Students who walk and bike to Downes Elementary School will see better signage, crosswalks and bicycle lanes in the next few years, thanks to a grant the school recently received from the Delaware Department of Transportation.

The money was awarded as part of the federal Safe Routes to School program (SRTS), which aims to improve the health and well-being of children by enabling and encouraging them to walk and bicycle to school. SRTS programs examine conditions at schools and, with the help of parents, school officials, community leaders and local, state, and federal governments, conduct projects and activities

Newark explores allowing breweries

Council weighs code changes to permit microbreweries, beer gardens

By KARIE SIMMONS

City council historically has been hesitant when it comes to alcohol sales in Newark, but on Monday night, members showed they are willing to consider changing the code to allow small-scale beer and wine production.

The board informally directed staff to work on crafting code amendments for future planning commission and council consideration.

According to Planning Director Maureen Feehey Roser, several people reached out to the city over the summer and expressed

45th-annual Community Day set for Sunday

Country music star Chase Bryant to headline festival

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

Nearly 300 vendors and community groups are lined up for the 45th-annual Community Day festival, set for Sunday on the University of Delaware Green.

In addition, the event includes a slate of musical performances and demonstrations, headlined by country music star Chase Bryant.

"It's a great chance for people to see what Newark offers," Parks and Recreation Director Joe Spadafino said. "I couldn't think of a more picturesque setting in Newark than the UD Green."

As usual, the event is organized by the city's parks and recreation department in cooperation with UD, the Christina School District and the Downtown Newark Partnership.

This year's festival runs from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on The Green between Memorial Hall and Main Street.

The festival is free and open to the public and is expected to draw more than 10,000 people to Newark.

"It's really a showcase for the whole city," Recreation Supervisor Sharon Bruen said.

Delaware Avenue will be closed from 7 a.m. until approximately 7 p.m.

The Chase Bryant concert is organized by the Havre de Grace, Md., radio station WXCX, which has teamed up with the city for several years to bring up-and-coming country acts first to Newark Nite and now to Community Day.

Bruen noted that Bryant is already a star in country music, known for hit singles like "Take it on Back," "Little Bit of You" and his newest, "Room to Breathe."

Bryant, 23, has toured with national acts like Tim McGraw and Brantley Gilbert, but in a phone interview Tuesday said he doesn't see playing Community Day as a step down.

"I mean, the festivals, especially the small-town festivals, it's the big event of the year sometimes for these small towns," Bryant said. "And that can really be vital in a career like this because that's where you really build a fan base."

He said fans can expect a little bit of everything on Sunday.

"Anything goes at shows for me. Anything can happen," he said. "But they can expect to hear a lot of new songs off this record and hear the couple hits we have so far."

Bryant's new record is due out early next year.

"There's a lot of angst to this record, a lot of young stuff to this record," he said. "It kind of tells my life for the past 23 years, and I think it will be something people can live vicariously through because it's all real life experiences and stuff that people can relate to."

Bruen said the WXCX concert traditionally attracts extra people to Community Day, visitors who usually walk around and explore the various vendors before the concert.

"It's amazing to have that kind of talent coming at no cost," she said, noting that the radio station and its sponsors take care of the concert's expenses.

Parking during Community Day is free in all city lots and behind Pearson Hall. Visitors can also park in UD's Trabant and Perkins garages for a maximum $5 fee all day. A rain date is scheduled for Sept. 25. For weather-related cancellation information, call (302) 366-7147.

City to reissue downtown parking garage RFP

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@chespub.com

Questions concerning public disclosure continue to surround the proposals for a downtown parking garage, but council is hoping issuing a new request for proposal will remove the veil of secrecy one of the firms has been demanding.

Board members voted Monday to reissue the RFP for a garage behind The Galleria and insert language that would mandate the plans be released publicly, meaning the five firms will now have to resubmit their proposals. Additional companies also have the opportunity to submit a proposal, as well.

"I thought it would be a good idea to pull the RFP and put out a new one that explains that the intention is to discuss them publicly," Councilwoman Jen Wallace said Wednesday. "That way it will be very clear, hopefully."

The city has refused to release details to the public about the proposals, which were received in early August and include plans from Greggo-Ferrara, a New Castle firm that owns the Galleria building; Lang Development Group, a Newark company that owns several mixed-use apartment buildings in and around downtown; the Onix Group, a Kennett Square, Pa., company that manages more than 50 properties on the East Coast; Integrated Infrastructure LLC, a newly-created firm run by a civil engineer from Middletown; and Newark Development Trust, LLC, which was part of a previous garage plan in 2011.

Under the terms of the RFP, proposed projects will be a public-private partnership that includes a mix of retail space and at least 400 parking spaces. The city would likely lease back and operate the parking garage portion.

The proposals were scheduled to be discussed publicly during an Aug. 24 Downtown Newark Partnership Parking Committee meeting, but ended up not being discussed due to a legal dispute with one firm that demanded secrecy.

Integrated Infrastructure's proposal contains a cover page mandating the plan "shall not be disclosed outside the government." The company contends that details of the proposal can only be made public once a contract is awarded.

The city recently released heavily-redacted versions of the proposals, with nearly all specific information, including the square footage, cost and design details, removed. Only the names of the companies and various superfluous information, such as biographies of the companies' executives, remain visible.

On Monday night, council narrowly decided not to release a memo from City Solicitor Bruce Herron that would have explained the reasons behind the redactions. Only Councilmembers Wallace, Mark Morehead and Stu Markham were in favor of disclosing the memo.

Wallace said council has seen the unredacted versions of the proposals, but she wants residents to be a part of what was supposed to be a public process. On Monday, she questioned how the city expects to hold public presentations for each proposal without public input.

