China loses 'hearts' of the people

by Cathy Thomas

The weekend slaughter of Chinese civilians has opened the eyes of Americans to what life under communist rule can be, a University of Delaware political science professor said Tuesday.

"In a way, nothing could have exposed China so clearly to the people of the world than what happened in the past several days," said Dr. Y.C. Chang. "China is a communist regime and as such, it is oppressive and brutal."

Chang, who came to America 30 years ago from China, said the government's assault on its citizens was a blunder.

"They let the world know what the communists are really like," he said.

The government's assault on the protesters followed the declaration of martial law last month.

Chinese students and workers jammed into Beijing's Tiananmen Square the past several weeks, calling for democratic reform.

University of Delaware history professor Dr. David Pong said the students want "more participatory government."

He does not refer to the protests as a "call for democracy" because, he said, the word democracy can have many different meanings.

Pong, who came to America from Hong Kong 20 years ago, said China will never be the same after the events of the past few days.

"It certainly has tarnished the image of the government," he said. "It has undermined the good will that has been built up."

Chang believes the actions of President Bush to halt U.S. arm sales to China is a "good start" to protest the weekend massacre.

"If things become worse," he said, "I think the United States should adopt more restrictive policies."

A Beijing man challenged a line of Chinese army tanks Monday, standing in the way of the first tank to stall the column. Eventually, friends pulled the man to safety so he would not get crushed by the tank.

The image of the man has become a symbol of the Chinese people standing up to their government. "When I saw the young man who dared stand up to the tank, I was deeply moved," said Chang.

University of Delaware graduate student Zongyin Qiu, was shocked by the scenes from her homeland.

Fake ID's halted

A 20-year-old Wilmington man faces forgery charges for producing fake licenses patterned after a new design which Delaware Division of Motor Vehicle officials thought was tamper-proof.

Thomas J. Healy was charged with nine counts of second degree forgery and one count of possession of a forgery device following a local investigation, according to Newark Police Cpl. James Weldin.

The forgery was discovered several weeks ago when two University of Delaware students tried to enter the Stone Balloon, a night club on Main Street, with the fake identification cards.

An alert bouncer spotted the forgery and seized the fake cards for submission to the police.

"When I saw how good these were, I was concerned," said Weldin. "They had only a few minor flaws."

Weldin said police believe Healy, a restaurant worker, stole a case of plastic laminate from the Division of Motor Vehicle office in Wilmington. The laminate, which had the word Delaware and a blue hen on it, was supposed to make reproduction of the cards difficult.

Police believe Healy then bought a $1,750 Polaroid identification camera.

Weldin said he was able to find Healy through the students whose names were on the seized

200 vying for U of D presidency

by Cathy Thomas

More than 200 people are under consideration for the presidency of the University of Delaware.

"Our goal at this point is to have someone selected and in place by July 1990," said Jack Burris, University trustee and chair of the presidential search committee.

A new president is being sought to succeed interim President Dr. E. Arthur Trabant.

Trabant, who had served as the University president for 18 years, retired in 1987 then returned to the presidency in 1988 when Russel C. Jones resigned.

Burris said the trustee committee has been working closely with the faculty and community advisory committee to reduce the number of candidates to a "workable number."

"It's a monumental task just sorting that out," he said.

Of the persons under consideration, 188 were nominated. Another 31 people applied for position through advertisements placed by the search committee.

Burris said some well-qualified people are among those under consideration.

"It's quite an impressive list," he said. "Some very good people have been nominated."

The faculty and community advisory committees were formed to allow for input into the selection process from all aspects of the University.

Some had complained that the selection of Jones as president was a process that only involved trustees.

Burris said the committees are working well together.

"The faculty advisory committee is meeting almost every week," he said.

Nominations and applications are still being accepted by the search committee.

"We will not cut it off," said Burris. "There may be someone — a superstar — who comes out of the woods at the last moment."

Burris said they hope to have the list of candidates narrowed down to 10 by September. The interview process will follow.

The following statistics have been compiled on the candidates.

- The candidates represent 42 states, the District of Columbia and one foreign country.

- University presidents, chancellors or executive vice presidents make up 23 of the candidates. Fourteen are university provosts and 21 are university vice presidents or deans.

- Twenty-seven candidates are women.

Holy hive! Swarm shakes semi

by Joe Clancy

ELKTON, Md. — They could have been filming another low-budget B movie. Call it "The Swarm II."

An estimated 20 million honey bees were accidentally dumped from a Florida-bound truck early Saturday morning at the Petro Truck Stop on Md. 279, just west of Newark.

The bees created quite a buzz, keeping beekeepers, fire fighters, state inspectors and even a University of Delaware professor at work for nearly 24 hours during an extensive and difficult round-up.

"It was quite a mess," said beekeeper Paul Schaefer. "I've never seen anything like it."

The bees were riding comfortably in 400 hives stacked on a flat-bed truck when the load shifted and the cargo spilled onto the Petro parking lot.

The accident occurred when truck driver Michael A. Pilgrim II tried to back onto Petro's scale after adjusting the truck's rear axle.

The trailer's load shifted and a chain broke, sending the entire load over the side and agitating the winged passengers, according to Robert Logan, security manager for Petro.

A number of bee experts were called to the scene, including Dr. Dewey Caron, a University of Delaware entomologist, and I. Barton Smith Jr., Maryland state apiary inspector.

It was determined that clean-up crews should not attempt to reload the bees until nightfall, when bees are less likely to be active.

So Singler Fire Company volunteers spent the day hosing down the parking lot to keep the bees cool and quiet.

About 7 p.m., the real action began as 12 men dressed in protective gear peeled back the hives' protective screens, broke the hives into sections, stacked them back together on pallets and had them forklifted onto the truck.

County police promote Taylor

A Pike Creek man has been promoted to the rank of sergeant in the New Castle County Police Department.

Sgt. Bruce D. Taylor, 38, received the promotion last week.

He has received two letters of commendation from the department and numerous letters of commendation from citizens, professional groups and other law enforcement agencies. He was named the Brandywine Hundred Kiwanis Officer of the 2nd quarter in 1983.

Taylor has served in patrol, criminal investigation and evidence detection units of the department. He is currently assigned as the division's firearms officer and physical training instructor.

Smith students recall Parisi

The students of Jennie Smith Elementary School recalled one of their fallen mates last week.

In honor of the memory of Jason Parisi, who died in a bicycle accident last fall, Smith students presented a check to the Brookside Soccer League for construction of a refreshment stand.

Parisi was active in the league. Students raised the money through a variety of activities.

Crazy Planet car caravan

Celebrating the rise of the Baltimore Orioles, a rise which coincides with the release of the Crazy Planet Band's song "Comeback Kids," the band will lead a car caravan to Memorial Stadium on Tuesday, June 13.

Vic Sadot, Crazy Planet Band leader, said anyone is welcome to join the caravan, which will form about 5 p.m. in the parking lot of the Newark Food Co-operative and the East End Cafe.

Fans will purchase general admission tickets at the gate. Once inside Memorial Stadium, they will unfurl a "Comeback Kids" sign touting the song.

Sadot is hoping the Orioles, who got off to such a horrible start in 1988, will use the song as an anthem to their resurrection in 1989.

Nursing Mothers marks 25th

Nursing Mothers Inc. will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a fund raising group yard sale Saturday, June 10.

The sale will be held 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Kirk Middle School, just off Chestnut Hill Road. It will feature refreshments, baked goods, used items and hand-crafted items.

Nursing Mothers was founded in 1965 to provide non-medical advice and support for women breastfeeding babies.

Three candidates seeking seat on council

by Cathy Thomas

Newark city elections have come a long way since April 1987.

The city election that month was cancelled because all the city council candidates were running unopposed.

In the June 20 special election, three people have filed for the Fifth District seat on council.

"We've got three candidates which makes for an interesting race," said Sam Burns, Newark Elections Board chairman.

The last person to file for the office before the May 22 deadline was Annette Holliday Cornish. Cornish, 47, is a teacher at Shue Middle School near Newark.

Jane M. Tripp, 56, is also seeking the seat. She is an assistant to the state personnel director.

Arthur H. Amick, 64, was the first person to show interest in the seat. He is a retired DuPont Company.

The vacancy was created by the April election of Ronald L. Gardner as mayor.

Only about 2,000 of the city's 10,000 registered voters will be able to cast ballots in the special election. To vote in the election, a person must reside in the Fifth District.

Although the candidates have some similarities in that they are concerned about development and have been long-time Newark residents, there are many differences among them.

Cornish may be the first black female to seek a city council seat. She is a physical education teacher at Shue Middle School and is studying for her doctorate in urban studies.

Tripp is a former city employee. She moved her in the 1960s, and later went to work in the city manager's office.

Amick was an industrial engineer with the DuPont Company. He is the father of State Rep. Steven H. Amick, R-Newark.

All of the candidates have been involved in local politics, although to varying degrees. Amick served as the treasurer for Gardner's campaign.

Burns is hoping for a good turnout of voters June 20.

"We're having it early enough in June so most people haven't left for vacation," he said. "There's a lot of registered voters in that district, and they should turn out to vote."

Fifth District voters may cast ballots from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church on Nottingham Road.

Executive fills top administrative posts

Minority personnel posts recommended by transition team

New Castle County Executive Dennis E. Greenhouse has filled two county administrative posts created as a result of recommendations by his transition team.

Greenhouse named Nathaniel V. Thompkins a minority business-contracts officer and Gregory K. Williams an affirmative action officer.

The transition team recommended that the county's affirmative action-minority business enterprise office, which had been only one job under the last administration, be separated because the combination of the two offices de-emphasized their importance.

"My administration is committed to treating disadvantaged classes fairly, both as employees and as potential contractors," explained Greenhouse.

Thompkins, a Delaware Law School graduate, is analyzing the recent Supreme Court decision Richmond, Va. vs. Croson to determine its impact on New Castle County's existing goal-oriented minority business enterprise program.

The Richmond decision eliminated race-conscious set-aside programs that were not established as a direct result of past discrimination.

Thompkins' analysis, when completed, will aid the county in maintaining a minority business program that corresponds to the current legal environment.

Thompkins plans to increase services to businesses owned by women and racial minorities by holding a series of public workshops. The focus of the workshops is to educate them to the procedures involved in becoming a certified vendor with New Castle County.

As affirmative action officer, Williams will rewrite the current affirmative action policy "to put teeth in it." The current plan lacks components for accountability, recruitment and training, Greenhouse said.

Greenhouse's priority in respect to affirmative action is "to ensure that minorities have an equal opportunity of employment in New Castle County."

Williams said he will implement that goal by "sensitizing the New Castle County workforce to the social and economic benefits of a diversified workforce."

Williams said the key to a successful affirmative action plan is to increase the pool of qualified candidates and to institute training programs to enable minority employees to acquire the skills necessary for promotion.

Williams is a graduate of Norfolk State University and received a master's degree in public administration from the University of Delaware.

Oberle seeks to resolve home repair disputes

by Cathy Thomas

Homeowners upset over the quality of remodeling in their home may have a way to channel their dissatisfaction.

State Rep. William A. Oberle Jr., a Newark Republican, has proposed legislation, which establishes a registration procedure for home improvement contractors.

The bill also allows for third-party arbitration in disputes that may arise over the quality of reconstruction work.

In its original draft, the bill was aimed at new home construction as well as remodeling. However, strong lobbying efforts by the building industry caused Oberle to revamp the bill.

"The home builders took such a negative position," he said. "It even surprised me."

Oberle said the substitute bill, House Bill 191, is receiving the support of home remodelers.

Under the bill, an aggrieved home owner would file a complaint with the Delaware Division of Consumer Affairs.

The complaint would set in motion a third-party review process.

"I draw the analogy to the Public Employees Relations Board that was established to settle labor disputes," said Oberle. "Anytime you have reasonable people sit down and, through the help of a third party, work toward their differences, both sides win."

The legislation is not one-sided, according to Oberle.

"It is solely designed to assist both the buyer and the seller if the need arises," he said. "I've seen little problems escalate where often times the contractor's reputation is damaged unnecessarily."

Oberle said if a homeowner has a legitimate problem, the legislation will insure that is resolved quickly.

