ing Newark Finest Theatre
In State

TO HAVE VAUDEVILLE

Tuesday night Newark took front rank in the State in another particular when the new State Theatre was formally opened, for no more beautiful or better equipped amusement house exists in Delaware than this new playhouse which Louis Handloff built at a cost exceeding $100,000. More than a thousand people stormed the doors on the opening night, and at one time the ticket line extended to Sheaffer's Store.

John K. Johnston acted as master of ceremony for the opening and lauded Mr. Handloff for his public spirit and courage in making such a large investment. He said that Newark had been good to Mr. Handloff in the years that he had been here, and that now this fine theatre was Mr. Handloff's expression of gratitude to the town. Mr. Johnston said that he was also proud that Newark could produce a builder like J. Clifford Willis, who could construct such a building.

Mayor Frank Collins was the second speaker and congratulated Mr. Handloff for his courage and optimism in giving such a fine new edifice to Newark, and said that the new theatre was a big talking point for the town. He stated that he considered the theatre on a parity with the University and the Public Schools as features of Newark.

Dr. Claude L. Benner greeted the crowd and said that the new theatre with its talking pictures would provide every type of amusement the public could wish, even supplanting the legitimate drama.

One of the features of the opening program was the presentation of the first "Buddy Poppy" to Mayor Collins by State Commander William Rupp, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Mr. Rupp stated that the date (Continued on Page 8.)

"AG" CLUB BANQUET

The annual banquet of the University of Delaware Agricultural Club will be held at the Blue Hen Tea Room on Friday evening, May 10, at seven o'clock. The officers and members of the club, with the cooperation of the faculty members, are making plans for the affair.

Through the efforts of Dean C. A. McCue, Mr. W. T. Derrickson, Chief of the Bureau of Markets, State Board of Agriculture, has been secured as speaker for the occasion. Mr. Derrickson has had a wide and interesting experience in the work of marketing agricultural products.

A new feature of this year's program will be the attendance of students from the Agriculture Department in the high schools of the State. Each department has been invited to send one member who will be the guest of the "Ag" Club for the week-end. The progress will include the banquet on Friday evening, the annual interscholastic track and field meet on Saturday afternoon, followed by the annual Interscholastic Dance that evening. It is also hoped that as many as possible of the Agriculture teachers will attend the Banquet with their pupils.

The members of the "Ag" Club are working very hard on the preparations for the affair. The various committees have reported quite satisfactorily and from all indications the members of the club and their guests are due for an enjoyable week-end.

During the past week eight prisoners were arraigned before Magistrate Thompson by State Highway Officers, for speeding on the Glasgow road. All paid fines of $10 and costs.

FIRST TESTS ON LOCAL HERDS

County Association Tests
Show High Production and Fat Percentages

Three hundred seventy-nine cows have made cow testing association records during April in the New Castle County Association. Twenty dairymen in the upper county and Cecil County, Maryland, are the owners of these animals which will be continued in the testing for a period of one year. This information comes from the first monthly summary issued by the association tester, Mr. Alois Leinen, and presented for the president, Mr. Paul Mitchell, by County Agent Ed Willis, Jr.

The best herd for the month is owned by Eugene Feucht and his father near Belle Hill, Maryland, about 3 miles west of Newark. The Feuch herd consists of 20 pure bred and grade Holsteins. These cows averaged 891 lbs. of milk and 31.5 lbs. of butter fat per cow for the month. Mr. Feucht had seven cows each giving over 1000 lbs. of milk. His high animal produced 1707 lbs. of milk, while the next six gave 1656, 1547, 1488, 1464, 1431 and 1185 respectively. This herd was the only bunch having more than one cow with over 50 lbs. of butter fat during the period.

Another Holstein herd owned by T. Harold Little, of near Newark, was a close second to the Feucht herd. Mr. Little's 20 milking cows averaged 719 lbs. of milk and 22.3 lbs. of butter fat each during the month. Six of Mr. Little's black and white animals went into the class of 1000 lbs. of milk. His high cow milked 1638 lbs. with the others giving 1470, 1346, 1287, 1284, and 1143 lbs. respectively.

The association average, compiled by Mr. Leinen, for April shows that the average herd had 18.9 cows with a production of 11,122 lbs. milk. This average herd of 18.9 cows produced 433.4 lbs. of butterfat with $370.44 as the value of the milk product sold at a total cost of $183.42 for feed. Each $1.00 expended for feed returned $2.02 in milk sold to the owner which made the feed cost .42 for one pound of butterfat or $1.65 for 100 lbs. of milk. The average cow of the association gave 589 lbs. of milk and 22.9 lbs. of butterfat with $19.50 as the value of her milk produced at a $9.68 total cost of feed.

Fourteen of the 20 dairymen in the organization had one or more cows in their herds which gave over 1000 lbs. of milk during the month. Their names and the number of cows in that class follow: Geo. B. Piersch, J. Edgar (Continued on page 8)

COUNCIL PLANS STREET WORK

Will Probably Curb And Gutter All Streets As First Step
In Street Program; Traffic
Problem Under Study; Red
Men Pay Bill

At the regular monthly meeting of the Council of Newark, held Monday night, traffic conditions and the street improvement program were subjects for long discussion. No definite plans were decided on for either problem, but it is expected that by the first of June a new system for the control of traffic and parking will be inaugurated, and that a street improvement program will be presented for approval.

A resolution from the Newark Grange was read to the Council, making suggestions for the control of parking. It was reported that the Chamber of Commerce was working on a plan that would be submitted within a short time, and it was decided to wait for this plan before taking any definite action.

Mayor Collins reported that he had scaled the streets which were in need of improvement, and that there was something over a mile of street work. It was thought that there would not be sufficient funds available to complete resurfacing all of these streets this year, and it was suggested that concrete curbs and gutters be constructed to establish grades and to hold any material that might be spread on the surface of these streets. It was agreed that this would improve (Continued on Page 4.)

Cadet Captain Flynn, in addition to being in command of the honor company, is also president of the Cadet Officers' Club.

Merchants Agree To Regular Closing Hour

This week twelve Newark merchants got together and pledged themselves to close their stores at 9 o'clock, daylight time, on every evening in the week, except Wednesday and Saturday. The schedule will start Monday and be in effect during the period of daylight saving time.

The idea was conceived and introduced to the group by M. Pilnick and Isaac Marritz. These two enterprising storekeepers approached those merchants who did not have a regular closing hour, and whose business was such that they could close at an early hour. Without exception all embraced the idea and agreed to close at 9 o'clock on the specified days. The twelve stores in the group are: M. Pilnick, I. Marritz, Fiore Nardo, Sam Bell, Hopkins and Hancock, Newark Department Store, Louis Handloff's Department Store, Fader's Bakery, Sol Wilson, Geist and Geist, L. Hoffman & Sons, and Jackson's Hardware Store.

2 JERSEY SHOWS THIS MONTH

Northern Show At Chambers'
Rock Farm, May 25

Jersey cattle breeders of the Eastern Shore will soon have an opportunity to exhibit their stock at two spring shows to be held by the Eastern Shore Jersey Cattle Club. The southern section show will be held at the farm of Mr. Hoagland Gates, St. Michaels, Md., on Saturday, May 18, while the northern section exhibit will take place on the following Saturday, May 25, at Mr. P. D. Folwell's, Chambers' Rock Farm, near Newark, Delaware. Both shows are preliminary events to the Parish Show to be conducted by the Club at Newark sometime in the latter part of August.

Sixty-two animals have been entered at the southern show; 40 of these entries have been made by calf club members. It is expected that more entries will be received before the show. Any Jersey breeder wishing to exhibit should get in touch with Mr. Gates at St. Michaels. This show will be judged by Mr. Wallace MacMonnis, Madison, New Jersey, a prominent Jersey breeder and judge of that state.

On the following Saturday members of the Club and other Jersey cattle breeders of the territory north of Chestertown will bring their show animals to the northern section exhibit. As mentioned above, this show will be held on the Chambers' Rock Farm, near Newark. G. C. Gilmore, manager of this Jersey breeding establishment, is in charge of the entries, and arrangements for the show to be held there. It is believed that the number of entries here will equal or surpass those in the show to be held at St. Michaels.

The committee in charge of the upper event are: G. C. Gilmore, Newark; J. Wirt Willis, Glasgow; Paul Mitchell, Hockessin; P. D. Folwell, Newark; Earl Schaffer, West Grove, Pa.; Jake Correll, Newark; and Miss Margaret England, Earlville, Md.

R. S. GALLAHER RE-ELECTED TO SCHOOL BOARD

Defeats Mrs. T. A. Wheelless,
389 To 103; Has Served 19
Continuous Years; Mrs.
Wheelless Inaugurated Idea

ELECTION SATURDAY

At the annual Board of Education election for the Newark Special School District, held in the new school building, Saturday afternoon, Robert S. Gallaher was reelected to the Board by a large majority vote. There was a total of 492 votes cast, Mr. Gallaher polling 389, and Mrs. Wheelless 103. The term of election was for three years.

