"No one should go hungry," nnon said during a press conace last Thursday at the Food of Delaware in Newark. annon presented a federal payment of $444,836 to the are Department of Health and al Services for increasing paration in the Food Supplement ram (food stamps) in 2010 to percent, a 16-percentage-point ease over the previous year. He ed another bonus check for 0,503 for accuracy of benefit ments, and praised DHSS and e Social Services Director Elaine gelo for "being good stewof the taxpayers' money.

Delaware, the number of receiving food stamps has doubled from a monthly average of 72,000 in 2008 to the 141,915 Delawareans who qualified in August 2011. The August benefits in Delaware totaled $17.9 million. Nationally, Concannon said that a record 45.8 million Americans received food assistance in August 2011, totaling $6.1 billion in ben-

"You're responding to the folks that live in Delaware who have need. And you're doing it efficiently, you're doing it accurately, and you're also reaching one of the highest numbers of people who are eligible for the program in the country,' Concannon said

Food stamp eligibility is based on such factors as who lives and eats together, as well as relationships in the home and income. The maximum gross monthly income limit for most families is set at 200 percent of the Federal Poverty Level, or about $3,725 for a family of four in Delaware. Not everyone who passes the gross income test is eligible for

This offbeat potential applicais not the first that pops to d. But, in the developing world, uld be a potential lifesaver.

In countries where sanitation s antiquated, for instance, it in the ground serving as a e, pathogens, germs and paras from human waste easily make their ways into drinking water.

Dentel believes the fabric, a breathable textile that allows water vapor to escape through it, could be the answer. The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation concurs.

The nonprofit organization just named Dentel as a recipient of $100,000 in grant money from its Grand Challenges Explorations Fund. The fund targets projects that show promise in tackling global health issues where solutions do not yet exist.

In experiments, Dentel and undergraduate researcher Tracie Ervin placed fecal matter in two pouches. One was made of simple plastic, the other was made of special fabric, similar to that used in waterproof breathable clothing, such as raincoats. The breathable fabric allowed only vapor to pass through; the waste and its accompanying harmful organisms stayed contained.

The dried remains become an inhospitable environment for germs, thus rendering the waste much less dangerous. The water escapes into the air or is absorbed back into the ground. In Dentel's tests it is entirely pure.

"It's easy to apply," Dentel says.

"It doesn't take a lot of control systems or energy. This is going to be something that can just sit and protect people.'

This low-tech solution's applications span various environments. Dentel envisions its use in various distinct scenarios. In rural areas, it would line outhouses and latrines so their contaminants do not seep into wells or groundwater.

In areas with high water tables or where houses are built above the water, the material could keep contaminants out of crops, like rice. And, in urban areas where facilities are often overused and workers must collect the waste, it would protect the workers and those living in the vicinity.

The hope is that we can develop a simple technology that people all over the world could use, Ervin, a senior majoring in environmental engineering. "People get sick and die every day because of this issue."

A video of Dentel explaining the process can be found by visiting www.udel.edu/udaily/2012/nov/dentel-gates-water-110711.

Former youth sports official arrested for child pornography

Following a proactive online undercover investigation by the Child Predator Task Force, Newark resident James R. Cairns, III has been arrested and charged with dealing in child pornography, Attorney General Beau Biden announced. Cairns, who has worked part-time as a referee and umpire for vouth sports in Pennsylvania. also formerly coached children's soccer when living in the Bryn Mawr area.

Cairns

"With state-of-the-art technology and training, the Child Predator Task Force keeps kids safe by taking predators offline and off our neighborhood streets," said

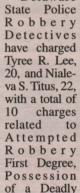

Attorney General Biden. Members of the Delaware Child Predator Task Force and a uniformed Delaware State Police Trooper executed a search warrant in the unit block of Mapleshade Road, in Newark, that was based on information gathered during an undercover investigation into the online distribution of child pornography. Cairns, 41, who lives at the residence with his parents, admitted to police that he used the Internet to locate and download child pornography. A forensic examination of computers and other digital evidence seized during the search revealed over 1,000 files of child pornography, some of which contained images of children as young as six years old.

