DIGGING DEEP

Students from Jenny Smith dig, sift their way 5,000 years deep into our history

SOMETIME around 3,000 B.C., prehistoric men and their Native American ancestors came to present day Dover and built their homes near the Jones River. They visited the area seasonally to take advantage of rich hunting and fishing resources.

This summer, students from Jenny Smith Elementary school dug and sifted their way through dirt to find the remains of those people who lived there almost 5,000 years ago.

"While we were screening," Ricky Quartarone said excitedly, "I found a piece of charcoal." He added that the piece of charcoal meant the inhabitants of the area used fire.

His classmate Alex Pearce said, "I found three pieces of pottery." Peter McCormick found what he identified as jasper flakes and Justin Hall said the group found fire cracked rocks which indicated that there was a fireplace in the area.

"The site was so rich that everyone found something," said Judy Austin, one of the teachers accompanying the group on the class trip and history lesson about the ice age.

The archeological site at Hickory Bluff located off of Route 113 just behind the DelDOT building has been under excavation since last November when DelDOT set out to prepare the area for construction.

The prehistoric site, first identified in 1994 during an archeological survey, lies in the proposed corridor for the Puncheon Run Connector road between Routes 1 and 113.

A PLAN tabled in June for an "empty-nester" community on Old Paper Mill Road had a much easier time getting a Planning Commission recommendation this week.

'Sidewalk Sales' next weekend

NEWARK'S traditional Sidewalk Sales are a little later this year but welcome for merchants and shoppers all the same.

"Everyone has been really enthusiastic and we expect all the bigger stores and a lot of the smaller ones to participate," said Kristen Short of Grassroots. "Stores like Bing's Bakery, Rainbow Records, National 5 & 10, Delaware Sporting Goods, and Abbots have definitely said they are doing it, for instance."

Building 'mammoth,' owner told

NEWARK businessman Gus Tsionas saw his plan for an apartment complex on South Chapel Street receive generally unfavorable reactions from the city Planning Commission this week.

Various called gigantic, mammoth, too long, and out of keeping with the residential character of the surrounding neighborhood, the proposed four-story building would have 71 two-bedroom/two-bath apartments and parking for 143 cars. Containing 79,000 square-feet of gross building area, it would take up 19,863 square feet of the existing site.

Arson fire at Audio Works

The State Fire Marshall's office said this week that a fire on Aug. 3 around 5 a.m. at the Audio Works on Capital Trail near Newark was deliberately set. According to assistant state fire marshal Willard F. Preston III, personnel from Aetna Hose Hook & Ladder Company called his office as well as the Delaware State Police. "The business was forcibly entered and items taken before the fire was set," Preston said. He would not comment on the means used to start the blaze but said his office is following up leads. No injuries were reported and the damage to the car radio installation business was moderate.

Anyone with information is asked to call 577-3013 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Stolen gun found in car

Newark Police report that around 12:15 a.m. on Aug. 2 an officer stopped riders a vehicle in the Burger King parking lot for loitering and underage consumption. A further investigation revealed two 9-millimeter pistols underneath the front seats of the vehicle. One of the pistols was found to have been stolen from the city of Baltimore, Md. Two adults, Jason Stauffer, 19, of Rising Sun, Md., and Dwayne Miller, 18, of Port Deposit, Md., and two 17-year-old juveniles in the vehicle all were arrested and charged with underage consumption, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, and possession of a stolen firearm.

The adults were placed in Gander Hill Prison and the juveniles were placed in New Castle County Detention Center, all in lieu of bond.

Robbery at 7-Eleven

On the morning of July 22, Newark Police observed a black

Ford Escort driving in an erratic manner and a white male exit the 7-Eleven and run after the vehicle in the store's parking lot on Elkton Road. Police blocked the vehicle to determine whether there was a problem. The store manager reported that two white males in the Escort had left the store without paying for two bottles of juice and some pain relievers found in the vehicle. Police also recovered four cartons of cigarettes stolen earlier from the Uni-Mart on South College Avenue. One suspect was in possession of a hypodermic syringe and admitted using heroin earlier. He said that he was going to sell the pain relievers in Philadelphia for heroin. The 22-year-old and 23-year-old suspects were charged with robbery, conspiracy and reckless endangering.

Racial incident on North Chapel

Newark Police are investigating a July 25 incident in which a 25-year-old African-American woman reported the white male occupants of two pickups yelled racial and sexual comments at her as she walked with two friends along North College Avenue. The victim told police the trucks pulled into a parking lot near Cleveland Avenue and the occupants continued to make racial and sexual comments as she walked past the trucks described as a black Mitsubishi, possibly a mid-1980s model, and a primer gray Chevrolet or GMC 4x4 with a lift kit and roll bar. Anyone with information is asked to call police at 366-7111.

Driver found with marijuana

A 42-year-old Maryland man stopped for a traffic check on July 31 around 2:50 a.m. near South Chapel and Main streets was found to be under the influence of alcohol.

He also gave a false name and date of birth to police. During their investigation, police found 6.8 grams of marijuana and a 4-inch pipe in the man's possession. He was charged with DUI, criminal impersonation and possession of marijuana.

Attempted burglary at Chapel St. business

Employees at Olney Contracting on South Chapel Street told police unknown suspects broke two windows and tried to gain entry into the building on July 31 around 1:15 a.m. Police are investigating.

Teens driving and drinking

Newark Police report that three teens were arrested after they were stopped while driving and consuming alcohol in a vehicle near Capital Trail and Cleveland Avenue. David M. Burns, 19, of Wilmington and a 16-year-old Newark teen were charged with underage consumption. Timothy Chris McDewitt, 19, of Wilmington was charged with DUI under the 0-tolerance law and underage consumption.

Home security system taken

On July 18 around 5:40 p.m. employees at Radio Shack in College Square Shopping Center pursued a black male who took a home security system valued at $249 and left the store without paying. The suspect, described as 25-30 years old, 6 foot, 2 inches tall, weighing 200-210 pounds, with black hair, fled in a tan BMW with Delaware license plate number 996622. The product was recovered. Anyone with information is asked to call police at 366-7111.

New emergency system coming to state

Within six months, Delaware is expected to have a common communication system for all emergency and state agencies that now use radios with differing frequencies.

Richard Reynolds of the State of Delaware Office of Information Services and Telecommunications

Management said Thursday, "fire departments, police, universities and prisons all use different frequencies, making inter-agency radio communication impossible."

The new system will replace the frequencies with a standard 800-megahertz network.

Reynolds said the push for a statewide network began in the early 1990s. The state has spent close to $40 million for the network, including building 19 towers and buying radios worth about $4,000 each.

The state entered a contract with Motorola Radio in 1993.

Irish Club holds festival

The Irish Culture Club of Delaware holds its 19th Annual Feis and Festival on Sunday, Aug. 9, from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. at St. Mark's High School, Pike Creek Road, Newark. The Feis (Irish Dance Competition) features entrants from age 5 through adult competing in solo dances to live musical accompaniment. Festival activities include Ceili dancing with live Irish music, and Irish Tea House "An Cupan Tae", where food is available at reasonable prices. There will be vendors of Irish crafts and goods.

Admission is $6 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and free to children under 15 when accompanied by an adult. The Irish Culture Club of Delaware is a non-political, non-profit organization. For more information, call 798-4921 or 45-IRISH.

Failure to pay child support could mean loss of driver's license

Delaware now has the authority to deny or suspend driver's, business, professional and recreational licenses of those who do not meet their child support obligations. Parents who are not paying their child support are being urged to begin paying as ordered so they will not be targeted for license suspension. For more information about the program, call (302) 369-2160.

Newark Police will share in $1.2 million

Newark Police will share in $1.2 million in Crime Law grants recently announced by the law's sponsor, U.S. Senator Joseph Biden Jr. (D-Delaware). According to Biden, at least 10 Delaware police agencies, including Newark, will receive funds.

Officer Mark Farrell of the Newark Police said his department will use the $30,672 received here to continue funding of computer-aided dispatch and for the records update management system.

In addition to Newark, police in Dover, Georgetown, Laurel, Milford, Seaford, Smyrna, Wilmington and New Castle County will share $1.1 million from the grant while the Delaware State Police and smaller police agencies will divide the remaining $580,158.

Biden said the Local Enforcement Block Grants give the officers who are in the neighborhoods each day the ability and flexibility to develop strategies that work best for them.

"What works well in Smyrna may not work for Seaford," Biden noted.

Among other items, police agencies can use the funds to hire and train additional officers, purchase lap top computers, enhance security measures at schools, and establish community watch programs.

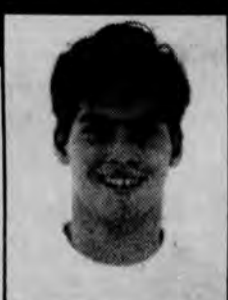

Funding for state and local agencies is determined by a formula based on the level of serious, violent crimes. In 1997, Delaware received $1.1 million under the grants program.

Commerce Bank plans branches here

By DOUG RAINEY

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Commerce Bank is planning to build branches in Newark and the Bear-Glasgow area by the end of the year.

David Flaherty, vice president of marketing, identified the locations of the two branches as Elkton Road in Newark and Route 72 and 40, near the Fox Run shopping center.

Flaherty said a branch and Delaware headquarters for Commerce is expected to be completed in early 1999 at a site on Limestone Road, near the intersection with Kirkwood Highway. A north Wilmington location at Marsh and Naamans Road is also expected to be open in 1999, Flaherty said.

Commerce had originally announced that the Limestone location would be the first to open in Delaware in the spring of 1998.

Commerce has since bolstered its presence in the state with the acquisition of J.A. Montgomery, Delaware's largest insurance agency. Montgomery will be part of Commerce's insurance division, Commerce National Insurance. Commerce also operates Commerce Capital, which offers investment products and services.

The locations show that Commerce is carrying out its plan to aggressively expand in Delaware. Bank officials have indicated that as many as 10 to 15 branches will be opened in northern and central Delaware in the next two years.

Commerce, based in Cherry Hill, N.J., has received national attention by locating free-standing branches in high-traffic areas and bills itself as "America's Most Convenient Bank."