Mr. Gallaher has served on the local Board of Education for nineteen continuous years, and filed for reelection before any other candidate entered the field. Mrs. Wheelless, who has been a resident of Newark for four years and has two children in the Newark Schools, ran as the women's candidate under the idea that there should be a woman member of the Board of Education. She had no particular reforms in her platform, except that she favored a five member board, which is a question for the State Legislature to decide. In an interview following the election, Mrs. Wheelless stated that she had no hope of being elected to the board, but that she had run to inaugurate and foster the idea that there should be feminine representation in the administrative body of the schools. She said that she was immensely encouraged and gratified at the number of votes cast for her, which she considered a strong indication that the town was interested in the thought of having women on the School Board.

The election was conducted by Harvey Hoffer, judge, and Orlando K. Strahorn and Charles Colmery, assistant judges. The hold-over members of the Board are H. Harrison Gray and Edward L. Richards.

For the Housewife

SEA FOOD SAVORY

1 pint oysters, 1 cup milk, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cream, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup tomato catsup, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, salt, paprika, 1 cup crab meat.

Scald oysters and strain off the liquid which forms. Heat milk and cream and combine with oyster liquor. Melt the butter and blend with flour. Add hot liquid and cook until thick and smooth. Add seasonings, oysters and crab meat. Serve hot on buttered toast or toasted crackers. Recipe makes 6 servings.

MUSHROOM BEANERY

2 cups ($\frac{1}{4}$ lb) mushrooms, butter or margarine, salt and pepper, bit of garlic, 1 onion, 1 No. 2 can baby lima beans.

Wash and flour mushrooms. Sauté in butter with salt, pepper, a bit of garlic and onion cut fine. When cooked, add drained lima beans, heat and serve. Recipe makes 5 servings.

TOMATO AND LIMA BEAN SOUP

4 tomatoes, $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups cooked lima beans, 1 small onion, 1 tablespoon parsley, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup walnut or pecan meats, 2 tablespoons minced celery, salt and pepper, boiled dressing or mayonnaise.

Cut a slice from the top of each tomato and remove the pulp. If beans are large cut in halves, then add the onion, grated, the parsley, nuts chopped fine, celery and seasoning. Mix with dressing, and fill the tomatoes with this mixture. Put more dressing over the top, and sprinkle with paprika. Serve on a bed of shredded lettuce leaves, with cream cheese balls. Recipe makes 3 servings.

Sugar Jumbles

One cup sugar, $1\frac{1}{4}$ cups shortening, 2 eggs, 3 to $3\frac{1}{2}$ cups cake or pastry flour.

Cream shortening and sugar, add well beaten eggs, and sifted flour. The dough should be stiff but not crumbly, so add the three cups of flour, and the other one-half cup gradually if needed. Sprinkle the board with sugar, take a tablespoon of the dough, roll between hands until about the size of a lead pencil. Coil it around in the sugar and place on a cookie sheet. The dough is very rich so the cookies should be small.

Time in cooking, 10-12 minutes. Temperature, 375 degrees. Recipe makes 60 small cookies.

HERE'S A NEW SOUP

Soup is soup to most people—merely something to be hastily eaten before the real events of the meal begin. But the housewife knows better than that. A clear soup is of value in stimulating appetite, and a soup made with vegetables and milk has a much higher food value than is often realized.

But just the same, soups must be varied sometimes. It would never do to serve the same one, week after week. So for that reason, the following recipe for soup made with the ever-popular peanut butter should prove a welcome change. And while it will be welcomed by the family, it is good enough and unusual enough to serve at your party luncheon, too.

To make the soup, dissolve five bouillon cubes in one quart of boiling water or heat one quart of soup stock to boiling. Very slowly, pour the stock over one-third cup of canned peanut butter, stirring constantly to mix well. Reheat and serve in bouillon cups.

Another peanut butter soup is made by smoothing six tablespoons canned peanut butter with one and one-half cups hot water, adding three cups canned tomatoes, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and one-half teaspoon paprika and cooking five minutes. Strain. Add one tablespoon butter and serve with parsley croutons. To make the croutons cut stale bread one-fourth inch thick and then in crescent shapes. Toast, dip in finely chopped parsley and brown under broiler.

PEAS IN THE MAIN DISH

Steaks and chops are delicious, but the housewife who has to watch the food bills puts a stop to their too frequent use. As a substitute, roasts from the cheaper cuts are used. And the cold meat is combined with vegetables to make savory pies. Sometimes, too, meat is left out of the main dish altogether, and eggs, milk, cheese, peas or beans take the prominent place.

Some of the recipes that can be used in preparing a meatless main course dish are shown in the following group, made with the smooth, bland pea.

Pea, Cheese and Nut Salad

You may not think of salad as a main course dish, but there are many calories and desirable food elements hiding in this particular one. To make it, drain two cups of canned peas and marinate in one-fourth cup of French dressing for an hour. Drain. Add one-half cup diced American cheese and one-half cup chopped pecans and mix with mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce at luncheon.

Pea and Walnut Roast

Mix one and one-half cups of pea pulp, one cup soft bread crumbs, one-half cup chopped walnuts, one-fourth cup butter, one beaten egg and two-thirds cup hot, canned tomato soup. Put into a buttered baking dish or loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for thirty to forty-five minutes or until set and brown. Serve with hot, canned tomato soup, undiluted, as a sauce.

Creamed peas are a standby in many households, but with this same basic recipe there are many ways of varying the sauce. Adding one-half tablespoon of minced parsley to one cup of white sauce; or adding chopped pimientos, chopped walnuts, or capers, will change the flavor surprisingly and delight the family.

THE SALMON SAGA

We all have heard of hopeless attempts to be "all things to all people." And we know that usually such an attempt ends in failure. But there is one living creature which has attempted the impossible and succeeded. It is the salmon.

Scientists, dietitian, canner, housewife—all have a well-rewarded interest in this well-known fish.

To the ichthyologist, there is a mystery about the salmon, for it has a life history which is partly unknown. Once in its lifetime the salmon comes from the ocean with thousands of its fellows, swims up the fresh-water streams and spawns at the place of its birth. And then dies. But when the younger generation is born, it feels the urge for salt water, and to the ocean it goes, to spend from two to seven years there before returning to its birthplace to spawn and die. What the fish do during their years in the ocean, where they live and how and why they go back to the fresh water streams are unknown to the scientist interested in fish.

But the canner knows one thing—the fish will come up the river—probably. There have been disastrous years when, for some unknown reason, the fish did not arrive. Then the immense fleets with their traps, seines or nets and the canneries with their complicated machines on the boats or at a point nearby had to stand idle. Last year certain sections of the salmon country were in that condition, but this year there is a good pack, running slightly above the average in the Pacific. The total Alaska canneries pack, exclusive of fall fishing, is estimated at 5,770,188 cases. The Bristol Bay pack was about 1,500,000 cases, an increase of about 60 per cent over last year. However, other sections such as the Columbia River brought the average of the country down.

That the salmon industry of the Northwest is in as fine a condition as it has been for years is the opinion of the members who attended the recent convention of the Association of Pacific Fisheries in Vancouver, B. C. At no time since the war days has this $50,000,000 industry been in such a strong position, as is shown by the fact that approximately 80 per cent of the pink salmon pack had passed from the packers' hands in October—a remarkable record.

The dietitian's interest in salmon appeals to the housewife, especially when he commends the product. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, for thirty years chief of the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry, thus sums up the importance of salmon: "For children over six salmon is the cheapest and most nutritious animal food that can be had."

And the housewife? Well, of course, she wants to know how to make salmon dishes, so here are some new and delicious recipes:

The State Theatre

The new State Theatre, opened formally Tuesday night, again places Newark in a position of State leadership in the matter of community development. Except for size, this new amusement houses surpasses anything of its kind in Delaware. Louis Handloff, through his daring and initiative, has given the town a new and powerful selling point, for amusement facilities are as large factors in the growth of a town as any of its other features.

The State Theatre, which was designed by a theatre architect of national reputation, has been characterized by experts as the most beautiful playhouse in the State. It is equipped not only to present sound and talking motion pictures, but to handle stage productions of any size. Every part of the equipment of the new building is the latest and most effective that was available. Music is furnished by a $10,000 organ which can give faithful reproduction of any type of band or orchestra music. The building is absolutely fireproof, and is equipped with the latest devices for heating, cooling and ventilation.

Mr. Handloff's initial investment in this new theatre is over $100,000. The maintenance and operating overhead will be relatively large. It took considerable courage and optimism to make this investment, because there was no accurate basis for determining whether such an investment could be made to pay. Mr. Handloff has taken a large risk to provide the town and community with the finest amusement facilities that could be had. The State Theatre would be a credit to a town many times the size of Newark. We trust that the community will justify Mr. Handloff's faith in it.

The School Election

The Board of Education election, last Saturday, from one standpoint, was one of the most interesting ever held in this school district. For the first time in the history of the local schools, a woman candidate ran for election. Mrs. F. A. Wheelless, the candidate, entered her name purely on the idea that there should be a feminine voice in the administration of the local schools. Mrs. Wheelless was defeated nearly four to one by Robert S. Gallaher, who ran on a record of nineteen years of constructive work in the Newark Schools; but even though badly defeated, the women's party received an encouraging number of votes.

