GLAZED KID ON THE FEET

CAMPAIGN STARTED WITH BANQUET MONDAY EVENING

ARRAY OF SPEAKERS ADDRESS BUSINESS MEN

WHAT GLAZED KID MEANS TO WILMINGTON

17 Companies Manufacture Glazed Kid.
7,000 Persons Normally Employed.
20,000 Persons Dependent on Leather Industry
$ 5,000,000 Normal Annual Payroll.
$10,000,000 Real Estate, Factories, Equipment.
$70,000,000 Value of Glazed Kid Produced in 1919.
80% of Value of Total Manufactured Products in the State of Delaware.

In normal times the Glazed Kid Industry ranks first in importance in the State of Delaware and in the City of Wilmington.

Great quantities of various materials are purchased in the Wilmington District, namely oils, chemicals, machinery, coal, hardware, gas, electricity, water, etc.

65% of the total output of Glazed Kid in the United States was formerly exported to Europe. This market has been closed since the War. It is therefore necessary to create a market in the United States to absorb this 65%.

At one of the greatest banquets of business men ever held in Wilmington, the Glazed Kid Campaign was started Monday evening at Hotel du Pont. Governor Miller, acting as toastmaster, read the following telegram:

The President's message read as follows:

"I have been interested in your letter saying that Wilmington is going to make a special effort toward restoring normalcy in the matter of its great industry, the manufacture of glazed kid. I hope your campaign looking to extended markets and full production may be successful, and that it may be an inspiration to other cities and industries to undertake similar useful efforts."

Message from Senator du Pont
Senator du Pont's telegram was as follows:

"I sincerely hope you have a good and successful meeting. Efforts of this kind will tend to bring back normal conditions, and your efforts should be appreciated by every good citizen of Delaware. We all should appreciate the interest shown by Secretary Wallace in coming. Please add my thanks to those of other Delawareans for the interest he has shown by being with you tonight."

The meeting opened with the invocation by Rev. Robert Watt. Ex-Governor Miller presided. Following general remarks, Mayor Harvey delivered the address of welcome. David Snellenburg gave a brief outline of the campaign; Senator Ball spoke on "Delaware and the Nation," George W. Norris confined his remarks chiefly to the Federal Reserve System; Congressman Layton spoke of the new tariff and the glazed kid industry; Laird H. Simons told of the importance of the glazed kid industry to the United States; Congressman Kreider's subject was "Business Outlook of the Shoe Trade," and Otho Nowland spoke on the need of furnishing employment as a means of restoring prosperity.

Music was furnished by the Big Six Orchestra, Harry Boyd of Lancaster sang "The End of a Perfect Day," and William P. White, Guy Ford and Harry Boyd led the singing of popular anthems.

Newark Boy Tours

Pacific Coast

J. Herman Little, well known here, left Toledo, Ohio, last June with a friend to make a motor trip of the West. They toured the coast from Oregon to Southern California. They have now accepted positions in San Francisco where they expect to stay for a time. Little writes home that he has had a wonderful trip and that the West is a section well worth seeing by any conservative Delawarean.

North East Holds Carnival

North East had a fire a few weeks ago that threatened to wipe the town off the map. Elkton Fire Company saved it.

As usual after the horse is stolen, the door is locked, so after the fire, a Company is organized. Going on this week is a Carnival in North East town that is causing visiting firemen to take notice. A Newark visitor said today that the decorations, grounds and management are exceptional. The proceeds are for fire equipment and judging from booths and the wonderful supper served the affair will be a success.

Big Games at Elkton

The biggest game of the season will be staged on the new baseball park grounds at Elkton, Saturday, September 24th, when the deciding game of a series being played between the Elkton Giants and the Elkton Cecil County League Club will take place. These two clubs have met five times within the past month. Each team has won two games and the other game went 10 innings to a 3 to 3 tie. The last game played was played in 1 hour and 8 minutes and the score was 1 to 0 in favor of the Cecil County League Club. Both teams will be added with stars for the crucial game. It is understood that Whitworth and Santop of the Hilldale Giants will work for the Elkton Giants, while Harley, a Phillie hurler, and "Gabby" Street, formerly with the Washington Americans, will work for the League team boys. Don't forget the date—Saturday, September 24th. Game called at 3.30 p. m. "Jack" McGowan will umpire.

Gov. Denney Accepts Honorary Chairmanship for Delaware in Forming "Budget Guard" to Support General Dawes

Nation-wide Effort to Back Program for Governmental Economy and Efficiency

Governor William D. Denney has accepted the invitation of the National Budget Committee to become honorary chairman for Delaware in that organization's nation-wide effort to gain popular support of the efforts of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, Director of the Budget, to effect a reduction of the burden of Federal taxation.

Announcement of the acceptance of the Governor was made yesterday by John T. Pratt, Chairman of the National Budget Committee, whose headquarters are at 7 West 8th Street, New York City. Governor Denney will join with the executives of other states in fostering the spirit of popular approval of the policy of federal retrenchment.

Active heads of local committees are being selected daily from among the most prominent business and professional men in their respective communities, and efforts are under way to secure the co-operation of leading citizens in a thousand cities by the formation of a nation-wide "Budget Guard" whose members will simply pledge their support to the establishment of a business-like administration of governmental appropriations and expenditures.

Every member of the National Budget Committee, which was instrumental in initiating and passing the National Budget Bill, is asked to urge upon his fellow citizens the necessity for solidly supporting the present program of governmental efficiency and economy by the elimination of every possible item of unnecessary expenditure. Every taxpayer who favors a reduction of the present unbearable tax burden is invited to join with his fellow townsmen in helping to crystallize public opinion and defeat unnecessary additions to federal expense.

Henry P. Scott of Wilmington is active state chairman for Delaware. Mayor LeRoy Harvey of Wilmington is honorary chairman.

HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS

COACH McDONALD WHIPPING TEAM INTO SHAPE

Although working under a handicap owing to injuries and the fact of a number of prospective varsity men quitting after a few days of practice, Coach McDonald of the Newark High School football squad is making good headway in his work of shaping up a team.

Coach McDonald has a hard proposition ahead of him this year as Newark meets Wilmington High in the opening game of the season in Wilmington on Saturday, October 1. To get a team in shape for this test is going to mean much hard work but the boys out for the team seem to realize this fact and have been practicing faithfully.

There were a number of disappointments right at the beginning when the first practice was called. To begin with some of the best men of last year's team graduated in June and did not return. Of course that was known, but the fact that Stafford and Walton, two of the 1920 varsity linemen would not return was not known until school opened. The next hard luck that hit the squad was C. Cornog quitting school after coming out for practice a few days. He also had played on the varsity last year. This took away with the graduates most of the 1920 varsity but hard luck still followed the squad.

The next hard luck that struck the squad was injuries to Herbert Henning who was being drilled for quarterback back and to Buckingham, who broke his collar bone. Paradee and Wells, two youngsters who came to Newark from other high schools came out early and looked to be likely material but on top of all the other hard luck they suddenly quit the squad and decided not to make a try for the game.

Coach McDonald deserves much credit under the circumstances for the manner in which he has stayed on the job of trying to develop a team and the indications now are that he will turn out a creditable combination notwithstanding all the handicaps.