Conversely, he said, if a contractor has lived up to all contractual obligations, the process will save legal expenses incurred in a long-term dispute.

Even though only a few weeks remain in this year's legislative session, Oberle is optimistic that the bill will reach the House floor because it has the support of home remodelers.

"I believe this legislation is a giant step forward," he said. "It will provide a mechanism to resolve legitimate problems that exist."

Union receives approval

by Cathy Thomas

The fledgling Christina School District secretaries union received affirmation Tuesday night.

The secretaries voted 47 to 38 to keep the representation.

The State Department of Labor conducted the election after some of the secretaries last month indicated an interest in disbanding the 17-month-old Christina Secretaries Association.

In the midst of negotiating its first contract, the union suffered internal problems. Dissent centered on a union position against the Christina School District tax increase, which went to referendum and was approved by district voters.

Some secretaries were unhappy with that position, believing it could have hurt the children of the district.

"I'm just glad this is all settled," said Charlotte Skinner, president of the Christina Secretaries Association.

Christina secretary Kay Lindell was among those who wanted the union decertified. She expressed disappointment that the union received approval.

"It was a close vote," said Lindell. "I think that gives the union some food for thought."

Skinner said the union passively opposed the May referendum, but did not fight it.

She said the dispute among members should not weaken their stand in contract negotiations.

"I would hope now that they would join us to get this contract settled," said Skinner. "The issues have not changed at all."

Both Skinner and Lindell are glad the vote is behind them.

"We'd just like to put this behind us and go on from here," said Lindell.

Negotiations should resume shortly. The school district and the secretaries are divided over a number of issues, including salary and vacation.

Driving limits now in place for state teens

by Cathy Thomas

For teenagers, the first driver's license means new-found freedom.

But that new-found freedom got some restrictions slapped on it last week under a bill signed into law by Gov. Michael N. Castle.

The law, aimed at improving highway safety, requires new drivers under the age of 18 to be accompanied by a parent or guardian for their first 60 days on the road.

If the parent or guardian is not a licensed driver, the teenager must be accompanied by a licensed driver.

The law also provides that new drivers carry no more than two other people in the car, and those passengers must be family members.

"We are doing everything in our power to cut down on accidents," said Patrick Murray, state secretary of public safety. "We have very scary statistics for new drivers."

Nearly 25 percent of the state's 16-year-old drivers are involved in accidents during their first year on the road, according to state records.

Although some teenagers may object to the new restrictions, Murray said the extra supervision will give new drivers a sense of confidence.

They will have an experienced driver with them to answer questions or give advice, he said.

Murray said state officials hope the restrictions will show new drivers that along with the new-found freedom, there are some heavy responsibilities.

"Driving is not a right," he said. "It's a privilege."

A Better Newark Award

□ The owner of a Winslow Road property has been selected as the recipient of the A Better Newark Award for the month of June.

Lawrence Gulick owns the property at 205 Winslow Road, which was nominated for the overall outside appearance.

The city's Conservation Advisory Commission established the award to recognize property owners of homes and businesses who attempt to improve the appearance of their property through renovations and landscaping.

Evelyn Alemar.

Alemar named county recorder

□ A Wilmington woman has been named New Castle County's Recorder of Deeds.

Gov. Michael N. Castle last week appointed Evelyn T. Alemar to the post.

Alemar, 45, fills the vacancy created by the death of William Honey earlier this year.

Alemar served as the small business director for the New Castle County Economic Development Corporation since 1988. Previously, she was a legal assistant, and she also helped develop her family's small business.

"We have been through an exhaustive search process and looked at many good candidates," said Castle. "Evelyn's strong administrative skills and excellent track record in various county positions stood out."

Alemar will serve out the remainder of the term which ends in January 1991. She has indicated her willingness to run for a full term.

Alemar is a member of the State Board of Parole and the Governor's Council on Hispanic Affairs. She previously served on the boards of the Latin American Community Center and Family Service Delaware.

Flag Day observance

□ An avenue of flags will be dedicated June 14 during Flag Day ceremonies at the Veteran's Hospital in Elsmere.

The avenue of 50 United States flags were contributed by veteran and non-veteran donors from the community and Veterans Administration staff.

The display will extend 400 feet on both sides of the road to the main hospital building. An additional grouping will fly alongside an Eternal Light in front of the Veteran's Administration regional office on Kirkwood Highway.

The flag ceremonies are scheduled for 1 p.m. on June 14.

Balloon releases discouraged

□ A campaign to discourage balloon releases has been launched by the Delaware Department of Natural Resources.

Balloons have been documented to be fatal to many types of wildlife, including endangered species, through ingestion or entanglement, said Janis Thomas, the state's endangered species prevention program coordinator.

"Kids care about wildlife," she said. "When we explain the problems balloons could cause a sea turtle or a porpoise, they understand."

Safe holiday may set pace for summer

No one was killed on Delaware's highways during the busy Memorial Day holiday weekend, and state police are hoping that sets the pace for the entire summer.

"Memorial weekend was excellent," said Cpl. David Citro, state police spokesman. "We had good weather that kept the accident rate down."

Memorial Day weekend serves as the unofficial start of the summer season. The weekend brings with it an increase in traffic, particularly in the beach areas.

State police are continuing their "no warning" policy this summer to help control accidents. The policy calls for police to issue a ticket whenever a motorist is stopped for a moving violation.

"We first instituted this last year to address the abnormally high fatality rate," said Citro.

So far this year, there have been 35 fatalities on state highways compared to 61 during the same period last year. Citro believes the "no warning" has helped keep the fatality rate down.

The number of police officers patrolling the highways has increased with a program that puts administrative officers on the streets.

"A lot of the administrative patrol has been targeted for downstate on the weekends," said Citro.

The population of Sussex County sometimes increases by 10 times as people crowd to the beaches in the summer.

Citro said the officers in the beach areas are there to serve residents as much as they are for enforcement of traffic laws.

"Sometimes a motorist has a flat tire or needs direction," said Citro. "We are there to serve the public."

identification cards.

"Fortunately, they used their real names," said Weldin.

The two students agreed to cooperate with the investigation.

Weldin said University of Delaware Police joined the investigation, as did New Castle County Police, who had already come upon the fake licenses.

Weldin alleged that Healy sold the fake licenses for about $50 during the last few weeks of May, even visiting a University dormitory.

"He actually came down to Smythe Hall on (May) 18 and 19," said Weldin.

Weldin praised the bouncer who made the discovery.

He said the man noticed that the signature of DMV Director Robert J. Voshell appeared to be a heavier ink than on a legal license. The state seal was also darker.

"He is to be praised," Weldin said of the bouncer. "He looked at a lot of licenses that night."

University students participating in the investigation will be charged with possessing a fictitious driver's license, Weldin said.

A conviction on the misdemeanor charge could result in a fine of $25 to $100 and suspension of driver's licenses up to six months.

Weldin said those who purchased the fake licenses could also be charged with forgery but will not if they cooperate in the investigation.

Healy was arrested Wednesday after police staked out his home in the Wilmington development of Cardiff. When he left his residence, he was stopped and his vehicle searched.

Police also executed a search warrant at his home, where they seized a typewriter, about 40 licenses and laminates.

Weldin said the fake licenses are a common problem in Newark, a college town with many young people who want to drink alcoholic beverages but who are under age.

"There's not a weekend that goes by that a forged license does not turn up in Newark," he said. "It's a very prevalent problem."

CHINA

"I just think the government should have much better ways to handle these kind of situations," said Qiu, adding later, "I just want to tell people we want the government to stop this action immediately. If they stop now, less people will get hurt."

Chang also expressed rage over the government's use of tanks and machine guns against its citizens.

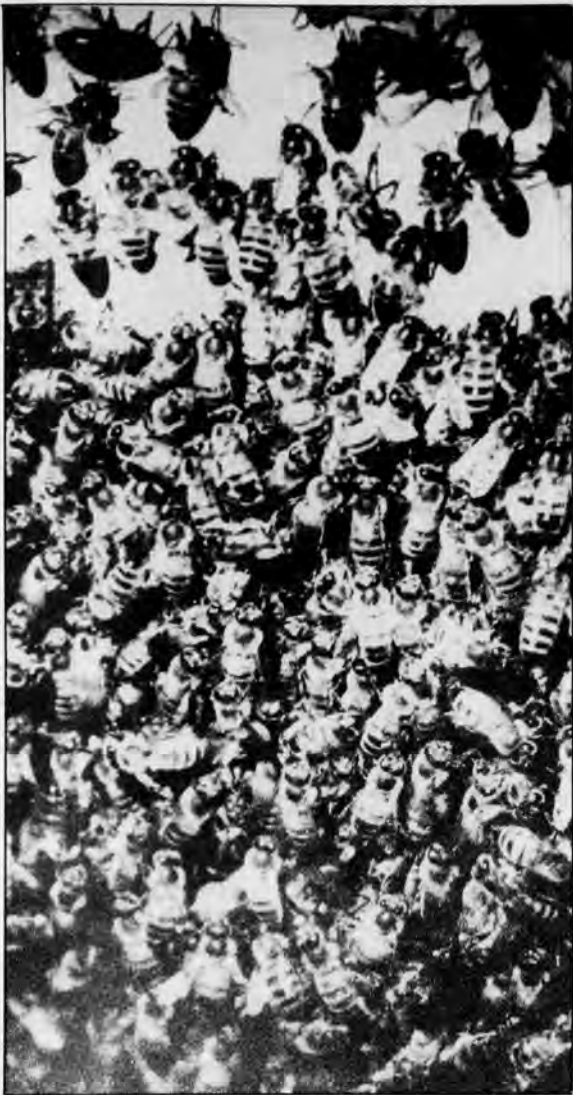

"How does a government dare do this to totally disarmed people?" he asked.

Chang said China is on the verge of a civil war, and there are reports of fighting among army units.

As to whether the recent events in China will eventually result in democratic reform, Chang said the government will be challenged by the citizens.

"They no longer have the hearts and minds of the people," he said.

Bees swarm during truck stop mishap.

BEES

While bees might not like night flying, they don't particularly like to be handled.

"They were not the friendliest bees," said Smith, "and we all got stung considerably."

Considerably meant about 100-to-200 stings apiece.

After the initial accident, Pilgrim drove to the nearby Union 76 Truck Stop where some of the bees, still agitated, escaped again.

Beekeeper Schaefer was called in Monday night to vacuum them.

The bees are owned by Harris Bell Bee and Honey Company of Deland, Fla. and were in transit from New Jersey to Florida.

Logan said bees are regularly transported during the spring, and problems are rare.

However, he now has a new piece of equipment in his security arsenal—a beekeeper's suit.

Although the situation was serious, it could have been worse had the bees spilled during a busy weekday, on the highway, or in a more congested part of the Petro facility.

The University's Caron recalled a traffic accident which involved a truckload of bees, and said Saturday's accident was "easy" in comparison.

You may need higher-octane gasoline as the car gets older and combustion deposits build up, changing compression ratios. Lower altitudes, higher temperature and faulty spark timing may also make higher octanes necessary.

More auto makers are installing rear-seat lap/shoulder belts, more effective than lap-only safety belts.

If a battery seems to be running down long before it should, it may not be getting charged properly. Check cable connections first, then the voltage regulator.

WSFS promotes
Linda Landini

□ Linda S. Landini of Newark has been promoted to senior mortgage underwriter by the Wilmington Savings Fund Society (WSFS).

In Landini's new position, she will be responsible for underwriting WSFS correspondent loans and communicating all guidelines and procedural changes to participants in the WSFS correspondent loan program.

Landini joined WSFS in 1988 as mortgage underwriter.

Prior to that, she was construction coordinator and processor for United First Federal of State College, Pa. 1977-82. She was an escrow teller at First Security Bank in Idaho Falls, Idaho 1983-86 and quality control underwriter at Beneficial Mortgage in Newark 1986-88.

Landini holds a bachelor's degree from Pennsylvania State University. She is a member of the Pinecrest Women's Golf Association, the Wilmington Ski Club and Volvo Team Tennis.

Substance abuse
prevention booklet

□ Substance abuse problems cost the construction industry an estimated $10 billion per year, according to the Delaware Chapter of Associated Builders and Contractors.

The average company's costs rise 6.5 to 8.5 percent because about one of every 10 employees in construction has a substance abuse problem.

