Third Annual Frolic To Be Hottest Ever

Big Costume Brawl Will Be Held In Armory Next Friday Night

Eighty-three Friday night, the twenty-second of March, will see the third extravaganza which annually cheers Delaware on to spring vacation. Dance of dances, the Spring Frolic holds a place unequalled in the hearts of Delaware men. What dance could express so well the joy with which the weary book-ridden student rises to acclaim the advent of Spring.

The Frolic will have plenty of fresh surprises to spring and it will certainly go down reluctantly into history as a Frolic whose unusually attractive features set a higher standard of unbeatable dances for future functions. Genuine Frolic music will be dispensed, and how—by the Critterions of Paris, London, New York, and Philadelphia. This band appreciates that the fact that it is playing for a Delaware dance and plans to panic the enemy.

Prizes will again be awarded for smoothest costumes: one for the couple which most impresses the judges, one for the best costumed girl, and even one for the man whose appearance most aptly suits the occasion.

The Council has hilariously (its own word) extended itself to provide the millennium in the way of novelties, refreshment, decorations, etc.,—everything that makes each successive Frolic outshine the former one. No effort is being spared, no chance overlooked to make Friday night one that will be hard to forget.

Tickets being sold exclusively to Delaware students, will be limited to 150, as they necessarily were last year. All dancers must be costumed, and the time is set for eight-thirty sharp.

"Frolic, but don't get hurt!"

Delaware Swordsmen Drop Two Matches

Will End Season Soon; Election of Captain To Be Held Soon

The Delaware fencing team spent last week-end rather unsuccessfully in New Jersey. On Friday, Princeton Freshmen defeated Delaware 11-0, and on Saturday Rutgers defeated Delaware 10-7.

Sassé, who is a comparatively new recruit to the team, starred for Delaware, winning both his sabre bouts and one foil at Princeton, and winning one sabre and two foil bouts at Rutgers. Blum also showed up well, winning both his épée bouts at Princeton, and one at Rutgers.

The last match of the season will be held with Central Y of Philadelphia on either March 25 or April 6.

After the close of the season, the letter-men will get together to elect a captain to succeed Captain Rodney, and to discuss methods of carrying on the team next year without the aid of Colonel Carswell, who is leaving in June for a post in Panama. Unless a new coach can be procured, Frisbie and Hare, with the aid of the other veterans, will probably handle the instruction and coaching.

At Princeton, deVos, the French coach, conducted the meet, and at Rutgers, Captain McPherson of New York, and formerly of the British Army conducted.

THETA CHI FORMAL

Old College Hall, tonight will be the scene of the Sixth Annual Dinner and Dance given by Theta Chi. The Oxman of Quality Hill have the stage set for their even of the year and the memories of past Formals has served to enhance the anticipation and keen expectancy for tonight's affair.

At 7 o'clock a delicious dinner will be served in the Commons under the able supervision of Miss Spencer. The combined effect of soft dinner music, candlelight and novel decorative effects will serve to insure a propitious start to the evening's entertainment. From 9 until 2 o'clock, George Madden and his orchestra will provide the men of Theta Chi and their guests that exotic syncope so typical of Delaware's dances.

Mrs. C. O. Houghton, Mrs. H. L. Bonham, Miss Quiesita Drake, Miss E. C. Ehlers, Mrs. G. E. Dutton, Mrs. J. E. Burton, Mrs. J. G. Lewis, Mrs. W. E. Hulihan, Mrs. C. A. McCue, Mrs. R. L. Spencer will be patronesses.

Among the invited guests will be several faculty members and men of the other fraternities on the campus. Paul Scull, President of Kappa Chapter will also attend, together with several other Oxmen from Penn. An unusual number of alumni is expected to be present.

