Economy League
Approves Cash-
And-Carry Plan

A "cash-and-carry" basis to permit the sale of arms and other goods to belligerents in the current European conflict has been recommended by the National Council of the National Economic League with headquarters in Boston.

The result of a referendum vote taken October 11 among 797 members was released locally this week by Francis A. Cooch, a member in Delaware.

On the question: Do you believe the embargo should be retained to prevent any sale of arms to belligerents, and a cash-and-carry provision applied to the sale of all other goods to belligerents?—14 per cent, or 117 votes approved.

Members of the league in Delaware are: Francis A. Cooch, W. T. Grant, A. O. H. Grier, Harry G. Haskell, Otto Nowland, F. W. Piskard, John J. Raskob, John A. Sibley, Clarence A. Short, S. D. Townsend, and Robert W. Woodruff.

POULTERERS
MEMBERSHIP

Improvement Body
Ends Campaign
For Associates

With the closing of an intensified membership campaign, the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association, through its secretary, H. L. Richardson, extension poultryman at the University of Delaware, announces the enrollment of 470 new members.

According to Richardson, the group is a revival of the old Delaware State Poultry Improvement Association, an organization which was formed so that its members might have better opportunities to learn of new production, management, and marketing methods, and also be in a position to coordinate individual efforts to better conditions.

The membership campaign, which took the form of a contest, was carried on by 14 local poultry clubs in order to obtain a large membership in the revived organization.

The clubs signing up the most new members in each of the three counties were the Hoekessin Club in New Castle County with 49; the Camden Club in Kent County with 48; and the Frankford Club in Sussex County with 85.

The individual club members with the highest county records in the campaign were E. C. Phillips, Middletown, with 27 new members; W. H. Richter, Camden, with 11 new members; and F. M. Gum, Jr., Frankford, with 32 new members.

Richardson pointed out that the real work of the new organization will start the first of November when the program for 1940 will be worked out.

He said that the new organization is expected to provide the agricultural extension service with greater opportunity for work among Delaware poultrymen.

Totals for the various local poultry clubs in the membership campaign were as follows: NEW CASTLE COUNTY—Brandywine Club, 17; Hoekessin Club, 49; State Road Club, 40; Newark Club, 28; Middletown Club, 46; KENT COUNTY—Camden Club, 48; Hartley Club, 21; SUSSEX COUNTY—Milford Club, 29; Lewes Club, 38; Georgetown Club, 17; Greenwood Club, 29; Frankford Club, 85; Williamsonville Club, 23; Milton and Laurel Clubs, no report.

RECEIVE VISITORS

To Hold "Open House," American
Education Week

"Open House will be held all day next Wednesday at the Newark Public Schools in keeping with American Education Week proclaimed recently by Gov. Richard C. McMullen, Superintendent Carleton E. Douglass announced yesterday.

Patrons and friends of the local schools are cordially invited to attend any or all of the exercises planned for that day, the local school head said. Regular classes will be held.

Gov. McMullen, in proclaiming the period from Nov. 5 to Nov. 11 as American Education Week, urged state and local authorities to cooperate with civil and religious bodies in securing the most unanimous and general observance possible.

The governor declared that there is no observance in the United States of greater significance to the future of democracy than an observance centering around the public schools.

Gov. McMullen's proclamation is as follows:

"Whereas, the week beginning Nov. 5, 1939, has been designated as American Education Week. There is no observance in our country more significant toward the future of American democracy and the coming generations than our public schools, and

"Whereas, the general theme this year is 'Education for the American Way of Life'; The period set apart for American Education Week is the most important annual period of education interpretation for the nation's schools. It is the time when our schools report to the people in concert.

"Whereas, during this period many of our citizens will have the opportunity to consider the many important advantages which result from our educational system.

"Now, therefore, I, Richard C. McMullen, governor of the state of Delaware urge and recommend that state and local authorities cooperate with the civic and religious bodies of our state to secure the most general and unanimous observance of American Education Week during the period commencing Nov. 5 and ending Nov. 11, and that teachers in the schools arrange special programs during this time so we may all know more of our present day methods of education."