The group of women, who felt that there should be a woman member of the Board of Education, and introduced a candidate, do not feel discouraged by their defeat. In fact they had little anticipation of winning. Their purpose was to take the first step in a campaign to have feminine influence in the schools. Their short drive for votes aroused considerable interest, and this interest was demonstrated at the polls. The next time they enter the field, there may be a different story.

The idea that there should be a woman member of the Board of Education is logical from many angles. The school board deals considerably with child psychology, and a woman's sympathy, experience and intuition is more adaptable to successful decision on problems of this sort.

A Regular Closing Hour

Two of our local merchants stole a little thunder from the Chamber of Commerce, this week, and inaugurated an idea that should be quite a boon to the storekeepers and work no hardship on the buying public. M. Pilnick and I. Marritz approached all the other retail stores which had irregular closing hours, and suggested that, during the daylight saving period, their stores be closed at 9 P. M., daylight time, excepting Saturday and Wednesday evenings. Without exception, the merchants approached embraced the thought and pledged themselves to close at that time.

Maintaining a retail store involves long hours of service to customers, and then other long hours of detail work necessary to keep the accounts and the inventory of the business up-to-date. The general public does not realize the small amount of time that the retail merchant has to himself. The new closing hour will give the merchants a little more free time during the hot months, but it is not so early that it will involve any inconvenience to the customers of the stores.

A Debt We Owe

According to Commander-in-Chief John Reese of the Grand Army of the Republic, approximately 63,000 Union veterans survive today of the Army in blue. The average age of the Union veteran is eighty-five, and widows about seventy-four. It is estimated that at least 90 per cent of these veterans, by reason of age and accompanying disabilities, are incapacitated to perform any service toward creating a livelihood. The pensions they receive form their only source of income.

In January and February of this year, 3,839 Civil War veterans and widows passed from the pension roll by death. Commander-in-Chief Reese predicts that 45,000 veterans and widows will pass on before the end of a year.

As the 71st Congress sits in special session, with another Memorial Day approaching, the Grand Army of the Republic appeals to the government for increased pensions for those who survive. Delay of action on this matter until regular session will mean that thousands of these aged defenders will struggle through their final days in poverty, ignored and forgotten by a country they fought to preserve.

The few dollars involved in the proposed pension increase will hardly constitute an economic problem. On the other hand, this money will make possible a few comforts and necessities these staunch defenders of an indivisible nation rightly deserve. They ask no luxuries, they seek no pleasures. They have lived their lives and the harvest has been reaped. They await only the Gleaner. Congress has this final opportunity of proving the sympathetic appreciation of a grateful government, by taking immediate action. Tomorrow the lives of these men and women will constitute only a memory, one of the finest and sweetest in this country's great store of traditions; and tomorrow will be too late.—Foreign Service.

NOT AFRAID TO VETO

One of our good friends in New York sent us this editorial from the New York Evening Post, clipped to our own story of Governor Buck's veto of the Red Men's bill.—Ed.

"Roosevelt Vetoes Highway in Park." "Roosevelt Vetoes 11 City Salary Grab Bills as Violating the Principle of Home Rule." Headlines like these convey the gratifying information that in the Governor's chair we still have a man who is not afraid to write "Disapproved" at the foot of a bill which has passed both houses of the Legislature.

The power of veto has justified itself so amply both at Albany and at Washington that it is among the governmental devices against which there is little or no agitation. On its face this is a curious situation. In a democracy why should the voice—or rather the pen—of one official outweigh those of several scores of other officials who are members of a coordinate branch of the Government?

The answer is found where so many answers to questions of politics and government are found—in the quirks of human nature. Few members of a legislative body feel any great personal responsibility for their votes. It is easy to shift the onus of any particular action to the mass of members, among whom it is lost.

Paradoxically, this tendency is enforced by the existence of the very instrument devised in part for its correction. If it were not for the veto power some legislators at least would be more careful with their votes. They know that the Governor will give full consideration to the arguments which they do not choose to heed—arguments which they feel safe in not choosing to heed just because the Governor has the power of veto and is not afraid to exercise it.

And so a bill which would be defeated on its merits but which is invested, so to speak, with a political interest goes to the Governor along with—or ahead of—bills whose desirability is conceded. The difference between the two sets of measures is that the bill with a political tinge goes to the Governor not for his signature, but for his disapproval.

Thus the veto is not only a safeguard for the public but also a very great convenience for timid legislators. Far from resenting the Governor's possession of it, they would insist upon giving it to him if he didn't have it.

A Governor who is not afraid to use the veto is an important governmental asset. And to the credit of the public be it said, such a Governor does not lose in popular confidence or support by doing his duty in this respect.

CROWDS STORM STATE THEATRE AT OPENING

was particularly fitting to make the presentation, as May 7 was the anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania, and that the red of the poppy represented the blood of Americans killed when the great liner was torpedoed. He asked that Mayor Collins appoint the week of May 20 for the sale of these poppies, the entire proceeds of which will go to disabled veterans and the orphans of veterans.

After the closing of the theatre, Tuesday night, Mr. Handloff gave a large dinner at the Blue Hen Tea Room.

Hoffman and Hennon, of Philadelphia, the architects for the Mather Theatre, drew the plans and specifications for the State Theatre, and provided the very latest type of equipment for every part and feature of the house. The decorative scheme is Spanish in motif and the lighting fixtures, drapes and curtains all harmonize in color and design with the Spanish effect. The main curtain is of green and gold brocade, and the principal drop of silver brocade. Pennants with the Alhambra seal are hung from the side walls of the theatre. On the opening night flowers sent by local business houses and the Chamber of Commerce were banked at the sides of the stage.

The theatre is equipped to give a variety of programs equal to any motion picture theatre in the country. A Vitaphone machine has been installed, and each week's program will include the latest talking and sound pictures. A $10,000 Moller organ can reproduce the music of any type of band or orchestra. On Monday and Tuesday of each week, Mr. Handloff will present a bill including three acts of high class vaudeville. For next week he has booked three acts which come direct from the Stanley Theatre, Philadelphia. They are: Art Whiting and his International Collegians; Marty and Nancy, dancers; and Miss Leonora, billed as America's greatest juvenile star.

The seating capacity of the house is 700 with over 500 seats in the orchestra and first floor boxes. The seats are upholstered in brown leather. The stage is 44 feet wide and 22 feet deep, fully equipped with scenery and mechanical devices for stage productions. Back of the stage are four dressing rooms, each with running water. The interior walls are tinted a mottled rose color draped along the sides and over entrances and exits. A flowered silk drape hangs from the proscenium arch. The organ chambers have bronze grills.

There are four 5½ foot hanging lights coming down from the ceiling, made of wrought iron and colored glass, and numerous side and dome lights. The theatre is heated and cooled by a system of blowers which keep the air constantly changed, using cold or hot air, depending on the season.

The seating capacity of the balcony has been reduced to enlarge the projection booth, which contains five pieces of apparatus and is manned by two operators. Besides two new projection machines, the booth contains the Vitaphone apparatus, a special and a multi-color light machine. On the stage is a new motion picture camera for controlling the focus and lights.

The second floor contains a grandstand with two rest rooms and a manager's office opening off it.

The new theatre is serviced by four ushers and a doorman, all uniformed.

COUNCIL PLANS STREET WORK

P. Bishop 3, B. V. Armstrong 2, John Govatos 2, Harold Little 6, Walter Cook 1, R. M. Fontaine 1, Eugene Feucht 7, Fred B. Martens 3, William Pierson 1, Percy Passmore 1, Brookwood Farms 1, W. L. Phipps 3, Fred Stafford 5, The J. Howard Mather Farm with 1, John Govatos 1, William Pierson 1, Fred Stafford 1 and Eugene Feucht 3, were the farmers having cows giving over 50 lbs. of butterfat during the same period.

The New Castle County Cow Testing Association was formed during the months of February and April and began functioning in April with 20 dairymen enrolled. The association hires the tester, Mr. Leinen, and he visits each farm one day each month in securing his records for that testing period. Mr. Leinen weighs the feed and milk of each cow both night and morning during his stay on the farm. He also takes a composite sample of each cow's milking and makes a test for butterfat, using the Babcock testing outfit which he carries with him from place to place. All of these records and figures are put into the owner's herd book and being computed on the monthly basis by Mr. Leinen. These individual records are kept up to date each month by the tester and at the end of the year each association member has a complete record of each cow in his herd.

These records show him which cow give milk enough to pay for his feed, and which ones do not pay for their keep and board. The owner then finds extremely unprofitable cows in his herd which should be disposed of if he wishes to make his cows profitable. "Interpretation of the records and results and applying these known facts is one of the big helps in the cow testing association results," says George Agent William.

DELAWARE STUDENTS TO TEACH USE OF DIAL

Will Instruct Wilmington Phone Users In New System To Be Installed In August

In addition to the regular force of trained Diamond State Telephone Company employees, thirty University of Delaware students will begin June 20 instructing Wilmington subscribers in the use of the dial type telephone, it was announced today by A. G. Wilkinson, Business Administrator of the University.

A six-weeks' campaign of instruction in the operation of the dial instrument is to be inaugurated by the Diamond State Company on that date, as a prelude to the establishment of the dial system of telephone operation here, which is scheduled for early in August. Every telephone in Wilmington is to be placed on the dial basis of operation at that time.

