NEW INDUSTRY FOR NEWARK

Help Wanted At Good Wages For Clean And Healthy Occupation—Board Of Trade Makes Announcement

Mr. J. Frank Diggs, proprietor of a shirt factory at North East, Md., visited Newark last week with the view of installing a branch here, provided help conditions are favorable.
Messrs. T. F. Armstrong, J. H. Hossinger, Eben B. Frazier, Dr. Walter Steele and others met Mr. Diggs in the Council chamber where the proposition was thoroughly gone over and favorably considered. The first and important feature is to know if operative labor can be secured. About fifty girls and women will be required —girls not under 16 years old. The wages are piece work, from 50 cents for learners to about $2.00 a day, owing to the individual skill. Those who may be interested in a clean and healthy occupation and are willing to work at shirt making, please leave your names and addresses at Frazier's Rug Store, Rhodes Drive Store or at any of our storekeepers. This should be done at once to enable our town to get this industry under way at a very early day.

CHURCH SERVICES

Do not forget the grand supper to be given by the ladies of the White Clay Creek Church on tomorrow (Thursday) evening, October 13th.
This will be a chicken supper, and will be in the basement of the church.

The Ladies' Aid of Newark M. E.
Church will hold their annual poultry supper in the banquet hall of the Opera House building on Thursday, November 10th.

The Board of Trustees of the M. E.
Church have arranged to have a rummage sale about December 1st.

Board Of Health Meets

The Board of Health held a consultative meeting on Monday afternoon, and inspected the condition of the gutter in front of the Wollaston property, against which a complaint had been filed with the Town Council. The Board found no cause for complaint and the Secretary was so instructed to notify Council.

It was also requested that same be published, as a member of the Board said he had never noticed anything out of the way—in fact, he thought the premises here were kept exceptionally clean.

A visit was also made to inspect the gutter in front of the Thomas property. There is great need here for a better drainage, as this section of the town has never been graded. The Board will ask Council to make investigation.

Much just complaint has been received from citizens in regard to this part of the street and Council should certainly comply with the request.

Meeting Of Sunshine Society

The Delaware Sunshine Society will hold their quarterly meeting and annual election of officers on Thursday, October 20th, in the St. Paul's M. E.
Church.

The requirements for membership and the object of the society are given below:

The pledge—I join the International Sunshine Society, promising to pay my fee in the form of some act carrying sunshine into another life within one month from date. I also promise to pay annual dues in the form of kind acts, and agree to report the nature and circumstance of these acts to my president, in order that she may help, and call upon her members to help, in the scattering of cheer.

The object of this Society is:
To incite its members to kind and helpful deeds, and to thus bring the sunshine of happiness into the greatest possible number of hearts and homes.

Christiana Parsonage Clear Of Debt
The members of Christiana M. E.
Church at a meeting yesterday responded to the call of their speakers, by pledging the money to clear a debt of 25 years standing.

The debt was on the parsonage and for 18 years no money has been paid on the principal.

Yesterday morning District Superintendent E. L. Hoffecker preached a sermon and presented the matter of the debt standing against the church property and within a short time had the greater part of the money pledged.
In the evening Rev. W. F. Corkran again urged the people and the entire amount was promised within two weeks. The sum needed was $350.

The pastor, Rev. C. W. Spry is very popular with his people and is doing a good work throughout that locality.

"Farewell" To Friends

Mr. Herman Eggers entertained friends in his rooms on Newark Highway last Friday and Monday nights.

Mr. Eggers left Tuesday for St.
Louis, Mo., where he will accept a position as chemist with a firm of paint manufacturers.

NEWARK REPUBLICANS

Prominent Speakers Address Enthusi- astic Gathering

A very enthusiastic meeting of the White Clay Creek Republican Club was held last evening. The Club had as its guests Congressman and candidate Heald, Hon. P. Q. Churchman, Dr. L. H. Ball, Col. Mitchell and Mr.
Shurtler of the State Central Committee, and many other prominent Republicans.

Mr. Churchman made the first speech the keynote of which was, why he would advise a young voter to cast a straight-from-the-shoulder, mainly talk and was much appreciated. Congressman Heald made a fine address, discussing the tariff issue. He gave some extremely interesting points on the high prices of foods and the Democratic idea of tariff, pointing out several inconsistencies between the acts and promises of the party.

Dr. Ball made some striking points on the financial condition of the country now and in those good old "Nebraska" days.

The Club was highly complimented on the effectiveness of its organization. Much credit is due the young men who have organized this club, and it is hoped it will be a permanent organization. With the hearty cooperative spirit seen there last evening, there need be no fear of the outcome.

Fiftieth Anniversary At Elkton

The M. E. Church of Elkton is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary this

E. Martindale, of Salisbury, will preach, bray, of Smyrna, Del., and Sunday, and Rev. Louis E. Barrett, of Chestertown.

OBITUARY

SARAH WOLLASTON

Sarah Wollaston, the nineteen year old daughter of William E. Wollaston, died suddenly yesterday afternoon.
Miss Wollaston has been in a weak condition some time, but no one supposed death to be so near.

While in the yard of her home she was stricken with a hemorrhage of the lungs and died before reaching the house. Several doctors were present, but were unable to bring relief.

Funeral services, under the charge of Rev. G. T. Alderson, at the home of her father, on Friday, at 2 p. m.
Interment at White Clay Creek Cemetery.

RUMER

Clara C. Rumer wife of the late John Rumer, died at her home in Wilmington, on October 10th.

Private funeral services were held on Saturday, October 8, at 3 p. m.
Interment at Mt. Salem Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Rumer made their home in Newark for a number of years.

Runaways From New York Returned

Two boys, Irvin Isbell and Carl Kohler, aged 12 and 13 years, were picked up off our streets by officer Allen Reed, last Thursday and taken to Squire Lovett.

