Trafficking in trains

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

WHILE RAIL GIANTS, Conrail Inc., CSX Corp., and Norfolk Southern Corp., continue their legal maneuverings in Pennsylvania, residents and officials in Newark, Del., worry about the possible results of a rail merger.

"Allowing CSX to increase rail freight traffic would only cause more disturbance to local traffic patterns in an already disrupted college town," said state representative Timothy Boulden (R-Newark).

The CSX rail freight line runs through Newark past the developments of Stafford and Lumbrook, over a bridge at Capital Trail, along Cleveland Avenue behind the Newark Shopping Center, the University of Delaware, and the Deer Park Hotel, and through residential neighborhoods such as Cherry Hill Manor and Abbotsford before exiting into Maryland.

Philadelphia-based Conrail negotiated a possible merger with CSX of Richmond, Va., in October. The reported $8.5 billion proposal was apparently acceptable to Conrail's stockholders until another Virginia conglomerate, Norfolk Southern, entered the arena with a $10 billion offer of its own.

Conrail shareholders are presently considering the pros and cons of both offers; but ultimately, the decision about who will acquire Conrail is likely to be settled in court.

There might be an increase in the freight trains that already rumble through Newark on the CSX rail line behind the Deer Park Tavern if a planned merger takes place between CSX Corp. and Conrail, Inc.

Meanwhile, areas like Newark, where both Conrail and CSX already operate, worry about the impact of a combined company.

According to industry analysts, the demand for freight service in the northeast is so intense that a combined Conrail and CSX would probably still keep both lines running. Other CSX businesses, Sea-Land, a giant global ocean-freight company, and a U.S. barge operation, would provide additional potential for growth in rail traffic.

A merger between Conrail and Norfolk Southern would not have the same local impact since Norfolk's rail lines run to the west and south of Delaware.

Mayor Ronald Gardner expressed his concerns recently in a letter to Gov. Thomas Carper. The mayor noted that according to news reports, Conrail and CSX intend to shift all Delaware freight traffic from the Amtrak/Conrail line to the CSX line.

"In addition (to other traffic and safety concerns), the local transportation reconfiguration of the Main Street/Elkton Road/New London Road intersection will be reduced if any rail freight traffic is increased at this location," said Gardner in his letter.

Area resident donates $1 million to University

CHAPLIN "CHAP" TYLER is old enough to remember Teddy Roosevelt as "a very likable fellow" who regularly visited Tyler's elementary school in Washington, D.C., wearing striped pants and a satin waistcoat.

Nevertheless, at 98, the Hockessin resident is still writing and working to help younger people achieve success in the business world. Yesterday, University of Delaware president David Roselle announced that Tyler has made a gift of $1 million to the school's College of Business and Economics.

A chemical engineer who spent the bulk of his career at DuPont Co., Tyler then worked as a consultant for Coca-Cola Co. until he was 82. He has previously contributed $2 million to the university.

"I was prompted to offer these gifts because of my great confidence in the people at the University of Delaware," said Tyler. "Some people talk about 'giving until it hurts.' I think you should give until it feels good. I see it as an investment in the future of this country."

Delaware schools making parents and students pay for lost text books

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A MUCH-DISCUSSED policy on lost or damaged instructional materials in district schools was finally approved by the Christina School Board this month.

Under a bill passed by the state legislature, all school districts in Delaware are required to establish a policy with regulations to recover the costs of lost or damaged books and other instructional materials.

The Christina board began the debate on the details of their policy at the Oct. 8 meeting. However, disagreement about the penalties to be imposed if students did not meet the obligation to pay for replacement of a lost or damaged book resulted in several revisions.

Initially, Christina's policy stated that students and parents/guardians would not receive school records, including report cards and diplomas, and would not be issued a replacement for the lost item until the "lost book" obligation was met.

Because of concerns that students would suffer academically without some access to records and classroom materials, school records are now available as soon as parents have met with school officials to discuss the obligation.

Further, pending settlement of the obligation by payment or community service, students will be provided with substitute materials during class, and may also review and check out materials overnight from the school library.

A student whose parents' income falls below the federal poverty guidelines may perform school or community service, at the district's option, in lieu of paying book costs.

The legislature required that a student who refuses to perform service shall be subject to disciplinary action and Christina's first version of the policy permitted detention and/or suspension.

After boardmembers complained that depriving students of class time was aggravating the problem, the policy was amended to permit discipline action according to the student code of conduct.

School districts must also compile and submit to the legislature annually, a copy of their policy, an accounting of the costs recovered, costs that are not recovered, public service hours required in lieu of cost repayment, public service hours performed, and disciplinary action taken pursuant to the policy in the past three years.

According to school superintendent Iris Metts, the Christina District lost 1,876 books out of the approximately 99,905 texts distributed during the school year 1995-96. Estimated cost of replacing the lost materials was $9,764.00.

A similar policy passed by the New Castle County Vo-Tech School Board this month permits vo-tech school officials to withhold grades, transcripts, and diplomas until students repair or replace lost or damaged books. Students will not be permitted to participate in school activities, including graduation, unless all debts are paid to the district.

City of Newark might annex Rodel site

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

RODEL INC. has taken the first step in a planned expansion of their high-technology manufacturing business in the Diamond State Industrial Park off Old Cooches Bridge Road in Newark.

Company officials announced this week that the Newark manufacturer of polishing and buffing equipment for electronic parts had paid $1.1 million for a 19.7-acre industrial site on South Chapel Street formerly owned by Commercial Carriers, Inc., a subsidiary of Ryder Truck, Inc.

"This property became available and it was an opportunity for nearly-contiguous expansion," said chairman and CEO Bill Budinger. "We viewed it as a great opportunity."

Budinger said Rodel intends to develop the parcel (which includes three buildings) with a mix of office, warehousing, light manufacturing, and other uses as permitted under the current zoning.

As part of their expansion, the company seeks to consolidate use of their existing and new operations on both sides of the Conrail line at Bellevue Road. "We desire to open the old grade level crossing on Bellevue Road as a private access crossing," said facilities planning director Roy Lopata.

Rodel officials propose to put gates on the Conrail crossing on both sides to prevent use of Bellevue Road as a public thoroughfare.

To accomplish this, Rodel has asked the city of Newark to consider annexation of the new parcel to allow an administrative subdivision removing the property line between the former Ryder lot and Rodel's present business.