The students, Mr. Wilkinson explained, will be thoroughly schooled in the operation of the dial type telephones before they begin visiting the homes of subscribers to show them how to operate the instruments. Each student will wear a badge of the Diamond State Company, and will display it upon entering homes and commercial establishments, as a means of identification.

The telephone company plans to have all subscribers thoroughly versed in the operation of the dial prior to that date of the "cutover," so that no difficulty will be experienced by Wilmingtonians in making calls.

In addition to instructing telephone users in the operation of the dial type instrument, the students will test the mechanism on each telephone to make certain that it is properly attuned and in perfect working order. They will also place new number plates on the bases of the telephones—these numbers will be inserted under the present numbers—for use after "cutover." The numbers now on the telephones will continue to be used until the "cutover" is made. Immediately following the transition to the dial system, subscribers will remove the old number from their telephones, and use thereafter the one placed there by the student instructors. Thus the new number will remain on the base of each telephone when the number now in use is removed.

"The University is pleased with this opportunity to place students in attractive work for the greater part of the summer vacation," said Mr. Wilkinson. "It is in line with our policy of finding employment for students who wish to earn money to pay their tuition and defray other expenses incurred during the college year."

"The students who will do this work already have been selected, and a number of others are on a special reserve list."

ANTS THAT ARE FIREMEN

Motion pictures have been taken of the now celebrated "firemen ants of Fontainebleau" to aid scientists in deciding a perplexing problem in insect intelligence raised by the performances of these creatures.

According to observations faithfully reported by Mme. Marguerite Combes, daughter of the well-known biologist, Fontainebleau, these ants have not only showed rare intelligence and bravery in combating fire, but extraordinary methods in improving their organization. Her observations have been corroborated by competent persons.

In articles published in several technical journals, Mme. Combes contends that these particular ants possess memory, the means of communicating with one another and a highly efficient system of organization.

The ants in question are the common red variety, which have built several large mound anthills with sticks and various materials in the vicinity of the laboratory. Knowledge of their firefighting gift came about inadvertently. An under-director of the laboratory frequently threw cigarette stubs into one anthill which had been broken down and partly demolished. He noticed one evening that the cigarettes went out much quicker in the anthill than when thrown on the ground and began observing the ants. He was astonished to see them congregate around a glowing cigarette stub, each ant ejecting some sort of an acid fluid upon the embers until the fire was completely extinguished.

Mme. Combes, who was intensely interested in this discovery, has conducted a series of experiments in the last two years, observing the action of the ants in dealing with various kinds of fire, from a piece of punk to a burning candle. In every instance there was the same reaction. When a lighted candle was placed under the anthill, great numbers of ants immediately swarmed about its base, formed into squads and hastily scaled the candle to the flame itself, where, one by one, at the deliberate risk of their lives, they ejected acid and retired, making place for other ants behind. Some ants were burned to death in the process, and on frequent occasions Mme. Combes witnessed what appeared to be heroic sacrifice and devotion, and also saw attempts to rescue burned or injured ants. Occasionally she saw some ants apparently deliberately prevented from taking part.

The whole business was undertaken with the greatest order and dispatch, and the candle was snuffed out at first within three minutes, but later, after the ants had had greater experience with the fire, their attack improved and they were able to quench the candle flame in anywhere from ten to thirty seconds after it was placed in the anthill.

The curious thing about the experiments is that the ants in other nearby anthills were wholly unskilled in firefighting. When a candle was placed in their anthills something like panic occurred, the insects fleeing in terror, and when methods of defense were organized the ants acted rather after the fashion reported by Mark Twain in his famous study of ant life. Some rushed up and down the candle, others attempted to uproot it and drag it away, and others seemed only to be rushing about getting in each other's way.

French scientists have been reluctant to deliver an opinion on the significance of Mme. Combes' observations, but they agree that the phenomenon presents evidence which constitutes not the least puzzling of many aspects of the question of animal and insect intelligence.—N. Y. Times Magazine.

GROW HEALTHY CHICKS CAMPAIGN ENROLLS 44

Forty-four poultrymen in New Castle County have enrolled in the 1929 Grow Healthy Chicks Campaign, conducted in the state by Mr. H. S. Palmer, Extension Poultryman. Mr. Palmer works with County Agent Ed Willim, Jr., in the county in carrying on the program for the northern county farmers. These poultrymen and women are planning to start 30,125 baby chicks this season.

Last year 38 of this group started with 24,045 baby chicks according to their statements taken from their blue pledge enrollment cards returned to the County Agent this spring. This shows an increase of about 20 per cent in the number of young stock started this spring by poultry raisers. This increase is probably caused by the gain in the number of broilers raised and sold in the county. A reply card to be sent next fall to all enrolled members should reveal any increase in flocks of birds to be kept for layers.

The fourth instruction letter prepared by Mr. Palmer was mailed last week to all people on the county mailing lists. The circular letter gave information on avoiding chick troubles which are usually prevalent at this time of the year. Cannibalism and how to prevent it are two of the main ideas presented in the letter. Another paragraph tells how to stop this chick trouble if it has started. Rickets and "Crazy Chicks" is the title of other paragraphs of this circular. Crazy chicks is the name applied to another kind of leg weakness that is more prevalent than usual in Delaware this season. The chicks move rapidly when they attempt to walk and stagger as though they were drunk or crazy. They often fall over on their sides and kick themselves around in a circle as they attempt to get up.

The art of feeding with a proposed feeding plan to prevent cannibalism, etc., is discussed in detail while heat and ventilation are also discussed with considerable mention. "This circular contains a wonderful lot of good information," says Mr. Willim, "and I hope everyone can use the points discussed in it. If anyone in the county did not get the letter, and who is interested, will get in touch with me at Newark. I will be glad to send copies to them."

With the letter was sent a report card for the end of the first 28 days which the County Agent would like to have filled in and returned to him at an early date. This card, when filled in, will give the County Agent the information on losses when compared with the number of clean points of the campaign followed by the poultryman. Everyone not enrolled in the campaign is invited to fill out and return this card, because the benefits of the campaign rests on the greatest number of people who help themselves grow better and more chicks and incidentally help the ones who are guiding the work from the Extension Department.

"THE COW JUMPED OVER THE MOON"

An eddy in the most recently available issue of Flight reads: "And the Cow Jumped Over the Moon" has always appealed to one as a delightfully absurd impossibility (except, perhaps, when we were very young), yet, in these modern days of science, while the cow may not actually soar to such giddy heights, this feat may come a little nearer attainment. In other words, more than 1,500,000 cattle will contribute to the making of each of the two 6,500,000 cubic feet airships which will be built for the United States Navy by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation of America.

"This contribution consists of the furnishing of 'gold beater skin' for the gas bags of these airships. 'Gold beater skin,' it may be mentioned, is a small tough section of the intestine of a steer, possessing remarkable strength combined with lightness of texture and 'gas-tight' qualities. Each skin is only from 15 to 30 inches long by 6 or 8 inches wide, hence the large number of cattle required for their little joy ride toward the moon."

OLD ENGLISH MANOR NOW A VIRGINIA LIBRARY

Agecroft Hall, an early Elizabethan manor house transported from England to Virginia, has become a public library and art gallery. It was the home of the late T. C. Williams, and the estate was left by his will to the Richmond Foundation, a trust instituted several years ago to receive and administer funds for Richmond's library. The will provides $1,000,000 for the upkeep of the library and for the purchase of paintings for the art gallery.

The house was originally situated in Manchester, England, on the banks of the Irwell River, and was rebuilt by Mr. Williams at Windsor Farms, on the James River.

CROMWELL'S MUSIC

Before Oliver Cromwell became Protector, music was proscribed in England. And as Cromwell was musically inclined, he had a professional musician among the members of his household. When, by the authority of Parliament, the organ was removed from the Chapel of Magdalen College, Cromwell had it erected at Hampton Court, where he resided, and frequently had Milton to play it. At the Restoration the organ was returned to Magdalen College, but after some years it was disposed of and re-erected in Tewkesbury Abbey, where part of it remained in use until a few years ago.

ART'S RELATIONSHIP TO CEMETERY MEMORIALS

It seems particular that on the approach of Memorial Day that we should ask Mr. J. Joseph Ayers something about the art of cemetery memorial design. Mr. Ayers, in his Silverbrook Monumental Works, at Lancaster and Cleveland avenues, Wilmington, has given enduring memory in artistic design to many personalities, who have passed away in this section of the country. In a visit to Mr. Ayers' plant, the relationship of cemetery design to the ancient periods of sculpture was apparent.

Sculpture, per se, has little to do with modern life. It is an art of the past, recalling, in most instances, the charm of a more imaginative age. Yet it still has one medium of expression that is prolific of reflection of the different periods of the ancient masters. Memorial art, the monument to the dead, provides a field for the modern sculptor and he draws on the symbols of the old masters for different ideas of expression. The significance of thought of each statue, or group, or design can be traced to the laws laid down by the ancients.