The youngsters acknowledged having run away, hoping to escape the compulsory school law, but claimed Philadelphia as their home. Squire Lovett telegraphed to the police headquarters of that city, but could learn nothing of them.

After a time the younger boy began to cry and told that New York was their home. In a telegram sent to that city, a gratifying acknowledgment was received. An officer was sent at once who took the young runaways in charge at 8:30 that evening, with many thanks for the action of the Newark police.

News Here And There

The committee in charge has expressed itself well pleased with the generous response on the part of the townspeople to the request for jellies and preserves to be sent to the sale for the benefit of the Babies' Hospital in Wilmington. These contributions were sent today.

Among the visitors to the Battleship last Thursday were Mrs. Charles L. Penny, Mrs. C. B. Evans, Mrs.
Edna H. Cooper, Miss Alice Wilson, Lena Evans and Jane Maxwell.

The annual inspection of the Maryland Division of Pennsylvania railroad was made today. Two special trains, with observation cars attached passed through Newark about 9:30.

Marriage licenses were issued by Squire Lovett during the last week to Harry D. Hutchinson and Laura Sin-gler, of Philadelphia, and Lewis T. Hertig and Helen M. Fyghl, of the same city.

The M. E. Sunday School has received fifty three books as a loan from the State Library. The books are well selected and something may be found among them to interest both young and old.

Around Town

It might be a good thing to hold Mr. Rose personally responsible for get- ting that Masonic Home here.

A great deal has been said about Newark not being represented in the great parade in Wilmington. This is not true. Why Wilmington couldn't start the parade without Newark. Two Newark boys were the heralds and fine leaders they were. Our own famous buglers of Company E, Delaware Lo-cott and Ralph Dawson, followed the Chief Marshal, announcing the parade at every street corner. Come again.

Ask two of the Bachelor Girls why they no longer belong to the club.
What's in a name?

Well, I hear the Bachelor Girls' Club is to start their meetings again.
It's a kind of free and easy New Century Club on a lark on a small scale.
The most fortunate feature about these Bachelor girls is that they do not take themselves too seriously. That is fatal to anyone. It's the one great trouble in this world. We are all more or less of a joke when you come to think of it, especially you.

But these girls are really necessary.
No town could do without them, especially a College town. Who ever heard of a College town without a Bachelor Club?

Well, these girls will meet this week. Some of the members have passed away—no, I mean will enter the sea—oh, I mean it is not convenient this year. Now I believe in bachelor girls.

Here's to ye! May you never be so accused again. Watch those Freshmen.

"The man who hopes to leave his footprints on the sands of time" must have the "sand" to begin with.

"Give me the man who can hold on when others let go, who pushes ahead when others turn back; who stiffens up when others weaken; who advances when others retreat; who knows no such word as 'I can't' or 'give up'; and I will show you a man who will win in the end, no matter what obstacles confront him."

WEDDINGS

Mrs. Mary N. Gray, of Newark, Del., and Mr. Joseph Reed, of the same place, were quietly united in marriage, at the White Clay Creek Manse, by the Rev. J. W. Lowden, on Tuesday evening, October 4th.
Mr. and Mrs. Reed will make their home in Newark.

MEETING OF NEW CASTLE PRESBYTERY

Dr. Potter, Of Glasgow Church, Will Resign To Take Up Editorial Work

The Presbytery of New Castle convened in the Ocean City Church on Tuesday, October 4th, at 2:30 p. m.

The Rev. Mr. Watson, of the Princess Ann Church, was unanimously elected Moderator for the ensuing six months.

None of the Wilmington ministers were in attendance. Whether they thought it was too far for them, or they preferred the ceremonies attending the presentation of the silver service to the battleship, is not known.

The people of Ocean City made every effort to make the members of the Presbytery comfortable and received them into their homes with a hearty welcome.

The Rev. B. J. Brinkema, of the Rock and Zion Churches, the retiring Moderator, preached an "admirable" sermon on Tuesday night to an appreciative audience.

Dr. Wilson, of New York, represented the Department of Church and Labor of the Home Mission Board, was present and made two addresses upon the past, present and future of the country Church.

The Rev. T. C. Potter, D.D., asked the permission of Presbytery to resign his charge of the Pender Church at Glasgow, giving as his reason that he had received a call to a position on the Presbytery, and that he had left him in pastoral work and that his deafness was increasing. The Presbytery directed that the Church be cited to appear at a meeting of Presbytery to be held in Baltimore October 24 to show cause, if any, why Dr. Potter should not be relieved from the Church.

This action will be conveyed to the congregation of the Church and a congregational meeting will be held, when Dr. Potter will make known his intention to offer his resignation and will request the congregation to join him in his request. Whatever action the congregation will take will be reported to the meeting of Presbytery in Baltimore and the Presbytery will then be ready to act.

Should Dr. Potter be released he expects to make his home in Doylestown, Pa., where he will be engaged in newspaper work in connection with the Presbytery.

Dr. Potter has been pastor of the Glasgow Church for eleven years. He and Mrs. Griffin and Rowan, having been called the same year, and all three settled over the Pender, Head of Christiana and Newark Churches respectively, in 1899.

During the meetings of Presbytery the members enjoyed themselves by the excellent bathing in the surf.
There is a most delightful beach for bathing at Ocean City, and the weather was fine. Captain Bunting also added much to the pleasure of the members by taking them out on a ride in his launch over the Sinepuxent Bay.
This bay separates the strip of land on which Ocean City is built, from the mainland. It is only a few hundred feet in width but joined on the south by Chincoteague Bay forms a body of water separating the long stretch of beach from the mainland for over fifty miles.

There is a pier extending 600 feet out over the ocean and a boardwalk extending a mile along the beach.

A large number of hotels and cottages for the accommodation of visitors line the boardwalk, and the avenues running between the bay and ocean. It is estimated that there is accommodation for over 20,000 guests during the summer.

The water supply is obtained from deep wells, 1,000 feet deep.

