bill would alter city election laws

A bill to alter Newark's voter registration procedures and change its traditional election date has been introduced in the state legislature by Rep. William A. Oberle Jr., R-Scottfield.

House Bill 600 would eliminate the city's system of dual voter registration, in which Newark election officials maintain rolls separate of state voter registration rolls. Currently, city residents who are registered to vote in state and federal elections are not automatically eligible to elections are not automatically eligible to vote in city elections. They must register for city elections separately at the Newark Municipal Building.

Oberle's bill would also change the city's traditional election date from the second Tuesday in April to the second Saturday in that month.

Oberle, who is majority leader in the state House of Representatives, said the intent of the bill is to broaden voting opportunitites and to ease confusion created by dual registration.

"This will give more people an opportunity to vote in the Newark city elections," Oberle said. "As related to me, there is currently a lot of confusion when people go to the polls."

"What they currently have there," he added, "is almost a private club-type atmosphere."

Oberle said that only 24 percent of Newark's voting-age residents are registered to cast ballots in city elections. "Assume that 50 percent of them vote," he added, "and that's 12 percent or less of the people who determine the future of the Ci-ty of Newark."

Newark City Manager Petr Marshall said there is some sentiment on City Council for a change in the dual registration system. Council is already studying the matter, he said.

Senior Center celebrates 20th

by Jane Tripp

If all the members of the Newark Senior Center come to the Center's 20th birthday party on Sunday, June 8, they will overflow the building and will be greeting their guests in the parking lot.

The Newark Senior Center, with a membership of 1,655, is one of the largest senior centers in Delaware and traces its roots back to the late 1950's.

A Senior Citizens Club was organized in 1957 by the Soroptomists, a professional women's service organization. Meetings were held twice each month at the New Century Club, which donated the use of its facilities.

By the fall of 1965, membership had grown to 125 and there was a need for a permanent home with facilities available on a daily basis. The Soroptomists asked Newark City Council to donate the vacant waterworks building at 300 E Main St. to be used as a senior citizens' center.

In the meantime, a non-profit corporation known as the Newark Senior Center, Inc. was being formed and bylaws drafted. Provisions were made for a 15-member board of directors, consisting of representatives of various civic and church groups.

The City agreed to lease the building to the new corporation and appropriated $20,800 for renovations. The Soroptomists, with the help of the Kiwanis Club

The building was dedicated on June 9, 1966. Other important events that year for the Center were the receipt of federal funds to hire a full-time director in August, and the official opening on Sept. 24, attended by more than 400 residents and dignitaries.

Many renovations and additions have been made over the years to the original two-room structure. Major additions were made to the kitchen, restrooms and office areas in 1972, and a new large kitchen and pool room were dedicated in 1981. Newark history alive, well thanks to efforts of spirited advocate

by John McWhorter

istory is not a thing of the past.
History is, according to Dr. Claudia
L. Bushman of Newark, executive director of the Delaware Heritage Commission, an ongoing effort by society to remember things past and compare them to the ways of today.
And it was in that spirit that Bushman founded the Newark Historical Society several years ago. Newark is a "super city," she said, and its history should be preserved.

Bushman said that Newark, which was chartered in 1758, has a very important history and without an active attempt to document the past, that history may be lost forever.

"At any point, the adult generation is the conduit to the next generation," Bushman explained, "and if that fails, some history may be lost."

Bushman, a California native, first got interested in history in a roundabout way. When she first met her husband Richard, also a historian, she was studying English literature in San Francisco. She later moved to Boston.

"It was a culture shock."
Bushman said, "for the first time, I saw buildings that were 300 years old. It was really very impressive."

Bushman then explained that since Californians tend to want everything to be new and improved, they don't appreciate istory is not a thing of their history as much as people in the Northeastern states.

After moving East, she earned a doctorate in American studies and soon realized the importance that history played on her studies. Since she used books for her critical reviews, she began to become interested in the ways of yesteryear.

become interested in the ways or yesteryear.

This interest grew but when she moved to the "far south" to Delaware, she was a bit apprehensive. "I really didn't want to come to Newark," Bushman said, "because I like the city and had never lived in such a small town."

But soon enough, the Diamond State grew on her. She realized the historical importance of Newark and the fact there was no historical society to preserve that history.

Then one day, the subject came up in a history class she was teaching at the University of Delaware. Almost as soon as she was finished speaking, her class decided that they would found Newark's own historical society to "preserve and celebrate."

"It was really quite remarkable," Bushman said of the response the idea received. In 1982, the Society's first year, more than 300 people furned out to lend their support.

Then, as the organization's first president, she compiled all remaining copies of the Newark Post, founded in 1910.

As her efforts continued, her research carried her back first

As her efforts continued, her research carried her back further and she soon learned about the very early history of the city. Bushman said that back before the Deer Park Tavern was even

In addition to her work with the Newark Historical Society, she has also studied the social history of the people living in the 1800s and early 1900s.

As part of that project, she researched the ways in which women's lives and roles have changed, including the contrast between cleanliness then and

New Evergreen development wins Council approval

Land development once again brought Newark residents out in force as more than 60 people crowded City Council chambers last Tuesday night to discuss the proposed Evergreen subdivision.

A standing room only gathering of residents from north Newark turned out to hear discussion about the proposed development, to be located on New London Road north of Fairfield Crest and east of Fairfield V.