To assist industry employers, the chapter has released a resource booklet entitled "A Proactive Step: Controlling Substance Abuse in the Workplace."

Created by the chapter's safety committee, the booklet includes six steps key to establishing a substance abuse policy.

It also includes frequently asked questions, a sample policy, and local resources to use in setting up and managing a company policy.

The compact, easy-to-use booklet is designed for utilization with a more comprehensive text available through the national office of Associated Builders and Contractors, "Implementation of a Substance Abuse Prevention Program."

For information about the booklet, call the Delaware chapter office, 328-1111.

Hunter's Ridge
grand opening

□ Hunter's Ridge, a new residential community on Polly Drummond Hill Road which features spectacular sweeping elevations, will have its grand opening Saturday and Sunday, June 10 and 11.

The site is being developed by Granville Development Corp., and several homes have been sold and are under construction.

Sales will be handled from a designer model home prepared by the Armstrong design group.

Patti Mszanski, who sold homes valued at more than $12 million during two years at nearby Meadowdale, is the sales associate.

Five models are being offered, all specially designed for the community by renowned architect David Rowland.

"Based upon the topography, we had a design opportunity at Hunter's Ridge," said Terry Neal, head of residential development for the Neal family companies.

Upon completion, Hunter's Ridge will have a total of 66 single family homes. Prices start in the low $200,000s.

World Trade
luncheon June 14

□ The World Trade Center Institute of Delaware holds monthly luncheons designed to increase understanding of international business.

The next such luncheon will be held noon to 1:30 Wednesday, June 14 at the University and Whist Club in Wilmington. Guest speaker will be Alex DeDominicis, concept development manager for the DuPont Company.

Fee is $12 and reservations are required. Call 656-7905.

Signing scholarship agreement are (from left) Georgia Boines and John Brock of the University of Delaware financial aid office, Larry Garyantes of Down Under and Peter Shultz of the University of office of institutional development.

Down Under honors UD student

The Down Under Endowment Trust has announced that Stewart Keren, a member of the University of Delaware Class of 1990, is the first recipient of its service scholarship.

At the same time, the trust announced the expansion of its scholarship program, which benefits University students who participate in campus service activities.

As originally conceived in 1986, the trust was to provide one scholarship each year to a rising senior.

Under the expanded program, it will provide three $1,000 scholarships, one to a rising senior and the other two to rising juniors and sophomores.

As the trust continues to grow, it will eventually support full scholarships, including tuition, room, board, books and fees.

In April, a $3,000 contribution to the trust boosted its principal balance to more than $20,000.

The scholarship program was established by the management of Down Under, a North College Avenue night spot, as a long-range program to overcome student apathy. As such, it rewards students who are active in student government and other service organizations.

Because the scholarship is not linked to grade point average, it is available to a large number of students who might not ordinarily qualify for financial assistance.

Keren was presented the scholarship during Honors Day ceremonies. He is chairman of the music committee of the SPA.

27 Newarkers
earn degrees

Widener University conferred degrees on 27 Newark students during recent commencement ceremonies.

Participating in ceremonies May 20 on the main campus in Chester, Pa. were: Michael John Asbury, William R. Baczkowski, Christine D. Bekowsky, Raymond George Berkable, Andrew M. Braune, Roslyn A. Breslauer, Jean W. Byassee, Deborah C. Chiarini, Mark S. Donovan, Susan C. Donovan, Karen L. Figurelle and Velma Whichard Fuller.

Also, Anthony C. Furio, Irene Zweizig Hills, Pamela Andre Jalbert, Angela Lynn LaFrance, Vincent Marianiello, Mark B. Martell, Deborah Black Martin, George Keene McDowell, C. Ronald McGinnis Jr., Susan Carla Pyle, David Bedford Reed, Kathleen J. Ujakovich and Robert A. Vacca.

Presented degrees during ceremonies May 21 on the Delaware campus were Christy Papas and Jon Pelletier.

Claricuzio is teacher of year

Rita Claricuzio, Delcastle High School math instructor and department chairman, has been named teacher of the year in the New Castle Vocational Technical School District.

Claricuzio, in accepting the honor, said her love of teaching is deep-rooted.

"As far back as I can remember, I wanted to become a teacher. In school it seemed natural for me to help my friends with their homework. For me, teaching was learning."

"In my youth, there was a continuous parade of wonderfully supportive people who kept my dreams alive with encouragement to study education and mathematics."

Among Claricuzio's supporters were her parents. "I was most fortunate to have been brought up in a family that valued education and hard work," she said. "Two terms that came to mean the same thing for the daughter of first generation Italian immigrants with little formal schooling themselves. My parents' passion for scholarship and respect for all people were gifts passed on with reverence and pride."

Angela Wessells.

Angela Wessells
is honor grad

Angela D. Wessells of Newark was awarded a bachelor of science degree with highest honors during commencement ceremonies May 21 at Cedar Crest College in Allentown, Pa.

Wessells majored in computer science and mathematics at the 122-year-old women's college, which was named one of the top ten liberal arts colleges in the East by U.S. News and World Report during her junior year.

Wessells, a 1985 graduate of Glasgow High School, has accepted a position as an analyst with the DuPont Company. She plans to pursue graduate work in computer science at the University of Delaware.

During her years at Cedar Crest, Wessells was frequently on the dean's list and was selected for membership in Delphi, an academic honor society. She was included in Who's Who Among Students at American Colleges and Universities, and was vice president of the Math Club and Student Government.

At commencement, Wessells was one of three students presented the Paul V. Kunkel Award as an outstanding senior majoring in computer science or mathematics.

She is the daughter of John and Daphne Wessells.

Students compete in economics

Ten-year-old Josh Arthur is visibly nervous. He shuffles his feet and sticks his hands in and out of the pockets of his shorts.

The P.S. duPont Elementary School fourth grader is ready for competition.

"I think we'll do pretty good," he says, wearing a red t-shirt that signals him as one of 200 entrants in the Meaningful Economic Competition held Thursday at the University of Delaware.

"This competition gives students who have been studying economics a chance to receive recognition for what they've learned," said Dr. Bonnie Meszaros, assistant director of the university's Delaware Center for Economic Education. For the third year, students from all over the state came to Newark to participate in the competition.

The students were placed in teams of four to compete in three different categories. During the production test, the teams had to assemble a product from a given model. They had 15 minutes to make as many as possible, but the end results were strictly judged for their quality.

Supervisors for the competition handed out pastel-colored paper to the students who had to follow the instructions to make as many name tags as possible.

"What could you do to make them faster?" asked the supervisor.

"Make an assembly line," answered a blond-haired girl in the back of the room.

Members of each team huddled together to decide who would do what task.

When the room quieted, the supervisor shouted, "go!" The room filled with the sound of shuffling paper and scissors hitting the desk tops.

The second part of the competition called for the students to be tested on basic economic concepts.

While Meszaros called the concepts "basic," she admitted that some undergraduates come to the university without an understanding of them.

Those concepts include supply and demand, factors of production, accounting profit and loss, and division of labor.

Students then participated in a third category called problem solving.

"Every team gets a bag of junk," said Meszaros. "They have to design a product from that bag of junk."

The bag of junk included such things as cotton balls, straws, toothpicks, rubber bands and pieces of string.

In addition to designing the product, the students were also required to develop an advertising campaign for the product.

Meszaros said most of the students understand the economic concepts by the time they get to the competition. By participating in the competition, they have the chance to exercise their skills and learn about teamwork.

$5,000 per year scholarship to Loyola College (Honors Program)

Forty-three seniors graduated from Caravel Academy on Wednesday evening, June 7th. The class Valedictorian was Mr. James Dingillian and the class Salutatorian was Mr. Jason Dalsey. In addition to the honor of being at the top of their class academically, both boys received scholarships to their respective colleges. Mr. Dalsey was one out of forty students to be accepted into the Honors Program at Loyola College, and he received a $5,000 per year scholarship. Mr. Dingillian was accepted into the Honors Program at the University of Delaware and received a $1,000 Freshmen Academic Scholarship. Other scholarship winners in Caravel's graduating class were: Miss Julie Collins ($6,800 - Wesley College); Miss Dianne Cross ($1,000 - Wesley College); Mr. John Jones ($500 - Syracuse University); Miss Sonya Joines ($500 - Goldie Beacom); Miss Dawn Manion ($6,700 - Washington College); Miss Joanne Mazzaferro ($3,500 - Villanova University); and Miss Gwen Stewart ($6,000 - Goldie Beacom).

The academic awards for the evening went to the following seniors: Mr. James Dingillian, Highest Average in Science; Mr. Jason Dalsey, Highest Average in Social Studies; Mr. Jason Dalsey, Highest Average in Mathematics; Mr. James Dingillian, Highest Average in English; Mr. Jason Dalsey, Highest Average in Spanish; Miss Allison Hedges, Highest Average in French; Miss Gretchen Seeds, Outstanding Achievement in Computer Science; and Mr. John Jones, Outstanding Achievement in Art. The Caravel Music Award and the John Hedges Performing Arts Award both went to Miss Allison Hedges. The PTC Outstanding Senior Award was presented to Mr. Jason Dalsey.

The Frank Skillman Memorial Award for Outstanding Service to the Caravel Pre-School was awarded to Mr. James Dingillian and the Jack Lemley Award for Outstanding Contributions to Caravel Athletic Teams was presented to Miss Jennifer McMahon and Miss Kristi Taylor. The Bucks Athletic Boosters Club presented Mr. Edward Lauver with the Male Senior Athlete Award and Miss Jennifer McMahon with the Female Senior Athlete Award.

Caravel students are known for outstanding service to their school, community, and state. Each year two special awards are presented for school and community service. The Caravel Student Government Service Award and the Gay M. Corrie Service Award were both won by Miss Joanne Mazzaferro. Joanne was Treasurer to the Caravel Student Government and the state Student Government last year. This past year she served as Caravel's President and was Vice-President for the Delaware Association of Student Councils. Miss Mazzaferro also received a very special state Student Government Award that evening. For the past three years, the DASC has given a State Leadership Award to the most outstanding Senior leader in the state. This award was presented to Miss Mazzaferro by Mr. Jamie Shockley, the recipient of the 1988 State Leadership Award. Miss Mazzaferro was also the Senior speaker at graduation. Mr. Edward Lauver, a member of the Student Government Executive Committee, was the recipient of the Student Government Citizenship Award. Other Seniors receiving a Student Government Award for Outstanding Service and Dedication were: Miss Dina Brannon, Miss Melanie Corrie, Mr. Jason Dalsey, Mr. Steven Duncan, Mr. Darryl Duphily, Miss Carrie Jacobs, Mr. Edward Lauver, Miss Dawn Manion, Miss Gretchen Seeds, Miss Gwen Stewart, Mr. Michael Stone, and Mr. Jamal Wiggins. Senior Student Government Officer Awards were given to President, Miss Joanne Mazzaferro; Vice-President, Miss Jennifer McMahon; Treasurer, Miss Deanne DiLuzio; and Historian, Miss Allison Hedges.

Presidential Fitness Awards were presented to the following students: Miss Dina Brannon, Miss Julie Collins, Miss Melanie Corrie, Mr. Jason Dalsey, Miss Deanne DiLuzio, Mr. James Dingillian, Miss Allison Hedges, Mr. John Jones, Mr. Michael Kraft, Miss Dawn Manion, Miss Joanne Mazzaferro, Miss Jennifer McMahon, Miss Gretchen Seeds, Mr. Steven Spirer, and Miss Gwen Stewart. These awards were presented on behalf of the President of the United States in recognition of Outstanding Academic Achievement.

Members of the Caravel National Honor Society were Miss Collins, Mr. Dalsey, Miss DiLuzio, Mr. Dingillian, Miss Hedges, Miss Joines, Mr. Kraft, Miss Manion, Miss Mazzaferro, Miss McMahon, and Miss Seeds.

Miss Joanne Mazzaferro gave special recognition that evening to Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Peoples, President and Vice-President of the Caravel Board of Trustees. A plaque was given to them for their outstanding support and dedication to the Caravel Student Government.

The Senior Class of 1989 will have many fond memories of their last year at Caravel Academy. Special events for the year included a Senior trip to Disney World and a Senior Banquet which was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Peoples. This year's class advisor was Mrs. Carol Taylor.