Detectives also seized several printed images of child pornography. Cairns was arrested and charged with 26 counts of dealing in child pornography. After arraignment at JP Court 2, he was committed to James T. Vaughan Correctional Center in lieu of $780,000 secured bail. The investigation is ongoing.

Weapon During the Commission of a Felony, Burglary Second Degree, Wearing a Disguise During the Commission of a Felony, Offensive Touching, and Conspiracy Second Degree.

The incident occurred at approximately 8:30 p.m., Sunday evening, November 6, as the two victims were inside of their room at the Superlodge Motel, located at 1213 West Avenue, New Castle, when Tyree R. Lee and Nialeva S. Titus knocked on the door and asked about tattoos that the male victim was known to provide in the room. When the male victim opened the door, the pair forced their way into the room with Lee striking the male victim in the head with a tire iron and demanding the male victim's tattoo equipment. Titus grabbed the female victim by the hair and slammed her head into a headboard and threw her to the floor. A violent struggle continued inside of the room. The male victim was able to retrieve a pocketknife from his pants pocket and stabbed Lee in the chest. During the struggle between Lee and the male victim, the female victim suffered a stab wound to her back. Lee was severely injured and Titus then fled the room empty handed and exited the motel parking lot northbound on New Castle Ave in a 2001 Pontiac Grand Am, operated by Titus. Shortly after fleeing, the Grand Am was involved in a single vehicle crash on the Winchester Bridge in the City of Wilmington. The Wilmington Police Department responded to the crash and notified State Police. After investigation, Lee and Titus were connected to incident at the Superlodge. The 24 year-old female victim was transported to an area hospital where she was admitted in serious condition with a stab wound to her upper body. The 41 year-old male victim was transported to an area hospital where he was treated and released for head injuries sustained during the assault.

Detectives arrest subject involved in two pizza delivery robberies

New Castle County Police have arrested Troy Williamson, a 17 year-old male who resides in the unit block of Persimmon Drive in the community of Sylvan Park in Bear. He has been linked to two pizza delivery robberies that occurred last month.

During the course of the investigations, detectives conducted numerous interviews and obtained valuable information with help from the Delaware State Police, which assisted them with identifying Troy Williamson, as the suspect involved in the crimes.

One robbery occurred on Sunday night, October 16, as the driver was delivering an order to a home in the 200 block of North Antlers Lane in the community of the Fox Run Townhouses The second robbery took place on Thursday night, October 20, as the driver was delivering an order to a home in the 600 block of Corsica Avenue in the community of the Pine Woods Townhouses

On Thursday, November 3, detectives executed a search warrant at his home and evidence was discovered inside the residence that helped to link him to the crimes

Williamson Trov charged with the following crimes: Possession of a Firearm during the Commission of a Felony (Two Counts) and Robbery in the First Degree (Two Counts). He was arraigned and committed to the New Castle County Juvenile Detention Center after failing to post $20,000 cash bail.

Two linked to several thefts from motor vehicles

New Castle County Police have arrested Kristin Kemplen and have warrants on file for Kyle Jones in connection with several thefts from motor vehicles that occurred Wednesday morning in the community of the Linden Green II Condominiums.

On Wednesday morning, November 2, at 3:39 a.m., County Police responded to the 5500 block of Limeric Circle for the report of thefts from motor vehicles. When police arrived, the 17 year-old victim indicated that he was in his vehicle with his girlfriend when the window the vehicle was smashed out by an unknown white male subject. The victim, who sustained an injury to his hand during the incident, chased the subject until he entered a blue Scion bearing a Delaware registration that was occupied by his accomplice, who was described as an unknown white female. The vehicle then fled in an unknown direction.

Police responded to the home of the registered owner, located in the 600 block of South Harmony Road, and observed the vehicle as it was parked in the driveway of the residence. Further investigation revealed that two subjects, later identified as Kristin Kemplen and Kyle Jones, stay at the home and were using the vehicle during the night. A short time later, Kemplen was positively identified as one of the subjects involved in the incident and was taken into custody while at the residence. Jones was later identified as the other subject involved in the crime. A search warrant was executed at the home and evidence was recovered linking them to the crime.