Evergreen received final approval by Council on Tuesday, but not before lengthy discussion between the builder, Baldo Development Co., and some local residents.

Most of the concern was expressed by William and Cindy Kranz, who believe the development should be fenced in to protect the Kranz's adjoining farmland from neighboring trespassers.

David Baldo, president of the David Baldo, president of the development company, said the fence shouldn't be erected because the cost of removing an existing hedgerow would be high.

Members of the Fairfield Civic Association were also concerned that the fence would be unsightly and that the burden for fence construction should be placed on the Kranz's, not on the builder.

Other residents however, were worried about increased low water pressure problems, sewer overload and rainwater runoff damage, but their concerns were soothed by city officials who assured the residents that steps would be taken to avoid any such problems. problems.

Additional concern was expressed about Evergreen's closeness to New London Road and a compromise was made between Council and the developers to provide additional screening and landscaping instead of requiring a fence around the development.

Evergreen will be one of the first "cluster" developments in Newark and will consist of 50 semi-detached and two detached single family homes ranging in price from $120,000 to $140,000.

Citing time pressures, Newark Alderman Vance A. Funk III has announced that he will step down once City Council can find a replacement.

Funk's resignation was made public during a meeting of City Council on Tuesday, May 27.

In a letter to Mayor William Redd dated May 14, Funk informed Council that "the time pressures of being alderman for the City of Newark have been increasing greatly in recent years to the point where I no longer find time to perform all the functions." Funk has been alderman since 1975.

Earlier this year, Funk asked Council to consider increasing the

In his resignation letter, Funk wrote that the Alderman's Court work load has grown from 2,200 cases and 15,000 parking tickets in 1975 to an estimated 9,000 cases and 45,000-50,000 parking tickets this year.

Staffing has changed little despite the increased number of cases and tickets, Funk wrote.

bailiff. Today, there is one judge, three secretaries and a part-time secretary.

"The efficiency in which the court has been operated in the past is mind boggling when considering the great volume the court has experienced versus the number of people who continue to do that work," Funk, who is a member of the law firm of Bayard, Handelman and Murdoch, wrote.

Funk said Newark Alderman courts in the state. He has been chief alderman for the state the last eight years, and was appointed by the state Supreme Court to chair a committee which wrote rules of procedure for Alderman's Courts.

The staff of Newark Alderman's Court, Funk wrote, "has done an exemplary job. Needless to say, the nature of most of their calls are not friendly and they are able to defuse the situation without my personal involvement. They have been a great help to me."

Funk also praised Redd and City Council. "I do not believe the court could have functioned at its high level of success if it were not for the assistance of the mayor and the City Council," he wrote.

"I feel the City of Newark should be justly proud that there is absolutely no political influence over the court," he added. "The court has functioned for 11 years under my tenure without one Council member or mayor ever attempting to comment on a case before a trial. This is a principal which you should be proud of and hopefully will continue in the future."

Antenna ordinance passed

An ordinance regulating the placement of satellite dishes was passed by City Council at its meeting last Tuesday night.

The measure requires owners of the dishes to provide either a fence, hedge or wall to screen neighbors' views. It also requires that the antennas not be closer than three feet to property lines. There is a provision that allows for a waiver if the screening will interfere with the antenna's

The goal is to prevent unsightly placement of the dishes and it augments a measure currently being considered by the Federal Communications Commission.

Teevan went on to say that the significance of the college degree implies a maturity of spirit among the graduates. "The degree that we receive today represents more than just our academic achievement," he sid to the second largest graduating class in U.S. history, "but also our intellectual independence and our readiness to take on new responsibilities."

The commencement speaker for the ceremony was Pulitzer Prize winner Alex Haley, the author of "Roots." In his address to the graduates, Haley recounted what he called "the most emotional single experience of the writing and filming of 'Roots."

Haley unfolded the background of a scene in which Kunta Kinte, played by LaVar Burton was to be whipped for refusing to accept his white name of Toby. According to Haley, the script called for Burton to fall into the lap of Fiddler, played by Louis Bossett Jr. after the whipping and his ultimate submission. The scene was then to fde out.

Receiving recognition from the University for his service to the community was former Delaware governor Elbert N. Carvel who received an honorary doctor of humane letters degree. However, the highlight of the ceremonies occurred at 11 a.m. when a plane flew over the stadium with a banner trailing behind that read "School of Nursing: We're Outta Here." As soon as it was sighted, it produced a deafening roar from the nursing school graduates and proceedings were halted until the nurses calmed down.

ERCON

Emergency aid

Where would you turn if fire struck and suddenly everything you owned was gone? Did you know there is immediate help for disaster victims within the Newark community?

The Emergency Response Committee of Newark is an organiza-tion of volunteers who help people who have suffered significant per-sonal loss and injury as a result of fire or other catastrophe by sup-plying food, clothing, shoes, fur-niture, and basic household items. ERCON is located on the lower niture, and basic household items. ERCON is located on the lower level of the Newark Emergency Center, 324 E. Main St.

ERCON serves as a link between the victims and organizations which seek to offer relief.
Whenever possible, volunteers go to the disaster scene to offer comfort and emotional support. Food, clothing, shoes, and basic household items donated from organizations and concerned individuals are distributed as needed.

ed.