Following the graduation ceremony, the Class of 1989, their parents, and guests were honored at a reception given by the Peoples family.

Bell, Buzby named outstanding UD seniors

Heather M. Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary P. Bell of Wilmington, and Jonathan H. Buzby, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Harlan Buzby of Pennsville, N.J., were named the outstanding senior woman and man of the University of Delaware's Class of 1989, receiving the Emalea P. Warner and Alexander J. Taylor awards, respectively.

The awards, presented annually by the University of Delaware Alumni Association, recognize outstanding qualities of scholarship, leadership, citizenship and character.

Bell and Buzby each received a $500 U.S. Savings Bond at Honors Day ceremonies held recently on the campus.

They also led the alumni procession at commencement May 28 at Delaware Stadium. Their names are inscribed on a plaque located near the Alumni room of the University's Perkins Student Center.

Bell will graduate with a bachelor of science degree in business administration with distinction, with a concentration in operations management, and an economics minor. She plans to seek employment in operations management in the Wilmington area.

A graduate of McKean High School, Bell holds a Sharp Scholarship and Diamond State Merit Scholarship. She was named the Hewlett-Packard, Avondale division, outstanding junior in operations management, and was selected for the Department of Business Administration's panels of distinguished juniors and seniors. She is a member of the Alpha chapter of the Beta Gamma Sigma national honor society.

She was president of the University chapter of the American Production and Inventory Control Society. She also was principal French horn player in the concert band and was a member of the Wind Ensemble, Brass Choir and Commencement Band.

Buzby will receive a bachelor of science degree in physical education and health education. He has been awarded a graduate assistantship in the University's College of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation.

This spring he received the outstanding physical education major of the year award for the state of Delaware from the National Association for Sport and Physical Education (NASPE). He also received the Outstanding Majors Scholarship from the Eastern District Association of American Alliance of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (EDA-AAHPERD). Other honors include the Robert Layton Award, the Walter Kadel Award, University Honors Day Book Award and American Distinguished Scholar Award.

Heather M. Bell and Jonathan H. Buzby, top senior students at the University of Delaware.

Summer school sign-ups

From kings and critters to comets and computers, the Christina School District summer school program will offer a variety of programs.

The program, for students in kindergarten through twelfth grade, will be held June 28 to Aug. 11 at various schools throughout the district.

Mail registration will be accepted through Thursday, June 15.

In-person registration will be held June 19-22 at Newark High School. Hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. June 19 and 22, and 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. June 20 and 21.

In-person registration will also be held 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. June 20 and 21 at Bancroft and Bayard schools in Wilmington.

No registration will be accepted after June 22.

Extended school year programs for kindergartners and first through sixth graders will also be offered. Kindergarten will meet at Maclary, Wilson and Douglass schools, first through third grades at Maclary and Wilson and fourth through sixth at Bayard.

Remediation and enrichment courses will be offered for secondary students. Enrichment courses include typing, word processing, study and writing skills and SAT reviews.

A variety of music courses, including a symphonic band, will be offered.

GED, make-up and original credit courses will be available to adult students.

For information, contact the Christina School District at 454-2493.

Holy Angels student wins national contest

Kari Peter.

by Cathy Thomas

Kari Peter knows of compassion, adventure and inspiration, making her wise beyond her years. She has walked with Mother Teresa, explored ancient Greek ruins and fought for women's rights.

Twelve-year-old Kari has experienced all this through reading.

A sixth grade student at Newark's Holy Angels School, Kari expressed her love for reading in an essay entered in the 1989 Mott's Apple Awards.

She is one of 21 national winners chosen from among 70,000 entries in the contest, which asked students to write about why they love to read, and will receive a $1,000 savings bond.

"Reading allows me to move out of my familiar world and see what lies beyond," Kari wrote in the essay. "Books give me the gifts of flight, incredible journeys and adventure."

Kari said her teacher at Holy Angels, Maureen LaBorde, told her about the contest.

"It just seemed like a really fun contest to do," said Kari. "You just had to tell why you like to read books. It was simple."

Kari, who is busy with studies and other activities, said reading helps her relax. Her favorite books are adventures and other stories which involve children her own age.

"Books give me the gift of understanding and appreciation," she wrote in the essay. "Reading about kids like me — their blunders, struggles and triumphs — helps me to understand myself better."

Kari, who lives in Glasgow with her family, has always enjoyed books, according to her mother.

"We're really big readers in our family," said Bernadette Peter. "Kari was exposed to books before she could talk."

The Mott's contest is not the first success for Kari, who placed second last year in the National Women's Hall of Fame essay contest. She also won the Delaware Daughters of the American Revolution essay contest.

Storyteller Jackie Torrence to open summer arts series

Summer at the University of Delaware means music, theatre, comedy, dance and old-fashioned storytelling.

The fun begins at 8:15 p.m., Friday, June 23, with an evening of traditional folk arts featuring America's favorite storyteller, Jackie Torrence, and musicians Cephas and Wiggins, who have been dubbed "ambassadors of the blues."

The performance will be held in Room 100 of Wolf Hall, on the Newark campus.

Torrence combines facial expression, gestures and vocal sound effects with the magic of words to lead her audience into a world inhabited by giants, wily rabbits, ghosts and some ordinary folks who find themselves in not so ordinary circumstances.

She has recorded a number of award-winning albums including "Tales for Scary Times," "The Story Lady," "Legends from the Black Tradition," "Country Characters" and "Brer Rabbit Stories."

In addition to her own highly acclaimed television special, Torrence has appeared on "Late Night with David Letterman," and has been featured on "Sunday Morning with Charles Kuralt."

Her busy schedule keeps her on the road more than 250 days a year and has taken her from local folk festivals to the stage of Lincoln Center.

Joining Torrence will be Cephas and Wiggins, called "leading exponents of the Piedmont blues tradition," by The New York Times.

A harmonica and guitar duo, Cephas and Wiggins exemplifies the synthesis of African and European elements evident in the blues. These artists choose their repertoire carefully, not only for its musical impact, but also to highlight the cultural and historical components of the blues.

Tickets, available June 14 at Perkins Student Center, are $6 for the general public and $3 for University students.

Other summer events include "Mr. Peale Goes to Town," a Bacchus Cabaret performance written by Drury Pifer and Joyce Hill Stoner.

Charles Willson Peale, the 18th century artist, scientist, Renaissance man and founder of the first American museum, is the focus of this contemporary theatre experience, a musical comedy presented in 18th century style.

Performances are scheduled at 8:15 p.m., Saturday, July 1, and Friday and Saturday, July 7-8. A 2:30 p.m. matinee is scheduled on Sunday, July 2.

Tickets are $6 for the general public and $3 for University students.

At 12:15 p.m., Thursday, July 13, The Jamison Project will give a free preview performance in Mitchell Hall. The dance company will be in residence at the University during Winter Session. The performance is funded in part by the Delaware State Arts Council.

Also on July 13, at 8:15 p.m., Chicago City Limits, an improvisational theatre group will sing, dance and act out its own particular brand of comedy in Room 100, Wolf Hall.

Tickets, available July 3 at the Perkins Student Center, are $6 for the general public and $3 for University students.

"L'Histoire du Soldat (The Soldier's Tale)" with music by Igor Stravinsky will be staged at 8:15 p.m., Wednesday, July 19, at Mitchell Hall.

The performance, which will feature guest actors Peter DeLaurier and Paris Peet, is a fairy tale of good versus evil portrayed through music, dance and drama.

Partially funded by the Delaware State Arts Council, the performance is free and open to the public.

For more information on these summer events, contact Marti Collins in the University's Office of Special Sessions, telephone 451-2852.

Storyteller Jackie Torrence will perform at the University of Delaware.

Alumni College set

Join old friends in "A Celebration of the Arts" at the University of Delaware's 1989 Summer Alumni College.

Scheduled in conjunction with the University by the Sea Summer Arts Festival, the alumni college will be held July 5-9 at the University's Virden Center in Lewes.

The program will focus on various topics in the arts and humanities with presentations by University faculty members. Presenters will include Dr. David Herman, chairperson of music; Sanford L. Robbins, chairperson of theatre; Dr. Harold D. Jopp Jr., dean, University Parallel Program; Byron Shurtleff, professor of art; and Dr. David Norton, professor of philosophy.

Other program highlights will include tours of the Rehoboth-

Lewes area, cuisine of the Delmarva Peninsula and musical entertainment, featuring the Peabody Ragtime Ensemble.

For more information on the University's 1989 Summer Alumni College, contact Bette Cella in the Division of Continuing Education, telephone 451-8839.

Special Olympics will open with a bang

by David Woolman

When the Delaware Special Olympics Summer Games return to Newark this weekend, June 9-11, executive director Ann Grunert will be looking for more than the participation 750 athletes and coaches and 800 volunteers. She'll be looking for spectators.

"Special Olympics has grown to a point now that it has legitimized itself as a sports entity," says Grunert. "There's the emotional thing too, but it is also real sport."

Moreover, what has been lost from modern spectator sports — a display of courage in the pursuit of excellence — still exists at Special Olympics, according to Grunert.

That spirit lives in the tradition of cheering as hard for the last athlete over the line as for the first.

There will be plenty of family-oriented activities over the three days of the Summer Games, which will be held at the University of Delaware sports complex at South College Avenue and Chestnut Hill Road.

Fireworks, skydivers, concerts and celebrities will highlight Friday evening's opening ceremonies. Clowns, jugglers, a petting zoo, computers, a hot air balloon, a giant bubble machine and more will be featured at the Olympic Village, the focal point of the weekend's activities.

"We're going to have a lot of the activities found at sports festivals," says Grunert. "The whole family can come out and be entertained for the day. It's a real family day."

The most pleasant surprise for Grunert has been the very positive reaction Special Olympics has received from greater Newark. The city and university have been most helpful, and the response to appeals for volunteers has been overwhelming. Grunert calculated a need for 600 to 700 volunteers. A full 800 responded to the call and will help the events go smoothly.

Soccer kicks off the athletic activities at 11 a.m. Friday. Friday is also the first day of the athletics (track and field) competition, bowling, rhythmic gymnastics and weightlifting.

Opening ceremonies will be held that evening at 7 p.m. in Delaware Stadium.

Saturday features the aquatics and volleyball competitions, as well as a continuation of track and field. Sunday will bring the artistic gymnastics as well as the last segments of the weightlifting and track and field competitions.

Closing ceremonies will be at 2:15 p.m. Sunday in front of the stadium.

General parking will be in the lot in front of the new ice arena, and information and schedules are available at the Information tent south of the Olympic Village.

Cobras capture 'Cup

WILMINGTON — They look like a typical bunch of 13 and 14 year olds, but they pass a soccer ball like high school seniors.

The touch that helped the Kirkwood '75 Cobras to three consecutive state championships (1985-87) and this year's NorDel Soccer League championship took apart the Kirkwood '75 Comets 2-0 Sunday afternoon in the First State Cup under 14 championship finals.

The win qualified the Cobras for Eastern regionals, to be held in Niagara Falls this year. Two years ago, the Cobras made it to the semifinals at Regionals, the farthest any team from the Kirkwood Soccer Club has ever gone.

"That's what the game is all about," said Leone Pizzini of his team's passing. Team members credit the coach for their skill.

"Today, we played very well," said Pizzini. "That team (the Comets) hasn't played this well against us in a long time."

The Cobras held an advantage at midfield from the beginning of the game, and cashed in 25 minutes into the first half with a goal from Nicky Lombardo, assisted by Cesidio Colesanti. The Cobras' passing provided them with a number of opportunities in the second half, one became a goal by Pat Kelly.

The Comets continued well, and developed some pressure on the offensive end late, but failed to score. They got a particularly good effort from Charles McEwen in goal.

"That's the closest we've ever played that team," said Comets coach Tom Hurtz. "We're getting closer. One of these days we're going to knock them off."

As is the tradition among Kirkwood under 14 teams, the Cobras and Comets will travel to Europe for soccer and sightseeing in July. The Cobras are off to Action during the First State Cup finals.

Austria to play in the Austria Cup tournament. They will also play some friendly games in Italy and Switzerland.

The Comets will make their way through England and Scotland to play half a dozen town teams.