FLOWER HOSPITAL TO ACT AS INFIRMARY

Mr. A. G. Wilkinson, business administrator for the University of Delaware, has announced that the Delaware College Infirmary, Delaware and South College avenues, will be remodeled for use as a dwelling, and that arrangements have been made with Miss Ford of the Flower Hospital for the hospital to treat and take care of ill or injured University of Delaware students. This arrangement will go into effect about April 1.

In making this announcement, Mr. Wilkinson paid particular tribute to the work of Miss Rosalie Pié, who for the past ten years has been in charge of the Delaware College Infirmary. Miss Pié has been in poor health for some time, and for this reason wishes to retire.

Notice to Students

This Saturday there will be approximately eighty-five swimmers here for the Middle Atlantic, and every courtesy should be shown them. It is especially desirable that the Blue Key Society be present and active in as great numbers as possible.

The Middle Atlantic will, contrary to previous announcement, be free to holders of Athletic Tickets. Half of the stands, however, are reserved for outsiders, and their section of the stands is not to be violated. Students wishing to sit during the races will arrive early enough to secure new in the student's division.

"Sun Up" To Be Given Next Thursday Evening

Drama Of Carolina Mountains Almost Ready For Presentation

"Sun-Up," the play to be given by Mr. Conkle's E 52 class on March 21, is progressing apace. The characters have practically memorized each act. Nightly rehearsals are doing much toward promising a smooth, well-acted play. There will be three or four complete rehearsals of the play in its entirety. This will obviate any lack of smoothness which has often been noticeable in previous plays at Wolf Hall.

The scenery depicts the interior of a mountaineer's log cabin. Lack of funds to purchase or rent suitable scenery has forced the production staff to rely on their ingenuity. A room at the rear of South Hall has, for the past week, been a picture of disorder. Disembodied props and odds and ends have sufficed to make the scenery. Evidence of Mr. Conkle's experience will be found by all who come to view this play. The ornate fireplace used in "Lady Windermere's Fan" has been transformed into a close resemblance of a stone one.

The play itself is well worth seeing. It is now running in New York. It is a drama of Carolina mountain folk in three acts. The chief characters are the Widow Cagle and her son, Rufe.

The time is 1917. War has been declared and Rufe has enlisted. Fifteen minutes before his departure, he marries the daughter of a neighbor. His leave-taking of his mother is a very effective bit of drama:

Rufe—"Well, reckon I'll have to be goin'."

Mrs. Cagle (smoking calmly on)—"Take keer of yerself."

Rufe—"Ye do the same, Mom."

Mrs. Cagle—"Ye kin write, Emmy kin read the letters."

Rufe—"I'll write. (Pause) Well—goodby, Mom."

Mrs. Cagle—"Goodby, son."

Emmy—"Ain't ye goin to kiss him, Mom?"

Mrs. Cagle (without emotion)—"What's the use o' sech foolishness."

Rufe—"All right. Just as ye say, Mom. God bless ye." (Tears himself away.)

Mrs. Cagle—"If ye fight, son, shoot to kill."

Rufe (leaving)—"I will, Mom. Goodby."

Mrs. Cagle—"Take keer o' yerself."

This play is not without humor. In the first act Mrs. Cagle warns Todd, a neighbor, not to get drunk for supper.

Todd—"Law, Mis' Cagle, I ain't got 'nough in my house to make the preacher drunk." (Rising. Just then a large bottle falls to the floor from under his coat.) "Now, don't that beat hell!"

The climax of the play comes when Mrs. Cagle learns that—but come and find out for yourself Thursday evening, March 21, at Wolf Hall.

Rutgers, Lehigh, Lafayette And Delaware Will Compete In Annual Association Meet; Kojoc, Holder Of Eight World's Records, To Swim For Rutgers

Holder Of Eight World's Records, To Swim For Rutgers

On Saturday afternoon the University of Delaware will be the hosts of the various members of the Eastern Collegiate Swimming Association. This is the first time such a meet has been held in the local pool, and preparations are being made for the largest crowd ever to be seen in the college gymnasium. The meet is scheduled to start at 2 p. m., and spectators are advised to come early as there are only a limited number of seats available.