The approach, similar to the one taken by the fast-food industry, also includes extended hours of operation that include Sundays.

The bank offers a full-range of banking services, including commercial lending and banking by personal computer. In recent years, Commerce has been active in providing financing for home builders.

Commerce has 70 branches and serves nearly 330,000 households in New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania. Commerce plans to open 10 new branches in 1998, with the rate of openings increasing to 15 to 20 a year by 2001. The company plans to have 140 offices in the tri-state area by 2001.

Commerce has assets of nearly $4 billion.

Some monthly parking fees to increase

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Starting in September, the fee for monthly parking will be $50 in all Newark Parking Authority lots. According to Parking Authority staff, it has been at least eight years since the monthly parking fee went up.

Currently, monthly parking is $35 for spaces in Lots 3 and 4, but already $50 for Lots 1 and 2. "We have about 140 monthly spaces now between Lots 1, 3 and 4, but it varies," said supervisor Jim Pennington. "All 32 spaces in Lot 2 are monthly, of course."

Parking for other customers remains 50 cents per half-hour in Lot 1 and 40 cents per half-hour in Lots 3 and 4. "We try to keep the lots open as much as possible for customers, but our leases with the lot owners require a certain number of spaces to be made available to them," said Pennington. "If customers come in and find there are no spaces after driving around, we let them out without paying."

Pennington said there are approximately 480 total spaces for monthly and customer parking in the four NPA lots. The Parking Authority is also making an additional 33 spaces available in the lot behind the old Roy Rogers. "People can enter those spaces from (NPA) Lot 1 behind the Galleria," said Pennington. "The extra spaces are available to the Parking Authority month to month until construction begins on the old Roy Rogers site."

Pennington stressed that most of the monthly spaces at present are for people who live or work in downtown Newark. "A lot of people think we're giving them to just students," he said, "but that's not so."

Parking in Lot 1 behind the Galleria is free on Sundays until 1 p.m. Parking is free all day on Sundays in Lots 3 and 4.

Downtown board okayed

Four months after establishing the Downtown Newark Partnership, Newark city council has approved 13 persons for the organization's board.

Named by Mayor Hal Godwin were: Joseph Maxwell, owner of Rainbow Books & Music; Marilyn Minster, owner of Minster's Jewelers; Selena Bing, owner of Bing's Bakery; Jeffrey Lang, chief operating officer of Commonwealth Management Corporation; Carl Johnston of Wilmington Savings Fund Society; James B. Streit Jr., publisher of the Newark Post; Terry Foreman, executive director of the Newark Arts Alliance; Gene Danneman, owner of Copy Maven; Larry Bowman, executive director of the New Castle County Chamber of Commerce; and former Mayor Ronald Gardner.

In addition, permanent members of the board will be the city manager, the mayor and the president of the University of Delaware.

Council created the Partnership in March to gather information on economic improvement and enhancement in downtown Newark and the city at large. Among the matters included in economic improvement are promotion of businesses and public events, business recruitment and retention, commercial and residential incentive programs, and coordination and communication among all participants on downtown projects.

In response to comments from community members in March, council added the chair or president of a Newark community cultural group as a member, and stipulated that the one at-large member be a Newark resident.

Members of the Partnership serve without compensation but receive reimbursement for reasonable expenses. A chair and vice-chair will be selected by the board at their first meeting which has not yet been scheduled. Thereafter the board will meet at least once quarterly.

New plan has fewer townhouses

► ADULTS, from 1

Villas to the expectations of local residents and commissioners.

Planning commissioners previously criticized the cookie-cutter design of the site plan and instructed the developer to come back with something less than the proposed 35 units.

This week's proposal showed six fewer townhouse units and increased open space for the community which is adjacent to Karpinski Park. In addition, the developer redesigned the site to allow 30 more feet of open space between the townhouses and the adjoining homes in Creek Bend.

"The property will now have 26 new townhomes, the original 1770-something house, and two units in the old barn," said Soboleski. "(When the community is finished), people across the road will essentially see what they see now."

In addition, Soboleski said some clusters of four townhomes were changed to groups of three. Five acres of the 11.282-acre property will be dedicated to the city of Newark as open space.

"I'm trying to avoid a headache for me in the future...People are not always so neighborly..."

ROY LOPATA

PLANNING DIRECTOR

Residents from Creek Bend and Ravenwood Glen expressed satisfaction with the improved plan but objected to a planning department suggestion for separate driveways to the existing home and the two units in the barn. "I like the plan as shown (by the developer)," said one resident.

Planning director Roy Lopata said he made the suggestion because the people living there would have to drive past another house to reach their own. "I'm trying to avoid a headache for me in the future," Lopata said. "If the people are neighborly — OK — but people are not always so neighborly."

The commissioners agreed not to recommend the separate driveway on a road already giving concerns about access and traffic.

This time around residents and commissioners were more interested in the safety issues on Paper Mill Road and the possibility of sidewalks. According to Lopata, the state has responsibility for sidewalks along the road. "As for the developments, we tried to require sidewalks in Paper Mill Farms, and as you might expect, it was very popular, went over very big — did not happen," said Lopata.

Soboleski said his development would have sidewalks and along the road to Creek Bend as well.

Lopata also told the commissioners that the Delaware Department of Transportation planned to install a traffic signal at the intersection of Paper Mill and Old Paper Mill roads within a year. "It's supposed to be within six months," he said, "but these things tend to drag a little, so say a year."

Car seats distributed

Anamita Corley and her son, Jamal, were among the 60 families in Newark receiving child safety seats from the Delaware Safety Council recently. Shirley Posey of the Safety Council said all recipients were previously identified and selected for the giveaway through the Delaware Department of Health and Social Services WIC program. The families also received instructions about installing and using the seats as well as information about family safety in cars. The Safety Council also gave away free Tot I.D. labels, donated by the Kiwanis Club of Brandywine Valley, for the car seats. The tags help ensure that children get correct medical assistance in the event of an accident.

Four-story building proposed

► BUILDING, from 1

Tsionas purchased a 2.376-acre portion of the DelChapel Associates site for $670,000 in April. As presently zoned for garden-style apartments, the property could hold up to 16 units per acre.

Tsionas' property is directly across the street from the other 20-plus acres of the old industrial complex owned by DelChapel containing over 30 crumbling buildings. That property is presently in negotiations for sale and development into a student housing complex.

Eric Schwab of Schwab Limited which will manage the Tsionas' building, told the commissioners that Tsionas could build a three-story building with the same amount of units under the current zoning. "We meet all the requirements for parking and could have the same number of units under the present zoning," said Schwab. "Lot coverage was our biggest concern (in requesting a zoning change) because we wanted to have enough parking without requesting a waiver."

the structure was very large, but said ground and development costs forced the high density of the units. "Yes, it's mammoth, yes, it's long, but we tried to (use design elements) to break up the view and the height," Nelson told the commission.

David Robertson said the members of the city's Design Committee found the plan incompatible with the neighborhood. "We believe there should be greenspace included as a quality of life requirement," he said. "We also think there will be three if not four people living in every one of these units — there will be even more density in terms of people living there."

Resident Ann Brown said a study done at the University of Delaware indicated students would not want to live in a high rise building. University Gardens owner Ed Soboleski also told the commission that he would have a problem with students in a high rise building. "You cannot control, you cannot contain, you cannot police 284 students in one building," said Soboleski.

But city planning director Roy

Lopata stated that a well-publicized study done two years ago by his department showed the fewest criminal violations occurred in apartment buildings. "Single-family type dwellings cause the city the most difficulty," Lopata said.

Dallas Avenue resident Robert Bennett suggested offering apartments without parking to some tenants. "I'm in favor of making use of space so you don't have to sprawl out in the greenspaces," Bennett said. "Under the concept of new urbanism, you should be able to walk (where you want to go)."

Lopata said the open space proposed for the site, which would have all the parking spaces behind the building, was designed in the belief that the people who lived there would rather have parking than land.

Commissioner Madeline Frame said she would like to see a plan within the existing zoning but the commission voted against the recommendation for rezoning without giving further instruction to the developers.

Merchants ready for this sidewalk sale

► SALES, from 1

Short said since the former business association is in the process of merging activities with the newly-created Downtown Newark Partnership, she took over coordination of the annual event this year. "At Grassroots we look forward to the Sales to move a lot of seasonal merchandise and clear out stock."

The Sales have usually been held at the same time as the Arts Alliance's Downtown With the Arts festival which was held three weeks ago. "The merchants didn't have enough notice to get organized then," said Short.

Short said she walked around and spoke personally with as many merchants as possible. "There used to be a mailing, but I think the merchants get more excited when they hear about it personally," Short said. "I'm also giving them fliers they can post to let shoppers know about the Sales."

Radio station WNRK also plans to broadcast live from Main Street on Aug. 14 during the Sale. The station's van will be at Grassroots, Abbott's Shoe Store, and the National 5 & 10 between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Friday.

Short said she hopes stores the length of Main Street will participate because the more merchants involved, the more shoppers will be attracted. "I also talked to merchants in Market East Plaza and the Newark Shopping Center because they said they felt left out in the past," Short said. "I'm hoping we'll have a good response there, too."

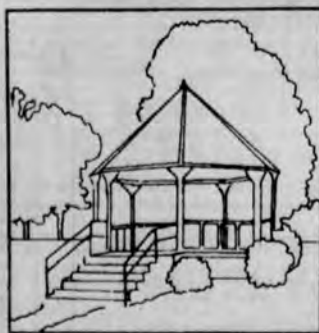

Grassroots plans to have four or five tables out with 30 to 50 percent off shoes and all their Spring clothing. "We'll have other items as well because we have to make room for new stock," Short said.

Participating stores are open during normal business hours for the Sidewalk Sales Friday, Aug. 14 through Sunday, Aug. 16. "Grassroots will be open until 9 p.m. on Friday, 8 p.m. on Saturday, and 5 p.m. on Sunday," Short said. "We'll leave our stuff out until we close each day."

Short said the new Downtown Newark Partnership will be "up and running" by next year and the event should go smoother.