Monthly Meetings Creating Interest In Alumni Group

Numerous Plans
For Activities
Now Under Way

The newly inaugurated system of regular monthly meetings by the Newark High School Alumni Association is receiving popular and enthusiastic response, according to Albert C. Clark, president. Excellent attendance was recorded at the October session held last Thursday night when Miss Alice Blackson displayed pictures in color of her recent trip to California.

It is planned to have added attractions and special features at each regular business meeting. Tentative plans list illustrated talks by Miss Willa Dawson on South America, and William S. Armstrong, Jr., on products developed by the vast resources of the E. I. DuPont de Nemours and Co., Inc. Plans are also being made to sponsor a dance without cost to individual members of the association.

Card Party Announced

The high school gymnasium will be the scene of an Alumni card party next Tuesday evening. Mrs. Samuel P. Lockerman is general chairman of the affair, assisted by Mrs. F. Allyn Cooch, Jr., and Miss Anna Frazer, who are collecting prizes.

Mrs. R. T. Jones, a one-time president of the association, has announced a motion picture benefit to be held at the State Theatre on November 30 and 21. "Hollywood Calvacade," starring Alice Faye and Don Ameche and numerous other stars of the past and present, will be the picture shown at the benefit.

Tickets will soon be available for distribution through Mrs. Jones and her committee, also through Miss Helen Moore at Rhodes Drug Store, and at Jarmen and Moore's store, foot of S. College Avenue. The association receives a commission on all tickets sold through the committee.

New Members Added

Miss Edwin S. Shakerpear, chairman of the membership committee, reported sixteen new members at the October meeting, while Jack Doordan reported progress in plans for the annual Christmas dance to be held during the last week in December.

A play, tentatively scheduled for presentation this fall, has been postponed indefinitely when Mrs. A. D. Cobb will be enlisted to direct it.

Harry Williamson and Mr. Clark are endeavoring to develop interest in an Alumni basketball team to be inaugurated following the holidays.

Regular sessions are held on the last Wednesday night of the month in Room 117, Newark High School, at eight o'clock. The next meeting is scheduled for November 29.

Clough Draws
Schedule Of Accidents; Nine
Slain Oct. 1938

Delaware's safety record for October was not only one of the best for the year, but with only one death on the highway, the month just ended indicated a vast improvement over the same period last year when nine fatalities were recorded. Figures were announced by the State Police yesterday.

The lone highway fatality last month was a pedestrian in Milford. So far this year, 61 persons have been killed in auto accidents in the state outside Wilmington, compared with 52 during the corresponding period last year.

Eight Deaths In Wilmington

The total auto accident death toll for Delaware, including Wilmington, for this year is 68 compared with 62 during the first ten months of last year.

Supt. of State Police John R. Fader, commenting on the record made last month on the state highways, expressed the hope the public would continue to cooperate during the next two months of this year.

Edward E. Clough, head of the highway safety division of the state police, made a schedule of past fatal accidents recorded of the state outside Wilmington.

The only months since 1924 during which no deaths occurred were April, 1925; February, 1927; February, 1928; and January, 1935.

Other Record Months

The only months in which only one fatal accident occurred were January, February, June, November, and December, 1926; February and November, 1927; April, 1928; March, 1930; February, 1936; February, 1938, and June, this year.

Penny Hill station has had no fatal accidents in its territory in 34 days; State Road, in 31 days; Dover, in 11 days; Georgetown, in 36 days; and Bridgeville in 52 days.

Agricultural Board Seeks Quarantine Enforcement

Notice was received this week by the Board of Game and Fish Commissioners that regulations had been adopted by the Board of Agriculture for enforcement of the dog quarantine in New Castle County.

The area includes all of the county north of a line extending from New Castle through Stanton to and along the Limestone Road to the Pennsylvania line.

Strict Enforcement

Strict enforcement of the State Board of Agriculture regulations would provide for a fine up to $100 and imprisonment up to 30 days. The Board of Health is also expected to adopt enforcement regulations for the quarantine. This would provide a fine from $5 to $25 for violators.

The notice from the agriculture board stated the enforcement regulations had been adopted and requested the game board to take charges of enforcement of the regulations and note all violators.