So far entry blanks have been received from the University of Delaware, Rutgers University, Lafayette College, and Lehigh University. These teams count in their ranks a galaxy of swimming stars who are expected to thrill the audience with their performances.

Rutgers is by far the most outstanding team entered in the meet and is rated the strongest team in collegiate ranks. George Kojac, the star of the visitors, was a member of the United States Olympic team, and is the foremost backstroke swimmer of the country. At the present time he is the holder of eight world's swimming records. The Rutgers team is the holder of every record in the association and holder of the championship of the league. The meet which was held in the Rutgers pool last year was won by Rutgers team and they should experience little trouble in holding the title.

The University of Delaware team which has been undefeated so far this season is out to give Rutgers all the opposition they can. The men have been training diligently and Coach Weir expects them to make a fine showing. During the course of the swimming season they have defeated the Lehigh and Lafayette teams, which are the two other teams sending representatives to the meet, and the Delaware men on the basis of their past record should be able to defeat these two teams. However, in such a meet the outcome can never be safely assured, and the meet should be very close and extremely interesting.

The following list of entries for the various events has been received by Manager Rose:

PECULIAR MOTOR MIX-UP

A peculiar accident occurred on Main street Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. S. R. Russell, of Wilmington, in attempting to pull out from the curb in her car, damaged two other cars and knocked down a pedestrian on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Russell's foot slipped from the clutch, causing her car to lunge up over the curb. She struck Miss Mildred Heite, a student at the Women's College, knocking her down and spraining her ankle. Her car also caused damage to cars belonging to Miss Deborah Spencer, dietitian for Delaware College, and Walter Tyndale, a student at Delaware College.

DR. RYDEN ST. THOMAS MEN'S CLUB SPEAKER

Due to the illness of Professor James A. Barkley, who was the scheduled speaker at the monthly meeting of St. Thomas Church Men's Club, which will be held this evening in the Parish House, at 745, Dr. George H. Ryden, of the Department of History, University of Delaware, will give the address of the evening.

TO BEGIN WORK SOON ON NEW AUDITORIUM

Preparation For Moving Houses Will Be Started Immediately

Work on the University of Delaware's new auditorium is to commence within the next two weeks. The Committee on Lands and Buildings, which consists of members of the Board of Trustees of the University, have sanctioned the proposal of the college authorities to immediately start on the project.

The two houses in which Professors Preston and Thoroughgood now reside are to be moved on massed further down the street as they are at the present time on the exact site chosen for the new structure.

According to President Hulihan, however, the actual breaking of ground for the Auditorium will not take place before the middle of April.

SCHOOL SPIRIT

"School spirit" is rather a hackneyed phrase but sometimes it is wise for us to pause and reconsider some of the things we say most glibly and find out whether we are really understanding what they mean and what they should stand for. There is more to school spirit than playing on or supporting athletic teams, valuable as these acts may be. True school spirit means always acting in such a way that you will bring credit upon your college. A chain is said to be as strong as its weakest link, and we should take care not to be that link.

Thoughtlessness is frequently the cause of acts that bring discredit upon the group, but it is not a sufficient excuse for the acts of those possessed of the intelligence college men and women ought to have. Failure to realize results is merely another form of thoughtlessness. The college is dependent for part of its support upon outsiders and we should consider how these will be impressed by what they learn of college life. This does not mean necessarily a slavish conformance to the ideas of others, but it does mean that we should try to see ourselves as others see us. Anyone who loves his alma mater wishes to see a high type of students coming among us every year. It is up to us then, to make our college the kind that the finest will want to attend. Consider the factors that influenced you in your choice of a college, and take it upon yourself to develop those characteristics which appealed to you.

