STUDENTS AND FRIENDS MOURN DEATH OF DR. TITSWORTH

Stricken With Heart Attack Sunday

Students and residents alike mourned the death of Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, 52, who less than two months ago became president of his alma mater—Alfred University.

Stricken with a heart attack Sunday while preparing to drive his car to Hornell to deliver a sermon, the prominent educator died before a physician could be summoned.

Dr. Titsworth had served as president of Alfred University, of which he was a graduate and former instructor, less than two months, having been inaugurated last October 20 to succeed Dr. Boothe C. Davis, president emeritus for 39 years. He was the university's sixth president over a period of 34 years.

An educator of 25 years' experience Dr. Titsworth had returned to Alfred from Washington College, of Chestertown, Md., where he served as president for 10 years.

Following his graduation with a bachelor of philosophy degree from Alfred in 1904, Dr. Titsworth pursued a course of study at the University of Wisconsin, where he was awarded a degree of doctor of philosophy in 1909.

He returned to his alma mater the following year, serving as instructor, professor, and finally dean in the College of Liberal Arts until he was honored with the presidency of Washington College in 1923.

In 1921 he was appointed Governor of the 34th District of Rotary International, serving Maryland and the eastern part of Pennsylvania, and as such attended the international convention the summer of that year at Vienna, Austria. He also attended the assembly at Summering, Austria, while abroad. He was an inveterate traveler, and studied at several German universities.

He was a former member of the Maryland Library Commission, a director of the Delaware Eastern Shore Association and president of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce. Last year he presided over the 150th anniversary celebration of the founding of the college, until then the most prestigious affair ever held there.

He was one of two United States Rotarians serving as a member of the International Service Committee of Rotary International. He founded the first Rotary Club in Chestertown, Md., and was an honorary member of the organization at Hornell.

He was president of the village of Alfred in 1917.

The survivors, besides the widow, Mrs. Vida Titsworth, are three daughters, Elizabeth and Katherine, of Alfred, and Eleanor, of Baltimore, Md., and a sister, Miss Helen A. Titsworth, of Lawrence, Kan.

Funeral services will be 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, with the First Alfred Seventh Day Baptist Church pastor officiating. Burial will be here.

Dr. Titsworth was well known in Wilmington and throughout Delaware where he had frequently made talks before Rotary Clubs and educational groups.

SLEET CAUSES HUNDREDS OF ACCIDENTS IN STATE

Rising temperature and warming December sun released Delaware this morning from the icy grip that had endangered life, property and crippled motor vehicular traffic for almost 18 hours.

Every road, street and even gravelled paths were covered with ice that made walking a hazardous venture.

Ten accident patients were reported at the Wilmington hospitals, two being hurt in sledding mishaps.

A mist that started to fall yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock was responsible for the ice. The mist fell at intervals and as night came, it froze and veneered the thoroughfares with a glass-like covering.

The ice was particularly bad at an hour when thousands were returning home from work. Automobiles, unprepared for the ice, starting off for their suburban homes, found themselves marooned in the city until the State and County Highway police could strew ashes and sand over the particularly dangerous spots and on hills.

Throughout the night there were continual skiddings, collisions and almost-accidents. This morning, the situation was even worse. The roads froze harder over night and few motorists were courageous enough to venture on the highways—for though they might have had chains on their tires, there was always the possibility of some one else crashing into them.

I. O. R. M. TO HOLD BIG MEETING AT MILFORD

The celebration will be held May 11, 12 and 13.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED FOR U. OF D. CENTENARY PROGRAM

State-wide approval of the determination to celebrate the one-hundredth anniversary of the opening of the University of Delaware with fitting exercises, extending over a period of three days, May 11, 12 and 13, 1934, has been so encouraging to the recently-formed Centenary Executive Committee that an office has been opened in Old College which will be devoted entirely to the plans for observance.

Mrs. Virginia R. Schutt has been chosen as Secretary to the Committee, and William H. Conner, an alumnus, has been appointed Publicity Representative, under the immediate direction of Professor George L. Schuster, Chairman. Committee on Programs and Dr. W. O. Sypherd, General Chairman. Mr. Conner was for a number of years actively engaged in Wilmington journalism, and his appointment was made with the view of acquainting the people of Delaware more thoroughly with the history, aims, and aspirations of the State University, as well as detailing from time to time the progress of the Centenary project.

The various committees for the Centenary are now being organized, and their personnel and plans will be made public as advancement is made.

In respect to the Historical Brochure and the Historical Pageant, under the direction of Dr. George H. Ryden, Chairman, with the assistance of Professor H. C. Reed, Curator of Delawareana, it is hoped to be able to announce the author of the Brochure in the course of a week or two, as well as the author of the text for the Historical Pageant.