Students go on archeological dig

► DIG, from 1

Michael Petraglia, a cultural resources manager for Parson Engineering Science Inc. explained, "Before DelDOT begins a project they have the land surveyed and excavated to make sure nothing historic or prehistoric in importance is destroyed or lost."

The site is important because in addition to many prehistoric artifacts, a large number of pit houses have also been found. Pit houses are shallow holes, where people lived underneath bark, and reed shelters.

"Phase III archeological investigations or an excavation is being performed on the site so that we can learn as much from it as possible before construction of the road begins," Petraglia said.

The children were allowed to dig at the site and remove artifacts for one hour. "I don't think many children this age have the opportunity to go on an actual archaeological dig," said teacher Cathy Lyons.

Quartarone said he learned that Indians had lived there and that stains in the ground indicated that there were post holes in the soil where primitive houses were. "We found something big," he said, "and we had to dig down a level."

Pearce interjected that a level is 10 centimeters deep. He also said that the area where the Indians dumped their trash was called midden.

Diane Halsall, one of the archeologists who helped to coordinate the field trip, said she was impressed with the knowledge the children possessed about archeology. "They were incredibly astute," she said. "They knew terms that kids I had out here who were 16 and 17 didn't know - like midden and flake." Halsall also said the children found pieces of artifacts and asked questions.

According to the archeologists, the entire site is over five acres in size, and appears to have been occupied by prehistoric people during the Woodland I period which had two main culture complexes: the Barker's Landing period 3,000 B.C. to 1,000 A.D. and Delmarva Adena, about 500 B.C. to 1 A.D. Occupation of this site was not confined to this period, and traces of both the earlier Archaic period, and the later Woodland II period have also been found.

Newark Pre-school hosts open house

Newark Co-Operative Preschool is hosting an open house for families interested in learning more about the preschool on Tuesday, Aug. 18 from 7-9 p.m. Located in New Ark United Church of Christ at 300 East Main Street, the co-operative preschool is owned and operated by the parents of the enrolled children. Parents are actively involved in the classroom with the professionally trained teachers. The school offers a two-day-a-week program for 3-year-olds and a three-day-a-week program for 4-year-olds. For information, call 368-0178.

AAA offers child ID card

AAA branches in the area are now offering child identification cards, a convenient way for vacationing families to carry important information that will help authorities in the search for a missing child.

We've got other things to worry about

WE SUPPOSE IT'S THE principle of the thing. If the president of the United States lies under oath about what he had for breakfast yesterday, or how many Big Macs he consumed last month, or whether he slopped body fluids on a young woman's dress over a year ago, then it's perjury, and he's for the chop.

But as the pages of this newspaper attest each week, here in Newark, we have many other things that matter more to us.

Businesses are looking for more customers.

School starts in less than a month. Many local residents are just returning from travel and vacations expressly tailored to bring relief from the everyday news. The city is alternately anticipating and bracing for the return of 15,000-plus college students.

Nevertheless, for months now, the pages of dailies nationwide and the lead stories on the nightly news telecasts have kept us breathlessly informed about every nuance possible of the president's sordid relationship with a White House intern.

Many Americans tune in just to find out if they will have jobs next year. Or whether drugs and violence are going to crush our own children before they get out of their teens. Or if the stock market is down and bankruptcy is up.

How are friends and relatives living and working in the Balkans or Africa or even Texas and Oklahoma surviving a brutal summer in more ways than one? Will the simple values of icons like Roy Rogers and Howdy Doody and Lamb Chop ever matter again?

No one will be able to give their undivided attention to these questions until the special prosecutor finally says he has had enough of his self-imposed investigation.

We suppose it's important that Kenneth Starr go there and find out what really happened after hours in the Oval Office. But we will never forgive him for forcing all of us to

PER CHANCE

A visionary in Delaware whose dreams came true

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

HISTORIANS FREQUENTLY HAVE described Delawareans as conservative, and much evidence exists to support that view.

But this label could by no means be applied to the 19th century journalist and author Francis Vincent, whose vision of international governance and cooperation preceded the United Nations by almost a century.

An Englishman by birth, Vincent came to the United States in his youth and learned the printing trade while employed by the Delaware Gazette. In 1845 he established his own newspaper, The Blue Hen's Chicken, and attracted readers by devoting front page attention to local news. After nine years, he sold the paper and it passed through a succession of owners and titles before Vincent repurchased it in 1861. He restored its original name and published it for several years from offices at the northwest corner of Fifth and Market Streets in Wilmington.

Well known and respected in the city, Vincent served as an alderman from 1864-69 and as city treasurer from 1873-79. After selling his newspaper a second time, he turned to more serious literary projects, including a History of Delaware, which his contemporaries considered him well qualified to write. The result was disappointing, however, and only one volume of an anticipated series was completed.

Chance

In 1868 Vincent entered a contest sponsored by the Cobden Club of London founded two years earlier and named for Richard Cobden, an English politician, the club offered monetary prizes and medals for essays dealing with national and international issues. Vincent's entry was titled, "An essay recommending the union of Great Britain and her colonies and the United States of America and the final union of the world into one great nation."

In this essay, Vincent proposed a constitution jointly framed by delegates from Great Britain, her colonies and the United States that would be submitted to the people of each nation for ratification. Senators representing districts of similar population would be elected to form an Anglo-Saxon confederation with a single or dual executive. If single, the executive would be alternately chosen from Great Britain and the U. S.; if dual, both countries would have a chief executive.

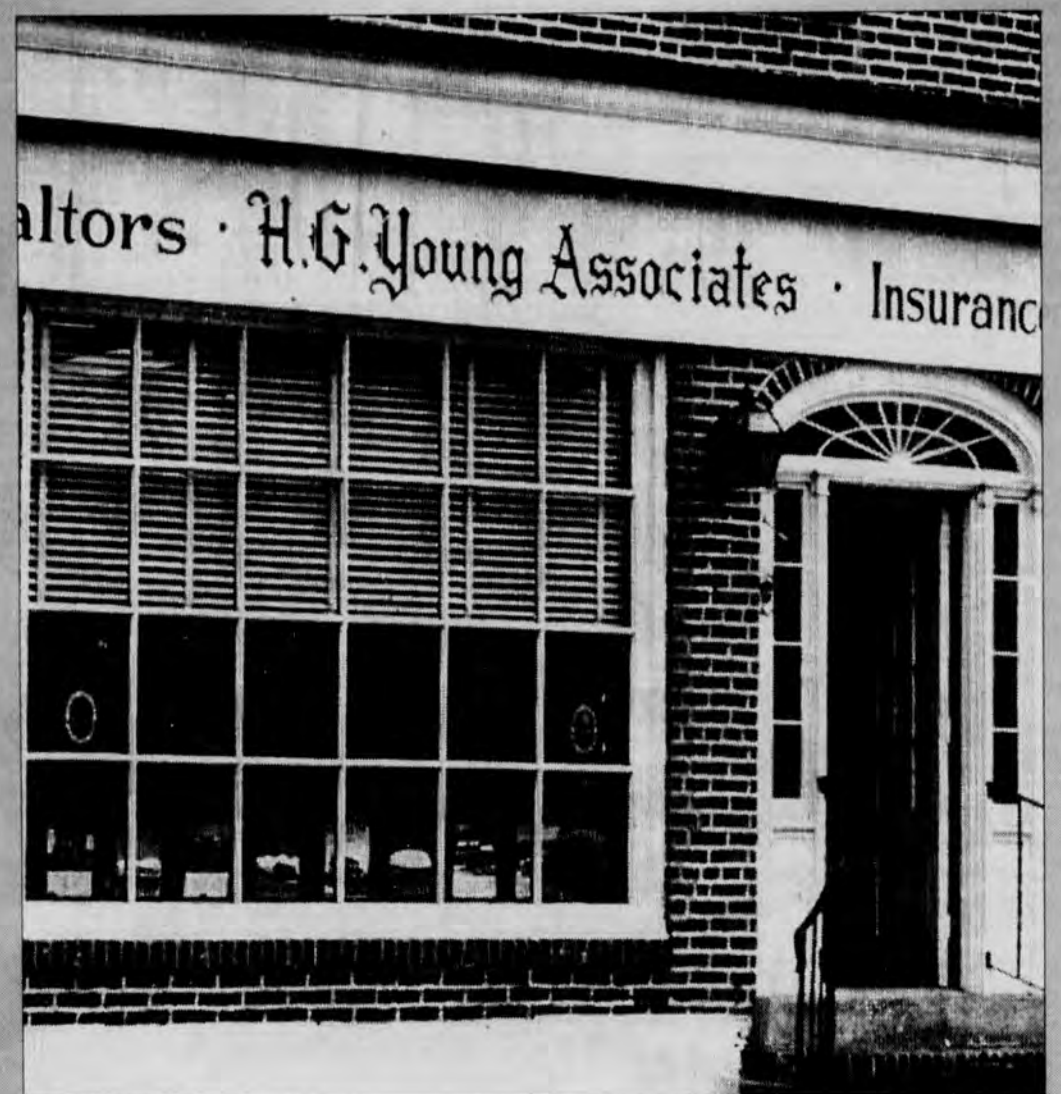

Ireland would be permitted to secede from Great Britain and would have its own legislature. Other countries would be admitted to the union, but English would be the universal language.

The writer also proposed free trade and the building of a railroad from New York to St. Petersburg, Russia, via the Bering Strait, and extending across Europe to London.

The essay was well received and widely disseminated and, in 1869, Vincent submitted the plan to the European Permanent League of Peace in Paris. Unfortunately, the onset of the Franco-Prussian War in 1870 dashed any hope for serious consideration of this far-sighted idea. But in 1874, Vincent was elected an honorary member of the Cobden Club.

Magistrate decides delicate matter

When the two parties directly involved failed to amicably agree to a settlement, after expert appraisal of damages had been made by a local garage owner and subsequent argument as to its payment, Magistrate Daniel Thompson held court Monday afternoon and as a result ordered Henry Mehler of Boston, Mass., to pay for damages inflicted upon the car of Isaac Roberts of near Newark. Said damages amounted to $60, the price which Mehler was willing to pay before the trial. Roberts agreed to abide by the Court's decision.

