus Express Trains will begin weekend operation Nov. 22, while the Holiday Night Trains will run from Dec. 26-29.

The railroad is still seeking donations and volunteers to help with the overhaul.

For information call 302-998-1930.

■ The mill

The Sept. 15 Red Clay Creek flood was also devastating to the historic mill property, with water rising to chest-high levels in the first floor of the gristmill and textile mill areas.

But the mill is back on line starting this weekend, with a Revolutionary War re-enactment from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 25 and 26.

American Revolutionary War re-enactors from the Cecil County Militia and the 6th Maryland Regiment will be joined by a British Regiment, the 84th Royal Highland Immigrants as they camp, socialize and train at Greenbank.

During the event, visitors can participate in a variety of activities including militia drills, bullet casting, games, colonial cooking and mill tours. Visitors can also learn about the many weapons and military strategies used during the Revolutionary War.

This living history event is being held in conjunction with the 6th annual Make-A-Difference Days, co-sponsored by local Girl Scouts.

Admission to the event is free with the contribution of new sample-sized toiletries, towels, or washcloths.

Items received will be donated to the Ministry of Caring.

Meanwhile, on Sat., Oct. 25 at 7 p.m. Greenbank Mill will host a performance of early American music by David and Ginger Hildebrand at Brandywine Springs Elementary School, 2916 Duncan Road. Proceeds will go to the mill.

The Hildebrands are nationally known for their concerts and educational programs, which use a blend of music, stories and discussion to create a vivid sense of cultural history for audience members.

Tickets for the musical performance are $25 for Greenbank members, and $30 for non-members. Proceeds from this event will assist in repairing flood damage to the mill.

St. Anne's Episcopal School

An Independent Episcopal Pre-Kindergarten Through Eighth Grade Day School in Middletown, Delaware

IT MAKES SENSE FOR STUDENTS TO APPLY THEIR LESSONS TO EACH OTHER, TO THE WORLD AROUND THEM AND TO REAL LIFE.

One of the most exciting aspects about St. Anne's is the integrative and thematic curriculum. Within one school year, the subjects are connected across multiple content areas. For example, when the fourth grade is studying U.S. history in social studies, they may be reading poetry by Robert Frost or "Sara, Plain & Tall" by Patricia MacLachlan in Language Arts. They might be exposed to Native American artifacts or masters such as the Wyeths in art class, while replicating early Edison inventions in the science lab. Students pursue these studies within the context of traditional fourth grade programs, which include analytical writing and advanced math skills, Spanish, science, physical education, music, religion and much more.

Get free tickets now to Nov. 18 Air Force band concert

FOR the second time this year, the Newark Post is joining forces with the Newark Morning Rotary Club and the Christina School District to bring the United States Heritage of America band here.

Free tickets are now available on a first come, first served basis for the 7:30 p.m. concert on Tuesday, Nov. 18, in the Glasgow High School auditorium.

Tickets can be picked up, four to a person, in the offices of the Newark Post weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets are also available the same hours at the paper's sister publication, The Cecil Whig, 601 Bridge St., Elkton, Md.

It is important to note that today through next Thursday, Oct. 30, the tickets are being distributed at the Post office in the Robscott Building, 153 E.

Chestnut Hill Road. Beginning Monday, Nov. 3, the paper's offices will be relocated to Madeline Crossing, 168 Elkton Road, Newark, next to the former Lipsmackers location.

Tickets will also be available next week at three Happy Harry's locations including Suburban Plaza in Newark and Four Seasons just across Rt. 896 from Glasgow High.

Last May, more than 800 persons filled the GHS auditorium to hear the Heritage Of America band.

"They were so impressed with the response of the audience here that they offered to return" for the Nov. 18 concert, said Jim Streit, publisher of the Newark Post and a member of the Newark Morning Rotary Club, which is co-sponsoring the event along with the Christina School District.

Rotary club president Dr. James Kent agreed the first concert was an enjoyable event.

"Our Rotarians had a great time ushering, parking cars and sponsoring the Heritage of America band concert last spring," said Kent. "Sponsoring a free patriotic concert is a natural part of Rotary's commitment to community service."

The USAF Rhythm in Blue Jazz Ensemble is the official jazz group of the USAF Heritage of America Band.

The dynamic 18-member ensemble performs the best in jazz music from the classics of Duke Ellington, Fletcher Henderson, Count Basie, Stan Kenton, and Glenn Miller to the exciting contemporary sounds of artists like Pat Metheny, Toshiko Akiohi, and Bob Mintzer.