There is a native population of seven or eight hundred people. Fishing is the main occupation of the people during the winter, while the great rush of people to the sea shore gives everybody opportunity to find employment.

The Rev. John Rushbridge took charge of the Presbyterian Church about a year ago, and has been doing an excellent work. He has just completed the work of building a commodious and comfortable manse. It is built of concrete blocks and presents a pleasing appearance. It has twelve rooms, and adjoins the church on one of the avenues leading to the beach.

A New Vaccine

Dr. Charles S. MacDonald, surgeon stationed at Fort Mott, is meeting with great success in his experiments with a typhoid vaccine. It has been used on 35,000 soldiers in the United States as a preventive for typhoid fever and there is yet to be a case recorded which has developed after inoculation.

During the past year Dr. McDonald has been experimenting on soldiers at the fort. The inoculation is entirely optional with the soldier and is attended with little pain. Before these experiments were made there were 15 deaths a year at Fort Mott from this disease.

Football Challenge

The Tarnall football team wishes a game from any 100 pounds football team in Newark. Address all challenges to Ernest Wilson, 1206 Jefferson street, Wilmington.

Some Experiences Of A Country School Teacher

The crying need of more teachers in the rural districts comes from all directions. The following clipping from the "Country School Teacher," published in a recent number of the World's Work, may perhaps give some solution for the scarcity of workers in this field, although the story does not come from our locality, it shows something of the difficulties encountered by the girl who launches upon the career of a public school teacher.

I graduated from the normal school of a Western State, barely eighteen years old. Most of the other girls in my class came from country villages where they had friends or relatives on the local school board who would see to turning out those then teaching, or else they had "pull" in the district "pull" is the best, but Maria will do very well, or even religious "pull" if you happen to be a Hebrew or a Catholic. Lacking any kind of "pull," I spent the most wretched summer of my life, haunting the rooms of the teachers' agency or trucking from one illiterate man to another, begging for a chance. I had never been on a train alone before, certainly had never introduced myself to strange men, and they did not need to ask if I had ever had any experience. My credentials from the normal school, which were rather good, were scarcely examined, and September found me desperate.

Then, one Sunday morning, the principal came over to tell me of a place for which he had been asked to recommend a substitute. "It's rather a tough school," I'm afraid," he said, "and a substitute always has a hard time anywhere." But I went on the afternoon train.

It was tough. The teacher, a man, was down with typhoid fever, but they were going to hold the place for him because his wife's father was clerk of the board. For the same reason the teacher, though very incompetent, had kept the school for the last three years, and the children were the worst taught and least disciplined of any that I had ever seen. They had already driven out two substitutes—one stayed three days and the other finished out that week. I was beginning the second week. There were fifty children and eight grades; they were to be taught all the fundamentals, all the accomplishments, and all the trifles and fads. My programme was an intricate to make your head whirl, and the longest recitation period was fifteen minutes. There should have been a second teacher, but that would have cut down the salary of the man.

Some of these facts I observed, and some were confided to me by the county superintendent when I went over to the county seat to file my certificate. He intimated that he was ashamed to have such a school in his territory, but said that he was helpless before the board, which had no power to elect a teacher.

Of course, lacking experience, I tried to make those children behave like the meek creatures of the training school, and required that they learn as much. I didn't succeed in either. The worst nightmares I ever had are those in which I dream of that week. It happened a long time ago, but I still dream of it. Mercifully, Friday brought a telegram: "Elected at Blank. Start Saturday morning." The money they paid me for the five days was the first that I had ever earned, but I took no pleasure in it. I worry deserves payment I had only earned every penny, but I think the board was pennilessly paying for something else.

I started out early, and easily found the schoolhouse. It stood alone in the middle of a little valley, under a cottonwood, very small indeed beneath those big mountains. In shape it was but a shed and had once served as a blacksmith's shop; the rain beat through the cracks and the snow sifted in through the roof. There was a big stove, a wash-stand for a teacher's desk, children's desks in plenty, and books and apparatus fully as good as those of my first school—for the eleven children in the seven grades had to be taught everything that children everywhere else were taught. Again I made an elaborate programme, and they got drawing, card-board story, physiology, four-part singing (I can barely tell one tone from another), nature study and all the rest.

They were good children, and maybe they feared something—attention to business despite the weather, the silliness of tardiness, and perhaps a few facts that they had forgotten long ago. One of the trustees (who wandered over to ask me, in order to settle a bet, if Egypt were in Asia or in Europe) said they "done fine." But I think that he said it because he saw how frightened I was when he came in. I should have been frightened by any visitor, but that man, the boss of the district, had no professional future in his hands. I was more afraid of him than of the drunken Indians who sometimes rode by on the far trail, or even of the rattlesnake in the stove. The rattler had made a beautiful nest for himself during the summer months, and one day he grew so interested in a lesson in longitude and time (for was it clocks and hands? why in fun were they studying either of them anyway?) that he poked his head out of the door and rattled guns as a note of the little girls who sat up in front. School was dismissed and the boys liked it, and no one but the teacher was much excited.

Once the monotony was broken by a dance at a newly completed store. Two other teachers were present. Both teachers, and we compared notes. They lived in more civilized communities; their home had more points and better equipment, and soon realized me to despair over their superior condition. I did not know how much their statements should be discounted. One of them, a pretty girl, went on a good deal to dances, socials and other rural gatherings; the country girls became rather jealous of her. The trustees had not objected until the report got about that she made nothing of teaching school, but an hour late in the morning after a robe and easily turning back the clock. "But I don't care," she said, "I'd die if I didn't do something. I don't see how you stand it. And I always play the organ for them when a dance comes through."