"When is the public going to have an opportunity to see these RFPs if the pertinent information is redacted?" she asked.

Several other council members also said they were surprised the proposals were confidential, which prompted Herron to suggest council pull the current RFP, notify the bidders and issue a new RFP clearly stating the proposals will be public.

However, Robert McGurk, head of Integrated Infrastructure, urged them not to do so. He argued that the RFP specifically stated the city does not want collusion between bidders. If his proposal is public, he's worried other firms will see his plans and use them in their presentations.

"[You need to] preserve the bid process so that my ideas aren't picked up by other bidders and vice versa, so that when you are evaluating proposals and presentations, you are reviewing proposals on their merits and not reviewing proposals that are taking out from other proposals," McGurk said.

But State Rep. John Kowalko thought council should consider disqualifying the bidder that doesn't want to disclose its plans.

"You are not hostages to an attorney," he said.

Kowalko thinks the city made a mistake in judgement, albeit not deliberately, and suggested it contact the attorney general's office for advice on how to move forward.

"You can't keep [the proposals] secret until you pick a winner," he said. "That's not the way it works. That's not the way government works."

Wallace made a motion to uphold Herron's recommendation to pull the current RFP and issue a new one. The motion passed 6 to 1, with Councilman Todd Ruckle as the only opposing vote.

On Wednesday, Wallace said council voted to issue the RFP for the parking garage back in June based on the notion that the public would be involved throughout the entire process.

"It seemed the path that we were heading down was very different than the path that was discussed," she said.

Once the proposals were released, she said, several constituents reached out with concerns regarding government transparency and she knew it wasn't right. She said reissuing the RFP is a necessary step to heal the lingering mistrust some residents still feel.

"I think the city gets that and I'm reassured by that," Wallace said.

Caregiver charged with assaulting autistic child

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

A caregiver from a group home owned by the Christina School District has been charged with abusing an autistic child in her care, according to Delaware State Police.

Harrietta Kanda, 53, of New Castle, is facing charges of second-degree child abuse (recklessly or intentionally causing physical injury to a child with intellectual disabilities) as well as endangering the welfare of a child.

The incident dates back to April 8, when a co-worker saw Kanda striking the non-verbal 13-year-old boy in the kitchen of the group home, located at 30 Glyn Drive near Newark.

According to DSP spokesman

KANDA

Richard Bratz, Kanda told the child to go to the kitchen to clean up his area after dinner. A few minutes later, the co-worker heard the child yell out and went into the kitchen to see Kanda standing over top the child.

"Kanda had her hands on the front of his shirt collar lifting him up off of the floor," Bratz said. "Kanda was then seen striking him several times in the back, neck and head area with a closed fist."

The co-worker separated Kanda and the child, and the following day, the incident was reported to a child abuse hotline. On April 11, a school nurse examined the child and saw scratches on the back of his neck and redness and bruising on his upper right arm.

After conferring with the attorney general's office, DSP obtained a warrant for Kanda's arrest on Sept. 8 and arrested her Tuesday.

She was issued a $2,000 unsecured bail and ordered not to contact anyone under the age of 18.

The Manor Group Home is located on the same property as McVey Elementary School and provides residential and respite care for a small group of students served through the Delaware Autism Program, according to Christina School District spokeswoman Wendy Lapham. Kanda, an employee of the district, is on administrative leave.

Fire damages shed, two homes in Chestnut Hill Estates

An out-of-control garbage fire destroyed a shed and then spread to two nearby houses in the Chestnut Hill Estates neighborhood east of Newark on Tuesday.

The blaze broke out just before 2:30 p.m. in the unit block of West Stephen Drive, according to Alan Brown, assistant state fire marshal.

Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Fire Company, assisted by several neighboring fire companies, arrived on the scene with smoke showing. There were no injuries, and the fire was under control within 45 minutes, Brown said.

The cause was the homeowner burning trash, he added.

Six residents and one dog were displaced.

CVS store robbed for second time in a month

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

The CVS drugstore in Brookside was robbed Monday morning for the second time in a month.

The masked robber entered the store, located at 366 E. Chestnut Hill Road, at 11:17 a.m., displayed a handgun and confronted two clerks and a delivery person.

He ordered the clerks to give him money from the cash registers, and the clerks complied, according to Delaware State Police spokesman Richard D.

Bratz.

After receiving the money, the robber ran out of the store and was last seen running behind the building. No one was injured.

The first robbery happened at 8:45 a.m. Aug. 26 when a masked robber demanded and received cash from a cash register.

Police have not said if they believe the incidents are connected, but the suspect description is the same in both cases: a white man approximately 150 pounds and between 5 feet 7 inches and 5 feet 10 inches and wearing a dark hooded sweatshirt and dark pants with his face covered.

The only discernable difference between the incidents is that no weapon was displayed during the Aug. 26 robbery.

Anyone with information about the robbery is asked to contact Delaware State Police at 302-365-8566. Information may also be provided by calling Delaware Crime Stoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333, via the internet at www.delaware.crimestoppersweb.com, or by sending an anonymous tip by text to 274637 (CRIMES) using the keyword "DSP."

Two men take resident's laptop, iPhone and wallet

A Tyre Avenue resident experienced an after-party gone wrong last week when two men he invited over after meeting them at a bar stole his belongings.

According to Newark Police spokesman Cpl. James Spadola, the incident occurred sometime between 1 a.m. and 9 a.m. Sept. 9 in the unit block of Tyre Avenue.

The victim told police he met two men at a Main Street bar and invited them back to his house. He fell asleep shortly after they arrived and when he woke up, he noticed his Apple MacBook Pro, iPhone 6, wallet and a pair of shorts were missing.