The fact of some players quitting has brought out other candidates and at the present time Coach McDonald has the following candidates who are practicing faithfully every afternoon: Captain Schwartz, Hubert, Mayer, C. Hopkins, Manns, Hayes, J. Cornog, Cook, Hahn, Strahorn, Wilson, Cunningham, Poole, M. Hopkins, G. Townsend, H. Townsend, Crompton, Rowan, Brown, Richards, Stephen.

Honor Dr. Rowan

By kind thoughts of friends, a picture of Dr. Rowan, late pastor of the Presbyterian Church, will be unveiled at the Sunday School on Sunday morning. There will be a simple ceremony with Bayard Perry, Jr., and Orville Richardson unveiling the picture which will hang in the Sunday School room of the Church.

Knights of Golden Eagle Meet

Ivy Castle, No. 23, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will hold a very important meeting next Saturday evening. Members of the degree team are requested to be present.

Corn Novelty

Among the harvest novelties comes a report of a stock of corn grown by G. W. Russell of the Red Men's Home which has 4 full ears and 1 nubbin. This is exceptional even in days of plenty.

Also Mr. Russell displays a sunflower 45 inches in circumference grown on a stock 12 feet tall.

Bishop Cook to Address Masons

The Right Reverend Philip Cook, Bishop of Delaware, will address the Masons at their local Lodge rooms on Monday evening, September 26, at 8 o'clock. This is the occasion of a special meeting and cards have been issued urging members to attend.

New Century Club Meetings Resumed

The New Century Club will hold its first Fall meeting on Tuesday afternoon, October 4th, at 2.30, at the Club House. A large attendance is expected for the opening meeting. The program for the year will be announced later.

STUDENTS ENROLL AT UNIVERSITY

ENGINEERING AND ARTS AND SCIENCE DEPARTMENTS SHOW INCREASE

Engineering continues to be the most popular course at the University of Delaware judging from the early registration. This conclusion is determined from an analysis of the 85 Freshmen who were favorably passed on by the faculty at a special meeting held on Monday.

The faculty at its meeting on Monday admitted 85 Freshmen for the Freshman class this year. Of this number 38 have registered in the various engineering courses as follows: Civil engineering, 12; electrical, 10; mechanical, 6; chemical, 5, and 5 not specified, making a total of 38.

The Arts and Science course, however, is also popular as 35 of those admitted by the faculty on Monday have registered for that course. There is some disappointment under all the circumstances from the fact that only five of the 85 students who were officially admitted at that time had specified agriculture. Five other new students failed to specify what course they would take up.

This number, 85, however does not mean that the Freshman class will be limited to only 85 as final examinations for entrance were held yesterday and today and the class at the end of the week may be more than 100.

In addition to the 85 admitted, applications had been received early this week from about 35 others whose credentials had not been passed on, not including those who took the examinations yesterday or today. This year the entrance requirements are 15 units instead of 14 as specified last year, but as the standard high schools of the state have also raised their standards to 15 units this should not make a great deal of difference.

The classification test in English and French must be taken by all students entering the University.

Freshmen and Sophomores will register on Thursday, and Juniors and Seniors on Friday.

High School Student Ill

Eugene Meyers, a second year High School student, is ill at his home on Elkton Road, with typhoid fever.

ASK MONEY FOR COUNTY SCHOOLS

Dr. Holloway Hopes Levy Court Will Collect Money Outstanding

Dr. H. V. Holloway, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, addressed the Levy Court of this county yesterday relative to the outstanding school taxes now unpaid. He explained that he had addressed the Levy Courts of Kent and Sussex counties on the same subject. The courts he said had power to collect these moneys.

The State Board, Dr. Holloway, said had no money at this time and it was necessary to collect the outstanding taxes in order to pay bills.

Commissioner Ball, who is a school attention of the court to the school could purchase needed desks. Dr. Holloway replied that $50 a teacher was the amount allowed for replacements and repairs, and that if the county collected the taxes the Board would have sufficient funds to carry on its work. The outstanding taxes in New Castle county, he said, amount to $20,000, and in Kent county to $9,000. The outstanding bills of the board, the doctor said, amounted to about $18,000.

Commissioner Buckson called the attention of the court to the school house at St. Georges which has one room without windows. The only light entering comes in over a transom. In this school Mr. Buckson said three children are using one desk.

Dr. Holloway later held a conference with the Commissioners and it was decided to hold a conference with the tax collectors of the county next Tuesday. The question of collecting the outstanding taxes will be discussed at that time.

SPIRIT OF OLD ST. JAMES STILL LIVES

MEMBERS PLAN NEW PARISH HOUSE

THE RECTOR WRITES INTERESTINGLY OF ITS HISTORY

"Old St. James" is a name spoken with reverence in this section of Delaware. Memories, history and tradition cluster around the old walls. The dead of yesterday are buried there. It has been an institution of power and force for good. Its very architecture reflects the sentiments surrounding it. But there is a New St. James—the spirit of youth. That the institution may do in this day what yesterday inspired—a new Parish House is to be erected. Truly worthy of their fathers, those living today are meeting the needs. The plan is this—A Parish House to cost $15,000, modern to the very day of completion. It is to be the recreation center, arranged and equipped for entertainment and social gatherings of the community.

Ten teams have been selected to Parish is mentioned by him in a letter to the Secretary of the S. P. G. in London, dated July 19, 1708. It is a glowing tribute to the religious character of the people. He writes, "There are not a few, blessed be God, that adorn their profession by a suitable, that do 'worthily in Ephraim,' zealous sons of the Church, and constant frequenters of the Holy Communion; to which to persuade men is the hardest task of the sacred ministry in these parts. The country people that live back from the town of New Castle make up a considerable part of this Church, who though they are a great way off from the town, some above twelve miles, yet they seldom miss to come to Church when there is no sermon in the country. They are generally zealous men and of substantial piety."

ST. JAMES CHURCH

raise this amount. Every scheme possible is being used to collect or earn money for the purpose. Plans of the building are complete and these Sons and Daughters of Old St. James have the spirit of success.

The following has been contributed this week for our readers.

The first English Priest to visit White Clay Creek Hundred was the Rev. John Yeo, who was in New Castle for a short time in 1677, and in all probability did some pastoral work in the section of Stanton. The Reverend George Ross came from England to the New Castle parish in 1705 and to him was given not only the care of Emmanuel Church, New Castle, but the work of ministering to the people of the White Clay district. The first reference to St. James

After a period of eight years it became possible, through the efforts of a generous Churchman, Mr. James Robinson to erect a new Church building for the people of White Clay Creek, and St. James Church came into existence. Authentic evidence in the form of a letter is now in the archives of the S. P. G., London, describing in detail the original St. James. The letter was written by the Rev. Ross and the New Castle Wardens on the 20th of September, 1717, as follows: "This Church, the frame whereof was raised the 4th of Dec., 1716, lies at ten or eleven miles distant from New Castle; and serves at present for a Chapel of Ease to Emmanuel Church there. . . . It was opened on the 4th of July 1717, and is

Motor from Texas to Newark

From Texas to Delaware by motor is a real trip—and Major and Mrs. L. B. Jacobs and daughters, Katherine and Loxley, arrived Saturday morning from San Antonio to visit relatives and friends in Newark.