If the city then vacates or removes from city ownership the section of Bellevue Road that will be on Rodel property, Rodel will fence the newly-created property and install locked gates with access across the rail line for Rodel, as well as city workers, Conrail, and Delmarva Power.

Budinger said Rodel proceeded with their purchase of the Ryder property in the expectation that the annexation plan will be acceptable to Newark. "We're waiting for some information from the railroad."

According to Lopata, city officials cautioned Rodel that they could not guarantee approval of the plan in time for the sale.

Traffic at grade crossings concerns local residents for Gov. Carper, said the governor's office is still reviewing the "complex issue" and working on a position as to the merger.

"The governor will be talking with Ann Canby at DelDOT and others to consider issues involved in the merger such as access to services and the continuation of service contracts for industries within the state," said Lippstone.

President David Roselle of the University of Delaware, told the governor that information Roselle received from "DelDOT that their best guess is that any such merger will not send more trains through the city of Newark is not good enough."

Boulden and others in the Newark community also have written to the Federal Railroad Administration expressing their concerns.

"In Newark, CSX owns and operates a single track that runs through the center of town," wrote city councilmember Nancy Turner, "in close proximity to residential properties, the University of Delaware's campus and related campus facilities, high rise housing for the elderly, and downtown businesses."

Boulden added, "With grade crossings at two intersections currently, it is my belief that more rail traffic will only further jeopardize the response time of our local firefighters, police officers and other emergency personnel."

Gardner said he was frustrated that the city could not do more to prevent increased rail traffic here. "The decision, unfortunately, will be made outside of Newark, but we're trying to speak to whoever might influence the decision."

According to a source at the Rail Services office of the Delaware Transit Corp., the Federal Surface Transportation Board will make the final decision as to whether another rail company can use the CSX line even if the companies themselves settle the issue.

Once the federal agency decides, the states in which the rail lines operate must allow the rail use, subject to safety considerations as defined by federal regulation. The situation is analogous to use of state highways for interstate trucking or the skies over the state for air traffic.

At a recent meeting, the Western Newark Traffic Relief Committee passed a resolution to request that the Federal Railroad Administration ensure that no increase in rail traffic occur on the CSX line in the event of a merger.

Newark's landscape is defined by the crisscross of rail lines, including CSX which runs through the heart of downtown, Conrail branching off north and south, and Amtrak skirting the southern edge.

Bus schedules change

NEW SCHEDULES went into effect for some Dart First State routes on Dec. 16 in an effort to conform with actual running times and ridership.

Route 23 will have minor time changes and the route will now travel from Chapman Road into Delmarva Office Center instead of University Plaza Office Center.

Owner-occupant ordinance finally passed

Months of study and review finally came down to a concise discussion and quick vote for a controversial ordinance amending the roomers and boarders provisions in Newark's zoning code.

Up for city council consideration were an amendment to ensure that persons are not named as owner-occupants in a dwelling unless they hold a minimum of 50 percent ownership in the property by deed.

Planning director Roy Lopata said the city has found parents of university students making a son or daughter the nominal owner of a property actually owned by the parents. "People used this to enable them to add tenants over the permissible three and help pay for the house," said Lopata.

In addition, council approved changes to make landowners, agents of owners, and others in effective control of a dwelling more responsible for not exceeding the permissible number of roomers or boarders in a single-family rental dwelling under the code.

Rental permits at an annual cost of $150 and annual inspections for owner-occupants who take in more than two boarders or roomers (up to a maximum of three) were included.

Council hopes that this change will encourage landlords to take more interest in their property since annual inspections are required to maintain the permits. Councilmember Harold Godwin said he had just one question before voting, "Does this ordinance (as drafted) help building director Junie Mayle?"

Godwin said it had his vote after Mayle replied, "Yes, it does. It brings rental units under our jurisdiction so we can go there and inspect them."

Residents had previously complained that they did not want to be told what maintenance and repair they had to do on their homes.

One resident who has rented to students for 15 years, said "I don't want a person coming into my house and telling me I have to change the doors or other alterations." But the changes proposed were not just for students pointed out Mayor Ronald Gardner. "There's some pretty sad places rented to students—inspections are intended to help them."

An ordinance increasing fines to $500-$1000 and setting the penalty at a maximum prison term of 60 days for failing comply with these code provisions was passed by city council in April.

Hansen town meeting gathers opinions

By MEGHAN AFTOSMIS

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

At the first of her promised town meetings, New Castle County Council president, Stephanie Hanson, listened to a group of about 20 county residents speak their minds on a number of issues at the Glasgow Medical Center on Dec. 14.

The residents gave their opinions on a proposed ordinance by councilman Robert Weiner for a pay increase for the recently elected county executive, Thomas Gordon. Basing the need for a raise on a study done in 1993 which compared the county executive's salary with others, Weiner initially suggested a 43 percent pay raise increase.

In discussing a substitute ordinance which proposes a 10 percent increase over the next three years, the residents offered up various concerns and alternatives. The general consensus was that Gordon took the job knowing the salary and they wanted to see how competent he was before they gave him a raise.

However, several also agreed with one resident's concern that he did not want to see the county executive forced into holding down a second job to support himself.

The residents at the meeting felt that a 10 percent raise should be given the first year, and less of a raise after that, if at all.