Spadola said the victim did not know the men prior to meeting them at the bar and described them both only as Hispanic with black hair and roughly 5 feet, 10 inches tall.

Council delays vote on negotiations to buy Rodney site

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

The city of Newark appears to be inching closer to a decision on whether to purchase the University of Delaware's Rodney dorm complex, but it will have to wait at least until later this month.

The agenda for last Monday's council meeting included a "potential vote" on giving direction to the city's special counsel concerning negotiations to acquire the 7.24-acre property on Hillside Road. The vote would have followed a closed-doors session during which council members discussed details of the potential acquisition.

However, council took no action upon returning from executive session.

Notice of the potential vote was added to the agenda last Friday, less than the usual seven-days notice. City spokesman Kelly Bachman said Saturday that the item was properly noticed because the executive session was on the original agenda, and council can vote on issues discussed during executive session after returning to the public session.

"Additional information was posted as a courtesy once it became apparent that potential votes regarding matters discussed in executive session may occur," Bachman said.

City officials first discussed the possibility of buying the Rodney site for use as a stormwater pond in March 2015, shortly after UD announced it would shut down Rodney and the nearby Dickinson dorm complex. The last students moved out in May 2015, and both properties were fenced off and have been vacant, though several police departments have used the buildings as a training site.

Last year, Public Works Director Tom Coleman explained that two 48-inch stormwater pipes meet under Rodney and funnel into one 24-inch pipe. If the city can purchase the site and raze the buildings, the plan is to open up the two pipes and let the water flood into an artificial pond designed to collect and retain stormwater, reducing the flow of water during a 100-year storm by 75 to 90 percent.

The pond can either be "wet," meaning it is always full, or "dry," meaning water levels fluctuate with rainfall. A dry pond is designed to hold water during a storm and then drain out, Coleman said.

Regardless of the design, Coleman said, the stormwater pond would help relieve flooding on either side of the western area drainage ditch that runs from South Main Street to the Christina River south of Silverbrook. When the ditch overflows, it floods the Old Newark neighborhood, including Apple Road, Beverly Road and Dallas Avenue.

One idea floated also involves creating a park-like atmosphere surrounding the pond. An artist's rendering released by the city shows a pedestrian bridge spanning the width of the pond with an island in the center.

Last year, council voted to retain Mark Dunkle from the law firm Parkowski, Guerke & Swayze, P.A., to help the city explore acquiring the land and hired Appraisal Associates, Inc., to appraise the 7.24-acre Rodney property. The city has also spent approximately $50,000 on an environmental site assessment of the land.

In order to purchase the site, the city likely would need to hold a referendum to seek voters' approval to take on debt. The price tag "will be in the millions," Coleman said last year.

The next council meeting is set for Sept. 26, but the agenda is not yet available.

Oktoberfest means dancing, food, beer and fun

POST STAFF REPORT

The Delaware Saengerbund, a German-American singing society founded in March 1853, became an important social club for newly arriving German immigrants. In the present day, its activities encourage the study and use of the German language, culture, traditions and customs.

Chief among the group's cultural celebrations is its annual Oktoberfest.

This year's Oktoberfest will take place this weekend at the Delaware Saengerbund and Library Association on Salem Church Road near Newark. Nearly 20,000 people attend the three-day festival.

The celebration begins at 5 p.m. Friday, with the opening parade at 7 p.m., and closes at 11 p.m.

The fun continues from noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Enzian Volkstanzgruppe, the Bavarian dance group of the Delaware Saengerbund, will entertain at intervals during the festival. The group performs in traditional costumes, with the men in "lederhosen," buckskin leather pants, and the women wearing a "dirndl," a dress consisting of skirt, blouse, vest, apron and shawl, completed with a special hat.

When the EVTG is not dancing, German music will be provided Friday and Saturday night and Sunday afternoon by Almwind. In addition, Heidi and Heimat Echo will play

Saturday afternoon.

Along with the traditional entertainment, Oktoberfest guests look forward to plenty of beer and food — German specialties include grilled bratwurst (pork sausage), Weisswurst (veal sausage), Frankfurters, pretzels, potato salad, sauerkraut and "rollmops," a marinated herring served with rye bread. A variety of torten and traditional plum cake will satisfy guests' sweet tooth.

Oktoberfest souvenirs will include mugs, glassware, T-shirts, hats and other accessories.

Admission to Oktoberfest is $8 per person. Unlimited free amusement rides are included in the admission price. Midway games set up by the amusement company will have an additional cost.

Remote parking will be available at Christiana High School. The parking cost is $5 Friday and Saturday, free on Sunday, and includes a shuttle to and from the entrance gate of Oktoberfest.

Hall-Long wins Democratic nod for Lt. Gov.

Townsend's congressional bid falls short

By JOSH SHANNON
and KARIE SIMMONS
Newark Post

Newark-area State Sen. Bethany Hall-Long defeated five opponents to win the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor Tuesday night in the state primary election.

Meanwhile, State Sen. Bryan Townsend, the other Newark-area legislator seeking higher office this year, fell short in his bid for the Democratic nomination for Delaware's lone congressional seat.

Hall-Long garnered approximately 29 percent of the vote, receiving about 4,000 votes more than her closest competitor, Wilmington Councilwoman Sherry Dorsey Walker.

"I'm very humbled and very honored," Hall-Long said Tuesday night.

Hall-Long spent six years in the state house and the last eight years in the state senate, where she represents the 10th district, which includes southern Newark, Glasgow and Middletown.