By providing support services, ERCON members seek to reduce the mental anguish experienced by Newark's disaster victims.

ERCON is partially funded by the City of Newark. Because continued support for the program is needed, the Emergency Response Committee of Newark encourages financial donations. If you or your organization are interested in joining the Emergency Response Committee of Newark, or are interested in supplying items for distribution, please call 302-738-4017 or write to: Emergency Response Committee of Newark, Newark Emergency Center, P.O. Box 7559, 324 E. Main St. Newark, Del. 19714.

Christiana students appear in national news magazine

It was an exhilarating end to an exciting day for Christiana High School students visiting Washington, D.C. on Wednesday, May 14.

The students had just completed a tour of the Capitol and were heading to the steps for the bus ride back to Newark when they got caught in the middle of a true media event — the Hands Across America press conference.

What's more, a photograph of the students holding Hands Across the students holding Hands Across America placards showed up in the June 2 issue of U.S. News & World Report. Found on the right side of the photograph, behind the placards, on pages 16 and 17 are Alan Cunningham, Judi Kennedy, Chuck Boyer, Kathy Hegedus, Nancy Hile and Milton Schnoeweg, an exchange student from Brazil. "It was a whole media event. It was just super," said Lucy Kendikian-Smith, a Christiana was just super," said Lucy Kendikian-Smith, a Christiana teacher who accompanied the students. "It was a lot of fun because it was very 1986."

Smith said the students — all ninth graders except the exchange student Schnoeweg, who is a senior — were on a "first timers" trip to Washington.

"We really ran them," she said, describing a jam-packed day of visits to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Memorial, the Air and Space Museum and, finally, the Capitol.

The students had entered the Capitol through a Senate gallery entrance, thanks to passes from the office of U.S. Sen. Joseph Biden. As they assembled to leave, they realized something of importance was pending on the Capitol steps.

'It was evident something unusual was going on because they cleared all the tourists off the steps," Smith said.

The next thing the small band of Christiana students left on the steps knew, they were engulfed by the rich and famous. Amy Carter was on one flank, with Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill and U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston of California nearby.

Boon, organizers passing out Hands Across America signs spotted the students and handed them a pair of placards.

"It really was an exciting end to the day," Smith said, "with all the newspaper and television people there. It's one thing to teach students about Tip O'Neill and another for them to see Tip O'Neill standing there."

Meeting change

The Christina School District Board of Education has shifted its June meeting site from Bayard
Elementary School to Stubbs Elementary School at 11th and Pine streets in Wilmington.
The baard will meet at Stubbs at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 10.
The change was made to enable the board to hold a public hearing on a proposal to shift kindergarten students from Stubbs to Bancroft Elementary School beginning this fall.

Such a shift of students would provide Christina flexibility as it attempts to cope with a shortage of classroom space caused by in-creasing enrollment.

Christiana reunion

Christiana High School's Class of 1966 will hold a 20-year reunion on Saturday, July 19 at the Newark Sheraton Inn. If you have not been contacted, please call Susan Stork Taylor at 475-4810 or Ginger Butters Morley at 762-4965.

Glasgow

CAC meeting

Does a variety in choice of English courses help or hinder a student's high school education? That question and others will be dadressed by five members of the Glasgow High School faculty during a meeting of the Glasgow High Citizen Advisory Council on Monday, June 9.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Room H-106 of the school, located on Del. 896 south of Newark. Any adult in the Glasgow High attendance area is welcome to attend.

puters continue to amaze and benefit mankind as he enters deeper into the complexities of the modern world.

However, area fifth and sixth graders are learning that the computer can also lend itself to their creative talents.

In a recent Saturday morning course called "Future Vision," sponsored by the University of Delaware, students learned how to manipulate the computer to serve their artistic talents. The result proved to be a fascinating new medium in which the future young artists created various works of computer art.

The eight-week course, which was held for two hours on Saturday mornings, was organized and instructed by Sally Mangerona.

"The problem is that kids who are really talented a lot of times do not receive the attention they need to develop their talents," said Mangerona, who praised the work of local art teachers. "Teachers are just overtaxed and they do not have the time to give special attention to the kids who are artistically talented." special attention to the kids who are artistically talented."

For the kids, who have grown accustomed to the abilities and intricacies of computers while working with them at school, it's just another extension of the machine's usefulness.

Civil War battle

The second annual Battle of Stephenson's Depot, a recreation of a Civil War clash in northern Virginia, will be held Saturday and Sunday, June 7 and 8 by the Wilmington & Western Railroad and Day's Brigade of Bear.

Trains will depart each day at 11:30 a.m. from the Wilmington & Western's Greenbank Station on Del. 41 just north of Del. 2 at Price's Corner.

The cost is $10 for adults and $7 for children 2-12. Because of the noise from musket fire, it is recommended that children under two not attend. Reservations are required and can be obtained by calling 999-9008.

The Wilmington & Western steam locomotive will pull out of Greenbank Station with Union

At Mount Cuba, halfway up the rail line to the battle site in Hockessin, the train will be at-tacked by Confederate snipers. It will then proceed to Hockessin.

The mock battle will last 45 minutes, with 150 uniformed soldiers involved. Afterwards, passengers can tour the solider's camps.

Volunteerism is so woven into the fabric of American society that it often goes unnoticed, simply taken for granted. Its simply taken for granted. Its very inconspicuousness is an enigma. If it weren't for the volunteers of Colonial times we wouldn't even have a nation.