The exceedingly colorful hearing came as a result of an accident at the corner of Main and Academy streets shortly after noon. Roberts, driving a Ford truck, attempted to turn left into Academy street and was struck amidsthips by a Packard limousine owned by Mehler and driven by Jacob Schniederman, also of Boston.

Marrows delayed 'til October

It's official. The controversial Marrows road bridge will not be open for use until at least mid-September.

After state highway officials last week issued conflicting reports on the time of completion, Paul Welsh, public information officer for the division of highways said Monday, "We hope that we can have it by the middle of September." But Welsh added that the final target date is actually October.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Edna Kotrola, Newark

In regard to the article in the Newark Post dated July 17, "Where Have all the Trees Gone?" I am appalled at the appearance of the Burger King lot minus the trees. Sonia's comments when questioned, "I don't know why people are asking so many questions. It's his property and he can do what he wants with it." This may be true, but Mr. Harting depends upon the community to support his business and I had already made the decision never to go to Burger King again when I saw what he had done to the lot. After reading her flip comments I certainly am not tempted to ever go to Burger King again. It seems an example of total disregard for the community and the appearance of the area. Sonia said it helps with security but then so does going out of business when the community decides not to support you.

A dream comes true for a former Delawarean

► CHANCE, from 6

Similar views advocating a union of nations appeared eight years after the publication of Vincent's essay in Tennyson's "Locksley Hall". The poet envisioned a world without warfare, a parliament of man, and a "Federation of the world" where the common sense of the majority would prevail together with universal law.

While many citizens of the 19th century may have viewed Vincent as an impractical dreamer, it is interesting to recall how many of his ideas have come to fruition. Highways and rail lines extend from the continental U. S. through Canada to Alaska and the Bering Sea. It is possible to travel from St. Petersburg to London via the recently completed tunnel linking Great Britain and France. The North American Free Trade Agreement is a step in the direction Vincent advocated, as is the establishment of a single European currency. While far from perfect, the United Nations represents improved cooperation among nations. And what bitter strife might have been avoided had Ireland been granted its independence as Vincent recommended?

Vincent died in 1884, but a copy of the essay that brought him worldwide attention is on file at the Library of Congress.

Venezky to seek another term

County councilmember Karen Venezky (D-Newark) announced she is seeking re-election in New Castle County's Fifth District. Appointed in January 1991 and twice re-elected, Venezky lists libraries, the environment, and strong ethics legislation as important issues for her in the past seven years.

Venezky was the primary sponsor of the Unified Development Code signed into law in December 1997. Widely touted for its multi-tiered controls on sprawl and unplanned development, Venezky advocated the code's increased environmental protections.

As a pledge to a stronger ethics code, Venezky will not accept contributions from developers, and sponsored legislation in 1996 which expanded the scope of the county's Ethics Commission.

Venezky said if she is re-elected she will continue her focus on

Help your garden beat the heat

THE LONG MILD winter and spring season was too good to last forever, so here we are in the midst of another hot dry summer. The reservoirs and wells were full at the start of the season. It will be interesting to see how well they hold up for the rest of August and September — typically some of the driest and hottest weeks of the year.

One of my neighbors has been valiantly watering his lawn since the middle of May. Our quarterly water bills just arrived and he was worried that he would need a home equity loan to pay it. My little bit of lawn has been left to its own devices since the first heat wave. It's completely brown now except in the shadiest part of the front yard and at the edges of the mulched flowerbeds.

Knowing when and what to water is always a puzzle in our part of the country. Where the summer is always hot and dry, such as the desert southwest, plants and people know how to adapt. It's no wonder that a major manufacturer of water-thrifty home garden irrigation systems is headquartered in Arizona. I used to buy their products in my local garden center. This year, due to poor sales, I have to mail order parts from the home office. Water here is still just too plentiful and too inexpensive for many people to get serious about conservation measures.

Localized areas have been able to keep up with a reasonable amount of timely rainfall. My own home grounds just had a 3/4 inch shower the other night — the first appreciable rain in 3 weeks. And that followed an 8-week dry spell. Here are some tips on how you can reduce the need for watering your lawn and garden.

1. Let the lawn go dormant. That means just don't water it at all. The natural reaction of grasses to drought is dormancy — that's what they know how to make the best of a rough situation. When the weather cools and the rains return in the fall, grass will revive. To prevent injury to dormant grass, keep foot and vehicular traffic off it; avoid use of herbicides or pesticides in hot weather; apply no fertilizer or lime. Take the time to get a soil test so you can get your lawn revitalized in the fall.

2. If you must water your lawn, do it right and stick with it. Water once a week to pro-

A NEW KIND OF SCHOOL FOR LEARNING

By LAURA SANKOWICH

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

SITTING QUIETLY behind the trees near the intersection of Casho Mill and Elkton roads, the New School is one of only 20 democratic schools in the United States certified by a local department of education.

As a democratic school, the students enrolled in grades 1-12 at the New School are encouraged to plan their own curriculum and help run the school. "There is no hierarchy," said Melanie Hiner, the school's founder. "Students and staff meet once a week to decide how to spend the school's money."

She said the school's rules, maintenance and administrative duties also require student participation. "What we say to kids is, 'it's your life,'" Hiner explained. "Kids worry about what they want to do and what they become."

According to Hiner, the school gives students time and space to find what interests them and to learn at their own pace. "We let anyone in who wants to try provisional enrollment, but if they don't take it seriously they can be expelled by the school community," said Hiner. "The kids won't tolerate someone who endangers the school or who is a bully. I won't tolerate anyone who doesn't take this seriously."

Currently the approximately 41 students are taught by a staff of four full and two parttime teachers. The school also hires experts to teach various specialty subjects such as language and sciences. Children at the school may also receive instruction and work experience from a mentor who is a practicing professional.

Hiner said all of the teachers at the school have bachelor's degrees and are working on advanced academic degrees.

The school is equipped with computer sites and Internet access, an art room, a library and several classrooms and common areas. "Learning is a community effort," Hiner said.

One group of students was so enthusiastic about Japanese instruction they received at the school that they figured out how to pay an instructor and to set up their own summer session which met once a week at the school. "You tend to develop self-reliant people in this kind of education," Hiner noted.

Thera Ailanthus and Chris Schweizer, students at the school, illustrate that concept when they discuss their goals and accomplishments. Ailanthus speaks articulately and confidently about the environment and hiking a 50-mile portion of the Appalachian Trail next Spring.

Schweizer makes short films with his friends but won't discuss his political views because they're unpopular and he doesn't want to impose them on others.

"Pretty much all of my goals I have gotten since going to the school," said 16-year-old Ailanthus. "It helped me figure out I'd like to be an outdoor educational instructor."

She continued, "I've become a lot stronger. I know a lot more about what I want and I take things more seriously and think about how what I do effects people."

ple."

Schweizer and Ailanthus were both active in helping a local community coalition plan events and a possible youth center for Newark teens. Some of their ideas included a teen entertainment loop, underground poetry and art, short films people made, and game rooms. "I thought if there's going to be youth center it shouldn't be a kiddie play center, so we can go there some day," Schweizer observed. "There's not much entertainment around here."

The school has no formal grading system, but graduates face a rigorous review process. Upon graduation students receive a high school diploma, along with a portfolio they have assembled of their work. Students are required to write a graduation thesis which is judged by a panel of three students and three staff members. They also discuss the ideas of their paper for two hours in front of the entire school, including students, staff and parents. "It's kind of like a master's thesis," Hiner said.

Hiner said the objective of the paper, which takes six months to compose, is to prove that the person has learned to be competent, responsible, and emotionally and socially mature. "If you can't prove that since you came to the school you have grown, you're not ready to get into the world," she said.

According to Melanie Hiner, classrooms at the New School are arranged to foster community learning.

Professors study spatial deficits in children

They are delightful, engaging children with extraordinary musical and verbal skills. They may correctly pick out a red crayon and a green one, but they can not reproduce a drawing of a circle that is half green and half red. These children have Williams Syndrome.

Barbara Landau, University of Delaware professor of psychology and director of cognitive science, together with psychology professor James Hoffman and a team of graduate and undergraduate researchers, are working on the study of children who have this rare genetic disorder causing difficulty with spatial language and spatial cognition.

"It's quite possible that you could carry on a conversation with a child with Williams Syndrome and not realize that anything is wrong," Landau said. "When they are just chatting, their normal interactions using language are very good."

However when tasks involving spatial relationships are required of the children, the limitations of Williams Syndrome become evident. "For example, if a normal child watches a doll jump into a bowl, they might say, 'the doll jumped into the bowl,'" said Landau. "But a (child with Williams Syndrome) might say, 'the doll went down.'"

Landau said the children might not have perceived the event in the same way as the normal child, or they may have difficulty learning spatial language. "Most likely it is some combination of the two," she said. "It might be hard to learn to talk about space if you have difficulty conceptualizing it."

When asked to find a coin hidden under one of several cups on a table, the children do so quite easily — even if they have moved from one place to another during the test.

"(This) suggests real differences in the kinds of intellectual abilities that are compromised and the kinds that are spared," Landau said. "This is not just retardation, this is something unusual."

Landau and her research team have used some of the funds from a March of Dimes grant to purchase a special eye-tracker that records the children's eye movements as they perform spatial tasks. The tiny camera is hidden in a cap that the children wear, and this allows them to freely move their head, body and eyes.

By understanding the nature of the spatial deficits, the researchers hope to get a better understanding of how to educate people who have the syndrome.

DTC kicks off new season

THE DELAWARE Theater Company is ready to launch its 20th season with William Shakespeare's delightful "As You Like It." Hopefully, the title of the first play will be a portent of things to come this season, the first without its founder and artistic director of 19 years, Cleveland Morris.

The new artistic director, stepping into some very big shoes, is Fontaine Syer. She has lined up a season for us that literally has something for everyone. There are five plays to grace the intimate theater on Water Street for the subscription season. The 1998-99 season has it all from heart searing drama to farce, with several stops in between.