As a nurse and nursing professor at the University of Delaware, Hall-Long said she believes the state needs to look at its health care costs. In particular, Hall-Long would like to see increased investment in prevention, in managing chronic diseases and in the health of seniors, whose Medicaid costs make up much of the state's health care expenses.

"A six-way race is really a challenge, especially against other Democrats," Hall-Long said, speculating that her "broad reach" and attention to a variety of issues helped push her over the top.

"People trust nurses," she said, adding, "They know my track record of health care and getting things done for seniors."

In the Nov. 8 general election, Hall-Long will face Republican La Mar T. Gunn, who runs a wealth management firm in Dover. Gunn did not face a primary challenger Tuesday. The lieutenant governor's seat has been empty for more than 18 months, ever since Matt Denn became attorney general.

Townsend was hoping to make it to Washington, but on Tuesday night, his run for Congress fell about 12,000 votes short.

Townsend came in second in the six-way race for U.S. House of Representatives with 15,830 votes – approximately 25 percent of the total. He was bested by Lisa Blunt Rochester, who won with 27,876 votes, or approximately 44 percent.

Blunt Rochester, 54, is best known as a former state secretary of labor but before that, she served as deputy secretary of the state Department of Health and Social Services. She became the state's personnel director in 2001 and later CEO of the Metropolitan Wilmington Urban League.

She could not be reached for comment on Tuesday.

Townsend supporters gathered at The Mill in Wilmington to watch as the results of the primary poured in, but it wasn't long before the outcome was clear. Shortly after the majority of the districts were reported, Townsend stepped out to voice his support for Blunt Rochester and pledged to help her beat Republican Hans Reigle in the general election.

"But make no mistake, tonight hurts," he said. "It's not the outcome, honestly, our grassroots-style campaign is used to."

He commended his campaign staff and volunteers, who he said ran an aggressive door-knocking and phone call campaign across the state, and thanked his supporters for their donations. Townsend raised approximately $651,575 for his campaign, not including the $20,000 he loaned himself, and the majority of the contributions were from individual donors.

"We ended up funding our campaign the way campaigns are supposed to be funded, and it didn't happen by magic," he said.

Townsend, 35, was first elected to the state senate in 2012 for a term shortened by redistricting and then was re-elected in 2014 after beating New Castle County Councilman David Tackett in the primary and running unopposed in the general election. He currently works as an attorney in Wilmington and lives near Newark with his wife, Lilianna. Only halfway through his current term, he will retain his state senate seat.

Townsend announced his bid for Congress last September and ran on a platform that focused on education and a federal solution to gun safety. He also wanted to work on incarceration issues, addiction help and student loan burdens.

"Lisa and I agree on all of these things," Townsend said Tuesday.

In other races, State Sen. Colin Bonini earned the Republican gubernatorial nomination, earning 70 percent of the vote to defeat former state trooper Lacey Lafferty. He will face Democrat John Carney in November.

New Castle County Executive Tom Gordon was defeated by Wilmington attorney Matt Meyer, who garnered 52 percent of the vote to Gordon's 48 percent. If Gordon had gone on to run and win in November, it would have been an unprecedented fourth term for the Democrat.

Instead, Meyer, who hit Gordon hard on ethics issues, will go on to face Republican Mark Blake, who easily defeated primary challenger Barry Nahe with 83 percent of the vote. Blake unsuccessfully ran against Gordon in 2012.

Democrat Karen Hartley-Nagle, a member of the county board of adjustments and former congressional candidate, won a three-person primary for president of county council, drawing 49 percent of the vote. With no Republican in the race, she is the de facto winner in November.

The insurance commissioner race also saw an incumbent unseated. New Castle County Sheriff Trinidad Navarro defeated Democratic incumbent Karen Weldin Stewart, who has served in that role since 2008. He will go on to face Republican Jeffrey Craig, who narrowly edged out George Parish in Tuesday's primary.

In the District 9 state senate race, union electrician Jack Walsh defeated University of Delaware employee Caitlin Olsen, 57 percent to 43 percent. With no Republican in the race, Walsh is the de facto winner to replace the retiring Karen Peterson, who endorsed Olsen.

District 9 represents the extreme eastern part of Newark – including White Chapel, Fountainview, Stafford and Windy Hills – as well as parts of Pike Creek, Stanton and Newport.

Newark Senior Center unveils space for early memory loss program

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@chespub.com

The Newark Senior Center's early memory loss program, once small and squished into a temporary space, now has plenty of room to grow — 3,500 square feet, to be exact.

Last week, senior center members, volunteers and local and state government officials joined Executive Director Carla Grygiel in officially opening the new space, which was recently renovated to meet the needs of the program, which is called Meeting of Minds.

For more than a decade, the room inside the Newark Senior Center was home to the adult daytime program Senior Care of Newark. However, in July, Senior Care of Newark moved to Red Mill Square on Capitol Trail.

Grygiel said Meeting of Minds is for seniors who are experiencing the early stages of memory impairment, but don't necessarily need the intensive services provided by Senior Care of Newark.

For $30 a day, family members can drop off their loved ones for four hours of music, art, socialization, physical activity, puzzles and games. The price also includes lunch and transportation, if necessary.

Grygiel said Meeting of Minds used to be held in a much smaller room — limiting membership and activities — and had no permanent place at the center to call home. She said the program was originally supposed to be temporary, but the response from the community convinced her it needed to stay and it needed to grow.

"When we started it in January 2015, we weren't sure if it was going to be popular, but on the second day, the caregivers said, 'Please, don't stop this,'" Grygiel said. "There was a waiting list of people who wanted to come, so we knew there was a need."