Other groups which are rapidly assuming form are the Committee on Open Classes and Laboratory, a unique undertaking under the direction of Professor Harriet T. Baily, Chairman, and the Committee on Programs and Invitations, Professor E. C. Byam, Chairman.

Another group that will play a prominent role in the celebration is the Alumni Committee, to consist of 84 graduates of the Women's College, and graduates of the Delaware College, in rapid process of formulation. The names of men representing classes from 1874 to 1933 in Delaware College, and women representing classes from 1918 to 1933 in the Women's College, have been suggested by the presidents of the graduate organizations. These representatives will be asked to get in touch with all surviving members of their respective classes to the end that the Centenary shall mark the most signal outpouring of sons and daughters of Old Delaware in all its long and noble history.

Announcing

NEW FORD V-8 for 1934

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The New Ford V-8 for 1934 is now on display at the showrooms of Ford dealers. Surpassing even the great Ford of 1933 in economy, beauty and comfort, it is truly the car of this modern age—the culmination of thirty years Ford progress. It combines the proved performance of the V-8 cylinder engine with two important new features—Dual Carburetion and perfected Clear-vision Ventilation. See this car today and drive it at the first opportunity.

OUTSTANDING IMPROVEMENTS IN THE NEW FORD V-8

BETTER PERFORMANCE. Greater power, new speed, quicker acceleration, smoother performance, more miles per gallon especially at higher speeds, and quicker starting in cold weather—all these result from the new dual carburetor and dual intake manifold. New water-line thermostats enable the engine to warm up more quickly and to maintain an efficient operating temperature. Added engine refinements reduce oil consumption, further improve operating economy and reduce maintenance costs.

NEW VENTILATION SYSTEM permits clear vision, prevents drafts and provides desired amount of fresh air in any weather. Individual control for front and rear side windows. When ventilation is desired the window glass is raised to the top. Then the handle is given an additional half-turn. This slides the glass back horizontally to form a narrow slot. Through this slot air is drawn out by the forward motion of the car. This simple ventilation system maintains draft-free circulation, insures passenger comfort, prevents fogging windshield in cold or stormy weather. Both windshield and cowl ventilator can be opened to supply additional air needed for comfortable warm-weather driving.

INCREASING ORDERS AT FACTORIES; RETAIL SALES SHOW STEADY GAINS

Washington—Census Bureau reports show the cotton-spinning industry operated during October at 101.9 per cent of capacity on a single-shift basis, compared with 99.6 per cent in September this year and 97 per cent during October 1932. Active spindle hours during October 1933 were 235 per spindle; during September 1933 they were 229 per spindle; during October 1932 they were 224 per spindle. The average in the cotton-growing States reached 279 hours per spindle in place.

Except in the automobile industry, where current production has been curtailed because of model changing, 12 factories having suspended for the purpose of getting out 1934 models, Don and Roadstreet report increasing orders at factories generally. "Manufacturers of factory equipment," states the report, have experienced a sudden upswing in orders, due to the increasing number of new plants being constructed, particularly in the small industrial centers," and adds: "Impetus in the covering of distant requirements has been provided by the newly adopted policy of manufacturers to extend long-term credits to buyers. Some establishments in the metal trades are reporting a noteworthy increase in orders, and the situation generally supports prospects for further expansion."

"Employment in the shoe industry is totalling higher. More men also are employed in cotton goods and electric machinery industries. Rayon factories continue to operate to capacity, and in many instances are well sold up until the end of the year. Wage difficulties still are hampering silk mills and reducing their output. Mills making work-suit and work-shirt fabrics still are running steadily. Flannel, blanket, and sheet and pillow-case mills still are well employed. Prices have eased from the top quoted early in the fall, but most of the declines have been made without open reductions."

Sales of retail grocery stores during October were shown by the Commerce Department's preliminary estimates to have been 3.6 per cent larger than in September, as compared with a September-October seasonal advance of only 1.6 per cent in 1932. The report states: "The percentage changes are based on average daily sales for a selected sample of retail grocery stores so computed as to eliminate the effect of differences in the number of working days of the several months and to allow for the varying importance of different days in the grocery week. The estimates are based upon figures furnished by a cooperating group of chain organizations and represent stores continuously in operation since 1929. The reporting firms operate over 70 per cent of the chain-grocery units in the units, and the sample is so constructed as to give all regions of the country their relative importance as shown by the Census of Distribution.

Preliminary estimates of retail sales through variety stores (5- and 10-cent to $1), also issued by the Commerce Department, show an increase of 5.9 per cent for October over October 1932 and an increase of 4.8 per cent over September 1933. The reporting organizations, all continuously in operation since 1929, represent more than three fourths of the business done in this field. Hundreds of letters from individual merchants to NRA describe gradual increases in retail sales in all parts of the country of October over September and November over October.

His life was a long record of un-failing civic activity, and he was at various times a member of the Delaware Colonial Assembly, the Stamp Act Congress, the First and Second Continental Congresses, and Delaware's war governor and President of the state.