In the First State Cup under 19 championship, the Concord Spirit defeated the Kirkwood Arsenal 4-0. The win was the second championship in a row for the Spirit, which was having a difficult season until a number of its players returned from college.

John Sellars scored a pair of goals for the Spirit. Timmy Jones and Ricky Bush had one apiece. Christiana High School grads Mark Puican and Chris Ashby were also part of the Spirit victory.

The Arsenal has been an arsenal to local high schools of late, what with Davin Rudy of Newark, Scott Mosier and Chris Hayburn of Glasgow, Mike McFarland of St. Mark's and Larry Grine of Christiana on the roster. Injuries have hampered the team this year, but they plan to continue in the New Castle County adult league this summer and next year as well.

"They'll be the first team to play all the way from under 8 all the way to the adult league," said coach Henry Fusco.

In other action involving local teams, the Kirkwood United lost to the Concord Tornado 2-1 in the under 17 championships. The United, champions last year, were led by Steve Tolmie, who scored the goal.

The under 10 championships featured the first ever matchup between two Western YMCA teams in a First State Cup finals, assuring a second under 10 YMCA champion in as many years.

In Saturday's semifinals, the Eagles upset the Kirkwood Wildcats 1-0, and the Strikers upset the Redwings 2-1. The Eagles defeated the Strikers 2-1 in the finals.

Penn ousts St. M.

NEW CASTLE — One inning was all William Penn. High School needed to prevent St. Mark's from going to its fifth straight state high school baseball tournament final.

One inning of typical William Penn offense and atypical St. Mark's defense, and the Colonials won Thursday's semifinal game 9-5.

"We knew they were going to hit the ball," said St. Mark's coach Tom Lemon after the game at Wilson Field. "Unfortunately we didn't play very good defense today. They hit the ball and were opportunistic in taking advantage of our mistakes."

The Colonials, who scored 25 runs in the first two games of the tournament, put together a seven-run second inning to deflate St. Mark's.

Even the ever-optimistic Spartans, defending state champion, two-time defending Catholic Conference champion and state finalist since 1985, had a feeling for what was to come.

"I was kind of nervous at first," said second baseman Gary Lynch. "They're a Cinderella team — it seemed like they were destined to win."

William Penn, coached by Newark High School graduate Mel Gardner, was stopped in Saturday's final, losing 7-0 to Sussex Central. Sussex finished the season 21-0.

Lemon pulled something of a surprise in the semifinal by starting junior Tim Kerstetter over Brian Swed, the winner of the first game of the tournament.

"He was our freshest arm," said Lemon. "He didn't throw badly. We didn't help him and he got himself in a jam. I'd do it all over again."

Things looked just fine at first, with the visiting Spartans taking a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Mike Smyth singled and Gary Olympic ice dancer Suzanne Semanick.

Olympian Semanick faces challenge

by David Woolman

Even during the most difficult times in her life, ice skater Suzanne Semanick has kept at it, her will locked on the goal of becoming a skating coach.

Now, at one of the best times, the two-time national champion ice dancer will take one triple toe loop toward that goal.

This summer, Semanick will direct the ice show that will serve as the closing ceremonies for the First State Games.

The choice was obvious, at least to Semanick's own coach, Ron Ludington, director of the University of Delaware Ice Skating Science Development Center.

"Eric (Conrad, director of the First State Games) asked Luddy to suggest a good director for this ice show," says Semanick. "Luddy mentioned how I'm always helping the kids here, I'm always choreographing, working with them, pretending to be a coach."

"I love the feeling of organizing and doing, so Luddy said, 'Here, this is your chance.' It's a challenge for me — there's really a lot involved."

Tentative plans have a variety of skaters representing the entire development program at the University, from juniors and seniors to dancers and pairs, doing individual routines and joining together for two group numbers, one related to the dimming of the Olympic flame.

Even Semanick and partner Ron Kravette will perform.

"No one's going to get tired at this show," Semanick said. "There's going to be three or four minute (routines) max, and you're not going to see the same skaters three times during the show. It's going to be high energy."

"Even though there will be five different age groups in the show (and two different disciplines), the group numbers will make everyone look exactly the same," says Semanick, who plans on challenging the skaters involved.

"What I'm going to do is make it technically very hard. Pairs don't do dancers' footwork. We cannot do their lifts. We're going to take the best of both. I'm going to give the pairs footwork that will challenge them, and they're going to give us lifts for Ron and I to do."

"There have been group numbers in previous shows and sometimes they get a little stale or trendy. I want to come from a different angle."

Semanick as the director who must attend to a host of logistical details makes for an interesting contrast to Semanick as the competitor for whom arrangements must be made.

"You have to get confirmation from the kids. We're still working on some. Plus trying to find the best variety of old and young skaters so no one gets bored and everyone sees a big contrast," she said, ticking off just a few of a long list of problems.

"Another challenge is the choreography of an opening number and a closing number with all the skaters involved. Plus trying to set up props. Meanwhile we have to do this

Blue Hen coaches retire

University of Delaware head coaches Mary Ann Hitchens (field hockey) and Janet Smith (womens lacrosse) have retired from their coaching positions to take new jobs in the University's College of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation.

Hitchens, the fifth winningest coach in collegiate field hockey history, with 196 wins over 16 years, will become the associate director of athletics in July, succeeding Scotty Duncan.

Smith retired after 10 years, which included three straight national titles, to return to teaching responsibilities full time, including the direction of the physical education teacher preparation program.

Forster wins at NCC

Lil Forster was the winner of the recent Patterson-Schwartz match play tournament for lady golfers at the Newark Country Club. Betty McLellan was the runner up.

Strikers win soccer title

The 1980 Western YMCA Strikers won the A division championship at the Al Dougherty Memorial Tournament in Fairfax, Va. two weekends ago.

The Strikers defeated Reston, Va. 2-1 in the first round, Rockville, Md. 5-1 in the second round, Seneca, Va. in the third round and Manassas, Va. 2-1 in the semifinals to advance to the final round, where they shut out Seneca 4-0.

Patrick McKay and Brian Giovannozzi each scored four goals in the tournament. Lee DeShazor, Dan MacElroy and David Hudson had two goals a piece, and John Blau, Craig Moore and Bryheem Hancock had one.

Jason Fisher and Wesley Hayman provided strong play at midfield, and the defense of Jarratt Roberts, Ryan Ruohonen, Shaun Nimitz and Robbie Ballas held the opposition to four goals in five games.

The team is coached by Bob Ballas and Patrick Adams, and sponsored by R.C. Peoples, Inc.

Easter Seal softball marathon

The 1989 Easter Seal softball marathon to benefit physically and mentally disabled children and adults in Cecil County, will be held Saturday, June 10 at Pine Grove Field in Elkton, Md.

Teams must raise a minimum donation of $150 to play. Each 15-member team will be matched with teams of comparative ability. Prizes are awarded for fundraising efforts and not wins.

For more information, call 658-6417.

Five earn softball honors

Five players from local high school softball teams have been named to the All-Blue Hen Conference Flight A first team.

They are second baseman Niki Tarantino and outfielder Erica Ohliger, both of Glasgow High School; first baseman Pam Wisniewski and outfielder Tammy Ferguson, both of Newark High School; and first baseman Katrina Blair of Christiana High School.

St. Mark's athletes cited

Seven St. Mark's High School baseball players have received All-Catholic Conference honors.

Pitchers Mike Oller and Tom Neylon, second baseman Gary Lynch, third baseman Brian Wallace and outfielder Mike Donovan were named to the first team.

Pitcher Bryan Swed and catcher Chris Milyo made the second team. Head coach Tom Lemon was named coach of the year.

Four Hodgson players honored

Four Hodgson Vocational Technical School baseball players have received Blue Hen Conference Flight B honors.

Pitcher Mark Brock and first baseman Rick Schulte were named to the first team. Outfielder Rick Hammond and utility man Wayne Wilson were named to the second team.

WNRK to cover LPGA championship

WNRK will air live reports from the McDonalds LPGA championship tournament June 19-25 at the DuPont Country Club. Al and Andrew Campagnone, Tim Qualls, Rob Phillips and Joe Vietri will broadcast hourly reports on the biggest tournament on the women's pro tour.

Wheelchair sports complex

A dedication ceremony for Wilmington's Wheelchair Sports Course at Speakman Park, 30th and Spruce Streets, will be held Friday, July 9 at 11 a.m.

The course is a specialized recreation system for the disabled designed by the Stanford University Heart Disease Prevention Center and the Arizona Heart Institute to motivate heavy use by all levels of wheelchair sports enthusiasts. It consists of a number of outdoor exercise stations which teach and score participants.

Wilmington Mayor Dan Frawley will be on hand for the dedication.

Glasgow 'ironmen' win state title

CLAYMONT — One might say the seeds of Glasgow High School's athletic resurgence are being planted in the weight room.

The day after the Dragon boys track team finished third in the state, 10 members of the 150-strong Glasgow weightlifting club won the boys high school team weightlifting competition.

Glasgow topped three other Delaware schools entered in the competition.

As weightlifting grows as a necessary preparation for other sports, the results of the efforts in that weight room may be more than victories in lifting competitions.

The competition has 10 athletes from each team (three seniors and seven underclassmen) attempt to bench press their body weight as many times as they can in one trial.

This allows the smaller athlete to compete with the bulkier athlete usually associated with weightlifting.

In fact, the former may have an advantage. As Glasgow weightlifting coach Chuck McVaugh says, "it favors the lean and mean guys."

Glasgow, which won the competition last year, has plenty of both, and set a competition record with 226 repetitions for the 10 man team.

"Weightlifting is not a recognized sport," says McVaugh. "Most schools don't have clubs as organized as we are."

The club has been well supported by both the school, which has provided much of the equipment, and by the 10 percent of the student body who shell out $8 for a club t-shirt and membership.

"We just happen to have a large group of dedicated kids," says McVaugh. "Many schools don't have 10 kids involved."

Leading the club is Jerry White, who McVaugh calls the strongest student ever at Glasgow. White lifted his body weight 30 times at the competition, and has bench pressed as much as 370 pounds.

"I wanted to get more," says White. "I wanted 40 (repetitions). My goal was to press 400 pounds before I graduate, but..."

Other members of the team who lifted Glasgow to victory were John Jones, 28 repetitions; Paul Williams, 24; Sovanna De-jvongsa, 23; Pat Williams, 21; Shawn Money, 20; Brian Bowers, 20; Aldwin Doyle, 18; Joe Skalski, 16; and Pete Gad-would have done better at the lifting competition if they hadn't done all of that the day before.

Lifting has also helped them rehabilitate injuries suffered in those pursuits.

"It prevents injury," says Dr. Michael Axe, a Wilmington orthopedic surgeon who sponsors the lifting competition and is also the Glasgow football team's doctor. "It allows all athletes to handle abnormal stress on their bodies. (The athletes) can more adequately handle the demands of contact sports, and there's contact in every sport."

"It gives them something to work on in the off season. I've been a firm believer in drug free weightlifting since I got here four years ago."

In a more general sense, lifting builds the strength and muscle endurance that is beneficial in most sports and necessary in a few, football for one. Strength, muscle endurance and protection are the reasons that nearly every world class athlete is on a strength training program, according to Axe.

Newark High third in BHC golf

Defending Blue Hen Conference golf tournament champion Jason Burns shot a 78 at this year's match to tie for fifth, one stroke behind the medalists.

The result was hardly a disappointment, taking into account the groin injury which prevented the Newark High School sophomore from playing more than a few holes in the two weeks before the tournament. "He didn't put any pressure on himself," said Newark coach Richard Skovronski, whose team finished third overall. "We were right where we should have been."

Though they returned two of the top young golfers in the state in Burns and fellow sophomore Matt Gordon, the Yellowjackets finished 8-4 in regular season.

Gordon, who played in the number one position for the team most of the season, finished the BHC tournament with an 81 after throwing out his back on the 12th hole and completing the round in pain. Number two player John Stritzinger finished one stroke back with an 82.

In the conference tournament, Christiana finished ninth as a team, led by Corey Johnson's 81. Glasgow finished 10th, with Reid Hubbard's 79 leading the way.