Rhythm in Blue skillfully brings this uniquely American music to over 50,000 people each year, said ensemble spokesman Sgt. Kerry Moffit.

Rhythm in Blue has produced such highly acclaimed compact disc recordings as "Rockin' in Rhythm", a tribute to Duke Ellington, and a video entitled "Air Combat Command Remembers Glenn Miller."

While the Nov. 18 program is not yet finalized, Moffit believes it will include the band's popular salute to Glenn Miller and big band music, as well as patriotic offerings.

Rhythm in Blue shares in the USAF Heritage of America

Band's vital mission of enhancing esprit de corps in military troops, promoting America's national heritage, and building and sustaining patriotism in America through musical presentations throughout the mid-Atlantic states.

"They are in constant demand to perform public concerts, jazz festivals, and music clinics for aspiring young musicians, consistently demonstrating the USAF Heritage of America Band's commitment to musical excellence," Moffit said.

Jazz ensemble director Master Sgt. Peter E. Aiello Jr. is a native of West Babylon, NY, and holds a Bachelor of Music Education degree from the Shenandoah Conservatory of Music in Winchester, Va.

Since enlisting in the Air Force Band Career Field in 1984, Sgt. Aiello has been assigned to Einsiedlerhof AS Germany, and Langley Air Force Base in Virginia, where the Heritage of America band is headquartered.

In 1997 and 1999 Sgt. Aiello was selected as the United States Air Force Outstanding Band Non Commissioned Officer of the Year and is the only two-time recipient of this award since its inception.

Area offers Halloween happenings

ago to give people a little spook and a lot of history as they explore the cemeteries of Cecil County.

"We've done tours in Maryland all up and down the peninsula, but this is the first time we have done one at St. Stephen's and this is the lowest in the [Cecil] county we have done one," Okonowicz said. "This cemetery has one of the best tombstones I've ever seen. It dates from 1754, has a story and poem about the mariner buried there and then at the bottom there is a skull and bat wings."

The two take about six to nine months to plan out and research a tour. Dixon spends his time in the books looking up details about the area, church and the people buried in the cemetery.

Parade steps off at 3 p.m.

▶ PARADE, from 1

and ends at North College Avenue and Main.

As of Oct. 17 there were 41 parade participants, including your usual assemblage of politicians, non-profit organizations, school bands and dance groups. There are also five designated "floats" for the Mother Hubbard Child Care Center, Kindercare Meadowood, Kappa Delta Pi, DAP Pushmobile Derby and Girl Scout Troop 1254.

Later there will be awards in five categories.

Following the parade children are encouraged to trick or treat along Main Street as businesses will be handing out goodies for all, in addition to being open for business. The Main Street will open to traffic about 5 p.m.

Okonowicz takes on the task of pulling together ghost stories and interpreting inscriptions and the symbols on the graves.

"If we said we were going to give a history lecture in a classroom, we would probably get about 12 people," Okonowicz said. "But when we have the history and ghost stories in a cemetery, we can get about 100 people," Okonowicz said.

The cost for the tour is $10 in advance and $12 the day of the event. The proceeds will benefit St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. For more information or to reserve a spot call 410-275-1291.

Terrifying twists, turns

The usual fire engines, equipment and sterile atmosphere of the South Chesapeake City Firehouse has been transformed into a Maze of Terror. Carl Chetta and his wife Jill are the ones to thank for the screams and scares.

The couple moved to the Chesapeake City area about a year and a half ago and this is their second year creating the Maze of Terror.

"This year, the maze is longer, there are more twists and turns and new props," Jill said.

The sounds of spine tingling screams and chilling chants fill the air as maze-goers make their way past crazed clowns, the Chainlink Maniac and the furry, 13-foot tall creature known as Pandemonium. The maze is full of animated frighteners as well as a number of live actors lurking around corners. Trap doors and secret windows make it easy for scarers to move from spot to spot to surprise unsuspecting innocents.

Carl designed the intricate maze to fit within the confines of the firehouse and still achieve the optimum amount of scares.

The 23-year Halloween industry veteran specializes in animatronics, builds and patents his own props, creates original, haunting soundtracks and opened two haunted houses that are still running in New York.

Those who are afraid to test their fear levels in the Maze of Terror, can take a hayride through the woods or enjoy the carnival rides.

A day maze show is offered for younger children on Saturdays from noon to 5 p.m. and Sundays 2 to 5 p.m. The scares are tamed down and the music is switched to non-threatening holiday tunes for the day show. But those who attend the night show are fair game.