The party left two weeks ago last Sunday and covered a distance of 2100 miles. They camped out at night and with the exception of four meals, did their own preparation of meals. As they approached home, eagerness to reach here prompted travelling all day Friday and all night Friday night, arriving here about 7 o'clock Saturday morning. This last stretch was from 40 miles west of Wheeling, West Virginia.

The trip was certainly a success from a cross country endurance standpoint. Only two blow outs in the whole trip.

They will remain here a month and expect to motor back.

It is reported that Major Jacobs will be shortly transferred to foreign service. Military friends here will be

NATIONAL EVENTS

Observations and Comments written for The Post

Washington Prepares to Greet and Entertain International Visitors at the Arms Conference

The city of Washington is to be swept and garnished for the reception of the distinguished foreign guests and the many American citizens who will throng the capital during the Conference on Limitation of Armaments.

Citizens of the District of Columbia realize that the impression made upon the foreign visitors by their reception in America and particularly at Washington will have important bearing on their attitude toward disarmament and other conference matters. Stimulated by this responsibility, a committee of competent citizens has undertaken leadership in the city's preparations. $25,000 is to be raised by the committee for looking after the comfort, safety, and entertainment of the visitors. The various city departments are expected to strain every resource for making the capital city live up to America at her best.

The outstanding organization in displaying the hospitality of this country will be the American Legion. The representatives of the American Legion visiting in France this summer have been so thrillingly received everywhere in France and Belgium, that a corresponding enthusiasm has spread to those who will welcome the representatives of the Allies here on November 11. With the combined efforts of the Federal Government, the City of Washington, the American Legion, and other agencies, the welcome of the arms delegates ought to satisfy the hardest hearts.

Among the preliminary events will be the arrival of Marshal Foch on October 29th. A rousing reception to the great French soldier is assured, and enthusiasm grows daily with the details of preparation.

Democratic Criticism of the Arms Conference Subsides Quickly

Attempts to discredit the Conference on Limitation of Armaments both in its motives and American personnel have been made by Democratic dailies and weeklies since the plan was first proposed by President Harding to combine the armament question with a discussion of Far East problems. Confusion among the invited nations over the scope and possible outcome of the Conference has also been sought, all directed to the one end of putting this Conference toward world peace in the light of a doomed-to-be-unsuccessful political move of the Republican party.

The country has not responded to this attitude, and when Democratic political leaders issued from their national headquarters a vicious attack embodying all the criticisms that could be collected or fabricated, popular disgust and condemnation of the Democratic policy was emphatically heard. So determined are the mass of people in this country to give every support to the plan for settling the questions which menace peace and for an agreement to lessen the armies and navies of the world to the greatest degree reasonable and possible, that they will endure no partisan attempts at confusing the issue.

The Republican administration claims no supreme wisdom, or rights, or tribute, in connection with the conference of Allies. The time was ripe for this country to make a move in the direction of a world agreement on the subject proposed. The move was made, dictated by the common sense and sincerity of purpose of the President, as the President of all the people. Success depends upon the co-operation of all the people. It is easy to forget that the building of constructive peace is as laudable a task and an even more difficult one than winning a war. The spirit of loyalty, co-operation and service is just as much needed in attacking the problems of world peace today, as it was needed to win the war before November 11, 1918.

Benefits of Pacific Questions Being Included in Arms Conference Apparent Now

The call for discussion of questions related to the Far East and the Pacific by the nations which will be represented at Washington in the arms parley aroused considerable alarm in Japan. A study of her situation and the possibilities of success if she put before these countries a selfish and imperialistic program for the settlement of such disputed questions as her seizing the Pacific cables touching

Yap, her continued occupation of the Chinese Shantung, and her plans for aggressive spoliation and colonization in other countries, brought realization to Japan that more reasonable and generous concessions were necessary. She has apparently decided further that she will fare better in the individual settlements, and have a better standing as a nation among the Allies if the more pressing and important of her Pacific and Eastern controversies are settled before November 11.

Dependable reports already indicate that the settlement of even such a vexing problem as Oriental immigration is expected before the Conference meets. Yap and Shantung seem even further advanced toward settlement.

Uncle Sam Furnishes Vocational Training to Women as Well as Men Suffering Disability from the World War.

304 Women Benefiting from Wide Range of Courses

In providing useful and enjoyable vacations for the nurses and hospital and reconstruction aids who suffered handicaps through war service, the Federal Board of Vocational Education has placed no narrow limitation upon the choice to be made by the women. Among the long list of subjects offered are the following: accounting, acting, advertising, anesthetizing, art, bacteriology, banking, bookkeeping, business management, china painting, chiropractic, commercial art, costume designing, demonstrating, court interpreting, decorative modeling, dentistry, designing, decorative art, domestic science, English and French, farm managing, horticulture, interior decorating, journalism, laboratory work, landscape gardening, medicine and many other vocations.

One army nurse, who is 52 years old and who saw sixteen months' service in a front line hospital in France was left totally deaf after an attack of influenza. The Federal Board gave her a course in poultry and bee culture in the University of California Farm School. She has two homesteads situated about thirty miles from a railroad. Although this land did not look promising, owing to lack of water and remoteness from other ranches, she made up her mind to spend the rest of her life in this locality, where she has already built a three-room cabin which she has arranged comfortably, and she owns a Ford automobile with which she transports all the water used in connection with her ranch. It is necessary to bring the water ten miles.

"She has purchased a supply of a certain kind of barley seed which is adapted to dry climate purposes," says a bulletin of the board, "and she is planting a twenty-acre piece to grain which she had previously put under fence. She has just purchased several colonies of bees and eventually expects to raise poultry and turkeys.

"Another nurse whose overseas service rendered her unable to carry on in general practice was given training as an anesthetist in Johns Hopkins University. She is now employed in a large Pennsylvania hospital as an expert anesthetist. The hardships of war nursing unfitted another nurse for long hours and strenuous nursing. The board has trained her as a stenographer-nurse for an established physician. In this work she is enabled to keep in touch with the things she has been interested in for years and at the same time to render valuable service in the business department."

Appearances Deceitful

No robber out for large spoils would have cast a moment's interested glance at the battered fibre suitcase carried by Carey Morgan on a recent visit to Philadelphia. Nevertheless, Mr. Morgan was met by special guards, and the contents of the suitcase, escorted by seven men, was deposited in the vaults of the Girard Trust Co.

Mr. Morgan is the vice president of the Colorado Radium Company which sold a grain of radium, worth $79,454, to the city of Philadelphia. He was delivering the goods in person, the 11 sealed vials of glass, lead and steel containing the radium, being packed in the suit case.

NEW VALUE IN THE TOMATO INDUSTRY

Waste from Canneries Can be Manufactured into Oil and Meal

Not so long ago it was discovered that the pumpkin seed was valuable as food, and that its nutty flavor when the seed was properly treated and combined with sweets, closely resembled that of the almond. So the pumpkin seed, long discarded in the preparation of pumpkin pies, now appears dressed up as a rich ingredient in choice confectionery. Apparently the discarded "waste" of the tomato is now to have its day. The Scientific American reports investigations by the Bureau of Plant Industry in the U. S. Department of Agriculture which show that the tomato seed is rich in oil, having qualities and uses similar to olive oil, and that the remainder of the seed after the oil is extracted is a valuable food.