Scores of local players in the conference tournament: Jason

Burns, Newark, 78; Reid Hubbard, Glasgow, 79; Matt Gordon, N. 81; Corey Johnson, Christiana, 81; John McLaughlin, G. 82; John Stritzinger, N. 82; Rich Mikus, G. 85; Jaime Rodriguez, C. 90; Ty Tomashek, N. 91; Dave White, N. 93; Tom Copeland, C. 96; Brian Degrave, C. 99; Dan Jordan, N. 100; Andy Talley, C. 107; Bob Ziegler, C. 108; James Balencourt, G. 116; Mike Hall, G. 118; Jason Proddgers, G. 118.

UD classes offer chance to cool off

A wide variety of ice skating classes will be offered in the evenings this summer at the University of Delaware Ice Skating Science Development Center, located on South College Avenue Newark.

Classes to be offered include a precision skating class, a basic badge program and a patch, freestyle and ice dance badge program. All levels of skating from beginner to advanced will be taught. Classes will be grouped according to age and level of ability.

The precision skating course, offered June 13-August 22, will focus on skating formations with groups in time to music. Participation in ice shows and competitions will be expected, and it is recommended that skaters have their own high quality skates. Cost for the course is $45.

Two sessions of the basic badge program will be offered: the first session will be offered from June 14-July 19 and the second session will be offered from July 26-Aug. 30.

Beginners will learn proper sizing and lacing of skates, proper methods of falling and getting up, forward and backward skating and stops. As students advance, turns, edges and some dance and freestyle moves will be covered. Cost is $45 per session. Skate rentals will be available for $2.

Patch, ice dance and freestyle classes also will be offered in two sessions during the summer. The first session will be offered June 15-July 20 and the second session offered from June 27-Aug. 31. Instruction will be in small groups and available for skaters who have passed Beta badges. It is strongly recommended that students have their own high quality skates. Cost is $90.

A $5 family discount is available for each additional family member who takes lessons. Children under 12 must be accompanied by an adult at all times.

Registrations will be accepted in person from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, at the Ice Skating Science Development Center or by mail, with checks made payable to the University of Delaware. Registration should be received no later than one week prior to the first class.

For more information, call the Ice Skating Science Development Center at 451-2788 or 451-8628.

between hockey games and public sessions. And we'll have 15 minutes to set everything up."

And there will only be time for one dress rehearsal. "I want five."

Not to mention the fact that "it's actually a busy time on everybody's schedule. We're all coming back from the Olympic Festival on June 24. We have three days to get organized."

Yet the other skaters remain enthusiastic.

"For them, it's a show that's very early in the season for them to be putting their new competitive things out. It's a big show, but it's not like going to California. It's at home."

"I can't wait to work with them. I think it's fun emulating what Luddy and all the other coaches do...."

"It's funny. I'll ask Luddy where we (she and Ron) should go to get the choreography for our programs for next year and he'll say 'Suzie, do it yourself.'"

"I don't believe I can do it for myself, but through helping other kids, I feel I have a lot to offer. I'm just hard on myself."

As hard as she is on herself, life was harder last year after former dance partner Scott Gregory, with whom she won two national championships, retired. She lost both dance partner and boyfriend simultaneously.

"It took me a good eight months to get over that. It wasn't until now that I could totally rely on myself. I've become so independent, so strong on my own now."

Semanick skated on her own, earning pairs patches useful for future coaching, took on a new dance partner, Kravette, with whom she is returning to championship contention, went back to taking classes at the University, and took on an evening job that was all but made necessary by the recent embezzlement from the skaters' funds.

If anything, the experience gave her a sense of perspective from which she can view the future. And the future for her is becoming a skating coach when she decides her own on-ice career is over.

"I could easily do that. The best part is that I'm not getting paid for this. I like that. I'm teaching for hours at a time and

With so many colleges sending their athletes to the weight room, Axe sees a need to teach the fundamentals and create a basis for that kind of training in high school, hence the sponsorship of the competition.

In his view, Delaware is behind the times in high school weight training, and has a long way to go to catch up to neighboring states.

"If we're going to compete with these other states, we're going to have to change our attitude."

As it stands presently, the attitude at Glasgow towards weight training should put future Dragon athletic teams in good stead.

SPARTANS

Lynch reached on an error. Both moved over a base on Chris Milyo's groundout, and scored on Mike Donovan's single.

Penn had their inning in the second, putting together a long one out rally. Though there was only one error in the inning, the Colonials received a number of extra bases on poorly played balls.

Mike Wallace started the rally with a double to right. He moved to third on a balk and scored on Wayne DeMarco's single. Tim Stoval walked and Bob Crowley was hit by a pitch to load the bases, and Matt Brainard singled the first two in. John Joines hit a triple to right field to bring in Crowley and Brainard, and Kerstetter was through.

Swed came in to relieve, and Chuck Stapleford drove in Joines with a two base error. Stapleford subsequently scored on a Ron Austin single. Penn led 7-2.

Penn scored two more runs in the third, as a Stoval single and walks to Brainard and Joines loaded the bases, and Stapleford drove in the first two with a single. Tom Neylon came in for Swed and held the Colonials to two hits the rest of the way.

The Spartans put runners in scoring position in the second and third innings, but did not score again until the fifth. Milyo singled, Wallace walked and Donovan singled to load the bases. Kevin Lazarski knocked in Milyo on a fielder's choice that erased Donovan.

Wallace scored on a double steal. Lazarski moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Mike McFarland. Penn starter Ray Donley held the Spartans the rest of the way.

"It was a pretty bad way to lose," said second baseman Lynch. "Our defense was pretty solid except for that one inning. You can't blame the pitching — we should have made the plays and got out of the inning."

"The thing I'll remember is not that we lost, but that we fought back and battled to the last out," said Lemon. "That's what St. Mark's is all about."

don't realize it because it's just pure adrenaline and fun. I hope I never have money as an issue when I teach and always remember this, because it's good experience for me."

"Working with people makes me a better skater, too. I have to concentrate. If I show them and I don't do it, I'm going to look like a fool."

"Luddy noticed a difference in my skating after I worked with the Korean team (Ho and Min Jung) yesterday. I was working on my posture all day...."

Though the directorship is both an honor and a step towards the future for Semanick, the ultimate reason for accepting the position is her feeling for skating itself.

"My problem is I can never say no, especially to Luddy. If Luddy told me to jump, I'd ask how high. He's given me so much, this rink has given me so much, I'd do anything."

"If I didn't love skating so much...."

"I was going through that transition period last year when I wasn't so sure that I liked skating. Now, looking back, I see that this is definitely a part of me."

Friends don't let friends drive drunk.

REAL ESTATE

By
John H. Litzenberg
REALTOR

No two pieces of property are exactly alike. Each will have appeal for a certain type of buyer; each might be wrong for another family's needs. Houses are sold by matching a particular family's needs and preferences with the features of those properties that are for sale.

Houses are almost never sold from an ad in the paper. Such ads may start someone thinking about buying but there can never be enough information in an ad to enable a buyer to decide to buy. It takes a real estate agent's careful matching of need against availability to put a family in a house where they'll be truly happy.

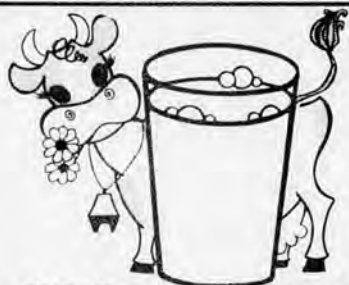

Our skill and experience benefits both buyer and seller. Before you buy or sell real estate, get our ideas and recommendations...no obligation.

June 8, the day of the vacuum cleaner

by Nancy Turner

We've kicked them, cursed them, rolled them down stairs and left them sucking and wheezing on clogs of pet hair, but alas, long live the vacuum cleaner!

Midwestern farmers have used them to groom prize cattle and when Admiral Byrd went to Alaska, he took one to de-ice his Huskies.

On this day, June 8th, in 1869 a U.S. patent was awarded to Ives W. McGaffey of Chicago for his invention of the first vacuum cleaning device. Manufactured by the American Carpet Cleaning company of Boston, the Whirlwind, a non-electric, straight suction vacuum, was driven by a handwheel and belt connected to a centrifugal fan by a pulley.

Because it was clumsy and difficult to operate, the Whirlwind took a real dusting in the marketplace.

In the years that followed, dozens of investors tried to improve on McGaffey's idea, most unsuccessfully. They built heavy iron vacuum machines. They built even bigger vacuum machines that required two people to operate. Using the same principle as an old fashioned water pump, the later machine required one person to vigorously pump a large hand lever on the machine canister to create a vacuum, while a second person aimed its sleek 25-plus pound suction wand at the pesky dirt.

Yes, indeed, it looked like America's housekeepers were on their way to domestic leisure and Hoover of 1908, Electrolux of 1912, Airway, and all the other machines that followed with names like Kirby, Eureka, and Rainbow would be their tickets.

Because market researchers estimate that each year, one out of eight Americans will buy a vacuum cleaner, manufacturers aggressively compete to suck up their share of the $10 million annual domestic sales.

There's just no stopping a good idea. And according to the sales pitches, sometimes there's just no stopping a good product either.

Electrolux sales people currently demonstrate the power of their machines by having them suck up 6 plumb-sized ball bearings at a time.

"Now we have a new display item," explained Dean Kates, Electrolux company historian. "We're opening stores in a lot of major malls and to go a step farther, we are picking up three

The Hoover Suction Sweeper, circa 1908.

Photos/The Hoover Company

16-pound bowling balls at one time with a rheostat attachment to get shopper's attention. People can't believe we are using bowling balls and they say, 'Nah, they must just be full of air.' When they go down, they go BAM! and we sell vacuum cleaners."

"A lot of celebrities own our vacuum cleaners," Kates continued. Lloyd Bridges owns 14 Electrolux vacuum cleaners none of which are submersible, and when Nancy and Ron moved into the White House nearly a decade ago, they brought Electroluxes with them. No one expects the Bushes to make any changes in the policy.

Of course there are those incredible legends that have evolved over the years about "vacuum cleaners that won't die." The Hoover Vacuum Company received a testimony from a woman who is still using a 50 year-old Hoover model. One man wrote and said that he accidentally picked up a live .22 caliber bullet inside his Hoover vacuum cleaner. The bullet discharged, but miraculously, he and the Hoover lived.

Both companies have heard stories about their machines surviving floods and sinking ships, having been underwater for days. An Electrolux machine is said to have survived a house fire and returned to work with only minor adjustments.

"Personally, I like the story this man told us once about his twin sons," said Kates. "He claimed our machine's suction was too great. It turned out that when his two boys were young, they liked to take the vacuum cleaner into his closet and let it 'eat' his neckties. They liked the way each tie would go bloop, glorp, kabloop on its way from the wand to the canister."

To Every Little Girl On Earth:
Note the greatest satisfaction of the possession of this Hoover Electric Suction Sweeper. You too, would enthusiastically recommend it to your friends when you had proven one claim as to its being the means of "straightening" cleaning your home and keeping it clean as the apple, sanitary and nice place. "Hoover Way."
We'll be glad indeed to answer your request for a free demonstration. You will be surprised at results. Very respectfully,
The Hoover Suction Sweeper Co.

1908 ad suggests cleaning "the Hoover way."

On the farm

by Cathy Thomas

Did you know that a full-grown cow will produce about 22,000 glasses of milk a year? Or that a chicken will lay 275 eggs in one year?

Those are some of the facts children learn when they attend agricultural programs hosted by the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Program.

While those facts may be interesting, extension specialists are hoping children will learn something much more basic from their programs.

"The point of the whole program is for children to understand how important agriculture is in their daily lives," said Mark Manno, 4-H extension specialist.

For three years now, Manno and other extension specialists have traveled to area schools, telling children about all aspects of agriculture.

According to Manno, many children are not informed about agriculture, possibly because of the declining number of farms in New Castle County.

The program includes a display of agricultural products, such as farm plants and animals.

"A lot of children don't know what these animals are," said Manno, pointing to the pig, lamb and calf inside a wooden pen.

The program was presented last week to children at Downes Elementary School in Newark. Nearly 4,000 children in New Castle County saw the program during the month of May.

The program, during which children are allowed to pet the farm animals, has become so popular that schools now must sign up for it a year in advance.