The new space can accommodate up to 25 members each day, which Grygiel said is good for socialization. She said people dealing with memory loss often feel isolated and lonely.

"When they come here, they almost blossom," Grygiel said. "They almost come back to life because someone is paying attention to them."

"It's also a really hard time for families," she added. "They almost always need a break."

Renovations cost roughly $176,000 and were paid for with private donations and grants. Grygiel said the goal was to create a calming, oasis-like environment for members and a place their families would feel comfortable leaving them.

Jean Williams, former senior center executive director, walked around the room last week impressed by the outcome. She said she saw the need for Meeting of Minds when she was in charge and is glad it has finally come together.

"We're living longer, but our minds aren't keeping up, so there is a lot more dementia and memory loss going on," she said. "There aren't a lot of programs like this. They really made good use of the space."

Green Party candidate Jill Stein to speak in Newark

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

The Green Party's Jill Stein will bring her presidential campaign to Newark today.

The event is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the George Wilson Center, 303 New London Road. Stein is expected to begin speaking at approximately 11 a.m. and may take questions after her prepared remarks.

"She's passing through Delaware for a big rally in Baltimore that night," George Cannon, regional volunteer coordinator, said. "She wanted to stop by Delaware and give us a boost."

The event is open to the public. The George Wilson Center seats approximately 150 people, and speakers will be set up outside to allow any overflow crowd to hear Stein, Cannon said.

A physician from Lexington, Mass., Stein served two terms in Lexington town government. She has also run for office several times on the Green Party ticket.

This is her second time running for president.

Stein founded a nonprofit that fights for health care, local green economies, environmental protection and labor rights, and she is known as an activist for health and environmental issues.

Last week, she made headlines while protesting a proposed pipeline in North Dakota that a Native American tribe says would disrupt and pollute sacred land. Authorities there issued a warrant for Stein's arrest after she spray-painted a bulldozer.

Along with Libertarian Gary Johnson, Stein is pushing to be included in the upcoming presidential debates. However, under debate rules, in order to be invited, candidates must draw at least 15 percent of support in national polls.

Bob Cronin reappointed to the planning commission

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@chespub.com

Council voted Monday night to reappoint Bob Cronin to another three-year term on the planning commission.

Cronin, who lives in District 1, has been on the board since August 2012 and has lived in the city for 60 years, according to his application. He has 25 years of experience as a local realtor and is the former chair of the New Castle County Board of Realtors Public Policy Committee as well as a former Newark Historical Society board member.

Cronin wrote on his reappointment application that because he is a realtor, a conflict of interest with a past, present or future client is possible. He stated his decision to recuse himself would be based on the situation.

Back in 2014, Cronin recused himself from voting on a developer's plan to demolish the Newark New Century Club on East Delaware Avenue and build a mixed-use building with office space, parking and apartments due to a conflict of interest. The project was ultimately approved by council and built a year later.

On Monday night, council unanimously approved Cronin's new term, which will expire Sept. 15, 2019. Councilman Mark Morehead recused himself from the vote due to his business relationship with Cronin.

Council restricts parking on Sunset Road

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@chespub.com

Only residents and guests with special permits are allowed to park on Sunset Road following a vote by council Monday night to restrict both sides of the street.

Newark Police Deputy Chief Kevin Feeney, who also chairs the Traffic Committee, said three households on or adjacent to Sunset Road submitted requests to the city to prohibit parking on the north side of the street between Beverly and Townsend Roads, except for residents with permits.

He said residents have been complaining about University of Delaware students parking on their street to go to class and sometimes leaving their cars there for several days.

Parking is already prohibited on the south side of Sunset Road from South College Avenue to Apple Road and on the north side from South College Avenue to Orchard Road and from Beverly to Apple Roads. However, Feeney said, there are no restrictions on the north side from Orchard to Beverly Roads.

On June 21, the Traffic Committee recommended council bring consistency to Sunset Road by banning parking on both sides for its entire length. The committee also suggested council identify Sunset Road between Beverly and Orchard Roads as a special residential parking district, meaning residents will need to apply for a special parking permit in order to park on the street and get guest parking permits for visitors.

Council voted Monday to implement the Traffic Committee's recommendation.

Third quarter spoils Zehnder's head coaching debut

Buzz from the Hive

An insider's look at Yellowjacket football

By JON BUZBY

JonBuzby@hotmail.com

Newark and St. Mark's battled almost blow for blow in the first half of the season opener Sept. 9, and the Yellowjackets trailed by just seven coming out of The Hive for the second half.

However, it was the third quarter that made the difference, with the Spartans outscoring Newark by two touchdowns and pulling away for the 27-7 victory.

"Obviously, the game didn't go the way we would have liked it to, but St. Mark's is a well-coached, tough opponent," Newark head coach Barry Zehnder said. "They made the plays they needed to make and we made more mistakes than plays."

Newark's one scoring play came when Mekhi Pressey hauled in a 20-yard pass from Andrew DelPercio. It was a bright spot on a night when the offense struggled.

"We made too many little mistakes that killed us," DelPercio said. "We also should have capitalized on the mistakes St. Mark's made. We have a lot to clean up."

While the opening loss was certainly disappointing, head coach Barry Zehnder saw some things that pleased him.

"I like the way some of our players continued to play hard until the end and the way we were working to force turnovers," Zehnder said. "I also liked the support from the crowd the entire game and excitement that you could feel in the stadium."

Zehnder also mentioned two areas that he knows his team needs to improve heading into the Blue Hen Conference schedule next week.

"Our substitution execution needs to be cleaned up," Zehnder said. "And our coverage on special teams was a major issue last night, as well."