Chief Game Warden Ralph Wilson pointed out, however, that with the game season already opened, in part, the wardens are busy in all parts of the state on regular game law enforcement duty. The game board is expected to take up the subject at its meeting tonight (Thursday).

Mr. Wilson explained the three wardens assigned to New Castle County will be available for enforcement of the dog quarantine now but it is questionable whether

RIGHTHOUSNESS IN THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:17-20, 28:45; 6:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—He who therefore perfects even as your Father who is in heaven is perfect.—Matthew 5:48.

"Righteousness in the kingdom," the title of our lesson, properly relates its teaching to the kingdom of the Messiah which is to come on the earth, and to the condition which shall then prevail. At the same time we agree with Dr. James M. Gray that "it would be wrong to press this too far and to say that, the Sermon on the Mount has no application whatever to the Christian church or the time in which we live, for God is the same through all dispensations and the underlying principles of His government never change."

Certainly it is true that if all of the men and all of the nations of the earth were on this Armistice Sunday true followers of Christ and ready to carry out the teachings of this lesson, there would no longer be any possibility of war. This means that the best peace propaganda is the sending of missionaries and teachers to all the earth to win men to Christ.

Our lesson should be studied and taught with great care lest we confuse morality with Christianity and make it appear that men are justified before God by their good works rather than by their faith in Christ.

I. Christ Fulfills the Law (5:17-20).

The law of God is eternal, never to be abrogated, never set aside, Christ Himself, although we might properly say that He was in reality the Law-giver and this had power and authority over the law, indicated His purpose in coming to be that of giving the law its full meaning, not of destroying it. One could wish that those who profess to be His servants might have the same measure of regard for God's law. If they did, they obviously would not be so ready to ignore it, so quick to change it or explain it away, and far more ready to accept with their Master every "not and title," that is, even the minutest detail of His Word.

Recognizing Christ as the fulfillment of the law should prepare one to manifest obedience to every moral precept through His grace and by His strength. Certainly it should not lead anyone to lawlessness or carelessness regarding details of the daily walk. Fellowship with the Saviour should be revealed in consistent living (5:20).

II. Christ Explains the Law (5:21-48).

Look at verses 21 to 37. The spirit of murder is anger (vv. 21, 22). A lustful look is adultery (vv. 27-30), and it is better to be blind than to be guilty of it. Divorce is linked very plainly with adultery (vv. 31-32). Swearing is forbidden (vv. 33-37). Thus Christ strips outward conformity to the law of its apparent virtue and reveals that with God it is the spirit that gives meaning to the act.

He goes on to make plain that God alone is wise enough to take vengeance, that we ought never to retaliate with evil for evil. Note that verse 39 probably refers to an insult rather than to physical violence; that in verse 40 it is a question of a difference of opinion in which the other man feels that he has a legal right to your coat; and that here, as in verses 41 and 42, it is not a matter of letting a wicked or scheming person defraud you of your rights or property, but rather of doing what is required of you in an ungrudging spirit and of being generous with others who are in need. In Christ we are to be like our heavenly Father and love our enemies (vv. 43-45).

III. Christ Illustrates the Law (6:1-4).

Possibly it would be more appropriate for us to say that Christ here illustrates the right and the wrong way of fulfilling the law. How very clear He makes it that the one who, while ostensibly doing the will of God, actually is seeking the recognition and glory of men has received his full reward, for men have applauded his act of generosity. The transaction is complete and God has nothing to do with it at all. On the other hand, the one who gives in the spirit of Christ, not wanting men to know of his faithful stewardship (v. 4), and in fact making no reckoning of it himself (v. 3), may be certain that he has a heavenly Father who takes careful account of the loving deeds of His children and who will reward him, both in this world and in the world to come.

Memories of Happy Days

Why is it that the memory of some days in the past, unmarked by any striking event, always come to us like the breath of spring? It may be that on those days, in reward for some forgotten act, God drew us close to Him, and that we absorbed something of His eternal peace and happiness.

FOOD for THOUGHT

By CHARLOTTE SPENCER
Nutritionist, State Board of Health

Of particular interest to a tomato growing state like Delaware, was a paper given at the American Public Health meetings last week by Dr. Mark Elliott of the Forsyth Dental Infirmary in Boston.