The other girl had taken her position with the understanding that such boys were not for her, and she was present at this dance as a looker-on only because the revelers were going to use her schoolhouse for the supper, and she had to "look after things." They told her: "We want a good Christian girl, who will serve as an ideal for the children." But she did not think that she could hold the place of an ideal for another year, because she had been drawn into a big career now. Also she had acquired the habit of spending alternate Saturdays and Sundays at her home town, which was not far off, and that was considered a sin upon the community in which she taught. Besides, the clerk of the board had a cousin who would graduate from the normal school in June and was already looking for a position. However, she showed us her school-room with great pride, and in it we sat down to a lordly dinner of cold roast beef, fried ham, enormous green peaches, and enormous green peaches.

When I handed into the superintendent's office with my reports on my way home, he took time to sympathize with me.

"Well, you've got your experience," he said. "I had. Though there had been but eleven pupils, I had found myself, and in one year I had qualified as an accomplished despot."

I wonder whom I'll get there next year?" he added. I assured him that there were plenty of normal graduates who would be delighted with the chance.

The older children grew up to high school age, the families moved away, and the school district was abolished;

but until the schoolhouse was carried away to serve once more as a blacksmith shop, there was a succession of eager maidens glad to find experience there.

Do you ask, "What is wrong with the country schools?" Answer: The course of study and many of the methods of teaching. But if you ask what to put in their place, I cannot even suggest. Perhaps the present method of teaching, with domestic science courses for the girls, may help if it does not turn into a fad. It is "up to" the teachers (and what you are to do about them, again I do not know) to whom the parents with confidence hand over their children. Every American parent wants his children educated for a station higher up than he himself occupies, and he readily accepts for them an education which he knows is not suited to their present stage. The times are very much out of joint; but I make my living by them, and have not the least idea how to set them right.

W. C. T. U. Institute

The New Castle County W. C. T. U. held their annual fall institute in Hockessin M. E. Church last Thursday. Although not largely attended it proved a very interesting affair. The reports read showed that the organization only increases in usefulness.

The treasurer Mrs. H. C. Mearns, read a report which was filled with encouragement for the workers. She stated that there are 99 new members in the county with a total paid membership of $60. Over $300 has been contributed to the campaign fund and more will be given, while the contributions for the current expenses of the Soldiers' Reading Rooms at Delaware City have amounted to $40.

Mrs. Samuel Donnell, the county president, Miss Lily B. Williams, of Marshallton, the secretary, and Mr. H. C. Mearns were appointed delegates to the State Convention to be held in Wilmington, October 26, 27 and 28.

The pleasantest feature of the Institute was the talk of Mrs. Ella H. Thatcher, who told of her trip abroad last summer, when she attended the world's W. C. T. U. in Edinburgh, Scotland.

The devotions were conducted by Mrs. Josiah Wolcott, of Dover. Luncheon prepared by the Hockessin Union was served to the strangers at the parsonage.

UNDERWOOD STANDARD TYPEWRITER

A LEADER

The principle of construction in the Underwood was found first in the Underwood, and every typewriter seeking business in the same field with the Underwood which has been put on the market since the advent of the Underwood, has been an imitation of, and in general appearance like, the Underwood.

The last "Blind" advocates of importance have now fallen into line, and there is not today a single "blindwriting" typewriter actively on this market. Recall all the arguments you have heard in past years by Underwood opposition, and you will realize what an advance agent to progress the Underwood has been; then bear in mind that the Underwood was the first fully "visible", has had time to develop and improve, and is to-day the most perfect typewriter made.

THE NEW INDUSTRY

A COMMUNICATION from the Board of Trade appears in another column—it speaks for itself.

This chance for a new industry should appeal to every citizen in Newark. Mr. Diggs, proprietor of a shirt factory at North East, Md., wishes to establish a branch at this place. As was mentioned in last week's issue, he met the Board of Trade and stated his proposition, which met with the approval of all the gentlemen present. Mr. Diggs comes well recommended and by his straightforward, business-like manner made a very favorable impression on all who talked with him. He seemed pleased with the outlook here. The first and main consideration is whether the necessary help can be secured.
Everyone should be on the alert and do their utmost toward securing this industry.

Take your pencil, merchants, and figure the amount of money added to the circulation.

It is just one more step toward Greater Newark.

"WHO IS THIS THAT DARK-ENETH COUNSEL BY SPEECHES
WITHOUT KNOWLEDGE?"

"For the congregation of hypocrites shall be desolate, and fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery."
Job 15:34.

Thus quotes the Editor of the Every-Evening as his text against the wickedness of the Republican party brought about by the Townsend-Grier episode.

Now, these words were those of a certain man called Eliphaz who said:

"Now a time was secretly brought to me and mine ear received a little thereof."

"In thoughts from the visions of the night when deep sleep falleth on men."

"Fear came upon me, and trembling, which made all my bones to shake."

He then proceeds to tell how to cure all the evils that the world and flesh are heir to.

Now Eliphaz was one of those fellows who can say the most beautiful things. He assumes a sort of holier-than-thou attitude and gives Job a lecture as to what he may expect. A thing has been brought secretly to his ear. He owns up that he had heard only a little thereof. But that is enough for him. He doesn't wait for the whole truth—doesn't need it—in fact, it might mar his text.

He starts about and talks very plainly. Walks down the street and writes an editorial on the matter, gives some needed advice to the public concerning his attitude. He makes a call to see the old tax office official—they talk over those dramatic days when they were in power. He is all smiles and feels very sorry for Job, but says nothing else can be expected.

Too bad. (Softly, now, please.)
"The congregation of hypocrites shall be desolate, and fire shall consume the tabernacle of bribery."

Bildad, a friend of Eliphaz comes in and berates Job who smiles and says:
"No doubt but ye are the people and wisdom will die with you."

Well, Eliphaz, with the aid of Bildad and Elihu created quite an excitement for awhile, but in the final judgment the Lord said to Eliphaz, the Temanite.

"My wrath is kindled against thee and against thy two friends; for ye have not spoken of me the thing that is right."

Columbus

Behind him lay the gray Azores.
Behind, the Gates of Hercules.
Before him not the ghost of shores.
Before him only shoreless seas.
The good mate said, "Now, must we pray."