The correspondence, numbering over 500 letters, and now published for the first time gives an unusually intimate and vivid record of the momentous days he lived through. He was necessarily associated closely with other distinguished men of his time, and letters between Rodney and Washington, Robert Morris, Richard Henry Lee, John Penn, and many others are included in the collection. June 26, 1934, will mark the 150th anniversary of Caesar Rodney's death, and it is eminently fitting that his correspondence should appear at this time.

NEW BOOK PUBLISHED FOR HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF DELAWARE

How Delaware missed the distinction of having the Battle of Brandywine fought within its borders is revealed in several communications from "Letters to and from Caesar Rodney, 1756-84," published today by the University of Pennsylvania Press for the Historical Society of Delaware and edited by George H. Ryden, of the University of Delaware.

Among other letters dealing with hitherto little known facts of the maneuvers of the British and American armies in Delaware in August and September, 1777, is one written by John McKinly, Governor of Delaware, to Caesar Rodney, then Commander of the Delaware Militia under Washington's orders. Dated six days after the skirmish at Cooch's Bridge, September 9, it indicates the intention of the American forces to intercept Howe's advance on Philadelphia, an intention which met with defeat at Chadd's Ford, September 11.

"Yesterday morning, the British Army made a general movement from the place of their Encampment on the Iron Hill, proceeding northward through Mill Creek Hundred. Our Army at that time expecting they would take their route thro' this place, over Brandywine Bridge, entrenched themselves very well on the Eastern bank of Red Clay Creek, about a mile westward from Newport, where they had moved the day before & waited their approach in the highest spirits imaginable; but the enemy has for the present given them the slip, having moved farther north to pass Brandywine, at a place called Chad's Ford, about 9 or 10 miles above this place. . . . The Enemy I suppose by way of decoy, & to amuse our Troops with pursuits, have left a body of their's on a high hill, about 3 miles west of Newport, who show themselves very freely both last Evening & this day on the skirt of a piece of Woods. Various opinions are entertained concerning their numbers, some alledging them to be only 150 others vastly more—Nothing would please me more than that they would be made prisoners by the militia of this state, etc."

Rodney's office as Major General of the Militia during the war was only one of the many he held in the service of his state and country. Most Delawareans know of his famous overnight ride from Dover to Philadelphia on July 2, 1776, to vote for the Declaration of Independence. It is not generally realized, however, that Rodney was the leader in securing Delaware's separation from Pennsylvania as a state and can therefore be rightly called the Father of Delaware's Independence.

VISIT YOUR SCHOOLS DURING AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK—NOVEMBER 6-12

During American Education Week parents, citizens, teachers and children will join in a nation-wide tribute to the public schools.

This week came in response to a demand that there be each year an occasion when all the people may consider anew the ideals, purposes and achievements of universal education. It is significant that the observance was initiated by citizens in whom loyalty to country and hope for its future had been kindled anew by the sacrifice and suffering called forth in a crisis which threatened the ideals upon which the nation was built.

Immediately following the Great War, the American Legion formed an American Commission. One of its first steps was to confer with the National Education Association in regard to stimulating the interest and participation of the public in plans for better schools. American Education Week grew out of a series of conferences which began in 1919. The first observance was held in December, 1921. From 1926 the program has been carried out during the week, which includes Armistice Day. American Education Week is now sponsored by the American Legion, the National Education Association and the United States Office of Education.

Plan to visit your school during this week. Meet other parents there. It will help you to understand your children better.

Former Governor Speaks at U. of D. College Hour

NEWARK, Dec. 12.—William Ellery Sweet, former Governor of Colorado, was the speaker Tuesday at the College Hour. He is now a member of the National Recovery Administration's "education corps."

A redistribution of profits is what he said is needed. "Not from a humanitarian point of view, not for the down-trodden, but because I regard it as the only way out do I recommend this," said the former financier, banker and business executive.

Under an appropriation made by the Civil Works Administration the five acres of ground adjoining Frazer Field University of Delaware that was given to the university by friends of the institution is now being graded. The wall between this land and Frazer Field will be torn down so as to make it one large athletic field to meet the growing needs of the university.

Newark New Century Club News

The Newark New Century Club Covered Dish Luncheon and Musical was attended by more than 70 members and friends on Monday afternoon at the Club House. Mrs. Glenn S. Gildersleeve, state chairman of music of the State Federation of Women's Club of Delaware, accompanied by Mrs. Aubrey Davis, Dover, furnished the major portion of the program following the Luncheon.

Mr. Roseman, Philadelphia, representative of the Real Silk Hosiery Company, spoke for 10 minutes on the merits of Real Silk Hosiery. Mrs. R. O. Bausman, chairman of program, was in charge of the games which followed the program. Mrs. J. Pearce Cann, 1st vice-president of the Club, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. F. A. Wheelless, assisted by Mrs. Wm. J. Barnard, were in charge of the Luncheon.