Giving chronology its due, opening night of the season will be October 14 with one of the Bard's most loved tales, "As You Like It." It will run through November 8. First of all, the poetry is by Shakespeare and the glorious language will abound. Then add some comedy and romance and you have a wonderful evening at theater. The witty and wise Rosalind will lead us on a trip through the Forest of Arden as she has been doing for centuries — a trip from which few ever return tired.

One of my favorite forms of theater, farce, will occupy the DTC stage from December 2 to 20. "Inspecting Carol" is by Daniel Sullivan and centers about the Soapbox Playhouse. The company is about to present the umpteenth production of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." It has, as far as I am concerned, one of the main ingredients of good farce, everything that can go wrong does! Things really get out of hand when the exhausted members of the company mistake a no-talent actor for their National Endowment for the Arts evaluator. This would make a great pre-Christmas present for the whole family.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

A definite change of pace is in store for the January 13 to 31 DTC production. One of the truly great plays of our century, Eugene O'Neill's "A Moon for the Misbegotten," will begin 1999 in style. O'Neill's masterpiece tells the tale of the dissolute James Tyrone and the voluptuous Josie Hogan. He is the master and she the daughter of his tenant farmer. They are two people caught in a web of passion, self deception and regret. Powerful drama and world class theater in January.

The fourth play of the season is set "Round about long 'go an' way down nearby." It is "Spunk," three tales of Zora Neale Hurston adapted for the stage by George C. Wolfe. It is the story of Afro-American life in the deep south. In this play we can experience the human spirit's capacity to overcome and endure. This show brings together music, dance and some great storytelling. It will run from February 24 through March 14.

The last play in the regular subscription series is Brian Friel's "Dancing at Lughnasa." It was the winner of the 1992 Tony Award for Best Play. It will be front and center from April 7 to 25. This lyrical masterpiece tells the unusual story of five sisters who are just eking out an existence in the rural Ireland of 1936. Their only link with the romance and hope of other worlds is their radio. The "New York Times" critic had this to say when the play opened, "This play does exactly what theater was born to do, carrying both its characters and audience aloft on those waves of distant music and ecstatic release that, in defiance of all language and logic, let us dance and dream just before the night must fall." Praise indeed from a paper not famous for its kindness to new works!

As always, the prices at the Delaware Theater Company are as exciting as the plays. Season subscriptions prices begin at only $83. If you are full-time student with ID, you will find season tickets beginning at $45! For more information you may call the box office at 302-594-1100. If you are interested in tickets for one or more of the plays, but not the whole season, you can find some interesting prices too. If you want to make up a theater group, discounts range from 20 to

Fontaine Syer, new artistic director of the Delaware Theater Company, has lined up an exciting series of plays for the upcoming season.

40% off regular prices, depending on the size of the group. For information about groups you may call 302-594-1104.

If you love good theater and have never been to the Delaware Theater Company, make this your season to begin a relationship. You never know how a relationship can grow but, if you are like most of us, it will quickly bloom and bear sweet fruit. If you are a regular, I need say no more.

Enjoy!

Help your garden beat the summer heat

► OUTLOOK, from 8

vide the equivalent of 1 inch rainfall. This should be applied very slowly, so that 1 inch of water can penetrate at least 4 inches into the soil. Shallow sprinkling will not help your grass — but will make it more susceptible to drought, pests and diseases. Start watering your lawn when the drought starts (you didn't get an inch of rain that week). Use a rain gauge to keep track of when and how much rain has fallen. If you will be away, arrange for someone to take over watering duty. Pampered grass that's suddenly cut off from water will be in worse shape than if you'd never done anything nice for it.

3. Mulch your ornamental and vegetable gardens with compost, straw, or shredded bark. Layers of newspaper will help conserve moisture, too. Mulch up to four inches deep for most plants. Blueberries welcome almost as much as you can give them — five or six inches would be great. Avoid mounding mulch against the stems or trunks of plants. Be cautious about using fine materials such as grass clippings or peat moss. These can shed water away from your plants if they form a dry surface thatch. Also, if you use herbicides, compost grass clippings for several months before you use them in gardens.

4. Group plants to take advantage of mutual shade and wind-break. Exposed pots heat up in the sun and dry out faster than pots that are surrounded by others, or are enclosed in a larger pot. Grouped plants raise humidity among themselves, so water uptake from the soil is reduced. Grouping applies to plants in the ground, too. Single specimens standing all alone suffer greater swings in temperature and water than do clusters.

5. Water infrequently, but water thoroughly. Daily splashes of water will harm landscape and potted plants just as it would the lawn. Make sure the water penetrates to the bottom of the pot and that some runs out the drain holes. Flowers and vegetables need water 4 to 6 inches deep. Water landscape plants so the water penetrates 6 to 8 inches or deeper. Don't water again until the surface of the soil feels dry (in a pot) or when the top inch or so of soil becomes dry.

6. Invest in a soil probe. All this water penetration and monitoring is invisible if you try to view it from above. A soil probe will pull out a core of soil so you can really see what's going on below ground. It's better than a shovel because there's less chance of severing roots. A t-handle 18" probe will cost around $20, and it's worth every penny.

Lunacies

POEMS, PUNS and PROVERBS

By James C. McLaren

A mean saber-toothed Bat,
Never peacefully sat,
But swooped around folks at camp fire.
As the picnickers babbled,
Bat with nasty thoughts dabbled:
He would soon have his feast as vampire.

A long-legged young Egret
Had no cause for regret,
Always waddling about in the water.
From his high-standing stance
He peered down with a glance.
He saw fish and he eagerly caught her.

What might a deer tick infection be called by the Cockneys of London?
Limey disease.

What can one say in a husky voice to compliment a sled dog?
"Thanks very mush!"

While a galloping horse can never outrun a speeding train, one can forever admire its inner strength and sense of purpose.

Heavy breathing can be a weight on one's soul.

■ Author's note:

Lunacies like these have been inflicted on my poor wife, children and colleagues for years. They have been greeted by both groans and guffaws — the latter, perhaps, to pacify the punster and offset a further barrage. To its victims, punning can be seen as a disease, since any laughter, however sparse, can be contagious. I hope Post readers will tackle this word-play nonsense with zest, thereby assuring them Eternal Joy and a letter from Ed McMahon.

Bringing home the groceries

Home delivery may return

By MICHAEL JONAS

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

FOR THE AVERAGE person, a trip to the grocery store is an inconvenience to fit into a busy schedule. For 90-year-old Dot Raymond, a trip to the grocery store is a near impossible chore that she must build into her schedule.

For Raymond, and hundreds of other senior citizens in Newark, the simple act of running to the supermarket to pick up a dozen eggs or a quart of milk, can be a challenging and frustrating task, sometimes planned days in advance. In some cases it is all together out of the question.

Raymond gets around with the help of a walker. She lives alone, can still drive, and is completely self sufficient. Although she isn't housebound, Raymond still finds shopping in a supermarket a daunting proposition.

"First off I need a cart, which I usually have to wait for," explained Raymond. "A big problem is narrow aisles. With a walker or a cart they are a pain in the neck — all kinds of things sticking out."

For this reason, Raymond prefers to shop at Shop 'N Bag where the aisles are nice and wide. "Getting the packages into my trunk are another story," Raymond said. "Luckily there always seems to be someone to help me with that."

Raymond's problems continue once she gets the groceries home. "My garage and front door are at opposite ends of the house, so I must carry the groceries the entire length of the house, and I haven't been able to do that for a long time." She solves this problem by paying a neighborhood boy to carry them in and unpack them. "I tried a wheelbarrow to carry them, but it just tipped over," Raymond said, laughing.

Many people can still remember a time when the corner grocery store would deliver.

In Raymond's case, living on a farm in a rural community, a grocery man would come around and take her family's order and bring back the groceries the next day.

Actually, home delivery of groceries seems to be coming back into fashion.

"The customer just has to call in and we will shop the order for them for a $15 fee," said Joe Cowhey, director of sales and marketing for

Shop-Rite supermarkets. "We started the program last year in an effort to be unique, and no one else in the area offers it as far as I know."

Cowhey said Shop-Rite is also in the preliminary stages of creating an online grocery store. The chain has stores in Newark, Wilmington and Stanton.

Shop-Rite may not be alone for long in the home delivery marketplace. Although the Acme in Newark doesn't have delivery, some of that chain's stores in South Jersey offer the service through Supermarkets To Go, an independently-owned company based in Willingboro, N.J.

A customer can place an order and have it brought to the kitchen

“It's becoming more of an issue than ever before.”

Local supermarkets are full of seniors like Alice Bryant who find this shopping trip increasingly difficult as the population ages.

counter for a fee of $9.95 plus five percent of the total bill.

"We don't know if it's feasible to bring to Delaware," said Ed Sprague of Acme. "People are not always willing to pay a fair price for delivery."

Aaron Thomas, president and founder of Supermarkets To Go, said that if other supermarket chains in this area were willing to utilize his service, then he could see no reason not to try it here.

"There is definitely a need for home delivery," said Thomas, "especially in areas with a large population of seniors."

But Jean Williams, executive director of the Newark Senior Center, said the extra cost of delivery may be too much for most seniors because they are on a fixed income.

"Even if they can afford to pay, they may be unwilling," said Williams, "because they are afraid they may become sick and need the money for medicine or something else."

Lee Perkins, the center's social services director, points out that for 25 cents a bus will pick up and drop off seniors at the center and take them to area supermarkets and other stores.

"We transported 378 seniors this past year with the buses, a large increase over last year," Perkins said. "It is becoming more of an issue than ever before."

Raymond agreed. "We are at a crossroads now," she said. "More of us (seniors) are living too long, even outliving their children, and it's creating many unforeseen problems."

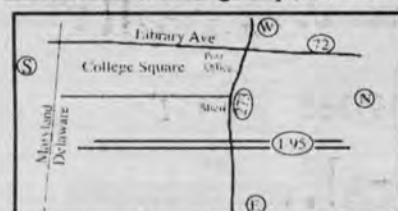

There are many people living at home right now who are not really independent. Some of them get help from friends and family, but not everyone is that lucky."

WHAT IS ASSISTED LIVING?