Today we take for granted the volunteers of the Aetna Fire Company, the volunteers of the Civil Air Patrol, the volunteers that make the program of the Christina School District so much more valuable to children. One thing that does not vary in the volunteer program no matter where it operates is some people's desire to make life better for other people. other people Michael says that his lifelong interest in music has served him well in his duties at WXDR. His life's work is to deal with classical recordings to assist music educators.

Michael earned his bachelor's degree in music from the University of Richmond, a master's degree in music history and theory from the University of Virginia and a second master's degree in library sciences from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His instrument is the French horn.

Michael's tastes are quite broad but his special interest is 20th century American and English music. He calls them the 20th century romantics, his broadcast is heard at noon every Monday and Wednesday.

The second member of the team is Mark Ellis, who is a senior at the University of Delaware and expects to Mark has worked in radio and

One day someone had to take an

Mark said that was his first taste of being a disc jockey. He like it.
He quickly moved into the "Fine

In addition to his studies, Mike is employed at Bamberger's and hopes to be able to pursue a career in advertising and public relations. His tastes run to the more traditional classics and he listed his favorite composers as Beethoven, Mozart and Tchaikovsky. Michael's program is heard every Thursday.

In a lengthly discussion with Michael Foster, he offered some philosophy behind the programming at WXDR. Michael explained that he considers WXDR the "alternative" to the two Philadelphia stations which broadcast classical music. Michael explained that the music offered here in Newark is much broader than that offered on the Philadelphia stations and he enjoys presenting a number of the 20th century composers and offering them to people for their first hearing.

Between 80 and 100 composers are programmed each month. "Even though we do offer a variety of 20th century music the three most programmed composers are Bach, Beethoven and Mozart," said Michael.

Community bands prepare for busy summer season

Those attending Newark's first Main Street block party on Saturday evening, June 7 may think they're in New Orleans — at least between 7 and 7:30 p.m. That's when the NewArk Dixie Ramblers, a group from the Newark Community Band, will be playing Dixieland favorites in the area across from Klondike Kates. Following the concert by the Ramblers, the 40-member Newark Community Band, under the direction of Ed Schwartz, will present a varied program of marches, big band swing, show tunes and light classical selections arranged for band.

The Newark Community Band, since 1983, and the Newark Dixie Ramblers, since 1985, have been performing concerts throughout Delaware. Sponsored by the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation, the bands boast a very active rehearsal and performance schedule.

The Community Band rehearses on Wednesday nights at 7:30 in the formance schedule.

The Community Band rehearses on Wednesday nights at 7:30 in the Newark Municipal Building and averages four concerts a month throughout the year. The band plays at retirement homes, the veterans Administration Hospital, Newark's Liberty Day, Rehoboth Beach and Bethany Beach bandsands and for other organizations.

During the summer months, the band is scheduled for nine concerts, with the Namoier's stated for six performances during the summer.

The Newark Community Band has been the catalyst for this summer's Thursday evening concert series at Carpenter State Park. Joining the Newark Community Band and the Newark Dixie Ramblers in this concert series will be such musical organizations as the First State Band, the Diamond State Band, The Illidel Trombone Ensemble, the Dixie Swingers, the Christiana School District Summer Youth Symphonic Band, Anheuser, Spirit, the Brandywiners and the Arden Stadtkapelle.

The Newark Community Band will kick off the Thursday evening concert series at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 19 at Carpenter State Park, located about two miles north of Newark on Del. 896. On the same date, also at 7:30 p.m., the Diamond State Band will p.m., the Diamond State Band will

Breslin completes 'Liberty' tribute

Work to be shown in local artist's open studio

by Neil Thomas

Wrapped in an American-as-apple-ple red, white and blue frame, a special work honoring the Statue of Liberty will be featured when Newark artist Wynn Breslin holds her annual "open studio."

The open studio, a tradition started 10 years ago, will be held 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. June 6-8 and June 13-15 at Breslin's Terrapin Lane home off Del. 896 in the historic Wedge district.

home off Del. 896 in the historic Wedge district.

"Lady Liberty: A Dream Must Prevail" is a work Breslin first began in 1974 in hopes of completing it for the 1976 Bicentennial. She has been adding to and altering the work ever since, and completed it this year to mark the centennial celebration which will be held for the newly-restored Statue of Liberty next month in New York City.

"The Statue of Liberty hold special significance for me," Breslin said. "Both my mother and my father came over (from England and France, respectively) and stayed at Ellis Island."

The New York City centennial celebration also holds special significance for Breslin because her two nephews are the principals in the National Elevator Co. which donated its services to install an elevator within the towering Statue.

A native of Rutherford, N.J., Breslin was educated at Ohlo Weslevan University and the ing Statue.

A native of Rutherford, N.J., Breslin was educated at Ohio Wesleyan University and the University of Delaware, where she earned a master's degree in fine arts.

She has been a resident of Newark since 1954, living in the Wedge district in which the states of Delaware, Pennsylvania and Maryland converge on the hillsides above the White Clay Creek.

A former art teacher at Central Elementary School and Medill Elementary School, Breslin is noted for her realistic landscapes but has also found herself in-fluenced by the abstracts of New York artists.