Thousands of tons of tomato waste are produced annually by the canners handling tomato products, in Delaware and adjoining states. This is estimated to be worth, in net profit, if it could be assembled for manufacture, an amount of money which would justify the development of the new industry.

"The residue after extracting the oil from the seed is classified as tomato-seed meal, ranking in protein content with cotton-seed meal, sunflower seedcake, sesame-oil cake, rape seedcake and linseed meal. With respect to moisture and ash content, the product obtains a rank alongside other feedstuffs. Italy has likewise established the worth of the meal as a feed for cattle, a factory being in operation near Naples for the industrial manufacture of tomato seedcake. Feeding trials are convincing that tomato seedcake is of equal food value to linseed cake in the maintenance of milk cows. Similar investigations of comparing tomato seedcake with flaxseed cake gave the edge to the former as being richer in protein and fat.

"Complete utilization of the vast accumulation of tomato seeds in the United States in producing oil would also yield a by-product of 1200 tons of meal. Also supplementary to this volume of meal there would be available 1800 tons of tomato skins. Duplicate the example of Italy—incorporating the dried skins with the meal—and you have enhanced the total volume to approximately 3000 tons.

"Fortunately, the accumulation of tomato waste is concentrated in Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Ohio in the Middle West, and New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York, Delaware, and Maryland in the East—a condition that logically invites the location of a reducing plant in each of the two principal sections. This would facilitate the assembling of the crude material at a minimum expense, while a co-operative plan of manufacture would doubtless give a stable foundation to the industry."

Travel by Airplane Lulled Distinguished Visitor to Sleep

The best recommendation for the peace and comfort of air travel that we have heard is in the report of the trip made from Philadelphia to New York last week by Governor Henry J. Allen, of Kansas. The Western visitor was entertained at a luncheon by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, and had such a good time that he missed his train to New York. His hosts were concerned that he should miss an important engagement on their account and proposed to take him to New York in the Fokker passenger airplane. Governor Allen was delighted, and other passengers in the airplane said that he went to sleep as the plane was passing over Princeton and did not waken until the landing at Garden City, New York. Governor Allen had, of course, ridden in an airplane before, and he is used to western cyclones, perhaps, and a little trip by air wouldn't cause any excitement in the day's routine for him, but to step into an airplane at Philadelphia and sleep straight through the hour's trip to New York is a record of western up-to-dateness that most of us don't expect to rival for some time.

Unemployment Decreasing and Industry Optimistic Says Labor Department

According to the report of the Employment Service of the Department of Labor just issued unemployment is decreasing and both capital and labor are taking a more optimistic view of the future than they have for many months. The report shows that out of 62 cities making a report, 38 show a decrease in the number of idle workmen. These 38 are widely scattered, including such cities as New York, Youngstown, Grand Rapids, Peoria, Seattle, Denver, Cleveland, Chicago, New Haven, Portland, Minneapolis, Buffalo, Chattanooga, Birmingham, St. Paul and St. Louis.

Speaking of the future the report says:

"A happy augury is the very general increase in building operations, a survey showing that present activities in this line are greater than at any time since the nation entered the war.

"Other encouraging features in the situation, as emphasized by the survey are the general bountiful harvests; indications of improvement in iron and steel; marked re-employment in railroad occupations; approaching depletion of manufactured stocks and the continued strength of textiles, particularly cotton.

"A marked increase in industrial optimism is noted, business men generally inclining to the belief that the serious part of the depression is over and that the future will witness improvement of a helpful and lasting character, even though it be somewhat slow in developing."

The Cost of a Boy

A man in Chicago announces that it costs $5,500 to raise a boy to the age of twelve years. How he arrives at his figures we are not told, but the average father is not likely to protest that this estimate is too low.

Using these figures, a class of ten boys in Sunday school represents an investment of $55,000.

A scout troop of thirty stands for an outlay of $165,000.

A schoolroom of boys represents an investment of close to a quarter of a million.

Are the community and the church reaping to the best of their ability on the investment in boyhood? The church utilizes that investment one or two hours per week. The scout troop works it a trifle more than this; the school considerably more, and yet not to the perfection of 100 per cent.

And what of the boy on the street, the boy at work when he ought to be in school or the urchin full of craftiness and guile?

Every boy represents an investment by society. When our criminal records reveal the high peak of crime as coming at the age of seventeen we have some idea of the enormous waste of that costly investment made before and up to the age of twelve.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Don't Worry—Think

A certain great leader of industry said to us the other day: "The chief trouble with the American business man is that he is worrying his dollars away. Now, worrying is a business vice just as thinking is a business virtue; and there is a big distinction. The average business man is doing a lot of destructive worrying about his past losses and too little constructive thinking about his future profits and how to secure them."

Think it over: there is a lot in it. Don't squander mental time and nervous morale on the unprofitable past; ponder on bygone mistakes only long enough to avoid them in the future.

Don't worry—think.—Collier's.

The Arms Conference

For the benefit of those who wish to speak of it correctly, "The Conference for the Limitation of Armaments" is to be the official designation of the international gathering in Washington in November. This title correctly describes the purpose of the gathering. It has been most frequently referred to as the "Disarmament Conference," but President Harding's preliminary invitation and his official call for the meeting, specifically stated it was for the purpose of discussing the limitation of armaments rather than their abolition.

It is felt that to persist in calling it "Disarmament Conference" might raise vain hopes regarding its possible outcome. It would be equally misleading to call it an "Armament Conference." In some quarters it has been suggested that it be called the "Pacific Conference" but that is rejected because while Pacific and Far Eastern problems will be considered, so will other questions affecting armaments. It is just as well that the designation of the gathering be clear from the start. The administration does not desire to play with catch words such as "he kept us out of war" that would delude the public and raise false hopes. Calling the gathering by its proper name will not diminish in the least the efforts of the Administration and America's official delegation at the conference to make the greatest possible cut in armaments.

Newark Bus Traffic

A word of commendation is due the Stiltz Brothers for the manner in which they are conducting the "Bus Line" to Wilmington. The machines they operate are the best that enter the city. During the winter months they expect to have them heated and make possible every available comfort.

The line has already been a success, due not alone to the demand but also to the courtesy and service given. With continued emphasis on this policy, these boys are going to win. And we are glad. They came here as boys and have built up a traffic service that is reflecting credit on the town. Back in the old Livery days 'Al Stiltz was "horse proud" as Sussex county says, and his teams were show turn-outs of the town. He loved horses and showed it in his care and dress. Now the boys have fine turn-outs in auto service—bus, auto or truck—and Newark appreciates it.

The line promises to meet the demand of the theatre going public this winter, arranging its schedule to suit the theatre hours. This will make theatre parties popular this season. Heretofore train service was such that the trip was a hard one.

This word is said as expression of appreciation heard on the street. Courtesy and Service wins—and these boys are developing it.