At The Gardens at Whitechapel, your parents' care is our primary concern. That's why

we've built an assisted living community that's ready to help whenever they need it. With our compassionate caregivers and personalized care plans that you help in designing, The Gardens at Whitechapel is a place your parents will always feel safe and secure.

And our goal is to provide this security while still promoting their independence. Our residents enjoy their choice of daily activities and their own private apartment which they choose from several sizes. It takes only a small refundable deposit to hold one, with no long-term contracts or move-in fees ever.

Call today to schedule a personal visit.

Biden calls for bigger fraud patrols

U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden Jr. has called for the expansion of a federal program to train seniors to detect and report fraudulent Medicare claims.

"Senior citizens could be one of the most effective tools we have in fighting Medicare fraud," said Biden. "They are meticulous reviewers of their medical bills and have a keen eye for something that is not right."

In a letter to the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor and Health and Human Services, Biden requested additional funding to expand the "Senior Fraud Patrol" program.

In 1996, funding was allocated to establish 12 "Senior Patrols" in selected areas throughout the nation. Working through local senior centers, volunteer "patrol members" were trained to identify and report fraudulent claims and educate other seniors in their communities.

Preliminary reports suggest that the patrols have saved Medicare millions of dollars and generated an enthusiastic response from participants.

AARP Seeking volunteers

The Delaware AARP is seeking volunteers for a state coordinator for communications who will deal with publicity and public relations on a statewide basis, and a training coordinator who will design and supervise training for various volunteer cadres throughout the state. Candidates for these positions should be semi or fully retired since both require the coordinators to be available for daytime meetings and events. Use of a car and travel statewide also are required. Training will be provided and it is not necessary to be a member of AARP. These are volunteer positions. However all personal expenses are reimbursed.

Anyone interested in either of these positions should send a brief note requesting a job description to Ted Ressler, Delaware AARP, P.O. Box 371, Camden, DE 19934.

Medicaid transport available

Express Medical Transport is now operating a free service in the local area for Medicaid clients. All Medicaid recipients needing transport can call for reservations or pickups at 266-8278 or toll-free 1-888-413-4925, 24 hours a day. Information is also available by FAX at 266-7020 or email at Dixel@aol.com.

Gore aquatic center

The Gore Aquatic Center at the Newark Senior

Center on White Chapel Drive is open Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. An aquacise class will be held from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. Cost is $18 per month for pool non-members. For more information, call 737-2336.

Volunteers Needed

The Arthritis Foundation needs volunteers to organize and coordinate support meetings for sufferers and their families. Interested persons should call Mel Anderson, program director at 1-800-292-9599. Training in each county will be scheduled in the fall.

Volunteer For Wilmington & Western Railroad

The Wilmington & Western Railroad, Delaware's oldest, continuous railroad operation, needs volunteers. All levels of skill are needed to work in the non-profit organization. Passenger trains currently are in need of trainmen and ticket agents for week-end work. Volunteers can work their way to the level of conductor or engine service.

A restoration team works regularly to restore one of the steam locomotives. The organization hopes to have Locomotive #58 back in service in the fall of 1998. Any volunteers interested, please call Carole at 998-1930.

Acmes sold in historic deal

Albertson's becomes nation's largest chain of supermarkets

Albertson's Inc. knocked Kroger from the top shelf of U.S. supermarkets by announcing its $8.3 billion purchase of Acme supermarkets parent company, American Stores Inc.

The deal will create a huge national grocery and drug store chain, with more than 2,470 stores in 37 states.

According to an Associated Press report, the merged company expects to have annual revenues topping $36 billion, which would put it ahead of Kroger and Safeway, the nation's first and second-largest grocery chains.

The deal is historic for Albertson's and American, which owns Jewel and Lucky stores in addition to Acme. In 1939, the family of American Stores founder Samuel Skaggs lent Joe Albertson the money to buy his first Albertson's grocery store.

American Stores currently has 15 stores in Delaware, including Acmes at Suburban Plaza in Newark, University Plaza in Ogle-town, and Fox Run Shopping Center in Bear.

Other Acme markets located in New Castle County are at Lantana Square Shopping Center, Price's Corner Shopping Center, and on Green Street in Middletown.

Albertson's corporate headquarters will remain in Boise, Idaho, and the company will keep its name. Albertson's intends to retain both companies' current store names, although some individual store names may change.

Gary G. Michael, chairman and CEO of Albertson's, said increased competitive pressure and cost efficiencies led to the deal. Increased size of stores as well as companies in recent years give the companies greater strength in bargaining with suppliers.

In addition, grocery chains face competition from retailing giants like Wal-Mart which sells food at its discount stores and has announced plans for free-standing supermarkets. "We keep seeing consolidation in the supermarket industry," said Tom Agan of retail consulting firm Kurt Salmon Associates. "The chains keep getting bigger and bigger."

No job cuts were immediately announced for the new company which will have more than 218,000 employees. American Stores chairman Victor L. Lund said that layoffs will likely come in Salt Lake City where American Stores is based.

Albertson's operates in the Midwest, West and Southern states. American Stores is spread across the country from Boston to California, with most of its stores in California and Texas.

AstroPower starts commerical shipments from local office

AstroPower Inc., a leading supplier of solar electric power products, announced the first commercial shipments from the company's new nine MW manufacturing facility in the Pencader Corporate Center off Route 896. The new factory utilizes AstroPower's proprietary low-cost Silicon-Film(TM) manufacturing process to produce APex(TM) solar cells and modules more efficiently than traditional solar electric power technologies.

"We are pleased that our new Silicon-Film(TM) factory has come on-line according to schedule and within budget," said Dr. Allen M. Barnett, president and CEO. "In less than six months following the signing of the facility lease, our team was able to bring on a fully operational factory."

The new factory is located approximately six miles from the company's headquarters on Wyoming Road in Newark. When operating at full capacity, the 60,000 square-foot facility will produce approximately nine MW of APex(TM) products per year - roughly tripling AstroPower's current production capacity.

According to company officials, unlike conventional solar cells made using batch-style processes derived from the computer chip industry, APex(TM) material is formed as a continuous sheet to the required thickness in a matter of minutes, similar in many ways to modern low-cost methods for manufacturing plate glass or sheet steel. AstroPower's APex(TM) solar cells and modules offer the advantage of lower cost and greater size flexibility relative to the company's competitors.

The largest single APex(TM) product shipment was 19 kW of large-area APex(TM) rooftop panels to a California-based customer of GPU Solar, AstroPower's joint venture with GPU International. Additional shipments of APex(TM) solar cells and modules were made to customers in the USA and Europe.

AstroPower develops, manufactures, markets and sells photovoltaic (PV) solar cells, modules and panels for generating solar electric power. Solar electric power is used off the electric utility grid for many applications in the communications and transportation industries and in remote villages and homes.

Newark National falls in states

Georgetown too much for Nationals

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark National Little League's 11-12-year-old all stars, needing a win to stay alive in the state tournament, gave Georgetown everything it had in a highly entertaining game Monday night at the Midway Little League complex.

Unfortunately for the upstate representative, it wasn't enough, as defending state champion Georgetown won 9-6 to earn a trip to the regionals in Bristol, Conn.

"The kids never died," said Newark manager Joe Rayfield, whose team lost to Georgetown 10-6 in its tourney opener. "They kept their heads up to the last out. Going into the fifth inning, we were ahead. We stumbled in the fifth inning and it cost us."

Rayfield, whose team finished 8-3 in post-season play, called Georgetown the best-hitting team he saw the whole tournament.