The responsibility upon each individual is far greater than most of us realize. One person may start an idea or an atmosphere and yet be horrified when it is carried to its logical conclusion, generally much further than the originator ever considered. Unfortunately, a destructive idea seems to be more easily spread than a constructive one. If Delaware is not the place you would like to urge your brother, sister, or friend to attend, than it is in part, at least, your fault.

Finally, as in any social unit, the highest development of the group can be attained through a concentration on the development of the individual. Anyone who by any act lowers his own character is also lowering the tone of the group, and any one who by the wrongful exercise of authority prevents another from self-development is also harming the group. Considering the fact that any spot on the reputation of our college affects us personally, let us have the courage to insist on what we know is right and to prevent a few from spoiling the good name of the group.

Editor of "The Review,"

Dear Sir:

Now that the Interfraternity Basketball season is over, why not have a baseball league?

There are many things to be said in favor of Interfraternity competition. In the first place it creates a good, friendly spirit among the fraternities. Then, too, it provides no end of fun for the participants and spectators alike. These points were well illustrated in the recent basketball games and water polo matches.

Last year a baseball series (two games) was played by the Sigma Nu's and the Theta Chi's. Ever since then they have been planning on more games this year, each one telling the other how badly they are going to beat them, although each team won one game last year.

Why, then, should not the rest of the fraternities catch up this spirit and form a league. The games could be played either as preliminaries to the varsity games or as seven inning twilight games.

Jack,

University of Delaware.

Dear Editor:

I first became a student at dear old Delaware in 1917. I fought in the World War have been in Chicago, have been married, and am now back again as a Sophomore; yet in all of the experiences, I have never seen rules broken to such an extent as the "Rat Rules" are. I was actually accosted on the Campus by a rat with a cigarette in his mouth, and what do you think he desired? He wanted me to light his cigarette for him. Only once before have I seen such audacity. That was when I was a State Trooper, and after having been mortally wounded, I was asked by my assassin to "crawl in a hole and pull it in after me." I guess he wanted me to bury myself. The other day a Freshman ordered me to carry his books to the "dorms" for him. This is an example of pure disrespect, and joking aside, if I receive such a request again, I will try some enforcement like they used to have in Hardboiled Harry's gang.

You Freshmen are lucky anyway. Last year I was a Freshman at Daguerre U., and, forgetting to carry a pack of Sir Walter Drake Cigarettes for a certain Soph who would smoke no other kind, I was forced to count all the railroad ties between New York and San Francisco. I must confess, that I never really did it, but spread it around. I guessed a quarter of the number and multiplied it by four. Pretty wise eh?

Well, I must be doing my lesson in Analytics, so be good.

Joe Fibber.

Wed., Feb. 20, 1929.

Dear Editor:

I was favorably impressed by the students of Delaware at a recent College Hour program. I had no idea that the students loved to read so much. And the girls, poor dears, must have a horrible time at the Women's College. They mustn't get enough sleep, because I saw several slumbering on the shoulder of a friend. I think an investigation of conditions should be made at the Women's College and something done so that the girls can get enough rest.

While I was there, I made a great discovery of one of the best ear-wigglers in the school. He could twiddle them with practically no effort at all.

In closing, I think that the speaker should sit down after talking a few minutes and let the students catch up on their reading and sleeping the remainder of the hour.

Remember me as one who hopes the girls get more sleep,

Dan McGrew.

BARTON NAMED CAPTAIN OF DEL. COURT TEAM

At a meeting of the Athletic Council of the University of Delaware, held Tuesday night, Allen "Scoop" Barton was approved as captain of the basketball team for the 1929-1930 season. Barton is not a letter man this year, as he played only one game in the second half of the season, due to scholastic reasons. Richard Rinard was named manager of basketball, and Caleb Boggs assistant manager.

The following men were awarded basketball letters at the Tuesday meeting: Roger Holt, Captain James Jaquette, John Roman, Irvin Hill, Irvin Taylor and Manager Hobson.