However, the modern sculptor in memorial design does not labor under the handicaps that beset the ancient worker in stone, or even the stone cutter of 15 and 20 years ago. Exact design on blue print and modern measuring and machine driven cutting and polishing instruments allow him, in a comparatively short time, to make faithful reproductions of masterpieces or to follow an ancient motif to a modern interpretation. His materials, too, give a perpetuity to his work that was denied the Egyptian and Grecian masters. Granite, the modern memorial material, will outlast for centuries the marbles and other stones that were all that were available to sculpture of the older periods. In fact the technique for working granite has developed only over the past 12 to 15 years.

ASPARAGUS

Asparagus season is upon us and various requests for suggestions as to the use and preservation of this vegetable have come to Miss Pearl MacDonald, nutrition specialist of the Extension Department of the University of Delaware.

Asparagus is one of the early and most delicate of our vegetables and every family should not only use it freely in the diet during the season, but also should can some for use during the fall and winter months.

Vegetables, explains Miss MacDonald, should have a large place in the diet because of their special contribution to the food needs of the body.

Vegetables are one of the best sources of supply for mineral matter which is necessary for growth and maintenance of body tissues and for helping to regulate the processes of digestion, use of foods and elimination of waste products.

Vegetables are essential for normal growth in children and for the general well-being of every person; for fiber or "roughage" which helps in the elimination of waste products.

Since the vegetables differ in the amount and kind of minerals and vitamins present in them, Miss MacDonald urges people to use a variety of vegetables, both fresh and canned, in the diet throughout the year.

In preparing asparagus, it is best to steam it in order to save more of the flavor and as much of the food value as possible. Wash the asparagus carefully. If the root end of the stalk is hard, cut off, cook separately, press through a strainer and use the pulp for soup.

Lay the tips on a rack in a roasting pan, add water just about up to the rack, cover and steam until tender. Arrange on plate, season with butter, pepper and salt. Or, add a little chopped parsley to the melted butter before pouring over the asparagus.

Or, serve with white sauce for which use one tablespoon butter, 1 to 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk. Melt butter, stir in flour, add milk, stir until mixture boils, season to taste.

Cream of asparagus soup is particularly nice. Use white sauce as given above. Cut tender asparagus in about one-half inch lengths and add to white sauce. Also, add the pulp from the hard ends, cooked and pressed through strainer. A bit of onion flavor may be added, if desired.

Asparagus is also very delicious used in salads. Arrange cooked asparagus on lettuce leaves, decorate with rings or strips of red or green pepper or strips of pimento. Serve with mayonnaise dressing, or with plain French dressing, or with French dressing to which has been added some tomato ketchup, using one-fourth cup ketchup to one-half cup French dressing; or French dressing to which has been added 1 tablespoon freshly grated horseradish to the one-half cup of dressing; or French dressing to which has been added 1 tablespoon prepared mustard to the one-half cup of dressing.

Another very delicious dressing for asparagus is made as follows: Heat together 2 tablespoons butter, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, 2 tablespoons vinegar. Add dash of pepper and of salt if desired. While hot, pour over asparagus.

In canning asparagus, observe the following, continues Miss MacDonald: Use wide-mouth jars, if possible, so that when jars are opened, contents may be removed without breaking the asparagus. Have jars with smooth fitting tops and new rubber of good quality. Wash jars and lids thoroughly, rinse, put in pan, cover with cold water, bring to boil and boil five minutes. This sterilizes jars and heats them for packing hot food.

Have fresh asparagus, wash thoroughly. Cut tips so that their length is equal to depth of pint jar, tie in uniform bundles, place in kettle with boiling water over the lower, tougher portion, cover tightly and boil 4 to 5 minutes. Or, cut into 1/2 to 1 inch lengths, add enough hot water to cover, boil for 2 minutes in an uncovered vessel, pack boiling hot into jars, add 1 teaspoonful of salt to the quart jar, fill with boiling water or liquid in which the asparagus has been precooked, put on the rubber rings and covers and seal completely.

If the hot water bath method is used for sterilization, place jars on rack in the container so that they do not touch each other or the sides of the canner. Do not have hot water in canner cover jars but come only about half way up on the jars. Count the time for sterilization from the point when the water about the jars actually boils and keep the water boiling throughout the sterilization period.

Sterilize asparagus 3 hours. When sterilization is complete, remove jars and cool as quickly as possible without having jars in draft.

If the pressure cooker is used, close pet cock when steam flows freely from the pet cock. Sterilize asparagus 40 minutes at 10 pounds pressure for counting the time from the time at quart jars and 35 minutes for pints, which the steam gauge registers 10 pounds pressure and keeping the pressure at the required point throughout.

When sterilization is complete, let cool until gauge is back to zero, open pet cock slowly to release any steam, take off cover, remove jars and cool.

The indispensability of the automobile to modern business has been further recognized by the Government in a ruling just made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, holding that expenditures for upkeep and operation of an automobile, including a chauffeur's salary, when used for business purposes, are deductible under the income tax law.

The ruling, according to the legal department of the American Motorists' Association, affiliated with the Delaware Automobile Association, amplifies a previously adopted rule under which professional men are permitted to deduct automobile expenses incurred in making professional calls.

Coming just before the final date for filing income tax returns, the new ruling is of great importance to every motorist who finds use for an automobile in connection with his business.

The association, however, calls attention to a limitation in the rule narrowing the deductible expense to the cost of transportation actually required in carrying on business. The cost of transportation from the taxpayer's home to his place of business is considered a personal expense under the ruling and is not deductible.

The decision further holds that the expense of employing a chauffeur should be regarded in the same manner as the expense of operating an automobile. If the expenditure is not ordinary and necessary with respect to the taxpayer's business, it should not be deducted as a business expense. On the other hand, if the expenditure appears ordinary and necessary, in view of all surrounding circumstances, the motorist is entitled to a deduction. It follows that a taxpayer may charge against his return money expended for the use of his automobile and for a chauffeur's time while employed in pursuit of his business but that he may not charge these expenditures where the machine and chauffeur are employed in transporting the taxpayer from his home to his office and return.

NEWARK, DELAWARE, THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1929

NUMBER 15

NEED CIVILIANS AS ARMY PILOTS

Air Service Offers Commissions To Civilian Pilots For One Year Of Service.

Designed to keep pace with the Five Year Expansion Program, recently authorized by Congress for the Army Air Corps, a new policy has been placed in operation in the corps area by Major General James E. Fechet, Chief of the Army Air Corps, whereby civilian pilots as well as Reserve officers will be detailed to active duty as second lieutenants at Regular Army flying fields for a period of one year.

At Governors Island, where the details of General Fechet's plan were made public, it was explained that a shortage of Army-trained flying cadets has been encountered by the Air Corps in its project to train three hundred pilots who are not members of the Regular Army, as required by the Five Year Expansion Program.

Until the Army Air Corps training centers, where the flying cadets are schooled, are developed sufficiently to fill vacancies for one-year flying details, General Fechet believes that pilots who are commissioned in the Air Corps Reserve or other civilian pilots not yet so commissioned will volunteer in large enough numbers to complete the yearly quotas.

Under the policy adopted by General Fechet, qualified civilian transport pilots who are not at present members of the Organized Reserve will be given commissions in the Air Corps Reserve as second lieutenants and then, with their consent, ordered out for one year of active service, it was said at Army headquarters on Governors Island.

In determining the qualifications of civilian flyers for assignment to active duty, proper credit will be given for detailed authenticated civilian transport time in the air.

No Reserve officer above the grade of second lieutenant will be eligible for this duty, but a higher officer may resign his commission and then be re-appointed in the grade of second lieutenant so as to qualify.

It is contemplated under the newly adopted policy that all candidates for the one-year details will be qualified pilots who are capable of entering the Regular Army Air Corps organization and carrying on the incidental flying without further training. Eligible aviators, it was explained, may apply either to the Air Officer, Second Corps Area, Governors Island, N. Y., or Executive Officer, Air Corps Reserve, 39 Whitehall street, New York City.

Peter McLaren, World's Champion Chopper, Cuts Through 39-inch Log In As Many Seconds; Gus Taylor Chops Log in 2:25

Under the auspices of Thomas A. Potts, Peter McLaren, the World Champion Wood Chopper, staged a chopping contest in front of Pott's store, challenging any local wood chopper. McLaren offered to pay $50 to any local chopper, if he, McLaren, failed to chop a log in half in two-thirds of the time the local champion took for the task. Gus Taylor, from near St. Georges, challenged the champion, and a 39-inch poplar log was used for the contest. Taylor chopped the log in half in 2 minutes and 25 seconds. McLaren then took the axe, and, with ease and deliberation, chopped the log in half in 39 seconds. About 10 chops did the trick.

McLaren, who is an Australian, has been staging contests all over the United States. He has appeared in vaudeville and with various circuses.

DELAWARE WINS AND LOSES GAME

Takes Hot Game From Hampden-Sidney and Drops One To Swarthmore

The University of Delaware played two games of baseball last week, winning one and dropping the other. On Thursday the Blue and Gold tripped Hampden-Sidney, 3 to 2, and on Saturday lost to Swarthmore, 4 to 1. Both games were played on Frazer Field.

Delaware came from behind to win the Hampden-Sidney game in the ninth, when "Ace" Taylor ran wild on the bases and scored on two sacrifice hits after getting on with a single. Crossgrove pitched nice ball for Delaware, allowing only 3 hits, one each in the first three innings. The Southerners made their runs in the first two innings, while Delaware scored in the fifth, seventh and ninth. Both teams played a fast game in the field.