This year's open studio, which, as always, will be informal and open to browsers as well as artists, will feature an extensive collection of local landscapes in oils, watercolors and acrylics. There will also be more than 25 new works, all framed, as well as pottery.

The studio will be open Friday-Sunday, June 6-8 and June 13-15. Signs and red flags will mark the way to the studio.

This is an important year for anniversaries.

The Newark Jaycees and the Newark Symphony Orchestra have already held special events honoring their origins.

This Sunday the Newark Senior Center will hold an open house to mark the 20th anniversary of its founding, and later this year the State of Deliaware will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the the 200th anniversary of the ratification of the U.S. Constitu-

The excitement actually began around Christmas of 1984, when my wife gave birth to our second son and I learned shority thereafter that Chesapeake Publishing Co. was interested in

Think about it. One minute your five-year-old is standing safely alongside of you on the deck of a boat enjoying the ocean's spray and the warm sunshine. The next instant the boat rocks and your child is suddenly tossed into a chilling, turbulent current and disappears beneath the surface.

Life drains from you as the minutes pass and your child doesn't resurface. Fiction? No. Two families have already experienced this tragedy this year in the Indian River Inlet.

newspaper. Since the fall or 1989, it had been a shopper with little or no news.

We left our home in Owensboro, Ky. and headed back east to my native Newark and in February 1985 the initial planning for the new Post began.

By May, publisher Tom Bradlee felt we had a solid product and a sound marketing plan. He arranged a meeting with the partners of Whitney Communications Corp., who own Chesapeake Publishing, to get their approval for a Newark weekly newspaper.

Whitney gave us the go ahead in mid-May, and on June 5, 1985 the first issue of The NewArk Post hit the streets.

That first issue gave us notice that the entire Post project was going to be larger and more successful than we could ever have imagined. In our initial plans, we were considering a newspaper of no more than 20 pages, all in one section.

Last week, legislation was introduced requiring operators of recreational boats to make sure their young passengers (age 12 or younger) are properly wearing floatation devices. At my invitation the mother of one of the Indian River drowing victims was present when this bill was introduced and she thinks her child would be alive today if he had been wearing a life

Not only did we find that the Post was large, but that it was well liked by readers. I remember toting an extra bundle of papers down to the Newark Newsstand the morning of June 5 because local residents had snapped up copies so quickly the store ran out before noon.
But as wonderful as this first year has been, the second is going to be even better. Through the first 52 issues, we have just been learning to crawl and walk. Through the next 52, I think we will learn how to fly.

The staff, too, has grown. It now includes a full-time executive director, food service director, program director, and secretary, a half-time social services director, and a part-time bookkeeper, bus driver, cooks and kitchen helpers, and custodial help.

Members take an active role in running the Center. In addition to two official representatives of the Center on the board, there are usually several other members who are there as representatives of other organizations or as interested citizens.

Members also organize and lead many of the educational and recreational activities at the Center. These include arts and crafts, exercise, discussion groups, cards and games, bowling, and drama, choral and dance groups.

Participation in many Center

Participation in many Center activities takes members out to the community. Each year the Senior Players drama group has presented original productions not only for members of the Newark and other senior centers, but also at nearby hospitals, nursing and retirement homes, and day care centers. The dance group also performs outside the Center.

Community groups, especially university students and service organizations, often come to the Senior Center to host special parties or programs. During 1985, fraternities and sororities held parties, dances and a pancake breakfast, and the Gilbert F dormitory sponsored its annual intergenerational party at the Center with children from a local orphanage attending.

The Newark Rotary Club held

The Newark Rotary Club held its usual holiday party for 125 members with music by the Banjo Dusters and the Soroptomists sponsored two dinners for the benefit of the Center. Other groups provided special programs 'and services.

In turn, the Newark Senior Center serves the greater Newark community in many ways, contributing space and volunteer time. The facility is in constant use by groups who serve a larger clientele than its membership.

For example, the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation uses the building several

But Marshall said there is concern about the manner in which Oberle has gone about attacking the issue. "The big problem Council has with this is the fact that Mr. Oberle put legislation in to change city election requirements without having talked to Council members or the election board. He just did it unilaterally," Marshall said. "It doesn't seem right to change a home-rule municipality's charter without talking to the people who were elected in that community," he added. Council has studied the dual registration issue in the past and found problems in making use of state voter rolls, Marshall said. Because the area known as Newark is much larger than the city proper, city voters must be identified from state rolls manually by address, he said. Also, unless a local registration station is established, city voters would have to go to Wilminton to register for a Newark election. As to the election date change, Marshall said he has seen no evidence that turnout for elections on Saturdays is any greater than that on Tuesdays. But Marshall said there is con-tions on Saturdays is any greater than that on Tuesdays. "The second Tuesday in April has been election day in Newark for 99 years," he added. Oberle believes the problems of using state voter registration rolls can be solved, and solved at minimal'cost. He also believes H.B. 600 will draw support. To change the ci-ty's charter, Oberle must line u two-thirds majorities in both the House and Senate.

Trips are important to many members of the Newark Senior Center. In an average year Dawn Keane, the program director, arranges more than 40. Most are one-day tours, or trips to theaters, sporting or special events such as the circus or the Philadelphia Flower Show. Most extended trips are for less than a week and are taken within the United States.