She later had an idea to bring a Greek shop to Newark for University of Delaware students.

That was 1988.

The New Castle County Chamber of Commerce recently named O'Dell Hoke the winner of its annual Entrepreneurial Woman of the Year Award. O'Dell Hoke will receive the award at the 21st annual Business Women's Expo set for November 16, 2011 at the University of Delaware's Clayton O'Dell Hoke has owned Unique Impressions on North College Avenue in Newark for 23 years.

She began with a phone book finding fixtures for the store. During the day she helped customers. At night she cut, sewed, and pressed.

Today, Unique Impressions offers embroidery, screen printing, and a full line of promotional products. The business has grown to eight full- and up to 25 part-time employees.

Unique Impressions has become a landmark destination in Newark.

The County Chamber created the Business Women's Expo in 1990 in an effort to recognize the important impact women have made to the local economy. It has quickly become one of the signature events

Friday night under the lights

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

No. 1 vs. No. 2. Taylor Reynolds vs. Darius Wade. Butch Simpson vs. Mark DelPercio. Newark vs. Middletown. Goliath vs. Goliath.

Anyway you say or write it, Friday night's showdown at Hoffman Stadium is huge. The winner claims the Blue Hen Flight A title and a likely firstround bye in the upcoming state tour-

The loser? Well, they'll still be in the tournament, just most likely having to play in the first round.

And for those thinking that because there isn't a tournament berth on the line that both schools will play a little less hard and maybe keep some of their tricks in the bag, think again. These teams are both playing to win.

"We know we have a playoff bid," Newark quarterback Taylor Reynolds said shortly after the Yellowjackets' playoff-clinching win over Glasgow, but we want to win this game for bragging rights and pride."

"We have plenty of motiva-tion to play this week after a loss," Middletown coach Mark DelPercio said following his team's upset loss at home to William Penn. "There will be no problem getting my team to get motivated to play on Friday."

The Newark-Middletown rivalry

isn't at the level of, say, the annual St. Mark's-Salesianum clash. But on Friday night, it will be as big a game as any in the state this year. And the biggest this Newark senior class has ever participated in.

"We are very excited," Reynolds added. "We have been looking forward to this game all year."

Reynolds and company have not beaten Middletown during their varsity careers and would like nothing more than to knock the Cavaliers off and cement their own status as the team to beat in the state tournament.

Both teams are loaded with offensive firepower. Top-ranked Newark averages over 41 points per game, No. 2 Middletown 37. Both teams have athletic quarterbacks who possess rifle arms and a knack for the game rarely seen at this level. Reynolds has eight Division I-AA offers on the table, including from Delaware and several of its CAA rivals. Most likely Middletown quarterback Darius Wade will someday too.

And both quarterbacks have weapons as targets.

Reynolds throws to two North Carolina State-bound receivers in wide receiver Xavier Griffin and tight end Dave Grinnage. Wade's primary target, wide receiver Chris Godwin, is injured and DelPercio said most likely won't play the rest of the season. But there are others in Wade's arsenal, including tight end Aaron Brant and split end Luis Prado, who have 10 touchdowns between them.

When the passing game isn't clicking to perfection, both quarterbacks have a capable running back named Jordan to hand the ball off to: Newark's Jordan Imeokparia and the Cavs' Jordan Griffin.

What about the defenses? Both are overlooked due to the high-powered offenses, but both are capable of stopping opponents. Newark has given up a touchdown or less in four of its games, while Middletown has done the same seven times this season.

"We have to be able to defend the pass for sure," linebacker Keith Green said. "And I believe our defensive backs are more than capable. We just have to stay focused and not let up. This is a huge game in more than one way and the entire team knows this.