With Miss Dorothea Nicoll, nutritionist of the Massachusetts State Board of Health, Dr. Elliott studied the teeth of 62 children in a state tuberculosis sanatorium. All of the children received the regular dental diet which included one quart of milk, eggs, dark cereals, a moderate amount of fruits and vegetables, and daily exposure to ultra violet rays for vitamin D.

Less Dental Decay

Half of the group received, in addition to this regular diet, one large glass of tomato juice everyday. Regular examinations of these children's teeth revealed that the group receiving the extra tomato juice had, after a period of some months, 71 per cent less dental decay than the group which received the regular dental diet alone.

These results appeared too good to be true; so the groups were reversed. The group which had received the regular diet alone was given the glass of tomato juice everyday, and the other group was restricted to the institutions regular diet. After a few months, the teeth were re-examined and the group receiving the tomato juice again had much less dental decay, this time 75 per cent less.

Diet As Preventative

Dr. Elliott also discussed the results of the nutrition instruction which is a part of the dental treatment at the Forsyth Dental Infirmary. By good diet he said that they are able not only to prevent the development of new cavities, but also to retard the development of decay which has already started. Dr. Elliott stated that it is his observation that through good food dental decay in adults can be retarded as well as in children, although the process is slower.

This report serves to focus our attention again upon the relation of diet to teeth and upon the importance of a diet well balanced in all essential foods. Plenty of milk, eggs, dark bread and cereals, fruits and vegetables, and some source of vitamin D are included in these well balanced diets, which Dr. Elliott reports check tooth decay.

Pigeons Enrolled

Big firms with branches throughout Britain are enrolling racing pigeons as emergency message carriers. Breeders and trainers of homing birds have been approached by commercial firms. Several concerns in London and other large cities have already added adequate "staffs" of birds.

The Pompadour --- Be Victorian

WITH interest in Paris openings and Fall fashions reaching a new high, there's every prospect of an important bustle season ahead. And the first "accessory" to feel the influence of such fashion trend is the new Autumn "hair-do."

The return of the draped fullness and the nipped waist of Grand-mother's day, has inspired an adaptation of the romantic and very feminine hair styles of the bustle era.

Lord & Taylor, popular New York department store, recommends the modified pompadour—unworn at the back of the head, as illustrated, with light, curled puffs at the temples and forehead. It's quite the thing, this pompadour, charming with its old-fashioned simplicity, and perfect for the Mid-Victorian ruffles, which will sound out the fashion world, as it did in the days of Godey.

HOME EDUCATION

"The Child's First School is the Family"—Froebel
Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City. These articles are appearing weekly in our columns.

THEIR OWN MONEY

LUCIA MALLORY

"Jean seems to think that money grows on trees," my sister Nellie complained, referring to her nine-year-old daughter. "It's a puzzle for me for this and a dime from her daddy for that every time we turn around."

"School makes a good many demands on a child's pocketbook," I answered. "Why don't you let Jean have her own money—enough to cover her necessary small expenses and a few extra treats?"

Weekly Money Allowance

My sister and her little girl were spending a week with me. One evening we had dinner with my friend, Flora Barron. As we sat on the porch in the early autumn twilight, I asked Flora to tell Nellie about her plan of giving each child in her family a weekly money allowance. "How old were Jack and Helen when you began, Flora?" I inquired. "I think Jack was eight and Helen was six," Flora answered. "We've always been glad that we began early to teach them the value of money. The children were real partners when their father was with us and we had to live on our savings for a year. They voluntarily suggested reducing the amount we were giving them, and they found many small jobs for themselves. Jack mowed lawns and carried out ashes, and Helen took care of babies."

Partners in Budget

"I believe the greatest gain in giving children their own money is that they become partners in keeping the budget instead of draining the family purse as much as possible. It appeals our children to hear some of their friends say, 'Oh, yes, we'll go to the football game at Silverton if we can make Dad come through with the "dough." These children don't seem to understand that the trip to the distant town together with other luxuries that they thoughtlessly urge him to grant may mean that their father has to without a new overcoat or their mother must deny herself tickets to the Community Concerts. "A college friend suggested the plan to me," Flora continued, "and we hadn't followed it long before I realized that she was right in assuring me that my children were quite old enough to handle money of their own. Such economical buyers they became!"