For lo! the very stars are gone.
Brave Admiral, speak, what shall I say?"

"Why, say, on! sail on! and on!"

My men grow muttonous day by day,
My men grow blantly wan and weak.
The stout mate thought of home, a spray

Of salt wave washed his swarthy check.

"What shall I say, brave Admiral, say.
If we sight naught but seas at dawn?"

"Why may you say, at break of day, Sail on! sail on! sail on! and on!"

They sailed and sailed, as winds might blow.

Until at last the blanched mate said:
"Why, now not even God would know
Should I and all my men fall dead.
These very winds forget their way.
For God from these dread seas is gone."

Now speak, brave Admiral, speak and
say."

He said, "Sail on! sail on! and on!"

They sailed. They sailed. Then spoke the mate:

"This mad sea shows his teeth tonight;

He curls his lips, he lies in wait.
With lifted teeth as if to bite;

Brave Admiral, say but one good word.
What shall we do when hope is gone?"

The words leaped like a leaping sword,
"Sail on! sail on! sail on! and on!"

Then pale and worn, he kept his deck,
And peered through darkness.

Ah, that night
Of all dark nights! and then a speck,

"A light! A light! A light! A light!"
It grew, a starlit flag unfurled!

It grew to be Time's burst of dawn.
He gained a world; he gave that world
Its grandest lesson: "On, sail on!"

—Joachim Miller.

OCTOBER 12--THE BEGINNING OF AMERICAN HISTORY

FOUR hundred eighteen years ago today some ships which had struggled across an unknown sea sighted land and marked the triumph of one of the most desperate struggles of history.

The man who had calmly withstood all threats with the one reply "Sail on!
sail on! and on!" knelt on the sand and gratefully acknowledged God's goodness in bringing him to the fruition of his plans.

The value of an anniversary is the lesson it recalls. The years bring to all of us a struggle toward some desired goal. We are bound to meet with disheartening disappointments which shall put our perseverance to the severest test, but certain action produces inevitable results. Columbus, rewarded for persistent effort and in-domitible courage, found a continent and so the story of the ages runs.

Has not man ever had to meet the blackest discouragement, the apparently impossible obstacle, before gaining the accomplishment of his desire?

Can we not absorb the idea that the path leading to the realization of anything worth while is beset with difficulties? The man whom we admire is the one who faces the way with a courage that overcomes trials which only overwhelm a less courageous nature.

American history had a propitious beginning. Our first event recorded the example of a consecration to conviction such as, if followed, is bound to bring success in any field.

Let us accept this anniversary lesson, and let the influence of this life reach our inner consciousness to the time of the refrain—
"ON, SAIL ON!"

Cost Of Light And Water

Newark, Del., Oct. 3, 1910.

Mr. Editor:—
The Mayor in your last issue replies to my inquiry regarding the cost of light and water.

He quotes the figures of the late Professor Freudenberger. It reads all right, but in no way answers my question and my position that there is not a man in the town who knows what it costs us to produce our light and water still holds good.

The figures mentioned were undoubtedly correct at the time they were made, but that does not mean they are true now. There is some question as to the contract with the E. K. River people and a difference of opinion, whether it is a paying proposition or not. It seems to me this difference could be found out in a short time. The books will show how much we pay out and also how much we receive. The profit or loss, it seems to me, could easily be determined in such a manner that there could be no difference of opinion. It is not a question of opinion, but just what do the books show now—are we running at a profit or a loss? The plain figures is still the argument needed. If we pay so much to pump a gallon of water and get pay for a pint, it seems an easy matter to find out what that water has cost us plus the loss unaccounted for—then what we get for the pint sold.

Anyone can see it. No argument will equal the plain figures for a month.

The Mayor is not to blame, no member of Council is to blame—it has always been so.

But the Mayor and his advisers could do no better service than to give the citizens of this town a simple business-like statement, void of K. W. per hour at the switch board, etc. Just what it costs and what we get is the question.

We will form our own opinions.
TAX PAID.

Hallowe'en Carnival--Good Suggestion
Editor of the POST:

Since you have so generously invited the town to your People's Column, I am going to make a suggestion as it occurred to me after listening to the conversation of a couple of youngsters who were playing in my home.

They had been looking at the illustrations in a current magazine, which outlined all kinds of pranks for Hallowe'en. One launched forth upon a description of the parade in Wilmington, as he saw it a year or so ago. I thought why must we go to Wilmington and watch, when we might enjoy the greater fun of taking part in such an affair if held at home.

Why isn't that a suggestion for our Board of Trade? It would certainly attract a crowd from the adjoining neighborhood and the Newark merchants would find the demand for Hallowe'en paraphernalia, peanuts, candy, etc., greater than that of any former occasion.

Lots of wholesome fun would be supplied for young and old and many of the "practical jokes" which sometimes become serious difficulties for those who are the victims would be forgotten.

Provide for fun which is not lawlessness, and the undesirable kind will die a natural death.

Naming Streets

Editor of the POST:—

Why not find an appropriate name for those "Roads" which are fast becoming streets, and call them thereby?

What is fast becoming one of the prettiest parts of town is the old Depot Road.

Lined with trees which have weathered the storms of years, the new homes find a pretty setting awaiting them. This approach to town from the Pennsylvania road is all the time improving. The modern style of the houses, the fine grounds of the Red Men's Home, the lighting of the road by electricity, are things which bespeak progress. Surely all this is entitled to the dignity of a name. Old Welsh Lane has been suggested, which

Heart Cheer

"Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could; some blunders and absurdities except in—forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day. You shall begin it well and serenely, and with too high a spirit to be encumbered with your old nonsense."

"They can conquer who believe they can."

"A washerwoman in a miserable tenement house was asked how she managed to always keep singing amid her discouraging surroundings. 'Oh,' answered she, 'because there is always a good, refreshing breeze in the alley.' She looked bravely for the bright side then."

"Forget that she bore the burden."