The entire team will celebrate senior night before kickoff Friday night, and the Yellowiacket seniors have come a long way from the 2-8 season suffered just two years ago. It's a chance for the football class of 2012 to stake their claim as one of the best teams in school history. It's a chance to put the final stamp on a season many refer to as "Newark's return to tradition."

It all happens Friday night under the lights.

Note: If you can't make it out to the game listen live on 1290theticket.com as Scott Klatzkin and I will bring you all the action starting with the pregame show at 6:30 p.m. and followed by kickoff at 7 p.m.

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation honors Jastrebski with 2011 Community Health Leaders Award

Marc, who was born with Down syndrome, going to the doctor or dentist felt like torture. His fear of doctors-and the way health care providers were treating him-led to episodes of screaming and sometimes hitting to the point where the blood vessels in his face broke. Ultimately, his fear resulted in missed medical visits and health problems.

"Standard practice for working with fearful patients had been to subdue them or hold them down. I knew there had to be a better way," Jastrebski said. She was determined to help her son work through his fear of seeing doctors. Her approach led to Practice Without Pressure, which she founded to help people with special needs learn skills to handle routine dental exams, blood draws, women's health exams, and nail and hair care. Today the organization works with hundreds of individuals, families, and providers. In 2009, Jastrebski opened her center to provide both practice sessions and actual medical treatment for patients with disabilities

For creating a strategy to help people with disabilities complete routine medical visits without fear, Jastrebski has been named one of 10 recipients of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Community Health Leaders Award. The award honors

For Deb Jastrebski's son exceptional men and women who have overcome significant obstacles to tackle some of the most challenging health and health care problems facing their communities. Jastrebski received the award during a ceremony in Baltimore, Md., on November 9.

'Marc had problems with eye exams, dental visits, and also haircuts, which don't hurt. But he was scared, and we had to make it less scary for him," Jastrebski said. She had worked as a physician's assistant after college, so she knew how to give shots and draw blood, and she'd worked as a computer specialist, so she was well versed in analyzing and solving problems. To help her son prepare for medical and dental treatment, she broke down each routine procedure into small steps. Over the course of two weeks. Jastrebski rehearsed these visits with Marc, enabling him to cooperate during routine medical and dental visits without her help and without sedation or restraints.

It wasn't long before other families with children with special needs started knocking on Jastrebski's door. "I would meet with them at my kitchen table, and we saw about 50 families in a twoyear period," said Jastrebski. As founder and chief executive officer of the nonprofit Practice Without Pressure in Newark, Jastrebski is now working to change how health care providers are taught to treat people with special needs in medical school.

For example, a patient with cerebral palsy might need five to 10 seconds just to turn her head. "If a dentist can understand that in advance, and prepare for it, it's no longer problem," said Jastrebski, who often videotapes practice sessions with patients to help show health care providers what to expect during an appointment.

This approach saves money, according to Jastrebski. "It costs more to sedate or restrain patients during a medical or dental visit," said Jastrebski. In 2009, her approach helped the state of Delaware avoid paying $260,000 a year for sedation, since the majority of patients seen by Practice Without Pressure have previously been sedated for routine dental care. But after an average of just over two practice sessions, 80 percent of those patients were able to receive a dental exam or cleaning without sedation. And the savings don't end there. "If people are not able to take advantage of preventive care, we pay more for the medical complications later," Jastrebski said.

Community Health Leaders National Program Director Janice Ford Griffin said the selection committee honored Jastrebski for her creativity and for her commitment to helping people with special needs receive health care. "Deb Jastrebski's personal experience has led to new practices that produce better health outcomes achieved by delivering more effective services through a unique marriage of skills and compassion," Griffin said.

Today, Jastrebski's son Marc supports other patients during medical visits in addition to working a part-time job. "When Marc comes in to help us, he will sometimes sit in the dental chair and have a simulated filling done to show other patients that it's okay," said Jastrebski. "It's a long way from that day when the allergist handed me a prescription for a blood test and told me, 'Good luck.' I don't want other families to face that anymore."