GLAZED KID ON

THE FEET

Secretary Wallace's Address
Secretary Wallace spoke in part as follows:

"This has been a very interesting evening to me. I am glad to have come to a meeting called for the purpose of looking forward rather than looking backward; where a group of people have come together to consider the future, rather than to complain of the past. We have had too many of the latter during the last few months.

"The most I can do this evening is to bring you a word of good cheer and tell you that everybody in Washington connected with the administration is looking optimistically forward to more meetings of this sort, where people have met with a determination to go forward to a better era. And they are tremendously interested that this movement of yours should be successful, and that the men who work with their hands and the men who invest capital should both have their reward for the efforts they put forth.

"You cannot take thirty or forty millions of men out of the paths of industry, put guns in their hands and set them to killing each other; you can't take most of the civilian population of the earth and get them to thinking war and expect business not to be upset. As a result we are in the grip of certain economic forces, and it is going to take us some time to get back to normal conditions again. A great many people look to the administration to make the sun of prosperity shine all at once. They think that by some sort of legislation this can be done. It does not matter how well intentioned your legislative body may be, it cannot legislate prosperity. Business conditions have got to come back to normal just out of such meetings as this, where people organize themselves to do what nobody else can do for them.

Predicts Gradual Improvement

"We cannot restore prosperity all at once, but it is nice to feel that we are at the lowest ebb of the tide, and that from now on we can reasonably expect gradual improvement in business conditions, and remember that the more you work and forget a lot of things about which you have been complaining the quicker you are going to get out of the depression and back on good solid business ground once more."

Secretary Wallace then spoke of the administration's efforts to reduce expense. "This terrible waste and extravagance in the spending of government money has got to stop," he declared. "Perhaps it was the emergency of war that offers a fair explanation for it, but it does not offer a fair excuse. But we are through with war, and this administration is going to stop this wasteful extravagance and expense."

Optimistic Reports Frequent

"You have got a right to expect that taxes shall be reduced as rapidly as the business of government justifies it. You will be most astonished and pleased with the progress that has been made in Washington in getting business back to a business basis," he said.

"Reports coming into Washington from every section," he said, "show a wholesome desire to co-operate to restore normal conditions." He expressed the opinion that the one thing which the President most desires is to restore this nation to a condition of happiness and prosperity such as will in the future, as in the past, make it "the one nation in the earth where everybody has an equal chance."

"I have hopes," he added, "that before another year has passed preparations for war will be abandoned throughout the earth. I am glad to bring the best wishes of everybody connected with the administration and to say to you that when a community comes together to consider its common need to readjust its social and industrial life it is going to be an incentive to the whole nation."

Mayor Tells of Industry

Mayor Harvey in his address of welcome said that never before had such an array of prominent speakers addressed a similar gathering in Wilmington. He quoted figures showing how vital the glazed kid industry is to the city and expressed the hope that everybody present would go forth and spread the gospel of glazed kid.

Chairman Snellenburg spoke of Wilmington's patriotism during the war. "Now," he said, "she is entitled to an enduring peace. T. Coleman du Pont accepted the honorary chairmanship of the committee; we went to Senator Ball and nothing was too much for him to do; and Congressman Layton went to the front and through his efforts the duty was eliminated from kid skins." He expressed the hope that the merits of glazed kid would be advertised from coast to coast. "When you leave here tonight your first solemn duty is to buy a pair of glazed kid shoes. Do it for your great President who is trying to bring conditions back to normal; do it for your city, your state, your nation; do it for humanity."

Ball Invites Criticism

Senator Ball spoke of the spirit of self-reliance which was characteristic of Delawareans throughout history. "Delaware's vote in Councils," he said, "has decided the very most important questions involving the future of this nation. This nation owes much to this little state. Delaware's aid, advice and counsel is needed at this time by our government. We are in a peculiar position. We do not object to criticism, but we do object to general fault-finding which creates general unrest between people at home and abroad. As a member of Congress, I hope you will criticize and advise us. The problems that confront this Congress are greater than ever confronted any Congress. These problems are just as difficult to solve as were any that confronted the people during the war, and the outcome is just as serious for the future of the world." He then told of the administration's efforts to cut out every unnecessary expense so as to reduce the cost of government to a minimum, and invited patience.

Congressman Layton said that the request for him to act in the matter of the 15 per cent duty on raw skins came at the eleventh hour; that its inclusion in the Fordney bill, coupled with India's discriminatory tax, would have meant the extinction of a great industry. "There are many states producing glazed kid," he said, "with Pennsylvania ranking first, Delaware second, Massachusetts third, and New Jersey fourth."

Extend Natural Conditions

"What we need in Delaware today," he said, "is an extension of industrialism not only of New Castle county, but wherever natural conditions obtain that it can be established. New Castle county is of wonderful significance and benefit as far as rural New Castle, Kent and Sussex are concerned, as a manufacturing center. But help us with our agriculture. You can destroy everything on earth except the products of the man with his hand on the plow and still survive." He pleaded for better understanding in all parts of the commonwealth.

George W. Norris said that the whole situation now from a credit point of view is thoroughly sound. "Labor and the price of necessities," he said, "have now come down to near the pre-war level." Today, he said, any man who buys goods can do it with full confidence that he can do so at a profit. "I see only one cloud in our industrial sky," he said. "For cotton and many other staples we are absolutely dependent upon foreign markets to consume a great deal of our production, and if those buy there is going to be a glut or a surplus which will depress our markets and reduce the buying power of our people who produce those things."

Must Curtail to Avoid Glut

"We must either curtail production of those things or we have got to sell a large proportion of those things. Our interest in the rehabilitation of Europe is on a par with our interest in rehabilitation of industry in this country." He expressed hope that as a result of the President's disarmament conference the people of Europe would be relieved of the large tax burden incident to their present expenditures for armaments. Otherwise, he said, they will not only be unable to pay us what they owe, but will be unable to buy goods. "Worse still," he said, "communists and anarchists would point to the chaos which will follow as indicative of a general breakdown of capitalist civilization, and use it as an argument for the inauguration of a new political system. Disarmament," he said, "would release men for productive enterprise and would enable capital to be used in building up industry."

Laird H. Simons, Congressman Aaron S. Kreider and Otto Nowland confined their remarks to statistics and historical facts relating to the glazed kid industry.

The original Church, constructed of logs was razed in the year 1820. During the same year a stone edifice was erected on the present site, enclosed by a grey stone wall and adorned by luxuriant trees.

Our children are our greatest assets. A country to prosper must have as its foundation a God-fearing people. To keep our young people in the church we must make it attractive for them and without the proper house and the proper equipment this cannot be done,—and this is what is planned, a proper home for all our church activities. ## Ladies' Aid Society Meets

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Newark M. E. Church met at the home of Mrs. C. A. Short, Thursday, September 15. The meeting was opened with scripture reading and prayer by the President. After the business meeting, a short but very entertaining program was presented. A reading entitled "The Wedding," which was read by Mrs. Crossan, caused much laughter and merriment. Mrs. Williams also read a humorous story entitled, "Mrs. Candler's Curtain Lecture." Immediately after the benediction was pronounced, refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Opera House Offerings

Bryant Washburn Triumphs in New Picture "Burglar Proof"

Aside from its rousing good fun, "Burglar Proof" a Paramount Picture at the Newark Opera House Saturday, September 24th, carries out a theme which is worth thinking about at this time when extravagance is held responsible for the high cost of living. John Harlow is so "tight" that he is sneeringly dubbed "Burglar Proof" but love changes him.