The Maze of Terror is open Fridays and Saturdays from 7 to 11 p.m. and Sundays and every day of Halloween week from 7 to 10 p.m. The cost is $5 for the day show and $7 for the night show. Call for information at 410-885-5448.

Veteran haunters

Frightland, now in its seventh year in Middletown, Del., will continue to provide a variety of ways to get scared, but has also changed it up a bit with new characters, themes and longer-lasting attractions.

"We really lengthened the haunted hayride, added more to that, and we changed the barns around," said George Long, one of the five partners of Frightland.

By day, Frightland is a Fall Fest for the entire family with carnival rides, country hayrides, crafts and more. But the freaks come out at night and the innocent looking farm structures become the source of scares and terror.

Idalia Manor is one of the haunted attractions. But this home is not cozy and inviting.

"The theme is that Dr. Idalia lived there and strangled his wife many years ago and that he's still in there," Long said. The Barn of Horror is another haunted attraction.

The haunted hayride takes the brave through the wooded area, past different scary scenes and into the hands of creepy creatures. Then passengers are dropped into the Scarecrow's Revenge Corn Maze where they have to find their way out.

Frightland's Fall Fest is open on Saturdays and Sundays from noon to 6 p.m. The cost for all daytime activities is $12 for ages 3 to 59, $5 for ages 60 and older and free for children 2 and under. The scary stuff takes place on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays at 7 p.m. The haunted attractions will also be open the Thursday night before Halloween.

A FrightPass can be purchased for $22 to allow entry to several events. The Haunted Hayride and Corn Maze are $15, entry to the Barn of Horrors and Idalia Manor is $15 and unlimited carnival rides $13. A speed pass is available for $32 and allows no waiting in line.

The farm is located at 309 Pt. Penn Rd. in Middletown, Del.

For more information, call 302-378-VAMP.

Family haunts

Zombies, werewolves, McGinnis ancestors and other creatures of the night have made a home on the trail of terror that leads to the Hauntings at McGinnis Hill. The haunted attraction sits off of Pulaski Highway between B&H Auto and Maryland Portable Concrete and is Cecil County's newest addition to spooky spots.

"Hauntings at McGinnis Hill is a walk-through trail that starts at dark and it's a quarter of a mile long. To our knowledge, it's the longest trail anywhere in the local area," Cindy McGinnis said. "The whole trail is in wooded areas and there are about 25 different scenes along the way."

Part of the inspiration for the haunted attraction also stems from the "odd little things" that happen around the house where Cindy and Jeff live, next to the haunted trail.

"Since my husband and I moved into this house, there have been little things that go on. It's nothing scary really, just weird," Cindy said. "The doorbell will ring and no one will be there. We always hear one door opening and closing and there is no one there. Just odd little things like that."

The Hauntings at McGinnis Hill is open Thursday through Sunday at 6 p.m. The first tour starts when it gets dark and the place closes at 10 p.m. The cost is $10, and $5 for those under 48 inches.

For more information, call 410-620-1169 or 410-392-4199.

Burn group honors Aetna's Austin

▶ AWARD, from 15

2000. In 1996 he was inducted into the Delaware Fire Service Hall of Fame and is vice chair of the National Board on Fire Service Professional Qualifications.

Austin began his career in fire service at age 16 when he joined a volunteer fire department in Winchester, Va., where he lived with his parents.

"There's a great satisfaction that comes with belonging to the fire service and being able to help other people," he said.

Along with his position at Aetna, he serves as Public Affairs Liaison in State Farm's Federal Affairs Office.

He has served on the Burn Foundation's Board of Directors for 10 years.

The Burn Foundation is a Philadelphia-based organization that serves the greater Delaware Valley burn treatment centers, Burn centers like the Nathan Speare Regional Burn Treatment Center, and the Crozer-Chester Medical Center, which serve Delaware, work with the Burn Foundation to provide patient care, education and sponsor community programs to help spread awareness about how to prevent serious burn injuries.

The nonprofit foundation was formed in 1973 and is supported by a three-state network of volunteer organizations, corporate and individual donations and government grants.

Newark resident Anita Rose Tatarelli Aley died on Sunday, Oct. 5, 2003.

Mrs. Aley, 57, was born, raised and educated in Chester, Pa.

She graduated from Chester High School in 1964.

She most recently lived in Newark but was a longtime resident of Claymont, and Bethel Township, Pa.