"A lot of kids have never touched these animals before," said Manno. "For some reason, the chickens have been real popular this year."

One reason for the chickens' popularity may be the fact that many schools participated in earlier extension program where they watched chicks hatching from eggs.

Housewives and their Living Lies

I pride myself on my honesty — to the point of bluntness, according to my friends — but today I am ignoring my principles and am frantically creating a Living Lie.

"What," you query, "is a Living Lie?"

It is something that every housewife attempts every time houseguests are expected. The only recorded exception is my sister-in-law who is an awesomely perfect housekeeper. Take her freezer; its contents are color coded and alphabetized, starting with applesauce on the top left and ending with zucchini casserole on the bottom right.

I don't know why I go to all this hassle. I do know, however, that I am one of millions. It's not as if my houseguests will leave me a fortune if they are impressed by my housekeeping. Nor are they likely to tell Good Housekeeping to lift its Seal of Approval when they find grime around the woodwork.

I suspect the problem is genetic and may extend far beyond houseguests. When my mother was eight months pregnant she washed all the windows, inside and out, because she didn't want Mrs. Linstrum, the new cleaning lady, to think she was a slovenly housekeeper. As absurd as that behavior is, I would do the same were I to get a cleaning lady like the legendary Mrs. Linstrum.

What is it that makes us assume that the world is going to judge us because of dust on the book shelves or fingerprints around light switches. In almost any other area, I am a reasonably self-confident person. Let someone criticize my teaching, my comment is smile. If that same person wonders about my parenting skills, I suggest that she walk in my shoes. Then if she questions my writing, I put a pencil and paper in front of her. If that rude person continues her probe and mentions that my love handles are growing fullsome, I'd agree and pass her a chocolate meringue.

But tell me that someone is going to stay at my house, and I fall apart like tissue paper in a rainstorm. I get even more hysterical when I am informed that a family member is going to be a houseguest. Why do you suppose that is? Aren't family members the ones you should be most comfortable around? Aren't they the ones that should love you in spite of your faults?

That may be the way it's supposed to be, but that's not the way it is among the people I polled.

Pirouetting through the house and spritzing pine-scented Lysol in the corners doesn't cut the mustard for an overnight visitor. So, here I am with a dust mop in my right hand, a bottle of high-test cleaning goop in my left, and a big black plastic garbage bag between my teeth trying to deflate chaos into confusion.

It is so discouraging. What seemed like a perfectly acceptable living room couch on Monday before I found out about the houseguests now seems positively tatty. Why did I allow myself to be hornswoggled into choosing off-white linoleum for the kitchen floor? Every little spot, speck and spill shows. The dining room

Crazy Planet gains exposure

□ Newark's Crazy Planet Band has been gaining expanded play on airwaves coast to coast, according to founder Vic Sadot. Crazy Planet made its Philadelphia radio debut May 28 when its song "Comeback Kids" was aired by WMMR's Cyndy Drue on her popular "Street Beat" program.

Its song "Ride the Wind" is being heard on "Imaginary Voyage," a syndicated weekly program heard on seven public radio stations in New England.

The band has also been heard on WYYY of Baltimore, WSTW of Wilmington, and a variety of university stations from Maine to Hawaii.

And, of course, the band has long been a staple of various programs on the University of Delaware's WXDR.

The song Drue selected, "Comeback Kids," is Sadot's tribute to the Baltimore Orioles of his youth and extolls the virtues of teamwork and perseverance.

It has been played several times at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium, and tapes have been sent to the Oriole farm teams in Rochester, N.Y., and Hagerstown and Frederick, Md.

Copies have also been sent to every major league team. Alas, to date the only response has come from the Montreal Expos and they said "non" as long as the song is recorded just in English.

The unflappable Sadot then went back into the studio and, with the help of a French Canadian couple he met in Newark, recorded a French language version, "Nos Champions."

Wilmington Music Festival

□ The 1989 Wilmington Music Festival will open Sunday, June 11 with a performance by the Lehigh Quartet.

The Lehigh, artists in residence during the festival, will be joined by violinist Benny Kim and pianist Jaime Bolipata.

Kim and Bolipata are former winners of the Young Concert Artists International Auditions. Kim has appeared as a soloist with the symphonies of Chicago, St. Louis, Denver and Nashville.

The festival-opening concert will feature works by Ibert, Brahms, Dobbins and Chausson.

The concert, like all during the festival, will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held at the Wilmington Music School, 4101 Washington St.

Harpichordist Jory Vinokour and the Wilmington Festival Strings, conducted by Paul Mahr, will perform the second concert on Sunday, June 18.

They will perform works by Vivaldi, Hindemith and Bach.

Vinokour is a prize winner in the Paris International Competition and has performed as a soloist with the Hungarian Chamber Orchestra and the Orquestra Nacional de Colombia.

Clarinetist Alan Greenfield, former principal clarinet with the Spoleto Festival Orchestra and the Orquestra Nacional de Mexico, will join the Lehigh for the third concert on Sunday, June 25.

The concert will feature works by Boieldieu, Carpenter, Barbaras, Bruckner and Mozart.

The festival will conclude Wednesday, June 28 with a concert featuring the Lehigh and pianist Aleck Karpis, a member of Speculum Musicae and a teacher at Columbia University.

It will feature works by Haydn, Rachmaninov, Chopin, Rzewski and Schumann.

Subscription tickets cost $24. Tickets to individual concerts are $7, $5 for students and senior citizens, and may be purchased at the door or by writing the Wilmington Music Festival, 507 Brentwood Dr., Wilmington, DE 19803.

New Ark Chorale auditions set

□ The New Ark Chorale, recognized as one of the outstanding choral ensembles in the Delaware Valley, has announced auditions for the 1989-90 concert season.

Under the direction of its founder, Dr. Michael Larkin, the New Ark Chorale is preparing for its 13th concert season.

Total membership in the Chorale is about 25 singers. There will be openings for two tenors, two basses, one alto and one soprano.

The Chorale presents six-to-eight concerts each season, performing a wide variety of musical literature and styles. If you are interested in singing with the Chorale, contact Larkin at 652-6120 to schedule a private audition. The audition will consist of a brief interview, the singing of a prepared musical selection, and an opportunity to display sight reading ability.

William Wegman's "The Greek Restaurant" is one of more than 50 photographs in "Fantasies, Fables and Fabrications: Photoworks of the 1980s" at the Delaware Art Museum.

'Fantasies, Fables' photoworks gain exposure

I know you have read in here in my column before and heard me say it on my WNRK broadcasts many times, but it bears repeating. Photography is a true art form.

Running right now at the Delaware Art Museum is an exhibit which should be able to remove any doubt you have that what I contend is not true. The exhibit opened last month, but some of us were a bit slow getting to see it!

The title of the exhibition, open through July 2, is "Fantasies, Fables and Fabrications: Photoworks of the 1980s." It explores the variety and vitality of contemporary photography through the works of 32 artists who are transforming the medium.

According to Melissa Mulrooney of the DAM (who made some news herself this month and more about that later in the column), "The Delaware Art Museum is showing the premiere of this traveling exhibition organized by the Herter Art Gallery of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst." A well earned Tip of The Toman Topper to the DAM for the coup!

Melissa went on to explain, "Rejecting the neutrality of traditional documentary styles, the exhibiting artists have created works that are intensely subjective, by turns romantic, symbolic, humorous and disquieting." Well put!

The current show features over 50 photographs covering a wide range of subject, style and technique. Many of the photographers who have works in the show have come from other media, producing pieces that often seem closer in spirit to contemporary painting, printmaking and sculpture than to traditional photography.

"Photoworks of the 1980s" coincides with the 150th anniversary of photography.

The exhibit explores three major trends in the medium. The first is a fabrication of "tableaux," in which fictitious and often surrealistic dramas are staged for the camera. The second is the juxtaposition of text with images, allowing the photographer to share his or her insights on the contexts and subcontexts of the visual imagery. Finally, altered or reconstructed images.

There truly are widely disparate approaches showing now at the Delaware Art Museum, but despite that fact, all of the exhibiting photographers emphasize the guiding role played by the hand and the mind of the artist.

You may see all this and judge for yourself any Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Admission to your museum, located at 2301 Kentmere Parkway, is always free. If you would like more information or to arrange for a group tour, you may call 571-9590.

Now, as promised, the news about Melissa H. Mulrooney. For many years you have read me quoting her or thanking her for photographs as director of public relations for the Delaware Art Museum. Well, no more. Melissa has received a well deserved promotion.

Melissa is now director of marketing and communications for the museum. She will now develop marketing strategies for the museum's newly established support services division and corporate sponsorship of special events and exhibitions. I am very happy to report that she will continue her responsibilities for press relations. Covering the arts in Delaware would be a lot tougher job without Melissa. Take a bow, Mrs. M., you have earned a Tip of The Toman Topper!

Jothi Raghavan to perform Sunday in Newark

Jothi Raghavan, an acclaimed performer of ancient Indian dance styles, will present a Grand Bharatha Natyam, or South Indian classical dance, Sunday in Newark.

The performance, sponsored by the University of Delaware's Indian Students Association, will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 11 in 100 Wolf Hall on the University campus.

Jothi started her career at an early age, teaming with her mother, Vimala Ramanujam, one of the finest exponents of this art.

She studied extensively with the distinguished teacher Kalaimamani Swamimalai K. Rajaratnam, one of the finest disciples of the doyen Padmashri Vazhuvoor Ramaiah Pillai, and has performed throughout India and in the Far East, Europe and the United States.

Jothi was trained in the Vazhuvoor style known for its sculptural pose perfection, grace and elegance.

Currently, Jothi has an active stage career and leads her own dance school, Nrityanjali, in Massachusetts.

Bharata Natya, the dance style Jothi will perform here, is one of the most ancient in the world and may be considered unique in having survived through almost 3,000 years in its pristine state of preservation.

Like all the arts of India, it is endowed with a divine origin. Bharata, the accredited author of Natya Sastra, is supposed to have been initiated by Brahma who invested the art of dance and dramaturgy for the edification of the gods.

Jothi will be accompanied by a live orchestra, with vocal and nattuvangam by V.A. Aravinkakshan, flute by R. Gopinath, and mridangam by D. Kannan.

Admission is $8 per person, $15 per couple, and $3 per student. Children younger than six will be admitted free. Tickets will be available at the door.

University summer film series opens June 11

Hot Sundays and cool cinema make the perfect ending to a lazy summer weekend.

The University of Delaware has scheduled four distinctive films on consecutive Sunday evenings beginning June 11.

"Home of the Brave," with writing, direction and visual effects by Laurie Anderson, will launch the series on June 11.

Produced by Paula Mazur, the film combines Anderson's electronic vocal and video effects, quirky avant-garde music and insightful lyrics, suffused throughout with sound, light and movement in an environment of astounding imagery.

"The Thin Blue Line," directed by Errol Morris and produced by Mark Lipson, will be featured June 18.

Based on the murder of a

Dallas policeman, the film examines the evidence that was brought to light 13 years after Randall Adams was convicted of the murder. The film led to his being exonerated.

On June 25, "What Happened to Kerouac?" will be screened. Directed by Richard Lerner and Lewis MacAdams, this film is an insightful documentary portrait of Jack Kerouac, considered the spiritual father of the "Beat" generation.

The film recreates Kerouac's legendary excesses, his sexual exploits, his controversial writing techniques and his early death.

Concluding the series on July 2 will be "Tosca's Kiss," directed by Daniel Schmid. The film provides an intimate look at the careers of the renowned composers, singers and musicians who called Milan's Casa Verdi home. "Tosca's Kiss" is in Italian with English subtitles.

Films will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in 140 Smith Hall. They are free and open to the public.

The series is sponsored by the University Office of Special Sessions, the Institute for the Arts in Education and the Office of Cultural Affairs.

Chapel Street show 'blossoms'

by Nancy Turner

What happens when a super macho star of sexy movies leads a secret double life as a gentle author of popular children's books? Nothing, until his double life is threatened with "Double Exposure." When he frantically tries to protect his "images," the result is sheer comedy.

Jack Sharkley's "Double Exposure" is a pleasant choice as this year's Chapel Street Players FUNdraiser and is directed by Craig Hall. Hall, a familiar face on the CSP stage, having acted in numerous productions over the years, is assisted by Marlene Hazen and Barbara James.