The Club House was beautifully decorated in Christmas greens. An interesting creche with tiny lighted Christmas trees at each end, the gift of the Gas and Electric Company of Wilmington, was arranged on the stage. Mrs. J. M. Barnes, Mrs. Alice Larson, Mrs. Arthur Hauber, Mrs. Geo. Haney, Mrs. John DeBell, Mrs. Claude Hearn were responsible for the decorations.

Members will be glad to know that the fund to pay the Club House painting bill of $91 has been completed. More than $30 was raised by the Movie Benefit, $41 was raised by food sales at the Club and the Christmas Luncheon brought in over $20. The president, Mrs. F. A. Wheelless wishes to thank all who have contributed of their time and money toward the raising of this fund.

Mrs. Gildersleeve's musical program was as follows: "Il mio Bel Foco," by Marcello; "Care Selve," by Handel; "Alleluia," by Mozart; "Widmung," by Schuman; "Ave Maria" by Schubert; "Wohin," by Schubert; "One Fine Day," from "Madam Butterfly," by Puccini; "No Candle was There and No Fire," by Liza Lehman; "By the Fountain," by Harriet Ware; "The Street Fair," by Kathleen Lockhart Manning.

The games which Mrs. Bausman had arranged for the Club proved quite entertaining. The first game played was a chewing gum game. Slicks of chewing gum were passed out together with a card bearing the name of an animal. Members were instructed to model the animal on the card in chewing gum. Mrs. C. R. Kase and J. Irvin Dayett acted as judges. Mrs. Kate Henley Daugherty was awarded first prize on her model of a deer and Mrs. L. A. Stearns on her model of a dog, second prize.

The second game was a guessing game. Members were invited to guess the number of beans in a pint jar. Chances were sold for 10 cents each. More than $3.00 was turned over to the Club from this game and the winner was presented with a cake. Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson won, guessing 507 beans (there were 517), with Mrs. Kate Henley Daugherty a close second.

The business meeting was opened by Mrs. Cann. The Collect was read and a Christmas song, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," with Mrs. C. M. Myers as accompanist was sung.

A letter was read from the Welfare Committee reporting upon the Thanksgiving baskets distributed and the donors.

A letter from the Delaware Colony at Stockley, where Newark has two inmates, was read. Mrs. McVey was instructed to select appropriate Christmas presents for these.

An invitation from the Dover Women's Club to the Newark Club to visit them on January 10 or 17 and bring a program, was read. Decision was left to the Executive Board. Since the Dover meeting does not start until 3:00 p. m., it will be difficult for many Newark members to attend.

The corresponding secretary was instructed to write a letter of thanks to the Gas and Electric Co. of Wilmington for the beautiful little electric Christmas tree which they had presented to the Club through Mrs. Barnes.

Members of the Ways and Means Committee and of the Hospitality Committee who helped with the Club Luncheon were as follows: Mrs. Wm. R. Lynam, Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson, Miss Anna Frazier, Mrs. Alma Cooch, Mrs. Gladys Cooch, Mrs. L. A. Rhoades, Mrs. Claude Hearn, Mrs. Paul Lovett, Mrs. C. E. Ewing, Mrs. Jas. Mackenzie, Mrs. Wm. Hayes, Mrs. Elsie Armstrong, Mrs. H. W. Davis and Mrs. Harvey Steele. The Luncheon was greatly enjoyed and the Club owes these members a vote of thanks for the time spent by them in its preparation.

PERRY HIGH SCORER

Last Thursday the Seniors of the 12B section got off to a flying start by defeating the strong 10B team. Both sides were showing rare form and it was any man's ball game till the whistle blew. At the start things looked very bad for the 10B boys, with the Seniors 6 points ahead. When the half ended, the 10B quintet had closed the lead to 2 points.

The second half started with the score 6-4. Then began a fast and furious ball game. First the seniors scored then the sophomores and when the game ended the score stood, 10-9 in favor of the upperclassmen.

PERSONAL BRILLIANCE

Rest assured you cannot be pleasing at all times and seasons, or to all persons, without trying to be agreeable. You must not be to brilliant. Clever things cannot be said unobtrusively enough. A person so brilliant as to make others feel that his efforts are above theirs will be detested. If you are well satisfied with yourself, and sure of pleasing, you will be apt to succeed. Characters pleased with themselves please others, for they are joyous and natural in mien, and are at liberty from thinking of themselves to play successful attention to others. Still the self-conceited and the bragging are never attractive, self being the topic on which all are uninterested. They who dwell on self in any way are hateful to the heart of a civilized man. Try to appear interested in others. The belle is a lady who has air of enjoying herself with whomever she talks. We like those who enjoy our company. You must not be self, and thus make yourself suspected of acting; but do not imagine that you will please without trying. Those who are careless of pleasing are never popular.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was born in Portland, Maine, in the year of 1807.