Hall went on the mound for Delaware in the Swarthmore game, and pitched flawless ball until the sixth, when he blew and allowed 4 runs to come in. Ryan replaced him and kept the Little Quakers runless for the remainder of the game. Delaware got its single run in the second inning.

NEWARK JUNIORS UNDEFEATED

The undefeated nine of the Newark Junior High School added another victim to its list last Thursday, when it slugged its way to a 11 to 3 victory over Mt. Pleasant School. Jackson, who has already pitched a no-hit, no-run game, held the Mt. Pleasant team scoreless until the ninth.

Newark is playing duPont, at duPont, this afternoon, and a victory will give Newark the undisputed championship of the division A of the D. I. A. A. Junior league.

A good word is an easy obligation; but not to speak ill requires only our silence, which costs us nothing.—Tillotson.

40 SCHOOLS TO COMPETE HERE

Large Entry In Annual Inter-scholastic Field Meet, On Frazer Field Saturday

Between 30 and 40 schools will send teams to the annual interscholastic track and field meet, to be held, this Saturday, on Frazer Field, under the auspices of the University of Delaware. The Newark Schools will have eleven entries in Class C, competing in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, the 880-yard run, and the shot put, high jump and broad jump.

The events will be run off in three classes. Class A competition will be between larger high schools and preparatory schools from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland. Wilmington High School, Wesley College and other schools with more mature students will compete in Class B, and the majority of other Delaware high schools will have teams entered in Class C. The meet will start at 1 o'clock, standard time.

One of the features of the afternoon will be the inter-fraternity relay race for Delaware fraternities. A cup is awarded to the winning fraternity, and any one which wins it three times consecutively, takes permanent possession.

CANADA'S REINDEER

Introducing foreign livestock on a large scale does not always meet with the ease and success achieved as a rule hitherto in Australia. Canada's first great experiment in settling reindeer in her great Northland has ended in a rather surprising failure.

Five hundred reindeer were brought from Norway, some time ago, and turned loose in Baffin's Land. High expectations were held that they would thrive on the feeding grounds there, breed among themselves, and provide a source of living to the natives and of general profit to the country. Already the United States, having imported a herd of some 1200 Siberian (tundra) reindeer into Alaska a year or two ago, is reaping great success out of that venture.

Today, not a trace can be found of the reindeer in Baffin's Land. It is as if they had never been introduced.

A Canadian commissioner, Mr. W. T. Lopp, who has been looking into this rather puzzling outcome of well-directed efforts, states that in his far-ranging and keenly scrutinizing visit throughout Baffin's Land not a trace of the herd was obtained—not even any traces of any of the animals. The suppositions advanced are that all of them may have been killed by the wolves, starved to death, gone off with the caribou, or have formed food and profit for the Eskimos, notwithstanding the denials by the latter. No matter the cause—the reindeer have vanished.

At the time this project was mooted there were some who averred that the plains of Baffin's Land do not and cannot grow enough of the mosses on which the reindeer live. It was pointed out also that the reindeer of Norway are not the most suitable for such a venture.

With the proved success of reindeer ranching in Alaska, there ought not to be any obstacle in introducing a like industry as great and profitable upon the vast northern territory of Canada—provided there is the right management and proper selection of species and management. And the Americans claim that two men of reasonable activities are enough staff to look after some 8000 deer in ordinary circumstances.

Meanwhile, in the Northland trappers and others keep a sharp lookout for any of the missing five hundred Norwegians.

It is exceedingly seldom that a great state experiment meets with such utter failure and mystery as its failure as this venture in Baffin's Land.

OUR USE OF TABLE FORKS

IS BUT 300 YEARS OLD

Although forks have been employed at the table for only about 300 years, it was not until after the reign of Henry VIII that sovereigns of England used them.

An Englishman named Coryate, while traveling in Italy during the reign of James I, was responsible for introducing the new utensil to his native land. But the custom promptly met the ban of the clergy, who considered the use of forks an insult to God, who made fingers for the purpose of conveying food to the mouth.

However, forks became popular, and the reign of Charles II saw them in common use. They were usually made of iron or steel and had two prongs. Silver forks were rare and until the nineteenth century were used only by the wealthy.

"UNPROVOKED" DOG "ATTACKS"

Newspaper headlines, such as "Several Children Bitten by Dogs—Officials Plan Campaign," are increasing in number every summer, with the natural increase in the number of both dogs and children. "Rabies scares" are with us every season and in some communities they seem to be continuous.

A newspaper man in a New Jersey city, himself a lover of cats and dogs and the owner of several of them, has taken time and trouble to trace a great many of these newspaper stories, because of his oft-repeated opinion that dogs almost never make an unprovoked attack on any child or adult. His study was also prompted by an opinion that the cases of actual "mad dogs" are about one-half of one per cent of the reported cases.

In more than 96 per cent of the cases traced in which children were alleged to have been the victims of "unprovoked attacks" by dogs it was found that the dog had been abused, at some time, by some child. In more than half the cases it was found that the dog had been abused, or heckled by the child attacked, either at the time of the attack or previous to that time.

In approximately half the cases it was found that the "wound" was trivial. In many cases it was merely a red mark on the skin, with no actual breaking of the skin at all. Children were taken to physicians with these red welts as "wounds."

A typical instance involved a woman of mature years, instead of a child, and the newspaper man's own dog. It jumped on a woman, in an outburst of enthusiasm at seeing her. The woman shouted that she was "bitten" and was rushed to a physician. The "bite" was a slight scratch on her hip made by the exposed end of a steel in her corset. This was reported in a newspaper other than the one on which the dog owner worked as "a woman was attacked and bitten by a dog." The dog's paw had pressed the end of the steel against her flesh and caused the scratch.

Many other "attacks" were equally "provoked." The cause was most frequently the abusing of a dog which had been cornered by a child or a group of children and goaded until it did what it could in self-defense.

Of the really "unprovoked" attacks which resulted in actual wounds, involving either adults or children, those investigated amounted to less than five per cent of the total traced.

WATERMARKS IN PAPER

Watermarks in paper have been used for a long time to lend distinction to the product of a particular paper maker and for other purposes. One of the oldest, a circle surmounted by a tall cross, is found in documents dating back to the fourteenth century. Other old marks are the fleur-de-lis, the court jester, the huntsman's horn, the hand pointing to a five-pointed star and the tankard, well known in papers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

THE SIAMESE SALUTE

Instead of shaking hands, the people of Siam ordinarily salute each other by raising both hands, laid flat against each other, to their foreheads, with a slight bending of the head. Toward the higher nobility, the salutation is accompanied by a very deep bow for the men and a very deep curtsy for the women. For royalty both men and women kneel and almost touch the ground with their foreheads.

NEWARK HIGH WINS 2 GAMES

Beats West Nottingham And Delaware City; Mayer And McDowell Star

The Newark High School baseball team regained standing by winning two games during the past week. On Saturday afternoon, the local nine defeated West Nottingham Academy, 7 to 2, on the Newark diamond, and Tuesday afternoon, beat Delaware City, at Delaware City, 10 to 15.

Newark outthrew West Nottingham in the pinches to win Saturday's game. Whitman yielded 8 hits, but kept them sufficiently scattered so they amounted to only 2 tallies. Whitman struck out 11, while Marquiss, West Nottingham moundsman, fanned 14 Newark batters.

"Winnie" Mayer, who twirled the Delaware City game for Newark, just about won his own game. Besides striking out 14 and giving only 8 hits, "Winnie" got a homer, a double and two singles out of 4 trips to the plate. McDowell, Newark's other slugger, took in all the possibilities offered, getting a homer, a triple, a double and a single.

The game was more or less of a slugfest throughout, with slug-gish fielding on Newark's part, handling runs to Delaware City. Scores:

SEED TESTS FOR CORN GROWERS

Germination Tests Made By County Agent Show Good Quality Of Seed Corn; Free To All Farmers

Fifteen corn growers in New Castle County have had germination tests run on the corn they expect to plant this spring. This service was open to all farmers in the upper county who wished to send a sample to County Agent Ed Willim, Jr., of Newark.

In commenting on the germination tests, Mr. Willim has this to say: "We have always been glad to run these tests for any one who sent in a sample and without doubt the service will be continued next year. This spring fewer farmers availed themselves of this opportunity, but from the results of the tests it would seem that, contrary to general belief, the seed corn seems to be in fair condition."

"Only three of the samples tested went below 90 per cent," continues the County Agent. "Under the conditions of last fall, when considerable corn was blown over by the storm, and when husked appeared soft and immature, these germination results are gratifying. If these tests can be used as a basis of forming an opinion on the germination percentage of seed corn to be planted this spring, I would say that they indicate that few farmers need worry over their planted corn not coming up."

Some of the corn tested showed very good type according to the County Agent. He has the list of men who have had their corn tested, and will be able to tell anyone who writes to him where this high germination corn can be purchased.

Another phase of corn improvement work in the county to be conducted by the County Agent is to be started at corn planting time on several farms over the entire county. It consists of demonstrations to test the value of the new dust disinfectants which are expected to control the root, ear and stalk rots of corn, and in this manner increase the yields of quality corn per acre.