At last we've found it! A cause! The crying need of this column has been the lack of some great and inspiring motivating force over which we could rhapsodize at length. "Waffles that satisfy" is the purpose and slogan of the movement. Throughout the recent year we have roamed Newark and environs in search of a Really Complete Waffle, and we have yet to have our waffle-urge satisfied. Dr. Freud expresses himself in the subject thusly, "In the maturing youth of all nations there is a soul-urge for the waffle; misunderstanding parents and guardians frequently attempt to obliterate or discourage this motif by the use of pancakes, buckwheat cakes, hotcakes, and corn fritters. This is a grave mistake, and is comparable to the suppression of the libido. Children of normal parents often develop criminal tendencies if denied their natural allotment of waffles, and I do not hesitate to state that it is my firm conviction that not less than 71 2/3 per cent of all those under twenty-one who are hailed into court for various misdemeanors have had their waffle-urge interfered with at some time in their adolescence."

It thus becomes obvious what a significant factor waffles really play in our moral, physical, and intellectual development. And not a good waffle is obtainable in this town of Newark! Now our suggestion is this: That the entire student body be divided into small scouting groups which shall scour the country for miles around and send in code reports to headquarters on the waffle conditions in each particular section. Then there shall be a waffle-analization station where the delicacy can be tested for weather - proofing, durability, syrup-absorption, and non-skid qualities. The faculty might be enrolled as blind-fold testers for publicity purposes, and the undoubted verity of our professors would go a long way toward making the restaurateurs waffle-conscious.

Should you feel that the press of other extra-curricular activities forbids your taking part in this campaign, and yet you wish to give it some kind of support, you may mail cash, checks, stamps, or cigar coupons to the Better Waffle Campaign Committee, c/o The Review. We will send out weekly statements of progress to all those subscribing four or more dollars and in the meantime talk it up! Bring in new members. Give till it hurts! Break a leg! Give yourself up!

NOTED FRENCH SCHOLAR AT COLLEGE HOUR

The speaker at the College Hour exercises held yesterday at Wolf Hall was Dr. André Maurice, who is head of the French Literature Department at Harvard University and director of the summer school at Middlebury, Vermont. The program was under the auspices of the honor society, Phi Kappa Phi.

Professor W. A. Wilkinson, who introduced the speaker, told of the precedent established several years ago of setting apart one College Hour to Phi Kappa Phi interests. Members to this society are chosen from those Seniors who rank in the upper 25 per cent of their class, and only 20 per cent of those eligible are elected.

Dr. Maurice was born in France and is a graduate of the University of Paris. Because of his numerous and important contributions to the field of learning, Dr. Maurice is particularly well-representative of a Phi Kappa Phi group. He chose as his subject, "Culture." He told of the connection between the civilization and the culture of the time for each period in history. He then contrasted historical times with our age, which is one of mass production and speed, but also one of specialized activity. Dr. Maurice speaks of culture as a "restoration within our minds." It means keeping things in good, clear, clean order.

THE ORIGIN OF THE WORLD WAR, by Sidney B. Fay. Vol. I, Before Sarajevo: Underlying Causes of the War. Vol. II, After Sarajevo: Immediate Causes of the War.

No one who cares to be intelligently and accurately informed about the events, immediate or remote, which lead up to the World War can afford not to read Prof. Fay's two volumes.

Prof. Fay has been recognized for a number of years as a thoroughly informed, painstaking and judicious student of World affairs. When it was announced that he was preparing a book on the causes of the World War, scholars anticipated eagerly its appearance. These two volumes are indispensable to the person who attempts to form a trustworthy opinion about European pre-war conditions. Even during the hysteria of war-time partisanship, Prof. Fay kept his head, and when the proper time came was among the foremost leaders in revealing the truth about war-guilt.

Prof. Fay has not only added to his own reputation as an eminent historian, but he has done an inestimable service to American historical scholarship in the writing of this book.