As a youth he lived in a home of culture and refinement. He graduated from Bowdoin College and made a record in literature and language. He studied law in his father's office.

He was called to the chair of modern language at Bowdoin College in 1827, at the age of 20. He studied three years abroad in France, Italy, Spain and Germany. Later he took the same position at Harvard.

Longfellow published poems on his return to America. He became the best-known poet of America and is known as "The Children's Poet."

Three of his works are "Evangeline," "Hiawatha" and "The Village Blacksmith."

Biography of James Russell Lowell

On February 22, 1819, James Russell Lowell was born in Cambridge, Massachusetts. His home was Elmwood, a Colonial mansion of pre-revolutionary days, from which one could see Craigie House where Longfellow later made his home. Between these two there was a most beautiful friendship, which continued without interruption for nearly half a century. Lowell went to Harvard, from which he graduated at the age of nineteen. "If writing poetry were a profession I should be a poet," he declared. Lowell did his best to be what was expected of a man of New England birth and education.

He studied law at Harvard Law School, graduated in 1840, and was admitted to the bar. Nevertheless, he spoiled his chances of success in so serious a profession by continuing to write poetry.

Until the age of 35 his "need for writing poetry" condemned him to a poor and uncertain living. His wife, the former Miss Maria White, and three children died during these years of struggle leaving him only one daughter to share his better fortune.

But he had published two volumes of poetry and the first series of "The Biglow Papers," and had written incessantly for 16 years, thus gaining skill in expression. A reserved, scholarly man, whose diction was distinguished by purity and elegance, it is curious that Lowell should have first won wide recognition through "The Biglow Papers"—dialect verses called forth by strong feeling against slavery and the Mexican War. Behind their shrewdness, humor and homely common sense stood keen satire, wit and culture.

In 1851 Lowell went abroad. Upon his return in 1855, he was elected professor of the Spanish and French languages at Harvard, and also "belles lettres" (the art of fine writing).

For nearly twenty years he was engaged in editorial work on "The Atlantic Monthly," of which he was the first editor, and the "North American Review" successively, and in lecturing at Harvard. During that time he produced a second series of "Biglow Papers," "My Study Window," "Fire-side Travel," and "Among My Books."

He became a critic and essayist. Many people admire Lowell's prose more than his poetry. Some of his poems remind one of other poets, but "The Vision of Sir Launfal" is essentially his own and follows meticulously his own definition of poetry.

His production period in literature practically ended. Lowell gave the distinction of a man of letters and leisure to the position of American Minister to Madrid and to London, where his polished manners and learning raised the European estimate of American character. The closing years of his life were chiefly spent in his birth place among his books and friends.

He died on August 12, 1882, crowded with the triple wreath of a poet, an essayist, and a man of distinguished public service. All these honors came to him through persistently following the bent of his genius.

Virginia Cooch.

PILGRIMS

We have been studying about Pilgrims in Miss Apper's room for two months. We made and furnished a real log cabin out of logs. Everything we did was about Pilgrims. We learned a lot and had a lot of fun. Our assembly program was on December 11th so we decided to have a pageant. Our program was as follows:

1. Pilgrims going to church. Dorothy Hanson, Donald Hanson, Edith Schorah, Lawrence Harris, Edith Baker, Clinton Tweed, Christina Iakaris, Paul Morton, Robert Phillips.

2. Pilgrim woman spinning. Constance Mayer.

3. Pilgrim man clearing his axe. Roger Kennard.

4. Pilgrim and Indian exchanging gifts. George Mills, James Walbridge.

5. Indian shooting arrow. Merritt Lynch.

6. Pilgrim man chopping down a tree. Raymond Brannon.

7. Pilgrim woman knitting. Marjorie Dougherty.

8. Pilgrim man and woman. Charlotte Race, Marie Winkle. Arthur Gribble and Leroy Pratt showed us some things that were made in the room. Clarence Wade read the best report written about Pilgrims.

9. Pilgrim man and woman. Wallace Dunmore read the best story written about Pilgrims.

10. Pilgrims always saying prayers. We all sang "Come, Ye Faithful People, Come."

The boys made most of their costumes. We like to give assembly programs.

MY PET

I have a pet dog named Fritz. I keep him in my back yard in a pen. His pet is very clean. When I go to school in the morning, he is always with me. I go in the house and ask him to come. He always comes. I feed him. After he is fed, I let him loose. He jumps through my arms and licks my face. When he is tired, I take him to the pen. On Saturdays, I let him loose. He hunts for rabbits. When he finds one he chases him. When the rabbit runs in a hole he goes in. After he is tired I take him to the pen. I carry him home. Fritz and I have fun together.