"Deb is a true inspiration to anyone who has the honor of knowing her," said Rita M. Landgraf of Delaware Health & Social Services. "Her ability to take her vision and empor er a vulnerable population by introducing them to a stress free approach to preventive care and treatment is transf mative. In addition, she has taught the medical comm nity a new path to serving this population in a more human manner."

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation has honored more than 190 Community Health Leaders since 1993.

benefits, but everyone with a need should apply to find if Food stamps are paid for entirely by federal funds. Like other states, Delaware splits the cost of administering the program with the federal government. A U.S. Department of Agriculture study found that each new food stamp dollar spent increases the Gross Domestic Product by $1.79. In other words, every $5 in new benefits generates as much as $9 in economic activity.

In accepting the bonus payments, DHSS Deputy Secretary Henry said identifying and reaching more these challenging econon times. "Above everything else it means that people who are hungry will have more food on their tables, and that specifically helps Delaware's children. About half of those who receive food stamp benefits in the state are children.

Patricia Beebe, President CEO of the Food Bank of Delaware, praised DHSS for its ongoing partnership with the food bank and other nonprofits across the state Concannon, who toured the food bank following the pres conference, said he had toured the Food Bank of New Orleans last week. He said a food bank is "almost like a church for its impact on people's lives.

Master Food Educator volunteers share their knowledge

By MARIA PIPPIDIS

NCC EXTENSION OFFICE

Since 2009, two classes of Master Food Educator volunteers have expanded the reach of University of Delaware Cooperative Extension family and consumer science programs by lending their hands, ime and talents to nutrition and food safety programs around the county. Due to the uccess of this program for all involved, another training class is scheduled to start the end of January 2012.

Over the last few years, hundreds of hours have been provided by volunteers as they help to demonstrate healthy ways to prepare foods or give workshops on osteoporosis revention or making meals n less time among others. They've worked at schools and community settings to staff exhibits and provide samples of enticing healthy provide foods used in programs offered by our educators and assisted in judging in county and statewide 4-H nutrition programs.

This past week, several volunteers assisted with the Dining with Diabetes program. By demonstrating the recipes, they showed our participants ways to prepare healthful and yummy holiday desserts, side dishes and main meals. They threw in a little food safety information during the session that introduced Chicken Breasts with Apricot-Ginger Glaze and Turkey Meat Loaf with Gravy.

With the Master Food ucators help, NCC Educators help, NCC Cooperative Extension reached over 1,000 individuals throughout the county. Though the group is small they are mighty and we are so pleased with the knowledge they have gained and leadership they have taken in recipes. They've helped to helping families make better provide foods used in profood choices to improve their health.

We're looking to increase our volunteer base. If you're interested in learning more, lending your talents and giving time back to our organization, we may be interested in you. Master Food Educators attend 36 hours of training over 6 weeks to learn new and reinforce their knowledge of nutrition, food safety, food preparation and meal planning skills so that they can share their knowledge with others. Volunteers promise to give back 40 hours of time in return for the training. The brochure and application can be found at http://ag.udel. edu/extension/ncc/nccindex. php. Tips on leaving your child home alone for the first time

By ALLEN DE JONG, MD

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Editor's note: Allan De ong, MD is Director for the Children at Risk Evaluation Center at Nemours/Alfred I. duPont Hospital for Children and an expert on child abuse and neglect.

Every parent eventually nust leave their children ome alone for the first time. lthough staying home alone an be a positive experience or kids, helping them gain sense of self-assurance and dependence, many parents nuggle with a bit of anxiwhen first leaving kids hout supervision. Before aving a child home alone, veral factors should be con-

Although there are no olute criteria for leaving a ild home alone and there is definite way for a parent assess their child's matulevel, many if not most ldren 8 to 9 years of age ck the maturity needed to left home alone. It is best parents and guardians to e into consideration their ild's comfort level, abilities d overall behavior and to k to them about potential ngers (fire safety, what to if someone comes to the or, etc.) before making the ecision to leave them home e, even for short periods ftime. Don't leave children aged 7 and under home alone for any reason and never leave a fearful child of any age home alone.