She was an office manager for Ardco of Chester for many years and a former member of Concord Baptist Church in Wilmington.

She is survived by her sons, Carl Aley Jr. of Collegeville, Pa., and Steven Aley of Plymouth Meeting, Pa.; sister, Kathy Dinan of Ohio; and two grandchildren.

Services were held at the Nolan Fidal Funeral Home in Chester, Pa.

Burial was held privately.

John P. Zikakis, Ph.D., UD professor emeritus

Newark area resident John P. Zikakis died on Sunday, Oct. 5, 2003, after a valiant fight with cancer.

Mr. Zikakis, 70, was a professor emeritus at the University of Delaware.

After retiring he moved to Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

His zest for life and thirst for knowledge in many areas, plus his desire to help people gave him joy. He shared his vast knowledge freely and felt rewarded to see others reach their full potential.

Relatives and friends depended on his well-researched and solid opinions on health, finances and/or emotional matters.

He guided his daughter, Salome, into making the right decisions in her career as an attorney and was proud to see her develop into a precious and well-cultivated human being.

He loved and respected his son-in-law, Bill Parady, and treasured his grandchildren.

His world travels with his wife added to his spiritual growth and fulfilled his constant obsession for learning.

He is survived by his wife of 45 years, KiKi.; daughter Salome and her husband Bill Parady; and two grandchildren.

Services were held at the St. Demetrios Greek Orthodox Church in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Melvin E. Wright Sr., worked for Chrysler

Newark area resident Melvin E. Wright Sr. died on Tuesday, Oct. 7, 2003, after a short illness.

Mr. Wright, 69, was born in Wilmington.

He retired from Chrysler in 1987 and was a member of UAW Local 1183.

He was an avid NASCAR fan and loved everyone, especially his grandchildren, and will be sadly missed by all who knew him.

He is survived by his brothers, Roy Wright of Delaware, and Vaughn Wright of Florida; children, Teresa Docherty and her husband Christopher of New Castle, Melvin

Charlesa A. Lowell, manager of Newark library, led staff through extensive renovations

CHARLESA A. LOWELL, 52, of Newark, died Monday, Oct. 20, 2003 at home.

Mrs. Lowell was branch manager of the Newark Free Library during a major renovation project that was completed in January 2003. Her friends and colleagues said Tuesday it was her dedication and commitment to the project that helped her see it through to completion despite battling cancer.

She was a member of the Newark Morning Rotary and the Delaware Library Association. She enjoyed her time with the "Soup Group."

She completed her undergraduate degree at Oklahoma State University and completed her graduate degree at the University of Oklahoma.

She was strongly committed to libraries and their positive effect on the lives of people. Prior to working in Newark, Mrs. Lowell was the first library director of Kent County Library in Kent County and the Delaware Deputy State Librarian.

Diana Brown, manager of libraries in New Castle County, said Lowell was the most committed and bravest public servant she ever worked with.

"She knew the cancer was serious but she wanted to see the library open and I can tell you she pushed me to make it the best it could be," Brown said. "She was there every day, pushing the process forward and making sure the public had its say. Every time we [county library officials] would run into a diversion, she would keep us on track."

Gene Danneman, operator of the Copy Maven and a close friend, said Mrs. Lowell's "enthusiasm for life and the pleasure she found in every experience" were most impressive. She said those are the qualities she will miss most.

Mrs. Lowell is survived by her husband, Howard P. Lowell of Newark; son, Garrett R. Timmons of Las Cruces, N.M.; mother and step-father, Lovina and Charles Thompson of Independence, Mo.; brother, Michael Gatson of Independence, Mo.; and two sisters, Regina Smith of Noble, Okla., and Hope Phan of Wichita, Kan.

A Celebration of Life service will be held at 8 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 24, at R. T. Foard and Jones Funeral Home, 122 W. Main St., Newark. Friends may call from 7 to 9 p.m. Further services will be private at the convenience of the family.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Friends of the Newark Free Library and/or the ACLU, both in care of the funeral home.

E. Wright Jr. and John W. Wright, both of New Castle, Carolyn Townsley and her husband John of Pennsylvania, and Daniel J. Wright and his companion Ton'a Fuss of Maryland; 15 grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren.

Services were held at the Gebhart Funeral Home in New Castle.

Burial was in the Gracelawn Memorial Park, also in New Castle.

Edward E. Wolfe, Vietnam vet, lab tech

Bear resident Edward E. Wolfe died on Tuesday, Oct. 7, 2003.