"And carried away the song."

To every such brave soul God gives songs in the night. Let us assiduously cultivate the profitable habit of looking on the bright side."

"Build a little fence of trust."

"Around to-day."

"Fill the space with loving work."

"And therein stay."

"Look not through the sheltering bars."

"Upon tomorrow."

"God will help thee bear what comes."

"Of joy or sorrow."

"Consider this, your goodness is of no use if you are not good to do."

"The good of goodness is that you can wrap others inside it. It ought to be like a big cloak that you have on a cold night, while the shivering person next to you has none. If you don't make use of your goodness, what is the good of it?"

"Would you make some saddened heart just a little lighter?"

"Would you make some burdened life just a little brighter?"

"Drop a word of hope and cheer."

"Set the echoes ringing."

"With your notes of love and joy."

"As you go a-singing."

"What is prosperity after all? The law says there are two kinds, real and personal. But it seems to me that the only real property is that which is truly personal, that which we take into our inner life and make our own forever, by understanding and admiration and sympathy and love. This is the only kind of possession that is worth anything."

"Then don't you trouble trouble."

"Till trouble troubles you."

"You'll only double trouble."

"And trouble others, too."

"Singing our songs as we go our way. Do we know who may be leaning to hear?"

"The laughter of life is its sunshine, and this would be a dull old world without some happy natures to brighten the pathway of those that pad along in sorrow."

"The test of your Christian character should be that you are a joy-bearing agent to the world."

"The power to scatter sunshine, and to radiate gladness and good cheer, every one should cultivate. Force yourself, if necessary, to form a habit of seeing the best in people, of finding out their good qualities, and of dwelling upon them and enlarging them. Do not see the distorted, crooked, cramped, burlesque man, but the man that God made. In every person who comes near you, look for what is good and strong. Honor that; rejoice in it; and as you can, try to imitate it, and your faults will drop off like dead leaves when the time comes."

"It is better to prefer honorable defeat to a mean victory, to lowering the level of our aim that we may more certainly enjoy the complacency of success."

"This is the best day the world has ever seen; tomorrow will be better."

Visit Of District Superintendent

Quarterly conference was held in the Newark M. E. Church of this town last week, Rev. E. L. Hoffecker, Superintendent of the Wilmington M. E. Conference, presiding.

The church was found to be in a prosperous condition. The members were enthusiastic in the support of their pastor Rev. George T. Alderson, and by a unanimous rising vote his return to the pastorate was requested.

The church is flourishing. Repairs have been made to the building and alterations to the lecture rooms are contemplated.

The Coming State C. E. Convention

The twenty-first annual convention of the Delaware Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the Protestant Church at Seaford, on Thursday and Friday, October 30 and 31.

Each Society in the State is entitled to send four delegates, the names of whom must be in possession of Mrs. L. M. Culver, at Seaford, by October 15. The idea of Christian Endeavor work has completely changed in the last ten years, the Sunday night prayer meeting no longer being that on which its life hinges. The up-to-date idea of a live society is one whose center is committee work. By the organized and intelligent work of these bodies, the society becomes one of the mightiest tools for good which the church possesses. The convention is a mighty aid in spreading these ideas of progression.

An excellent program has been prepared for the 1910 convention.

The Rev. Willis L. Gelston, superintendent of the Young Peoples' work in the Presbyterian Church, will deliver the principal address of the first evening of the convention on the subject:

"How May We Win the Young People for Christ?" He will also conduct a conference each day on Christian Endeavor work. Mr. Gelston has had much experience in this work, having led for several years the young peoples' conferences at Winona Lake, Indiana and Pocono Pines, Pa.

Rev. Thomas P. Holloway, well-known C. E. worker, will preach the convention sermon.

On Thursday evening a C. E. campfire will be held, chief among the speakers being Rev. W. P. Roberts.

Rev. Charles L. Candee will conduct the quiet hour service on Friday morning, which will be followed by the missionary conference, the leader of which has not been announced.

A conference for junior superintendents and Junior Endeavorers will be conducted by a successful worker along this line, on Friday afternoon.

The closing address of the convention will be delivered by Rev. Alexander Wilson, Jr., on Friday evening. He will take for his subject, "Be True," and give a parting word to those who have gained enthusiasm from the days spent in the midst of this band of workers.

William Ray, colored, last Thursday night, shot Simon Lewis, another negro, in the left groin at a camp meeting near Townsend, it is said, without provocation. Lewis was sent to Delaware Hospital. Edward Primrose, another negro, of Townsend, charged with fatally shooting August Frisby, colored, one day last summer, after each had exchanged shots, also at a woods meeting, was acquitted by a jury in Wilmington last Friday.

HOME FOR MASONS
OF DELAWARENewark Men Figure Among Officers Of Grand Lodge

The Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Delaware, concluded its 10th annual communication, Thursday afternoon, during the session the following committee was appointed to take up the Masonic Home project, which provides a place of retirement for aged and indigent Masons, and proceed with its consummation.

G. Layton Grier, Grand Master; Col. Knott Moore, Deputy Grand Master; First Grand Masters, Dr. J. Paul Lukens, Edward H. Mode, Harry J. Gulliver, Henry L. Biers, Jr., and East Master Samuel G. Cleaver, David C. Rose and William E. Valiant.

Trips of inspection are being made by the committee to various lodge homes in neighboring States. The Red Men's Home at Newark is of special interest as it represents an outlay in the neighborhood of the sum the Masons expect to expend.

The Red Men have tendered a cordial invitation to the Masons committee to use the parlor in their Home for all meetings.

The following officers were elected by the Grand Lodge for the ensuing year:

G. Layton Grier, Grand Master; Knott Moore, Deputy Grand Master; William E. Valiant, Grand Master, Wilmington; Dr. J. Paul Lukens, Senior Grand Warden, Millsboro; C. Canby Hopkins, Junior Grand Warden, Newark; Virgil V. Harrison, Grand Secretary, Wilmington; Samuel G. Cleaver, Grand Treasurer, Wilmington.