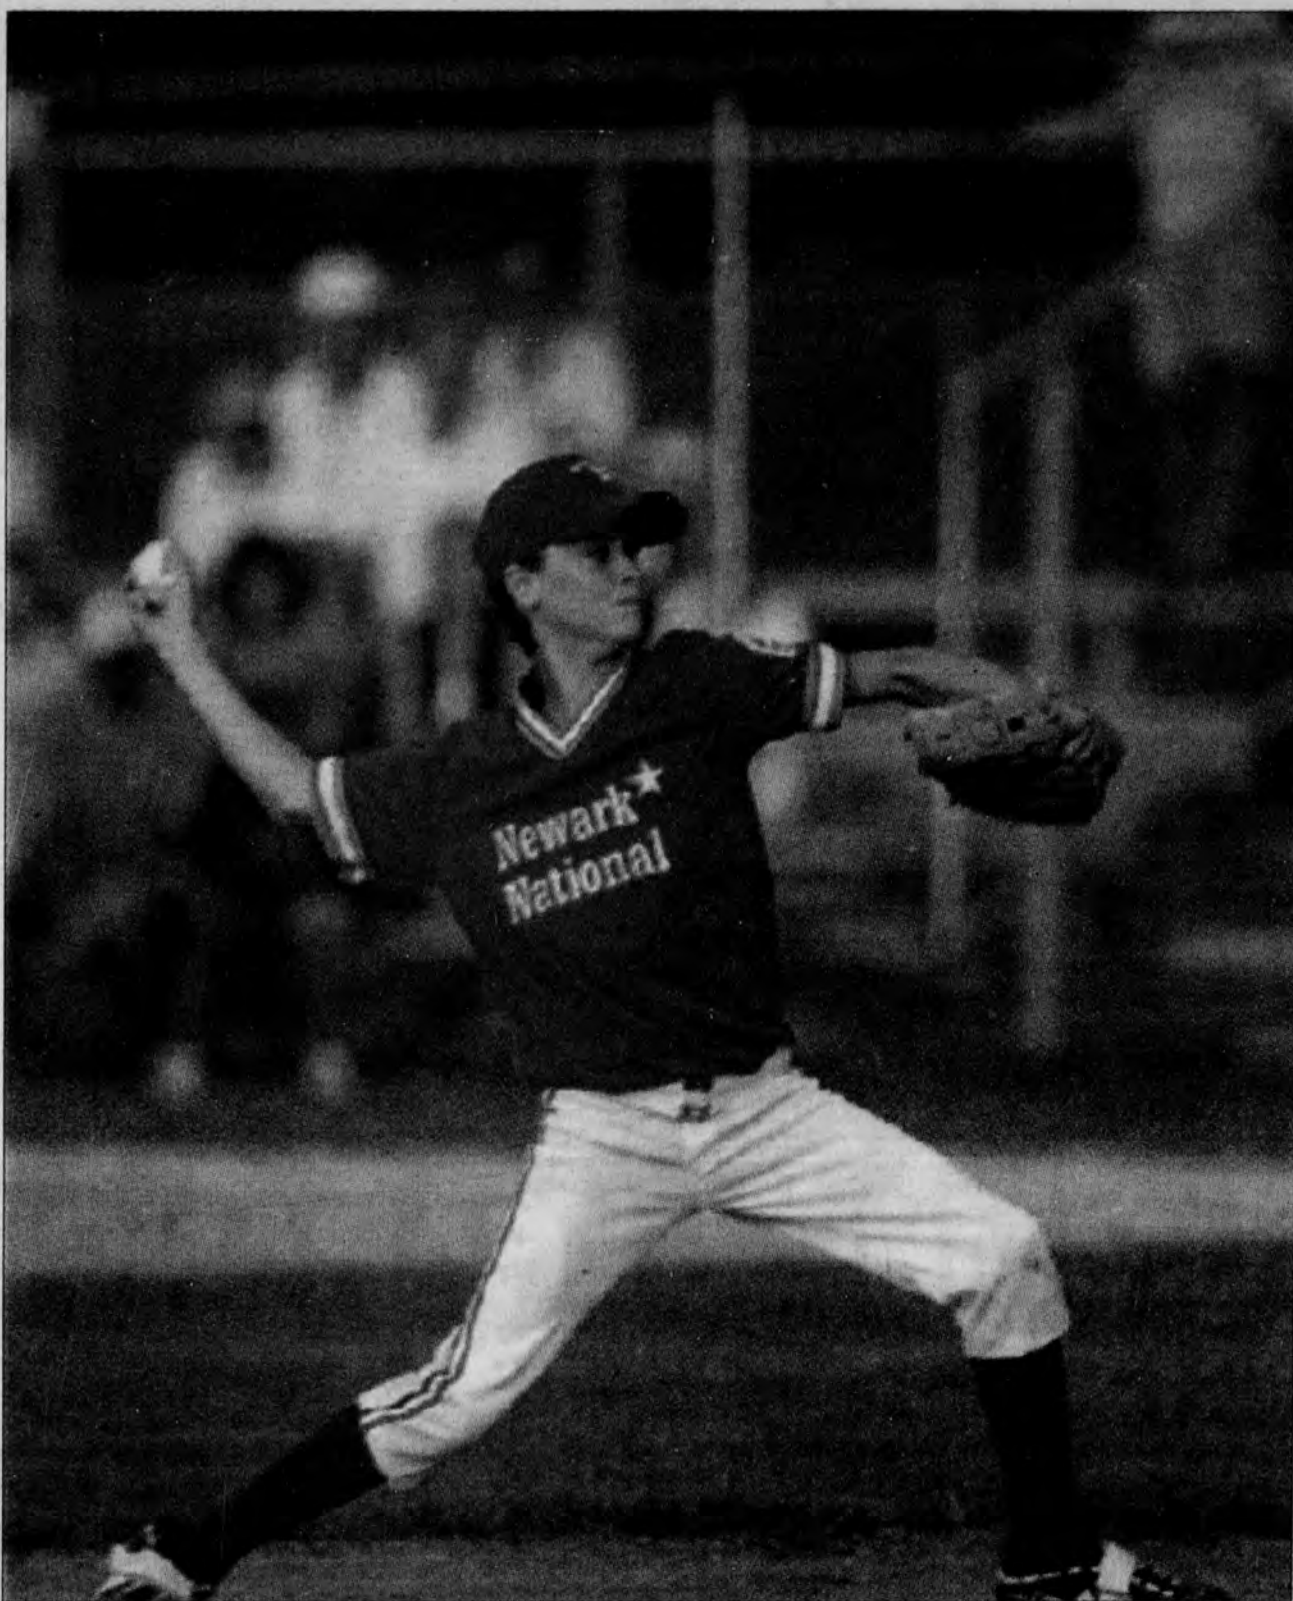

"It's a shame, and we did give it our all," Rayfield said. "We had the lead in both games (against Georgetown), but they just pecked away and took it away from us."

Newark took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Kevin Ellis led off with a walk, went to third on a double by Mark Agnew, then later scored on an error.

Agnew hustled home with the second run on a wild pitch by Matt Schiltter.

In the bottom of the first, Georgetown cut the lead to 2-1 when Donald Lewis hit a home run to center that landed about 50 feet beyond the 200-foot fence. It was Lewis' seventh homer in post-season play and 16th consecutive game he had homered, according Rebounding from a tough loss proved to be no problem for the Newark National Major All-Star team.

After letting a six-run lead slip away on Saturday, Newark National came back with a 4-2 victory over Milford Sunday in the losers' bracket final of the state championship tournament at the Midway Little League complex. The win advanced the District II champs to a rematch with Georgetown Monday night.

Newark had to win two games to win the state crown.

The key to Newark National's victory came in the fourth inning when it held a slim 2-1 lead.

Milford's Caleb Brown led off the top of the inning with a triple to right field. Two batters later another batter reached on an error. But with runners on second and third, pitcher Kevin Majewski struck out the next two Milford batters to get out of the jam.

Newark National then followed with two runs in the bottom of the fourth to improve its lead to 4-1.

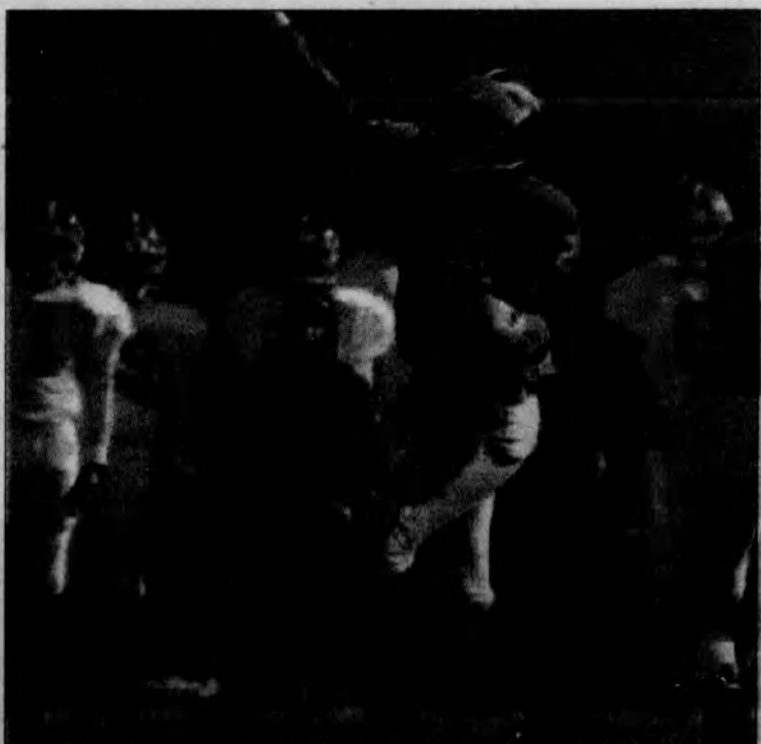

"That was big right there," said Newark National manager Joe Rayfield. "Kevin Majewski did a great job there and really the whole game. He's been great for us the entire tournament."

Bobby Sartori ignited Newark's fourth-inning rally with a lead-off single. Drew Bullen followed with a perfectly executed bunt-single. Kevin Ellis laid down a sacrifice bunt to move the runners to second and third base. Mark Agnew then drew a walk to load the bases.

Matt Hicken then drilled a single down the left field line to score Sar-

Delaware ranked #3 in preseason polls

Delaware's Matt Nagy will compete for the starting quarterback job this fall.

Hens open Sept. 3

The University of Delaware football team will begin the 1998 season right where it finished the 1997 campaign — among the top five Division I-AA teams in the country.

The Blue Hens are ranked third in the Sports Network NCAA I-AA preseason poll, behind defending champion Youngstown State and McNeese State.

Delaware, which posted a 12-2 record last season, lost to McNeese State on a last-second field goal in last year's semifinal game. The Hens will travel to top-ranked Youngstown on Oct. 17.

In all, four of Delaware's 1998 opponents are ranked in the top 25. In addition to top-ranked Youngstown, Villanova is No. 7, William & Mary is No. 14 and Richmond is No. 20.

Head coach Tubby Raymond, who will enter his 33rd season as the second winningest active coach in NCAA I-AA with 270 wins, will welcome back 12 starters.

The Hens will begin practice Aug. 13 with its annual Media Day at Delaware Stadium. The session is open to the public.

Delaware will open the season under the lights at Delaware Stadium Thursday, Sept. 3 against Massachusetts.

Keen's season ends on down note

Post 1 baffles Keen all season

By STEVE WESTRICK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Darkness fell on Keen/Atterbury. By the time Keen players left Wilson Field, on July 28, the sun and their season had set.

For the fourth time in six meetings, Post 1 defeated Keen. This time was the most painful as the 10-4 loss eliminated Keen from the American Legion Play-offs.

"We don't make the routine plays and they do," Keen manager Roe Rineer said explaining his team's poor play against Post 1.

In the bottom of the seventh, Post 1 exploded for five runs. Those runs broke open what had been a close game throughout.

With one out, Post's Josh Nelson hit a high fly ball to right/center field. Both Keen's Adam Brown and Dubin Word got into position to make the play. However, the two had a lack of communication and the ball dropped between them.

The error proved costly as the next two batters ripped hits. Those hits drove in Nelson and put runners on second and third with one out. Even after a Keen pitching change, Post 1 continued to hit as Nate Husser blasted a line drive double off the left field fence. Husser's hit drove in both runners.

After an out and walk, Mike August singled to right field. Word attempted to field the ball, but it bounced away allowing both runners to score.

Keen used four pitchers in the game. Keen's starter Tom Ellis ran into control problems early in the game. In three and a third innings, he gave up seven runs off seven hits and four walks.