Bryant Washburn as "John" draws a clever picture that gets plenty of laughs from the "tight-wad" while reserving admiration for the man who learns that a man can be human, though saving!

First John is seen as an awkward country lout, shamed in front of a big crowd because his uncle refuses to lend him five dollars with which to take his girl on a picnic. He goes to the city with a fixed determination never to be broke again. Success finds him living in a tenement and eating in cheap "joints." His doctor tells him he must have a change to avoid a breakdown. He refuses to go out of town so dancing is prescribed as one means of a cure. Thus he becomes "Burglar Proof," but he meets his Laura and loosens up to find happiness in her love.

How Mix Saved Sandy, a Would-be Outlaw

Tom Mix and his cowboys were swapping stories during lunch time on location while the star was making scenes for "A Ridin' Romeo," his latest William Fox picture, which will be at the Newark Opera House Monday, September 26th. The talk turned to outlaws, and Tom told this story about one of the cowboys in this particular picture.

"Sometimes I think men go bad like fruit. Some turn bad over night, others begin getting bad gradually, but if you get them at the right time you can get some good out of them. There's that sandy-headed fellow over there. I met him out in Oklahoma when I was a deputy sheriff. He was quite a kid. There was something about him that made me believe he was going wrong. I walked over to him and said:

"Nice gun you have there. I'll swap mine and five dollars for it." "He handed it over and I gave him the five, but not my gun. A bad look came into his eyes.

"You were with that gang in that train hold-up last Tuesday," I said, showing my badge. He denied it, but I could tell he had been in some bad business. He didn't want to argue. He tried to get away. But I kept asking questions and I told him he would get into jail very soon. I said I could get him a good job if he would be on the level. He took the job.

"I never knew until years afterward that Sandy had come from the east only a month before I met him, and had been in a big train robbery only a week before I encountered him. Sandy certainly kept straight after my talk with him. I believe that train hold-up incident is one of the sorriest points in his life. He seldom mentions it, even to me."

General Pershing in Europe. Will Visit American Sol- diers on the Rhine.

When General Pershing left New York last week on the French Liner Paris, he had a long list of messages to deliver to American soldiers still in service abroad, as well as the memorial Medals of Honor, to present to an unknown French and English soldier killed in the war. His journey includes also the duty of visiting the graves of American dead in France.

The medals were voted by Congress to express our sympathetic appreciation of the French and English ceremonies to honor those soldiers who gave their lives for their countries and whose bodies were recovered without possibility of identification. One of these unknown soldiers has been buried in the Arch of Triumph in Paris, and upon this soldier, during the fitting ceremony of the French to their soldier dead, the American medal will be bestowed. A similar service is to be held in England.

Part of the purpose of General Pershing's trip is that he personally may be assured of the way in which the American dead have been cared for, and may inspect the work of registration of our soldiers' graves.

Just before his return, to be of service during the Disarmament Conference in November, General Pershing will inspect American troops in the Army of Occupation in Germany.

MAKES HIS JAIL FINE PLACE—LIKE HOME

Warden Calls His Prisoners
"Guests." Provides
Napkins

If you happen to visit the county jail at Breckenridge, Texas, and see a group of men playing cards or dominoes or some other game; if you happen to be there at noon and see these same men prepare and cook a meal that would satisfy the appetite of a hard working harvest hand; if you happen to see a certain, solidly built, companionable man who seems to be the "ringleader" of the bunch, you will wonder where the prisoners are; you will wonder what the hilarity is all about, and you will wonder who the companionable ringleader is.

The group of men are the prisoners, the games and banqueting is a daily routine and the solidly built "prisoner" is not a prisoner at all—he is the jailer. James B. Harrison, jailer, has made it his business in life to "bring up" prisoners and he tries to make his companions feel literally "at home."

To accomplish this purpose Harrison chums with his prisoners, he eats with them, plays with them and tells them they are not "bad fellows" at all. The jailer not only keeps them supplied with magazines, newspapers and indoor games, but they enjoy music and movies. The men prepare and cook their own meals.

They can have anything to eat they want. A plate of food is not shoved through the cell door at them; not in Harrison's jail. Instead the men sit down on chairs before a table covered with a white cloth, have napkins and observe good table manners. Harrison believes permitting the men to prepare their own meals and table has had a great influence for good among them.

When there are white women prisoners they are kept downstairs in the receiving room.

Harrison planned to enter the ministry, but owing to defective eyesight was prevented from taking the course of study.—Chicago Blade.

The Paper Suit

Some time ago, when there was a good deal of excitement about paper suits and the possibility of their putting the woolen trade out of business, a Brooklyn tailor undertook to satisfy himself as to what there was in it. He got hold of some heavy wrapping paper and made him up a suit. The material did not look to his practiced eyes suitable for needle and thread, so he used the paste brush. The result was actually worn about the streets of Brooklyn for a day without calamity of any sort and without attracting very much attention. But it was not a rainy day.

However, as we have learned since, this is not the sort of garment that Germany threatened to send over here and sell for sixty cents per suit. From its appearance we do not think that many Americans would have been satisfied with it, even if it was American made. The German paper suits are made of paper yarn that is woven into a coarse fabric, and come pretty close to our American ideas of cheap but wearable clothes, although too heavy for comfort.—Scientific American.

American Dye In- dustry on the Job to Stop Fading Colors

If the beautiful pink stripes in your best shirt fade to a pale cream in spite of your wife's best efforts with delicate washing flakes and an electric washing machine, the American dye industry promises that you shall at least have the satisfaction of blaming it on somebody besides your wife or the long-suffering laundress, or the no-good laundries.

This decision was reached at a recent conference in New York of dye industry representatives. A committee of experts was named to carry out an investigation and fix responsibility for fading dyes. At present the dyers are blamed for not using a sufficient quantity of dye.

Reports of the dye conference are interesting to the housewife who does the buying. She could doubtless have contributed many interesting exhibits to the conference. A dyer says there is no such thing as fastness of color; a merchant says he can get fast color goods if the people will pay more a yard; dye representatives declare that the dyes are as good in America as anywhere, which is probably true, and that they are as good now as before the war. If true this is good news, and will also be the news of who is to blame for the dull gray color of the expensive blue suit bought for Mary last fall, and the indescribable shades of the boy's cotton jackets which have seen only this summer's wear.

POTTED HOME CHEER

IT'S SMILES, LOVE and FLOWERS that make a Home.

Prepare now for the dull, cold days of fall and winter by arranging for a flower in the window, on the table or desk.

Now we are living in the gay and brilliant out-of-doors with all that nature provides and are liable to forget the greys of autumn.

It is not mahoganies, not waxed floors, not draperies that make home—it is smiles and love.

And nothing so well expresses them as the colors of a dainty flower or the green of a fern.