Lesson for December 17

PAUL IN ROME

LESSON TEXT—Acts 28:11-17.
GOLDEN THOUGHT—I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Philippians 3:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Journey to Rome.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Journey to Rome.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul's Journey to Rome.
ADULT TOPIC—Paul's Journey to Rome.

Rome was the center of the world's power and influence. Paul expressed a longing to see Rome (Romans 1:11). His object was for the Roman church was concerned was twofold.

First, that he might impart to them some spiritual gift, to the end that they might be established.

Second, that he might be comforted by their fellowship.

His vision no doubt extended beyond the Roman church. His hope was that from that metropolis the gospel might find its way to all parts of the world.

1. Paul's Voyage to Rome (Acts 27).
The ship (vv. 1-6). It was a vessel of Alexandria sailing from Myra to Italy.

2. The company (vv. 1, 2). Two of Paul's friends, Aristarchus and Luke, were permitted to go with him. Besides these three there were two hundred and seventy-three in the ship (v. 27).

3. Overtaken by a storm (vv. 7-20). Paul had advised that they spend the winter in Fair Havens, (v. 8-12) but his advice was not heeded. The gentle south wind deceived them so they were blown from Crete, only to be overtaken by the tempestuous wind called Eurydemon. They did everything possible to save the ship.

4. Paul's serene faith (vv. 21-28).
(a) His rebuke for failure to heed his advice (v. 21). This was more than a rebuke. It was a reminder of the wisdom of his former advice urging them to give to him a respectful hearing.

(b) His calm in the face of good cheer (v. 22).
(c) His promise of their safety (v. 22). He assured them that though the ship would go to pieces, every man's life would be saved.

(d) The source of his information (v. 23, 24). It was revealed unto him by the angel of God.

(e) The reason for Paul's faith (v. 25). The consciousness of having been chosen by God and being engaged in his service enabled him in the midst of the most violent storm to rest in God.

5. The ship's crew all safe on land (Acts 27:27-30). This was exactly as the Lord had promised.

(a) The hospitable reception by the natives (v. 27). They built a fire and made the shipwrecked people as comfortable as possible in the cold and rain.

(b) Paul gathering sticks for the fire (v. 28). In this he was like his Master, ministering rather than being ministered unto.

(c) Paul bitten by a poisonous serpent (v. 31). Among the sticks gathered there was a serpent. When warmed by the fire this serpent darted at Paul and fixed its fangs upon his hand. At first the natives thought he was an escaped murderer and that retributive justice was being meted out to him. When they saw he was not harmed they concluded he was a god.

(d) Paul heals Publius' father (vv. 36, 37). He now reciprocated the kindness of these people. Others came also for healing.

6. Paul's Arrival at Rome (28:11-16).
1. Tarrying with the brethren at Puteoli (v. 11-14).
2. Met by brethren from Rome (v. 15). They came some forty miles to meet him. This greatly encouraged him and moved him to give thanks to God.

3. Living in his own hired house (v. 16). He was treated with great hospitality, being allowed to live apart in his own hired house even though he was constantly under guard.

4. Paul's Ministry in Rome (17-19).
1. His conference with the leading Jews (17:22). He did not wait for the Sabbath day to speak to the Jews, but after a three days' rest he called the chief Jews together in order to have a fair understanding with them.

2. Paul expounding the kingdom of God and persuading concerning Jesus (18:1-4). He pointed out a real kingdom with the historic Jesus as King. To Paul the kingdom meant a definite reign of a definite person, not merely an improved state of society.

3. Sweet Savor of Christ (18:5-10). It does not consist so much in what we do as in our manner of doing it; not so much in our words or deeds as in an indefinable sweetness, tenderness, courtesy, unselfishness, and desire to please others to their edification.

4. Springs of Comfort (18:11-17). They are in God. He is the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort. As a Father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him.

TEETH AND HEALTH

By Samuel M. Fink, D. D. S.

CARIES OR DECAY

Decay of the teeth is called caries. Caries is the most widely distributed disease in the world. The bacteria that produces this tooth decay is nourished by the food and mucus that is left to decompose about the teeth.

The destruction of teeth is due to the process which we all know as decay. The decay of the teeth always starts on the outside or exposed part of the tooth, instead of from the inside of the tooth and progressing towards the outside. Therefore, it is reasonable to suppose that there must be some factor in the mouth which causes this destruction.

These bacteria grow rapidly. Their product is known as lactic acid. The time that gives the tooth its hardness is dissolved away by this acid so that a cavity is formed.

The first thing we see in the decay of the hard covering of the tooth is a slight roughness at some spot on the enamel, which is followed by an indentation at this point. This little depression continues until there is a distinct hole in the surface of the enamel. Well, who do you think has caused this little hole in the surface of the enamel? It didn't come by itself—there must have been something that could eat through this enamel, with a sharp knife you would simply dull the edge of the knife. The reason for the presence of the hole in the enamel is acid! Even weak acids which do not burn or injure the skin or membrane of the mouth are able to cause decay of the teeth.