Guarantee of Heaven

If God's good providence calls for returns from us, what shall we say of redemption at the cross? There Christ's precious blood was shed not only to give the believer a guarantee of heaven after this present life, but to result here and now as a good investment in behalf of our fellow men. A certain ability is given to each for using opportunities to win others to Christ. It cannot be consigned when the opportunity is here, to the preacher in the pulpit. It is for each Christian. One may have five times the responsibility of another, but God uses the "weak things and the base things and the despised things," so that the issue culminates in the need of using the sweat-towel for its original purpose, that at the judgment seat of Christ the labor may be forgotten and the results gained shall receive His approval.

Allowances Were Small

"How much did you give each of them at first?" my sister asked. "Their allowances were small," Flora answered, "only ten cents a week to each one. We have increased the amount slightly year by year. Jack and Helen each get fifty cents a week now; Dot has twenty-five cents and Bobby, fifteen. I know that in many families the children are given larger allowances and expected to buy their own clothes. With us, it has seemed better to keep the problem of clothing in the family budget, though Jack and Helen buy a good many things for themselves now. Jack has a paper route, and Helen gives a few music lessons."

"Our experience has taught us that nothing gives a child so much self-reliance as having his own money. I shall always be grateful to the friend who suggested the plan."

"Just as I am grateful to you for explaining the same plan to me," Nellie answered.

LETTY was a poor relation. The fact that she had beautiful dreamy eyes and a blond mane and a really lovely figure didn't help her much, because, in addition to being the glamorous Nathalie's impecunious cousin, she was so nearsighted that she couldn't see her hand before her face without her spectacles, and you know about the frightening-looking men she had to wear them.

Letty's Story

Nathalie was a spoiled brat who wasn't satisfied to be engaged to Carter Gates, but had to try to garner every new man that came into view. That made it hard on Letty. Nathalie wasn't above taunting Letty with the glasses situation and she wasn't above dragging Letty into questionable night spots for champagne, against Letty's will. Throughout this refined misery, Letty remained sweet and forgiving, and unselfish, always willing to look out for the underdog—like that time at Liggett's Inn when she rescued a poor little salesgirl from the frightening-looking men who was with and saw her safely home. Yes, Letty was docile until Carter Gates' friend Jim Abbott came to visit the town. When Letty realized that Nathalie was up to her old tricks, she did a desperate thing. She left off her spectacles for the Junior Circle dance. It turned out that Letty was a great beauty without her glasses and that didn't suit Nathalie a bit.

Then Nathalie's father took a hand. He made Nathalie wear a pair of glasses for a week, just to find out how it felt.

Nathalie was furious but she had to do it. It made her rebellious and that was why she insisted on going to Liggett's Inn where no one would recognize her. Nathalie found herself face to face with one of the ugly customers, from whom Letty had rescued the salesgirl, and she realized they mistook her for Letty.

She was right and a horrible thing happened. The thug slapped her. That was how Nathalie lost her front tooth and a lot of her silly ideas about the salesgirl, and she realized better hurry and marry her before she became permanently disfigured, because he had a way of keeping her in bounds.

Soviet Sends Group To Study Lightning

By a study of lightning in the mountain districts of Azerbaijan, a scientific expedition to gather valuable data for the laying of the transmission line of the powerful Mingcheur hydroelectric station. The expedition has been dispatched by the Azerbaijan branch of the Academy of Sciences at Moscow.

On a peak in Khankar district an entire laboratory has been established. With a revolving seventeen lens camera the savants will observe the accumulation and distribution of electricity at night. Special rapidly revolving apparatus connected with aerials, records the action of atmospheric discharges. Lightning conductors set up at 100 points on nearby peaks and magnetic recorders help to determine the maximum magnitude of the lightning current.

Heels Hold Fortune Of Italian Shoemaker

When a 72-year-old Italian shoemaker was arrested at Dijon, France, it was discovered that he had his fortune of about $21,000 in Italian currency ingeniously concealed in the heels of his shoes.