The appointed officers follow: Chas. W. Hall, Grand Senior Deacon, Lewes; Edward L. Richards, Grand Junior Deacon, Newark; George B. Hyndson, Grand Marshal, Milford; Walter E. Luthert, Grand Sword Bearer, Middletown; Raymond L. Cofer, Grand Senior Steward, Delaware City; J. Grant Wilkins, Grand Junior Steward, Wilmington; Rev. Lewis H. Jackson, Grand Chaplain, Harry Galbraith, Grand Tyler.

Among the visitors was W. M. Charles H. Callahan of the Alexandria, Washington, Lodge of Alexandria, Va., who brought to the attention of the Grand Lodge of Delaware the fact that the Alexandria Lodge, of which George Washington, the first President of the United States, was the first worshipful master, has started a project for a national memorial building, in honor of Washington, to be erected at Alexandria. The lodge there has, in addition to an offering of Washington, for which it has raised $50,000, the action, gavel and other lodge paraphernalia used by Washington when he was the chief officer of the lodge, and also the chair he occupied at that time and some of the personal belongings of Washington, which were given to the lodge and are kept in fond remembrance of "The Father of His Country" and his work in behalf of his country and Masonry. The Grand Lodge of Delaware may take some action in the matter this afternoon.

"OLD DELAWARE ACADEMIES"

I wonder if it has ever occurred to the majority of the young people enjoying the benefits of our most excellent school system today that this excellence has been evolved out of the most humble beginnings.

The first public schools in our colony supported by a tax rate were of a very inferior type. The teachers were inadequately trained and the schools poorly graded. In fact the education received in these schools seldom went beyond the three "R's." As it was not until long after the Revolution that higher public schools were established it was necessary that private schools be built to answer the needs of the colony. These private schools were of course pay schools and they were generally known as Academies.

A number of these Academies were organized and partially supported by churches, funds being raised by yearly congregational collections. A board of trustees were appointed whose duty it was to examine the masters' work, oversee the funds, and have supervision over the schools. These Academies were usually patronized only by the sect which established and supported them.

Sometimes the State would allow lotteries, the proceeds of which were to be used for these schools. The Middletown Academy was built with money raised in this way. And our own Academy at Newark was several times aided by lotteries. Other Academies were built and supported by public spirited men in the community where the school seemed necessary. The State did in several instances furnish the land for the schools, but on the whole the support came from private enterprise and generosity.

There was no Academy in Delaware where a more comprehensive education could be obtained than at that in Dover. Here special advantages were provided for students and advanced courses in Greek, Latin and Mathematics were given by able and well trained instructors.

Of all the old Academies of our State that at Newark grew to be of great importance. It is interesting to us not only because it was in our own home town and is the site of our present High School, but because it was one of the first secondary schools in the land. Its origin may be traced to the year 1738. When this school was established its founders little thought that they were setting in motion the educational current that gave Delaware a college.

The next important Academy to be established was the Wilmington Academy founded in 1765. The first event of importance we hear from this institution was its action at the outbreak of the Revolution. Its principal, Robert Patterson, trained his boys in military tactics and at the outbreak of the war carried many of them with him into the Continental army. The school was closed but was reopened at the end of the war.

Another Academy of interest was that of the town of Lewes. It is said that Lewes took the lead in establishing schools. Tradition tells us that she had the first girls' school in the State and was the first to employ female teachers. The Lewes Academy had an excellent reputation and enrolled many pupils from a distance. Middletown, Delaware City, New Castle, Georgetown, Smyrna, Felton, Milford all had Academies of later origin.

The courses of the Academies were modeled after those of the English and Scottish Grammar schools of the same period. As the rate schools were very poor and the masters ill prepared to teach, the Academy really had two schools, an elementary school in which the fundamental or common school studies were taught and a higher school in which the classics, mathematics, Latin, Greek and logic were the principal studies. The instructors were almost without exception well trained students and men who held learning in high reverence. The school made little endeavor to interest the pupil; although the work of the course was in many respects dry and hard, and out of harmony with the prospective occupations of the pupils, no concessions were made. The mental discipline of the Academy course was undoubtedly of great value. The moral discipline was equally stern and rigid, and not so cruel as that exercised in the English grammar schools.

The tuition fees required from the students seem small, but in their day they were sufficient to exclude the greater part of the young people from the Academy. The old Academies were undoubtedly too much devoted to classical ideals. Altho the pupil was prepared for college he was not adequately fitted for his duty as a citizen. The close connection between some of the Academies and the Churches was rather to the detriment than the benefit of the schools. The essential difference between the old Academies and the modern High School lies in the fact that the former gave the more rigid mental discipline while the latter gives the wider and more practical training.

The Academy students may have been wiser but they were not so well informed as the High School pupil of today. Although the High School produces boys just as nearly as those of Academy days they may not be so well trained in all the simple virtues. The High School courses are still somewhat professional because they have not yet been in force long enough to be adjusted to the social, industrial and political needs of the people. Yet even now they are more satisfactory than the Academy could ever have been in its day. The High Schools are open to all classes. The Academy since it was supported by churches and other institutions was not. The High School is almost entirely supported by the State, the people paying about one-third of its cost in the form of tax. For this reason not only the wealthier class attend but even the poorest has an opportunity of getting an education.

A Democracy demands that all of its citizens shall be so educated that they may be able to vote intelligently; that since society in general is benefited by education it shall be free and all between certain ages shall be compelled to attend school.

The High School open to all classes, all colors, and all creeds is therefore the ideal school for our country and our State. Thus the growth of the High School has been fostered while a gradual discontinuance of the Academy has come to pass.

Nevertheless there is and always will be a place for the private school and Academy of the present day type. As now constituted they are a necessary or at least not harmful part of our educational system. The Academy of the past is no more, not that it failed in its purpose, but because the need for it has been outgrown and a new institution evolved.