It is not exactly correct that "a clean tooth never decays," but it is so nearly true that those who do not keep their teeth clean invite caries and so do themselves a great injury. Keep your teeth clean and be on the safe side.

Q—Please describe Hutchinson's Teeth?

A—These are peg-shaped, with semilunar notches at the biting edges and are supposed to be characteristic of syphilis.

P. S.—All dental questions will be answered in this column by addressing Dr. Samuel M. Fink, Dentist, 162 West Main Street, Elkton, Maryland.

Many Public Works Highway Projects Reported Completed

Completion of 59 public works highway projects up to November 25, at a cost of $1,301,000, is announced today by the Bureau of Public Roads, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in a tabulation of highway construction.

This work was completed under the Public Works Administration highway fund allotment provided for in the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Awards on 3,266 projects at a cost amounting to $165,309,000 have been made, out of a total of 4,239 projects advertised for contract amounting to an estimated expenditure of $213,551,000. On November 25, the work advertised for contract or started by labor employed by the highway authorities represented 50.1 per cent of the $400,000,000 provided for highways by the Public Works Administration under Section 204 of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Highway work under construction by the States under Section 204 was employing directly on highway work a total of 134,805 men on November 25, the Bureau of Public Roads reports. This force of men was divided between contract and day labor work as follows: 100,512 men on 1,890 contract projects and 34,293 men on 533 projects on which the labor is directly employed by the highway authorities.

The estimated total cost of the work under construction on November 25 was $129,060,000, of which $116,525,000 was by contract and $12,535,000 was by day labor employed directly by the highway authorities.

Awards have been made on 77 per cent of the projects approved by the district engineers of the Bureau of Public Roads, and construction is actually under way on 57 per cent of the approved projects.

Business Men
Tell How NRA
Permits Economies

Washington—Stories of the decline of American industry and present prospects of gradual restoration under NRA are related daily at hearings on codes of fair competition submitted to the National Recovery Administration. Members of trades tell how they are meeting the expense of increased pay rolls by effecting economies in operation which they say were impossible before they were permitted by law to cooperate with competitors.

For example, in discussing a code proposed by manufacturers of window glass the secretary of the trade association said that there were 43 window-glass factories in this country in 1925. By the end of 1930 the number had been reduced to 20, and at present there are 17. Under present conditions it has been possible to increase productive capacity through improvements in processes, expansion in some units, and elimination of wastes in operations and sales, thus reducing overhead sufficiently to absorb an approximate 33 per cent increase in wages inaugurated August 15 under the President's Reemployment Agreement. The principal topic under discussion was creation of a tribunal responsible for fixing and maintaining standard grades of glass.

THE WELFARE OF HANDICAPPED CHILDREN IN AN ECONOMIC CRISIS

Perhaps during no condition is it more important to attempt to salvage handicapped children and convert them from economic and moral liabilities into social assets than during periods of economic depression. During such periods they are subjected not only to the same processes of physical and mental derangement that are the unfortunate fate of all children, but policies of school retrenchment may bear on them more heavily than on the normal children, while augmented economic and vocational discrimination will make it more difficult for them to adjust to difficult employment conditions. Perhaps during no recent period is it more important to plead for the rights of the handicapped child than right now, for, although they possess the same constitutional rights to happiness, an education, and economic security, it is the handicapped child, particularly who is liable to become the "Forgotten Man." It is the State itself that will have to pay the penalty for the educational neglect of underprivileged children. Untrained or inefficiently educated, handicapped children are the taproot of many of society's social and economic ills.

Neither the first nor the second White House Conference on Child Welfare, those sponsored by Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, had any committees dealing specifically with the welfare of all kinds of handicapped children. So keen had public appreciation of the vital importance of the proper care and education of defective and handicapped children for the economic and social welfare of the Nation grown, however, since the Wilson Child Conservation Conference on Child Health and Protection that the Hoover White House Conference set aside a whole section, Section IV, for the study of the social, educational, medical and psychological problems affecting handicapped children. This section had a combined membership of several hundred members and advisers from all parts of the country who made exhaustive studies of the various phases of the problem of handicapped children. Committees in other sections of the Conference also investigated related aspects of the problem of the care and protection of handicapped children. The publications of the Hoover White House Conference are now available and contain a veritable thesaurus of information on all kinds of handicapped children.

The Delaware White House Conference on Child Health and Protection, organized in 1932 in 54 different committees, also contained a section on handicapped children, and a number of committees filed important reports with the Conference on the problems of underprivileged children. Owing to financial limitations the reports and recommendations of the Delaware White House Conference have not yet been published in book form. Only brief press reports have thus far appeared in print. It is to be hoped that all the committee reports will soon be made available in permanent book form so that Delaware citizens may be able to familiarize themselves with the complete body of the significant findings and recommendations of its first State-wide conference on child health and protection.