Arrested for having no identification papers, the old man was searched and the first discovery was a 10,000-lire note (about $325), rolled up in a cigarette holder. His double-soled shoes, when taken apart, revealed the secret "safe" containing 400,000 lire. He told the police that these were his savings and that he always carried them with him in this manner.

Nobleman Seeks Heir In England And U. S.

A castle and valuable estates in Croatia, perhaps even the title of baron, await the legal heir of Irish-descended Baron James Kavanagh, 70 years of age, who lives as a recluse in the turret of an old mansion at Zagreb, Yugoslavia. The bachelor Baron's only sister died several years ago. He is now alone except for a family who live in the castle, but are not related to him.

The Baron is corresponding with authorities in Ireland in an effort to trace an heir who is somewhere in the British Isles or the United States. The title was conferred by the former Austro-Hungarian Empire.

Former Dutch Premier To Make World Tour

Dr. Hendrikus Colijn, who just relinquished the post of premier of Holland after fifteen years, plans a world tour. He already knows much of the world, for as a youth he spent a big part in pacifying and ministering the Dutch East Indies. Once he swam through a crocodile-infested sea to get help for a wrecked crew.

"Some marriages are made in heaven," remarks Miss Paine, lots of them are made in a world tour.

The Two-Price System

By ELIOT JONES
Transportation and Public
Stanford University

In his endeavor to achieve "a plan for agriculture" the Administration has tried out many schemes. It has experimented with crop restriction, acreage allotments, marketing quotas, dollar-a-day valuation, cash subsidies, crop insurance, the purchase of surplus commodities and export dumping. Notwithstanding these measures the prices of agricultural products are still low, and there is much discontent among the farmers. Some new scheme must therefore be evolved.

The new scheme is the two-price system, an arrangement whereby certain agricultural products and the goods manufactured from them will be offered to those on relief and to others with low incomes below the market price. Instead of dumping our surplus farm products abroad, to the benefit of foreign consumers, it is proposed that we dump them at home, and thereby help, says Secretary Wallace, "the lower third of our people."

The difficulties that would be encountered in administering a two-price system are staggering, especially if the Secretary of Agriculture really intends to apply it to plan to "the lower third." There are literally millions of people who do not fall in the category of the lower third but who would like to obtain the benefit of the lower prices. Naturally they would have to be prevented from doing so. Probably the Government would have to supply to the lower third a card certifying that they are entitled to the lower prices. Before issuing the card, however, the Government would have to investigate carefully the applicants' income, and this would require an enormous staff. Obviously, it would not suffice to make an investigation of each applicant. It might improve sufficiently to take him out of the lower third. The Government would therefore have to investigate more or less continuously the income of the lower third, not to mention those in the lower brackets of the middle third. This would mean many new government jobs, more red tape, and more class divisions. A sorry prospect indeed.

Supporters of the plan say that it is a matter of fact we already have the two-price system in industry. Telegraph companies make lower charges for night letters than for day telegrams, telephone companies charge less for long distance calls at night than during the day, and electric light companies have special rates for energy taken off the peak.

True enough, but this is quite different from the two-price system proposed by the Department of Agriculture. One important difference is that the lower charges of the utilities are applied to periods of low use, and are designed to promote a fuller utilization of the company's facilities. The low rates are given to anyone and by bringing in revenue that would otherwise be unrealized they make possible a reduction in rates for the remaining customers. The two-price system of the Department of Agriculture, however, is designed to raise the price of agricultural products to the detriment of the consumers who are not made beneficiaries of the scheme.

Another difference is that the two-price system of the Department of Agriculture will impose a heavy burden on the taxpayers for they will have to make up the difference between the price paid to the farmer and the reduced price at which the goods are sold to "the lower third." The price of rate differentiation followed by the utilities on the other hand, imposes no burden whatever on the taxpayers.

Russia Experiments With Auto Fuel
Automobiles using liquefied butane and propane for fuel have accomplished a run pronounced highly successful by the Russian authorities. The cars covered the entire distance from Grozny to Moscow, about 1,500 miles, without a mishap or breakdown. The gases are a by-product of cracking plants and are much cheaper than gasoline.