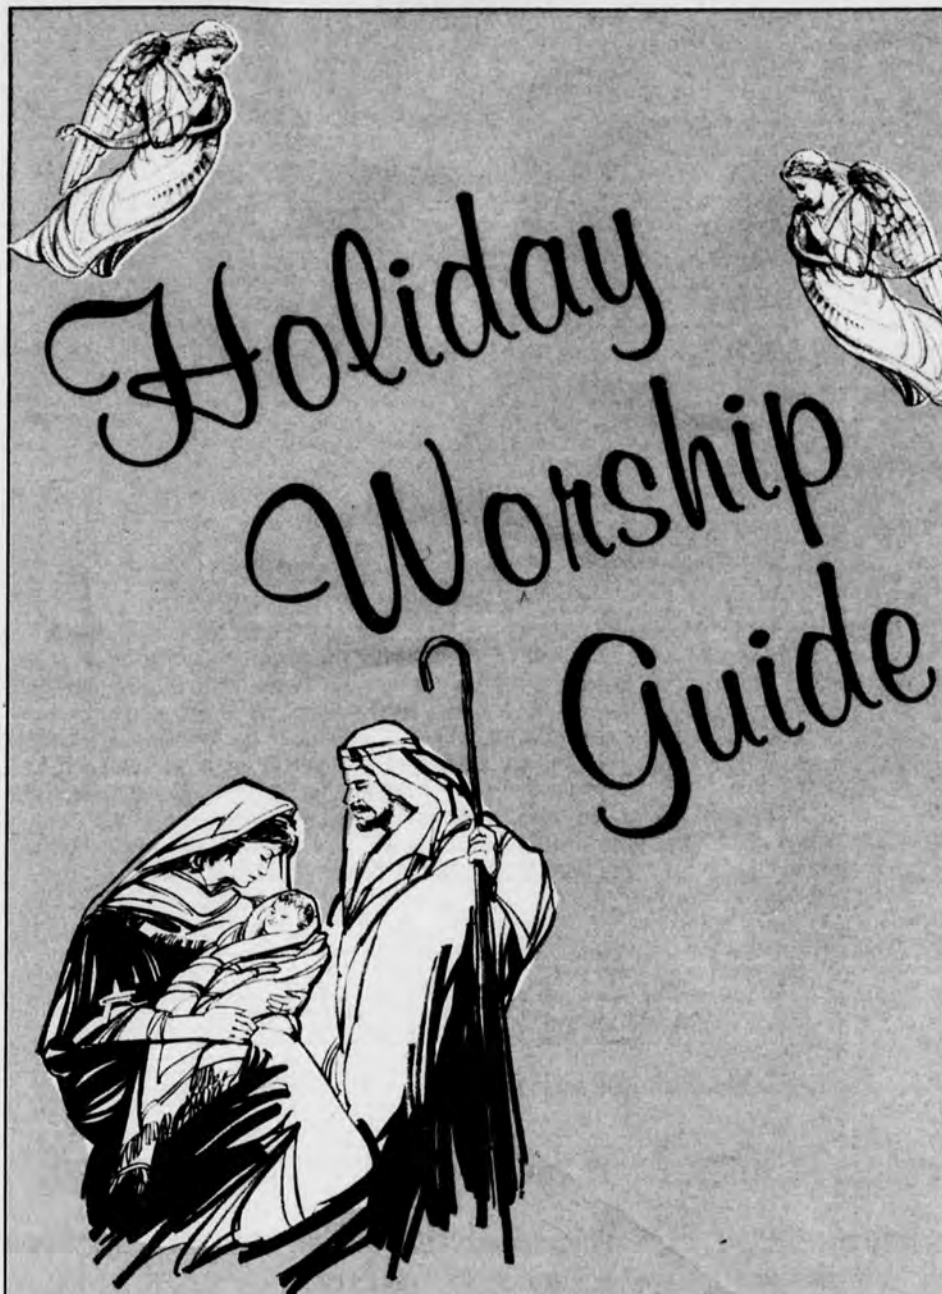

Hanson also asked for opinions on a series of related questions regarding enlargement of county council, whether or not there should be any at-large members and if so, how should they should be chosen.

The majority of the residents did not approve of the enlargement of the council, especially if it would not be based on new demographics and redistricting, but only a random addition of new members.

There was also a near-universal agreement that there should be at least one at-large council member. The county council president should be one of those at-large members and should be elected by the residents of the county and not the county council itself as proposed in a resolution by councilman Joe Miro.

Hansen, elected as county president in November, promised during her campaign to hold regular meetings with county residents to hear their concerns.

Summit makes sense

NEXT MONTH, a summit will be held in an attempt to deal with suburban sprawl that has eaten into a larger portion of New Castle County and is now spreading into Kent and Sussex.

The conference is long overdue, since it begins to deal with the issue on a statewide basis. It is endorsed by Delaware House Speaker Terry Spence and Gov. Tom Carper and will be conducted by the Delaware Public Policy Institute, a think tank that operates under the auspices of the State Chamber of Commerce.

Expected to participate in the event will be representatives from all segments of the community, including business and civic leaders and environmentalists. It is hoped that findings can be the basis of legislation in the General Assembly.

In the past, the state has looked the other way as New Castle County's Comprehensive Plan worked its magic. The plan established suburban enclaves that were often isolated from shopping, schools and other neighborhoods. Added to the mix were strip shopping centers with minimal landscaping, huge signs, and expanses of asphalt.

After all, this was (and to some extent still is) what people wanted. Unfortunately, we are now seeing is our desires for that home in the country have produced everything from sewage treatment problems to commuting nightmares and a numbing lack of variety and creativity.

The problems have intensified as strip development continued and ill-advised growth control measures were put into place. On the county level, delays in the name of growth control became commonplace. Often the winners were developers with deep pockets who could ride out the exhausting process and then made their money by only doing the minimum.

Yes, there are many exceptions to this rule, but when you have to tie money up for extended periods, it does tend to make one less creative.

Making the situation worse is the lack of feeder or frontage roads and relatively little in the way of highway investment by the state in all areas. A good example is the lack of a Newark bypass, a mess that is four decades in the making.

When it comes to roads, establishing a consensus will be difficult. Many see current problems as the result of the state falling a decade or more behind in improving roads.

Others see roads as the reason for suburban sprawl. This line of logic is difficult to follow when the County Plan targeted certain areas for growth and if suburban-style growth is the goal, roads would have to follow.

Critics of highways do have a valid point when it comes to major projects, such as Route 1. Terribly designed intersections, such as Route 40 and Route 1 in Bear brought new waves of traffic and "paralysis by analysis" as DelDOT continues to study such areas, but may be a decade away from coming up with lasting solutions.

One idea that might be worth considering would be to set up incentives on the state level that would encourage cities, such as Newark, to annex nearby areas. Cities and towns have proved to be much more innovative in dealing with growth-related issues. Newark, in particular, has done an excellent job in this area, but has no incentive to add existing residential neighborhoods that would put it adjacent to suburban growth zones.

At any rate, we applaud the decision to hold the summit and look forward to all players working on this pivotal issue.

ONE PARENT'S PERSPECTIVE

I'm choosing Drew/Pyle

By RUTH KELLY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

IN 1997-98, DREW/PYLE Intermediate School will become one of Christina District's new theme schools. I am a big proponent of School Choice and very happy that I have the opportunity to choose the environment and school setting that would be best for my child. I also believe that all of our Christina District schools are excellent and therefore makes it real difficult to have to choose one over the other.