From the Center's beginning, the board of directors and staff have worked to make it serve as more than a social club for senior citizens. The goal has been to make the Newark Senior Center a focal point for recognizing and meeting the needs of older people in the community. The social services component of the Center's program is concentrated in this area.

WHEN IT COMES TO PRICE: SHOP ANYWHERE FIRST — THEN COME TO JOE DAWSON'S LAST! CONVENIENT TO ALL SHORE POINTS ON ROUTE 13 - PICK IT UP AND TAKE IT WITH YOU!

Everywhere you look there are bikes, bikes, and more bikes.

Some are being unloaded from cars, and you note license plates from as far away as New York State. Others are being carefully checked over, their mechanics giving them one last look.

And yet still more are just lying in the grass, their riders standing nearby in quiet anticipation of the race.

What race, you ask? Well it's not the Tour de France. It's not even the Coors Classic. Those races are for different kinds of bikes. But it is just as exciting, and it's called Delaware Bicycle Motorcross, and it's held all summer long at Lum's Pond State Park off Del. 71 south of Newark.

BMX has been around in an organized from for about the last 10 years. In the Newark area, it has become increasingly popular during the last five.

The sport entails racing small bikes equipped with strong frames and knobby tires through an off-road course of banked turns and bumps. Riders wear helmets, and there is a host of other equipment that can be obtained as interest and experience in the sport increases.

But regardless what kind of equipment a rider wears, the reasons behind his or her devotion to the sport seem universal.

transcendant of barriers of in-terest or experience.

"I like to race," said 12-year-old Alan Stifler. "It's fun, and the competition is great."

Alan's comments were echoed by hosts of others, including his father Joe Stifler, a BMX volunteer. "It's all the thrill of the race," said Stifler, who has another racing son, Joe Jr., 17. The kids love it."

Stifler also noted that girls are some of BMX racing's biggest enthusiasts. "It's real popular with girls, especially in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia."

Yet kids aren't the only ones who love the sport. "Today there are two riders in their 30's," con-tinued Stifler, "and in the state finals, six people in their 50's have qualified. You can start when you're four or five and keep on riding until you want to quit."

Rich Robichaud is one partici-Rich Robichaud is one partici-pant who falls into the mature riders "cruiser" class. Now in his 30's. Robichaud got involved in riding after he and a friend led the U.S. BMX team on a tour around the country five years ago. "Having been around bikes so much on the tour, I started to ride just to get it out of my system. I now ride to keep in shape," said Robichaud.

In addition, Robichaud noted the family aspect of the sport. "I ride because the kids ride (his sons Richard and David)."

Stifler also talked about family and BMX. "It's really a family sport. Parents all get involved (all the workers at the track are volunteers), and in the summer families will bring baskets of food and make the day a picnic." Tract coordinators Butch and Darlene Lloyd also got interested when their son Butch Jr. took up racing after a friend got involv-ed.

when their son Butch Jr. took up racing after a friend got involved.

Delaware BMJ is held each Saturday, from the end of March to the end of October, at Lum's Pond State Park on Del. 71.

Races begin at 11 a.m. The track is certified by the National Bicycle League and is home to two teams, one from Wooden Wheels in Newark, and one called Power Wheels from Harford County, Md.

However, one does not need to be a member of a team to race. "All you really need is a BMX bike," said Stifler, "and you can get one of these for as little as $100, though a good one runs about $250. Then all you have to do is bring it down. We'll modify your bike if necessary, and if you don't have a helmet, we'll rent you one."

A rider's first race is free, though an insurance fee, covering the first year of riding, must be paid. Thereafter, a small entry fee must be paid for each race.

"We'll treat beginners like royalty," continued Stifler, "because they're the future of the sport."

Spartan squads take honors

During May, St. Mark's High School's boys and girls physical fitness teams traveled to the Philadelphia Naval Base and competed in the annual Marine Corps physical fitness competition against top schools from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware.

The boys came away the top school in Delaware and third in the region. The girls were third in the state and 11th in the region. Both teams qualified for national competition, but because of the lack of funds, will not participate. The competition consists of five events: push-ups, sit-ups, broad jump, shuttle run and pull-ups (boys) and bent arm hang (girls). Percentile scores are added up for

Spartans fall

Heat takes toll in extra-inning loss to William Penn

by Bruce Johnson

As is traditional in sports, a winning team celebrates the plays of fits-heroes. For the losers, the term hero is seldom applied.

Yet, in Saturday's dramatic extra-inning 11-10 to William Penn High School in the quarterfinal round of the Delaware High School Softball Tournament, 16 St. Mark's athletes displayed all the characteristics of true heroes.

'They showed me more courage and determination than I thought they had and they did real well when it counted,' said interim coach Dave Stover, subbing for head coach Tom Parkins who was with the National Guard and could not attend the game. "That's all you can ask for."

The Spartans jumped out to an early 5-0 lead in the top of the second on Jackle Conomon's RBI single and a grand slam home by freshman designated hitter Erica Sneed.

The Spartans held the lead until Sneed.