Cars employing the new fuels are equipped with a simple device for shifting to the use of ordinary gasoline. Automobile plants are also preparing to produce cars run on charcoal. Automobiles and tractors using a fuel distilled from wood are being manufactured. Experiments on a fuel made from anthracite are showing favorable results, it is asserted.

Safety Hints

According to the Delaware Safety Council, motorists do not have enough respect for Mother Nature in her violent moods during the winter months. As a rule, the motorists depends too much on non-skid tires, chains and abrasives on pavements and too little on common sense.

Skidding is the greatest winter hazard. Speeds on ice should not exceed 15 to 20 miles an hour, even with tire chains. Chains are a big safety factor, but only if you keep your speed down. And here is a tip—pump your brakes when stopping on ice—never lock the wheels.

The second greatest danger is poor visibility. Keep your windows and windshields clear of ice and snow.

By driving slowly and thinking ahead you can avoid situations requiring stops and sudden turns.

For Boys And Girls
Here is a little story from the Council that you should remember: A girl was riding her bicycle along a busy highway. She was carrying another little girl on the handlebar. They weaved and wobbled along in front of automobiles. All at once, they fell off, right in the middle of an intersection. An automobile driver ran over a ditch and against a fence to keep from hitting them.

The girls weren't scared. They for the other half to make up hers.

Highest N. Y. Mountains Seen From Whiteface
If it's mountains you're after, drive your car up the Whiteface Mountain Memorial Highway at the head of Lake Placid and look south.

Forty-four peaks in the Adirondacks are over 4,000 feet high and practically all of them are visible from the tip of Whiteface. They cut the horizon like the teeth of some gigantic saw. Whiteface stands alone far to the north of the great southern range, and your view will be unobscured by intervening spires.

There's the granddaddy of them all, Marcy, which the Indians called Tahawus, the Cloud Cleaver, the highest point of land in the State, towering 5,344 feet, and Mount Dix, 4,842 feet above the sea; Haystack, which looks just like its name, 4,918 feet; Macintyre, 5,112 feet; and the rest of the granite giants.

These Adirondack peaks, while not as high as the Rockies, are millions of years older. Geologists say that they are about the first mountains to have lifted their heads above the primeval floods and are among the most ancient rocks anywhere in the world.

While trying to rescue his goat which had fallen into a well, L. V. Warlick of Marcum, Okla., fell in himself. Discovered several hours later by Warlick's brother, both man and goat were fished out.

HOME OWNERS FORUM
By ABNER GORDON
PAINT on stucco offers limitless possibilities for colorful decoration, as well as protecting the surface against disintegration resulting from weathering or severe usage.

For durability under the most exacting conditions—often including extremes of temperature and humidity—paint must have a pigment and vehicle combination which reacts to form a firm but elastic film resistant to wear and weather, capable of expanding and contracting with the surface as climatic changes demand.

Years of experience have proven that three coats of high quality exterior paint—such as pure white lead and oil—are the economical means to lasting beauty on stucco.

Apply priming coat composed of 3 parts soft paste white lead, and 5 parts of a half and half mixture of linseed oil and lead mixing or lead reducing oil.

Follow with body coat mixed with equal parts soft paste white lead, lead reducing or lead mixing oil.

For that finish apply 3 parts soft paste white lead and 4 parts lead mixing or lead reducing oil.

Q.—Of what is furniture wax composed, and how should it be applied?
A.—The principle ingredients of wax are pure beeswax and turpentine.

Wax is usually applied over shellac, lacquer or varnish base.

Obtain even coating by squeezing through cloth during application. After fifteen minutes drying, polish surface well with soft cloth to obtain luster.

Several coats may be necessary. Q.—Can varnish be applied on a waxed floor?
A.—No. Varnish will not dry over wax. It will be necessary to remove wax before varnishing.

Australia Uses Fleas To War On Rabbits
Australia's rabbit hordes will be infected with a death-dealing virus if a colony of fleas now living a life of luxurious ease at Melbourne carry out the mission assigned to them by science. If the experiment succeeds it may return a profit of $150,000,000 to Australia.

The virus causes a form of influenza harmless to human beings and other animals, except rabbits. An attempt to spread the disease by infecting rabbits failed because each animal infected went apart to die. The fleas, which are not so cannish, will be infected with the virus and let loose among the rabbits.