There are several reasons why I am choosing Drew/Pyle. I'll briefly state that part of the reason is the team of Klatzkin/Talbert (principal and assistant principal at Drew/Pyle). I'll talk about them a little later.

Kelly

Most important to me is the fact the Drew/Pyle will be a school with special emphases on communications and arts and offer a traditional school setting. Maybe I'm just a little old-fashioned, but when I look for a school that best suits my child's needs, I consider several factors such as location, a varied curriculum, diversity of staff, and student body, the student/teacher ratio.

That old-fashioned part of me, though, is looking for a school that can be compared to my old school when I was a kid. Drew/Pyle definitely fits the bill. It offers that traditional, structured, and very nurturing environment that for my child is perfect.

I loved school and looked forward to going every day. There are so many things that I see

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This tranquil scene of the Vannoy farm was taken around 1970 by John Lawrence, a resident of Fairfield Crest since 1960. The farmhouse still stands on Stamford Drive in Fairfield. The barn burned down and the area behind it is presently the Fairfield Park. The Fairfield Shopping Center and the Regency Apartments now occupy part of the land near the pond which is only a marshy area today. According to the Newark Historical Society, the Vannoy family operated the Blue Hen Farm (one of the largest farms in Delaware) at this location for many years. Newark host to boys and girls

Every year public-spirited citizens and institutions offer scholarships to the Boys and Girls Clubs of the State, for a one-week visit to the University of Delaware. And every year these lucky lads and lassies make a pilgrimage to Newark.

This year about a hundred will be in the party, which is larger than most years.

The new chamber president earned his bachelor of science degree from St. Peter's College in Jersey City, N.J., and took graduate work in management at Stevens Institute of Technology. During W.W. It's that special season!

Everyone knows what Christmas looks like. It's bows, stockings, mistletoe, and toys. It's candles, angels, evergreens, and bells.

The trimmings of Christmas are filled with history and tradition. While the decorative customs that we enjoy, are ever changing, tracing their origins can be fun. Some go as deep as the roots on an evergreen tree.

Carolyn Bockius - Newark

Carolyn Bockius is starting to become the center of attention on the Newark High girls basketball team.

The 6-1 center scored 22 points in a 56-51 loss to powerful Ursuline Academy and then came back to score a team-high 14 in the 'Jackets' big win over Wilmington High.

UPON MY WORD

'Excuse me: Does this kind of person really deserve honor and respect?'

By SHIRLEY TARRANT

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

THEY CALLED IT the "Whirlybird." Then they called it the "Wingbone." The "they" were the two sports commentators (obvious Marshall University supporters) who were trying to describe the University of Delaware's Wing-T formation at the NCAA play-off game in Huntington, W.Va. It was on the Saturday after Thanksgiving and I was glued to our TV set. The final score was: Marshall 59, UD 14. But, it wasn't the final score that bothered me.

What bothered me was a certain Marshall player who wore No. 88. Listening to the banter of the announcers, I learned a lot about No. 88.

At his high school in West Virginia, he had been chosen "Player of the Year." Apparently, he played basketball, football, baseball, golf, and ran track. As the sportscaster said, "Everything but tennis."

Tarrant

Excuse me: What about his personal conduct?

At one point in the third quarter, No. 88 had gained 289 yards in receptions, compared to UD's entire team effort of 222 yards. After receiving three touchdown passes, No. 88 was described as having "great speed, quickness." Excuse me: What about his personal reputation?

At the end of the game, it was announced that No. 88 had set a Southern Conference and NCAA I-AA record. He also was named "Player of the Game" by Ashland Bank One. Excuse me: What about human decency?

I really don't care how fast No. 88 can run, how many touchdown passes he can catch, how much yardage he can accumulate, or how many records he holds. The measure of a person to be honored goes far beyond his prowess on a football field. Marshall's No. 88 is not worthy of standing on the same playing turf with the Fightin' Blue Hens of Delaware.

This much-touted running back was rejected by Notre Dame in 1994, due to a conviction after a school fight. In 1995, he was kicked off Florida State's team and served time in jail for smoking marijuana. And he allegedly has been in some trouble since he has been at Marshall. Excuse me: Does this kind of person really deserve honor and respect?

A few last words of the sportscasters were, "You have to respect a team like Delaware....not giving up...40 seconds left in the game..." My sentiments, exactly.

I'll take Eddie Conti over a hundred No. 88's Any day!

■ A contributing writer to the Newark Post for many years, Tarrant has been a long-time Newark community activist.

'Our schools are what we make them'

► DREW/PYLE, from 8

at Drew/Pyle that remind me of my old alma mater, Ardmore Elementary School. There is a nice feeling of community within our school building. Along with this is an enriching curriculum, a structured, safe, clean, and pleasant environment, and a truly excellent committed staff of teachers, and support personnel.

Another factor that really appealed to me was the zero tolerance for disruptive students. When you enter Drew/Pyle, you see order, and staff is always visible moving the children along to where they need to be. You see no loitering or the presence of anyone who should not be in the building. There are high expectations in all areas. Finally, to sum it up, Drew/Pyle offers an all-in-all ideal, nurturing, fun, and safe atmosphere for learning. This is definitely where I want my child to be.

When I visit school, I am always greeted and welcomed enthusiastically. Whenever I am having a bad day at work, all I need to do is have lunch at school. I love it when many of the kids come up to me give me hugs. Now that many are in fifth grade and are "too cool," I get a big smile and hearty hello only. After I have left, I feel good.

Now, back to the team of Bob Klatzkin and Richelle Talbert. All I can say is that they run a tight ship with a firm hand, but also in a very caring, compassionate and protective manner. They make a point of knowing each and every child in their care and pay attention to any special need that that child might have. They have also embraced the innovative direction in which the district is moving and, even with all the time constraints placed on them, still stay focused on the needs of the children.

Our schools are what we make them. The district has hired the very best in administrative and teaching staff. They can't do their jobs alone. For our school buildings to be true successes the support of home and the community is needed to make it happen.

Handicapped parking spaces need enforcing

To: The editor
From: William C. Ziegler
Newark

NOW THAT the elections are over, it is time for the General Assembly and Delaware law enforcement officials to show their support for the Americans with Disabilities Act by improving enforcement of parking for the disabled. As a disabled person I am tired of watching thoughtless, able-bodied drivers use handicapped parking spaces with no fear of enforcement.