Mr. Wolfe, 58, had been employed as a laboratory technician for Dade Behring.

Mr. Wolfe was a dedicated husband and father and an avid hunter and sportsman.

He served his country in the U.S. Army during the Vietnam War.

He is survived by his wife of 30 years, Susan M. Wolfe; daughter, Erica Wolfe and her husband Joseph Medora of Middletown; mother, Lillian Rynkowski of Newark; brother, Henry Rynkowski of Milford; and mother-in-law, Ella Mallow.

Services were held at the Gebhart Funeral Home in New Castle.

Burial was in the Delaware Veterans Memorial Cemetery in Bear.

Eddie Woodley, WWII veteran, supervisor at Frankford Arsenal

Newark resident Eddie Woodley died on Wednesday, Oct. 8, 2003.

Mr. Woodley, 82, was born in Coila, Mississippi.

He retired as a supervisor in the supply division at Frankford Arsenal in Philadelphia.

Mr. Woodley was a World War II veteran and was honorably discharged in 1946.

He is survived by his loving wife, Vernice Woodley; stepdaughter, Veronica and her husband Capes Riley of Newark; brother, Arto and sister, Rosetta Woodley, both of Toledo, Ohio; two grandsons; and several nieces, nephews, and other relatives. Services were held at the Congo Funeral Home in Wilmington.

Interment was in the Rolling Green Memorial Park in West Chester, Pa.

Harry T. Hurst, worked for News Journal

Newark area resident Harry T. Hurst died on Wednesday, Oct. 8, 2003.

Mr. Hurst, 54, was a computer technician with The News Journal for 34 years.

He was an active member of the Bear Community Church and a ham radio operator.

He is survived by his wife, Eilene C. "Logan" Hurst; son, Andrew L. Hurst; daughter, Jennifer M. Hurst, all of Wilmington, and daughter, Amy L. Krishnamoorthy of San Jose, Calif.; father, John Hurst of Wilmington; and a brother, Edward Hurst of Wilmington.

Services were held at the Meccery Memorial Chapel in Wilmington.

Burial was in the Crumpton Cemetery in Crumpton, Md.

Samuel E. Tomblin, flew bombers in WWII

Newark resident Samuel E. Tomblin died on Wednesday, Oct. 8, 2003. Mr. Tomblin, 85, was called "Sam" by his family and friends.

He was living at the Millcroft Senior Living Community.

Mr. Tomblin was a salesman for Brandywine Chrysler Plymouth, retiring in 1977 after 18 years of service.

He was a master sergeant in the Army Air Corps and served in the Pacific Theatre and with the 42nd Bombardment Group during World War II.

Mr. Tomblin was an Honorable Kentucky Colonel, a member of the Civil Air Patrol, and a member of the Masonic Lodge 375.

He is survived by his wife of 54 years, Clara M. Tomblin; sons, Don E. Tomblin and his wife Maureen of Elkton, Md., and Mark S. Tomblin and his wife Donna of Middletown; daughters, Carolyn A. Warner and her husband Danny of Norfolk, Va., Toni J. Kosturko and her husband David of Warrington, Va., and Terri L. Pedrick and her husband Dale of Middletown, Pa.

He is also survived by his sisters, Beatrice M. Waldren of Huntington, W. Va., Betty McIntyre of Lexington, Ky.; 13 grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Services were held at the Doherty Funeral Home in Pike Creek. Interment was in Hickory Grove Cemetery.

Newark resident Mildred M. Briggs Downs died on Friday, Oct. 10, 2003.

Mrs. Downs, 83, was a food service worker in the Red Clay School District from 1965 to 1980.

Mrs. Downs was a member of Liberty Lodge 10 I.O.O.F. in Hockessin, the Centre Grange 11 in Centerville, and Red Clay Creek Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by her son, Constant Joseph Briggs Jr. of Wilmington; daughter, Virginia M. Lunski of Newark; stepdaughter, Carole Flocco of Wilmington; brothers, George Grandel of Wilmington, and Harry Grandel of Claymont; sister, Dora Grey of Wilmington; and six grandchildren.

Services were held at the McCrery Memorial Chapel in Wilmington.

Interment was in Gracelawn Memorial Park in New Castle.

Robert M. Laws, baseball star, contractor

Newark resident Robert M. Laws died on Sunday, Oct. 12, 2003, of respiratory failure.

Mr. Laws, 77, was called "Bobby" by his family and friends.