THE hitch must be right, the pack must be tight. On details such as that hung the attainment of the day's goal and the final success of the expedition.

Lewis and Clark, first Americans to cross the continent, knew the importance of "trifles" in the concerted plan. They saw to it their equipment was right, they supervised every step from man-power to pack-horse-

Today's leaders in business have the same point of view.

"OUR PIONEERING WORK HAS JUST BEGUN"

Former Delaware Professor Introduces New Theory Of Teaching Languages

Dr. Patterson, Former Head Of Modern Language Department, Initiates
New System At Mt. Holyoke

An entirely new college unit, previously unknown to the curriculum of any institution in the United States, or indeed, in its particular emphasis, to the curriculum of any institution in the civilized world, was initiated at Mount Holyoke College at the beginning of the second semester recently, under the direction of Professor William Patterson, head of the department of romance languages, and chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France.

Professor Patterson, interviewed on the subject of his new biophysical or biopsychological linguistic laboratory course, open to honor students in modern languages, said that theoretical angles of the new study of linguistics he was about to institute had appeared in the work of some philologists of other countries.

"A new note in the scholarly study of linguistics," he said, "has already appeared in France and in Holland, and, to some extent, in England and Germany. In France, A. Meillet is accentuating the psychological element in linguistic study as never before."

"Vendryes prepares the ground admirably for a new biological treatment. De Broglie, France's great physicist, together with Schrödinger, is, of course, responsible for the new conceptions of wave mechanics."

Practical Units Lacking

"But nobody in the world appears to have instituted a practical unit with laboratory equipment for this study, except on strictly psychological lines. The study of language and its origins has been undertaken in Germany, England, France and America in vast proportion along anthropological lines, and to some extent along purely biological or psychological lines, but there seems to have been no practical combination of the physical, biological, psychological and linguistic angles attempted.

"The introduction of physical quantum theory into the problem of speech mechanism appears to be completely my own method of attack."

"I think I can safely assert that Mount Holyoke College will be the first institution in the world to have a course in practical linguistics with a biophysical or a biopsychological stress."

"The immediate purpose of the institution of this laboratory course is not that of pure research or even of advanced theory, but of practical application in the primary teaching of any foreign language."

"The first problem in our laboratory course," said Dr. Patterson, "will be the study of time patterns and variation of 'tempo,' as they involve the learning of any new language, where frequently the correct pronunciation of individual words fails absolutely to touch the essence of a complete sentence."

Child Responds Quickly

"All creative work, both in poetry and in dramatic literature, is involved in this question not only of general tempo, but also, more particularly, of segregated time patterns. And the child? . . . The child with its natural dramatic instincts responds with its natural dramatic instincts responds at once to this angle of approach. The child, learning language by imitation, imitates not only the pronunciation of the individual words, but also the general tempo of the sentence, and the particular time patterns of the phrases."

In summing up the essential points connected with the founding at Mount Holyoke of the Linguistic Laboratory, he states:

Scientific Gains Utilized

"Perhaps the most important feature of our really very simple and unpretentious attempt to help struggling youth transfer comfortably and speedily its thoughts and sympathies from one language to another, is nothing more than the following desire: 'To welcome rather than to oppose an opportunity for literary scholarship to cooperate with very recent science.'"

"This means that we are merely taking advantage of what we believe to be two basic facts, which common sense and observation should make obvious: (1) The teaching of the child to acquire a second or third language, in confirming brain-paths for double and triple roles of thinking, involves the active use of its dramatic animal endowment. (2) Literature and language cannot dispense with biology, psychology and recent physics, in studying, for instance, what is perhaps the most fairy-like scientific poem one can observe under the microscope, the dramatic clash of time patterns that quivers in the multiple heart beats of an iridescent embryo squid."