"Tom Ellis didn't look good as far as velocity or location. He didn't have it," Rineer said.

Rineer added the poor performance was unfortunate since Ellis had been pitching well prior to this outing.

Keen scored all its runs in the fourth inning.

Jim Murphy opened the inning with a single. After an out and walk, Post pulled its starting pitcher and installed Husser.

Husser had been effective throughout the season against Keen. However, the first batter he faced, Mike Sturgis, ripped a double to left field to drive in a run. Ryan Husfelt kept things going hitting a two RBI triple to the left/center field fence. He would later score on a Bo Fisher hit.

After the fourth, Husser dominated Keen batters. He gave up only one more hit. His final numbers for five and two-thirds innings: two runs off five hits, two walks, eight strike outs and a hit batter.

Rineer felt his team coming out flat had more to do with the poor showing than Husser's pitching.

"We came out flat," Rineer said. "I take the blame. Most of that has to come back on the coach. You should be able to get guys up for a game like this. The guys never gave up and kept battling back."

Rineer said he plans on coaching the team next summer. He will lose only four players who are presently 18.

Delaware strength coach awarded

University of Delaware strength and conditioning coach, and Bear resident, Tony Decker was named the 1998 National Strength and Conditioning Association (NSCA) Professional of the Year.

The award was presented at the NSCA annual convention in Colorado Springs last month. In earning the honor, Decker was selected from strength and conditioning coaches throughout college programs across the country.

The 37 year old Decker, will begin his 11th year on the University of Delaware staff. He has been the head strength and conditioning coach for six years.

He is a native of Wilkes-Barre, PA and a 1983 graduate of East Stroudsburg University. Decker has also earned a master's degree from the University of Virginia.

National can't dethrone defending champs to his manager, Bill West.

Georgetown took a 5-2 lead in the third inning fueled by walks, an error and a passed ball.

Newark made it 5-3 in the fourth when Sartori walked and later scored on a bases-loaded walk to Ellis.

Newark took a 6-5 lead in the fifth, taking advantage of walks and shoddy fielding by Georgetown.

But Georgetown took a 9-6 lead in the bottom of the inning on five hits, including a two-out, two-run single by C.W. Herbst that made it 8-6.

Schlitter, who went 5-0 in post-season play, set Newark down in order in the sixth, setting off a wild celebration at the pitcher's mound. If Newark had won, Georgetown would have had to return for a rematch Tuesday night.

"The fans were kidding me that if I lost, I'd have to pay for their gas money," said Schlitter.

"(Newark) was a good team and never quit."

"Newark was a tough, scrappy bunch," said West, whose team averaged about nine runs scored per game in the post-season. "I had to tell our guys the first night that they didn't get here without being tough."

"Our goal was to get to Connecticut," said Ellis, resident of Sherwood Forest, "but we had a lot of fun. It was great playing on a team like this. We were close."

"It's disappointing, but we had a lot of fun," said Agnew, a resident of Fox Fire who had two hits in the loss.

Newark National drops first game of state tournament

By STEVE WESTRICK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark National lost its first game of the state playoffs to defending state champion Georgetown 10-6, Saturday, at Midway.

Newark took an early lead, scoring one run in the top of the first and five more in the second. All those runs came off only two hits.

Early on, Georgetown starter Donald Lewis had trouble throwing strikes. He walked nine batters in the first two innings. National's Mark Agnew and Matthew Hicken hit RBI singles, while three runs were walked in.

However, in both the first and second Newark left the bases loaded. Those stranded runners would prove costly as Georgetown scored six runs in the bottom of the second.

The inning began when Georgetown's Matt Schlitter hit a single to left field. After three consecutive walks by Newark National starting pitcher Eric Trent, Jared Lineweaver hit into a fielder's choice to score the innings second run.

Then, Jeremie West hit a two RBI double down the third base line. After another walk, Lewis tied the game with a home run over the center field fence.

Georgetown scored four more runs in the third inning. The first came off another home run, this one by first baseman Spencer Booth. Following two walks, Lineweaver hit a single to right field scoring both runners. Lineweaver was latter brought in on a RBI single by Lewis.

National did not record a hit after the second inning. Lewis settled down, walking only one batter in the final four innings.

tori and Bullen.

National, however, did have to fight off two more Milford comeback attempts.

Milford got three hits and run in the fifth but Newark reliever Matt Hilts got a big strikeout to halt the rally.

Milford again put two runners on base in the sixth but Hilts forced a ground out and a pop up to end the game.

"Matt Hilts came in and got some big outs for us," Rayfield said. "He did a terrific job."

It didn't take long for Newark National to get started, scoring two runs in the first inning.

Ellis and Agnew led off with back-to-back singles. Hicken followed with a single to left to score Ellis. Sartori then got hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to score Agnew.

Kyle Roenne also added a hit for Newark National.

"We've really had contributions from everybody on this team," Rayfield said. "The more people we use, the better we seem to play. It's been a good experience."

Delaware Magic in action

The Delaware Magic 16-and-under softball team finished fifth in the PONY National Tournament in Sterling, Va. last weekend.

The Magic were eliminated by the Connecticut Explosion 4-2 in the quarterfinals.

The team had a 5-4 overall record and 4-2 in championship play.

The national tournament consisted of top teams from around the country and was the final one of the year for the Magic.

Offensively, the team was led by Laura Taylor (.552 average, 16-for-29, 3 HR, 10 RBI, 11 runs scored); Ashley Niggebrugge (.429, 9-for-21); Erin McGlynn (.407, 11-for-27); Ashley Davis (.367, 11-for-30, 2 HR, 9 RBI); Lisa Scanlon (.310, 9-for-29) and Alexis Niggebrugge (.286, 8-for-28, 1 grand slam).

Pitchers Jackie Homiak and Gina Madaline shared the pitching duties and posted a combined 1.10 earned-run-average, while striking out 41 batters in 60 innings.

Wemple named women's crew coach

The University of Delaware announced the appointment of Amanda Wemple as head coach of the women's crew program.

This year the crew team will become a varsity sport at Delaware. For the past seven years the team has been active as a club sport.

Wemple, 25, has served as the head coach at Wilmington Youth Association, assistant swimming coach at Ursuline Academy, assistant rowing coach for the University of Delaware men's club team, assistant women's rowing coach at Temple and assistant rowing coach for Delaware while it was a club sport.

NEW Map of Maryland / Delaware Rivers, Streams, Lakes, and Chesapeake Bay

LOST STREAM MAP FOUND AND RESTORED

The recently published Stream Map of Maryland and Delaware resembles another map—known to Pennsylvania anglers as the "Lost Stream Map."

The "Stream Map of Pennsylvania" was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well — until it was lost several years after it first appeared in print. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates, declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key. Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology—the Maryland/Delaware Stream Map was created.

Stream MAP

of Maryland/Delaware

Why every fisherman and boater needs this map

Professor Higbee's® Stream Map of Maryland/Delaware is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind. This new 2 x 3 1/2' foot color map shows virtually all of the 12,000 miles of Maryland/Delaware streams, plus lakes. Now, overlooked streams and lakes are easy-to-locate on one map.

Rave Reviews

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps." —John Plaites, OBSERVER-DISPATCH-ULICA

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake...then 'Professor Higbee's Stream Maps' are without question the finest." —Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"Professor Higbee's Stream Map belongs on the den wall of every freshwater angler and paddler in the region." —Tom Meade, Providence Journal - Bulletin

Watershed Boundaries

Boundary lines for the 16 Maryland and Delaware watersheds, which drain into Chesapeake Bay, are shown on the Stream Map.

The entire Chesapeake Bay watershed covers 64,000 square miles in 6 states. Almost every drop of anything that falls on or spills in the watershed eventually ends up in the Bay.

Success in restoring the Bay begins with each individual protecting his or her own watershed.

You can also help by becoming a member of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, and supporting its efforts to reduce pollution, protect and restore habitat, restore fisheries, and educate and involve more citizens. The Bay belongs to each of us. Its survival depends on our actions today.

A portion of the purchase price of each map helps the important efforts of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

State Housing now on cabinet level

Governor Thomas R. Carper has signed a bill that will streamline the Delaware State Housing Authority and formalize its role as a Cabinet-level agency.

The bill will increase affordable housing as an integral aspect of social policy. It also transfers the Delaware State Housing Agency from the Delaware Economic Development Office; and reestablishes DSHA as stand-alone office in the Executive Department.

The legislation consolidates repetitive language and amends regulations governing the Housing Development Fund and the newly renamed Delaware Housing Insurance Fund to make these financial resources more efficient and effective. The bill also grants DSHA the power to take action and implement policies to combat adverse social conditions, crime and drugs, and to provide assistance conditionally in support of Delaware's welfare reform initiative, A Better Chance.

"Over the past six years, we have made tremendous strides in creating a more efficient and cost-effective state government," said Carper. "This bill is a continuation of that goal. Just as important, it provides the Delaware State Housing Authority with the tools it needs to effectively perform its mission of providing housing assistance to some of our most vulnerable populations."

Susan A. Frank, director of the Delaware State Housing Authority, commented, "Raising the profile of affordable housing has been a priority for the Delaware State Housing Authority and to have its Cabinet level status formalized places us in a better position to do just that."

House bill 633 will enable us to operate in a more efficient and productive manner to better assist Delawareans in need of affordable housing opportunities."

The bill is effective immediately.

REAL ESTATE BRIEFS

Local realtors named master sellers

Paul and Diane Langston, sales agents with Patterson-Schwartz Real Estate, were recently inducted into Floyd Wickman's Master Sales Society and earned the designation of "Master Salespersons." The society designation recognizes those associates who have completed a master level Floyd Wickman Course and fulfilled all of the requirements for membership. Less than one percent of all licensed realtors attain this elite status.

254 E. Main available for lease

Deaton McCue & Co. announced that Freny Enterprises Inc. has purchased 254 E. Main St., Newark, by Deed from UCSC Inc. Freny purchased the 3,700 square-foot office building next to Newark Shopping Center for an investment. According to Gary Betty of Deaton McCue & Co. who handled the transaction, the building is now available for lease.