They are so easy to have and so expressive. Just a bit of time now and winter cheer is yours.

I have put in an assortment of Flower Pots for fall transplanting.

If you think a moment, you'll buy.

Spirit of Roosevelt Still Lives. "Carry On" Says Son

Speaking last week at an American Legion convention in New Jersey, Theodore Roosevelt "carried on" the spirit of his father, and his call to service men was to carry over into peace their highest ideals of service. He made the appeal to citizenship that Roosevelt himself so often made, and his soldier audience was responsive.

Col. Roosevelt has no more sympathy for the peace-time slacker than for the slacker in the army during the war. He said: "The man who sits back now content with the laurels he has won or that others have won for him is a slacker. Every American citizen should be in close touch with the affairs of his country. America is like a great partnership, and as partners we should work in unison without class distinction as we did in the days of war. The future of America lies in its children, and to make them good citizens, good schools are essential."

Nothing could be more fitting than that the men who took part in the great war should turn their attention and energy toward securing for the youth of tomorrow the very best education. Service men who have the hero worship of younger sisters and brothers, in fact of all children old enough to know what a soldier's life means, can have a tremendous influence not only in getting action toward improvement in the schools, but in stimulating the boys and girls to make the most of opportunity and ability.

Dawes at Work

Charles G. Dawes, director of the budget, believes that it will be possible to save $224,000,000—twice the amount originally estimated—out of the appropriations made available by Congress for the present fiscal year. This saving will be effected by the application of new methods designed to stop governmental waste in the purchase of supplies. Money appropriated for supplies can no longer be used for that purpose as long as any are available that may be transferred from one department to another. The stock will be treated as a common stock from which all departments may draw. Here is one reform so simple and obvious that it might have been thought that it would have been made long ago. There are many others that will occur to Mr. Dawes as he digs into the system. He has canceled many contracts for supplies and made changes in others—that is, he is treating the government's business, as far as this is possible, as though it were a private business.

The director of the budget is enjoying and will continue to enjoy the support and cordial co-operation of the President, who has instructed him to "cut to the bone."—Indianapolis News.

The "Quest" Starts for Trinidad and the Islands of the Antarctic

Wonderful Adventure for two Cabin Boys

In "the tightest vessel that ever ventured into Polar seas and by far the best equipped," according to the famous explorer Eir Ernest Shackleton, two boys will have the adventure of their lives. They have been chosen by the explorer as cabin boys and aids to the expedition which will explore the secrets of the South Pacific and Antarctic regions for two years. Sir Ernest knows how to provide the explorers of the next generation. He catches them while they are young, just at the age when the thrill of adventure will carry them through all the hardships and lay the foundation for permanent devotion to the work of discovering unknown land and waters.

Part of the present search will be for a lost island visited some years ago. Much new data in regard to the South Polar regions is expected, because of the completeness and perfection of the plans and equipment with which the expedition will sail. The "Quest" is a ship prepared to sail or steam her way through the icy waters. She was built in Norway three years ago, of oak, pine, and spruce, and has been tested in heavy ice. Her sides are two feet thick and her bows solid oak sheathed with steel. She carries wireless equipment and an airplane. The latter will have a pilot who is prepared to fly above the fogs and scout out ship passages between the ice floes. There will also be a utility boat, small enough to be rowed in an emergency and which can be sailed, punted, paddled, or run by gasoline engine in exploring coasts and streams.

"Castles In Spain"

The recent sailing from New York of 300 American and Canadian soldiers to fight for Spain was a new event in our current history. From the point of view of the men it must have represented an opportunity of some kind. Perhaps to most of them it meant not much more than a job that they could do to earn support, to some, adventure, and perhaps to a few an opportunity for a future in Spanish Morocco.

Whatever the expectations of these soldiers, they are going on a hard and dangerous expedition as the Spanish Government well knows. Spain is recruiting a foreign legion to save her own military forces from further drain. She will furnish the officers and the expenses of maintaining an army of foreign recruits to strengthen her authority in her North African territory. It may be that she is building better than she knows and that out of the present military campaign will come an impetus to the development of the great mineral and other wealth supposed to exist in the Spanish African possessions.

Paris Comes to Town. A New Venture in Ships and Trade

The good ship Raoul Briquet, from Paris, recently docked at a port on the Baltic Sea. Word was sent through the town that the ship contained a cargo, not packed in boxes loaded in the hold, but displayed in shops along the docks. So inviting was the prospect of going shopping in the harbor, on a ship from a foreign land, that the whole population of the town flocked to the dock. They were not disappointed. All the wares of Paris were for sale. Each shopkeeper was as much at home as on the famous streets and boulevards of his native city. It was Paris, it was France, and both feminine and masculine buyers reveled in the opportunity to see the styles, taste the foods, and tuck into their pockets the souvenirs of a foreign country.

The trip of the Raoul Briquet, a new kind of merchant ship, is an experiment. It is difficult under existing conditions for French merchants to establish stores in the countries bordering the Baltic so they hit upon this idea, and prepared the venture with the government's aid of a ship on which they paid rent for store space as well as freight and passage for their goods and themselves. The ship will travel from port to port and return to France for new supplies, selection of which will be guided by the experience of this first trip.

The wonder is that no one thought of this before. It opens many possibilities in both wholesale and retail trade, for the stores will be a traveling exposition of the products of any country which sends out such ships.

For the humble citizen of a small port, the visit of foreign ships with shops of every description aboard will provide an adventure and an education. When the Wilmington harbor is built, who knows but what we shall be shopping in many countries of Europe and the East all in a day or week, and when we fit out our own ships, there will be no difficulty in recruiting clerks.

Famous Statesman's Bust Found Buried in Sussex Co.

Beneath the crumbling stump of an oak tree, in an isolated strip of woods between Laurel and Georgetown, N. D. Levin, of Wilmington, last Friday found a metal bust of John Middleton Clayton, one of Delaware's eminent statesmen of the nineteenth century. The piece of sculpture, claimed to be the original reproduction of the father of the famous Clayton-Bulver Treaty with Great Britain, and the only one existing, has been given a conspicuous position among the relics and antiques in the Ye Olde Curiosity Shop, 911 Tatnall Street, Wilmington.

Prominent Wilmingtonians who visited the shop yesterday to examine the figure were unanimous in the opinion that it is a unique specimen of finished artistry. Judge Conrad was high in his praise of the bust, and affirmed the view that it is the only one of Clayton that ever came to the public eye. While a marble monument of the United States Secretary of State under President Taylor was erected and unveiled many years ago at Dover, it was never known, it is asserted, that a bust of the statesman had been made.

The figure is about eighteen inches in height, weighs about twenty pounds, and rests on a pedestal of solid metal. About the right eye is a small nick, noticeable only to the close observer, caused apparently by a fall. When found by Mr. Levin, the figure was dank with clammy moisture from the ground. Most of the rust has been removed, but the condition of the bust when first detected gave the impression that it had lain in the murky grass for a long time.

Delawareans familiar with the State's history aired the view yesterday that the bust had been moulded by an artist at the time when Clayton was in the prime of life. However, nothing definite in this connection can be ascertained. Mayor Harvey is expected to be among those to inspect the antique today.