The lead role is played by Richard Logan, who made his Chapel Street debut recently in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" as the eccentric Professor Metz.

He is supported and complemented by Renee Schumann as his publisher, R. Gary Von Hernberg as his manager, and Renee O'Leary as his "southern" Bel Air housekeeper.

Dick Lied makes an outstanding, but brief appearance as a high powered movie mogul. For some reason, whenever Lied steps onto a stage, the set looks bigger, the volume of dialog increases and pure energy appears out of thin air, which seems to be absorbed and radiated by every actor on stage.

Enid F. Mayer is very funny in her portrayal of Valery, a girl who has a mind of her own — but just doesn't know where it is. An English/journalism student at the University of Delaware, she has also appeared with E-52 Student Theatre.

Joel Watson has the audience howling in the role of Sidney Bascomb, the social nerd who "moves like poetry" — free verse. Watson has a reputation for getting incredible mileage out of every character role he takes, now matter how diverse. His performance in "Double Exposure" is no exception. He and Meyer have impeccable timing and know how to make punch lines really work.

"Double Exposure" is a delightful production, although Act I on opening night seemed to get off to a slow start. If nothing more, it may have been due to the fact that before the big action can begin, this particular plot required substantial "setting up."

But don't let that discourage you from seeing "Double Exposure." It is a fine production. This play truly blossoms throughout its three acts. As the players relax, the comedy gets sharper and the plot intensifies. It has plenty of good acting, the kind that sneaks up without warning pulls an audience into the story and has it laughing unaware. What other goal could there be for a good comedy?

Kathryn Voice, Neil Marcus and Roger Marcus, the "Storm Reading" cast.

'Storm Reading' considers disabled

"Storm Reading," a powerful drama about the disabled which is alternately humorous and dramatically thought-provoking, will be performed this week at the Delaware Theatre Company, 200 Water St., Wilmington.

The play, a production of Access Theatre of Santa Barbara, Calif., will benefit the Children's Beach House, which runs programs for special children at a facility in Lewes.

It will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursday, June 8 and Saturday, June 10. Tickets cost $10. Call 655-4288.

"Storm Reading" was written by Neil Marcus as a self-examination of life with a disability.

Marcus, who also stars in the play, has dystonia, a rare neurological disorder which causes spasms and renders speech virtually unintelligible.

Marcus is joined in the play by his brother, actor Roger Marcus, and actress Kathryn Voice, who artistically translates the show in sign language.

Writing in the Reno, Nev. Gazette-Journal, reviewer Marc Picker said the play often is aimed at those among us who do not make the effort to fully understand the disabled, who see them as perhaps lesser people.

"(The flavor of Storm Reading) is clear from the start as Neil, alone and prone, slowly rises like a blooming flower to stand triumphant within a screenful of color," according to Picker. "He is a person, a whole and growing person, and we must see that to understand the world he observes around him."

Picker said "the message is strong, but it is good to be able to look in the mirror and recognize our faults."

Dixie Ramblers open Carpenter music series

The Newark Dixie Ramblers will open the 1989 Carpenter State Park summer concert series with a performance Wednesday, June 14.

The 11-concert series will continue Wednesdays through Aug. 30, with all but the last three concerts starting at 7 p.m.

Carpenter State Park is located on Del. 896, just north of Newark city limits.

Also performing this month will be The Dixie Swingers on June 21 and The Bus on June 28.

Newark Community Band will perform July 12, the Mel-Tones July 19 and the Christina School District Summer Symphonic Band July 26.

Newark String Quartet will perform Aug. 2 and Devon Brass Quintet Aug. 9.

Beginning with the Aug. 16 concert, featuring Generations, programs will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Christina Harrison will perform Aug. 23 and Corporate Image Aug. 30.

French teens seek hosts

□ Fifteen French teenagers are seeking host families with which to live from July 6 to August 1. The students hope to improve their English and learn about life in America.

Students are insured for accidents, illness, damages and expenses for early return, if necessary. Bus trips to Baltimore, Hershey Park, Longwood Gardens and Washington, D.C. are planned.

For information, contact Tina Jackson at 999-1290.

Sergio Reyes.

Spanish boy seeks host

□ Sergio Gimena Reyes, a 16-year-old Spaniard, is all set to come to the Newark area through the ASSE student exchange program but is lacking a host family.

According to Nancy Mikkelsen of Newark, the local ASSE representative, Reyes enjoys board sailing, swimming, music and, in particular, soccer.

Persons interested in serving as hosts should contact Mikkelsen at 738-9664 or call ASSE at 1-800-333-3802.

Jalbert elected to honor society

□ Pamela Jalbert of Newark, a student at Widener University, has been elected to Phi Kappa Phi, an institution-wide honor society.

Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is by invitation. Only students ranked in the top ten percent of the graduating class are invited to join.

'Auto Adventures' booklet available

□ "Auto Adventures," a free booklet designed to help travelers plan weekend trips throughout the Mid-Atlantic region, is available at the Delaware Motor Club-Keystone Automobile Club AAA office on Del. 7 in Stanton.

"Auto Adventures" is a special publication filled with suggestions for outings and activities in Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Papermaking workshops planned

□ Constance Edwards will offer two papermaking workshops at the New Castle County Department of Parks and Recreation Art Studios, Abasom Jones Community Center, 310 Kiamensi Rd., Wilmington.

"Western Papermaking Basics" will be offered 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 17, and "Eastern Papermaking Basics" Saturday, July 15. For information, call 323-6422 or 995-7661.

'Health' lecture series opens June 20

"For the Health of It," a six-part summer lecture series sponsored by the Medical Center of Delaware in conjunction with the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation, will open this month.

The lectures will be held at 7:30 various Tuesday evenings through August in the Newark Senior Center, 300 E. Main St.

"And Baby Makes Three" is the title of the first lecture June 20. A Medical Center registered nurse will provide up-to-date information on pregnancy and childbirth.

"The Case of the Killer Cholesterol" on June 27 will feature a dietician with information on what's good for you and what's not.

"Women's Health" will be the topic July 18, and two registered nurses will discuss issues relating to women's health and the services and treatments currently available.

"Managing Stress" on July 25 will be presented by a Medical Center psychiatrist, who will discuss the origin, symptoms and consequences of stress and offer recommendations for controlling stress in your life.

"Teenage Drug and Alcohol Abuse" will be considered Aug. 8. Medical Center nurses will present hard-hitting, eyewitness accounts of how alcohol and drug abuse ruin lives and traumatize families.

Taking a cue from Bobby McFerrin, the topic Aug. 22 will be "Don't Worry, Be Happy!" A psychiatrist will discuss anxiety and depression, noting warning signs and offering methods to shake the blues.

Each presentation will last about 40 minutes, after which the Medical Center representatives will answer questions posed by members of the audience.

Many of the lectures will include handouts, slide presentations and other visual aids.

Pre-registration is required and can be completed through the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation.

The fee for each lecture is $3 for persons who live within City of Newark boundaries, $4 for all others.

Those who plan to attend four or more lectures may want to take advantage of a discounted rate of $10 for city residents and $13 for all others.

To register, visit the department offices in the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkon Rd., or call 366-7060.

FARM

The children reach into the pen and pet the woolly fur of the lamb. The brown calf, only 10 days old, has big brown eyes and long eyelashes.

"The children don't seem too mortified by the fact that these animals are food," said Manno.

"Oooh!" says one child. "The animals smell bad."

Manno acknowledges the smell of the animals, but tells the child that the animals have a keen sense of smell.

"We may actually smell worse to them than they do to us," he said.

The animals, which come from the University of Delaware agricultural research program, are only identified with tag numbers. They are named only for registration purposes.

The visits to the schools have become rather routine for the animals.

"These animals are used to being handled," said Manno. "They've gotten to the point where they jump right out of the truck."

Sometimes they jump out a little too early. During one of the school visits, one of the pigs got away from extension workers.

"We had 100 kids trying to chase it," said Manno.

Most of the time, the program is presented to children in the lower grades. For older children, the program is more advanced, discussing such issues as the greenhouse effect, declining farm land and animal rights.

LIES

windows are so dirty that the weeping crab tree looks olive green. And the bathroom wallpaper suddenly looks garish.

Every housewife worthy of her dishrag believes that nosy houseguests like to check closets and drawers, so the contents better be aligned with the Greenwich meridian. And speaking of aligning, the pachysandra around the air conditioner is growing every which way, and it should be polished.

Naturally, the meals must match the house in deceitfulness. I expect my family to act as if four-course breakfasts, hot and cold buffet luncheons and cordon bleu dinners are the norm.

The Pollyannas among us would say that having houseguests has one silver lining: the house is so immaculate and organized that it could be preserved in lucite.

I, on the other hand, would say that having houseguests has a different silver lining: the housewife is so exhausted and stressed out that she deserves to be someone else's houseguest.

CHURCHES

Christian Scientists gather in Boston

Unlike most religious denominations, when Christian Scientists gathered in Boston this week for their 94th annual meeting, it was not within a set structure of church delegates, committees and deliberations.

For The First Church of Christ, Scientist, the meeting represents a coming together of church members from Newark and around the world with a singleness of purpose — to rededicate themselves to Christian healing.

With no ordained clergy and members involved in all aspects of the denomination, Christian Scientists view their church as far more than a building, a form of worship, a body of doctrine or even a group of like-minded people. It is a spiritual force felt in the heart of each member and shared with the world, according to Jean Bradley of Newark.

The Christian Science Church features a strongly democratic form of government in its nearly 3,000 branch churches worldwide and a central authority represented by The Mother Church, headquartered in Boston, and governed by the "Manual of The Mother Church" administered by a five-member Board of Directors. Most Christian Scientists hold dual membership, actively participating in a branch church as well as supporting the worldwide mission of The Mother Church.

Bradley said much of the two-hour annual meeting consisted of a series of interviews with church officials conducted by new Mother Church President, David E. Sleeper, of Dallas, Texas. He brings to the one-year appointment many years of service to the denomination including its ministry of Christian healing.

Also announced at the meeting was the appointment of two new lay readers for The Mother Church, to serve three-year terms starting this month. Horacio Omar Rivas of Boston is First Reader and Marion Sheldon Pierpont of Des Moines, Iowa, will serve as Second Reader.

Highlights of the meeting included:

• Recognition that the basis of world problems can largely be attributed to "spiritual illiteracy," and that to counteract the spiritual void, an understanding of God and the life and teachings of Christ Jesus is required.

• Consideration by members of the enormous public stirring over the question of Christian healing, and what this means in the face of current legal challenges.

CHURCH CALENDAR

□ Catholic Diocese of Wilmington healing workshop, 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. three consecutive Saturdays beginning June 10, St. Mary of the Assumption Catholic Church, Hockessin. There will be teachings on physical, spiritual and emotional healing with an emphasis on praying for one another. $10. Call Jeanne Casey at 239-5982.

□ Holy Family Catholic Church Leisure Group, trip to Wildwood.

N.J., June 16-18. Cost is $100, and the outing is open to anyone over 50. Call Lillian Zanolini, 366-1526.

□ St. Paul's Lutheran Church, South College Avenue, is accepting registration for Vacation Bible School, to be held 9 a.m. to noon July 10-14. The school is open to youths age three through fourth grade. For details, call the church, 368-0064.

Staying Young At Heart Is Child's Play.

Retired people who live at Cokesbury Village don't need the family photo album to recapture their youth. Each day, they enjoy life's pleasures as much as when life was brand new.

There's so much to enjoy at Cokesbury. The enduring pleasure of a cottage or apartment to call your own. And the freedom of designing your calendar around your own plans.

After a day of painting, weaving, or whittling in the community crafts room, step out for a Cokesbury social, or enjoy an evening on the town. Theater and music lovers won't miss a performance, because the community bus is always ready to go. You can take a trip to Longwood Gardens and get inspired to learn flower arranging or cultivation. Or just stay home and enjoy some of nature's loveliest sights at the Village pond.

From playing duplicate bridge with your friends to playing London Bridge with your grandchildren, you'll enjoy each day at Cokesbury Village. And you can put your mind completely at ease about the future, because one of the finest retirement health centers will be in your own backyard.