Length of Time

Children under the age of 12 years should not be left home alone for more than two to three hours at a time, unless they are with older siblings. For younger children, begin by leaving them alone only for short periods of time. As they get used to the responsibility and become more comfortable, the length of time may be increased.

Environment

Children home by themselves should stick to the house and yard. If they are not permitted to go outside, it may serve to increase their sense of isolation and fearfulness. However, if you feel your neighborhood is unsafe for any reason, think twice before allowing children to be outside alone or home alone at all.

• Designate a safe play area, such as the driveway or backyard. Be specific about where the child is and is not allowed to play outdoors.

Remind children that they are not to use certain appliances, like the stove. The microwave, toaster and can opener may be in the safe zone for many children.

• Advise children not to answer the door unless they know (and you know) to expect someone. Be clear about who is allowed in the house and who is not.

• Avoid leaving children under the age of 13 alone in public places, where the environment is much less stable and predictable.

Responsibilities

Children home alone should not be given too many chores or be expected to care for younger siblings for a lengthy period of time. may be asking too much of

• Discuss activities that are appropriate during the child's stay alone. Limit television and computer time as you normally would. Encourage reading, writing a letter or writing in a journal, practicing an instrument, etc.

Availability of Adults

Even if your child can reach you, you may not be able to get to him immedi-ately. It is therefore critical that children home alone have a list of adults, such as neighbors or nearby relatives, who can be there at a moment's Emergencies notice.

Provide a list of your work and cell phone numbers.

· Call your child periodically to reassure him. If you prefer that children don't answer the telephone, develop a code whereby they will know it's you calling. For example, ring three times and hang up. Then they know to pick up on the next ring.

• Be prompt about the time you promised to arrive home.

· Provide a list of emergency phone numbers for the fire department, police and poison control.

· Discuss how to handle emergencies that may arise.

· Make sure your child has a key to the house and that a neighbor has a spare key.

· Discuss fire escape plans. Make sure there is a fire extinguisher in the house and that the child knows how to use it.

Beverley Duggan

Beverley Ray Duggan, peacefully at her home in Newark, on October 30. She was the daughthe late Fred and Florence Ray of Rye, NH, and the wife for 50 years of her devoted husband and loving partner Peter Duggan. Her passing marked the end of her very personal and frequently heroic three-year battle against the ravages of Idiopathic Pulmonary Fibrosis.

A dedicated mother,

Beverley raised four children: Torey Lynn Haydon (married to Jim) who resides in Lempster, NH, Tim (married to Maribeth Timlin) from Greenville, SC, Tierney who predeceased her mother in 2004 and Deirdre Lilly (married to Dewey) of Oxford, PA.

During the early years, her husband, a career Marine, was frequently gone on military assignments so the task of raising the four active children rested solely on their Mom. Perhaps the happiest years for Beverley were during her husband's three-year assignment in Naples, Italy where the entire family surprisingly learned the more tranquil, less hectic "Italian way" of life.

Later, back in the USA, she began her second career as "Nonnie" to eight always rambunctious grandchildren and to the many children in her husband's JROTC program. All received her love and to several of her own grandchildren she served as a second mother while their mothers worked. Her home and heart were always open to Frances, Ian, Conor, Haley, Peter, Colin, Kate and Matty. Beverley was proud that all her children and all of age grandchildren were college graduates with two having mastered Law School.

Bev's professional career commenced when the family moved to Newark. She served as a credit analyst for both the Bank of New York and Republic Bank and then became Credit Manager for her beloved SUNROC Corporation of PA and then DE.

A memorial service remembering Beverly was held on Saturday, November 5. Friends and family called at the Mealey Funeral Home, Limestone and Milltown Roads, Wilmington. A private interment was held at All Saints Cemetery the following week.

Newark site open to collect gift-filled show boxes

While many Newark families are busy with holiday activities, a group of local volunteers is focused on filling empty shoe boxes with school supplies, toys, hygiene items and notes of encouragement for needy kids overseas. Newark families are participating in the world's largest Christmas project of its kind—Operation Christmas Child—an effort that has handdelivered 86 million gifts to kids worldwide since 1993.