Disabled Delawareans should start writing their representatives in both houses of the General Assembly and the Governor and implore them to pass and sign into law House Bill 72. This bill would create a volunteer program run by a law enforcement department that would allow trained volunteers to issue parking tickets for violations of the handicapped parking codes.

I have received information on programs for around the country and they work. These programs allow disabled citizens a chance to get involved in their community, allow the disabled to use the spaces they need and let police attend to more important matters.

Discipline issue overshadows good at CHS

To: The Editor
From: Geneva Frick

THIS LETTER is to the Christiana High School Community and friends. I have been involved with Christiana High School as a volunteer since 1982. I have worked at CHS in several capacities, periodically for over four years. I have a concern about the recent articles in several newspapers implying that CHS has a major discipline problem.

Christiana High School is proud of its accomplishments. The staff does an excellent job of educating students and provides opportunities for extra curricular activities. Christiana has always addressed the discipline problems in the school building. CHS has a good reputation among those who are involved at CHS and the Christiana School District.

Christiana High School has had a few difficult years, with the instability of its administrative staff. There have been four different principals, and numerous assistant principal changes in the last four years. Students respond best to consistency, we have not had the advantage of experiencing that at CHS.

The facts are that problem students exist in all schools. CHS has approximately three to four percent of the student body who do not adhere to the rules and do not respond to the normal disciplinary procedures.

CHS has dealt with the chronic offenders throughout the years, they sometimes reach a roadblock when parents are unable to accept reality and or can not deal with their students behavior. Administrative overload and "due process" also inhibit the use of the "code of conduct."

Parents and students need to take responsibility for their negative behavior, then public school would be a better place for all, students and staff.

Too many students have little or no respect for teachers, administrators or their fellow students. Unfortunately this behavior is too often accepted by their families.

Strong and consistent discipline is needed in our schools, we strive for that at Christiana High School. The staff needs support from district office, from each other and from students and their families.

Families, especially must accept the responsibility of the role they play in producing a well rounded young adult, ready to plunge into the real world.

CHS has always been a good place to learn, achieve and excel on academics and extra curricular activities. It will continue to be the "Home of Champions".

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis," and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis, relieves pain by first selectively attracting and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis, is an odorless, greaseless, nonstaining cream, and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work or your money back.

NEWARK OUTLOOK

This holiday gift of life

■ This weekly feature on the Lifestyle page is authored by the staff of the Newark-based Cooperative Extension Service.

THE DELAWARE State Police report that in 1995 in New Castle County 29 fatalities, 667 injuries and 970 total crashes involved the use of alcohol. In addition, the state police made 2,828 arrests for driving under the influence. Each year alcohol-related crashes—the leading cause of death and injury among adolescents and young adults—comprise the majority of the crashes that occur over the holiday season. These are quite sobering statistics.

This December, the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension together with the Office of Highway Safety is promoting Drunk and Drugged Driving (3D) Prevention Month. Join us in helping to save lives and prevent needless injury on our roadways. Take a stand this holiday season against impaired driving due to drugs and alcohol. Friends do not let friends drive drunk!

By Cindy Genau

The 3D Prevention campaign offers the following suggestions to help keep you, your family and friends safe as you travel this holiday season:

- Buckle up on every trip, and be a role model for life.
- Always ride with sober drivers and encourage others to do the same.
- Be a responsible host/hostess by providing a variety of beverages including non-alcoholic drinks and high protein food to help slow alcohol absorption. Have activities or games as an alternative to drinking. Avoid an open bar, and stop serving alcohol an hour before the party ends. Arrange for guests to stay overnight or call a cab for those who are intoxicated.
- Never serve alcohol to those under 21.
- Be a designated driver—agree to stay sober to drive others home.

If you are having a holiday gathering, there are festive non-alcoholic beverages you can serve, such as flavored sparkling waters, cider, fancy juices and spritzers. Non-alcoholic colodas, champagne, margaritas or daiquiris are also very refreshing. A favorite mocktail I have served at gatherings to promote safe and sober parties is Pink Lady Punch—1 quart cranberry juice cocktail, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 4 cups unsweetened pineapple juice and 2 quarts ginger ale. This is a colorful and tasteful drink. To make this your special recipe you might try adding raspberry sorbet, orange juice, or your own favorite. If alcohol is included at your gathering, the best snacks to offer your guests are those high in protein and low in salt. Meats, cheeses, unsalted nuts, raw vegetables and dip are good examples. My favorite is potato skins which are easy to make. Rub potatoes with oil and bake at 400°. Cut in half and scoop out pulp. Sprinkle with shredded cheese. Broil till cheese melts. Serve with sour cream or ranch dressing. Other recipes are available at the Cooperative Extension Office at 910 S Chapel Street, Newark or call 831-4973.

Child of Light

Kelly Dickinson of Pike Creek portrayed Santa Lucia in the annual Swedish celebration at Holy Trinity Church in Wilmington.

The festival of Santa Lucia, Child of Light, is celebrated by Swedish people throughout the world each December. According to the legend, Lucia rises on the shortest day of the year and, dressed in a white gown with a crown of candles, serves cake and tea to the family.

Traditionally, a daughter of the family portrays Lucia in Swedish homes. The Child of Light is helped in her services by little elves called "tomten."

Portraying tomten, in the varying states of spiritual inattention for which they are known, are: Billy Modi, Christian Mikkelsen, Jordan Mekler, Lydia Stinson, Mary Stinson, Laura Molin and Rebecca Ledden.

Holy Trinity, also known as Old Swedes Church, is the oldest church in America still standing as originally built.

Grand Opera House celebrates Christmas with style

'TIS THE SEASON for celebrations of the joyous feast of Christmas and the Delaware's most exciting performance-celebration will be at our Center for the Performing Arts, The Grand Opera House!

This Christmas extravaganza is being produced by Ken Wesler, executive director of the Grand, and directed by Cleveland Morris, artistic Director of the Delaware Theater Company. There will be four performances this weekend: Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday at 2 and 7 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m.

The organizations involved are, in alphabetical order, Chorale Delaware, Christina Cultural Arts Center, Delaware Symphony Orchestra, Delaware Theater Company, Grand Opera House and Opera Delaware. The program has a most appropriate title, "A Celebration of Christmas."