He was raised on dairy farms in Glasgow and Bear and he attended Newark High School.

Mr. Laws was a lifelong baseball enthusiast.

In 1949 and 1950 he pitched for Glasgow in the Newark-Kent-Cecil league.

In 1950, he pitched a one-hitter against Clayton, winning the league championship for Glasgow.

In 1985, Mr. Laws was inducted into the Cecil Harford Oldtimers Baseball Association Hall of Fame.

Mr. Laws worked for 35 years in construction contracting.

He was foreman on numerous projects, including portions of I-95, the Baltimore beltway, and countless residential site developments in Delaware and Maryland.

He attended Trinity Episcopal Church in Elkton, Md., and was a member of the Christiana Volunteer Fire Company.

He coached youth baseball league for many years and he enjoyed tending to a large vegetable garden.

Mr. Laws was a devoted husband, father and grandfather.

He loved cheering for his grandchildren in their sports and other activities.

He is survived by his wife of 53 years, Jane Boulden Laws; children, R. Dennis Laws and his wife Susanne of Mechanicsburg, Pa., Patti L. Sandy and her husband Chuck of Camden, and Kevin G. Laws and his wife Robin of Elkton; brothers, Norman Laws of Delaware City, and Earl Laws of Elsmere; sisters, Annabelle Weldin, Janet Abernathy and Shirley Amato, all of Newark; 10 grandchildren; and one great-granddaughter.

Services were held at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Earleville, Md., and at the Gee Funeral Home in Elkton, Md.

Interment was in the St. Dennis Cemetery in Galena, Md.

Blue Hens to see how good they really are

By MARTY VALANIA

SPECIAL TO THE ROUTE 40 FLIER

Up to No. 3 in the I-AA rankings, the University of Delaware football team gets a free shot to see how good it really is this week against Navy.

This isn't the best year to have to go to Annapolis. The Midshipmen won just a total of three games in the previous three years, but this season have compiled a 5-2 record through seven games, including a victory over then No. 25 Air Force.

Navy also has victories over Vanderbilt and Rice and, with a season-ending victory over winless Army, could win its first Commander-in-Chief Trophy since 1981.

"This is a different animal," said Delaware coach K.C. Keeler. "Our kids are excited and should have a lot of fun. It's their Homecoming, there'll be over 30,000 there and we'll take a ton of fans down there too. It'll be a raucous Division I-A atmosphere. We're going there to win."

Navy, under second-year coach Paul Johnson, is playing for a lot more than just a Homecoming.

"They have bowl aspirations," Keeler said. "Losing to I-AA Delaware won't cut it."

Navy's last bowl appearance came in 1996 when it went 9-3 and beat California in the Aloha Bowl.

Johnson is used to his team's winning. He won 50 games during a four-year span at Georgia Southern before moving to Annapolis.

"Paul Johnson is one of the outstanding football coaches in America," Keeler said admiringly. "I think he's one of just three or four coaches to win 50 games over a four-year period like that."

Like he did at Georgia Southern, Johnson's offense will run the triple option. It is directed by senior quarterback Craig Candeto, who rushed for 151 yards in last week's 38-6 victory over Rice.

The Midshipmen lead the nation in rushing by a wide margin, rushing for 321 yards per game, well ahead of second place Air Force at 294.

"He's a great athlete and does a great job," Keeler said of Candeto. "They also have the ability to pass the ball efficiently."

That passing ability is one of the things that differentiates Navy's offense from a similar Rhode Island offense.

"We got to practice against the triple option against Rhode Island, but this is a little different," Keeler said. "They have a bigger offensive line a good full-back and a great quarterback."

They also have the luxury of seeing how we're going to defend it after watching us against Rhode Island."

While this is a big game for the Delaware players, Keeler stressed that it is not as important as an Atlantic-10 game.

"The difference this week is that it's not for the Atlantic-10 championship," the coach said. "We won't rush anybody back from injury to play this week. If it was an A-10 game we might."

Keeler also doesn't think it will be a problem in getting his team ready to play.

"I don't think motivation will be a problem this week," he said. "The nice thing about this one is that when you're done, you just move on to the next one. We just feel this is a great opportunity for us. We win this, it's a huge, huge win for us. We don't, we just move on."