President Taft Appoints Democrat

Dr. Cleveland, who has been acting as chief of the Bureau of Municipal Research of New York and Philadelphia, has been appointed by President Taft to direct the inquiry into the economy and efficiency of the executive departments of the Federal government and also to supervise the making up of a national budget. Dr. Cleveland and Dr. Cook were students at the same time at DePauw University. Afterward they both took graduate work at Chicago University, where as room-mates they shared many experiences.

Dr. Cook says he believes there is no politics in the appointment of this Democrat by President Taft, but that a man was selected who possessed the ability to look into the expense of running the government.

Senator Aldrich said in the last Congress if he could run the Departmental work of the government in the way he would his own business, he could save $300,000,000 a year or one-third of the entire budget.

Such statements have made an intelligent investigation of the matter desirable which has resulted in the appointment of Dr. Cleveland.

Mrs. J. Howard Mitchell and Mrs. Ellen B. Woodward spent Saturday with Emily Mitchell at George School.

A number of Hockessin people visited the battleship last week. At least one of the party is ready to confirm the statement that she is the greatest of the American Navy. After several little efforts to find "the way to go home" he considered the quarter which he gave to a nearby Jack, a well spent sum indeed in return for the service of being left to the proper exit.

Caleb B. Burchard will speak in the interest of temperance in Hockessin Meeting house on first day afternoon.

The last meeting of Hockessin Grange was one of particular interest. A number of names were proposed for membership.

Fred Gelhart and Miss Anna Chambers were quietly married last week. Upon their return from a wedding trip they were serenaded by their many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Gelhart are making their home in the M. E. parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Eastburn have been the guests of his father, O. W. Eastburn.

An open air temperance rally will be held on East Main street next Saturday evening.

Thomas Murray who is suffering with typhoid, has been taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

Miss Ethel Campbell is substituting in the first grade during the absence of Miss Ferguson, the regular teacher.

HAVERFORD, 5, DELAWARE, 5

Haverford expected to have an easy victory over the Delaware eleven Saturday she was sadly mistaken as the score shows.

In a game that was well played and full of snap the boys from "Old Delaware" showed that they knew a thing or two about football. Haverford succeeded in scoring in the first quarter, but failed to kick the goal. In the second quarter Taylor scored for Delaware, after a 25 yard gain by Downes.

THE FARMER VERSUS THE SALOON

What Kent and Sussex County Farmers Say About It.

Saloon Abolition Improves the Character of Farm Labor

Let Rural New Castle County Farmers take Heed

Our Message To-day Is to You, Mr. Farmer

A flood of testimonials from lower Delaware farmers is pouring in on us, telling the beneficial effects of the "No-License" policy upon them and those whom they employ. Carefully read the few which we have room to print.

Local Option Recommendations from Kent and Sussex County Farmers

(Extracts from letters received by the New Castle County Anti-License committee. Many Farmers whose letters are not printed here offer similar testimony.)

Cheswold, Del., July 19, 1910.
I have better, steadier labor now than ever before and particularly on Monday mornings. It used to be that my labor was unreliable after Saturday and Sunday debauch. I can obtain day labor much easier now than when we had saloons. The laboring classes about here live better and dress better than before. No-license has been a great blessing to them and their families.
C. H. PIERSON

Greenwood, Delaware, July 18, 1910.
The elimination of the saloon in Sussex county has been a great help to me as a farmer. I employ four or five men through the year, and I have had only one man this year under the influence of liquor. I used to be badly hindered in work when we had the open saloon. My farm hands are far more steady now.
C. W. PARKER

Dover, Delaware, July 30, 1910.
Regarding the working people of this community a great change has occurred with them and their families since the saloons were voted out. They are better clad and better provided for. Ruffians are things of the past, accidents on the public roads due to drunkenness fewer, hard driving by the farm hands while drunk touch decreased.
H. L. BOGGS

Georgetown, Delaware, July 20, 1910.
I find quite a vast difference between our farm labor now and before the saloons were abolished. Laborers are much more reliable and dependable. They will report for work when they promise, whereas when we had saloons they would go to the towns at night, becoming intoxicated and not able to work next day.
C. T. PIPPIN

Dover, Delaware, July 19, 1910.
The saloon going out of this County has been a blessing to farm laborers. We have noticed it much in our work. Hope Rural New Castle county will succeed in removing saloons.
A. G. MASSEY

Harrington, Delaware, July 18, 1910.
Before the saloons were closed we let our laborers have extra on Saturday nights to go to town. They abused the teams because of drunkenness. Sometimes the men would be away drunk for two or three days and consequently unable to perform labor. I can say from personal observation that these things have been largely eliminated.
B. THARP CALLAWAY

Bridgeville, Delaware, July 18, 1910.
Farm labor is much more satisfactory both in Kent and Sussex Counties than when we had saloons. Laboring men and their families are in better condition than ever before. The farmers are greatly benefited in this account.
H. P. CANNON

Georgetown, Delaware, July 27, 1910.
I am glad to say that the farmers of this locality have much benefited since the abolition of the saloon. A better class of farm laborers has been one result and a more prosperous class of farmers is noticed. I can give several instances where farmers and farm hands were habitual drunkards when we had saloons and are now sober, industrious and saving.
W. A. PHILLIPS

Dover, Delaware, July 26, 1910.
When Kent County went dry, we saw quite a benefit to farm labor, and the same is still noticeable in these parts. When we further restrict the illegal sale of liquor, a greater change in farm labor will take place.
THOMAS C. ROSE

Georgetown, Delaware, July 26, 1910.
As a farmer I find Local Option in this County a great help to me and to my farm hands. My men instead of spending their money for liquor are now using it for the comforts and necessities of life. They are far more dependable and can be expected to be on hand for work and do a honest day's work, while such was not often the case when we had saloons. Through the country you very seldom see a man under the influence of liquor. Such was not the case in 1907 and before.