Those participating in "A Celebration of Christmas" at the Opera House are as special as the program they are offering. The "Chief Celebrant" of the monumental musical and dramatic effort will be Cleveland Morris, our host-narrator. It is he, in a Christmas smile, looking at you from this page, right along with my column. Cleveland is a Wilmington native whose studies took him to Yale University, the University of Manchester and the Bristol Old Vic Theater. We are very happy to have him back home! In 1978 he founded The Delaware Theater Company which offers us professional theater from its home at 200 Water Street. Performing arts devotees call the theater "The house that Cleveland built."

Chorale Delaware is Delaware's only professional chorus. Under the direction of Bill Owen it has become an important musical force in the state. Metropolitan Opera baritone Sherill Milnes was their soloist for Mendelssohn's "Elijah." The group also presented Delaware's first professional performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

The Christina Cultural Arts center was founded by the Women's Club of Trinity Episcopal Church to provide access to quality arts instruction in an affordable way to the urban community of Wilmington. The community based school celebrates African-American culture. Their chorus is under the direction of Lydia F. Anderson.

If you read my column regularly it is hard to imagine that you won't know the next three participants, the Delaware Symphony Orchestra, The Grand Opera House and Opera Delaware but, just in case...

The Delaware Symphony was founded as the Wilmington Symphony Orchestra in 1929 and is our state's only professional orchestra. It presents over 90 classical, pops, chamber, family and educational performances each season. Stephen Gunzenhauser is in this 18th year as music director. The conductor for "A Celebration of Christmas" will be Dublin-born Coleman Pearce. He is the Music Director of the Mississippi Symphony Orchestra and his podium work has kept him busy on both sides of the Atlantic.

This is the 125th Anniversary

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

Season for the Grand Old Lady of Market Street. The lovely Victorian theater has played many roles in a century-and-a-quarter and it is great to see her back in resplendent beauty as the focus of the performing arts in our area. The current season is one of the most spectacular in recent years. The season is made all the brighter by its new boss Ken Wesler who has breathed real life into the programs. As but one example, Ken is producing "A Celebration of Christmas."

Opera Delaware is now in its 52nd season and presented opera's most famous double bill, Cav and Pag, at the Grand Opera House recently. The amateur Wilmington Opera Society has blossomed into a fine professional company under its new name and operates from its headquarters along the Christina waterfront. The company has produced eleven world premieres by such notable composers as Gian Carlo Menotti, Alva Henderson and Charles Strouse.

The celebration will offer us many Christmas favorites like "Oh Holy Night," "We Need A Little Christmas," "Toyland," festive readings and for a triumphal finale, the audience will join all the voices and orchestra in Handel's jubilant "Hallelujah Chorus" from his oratorio "The Messiah." The audience will get other chances to sing along too, in the form of favorite Christmas carols. You may bring your own pitch pipe or a note will be provided!

Tickets range from $10 to $30. You may stop by the Grand box office at 818 The Market Street Mall, or reach them by phone at

Make your family Christmas with this celebration at The Grand Opera House and may I wish for each and everyone a very Merry Christmas!

The kids just want to have fun

THE STONE BALLOON continues to fine tune its format and image with new alcohol-free nights.

"Our 21-and-under-night on Sundays has been growing every week," said owner Jim Baeurle. "We decided to try some other nights and see how it works."

Beginning Jan. 1, Wednesdays will be alcohol-free nights for ages 18 and up. "Mondays will be alcohol-free for all ages," said Baeurle. "We're going to try this until the end of May."

Baeurle said over the Thanksgiving holiday, more than 350 kids showed up for a "teen" night. "It's obvious more come out when there's no school," Baeurle said. "During Christmas vacation, we plan to have teen nights on Friday, Dec. 20 and 27, as well as Sundays."

Local high schools will be sponsoring nights in the coming months during which the school's senior class will get a $1 for every student that shows up for that school's designated night at the Balloon.

"We think the potential looks good to continue (alcohol-free nights) through the summer," said Baeurle, "but we'll wait until May to decide."

St. Mark's dominates Yellowjacket

Spartans capture seven titles enroute to team championship

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

St. Mark's High showed why it is so highly thought of with a strong showing in the Yellowjacket Invitational.

The Spartans, who entered last weekend's tournament ranked first in the state and as high as 15th in the country by one publication, captured seven titles on their way to easily winning the 17th annual tournament with 283 points. Elizabethtown (Pa.) was second with 212.5 and Salesianum, Caesar Rodney and Hodgson rounded out the top five. Newark placed seventh and Glasgow eighth in the 12-team field.

L.A. Collier (112), Bruce Kelly (119), Jason Bastianelli (135), Kyle Talley (152), Justin Jackson, Peter Santoro and John Testa all won their respective weight classes for St. Mark's.

"We're off to a good start," said Jason Bastianelli of his team's early season performance. "It was disappointing finishing second last season and we really wanted to come back strong."

In one of the crazier moments of the tournament, Bastianelli led Hodgson's Pete Laucirica 15-7 in the third period when the Silver Eagle was disqualified for unsportsmanlike conduct. Angry supporters of Laucirica came on to the mat to shout at the official and St. Mark's coaches.

All were ejected from the gym.

"We had a good summer as a team. A lot of us went to freestyle together and lifted weights together. Our lineup came together real well and, hopefully, we can just keep getting better."