The Spartans held the lead until the bottom of the sixth inning when the hard-hitting Colonials exploded for five runs with winning pitcher Ivy Sheehan's three-run home run causing most of the damage.

and down 9-5, most of the large turnout had all but counted out the young Spartan team. However, the never-say-die Spartans were able to turn four walks and three singles into four runs to even the score and force extra inviting able to turn four waiks and three singles into four runs to even the score and force extra innings. Recording key hits for the Spartans were Christine Schiavoni, who had an RBI single, and Jackie Conomon, who contributed two clutch RBI's which tied the game. "Going into the top of the seventh I really didn't think they could do it," admitted Stover, who added that the Spartans had been struggling at the plate in recent weeks. "They were hanging their heads. But I was wrong."

After pitcher Terre Alessandrini shut down the Colonials in the bottom of the seventh, she recorded a run scoring single in the top of the eighth which put the Spartans ahead.

But after running the bases and Spartans ahead.

But after running the bases and pitching seven full innings, the 90 degree temperature finally affected Alessandrini in the eighth. She gave up three walks and a single which tied the game at 10. Alessandrini was lifted for Jill Kelly, who had the difficult task of relieving in a bases loaded, no out situation. With the outfield pulled in, Kelly got William Penn's Jeannie Guarente to line out to left nie Guarente to line out to left fielder Schiavoni, who made a

"It was the little stuff that caught up with us," said Stover. "We pulled the outfield in at the end of the game and we had that girl dead at third and could have pulled off a double play and probably forced another inning. There wasn't anything major that we did wrong, it we just the little mental mistake that had a cumulative effect."

Disregarding the few miscues, the Spartans recorded numerous brilliant plays, The team demonstrated some excellent clutch hitting, several heads up plays in the field and a shortstop-to-second-to-first base double play that had the Spartan faithful on their feet in approval.

"There's no shame," said Stover. "We battled tough and we had a lead and someone had to win and someone had to lose. It was just a good game all the way. They just scored more runs than us."

Cindy Williams and Tom Battles at High Energy Gym.

Champ

Tom Battles is top powerlifter

by Bruce Johnson

Weightlifting may appear to be a very singular sport. One man against the laws of gravity. Yet, when talking to Newark's Tom Battles, who recently captured the American Powerlifting Federation Championship in Philadelphia in the 220-pound division, one gets a different opinion. And at 3°10" and with the ability to lift more than 728 pounds, he is not a man to argue with. "There's a lot of people who are a little piece of that trophy," said the mild-mannered Battles outside of the High Energy Gym where he trains. "That's what makes this trophy such a big deal. A trophy by itself isn't anything but there's so many people who help you with diet and technique. You just can't do it all by yourself. But in competition, Battles does do battle by himself. Battles totaled 1,957 pounds in lifts on the day, edging the runnersup by a mere 16 pounds. His big lift was the dead lift, which totaled 728 pounds. But he also benched 501 pounds and squated 728 pounds.

Surprisingly, Battles admitted to not having 700 pounds on his back for four years prior to the meet.

"I don't think anyone was worred shout per simple," see 18 pounds." But the grant of the programmer of the programmer and the programmer and per per simple." See 18 pounds.

"I don't think anyone was worried about me winning," said Battles through a bearded smile. "I wanted to at least place so I started out real light, I really didn't plan on winning when I went, it just kind of worked out that way."

"There are some people who believe that you can't be both a powerlifter and a bodybuilder," said Battles. "You either do one or the other. I really believe you can do both and I think there's a lot of people at High Energy gym who could do both."

The problem in competing in both sports is that the focus and structures of the sports are opposite. Although both uemand

"In body building you might have 10 or 14 exercises in which you do a lot of repetitions. You're also a lot stricter on your diet. In powerlifting you can eat anything because it doesn't matter what you look like. The workouts in bodybuilding are harder but when you get to the contest it's a lot easier."

"There's a real wide range of powerlifters," said Battles.
"You'll find people with ages ranging from 16 to over 50. It's different from other sports in that you're reaching your peak when you reach your forties."

When he's not at the gym, Battles will most likely be at the Christiana Hospital where he is employed as a nurse/anesthetist. Due to his size, Battles has received a lot of ribbing concerning his occupation but has learned to take it all in stride.
"People didn't believe me when I told them that I was a nurse/anesthetist," he said with a gentle smile. "They'd say, 'sure you are' I just started saying that I drove a truck or worked construction and that kept them happy."

I have always been fascinated by umbrellas. When I was a little girl I thought people who carried long, black umbrellas with wooden handles were on important and mysterious missions. Surely, no one carried such a sinister-looking item just to keep himself dry.

My grandmother carried the useful kind. It was usually red and almost always had a broken rib which, she said, in no way detracted from its ability to keep the raindrops off her.

I was enchanted by the sunnyday version of the umbrella, the parasol. There was something so fresh, springlike, and feminine about a pastel or flower printed parasol.

One of the families in the neighborhood, the Loftings, hailed from Charleston, S.C., and Mrs. Lofting had an authentic parasol. It was a lucious shade of peach on the outside; the interior had little tiny peach, pale blue and green passages, registed on it. had little tiny peach, pale blue and green nosegays printed on it. The handle was ivory. The neighborhood girls, when we asked very politely, were allowed to open it and parade around the lilac bushes in the backyard with it. Mrs. Lofting even showed us how to twirl the parasol while looking over our shoulders in a properly genteel and flirtatious manner.

We must have presented a ludicrous, yet charming, picture because most of the time we were dressed in blue jeans, six guns, and cowboy boots since the predominate game on our block

Fair Saturday

The Delaware Art Museum's 14th Annual Crafts Fair will be held 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 7 at the Museum on Kent-mere Parkway in Wilmington.