Born in Dagsborough, Sussex county, in 1796, Clayton entered Yale College at the age of fifteen and graduated in September, 1815, with the highest honors of his class. Upon his return to Delaware, he began the practice of law, being first admitted to the bar at Georgetown. Before three years, he was sought after and engaged in nearly every important case in the State. It is said that his skill in handling cases, his voice, elegance, force of language, and powers of illustration have not been equalled in Delaware.

His first public offices were as clerk of the House of Representatives, from 1816 to 1819, and of the Senate in 1819. In 1821 he was appointed State Auditor. In 1824 he was elected a member of the Legislature and subsequently filled the office of Secretary of State. In 1824, he was elected to the United States Senate as a Whig.

On taking his seat he found himself the youngest member of that august body, at a time when such men as Clay, Calhoun and Webster were at the zenith of their power and influence yet he rapidly acquired a national reputation and became one of the great leaders of his party. Although only thirty-five years old, he was acknowledged the leading member of the convention that framed the present constitution of Delaware.

In 1837 he retired from the bar and accepted the office of Chief Justice of the State, tendered him by his friend, Governor Polk. In March, 1842, he was again elected to the United States Senate and in 1849 he accepted the office of United States Secretary of State. In April, 1850, he negotiated the Clayton-Bulver Treaty with England. Mr. Clayton remained in the United States Senate until his death, being returned in 1853. He died at his home in Dover, November 3, 1856.

Attention H. R. Pyle, Mgr.

Gentlemen:—

We have been using Thermoid Tires since our reorganization, the first of last June, and we find that they are all that you claimed for them. We have at present, six buses, which average one hundred miles per day; all of these buses are equipped with Thermoid Tires. These tires have now run, on the average, eight thousand five hundred miles each and they show very little wear. In our opinion, judging from the appearance of the tires, they will easily run three or four thousand miles more before wearing out.

We are enthusiastic over Thermoids. We have used four other standard makes of tires since starting in the bus business, but none of them lasted nearly as long as the Thermoids have to date and the Thermoids do not appear half worn out yet. We believe that we will get one hundred per cent greater service out of Thermoids than from any other tire that we have ever used.

We are for Thermoids first, last, and all the time.

Very sincerely yours,

Season's Outlook for Interesting Sport

Coach Derby, the new coach of the University of Delaware football squad, had both good and bad luck yesterday. Luck, however, seems to have no effect on Delaware's new football leader judging from his actions since returning for practice on Frazer Field after 10 days' preliminary work at College Park, Md.

"It is all part of the game," said Coach Derby in speaking about luck. "Of course," he said, "there is such a thing as luck but in most instances the player makes his own luck. Give me the man who is ready and willing to get in there and work hard at all times, use some football sense and keep driving and I will be willing to give the other fellow all of the so-called luck."

The new coach is trying to impress on the football candidates the idea that they cannot be successful in the game unless they are willing to get out and work hard in practice, thereby not only learning the fundamentals themselves but at the same time inspiring other members of the team to also work hard.

The hard luck that struck Coach Derby yesterday was the fact that an examination of "Doc" Steel, a local boy, showed that he fractured one or two ribs in practice on Monday. "Doc" is a son of Dr. Walter H. Steel, a local physician and for a number of years a member of the Athletic Council of the University. While the fractures are not especially severe they will nevertheless no doubt keep young Steel out of the Penn game on Saturday. Last year Steel showed flashes of brilliant work and much was expected from him this year. He no doubt will yet be a valuable asset to the team following the Penn game.

The good luck which offsets the injury to "Doc" Steel is the fact that Harry Jackson, a Dover boy, has entered college and joined the squad yesterday. Jackson has had experience both at Wrentham Military Academy, N. J., and with a Navy team. There had been talk of him entering Delaware but it was not definitely settled that he would enter until yesterday. Almost the first thing that Jackson did after being admitted was to don a football uniform and join the squad on Frazer Field. His presence greatly encouraged the other men and he is expected to add much strength to the team. Jackson is said to be a hard driving backfield man and will no doubt be used there.

Nothing has been heard from Repp, the varsity tackle who is supposed to have broken a bone in his ankle in practice and who went to Philadelphia yesterday to have an X-ray taken of the injured ankle. Coach Derby is hoping that the examination will show only a sprain and not a break. Captain Holton, who also has been out of the game owing to an injured ankle, is improving and was out for practice yesterday and the indications are that he will be in shape to play against Penn.

The entire football squad was given a hard general practice yesterday afternoon. Coach Derby had charge of one squad for a time while Coach Shipley assisted him by taking charge of another squad. Following this there was practice of punting and catching the ball. Coach Derby made the players run back the punts to give the men a chance to do some tackling and encouraged them to hit the man with the ball hard and low. After this there was work on the tackling dummy and a trot around the cinder path, and then the showers.

Two more men who reported for the first time yesterday were "Ted" Dantz and "Bill" Boyce. They were scrubbed last year but both have a lot of pep and may have a chance for the varsity.

The work was not exceptionally hard yesterday because of the several cripples on the team but as they are improving fast the entire squad with one or two exceptions should be in good shape by Friday. By that time it is possible that one or two of the players who made the varsity last year and who have been talking of entering other colleges, will have made up their minds to return to Delaware.

Among those who were out for practice yesterday were, Captain Holton, Cole, Naughton, McKelvey, Williams, Lilly, Manning, Rothrock, Goffigan, Boyce, Jackson, Dantz, Hurff, Leamy, Bachman, Price, Elliott, Donaldson, Magaw and Aiken.

"Vic" Armstrong, a local boy who played a star game on the Newark High School team last year, is said to have quit the game owing to objections on the part of his parents. Armstrong went to College Park with the squad and according to reports gave indications of making the backfield. Coach Derby as well as members of the squad regret the fact that he has decided to not try for the team.

Coach Derby has not pretended to pick an eleven for the Penn game but he will select his players for that game from the following:

Captain Holton, tackle, age 22, height, 5 ft. 11 in., weight 180.
J. D. Williams, full back, age 20, height 5 ft. 11 in., weight, 165.

Rescuing Fish

Keeps Men Busy

Down in Louisiana where the streams abound in black bass, perch, catfish, sunfish, and many other varieties of the finny tribe, fishermen have frequently had poor luck, because thousands of fine game fish were stranded in shallow pools and killed by the sun. Tides affect 400 miles of the best fishing streams and by a recent decision of the State Department of Conservation in Louisiana, an attempt is being made to save the fish. Eight men have been assigned to this task. They patrol the streams and throw the recently stranded fish back into the current of the streams. In order to know the value of their work the Department asked the men to count the fish rescued. The number has already reached over a million in the short time the work has been undertaken. Any big lucky fish who is rescued from the shallows may meet his end further down stream on the hook of a Louisiana fisherman, for since the State has decided to come to their aid, fishermen are out in large numbers.

Reading and Thinking

Those who have read of everything are thought to understand everything, too; but it is not always so. Reading furnishes the mind only with materials of knowledge; it is thinking that makes what is read ours. We are of the ruminating kind, and it is not enough to cram ourselves with a great load of collections; unless we chew them over again they will not give us strength and nourishment.—John Locke.