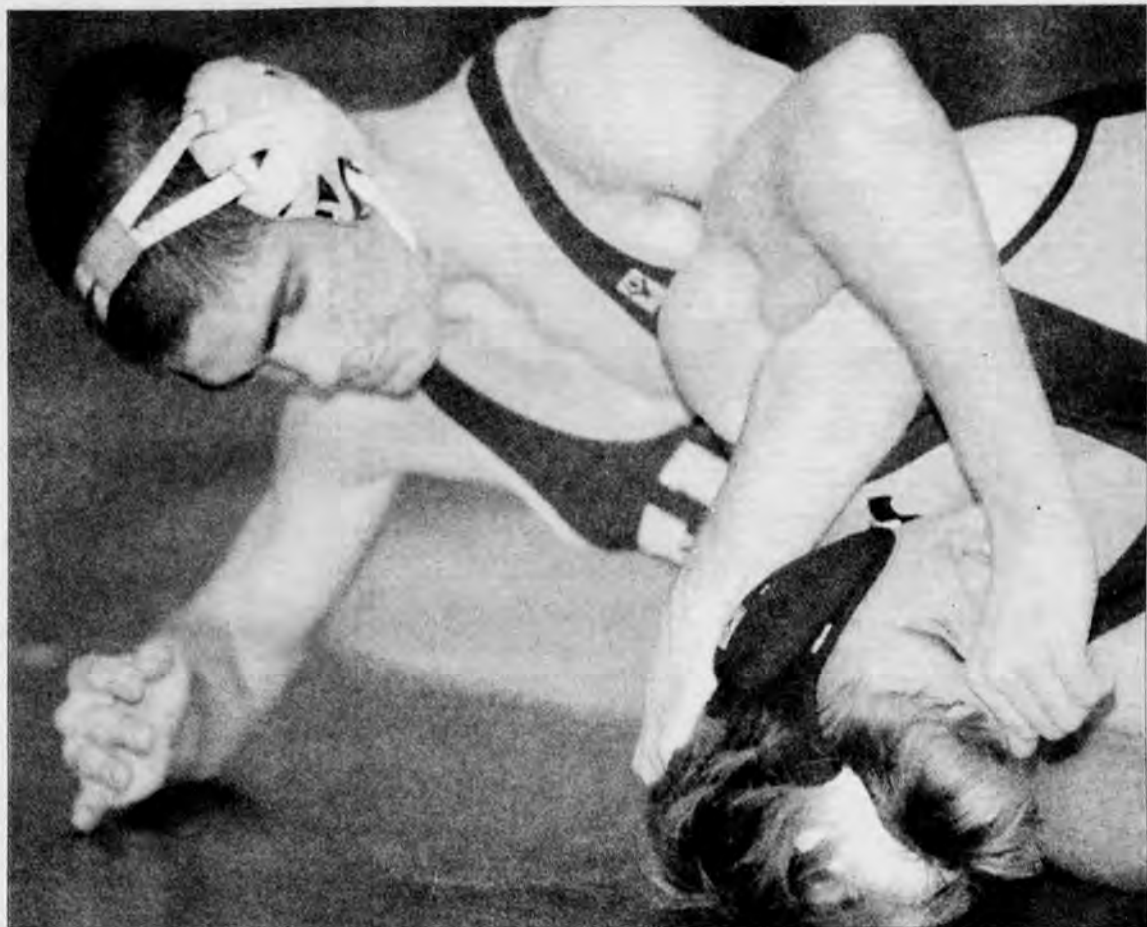

Talley, a senior, had a slight scare in his championship match against Elizabethtown's Eric O'Connor. The Spartan, while leading in the second period, was thrown to the mat and re-injured his shoulder. However, he was able to continue and posted a 23-11 victory.

"We have a lot of people back and we're really looking forward to this season," said Talley, who improved his record to 7-0 on the season. "We just want to keep getting better as the season goes on."

Other local wrestlers to capture titles included Hodgson's Aaron Jester at 103 pounds, and Glasgow's Chuck Hackett at 171. Jester defeated Salesianum's Ralph Degliobizzi by fall while Hackett decisioned Mike Kissinger of St. Mark's 8-5.

In other finals featuring local wrestlers, Newark's James Romesberg fell to Aaron Harris, of CR in the 140 pound title match, Brian Conway, of Glasgow, fell to Justin Jackson in the 160 pound final and St. Mark's David Williams finished second at 145 after falling 4-1 to Elizabethtown's Kirk Lieb.

Other local place winners included at 103: Darren Thomas (St. Mark's, 4th); 112: Eric Schurman

St. Mark's moves on to a tougher test this week when it travels to compete in the Virginia Duals. A strong showing there will increase the status of the Spartans.

"We kid with our coaches all the time in practice about what team was better," said Jason Bastianelli of comparisons to other great St. Mark's teams, including the 1992 state championship squad that featured Sheldon Thomas. "But that team had NCAA champion Sheldon Thomas. It's a little early to start those comparisons."

Glasgow earns respect by winning Kappa Tournament championship

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

WILMINGTON — Glasgow High's basketball team, to paraphrase borscht belt comic Rodney Dangerfield, got no respect in the preseason. But the Dragons' 63-44 rout of defending state champion Howard in the Kappa tournament final should change that.

Coming off a mediocre 9-11 season, Glasgow (4-0) had much to prove in the early going. But in last Saturday's championship game at Wilmington High, the team demonstrated a nice ensemble of players who act out their roles to perfection.

Point guard Gary Payne and small forward David Jones hit consistently from the outside while center Darnell Vaughan pounded the boards. In fact, Payne (10 points) and Jones (11 points) triggered an 8-0 run in the opening minutes of the second half that extended the Dragons' 30-16 halftime lead to 22 points.

But rather than letting the game deteriorate into a ratball exhibition, the whole team continued to play a strong man-to-man defense. The Dragons sealed off the lane, forcing the Wildcats to throw up one brick after another.

Glasgow capitalized on their fast-break opportunities but also showed they had the discipline to throw the ball around and burn minutes off the clock. In short, the team put on a convincing show. But is this year's edition good enough to return the school to its glory days?

Glasgow coach Don Haman hesitates before answering such questions. True, the team is only three years removed from its last state championship trophy. And Haman believes he has a close-knit group of players who can potentially push each other to even greater heights.

"This is still only our fourth game," Haman said. "[But] these guys are hungry this year." Guard Ceecee Whittle agreed.

"We want it more," said Whittle, a senior co-captain who scored 14 points in the Saturday's final. "We got no respect [in the preseason from other teams and the media]. Now we're showing everybody what we can do."

The Dragons were plagued by injuries and other problems for much of last season. Vaughan, a 6-foot-5 senior co-captain, missed 11 games with ankle problems. He scored 14 points against Howard while demonstrating his all-around game.

"For a guy his size, he can put the ball on the floor, he can shoot and he can drive," Haman said. Sounds like a pretty good resume provided his ankle woes are behind him.

Plus, the rest of the players understand Vaughan's importance to the team's success. "The kids know we have to establish an [inside] game," Haman said.

Glasgow started the season by defeating Laurel 84-31. The Dragons trimmed Newark 76-73 in the tournament's opening round, then knocked off St. Mark's 42-26 in the semifinal.

"I think the main thing is the maturity of the players," said Haman, whose younger brother is Newark assistant coach Steve Haman. "They are accepting their roles. Because the level of play is so close, we have a lot of competition for spots."