This year-round project of Samaritan's Purse is coming to its peak, as local businesses, churches and schools prepare to collect gift-filled shoe boxes during National Collection Week, Nov. 14-21. Volunteers can drop off their shoe box gifts at locations in the area to help kids in 100 countries know they are loved and not forgotten.

Local collection sites: Newark First Church of the Nazarene, 357 Papermill Road, Newark, DE 19711 and Cornerstone United Methodist Church, 3135 Summit Bridge Rd., Bear, DE 19701.

Operation Christmas Child, a project of international Christian relief and evangelism organization Samaritan's Purse, uses whatever means necessary to reach suffering children around the world with these gifts of hope, including sea containers, trucks, trains, airplanes, boats, camels and dog sleds. Tracking technology also allows donors to "follow" their box to the destination country where it will be hand-delivered to a child in need. To register shoe box gifts and find out the destination country, use the Follow Your Box donation form found at www.samaritanspurse.org/occ.

Give the Gift of Art

Nothing says "I was thinking of you" like original, handcrafted artwork - whether it's batik clothing, a sparkly window charm, a photograph that sends a special message, or jewelry to complement a friend's unique style.

From November

From November 22 through December 31, the Main Gallery at the Newark Arts Alliance will be packed with beautiful, affordable, one-of-a-kind items for holiday giving, each created by an NAA member.

The artist reception on Friday, December 2, from 6-8 p.m. is an opportunity to meet the people behind the work. Light refreshments will be served.

Artists with work in the market are: Hutch Martin, photography and mixed media; Karen O'Lone Hahn, painting, ceramics, and children's book; Eleanor Fink, wearable beaded art; Sasha Aber, batiks, jewelry, and children's items; Andrea Barrier and Kate Robbins, enameled and etched metal jewelry; Doortje Shover, crystal and glass; Carole Fox, porcelain, stoneware, and raku pottery; Wendy Shipman, handwoven, often hand-dyed textiles, Karen L. Hornor, handcrafted jewelry; and Elisabeth Bard, fine art photography. Visit www.newarkartsalliance.org for photos of the artists' work.

Hundreds of other items

- holiday ornaments, wooden crafts, ceramics, photographs, decorative pens, and much more – are on display in the Members Gallery. This shop is open all year round as an outlet for the talents of artists who support the NAA by joining the organization.

The NAA is located at 276 East Main Street in the Market East Plaza. Hours for the Holiday Art Market are Tuesday-Sunday, 11 a.m.-3 p.m., with extended hours on Thursday and Saturday until 6 p.m. Twenty percent of all sales benefit the NAA.

The Newark Arts Alliance is a nonprofit organization dedicated to "developing community through the arts." For more information on NAA events, exhibits, and classes, visit the Web site (www.newarkartsalliance.org) or call 302-266-7266.

Donors needed for UD blood drive on Nov.

UD hosts region's largest one-day blood drive for 10th annual CAA Blood Challenge

In just one day, blood donors throughout University of Delaware's campus could save the lives of up to 4,200 people.

A massive blood drive event will take place on Wednesday, November 16 for the 10th annual CAA Blood Challenge. UD is going head-to-head with eleven other schools in the Colonial Athletic Association to recruit the most blood donors in one day. With a goal of recruiting 1,400 blood donors, UD is hoping to land its fifth win in the competition. "Through our continued partnership with the University of Delaware, we are excited to take this year's event to the next level," said Roy Roper, Blood Bank president and CEO. have added several donation locations throughout campus, making it even more convenient for people to get involved. We also raised our goal for the number of blood donors we hope to recruit by 40 percent. It's time to bring the CAA Blood Challenge title back to Delaware."

UD has won the competition four times but has lost the past five years to Drexel University.