More than 70 craftsmen from Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland will offer original handcrafted items for sale. May craft techniques will be demonstrated throughout the day.

Music will be provided by Plea-sant Street and other groups. A variety of ethnic foods including Greek, Mexican and Chinese dishes will be offered in addition to more traditional fare.

Various children's activities in-cluding face painting and kite making will be available.

Tips provided by the APTA are:
Posture
•Throughout each day, concentrate on keeping your three natural back curves in balanced alighment.
•Keep your weight down; excess weight exerts a constant forward pull on the back muscles and stretches and weakens muscles in the abdomen.

•Avoid staying in one position for long periods of time; inactivity causes muscle tension and weakness. the abdomen.

·Sleep on a firm mattress and use a pillow under your head just big enough to maintain the normal cervical—neck—curve.

*Exercise regularly to promote strength and flexibility in the muscles that keep you upright in a proper postural position.

Repertory Theatre sets season

The 1986 Professional Summer Repertory Theatre of the Univer-sity of Delaware will present "The Great American Backstage Musical" on June 27-29 and July 5, 11, 17 and 19, and Shakespeare's "As You Like It" on July 4, 6, 10, 12 and 18.

"The Great American Backstage Musical" is a funny, fast-moving musical that evokes the Technicolored world of 1940s Holly wood musicals. An obscure singer and an unknown songwriter find romance against a backdrop of auditions, misunderstandings, self-sacrifice, world war and over-night stardom.

In "As You Like It," Shakespeare laughs gaily and happily at the perplexities that love can bring. Glorious poetry, brilliant characterization and ingenious mingling of common reality with idyllic grace result in a play of merriment and good humor.

Performances for both shows

Performances for both shows will be at 8:15 p.m. (7 p.m. on Sundays) in Mitchell Hall on the University campus in Newark. Season subscriptions for the two shows are available at the Mitchell Hall box office at $10 for general public, $8 for University faculty/staff and senior citizens, and $6 for students. Subscriptions also can be obtained with Visa or MasterCard by calling Mitchell

Hall at (302) 451-2202.

"The Great American Backstage Musical" will be directed by professional director/choreographer Don Price. Price studied at Los Angeles City College, UCLA, the Juilliard School of Music, and Lester Horton Dance Theatre.

His direction credits include the Broadway production of

Teaching English

University professor develops special method for instructing foreign students decide to enroll in a class to the language.

Your teacher works hard to teach English, but is handicapped by a lack of good materials and no direct contact with speakers of English. The course focuses on the most obvious points of English grammar -- nouns, verbs, grammar -- nouns, verbs, sentence syntax. You struggle to learn all about

Then, one day, a young American comes to visit your school and you find you cannot communicate.

Why? You have never heard the language spoken, much less by a native. You have never had to engage in direct communication with anyone in English. You don't know how to make the language work to project your personality and realize your objectives. Your words seem wooden, even to you.

In an attempt to change this situation, the Serbian Ministry of Education of Yugoslavia has made arrangements for a special seminar to retrain its teachers in approaches more in keeping with the realities of speaking and understanding English as a living language.

inderstanding English as a living language.

A method that is especially attractive to them is "Strategic Interaction," developed by Dr. Robert Di Pietro, professor of linguistics at the University of Delaware. Di Pietro has lectured on his method at institutes and workshops in Japan, Australia, Finland, Hungary and Germany, and he has made visits to areas of Yugoslavia, including Croatia and Slovenia.

This summer, Di Pietro will return to Yugoslavia to conduct a seminar, scheduled in lete June and early July in Perucac — a mountain resort some 200 kilometers southeast of Belgrade, Attending will be 40 Serbian teachers of English together with Attending will be 40 Serbian teachers of English, together with the foreign language supervisor of Serbian schools and a representative of the American Embassy in Belgrade.

"Language teachers everywhere worry about letting language get out of control in their classrooms," according to Di Pietro, and "for that reason, they tend to overstructure their daily activities so that few opportunities are left open to students to be original and creative in the target language."

"It is important for teachers to understand," he said, "that true learning grows from their students and is not bestowed on them by filling them with teacherdirected exercises in grammar and pronunciation."

How does Di Pietro's technique

How does Di Pietro's technique work? "By giving students a non-language-related situation to resolve and letting them work together to find ways to verbalize a solution, learning is promoted in the classroom," he explained.

The "scenario" is a key mechanism in Di Pietro's conver-sational approach. It consists of a theme from a real-life event, involving at least two roles ininteraction with each other. "The discourse that results from this interaction serves as the data around which the teacher makes remarks about English grammar, vocabulary and syntax, as well as how English speakers use their language to negotiate and play roles," he explained.

At the seminar, Di Pietro said he hopes to demonstrate to the Serbian teachers that, despite their isolation from the English speaking world, they can create their opportunities for English discourse and conversation in their classrooms. If successful, he said, teachers will be able to expose other teachers to it.

"Attitude and motivation also are important factors in acquiring a new language," Di Pietro continued, noting that "Russian is obligatorily studied by almost everyone in Yugoslavia but hardly anyone attempts to speak it or use it in their daily lives.

"Since English is so popular, we really ought to capitalize on that special advantage and liberate it from the lockstep of outmoded textbooks," he said.