Blue Hen Football 2003

Corey's Kids enters its third straight season this fall of taking groups of young boys and girls ages 13 and under to each of the 7 Delaware Football home games. Corey's Kids, founded by Mike Corey, the Voice of the Delaware Blue Hens on the New River 94.7, along with the University of Delaware and the area businesses, have teamed up once again to offer various organizations the opportunity to take their group to see a Blue Hen football game, and enjoy the many different activities and events planned throughout the day which include:

- Transportation provided by Creative Travel
- A Corey's Kid T-Shirt from New Image
- A free meal at the Old Country Buffet
- Football Toss to win additional prizes
- Food Vouchers at the game courtesy of U of D Concessions

If you are involved in a group or organization or know of a group of young boys and girls that would enjoy the opportunity to attend a Delaware football game, please send your group name and contact information to:

This new sedan puts its own spin on style, features, performance

By MALCOLM GUNN
WHEELBASE COMMUNICATIONS

Mitsubishi is spicing up its automotive lineup and the new mid-size Galant appears to be one of the tastier items on the menu.

No longer in the business of producing mere niche-market vehicles, the company's designers and engineers are striving to be considered in the same breath as the big-volume sellers — Toyota, Honda, Mazda and Nissan — and they're doing it by applying distinctive Mitsubishi-specific styling to the entire fleet. They're also making sure that performance lovers won't be disappointed.

The 2004 Galant was designed in California, an almost mandatory mecca these days for just about every auto manufacturer. It must be that the salt air, warm breezes and laid-back lifestyle is conducive to unleashing waves of creativity among the industry artists. Whatever it is, it's working just fine for Mitsubishi.

The attractive sheetmetal is a blend of both new and been-there-done-that shapes that instantly outdate the previous Galant. The mildly protruding nose is a cue taken from the Outlander and Endeavor sport-utility vehicles, while the beveled fenders can be found on the sporty Eclipse as well as the Montero off-roader. From the side, there are cues that appear lifted from a page of the Nissan Altima text book.

No matter the influence, the new Galant is dimensionally superior to the outgoing model in terms of overall length, width, wheelbase and passenger volume. The only area that has suffered in the transition is trunk space, which is slightly less than before. The larger platform has also been made significantly stiffer in a move to aid overall ride and handling.

The Galant's reworked interior is also a recent Outlander/Endeavor knock-off, with a central metallic-colored control stack and chunky spoked steering wheel protruding from the dash. Coupled with the easy-to-read overlapping circular gauges, the effect is somewhat macho, but in a sturdy and inviting sort of way.

Also inviting is what's available in the powertrain department. Base DE and ES sedans are equipped with a 2.4-liter SOHC four-cylinder engine that produces 160 horsepower, 20 more than the outgoing car's output. A switch to variable valve timing is the major reason for the added thrust.

More enticing still is the 3.8-liter SOHC V6 stuffed into the Galant LS and top-dog GTS. Delivering an impressive 230 horsepower and 250 lb.-ft. of torque, the optional motor is one of the largest in its class in terms of displacement but just shy of the 240-horse rating posted by the Honda Accord V6 or the 245 horsepower cranked out by the 3.5-liter-V6-powered Nissan Altima.

As was the case with the previous Galant, a four-speed automatic remains the only transmission choice.

As for content, even the base DE version includes air conditioning, keyless remote entry, tilt steering, six-way adjustable driver's seat, four-speaker CD-equipped audio system, four-wheel disc brakes and power windows, locks and outside mirrors.

At the other end of the scale, the V6-powered GTS arrives loaded with climate control, 270-watt sound system, 17-inch alloy wheels, stiffer suspension, rear spoiler, leather and maple wood-trimmed interior and power driver's seat, to name just a few premium ingredients.

Since the new Galant is arriving in early fall, final pricing has yet to be announced, however, count on it being close to the 2003 model's $18,000 starting point. That will come as good news for mid-size sedan shoppers looking for a quick, comfortable and feature-laden package that will stand out against the landscape instead of blending into it.

SPEC SHEET

2004 Galant

- ★ Four-door mid-size sedan, available in DE, ES, LS and GTS versions.
- ★ 2.4-liter SOHC I4 and 3.8-liter SOHC V6 produce 160 and 230 horsepower, respectively.
- ★ Four-speed automatic transmission.
- ★ The new-for-2004 Galant has been enlarged in nearly every direction from the old model and is now much more eye-catching.
- ★ Both base four-cylinder, as well as optional V6 engines produce significantly more power than the old Galant and are now a match for most of the mid-sized competitors.
- ★ An extensive range of standard content combined with a reasonable sticker price adds to the Galant's appeal.
- ★ Safety features: Front airbags; side-impact airbags (V6); traction control (V6).
- ★ MPG (city/hwy): n/a
- ★ Base price: $19,000 (est.)