Defensive coordinator Mike Brogan has been through dozens of opening games — 31 to be exact — and so came away with a unique perspective of both the team and its new head coach.

"Coach Zehnder has come in and poured his heart and soul into the program," he said. "He is not asking the kids to give any more than what we have asked for."

"While last night's loss was disappointing, this group will respond and we will rebound. Without singling out some individuals, we have some warriors."

A new tradition

Newark High teachers and staff were invited to be honorary captains at the home opener. Nearly 30 guests joined the four Yellowjacket captains near midfield for the coin toss.

This week's honorary captain has not yet been announced.

This week's game

Newark hosts Mount Pleasant tonight at 7 p.m. The Green Knights are coming off an easy 41-6 win over Brandywine.

"Mount is riding high after making the playoffs last year and getting a win Week 1 this year," Zehnder said. "Coach (Randy) Holmes and his staff are doing a great job with them and using the athletes they have gotten to come out for football the last few years."

Barry Zehnder takes the field following halftime. Last Friday's game was Zehnder's first as Newark's head coach.

Those athletes led Mount Pleasant to the playoffs last year for the first time since 1981. The regular-season game between Newark and Mount Pleasant last year, which was also played the second week of the season, ended as a one-point win for the Green Knights, 35-34. The element of revenge for many of the current Yellowjackets on the field for that excruciating loss provides one more reason to be excited about this week's game.

"I have faith in my guys to learn from the game and rebound and work hard at practice this week," DelPercio said. "Now it's time to focus on beating Mount Pleasant."

Glasgow High opens with gridiron win; Christiana struggles

By JON BUZBY

JonBuzby@hotmail.com

The Glasgow Dragons journeyed by bus as far as you can and still be playing in the state of Delaware when they trekked south to Seaford last Friday afternoon to open their 2016 football season.

Fortunately for the Dragons, the long trip was worth it as they traveled back home with a 66-12 win under their belts.

"This game was a big confidence booster for us," Glasgow head coach Shannon Riley said. "I knew we could be an explosive and dominant team. We played great in all phases of the game."

The special teams unit was responsible for the early ex-plosiveness that propelled the Dragons off to a fast start, scoring on back-to-back punt returns to give Glasgow a 24-0 lead after one quarter.

Senior Tyrique Woodland scored on the first punt return with a 63-yard jaunt into the end zone, and then the Dragons' defense forced Seaford to punt again and this time it was senior Ja'Saan Cunningham fielding the ball and sprinting 70 yards into the end zone.

"My blockers set up a wall and I followed them until I had an opening," Cunningham said.

The special teams unit scored again in the second quarter when Jones ran a kickoff back 55 yards to give Glasgow a 36-0 lead and more or less put the game out of reach.

Junior Isaiah Wilson started the first game of the season at quarterback for the third-straight year and had a nearly perfect performance completing 8 of 9 passes for 197 yards and two touchdowns.

"Isaiah was very poised," Riley said. "[The team] still has a lot to work on but I like where we are after week one."

Glasgow will try to make it two straight wins when it hosts McKean tonight at 7.

"We plan on reminding our players about what happened last year," Riley said of the Dragons' narrow 20-19 loss to McKean. "We had a big win [against Seaford] and took McKean for granted. Our players have had this game circled on the schedule. They will be focused."

Christiana High drops opener

Christiana was hoping to open the 2016 season by avenging last year's opening loss to Conrad.

Instead, it was Conrad that made it two consecutive wins with a convincing 44-8 victory over the Vikings. Despite the loss, head coach Virgil Rush remained optimistic.

"There are plenty of positives to take away from the game," Rush said. "We were winning 8-7 at halftime, so we showed that we can play with a playoff-caliber team."

Like many teams playing in the hot and humid conditions across the state on Saturday, the Vikings lost players due to cramping.

"Our issue was conditioning in the second half," Virgil explained. "We lost our top five wide receivers to cramps, and four of those guys are defensive starters."

The lone score for Christiana came in the second quarter when junior quarterback Christopher Chege connected with senior Zakaria Barnes for a 25-yard touchdown.

Christiana travels to Hodgson on Saturday morning for a 10:30 a.m. game. The Silver Eagles opened up with a 27-12 win over Lake Forest.

Suburban Plaza event honors first responders

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

Hundreds turned out to Suburban Plaza on Saturday for an event honoring local first responders.

Dubbed "Hot Dogs for Heroes," the event was planned to coincide with the weekend of the 15th anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks.

"I'm a huge patriot and the son of a trooper," said Acme employee Beth Howell, who organized the fundraiser. "I just felt we needed a community day."

Howell and her co-workers sold hot dogs and other food to raise money for the Newark Police Department K-9 unit and Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co.

Both agencies participated in the event, setting up demonstrations in the shopping center parking lot. NPD officers Cpl. Adam Stevens and Cpl. Robert Sharpe introduced visitors to K-9 Peti, while the fire department displayed two of its fire trucks and handed out plastic firefighter's hats to kids.

Howell said the event raised approximately $450 for each agency, plus another $500 that an attendee donated directly to NPD.

Howell, of North East, Md., has been working at the Suburban Plaza Acme for 13 years and convinced her bosses to sign off on the event as a way to show first responders that the community "has their six," police lingo for having their back. She plans to make it an annual event.

"I'm very honored to be able to do it. Coming from a military background and a police background, it runs deep in my family," she said, adding that her son is a Maryland State Trooper. "They're here to take care of us, so we've got to have their back somehow."

'It's a hole in my heart and it never closes'

Newark ceremony honors victims of 9/11

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@chespub.com

Every day for the past 15 years, Ruth Fangman has flown a small American flag in the window of her car, even keeping extras in stock in case one is damaged or lost.