It is intended in this article to summarize very briefly a few of the findings and recommendations of the Committee on Special Classes. This committee was charged with the obligation of ascertaining what the public schools were doing for the proper education of children subject to defects and handicaps and what the publicly supported school system of the State should aim to do in order that Delaware might approximate the standards set up by the Hoover White House Conference.

The committee's investigations showed that the public schools of the State were supporting only nine special classes for mentally retarded children in 1932 (now 13 classes). No other types of handicapped children were given any special educational consideration. A considerable number of malnourished children were, however, provided with free lunches. The committee estimated that Delaware was providing special educational opportunities for only about 4 per cent of the handicapped children who should be in special classes or receive special corrective or remedial educational treatment. The committee thus found a wide contrast between Delaware's relative position in the education of normal children and of handicapped children. According to the Ayre's Indexes, the Delaware school system rates among the first ten states of the Union in the education of normal children, in special provisions for handicapped children Delaware's rating, however, is much lower, possibly about thirty-fifth in rank.

The committee also found evidence that the Delaware schools were desirous of developing a program of special education for handicapped children, the Board of Public Education of Wilmington and the State Board of Education having established a Division of Special Education and Mental Hygiene to organize and develop the program of special education and mental hygiene in the schools.

Among the more significant recommendations of the committee may be mentioned the following:

(1) The primary obligation for the education of all kinds of handicapped children should devolve upon the public schools.

(2) A sufficient number of special classes should be established to meet the needs of all types of handicapped children, with adequate equipment, properly trained teachers, centralization of classes and transportation of pupils, and State support and direction of the work.

(3) Adequate facilities for the proper psychological and educational examination of the mentally retarded and maladjusted children and youths should be made available. At least two thousand mentally retarded children in the public schools should be examined every year.

(4) Among required courses for all teachers, especially teachers in the elementary schools, should be included the following: Mental hygiene, abnormal and clinical psychology; the education of handicapped children; remedial instruction; and diversified industrial arts. This recommendation was made because practically all handicapped children are first taught in the regular grades, and the large preponderance of them continue in the regular grades as long as they are in school.

(5) Establish definite eligibility requirements for appointment as special-class teachers, with a proper salary differential.

(6) Provide after care and placement service for handicapped children on leaving school, in cooperation with private agencies.

a part in the every day work of the world," says Miss Johnson. Boys and girls who have the advantage of studying music are better fitted for their future life. It may definitely contribute to their success, by giving them vision and understanding, and daily inspiration.

Continuing she said, "One cannot have anything worth while, without paying for it. The price of musical ability is regular and conscientious practice, with patience, and untiring determination to win out."

"No doubt the criticism of us as a people, that we lack the interest of having good music in the American home, is somewhat true, at least in these recent years. Not so long ago music of some variety was always anticipated as a part of the daily program. In families where there were several children, trained to play different instruments, a miniature orchestra could be heard. Of course mother and dad would always join in a family sing.

"If you demonstrate music freely and lavishly in your home," Miss Johnson pointed out, "it will soon spread in your community, your city, your State, and your nation."

"The private music teacher has had no small part in building a musical foundation for our boys and girls. To them credit is due, for making possible various school and group activities. The members of the Delaware State Music Teachers' Association, Inc., have for their objective the promotion of the best interests of music in the city and State and these teachers are adequately prepared to teach the various branches of musical education."

Miss Nell Wilson and Miss Helen Gregg are both members of the Society.

THE USE OF ALL NIGHT LIGHTS

By Paul G. Riley
Formerly Professor Poultry Extension
Purdue University

The use of all night lights is becoming much more popular both with the farmer poultryman and the commercial poultryman. It costs less to use all night lights than it does morning lights, because only a ten to fifteen-watt bulb is used instead of the twenty-five to forty, commonly used for morning lights. One of these ten to fifteen-watt bulbs to each twenty feet of length of the poultry house seems to be sufficient.

All night lights have another advantage in that ordinary barn lanterns can be used just as effectively as electric lights, and that makes it possible for any one to use them. All night lights seem to make it possible for the poultryman to get eggs in quantities when he wants them. It has proven highly profitable on young or older hens to turn the lights on them beginning any time from the middle of August to the 15th of September and when this is done a 25 to 50 per cent production can be maintained with the use of lights, regardless of how well or how poorly they have laid prior to that time, until around Thanksgiving to Christmas time.

It seems to have had a beneficial influence also in the spring on birds used for breeding. As far as pullets are concerned, it brings them into production more rapidly than is possible without lights and will maintain greater body weight and more continuous production, during the period when egg prices are high.

All night lights is not a matter of forcing, because the poultryman who is using them finds that not more than 5 per cent of the flock is down any one time of the night, more extra water is consumed than feed. It simply makes it possible for the hen to get a drink at any time it is wanted.