New Basis for Study

"The perception of sound is a reaction to waves of air or other matter in motion, and since matter may be regarded as fundamentally discontinuous and yet wave-like, according to the startling Compton-Davison paradox, therefore the perception of sound may be regarded as discontinuous in one aspect and wave-like in another. The wave-like aspect emphasizes the so-called 'adjacent coexistent stationary states of motion' which define an electron."

"Finally, if the perception of sound has this dual paradoxical nature, so all sense perceptions and actions, and their coordination in spoken language, may be regarded as containing the dual aspects. Adding this discontinuous element to our conception of thought and consciousness, of which language is a vehicle, we thus found a new biopsychological basis for the study of linguistics, with recent discoveries in physics as the inspiring force."

He—Yes, I was about sixty thousand feet up when the plane burst into flames and fell like a shot. I had no parachute and had to stay with her. The crash was horrible, but I lived.

She—Why, you can't expect me to believe that! Sixty thousand feet!

He—Well, maybe it was only about thirty thousand. I might have been too excited at the time to get it down exactly. But anyway, I fell thirty thousand feet, and lived.

She—Pardon me for saying so, but I don't see how you could.

He—All right, have it your own way, but at least I was in a falling plane without a parachute, and lived.

She—But why hadn't you a parachute? I thought—

He—I guess maybe I did have a parachute, come to think of it. But it was a terrible drop, and I lived.

She—Oh, don't tell me you made a parachute jump!

He—Well, dammit, maybe not—but I lived!

Summary of Basketball Season

The University of Delaware basketball team closed the season on Tuesday, March 6, with a 24-23 victory. This brought the season's record to seven wins and eight losses, a distinct improvement over last year when the team won five and lost eleven. The Blue and Gold basketball players in and out of basketball all year. At times the team flashed a brilliant game and at other times the play was mediocre and slovenly. The players rose to the heights in defeating Swarthmore, Pratt and St. Joe and a reversal of form was true against Susquehanna, P. M. C. and Haverford. Army and Mt. St. Mary's outclassed Rothrock's team, but even at that Delaware did not play the type of basketball in these games they were capable of. Baltimore University was just a trifle better than Delaware, due to their play previous to this game. Brooklyn Poly won after a close, hard-fought game that could have gone either way. Franklin and Marshall and Moravian were outclassed and decisively beaten. The St. Joe and Ursinus games were thrillers and Delaware won both by a one-point margin. Osteopathy deserved to lose to Delaware as the homesters dominated the play throughout. Drexel was lucky to win from Delaware in a game that would have been won easily on the home court.

Scoring honors went to Captain Jaquette, who incidentally, saw the most service.

Hill and Roman tied for field goal honors with 30 each. Hill played in every game of the year while Roman saw service in but 13. Captain Jaquette was blanked from the field in two games, Army and Swarthmore. Roman was also shut out in the Army game and the F. & M. game in which he played but five minutes. Hill went scoreless from the field on six occasions. He was blanked against Baltimore U., Drexel, Mt. St. Mary's, Susquehanna, Haverford and St. Joe. He played best against F. & M. and Swarthmore, when he scored seven and five field goals respectively.

Delaware Beats F. & M., 39 - 22

Franklin and Marshall mixed its dates and failed to come to Newark Friday night for a dual swimming meet with the University of Delaware. F. & M. did show up on Saturday, but as far as results went, it might as well have written a letter. The unbeaten Delaware team took all events but the 200-yard breaststroke and loafed through most of the events to attain an easy 39 to 22 victory.

The times made in the contests were not sensational, as the Blue and Gold swimmers were not extended.

To keep spectators, assembled Friday night, interested, the Delaware tankmen put on a number of exhibitions. Bill Brown, in a race against time, lowered the pool record for the 150-yard backstroke from 1:52 to 1:49.3. Sortman gave an exhibition of fancy diving, and Reese and Reybold swam an exhibition race, free-style for 50 yards. Sigma Phi Epsilon and Theta Chi played a game of water polo, Sigma Phi winning 2 to 0.