This year, there will be four blood drives held throughout the UD campus, including in Newark at the Trabant University Center Multipurpose Rooms from 7:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., as well as Pencader Hall and the Bob Carpenter Center Club from noon to 6 p.m. Donors can also give blood at the Goodstay Center Ballroom on the university's Wilmington campus from noon to 6 p.m. All locations will be open to Appointments are strong-ly encouraged, but walk-ins are welcome and will be taken as time allows. To make an appointment to give blood, visit www.delmarvablood.org or call 1 888 8-BLOOD-8. Detailed blood drive information is listed at http://bit.ly/qnhgXR.

the public.

Challenge competition winitiated in 2002 by the University of Delawar Other competing schoolinclude: College of William and Mary, Hofstra University Drexel University, George Mason University, Town University, Northeaster University, Georgia Sta University, James Madiso University, Old Dominio University, UNC Wilmington and Virginia Commonwealt

University.
UD had 812 registere blood donors at the 2010 competition. Over the pa eight years, the CAA Blood Challenge has resulted in a total of 26,819 units of blood for the schools' local communities.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

Today's Newark Post is date-lined 11-11-11. Today we observe Veteran's Day, honoring all who have served our country in the military - Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Marine Corps, Navy. 93 years ago at the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month of 1918 the armistice was signed ending the "war to end all wars".

November 11th was soon designated as Armistice Day as an annual day to remember the sacrifices of the military in World War fices of the military in World War One. A scant twenty years later armies were again on the move in Europe and Asia. December 7, 1941 the United States became an active combatant in a two continent war. After World War Two Armistice Day was redesignated Veteran's Day.
This week's Out of the Attic item is an undated and unidentified picture of a military honor guard. It was pulled from a box of picture prints used in past issues of the Newark Post. It is a reminder to us all that whether a man or woman served in active combat, in a support role, or in peace-time, whether they were or are on active duty, in a reserve unit, or a civilian component such as National Guard, these neighbors have committed to give all that might be required of them. "Thank you" seems so little and so trite.

Nonetheless, please join Attic in a big "THANK YOU" on this Veteran's Day.

Visit the Newark History Museum
National Section 1877 passenlocated at the historic 1877 passenger train station on South College Avenue beside the bridge on the town side of the tracks.

The museum will be open Sunday afternoons from 2 to 5 p.m. through November.

Individuals, groups, clubs, or organizations are welcome to visit at other times all year by appointment. Call 368-9845 for arrar ments. The Newark Histo Society invites donations or loan of objects, stories, pictures, a other artifacts of places, activities people, and life styles in the Greate Newark Area for its permanent col lections and display.

ROUTE VIRTUAL WORKSHOP

Delaware Department of Transportation

 2010/2011 MONITORING & TRIGGERING REPORT

November 21, 2011

Shailen Bhatt

Available online at this site: http://deldot.gov/information/projects/rt40/virtual_workshop/2011/

The Delaware Department of Transportation (DelDOT), New Castle County, and the Wilmington Area Planning Council (WILMAPCO) would like to invite the public to a Virtual Workshop for the 2010/2011 Monitoring and Triggering Report for the Route 40 Corridor. The purpose of the workshop is to present the details and updates on the Corridor. The workshop will be available online Monday, November 21, 2011 and will be accessible for 30 days.

The Monitoring and Triggering Report is an annual reporting of the Transportation and land use conditions in the Route 40 Corridor, from the Maryland State Line to US 13. It is one of the key recommendations that were a part of the Route 40 Transportation Plan, adopted on June 19, 2000. The report details monitoring results, progress on the implementation of the Plan since 2005, and recommendations of the corridor Monitoring Committee (CMC) of any revisions to the implementation of the Plan. The workshop will highlight this information.

Interested persons are invited to express their views either online or in writing, giving reasons for support of, or in opposition to, the proposed project. Comments will be received during the workshop or can be mailed to DelDOT Public Relations, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903.

The virtual workshop is accessible to persons with disabilities. A transcript of the video is available by a link located below the video on the virtual workshop page. If you need further assistance or additional information, please contact DelDOT Public Relations at 1-800-652-5600 (in DE) or 302-760-2080 or write to the above address