There are several of these dust disinfectant mixtures on the market for this work. Among these are Semesan, Jr., and Merko, both highly recommended by their respective companies. Others, if available, are probably equally as good.

The seed corn is treated somewhat in the manner that wheat is treated for smut. Two to three ounces of the disinfectant is used per bushel of corn. This makes the cost of treating per acre very small, since one bushel of corn plants from four to five acres. One pound of the material then treats an enough seed to plant about 32 to 40 acres. Although demonstrations of this kind conducted last year by the County Agent did not show any increase in the yield per acre, he is of the belief that the storm of the early fall had much to do with the results of yields secured.

FORTY YEARS AFTER

Let us imagine that "once upon a time" a Mrs. Rip Van Winkle, who had started a long nap at the end of a busy day of housekeeping in 1889, suddenly awoke on New Year's Day in 1929 to find herself in the modern home of her daughter.

She would doubtless arouse herself at once and wish to begin assisting with the household tasks. Asking for a lamp, which she might take with her to the kitchen as she "set" some bread (and where was the potato yeast?), and for an alarm clock which she might have ready to arouse her at 1 a. m. so that she could "knead down" the dough after its first rising, she would surely be very much astonished to learn that she needed but to press a little button by the door in order to flood the tiny kitchen with a light so brilliant as to seem to her almost dazzling, but that there was really no occasion for a visit to the kitchen at all, as bread would come fresh from the bakery in the morning.

TRANSFER TWO SUITS TO TALBOT COURT

When the Circuit Court for Talbot County convenes at Easton on Monday, May 20, two cases removed from the Cecil County court, at Elkton, will come to trial. The suit of John Powell and Mary P. Bones vs. George F. Hamlin grew out of allegations of the plaintiff that Col. Hamlin's servants, in his absence, started a brush fire which spread to the plaintiff's land and burned valuable timber. Col. Hamlin died on April 20, and his widow, Margaret B. Hamlin, and Robert N. Juggard, his executors, will be substituted as parties defendant. The plaintiff is represented by Harold E. Coubourn, of Perryville, and the defendants by Joshua Clayton and G. Reynolds Ash, of Elkton.

The other suit is Lamont vs. Victory Sparkler & Specialty Company, of Elkton. This case is the result of an attempt on the part of the plaintiff to increase the efficiency of the Elkton fireworks plant, but, which, according to the defendant, resulted in failure and the efficiency men dismissed. The defendants will be represented by Joshua Clayton and G. Reynolds Ash, of Elkton.

MAN KILLED BY FALLING BOULDER

His skull crushed by a small boulder that tumbled a distance of thirty feet without attracting his attention, William Leaths, age 25, of Liberty Grove, was instantly killed late Friday afternoon at the Keystone Quarry near Port Deposit.

Leaths was busy picking at stone with his axe under the crest of a steep embankment, where there had been recent blasting. Apparently the stone, weighing more than 300 pounds, had been loosened by the blast. The noise about the quarry and his own picking apparently deadened the sound of the hill and the other workmen failed to see it in time to warn him.

Coroner Green deemed an inquest unnecessary. Leaths is survived by a wife.

AUTO STALLS ON TRACK WRECKED BY TRAIN

While occupants had plenty of time to save themselves, the automobile of J. F. Flanagan, of 1433 North 16th street, Philadelphia, was carried over a thousand feet and completely wrecked early Monday morning when it stalled on the No. 2 track in front of a northbound Pennsylvania Railroad express train at Red Mill crossing in Elkton. It is at this crossing that several fatal and serious accidents have occurred, resulting in the construction, now going on, of an overhead crossing.

The Flanagans were driving east on their way home about 3.30 a. m. when their machine, a Hudson coach, stalled on the northbound track. It was just about this time, according to witnesses, that the watchman came out of his box to lower the gates. Realizing their plight, Mr. and Mrs. Flanagan jumped out of the machine upon hearing the fast train approach, and with a lamp which they grabbed from the contractor's equipment nearby, tried to stop the train. The contractor's watchman also attempted to stop the train, but without results.

THE TERM "BANKRUPT" OF ANCIENT ORIGIN

The origin of the word "bankrupt" is traced back to ancient times. A Hebrew custom required the deposit in the temple of certain sums of money in Hebrew currency. As Roman coins were frequently used, money changers set up their table or bench (bank) on which they kept Hebrew coins to be bought in Roman money. Money was also lent, and sometimes the changer found himself owing more than he owned. To prevent further calamity his creditors drove him from his business and broke his bench to pieces. He was then "bench-broken" or bankrupt.

NASH "400"

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

$1040

Delivered, Fully Equipped, Nothing More to Buy!

Compare delivered, fully-equipped prices

See why Nash is lower!

ON the basis of quality, the Nash "400" should cost more than other cars in its competitive field. It actually costs less!

Nash engineers—one of the industry's outstanding engineering organizations—have created a finer motor car. They have developed the high-compression, 7-bearing motor to its highest point of perfection and power. The exclusive Nash outboard mounting of hydraulic shock absorbers doubles their effectiveness and creates supreme riding ease. And here is the "world's easiest driving control," in this new and finer motor car.

These are but a few of many "400" features of superiority.

Why then, is the Nash "400" lower priced?

Here is the explanation. Every Nash "400" is now factory-equipped with the accessories, purchased at factory savings and included in the factory price of the car. Bumpers, shock absorbers, spare tire lock and tire cover come with the car and are not added later as "extras," at retail prices.

You will find some dealers (not Nash dealers) charging as much as $50 or $60 extra for bumpers alone.

Compare the delivered, fully equipped price of any Nash "400" with the delivered, fully equipped prices of competitive cars. You'll see the saving!

The play, "Tea Toper Tavern," will be given in the Presbyterian Church this (Thursday) evening, at 7.30, standard time. The production is under the direction of the Ladies Aid Society of the church, but the cast is made up almost entirely of young people, who have worked hard and faithfully to make the presentation a success.

On Friday evening the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fire Company will give a bingo party in the Firehouse. Prizes will be given the winners at bingo, which will be played from 8 to 10 o'clock, followed by square dancing to continue till midnight.

There was an all-day rally of Girl Reserves at Middletown last Saturday, with a luncheon served to members at one o'clock. The local Girl Reserve Club was represented by Esther and Madeline Cunane and Lois Phelps.

The annual school election was held last Saturday afternoon, at which time Mr. John W. Moore was chosen commissioner, to succeed Mr. Raymond Louth, whose term had expired.

Mrs. Mary C. Kennard, teacher of the lower room in the local school, reports the following pupils as having made a perfect attendance record for April: Benjamin Cleaver, Walton Mason, Margaret Mason, Margaret Takach, Elizabeth Lee, Mildred Hanna, Mildred Takach, Anna May David and Mary Butler.

Mrs. Kennard held a very successful food-sale at the Firehouse on Saturday. The proceeds from this sale are to be used for the benefit of the school.

At the regular meeting of the Christiana Improvement and Parent-Teacher Association, held in the school house Tuesday evening, May 7th, the school children, under the direction of their teachers, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Kennard, furnished a most interesting and entertaining program, the stage being beautifully decorated for the occasion with wild flowers and shrubs. Mrs. Kennard's pupils, all of whom took some part in the program, gave another "broadcast" from Station C. S. L. R. (Christiana School—Lower Room), with Walton Mason as announcer. There were recitations and songs by the pupils, and several selections by the now famous "Rise and Shine" orchestra. Miss Elsie Ware was at the piano.

During Mrs. Hill's part of the program there were selections by the regular school orchestra, which shows wonderful improvement since their last public appearance. There was an interesting exercise on "Character Building," in which all the older pupils took part, followed by a recitation, in costume, "Hedge Rose and Garden Rose," by Eleanor DeCollo, Sylvia Phelps and Idella Novak.

This program, as is always the case when the children take part, preceded the regular business meeting. At the close refreshments were served. There was an unusually large attendance at this meeting, due no doubt to the fact that the youngsters were in the limelight.

There was considerable excitement hereabout last Friday afternoon and evening, when the John Sharp farm, vacated a short time ago by the Sharp family, was raided by dry officers, and a complete distillery outfit found and destroyed. Hundreds of gallons of liquor was found and an enormous amount of mash, together with material and equipment for enlarging the plant. The place had been rented by parties from Chester, who doubtless thought that the isolated location of the farm buildings and the fact that there were two outlets from the place, one to the Bear road and the other to the Old Mill road, would guarantee them safety from discovery. They had also quite a unique and clever alarm system, but as the raid was made by daylight, the cords and wires were discovered and, naturally, avoided by the officers. Two men found at the place were placed under arrest, but a third escaped to the nearby woods and at last reports, had not been captured.

Rev. Samuel L. Irvine, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, spent several days the first of the week attending the reunion of his class at Princeton University.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Coverdale had as their week-end guest, their son-in-law, Commander H. T. Dumstrey of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, who for the next three years will be stationed at Philadelphia, where the Pennsylvania will be rebuilt and modernized. Mrs. Dumstrey, formerly Miss May Coverdale, and their small daughter, have for several weeks been visiting at the Coverdale home.