Haman said he kept in contact with his players over the summer. Most of them attended summer camp together, lifted weights and competed in a fall league.

"We feel closer. The kids seem to be hanging out together. They're playing more from the neck up," he said.

"I thought we had a lot of talent last year," the coach said, but injuries and attitude problems kept Glasgow in a season-long funk. But he believes the players learned their lesson.

"They know what their job is," Haman said. "That's the kind of team we have."

Newark's Simpson earns Coach of the Year award

Coaches' association honors Jackets' coach

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

SMYRNA — Newark High's Butch Simpson collected a just reward for a great football season.

The Yellowjacket football coach was honored last Thursday as the state Coach of the Year by the Delaware Interscholastic Football Coaches Association as its annual banquet at the Delaware State Troopers Hall.

Simpson directed the Jackets to a 10-2 season and a spot in the state championship game. The Newark coach previously won the award in 1984 after posting a 12-0 record and winning the state title.

"I'm very grateful for everyone that thought we deserved this kind of recognition," said Simpson, who has compiled a 132-62-7 career record and qualified for 10 state tournaments in his 20-year coaching stint at

Newark. "I'm in this position because of my players. We had a great number of fine players who came to practice every day, prepared to play and came to play. They gave us the opportunity to have such a successful year."

Simpson, whose teams have won two state titles over the years, also had high praise for his coaching staff consisting of Mike Brogan, Lou Strengari, Dough Hunt, Steve Grundy, Jeff Conkey, Jerry Adams, Darren Tyson, Mike Lutes, Brian Valania and Mike Magana.

"This is a truly loyal group of coaches," he said. "I'm very grateful to have such a group of men to help me."

Newark's only two losses of the season came at the hands of William Penn — the state champion.

"It was an extremely rewarding year," said Simpson, who was also selected to coach the Gold squad in the annual Blue-Gold Football All-Star game in June. "We felt very strongly this was a good season. We had a lot of wonderful things happen to us.

"This was also a recognition of a long-term effort to try and do the right things in our football program. We're just very grateful."

"I am very grateful for . . . this recognition."

DELAWARE HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL COACH OF THE YEAR

Newark High football coach Butch Simpson won his second state Coach of the Year award. Simpson directed the Yellowjackets to a 10-2 record and a spot in the Division I state championship game.

Newark girls basketball team falls to Tower Hill

Second-half rally falls short

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark High rallied from a 12-point deficit in the second half before losing to Tower Hill 54-50 in a nonconference girls basketball game.

The Yellowjackets took a 49-44 lead on Beth Miller's 3-point bomb and center Becky Sacher turnaround jumper in the lane with 3:27 left to play. But Tower Hill went on a 10-1 blitz Tuesday to finish off Newark.

Jackets forward Meredith McIntosh (22 points) ignited the team, scoring nine of the team's 13 points in the third quarter. McIntosh's second basket of the fourth quarter, following buckets by Miller (11 points) and Cori Abshagen, knotted the score at 44-44.

A poor second quarter gave the Hillers a 33-21 lead at half-time after they trailed the Jackets 12-6 in the first quarter. Sacher dominated the game early, getting three baskets off of turnaround moves.

The Hillers altered their defense in the second quarter, shifting from what had been an ineffectual zone to straight man-to-man coverage. The strategy paid off because Newark failed to adjust.

The Jackets continued trying to force the ball inside to Sacher, who was blanketed by the Hillers' Camille Williams. Tower Hill converted several steals into fastbreak baskets.

The Hillers also took advantage of Newark's poor defensive play that frequently left Sacher on the short end of a 2-on-1 break after the Jackets continued crashing the boards after every shot.

Things changed in the second half. For one thing, the Jackets re-discovered their defense, limiting Tower Hill to 21 points in the game's final 16 minutes. "I thought they played excellent defense in the second half," Newark coach Ray Adams said. "I thought they played real hard. ...It could have gone either way."

Newark also re-discovered Sacher, who scored five of her 11 points in the fourth quarter. She said moving without the ball opened things up for her.

Added McIntosh: "We learned from the second quarter."

But, McIntosh conceded, the Jackets couldn't completely make up for the damage. "We had too big of a gap," she said.

Beth Lyn Holcutt led Tower Hill with 14 points. Laurie Smith scored 12 and Meredith Keller, the Hillers' point guard, added 11.

Adams, Newark's first-year coach, promises improvement before his team tangles with Milford in the Sallies tournament on Dec. 27. He plans to target his players' ball handling and to drill them on the virtues of a set offense. Ditto for rebounding and pressing.

Caravel Academy boys optimistic about chances

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Caravel boys basketball team's preseason challenge was simple: to field a team. With so many athletes consumed by the football team's unexpected gallop into the Division II state football tournament, bodies were hard to come by.

A lack of experience and the lack of proven scorers only compounds the Bucs' prospects after posting an 11-13 record in 1995-96. "We have no [returning] seniors," coach Paul Niggebrugge said. "We're very young and we're very short."

In his second season, Niggebrugge will try to remedy his problems by running, playing aggressive defense and control the ball. "We're going to try to push the ball," he said. "We're going to try to get some transitional baskets. A lot of ball and man-to-man pressure."

"We'll try to take the offense away from our basket and take advantage of our quickness. We've got a lot of kids who take pride in taking an offensive foul and playing hard-nosed defense," he said.

A go-to man would be no problem if Jarett McDonald hadn't become critically ill in the middle of last season. The 6-foot-3 center/forward worked out this season, but his body wasn't fully recovered.

McDonald averaged about 14 points and 9 rebounds before he got sick. Niggebrugge marveled that he still could shoot the ball during the preseason.

Still, Niggebrugge is optimistic. "We've got some young kids who are developing," he said. "We're going to be OK. It's going to be a very competitive schedule. We need to stay healthy."

The starters figure to come from a group that includes Dan MacElroy (5-11, jr.), Adam Brown (5-10, soph.), Bryan Brown, David Price (5-6, soph.), Bryan Boyer (5-7, jr.), and Mike Beste (6-2, soph.). Lee Caldwell (6-0, sr.) and Mike Shallcross (5-11, jr.) also could earn some minutes.

"Leaders must emerge," he said. "[On offense] I think we're going to spread the wealth. We won't have that dominating offensive player. But we should have some good guard penetration and hopefully create some problems for the defense."