Porsche 959

This outrageous exotic, with nearly limitless power, is still one the most formidable sports cars ever built

By MALCOLM GUNN
WHEELBASE COMMUNICATIONS

How does one describe the indescribable?

When it comes to the Porsche 959, you could pull out every superlative and every piece of hyperbole from your verbal arsenal... and it still might not be enough.

This little-known but highly touted hyper-Porsche turned the 1980s definition of high performance completely upside down with its futuristic approach to speed, handling and computer-controlled hardware. It was a car that was light years ahead of its time and one that would become the benchmark for all Porsches that followed.

Conceived, designed and built in the 1980s to go racing in a new factory-experimental class, Porsche also set out to build about 200 copies (as mandated by the rules) of the 959 for public consumption.

Of course, racing had been in Porsche's blood since the company's modest beginnings shortly after the Second World War. From its earliest 'bathtub' cars to the modern-day 911, all models have benefitted from the lessons learned on the track.

The beginning point of the 959 was the mid-1980s 911 Carrera, a competent sports machine, but not aerodynamically suited for high-speed competition. To address the problem, all-new bodywork was designed, including a smoother nose and a flat spoiler that extended across the rear deck. Bulging Kevlar-reinforced fiberglass fenders and protruding rocker panels allowed for extra-wide wheels and tires. Under the body, a special belly pan was attached to further enhance air flow.

The basis for any successful racing Porsche lies beneath the rear decklid and the company went flat-out to develop its flat-six-cylinder powerplant for maximum velocity. Displacing just 2.8 liters, the horizontally opposed DOHC engine featured twin turbochargers and intercoolers, three separate cooling systems, six oil pumps and 12 fuel injectors. With 444 horsepower and 369 lb.-ft. of torque, the 959 made 230 ponies more than the production car upon which it was based.

A six-speed gearbox, featuring an ultra-low first gear for getting under way on off-road terrain, was standard. Dropping the clutch in second gear was the norm when starting off on paved surfaces.

To give the car suitable torque at low speeds, the turbos operated in sequence. At 4,000 r.p.m. or lower, only one turbo was working. Above that range, the other turbo would kick in and the engine would rocket to its 7,800 r.p.m. redline.

The performance numbers generated by the 959 were staggering. They still are, even by today's standards. Zero-to-60 m.p.h. flashed by in about 3.8 seconds, with 100 m.p.h. occurring in less than 9 seconds. Top speed was 195 m.p.h.

Porsche's success in breaking the four-second zero-60-m.p.h. barrier can largely be attributed to the 959's all-wheel-drive system that virtually eliminated traction loss from a dead stop.

The amount of power directed to the axles depended upon which one of four driver-controlled settings was selected: Dry; Wet; Ice; and Traction. The latter locked up the front clutch and rear differential for maximum off-road grip and was successfully employed when early test versions of the 959 finished first — not once, but twice — in one of the world's toughest automotive contests, the 6,500-mile off-road Paris-Dakar (France to Senegal) rally.

Other complex ground-breaking items included hydraulic ride-height, twin shock absorbers and coil springs positioned at each wheel, and a tire-pressure monitoring system used with low-profile Bridgestone run-flat rubber.

Two trim levels were offered: Comfort, which included air conditioning, ride-height control and power windows and seats; and Sport, containing none of the Comfort's extras, which provided a 125-pound advantage.

There were a number of major obstacles that stood in the way of prospective 959 buyers when the car finally went on sale in 1987. First was its prohibitive $227,000 price tag. Second, the company was very particular about who be allowed to buy it. Only regular customers that were deemed important or mature enough to handle the 959's awesome power were given a spot in a line that was only 230 buyers long. They also had to promise not to sell for at least six months.

Further complicating matters was the fact that the car could not be certified for use on North American roads (although a few vehicles managed to sneak in under the noses of government watch dogs).

Although the closest to a 959 that most of us will ever come are the pictures printed on this page, the benefits of this true supercar can be found in many of today's Porsches. In fact, the 400-horsepower, all-wheel-drive mid-1990s 911 Turbo is a direct descendant of the 959 program.

More than 15 years after the last of these hand-built rear-engine monsters left the factory, 959 values continue to appreciate, regularly breaching the $250,000 barrier.

Such is the demand for this high-tech hall-of-fame Porsche that rewrote the exotic-car book and left behind an impressive technological legacy. ■