It's a small gesture she does as a way to honor the memory of her son, Bobby, and the 2,996 other people who died in the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

Bobby was a flight attendant on United Airlines Flight 175, which was the second plane to be flown into the World Trade Center on that fateful day. He was 33 when he died.

"It's a hole in my heart and it never closes, that's for sure," she said.

Members of the Fangman family were the guests of honor at a 9/11 memorial ceremony held at Newark's city hall last Friday, two days before the 15th anniversary of the attacks. City officials issued a proclamation in honor of Patriot Day and vowed to continue holding remembrances each year.

The ceremony was organized at the urging of Steve Fangman, Bobby's brother, who said that it seems like in recent years, many people have forgotten about 9/11.

"What hurts us is when on Patriot Day, you drive around and don't see any flags," he said. "You saw them for two years after 9/11, but you don't see them any more. We're hoping these kind of events will inspire the country to come together again."

Robert "Bobby" Fangman was the youngest of seven siblings and grew up in Claymont.

Steve described his brother as a "free spirit" who loved life and loved traveling. It was that wanderlust that drove him to become a flight attendant.

"He walked away from a job with Verizon Wireless making $70,000 a year to go be a flight attendant and do what he loved to do," Steve said.

Bobby lived that dream for less than a year before he boarded Flight 175 in Boston the morning of 9/11. He wasn't supposed to work that flight but had switched with another flight attendant.

Suffering from survivor's guilt, that flight attendant later reached out to the family and told them about a chance meeting she had with Bobby the morning of his last flight. She recalled him excitedly discussing the sightseeing he planned to do after the plane landed in Los Angeles and he had some free time.

"This woman was so touched by it that she actually made that trip for him," Steve said. "She did everything on his agenda to accomplish that for him."

The family later learned that Bobby was the one who called his airline from the back of the plane to report the hijacking.

"I wasn't on that plane, but I guarantee you that after he called it in, then he sat down and comforted the people around him because that's who he was," Steve said.

Councilwoman Marge Hadden, who spearheaded last week's ceremony, said remembering the victims of the terrorist attacks is important.

"To forget will deny them their place in history. To forget would be cowardly because we wouldn't have to face the reality of that time," Hadden said. "We must always remember the day and all those who died and the actions of all those who stepped forward."

She hopes that Newark's Patriot Day ceremony becomes an annual tradition and encouraged all Newarkers to fly flags at half-staff each Sept. 11.

"The 9/11 terror acts against us destroyed lives, buildings and plunged our nation into a new type of war," she said. "But the acts didn't destroy our will, our freedoms or our spirit. We overcame. And now it's our job to pass along to generations to come that moment in history we lived through."

City Manager Carol Houck also touched on that theme, noting that the students entering high school this year are the first class to be born after 9/11 and are learning about the attacks strictly as a historical event.

"That fact, in my mind, heightens our responsibility to tell the stories of courage that defined our nation that day," Houck said.

Cousins Chloe and Eevie Hitchens, both 4, wear the hats they received from Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co. firefighters on Saturday.

to not only increase safety and accessibility, but also reduce traffic and air pollution.

Downes Elementary worked with the Newark Bicycle Committee and the Wilmington Area Planning Council (WILMAPCO) on a proposal to improve the Casho Mill Road area that surrounds the school and was recently awarded the grant to do the work, although the amount has not yet been announced.

Randi Novakoff, WILMAPCO's public outreach manager, said that in the past, schools have received approximately $125,000 for SRTS projects, and Downes should expect to get a similar amount. She said the next step is to prioritize the work to make sure the money is spent where it's needed most.

"Unfortunately, $125,000 doesn't go very far," Novakoff said.

According to Mark Deshon, chair of the Newark Bicycle Committee, the primary goal is to provide safe bicycle travel along Casho Mill Road between Barksdale Road and Nottingham Road by creating buffered or protected bike lanes on the road shoulders. In addition, the project will likely involve some pedestrian enhancements, including relocating the crosswalk from Lafayette Road closer to the school entrance and installing better signage and a refuge median.

There is also talk of adding ADA ramps to the sidewalks and reducing the speed limit on Casho Mill Road from 30 mph to 25 mph as vehicles approach the 20 mph limit enforced in front of the school.

"Obviously, when you're dealing with kids who are walking or biking to school, you don't want people who are essentially commuting to their jobs to be screaming by," Deshon said.

Sandra Hudson said approximately 20 percent of Downes students walk or ride their bikes, but that number is low in comparison to the number of children who live within a one-mile radius of the school. Instead, many students get dropped off and picked up by their parents, which she said crowds the tight parking lot.

"We have a lot of congestion in our car-rider lot," Hudson said.

If it was safer to walk and ride to school, Hudson said, there would be fewer cars and as a result, less air pollution and noise in the parking lot. Students would also get some early morning exercise, which studies show helps with academics.

Hudson said Downes has been a part of SRTS for several years in order to incentivize students. The program has been chipping in to give away reflectors, key chains, helmets and even bikes to those who participate, but she admitted it takes more than a few cool prizes to make a lasting impact.

"When we heard about the grant, we jumped at the opportunity," Hudson said. "We're all about wellness and about having a healthy school, so this fell right into our mission statement."

Conceptual design planning is currently underway and the goal is to implement the improvements during the 2017-2018 school year. Once completed, Hudson has a feeling more students will be walking, pedaling, scooting and skating to school.

"I think it's going to be really great," she said. "I'm excited."

Out of the Past

Editor's note: Volunteers at the Pencader Heritage Museum have been digitizing old Newark City Council meeting minutes. They share excerpts with Newark Post readers in a weekly column.