Mr. and Mrs. Coverdale also entertained on Sunday the following guests: Mr. Robert Meadowcross, Miss Burroughs and Mr. John T. Hall, all of Philadelphia; also Dr. and Mrs. S. P. Combs, of Middletown, with their two sons, Warren, Jr., and Reed, and little daughter, Ellen.

Mrs. Dumstrey is taking a great deal of pleasure in driving a new Studebaker Commander.

Our postmistress, Mrs. Sadie E. Appleby, attended on Monday the annual meeting of the Delaware Postmasters' Association, held in the Federal Building in Wilmington. While she was away, the postoffice was in charge of her daughter, Mrs. H. Vernon Lynam, of Stanton.

Miss Gladys Walther, of Wilmington, was the over-night guest last Wednesday, of Misses Ella, Elizabeth and Sara Moore, of this place.

Mr. Nicholas Vlasvelt, of Atlantic City, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foy and family, of Parkersburg, Pa., were guests of Mr. Harry Marshall over the week-end.

Miss Nellie Appleby, of Hare's Corner, spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. George W. Davis.

MILFORD CROSS ROADS SCHOOL

A week from tomorrow, Friday, May 17, will be Field Day for New Castle county school children. Milford Cross Roads pupils are going to be more than just on-lookers this year. Yes, they have a real, "honest-to-goodness" dodge ball team. George Reed is their captain; they elected him and you'll have to travel miles to find a better captain than George. George is proud of his team: Charles Greer, Esther Greer, Edwin Guthrie, Hazel Johnston, Edward Kennedy, Anna Mills, Delaware Reed, Mildred Reed and Ruth Reed. He is using William Cullen and Mary Kwiatkowski as substitutes.

The following girls have qualified and will complete their badge test requirements on Frazer Field next Friday: Esther Greer, Betty Hollingsworth, Helen Kwiatkowski, Mary Kwiatkowski, Mildred Reed and Ruth Reed.

Edwin Guthrie and George Reed have satisfied the badge qualifications for boys and will complete their tests on Frazer Field.

Edward Kennedy, Delaware Reed and George Reed are entering the 50-yard dash.

Regular classes have gone on as usual in the stress of doing athletic feats, selling "Booster Tags" for Field

Day, practicing for May Day and what not.

The following pupils have made no grade lower than "B" for the past month: Hazel Johnston, Mildred Reed, Carolyn Guthrie, Betty Hollingsworth, Paul Nelson, Ethel Gray, and Grayson Greer.

May Day

An enemy, measles, has crept into our school family. We are conquering him as quickly as possible, but his coming is making our May cantata, "Crowning the Queen" come a little later than we had planned. We shall not be ready to present our queen, Mildred Reed, until Wednesday evening, May 29. Keep the date in mind, so that no other engagements may intervene.

MAN AND BEAST

Men have always been interested in what their brothers in the animal family think about and how their minds work. Many books, fiction and fact, have been written on the subject. All sorts of animal stories, from the Jungle Books and "The Call of the Wild" to "Lady Into Fox" and "Bambi," find eager readers. Alfred Polizat in the Revue Bleue has written an interesting article, "Reflections on the Mind of Beasts and the Human Mind." Any dog, he says, has a clear conception of what his mission on earth is—to attach himself to the master that destiny has given him, to guard him and his house, to follow him in his walks, his hunts or his wars. He is even keen enough to discern who is the real master in a house. If he sees that the man is not, he gives his allegiance to the mistress, in order that the proper discipline of the house may not be challenged.

When animals display such a high grade of intelligence, it seems strange to many that they should not be able to talk. M. Polizat rather asks, Why should they talk? Put yourself, says he, in the place of a dog. A cry of joy, a groan, a shout of alarm, more or less intense, more or less prolonged—doesn't that convey all that is necessary in most cases? To be vigilant, to learn the meaning of every change of expression, of every slightest inflection, is enough to give the dog a thorough understanding of his master. He has no need for words. Moreover, the technical business of dissociating an action from the being who performs it is beyond him. To distinguish the verb from the subject is more than he can manage. It would be interesting to know what the master of Fellow—the dog which boasts a vocabulary of 140 words—would have to say to this.

While the French writer displays a friendly sympathy for all dumb animals, and quotes cases of the loyalty and devotion of cats, dogs, deer and rabbits, he apparently has no fondness for monkeys. Everything about the monkey, "thanks to his unhappy genius for imitation, becomes a horrid buffoonery which is a perpetual degration of man and of his most noble sentiments." Monkeys are not liked by other animals. The creatures which are most attracted to man show the greatest repugnance for the monkey tribe. The physical resemblance between man and monkey, M. Polizat consolingly remarks, may be after all only fortuitous.—N. Y. Times.

THE POWER OF ONE MAN'S ENTHUSIASM

He was standing in the choir of Winchester Cathedral surrounded by the first tourists of the year. He was a clean-shaven man with the mobile face of an actor, shrewd, humorous eyes, and white hair brushed straight back over his head. I learned afterward that he is well known in America.

In two minutes I had discovered that the man was alive! He had imagination . . . he threw out ground bait and then began from the beginning and built up. A fat, middle-aged motorist who, I judged, had been too busy making money all his life to be more than eight years old in other things, stood gaping on the edge of the crowd; he seemed to be struggling reluctantly with a new point of view: "This chap's good," he whispered, "isn't he? I expect he's pulling our legs a bit. He talks about the old days as if he was there. . . ."

As the man with the white hair talked in the silent choir of Winchester—before him the long sweep of that marvellous nave, on either side those lovely Norman transepts soaked in a pale gold light—he moved his hands in time to his words, and his eyes went over the group to each listener. There was not a shuffle. He had gripped them! They had come to be bored; they stayed strangely thrilled by this man's enthusiasm and by the pictures he called up. What was it: he humanized the history book. . . .

We saw as he talked, down a long tunnel of time, the Kings of Wessex riding through a country that was not yet England; we saw the long boats of the pirates pointed to our shores. . . .

The old story, like all old stories told properly, took on a new importance, became dramatic and somehow near at hand. The crowd had heard it before at school; but they had never seen it before.

"Who's coming up to the roof with me?" said the verger. "Come on, and you'll have the treat of your lives, and on the way I'll let you walk where the monks walked who day and night guarded the golden shrine of St. Swithin which once stood where you are standing."

Up spiral staircases we went, holding on to ropes, feeling the smooth face of the stone in the dark till we came to a dim, dusty tunnel crossed by a narrow wooden platform. We were walking above that lovely vaulted nave of Winchester! Above the roof, and crossways stretched vast oak beams that uphold the structure.

"Just look at them!" he said. "Eight hundred years old, and as good as new. The architect who was here the other day says that all they need is a little lead treatment. And those giant oaks were felled by the Normans! Come on, mind your heads!"

We came to that eerie spot where the great bells of Winchester tick off time so patiently, and here this amusing verger lined us up—solemn elderly women, fat men, thin men, and little children—gave each one of us a bell, delivered a lecture on bell-ringing, numbered us off from the right, and, pointing to each one in turn as he wished him to ring, drew forth from the unpromising assembly: "Abide with me."

We were delighted with ourselves. Up we went again, and round and round, till we bent under a little stone doorway and came out on the roof of the cathedral; below us London's old rival—Winchester! . . .

We looked down on the tops of feathery lime trees, on the river and the distant hills, the little town lying pleasantly in a blue haze of smoke from its chimneys, Winchester! "When I was appointed verger, the spirit of Winchester gripped me and I knew that I had found my right job. I love every stone of this cathedral."

"Who are your most intelligent listeners?" I asked him.

"American women over forty!" he replied instantly.

Down we all tramped over the sheer corkscrew stairs and out the lime avenue. We found that we all knew each other. We all had hands before we parted. Such is the power of one man's enthusiasm on a land."

GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH
COMING TO THIS SECTION

After all there is but one show circus. And now comes the announced that Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey's "Greatest Show on Earth" will soon visit this vicinity, with its myriad of wonders when it exhibits in Wilmington, Friday, May 24.

The advance advertising car bearing the appearance of this wonder of wonders is now in this territory and its gaily colored lithographs are forth throughout the country.

Coming on 100 double length railroad cars, carrying its entire complement of 1600 persons and 1000 animals. The Big Show will exhibit such stars as Zachinini, "The Human Projectile," fired bodily from the mouth of a cannon; Goliath, the five-ton elephant; the combined Wallendas, Reilmut Troupes, daring artists of the high wire; Con Colleano, greatest of tight wire performers; Miss Lillian Leitzel, most famed of all female aerialists; the Flying Codomo, led by the intrepid Alfredo, Maximo, the funniest of wire acts; the Rieffers and Ernestos, greatest of equestrians and many others from these and foreign shores.

There are more new foreign acts than ever before with the Big Show and performances dazzling with splendor and magnificence are presented twice daily. The Ringling-Barnum Circus is the only five-ring circus in the world.

The
are the
Final Judge

When it comes to tires, car owners lay down their money for the make that gives the best service. And every year sees many hundreds of thousands more people saying "Good-year." The people are the final judge—and the verdict is becoming more and more nearly unanimous that "Goodyear Tires are best."

GOODYEAR

More people—millions more people!—ride on Goodyear Tires because experience proves them the best.