October-November 1928: Platt & Cohen complained that when electric poles were replaced on South Chapel Street, the original poles belonged to the company and the town took them away. Meanwhile, complaints were made against Platt & Cohen that blood from its butchering business had an offensive odor and was interfering with sewer effectiveness.

Those behind in paying sewer bills would be sent a copy of ordinance pertaining to payments. A request by H. Godfrey to have his driveway curb-cut moved was tabled. The railroad crossing at Newark Center was in poor condition.

Dr. Pearson charged $10 to examine two men for drunkenness, a bill which council thought was "exorbitant" and tabled it until next month. Jonathan Johnson would lose his license to sell milk in town if he didn't raise the butterfat content and improve storage methods. Two businesses, Robert Davis Grocery Store (located where Herman's Quality Meats is now) and the Blue Hen Tea Room, billed the town for ice cream lost when the electric service failed, but council refused to pay since it didn't want to set a precedent.

The Hurd and Cooch residences on West Main Street had gas service issues. Mr. Handloff offered use of his lots on Delaware Avenue for parking, and the street committee was to research costs of lighting and cinderling, reporting back to council. The Lum Development (now Lumbrook area) residents wanted a fire hydrant installed, at its cost because it was outside town limits, and council agreed.

See the original minutes at Pencader Heritage Museum, 2029 Sunset Lake Rd. (Rt. 72 south of Newark.) Regularly open first and third Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Other times by appointment. Contact the website pencaderheritage.org or call 302-737-5792 for an appointment. Family friendly, handicapped accessible and always free.

BREWERY

From

interest in opening an alcohol production facility with distribution operations. She said the requests included microbreweries with tasting rooms and beer gardens with and without limited food service.

However, none of those uses are permitted under the current zoning code, which only allows brew pubs with a special-use permit in certain zoning districts, where the brewing is an accessory to a full-service restaurant, like at Iron Hill Brewery on Main Street. The code does not allow alcohol production as the primary use, nor does it allow accessory uses that involve selling alcohol manufactured on site.

Feeney Roser said Monday that because of the interest the city has received and the growing trend of microbreweries, wineries and distilleries around the country, council should consider amending the code to allow small-scale alcohol production and sales in certain zoning districts, with a special-use permit and specific conditions.

"I think downtown is pretty healthy and we've been asked to look around at what could help other areas of town and I think that this might be something that could stimulate some new tenancies in shopping centers, as long as we can come up with a list of conditions that can make sure that they're well-run and that we're monitoring them," she said. Several members on council said their constituents have been "screaming for this," and, like Feeney Roser, they have also been contacted by people interested in opening microbreweries.

"I'm all for it," said Councilman Todd Ruckle.

Councilman Mark Morehead said he supports the idea, but doesn't want a microbrewery near a residential district, while Councilwoman Jen Wallace shared concerns about water use and environmental waste.

Wallace liked the idea, but said instead of approving all microbreweries across the board, each owner should be required to get a special-use permit, so that every proposed facility has to come before council.

Newark resident Kent Steeves is one of the people interested in running a microbrewery. He told council on Monday that he and his wife want to open a beer garden and 10-barrel brewery that will produce roughly 450 barrels of craft beer in the first year.

He said they plan to offer free general tours of the facility and may charge for a more in-depth educational experience. They also want to serve light fare and have food trucks out on peak days.

However, he cautioned council against forcing microbreweries to serve food if and when the code is amended.

"We don't want a business to go out of business because they were forced to be a restaurant," Steeves said.

Joe Jasper, also from Newark, said he, too, wants to open a microbrewery and urged council to consider the benefits of people learning about the ingredients, process and hard work that goes into making craft beer.

He said Newark could be a part of Delaware's beer, wine and spirits trail, which is promoted by the state's tourism office and includes a collection of over 20 breweries, wineries, distilleries, cideries and meaderies across the state.

"This change would provide a new opportunity to put Newark on the map," Jasper said.

Ruckle assured the rest of the board that alcohol production facilities aren't going to entice students because they don't necessarily care about craft beer or the process of making it. He said microbreweries are trendy and would give residents something to do other than going to Main Street.

"They're breaking out all over the country, and we just have to get with the times," Ruckle said.

Miracle-Ear Hearing Centers is looking for qualified people to test their latest product, The Miracle-Ear® Open for FREE*!

Here's the catch: You must have difficulty hearing and understanding in background noise, and your hearing must fall in the range of the hearing aid. People that are selected will evaluate Miracle-Ear's latest advanced digital hearing solution – the Miracle-Ear Open. You will be able to walk in to our office and walk out hearing†!

Candidates will be asked to evaluate our instruments for 30 days (risk free*).

At the end of the 30 days, if you are satisfied with the improvement in your hearing and wish to keep the instrument, you may do so at tremendous savings.

But this is only for a limited time! You must schedule your appointment before September 23rd, 2016. Don't wait!

WE OFFER HEARING AIDS AT NO COST TO FEDERAL WORKERS AND RETIREES!

That's Right! No Co-Pay! No Exam Fee!
No Adjustment Fee!

September 19th-September 23rd

No MD Sales Tax!

Local Testing Area

Hearing tests are given for the purpose of selecting and adjustment of hearing instruments. Results may vary related to duration and severity of impairment. Early detection is important.

*Risk free offer, the aids must be returned within 30 days of delivery if not completely satisfied and 100% of purchase price will be refunded. Supplies may vary per office. Hearing aids do not restore natural hearing. Individual experiences vary depending on severity of loss, accuracy of evaluation, proper fit and ability to adapt to amplification. ©2012 Hearing Services, LLC
