Cold sales

Wireless technology makes it easier for bookstores to buy back books close to where students reside, but it does nothing about the weather. As the University of Delaware's fall term wound down, students and those hired to buy back the books coped with temperatures that struggled to get to the freezing mark this week.

Student drinking increased after prevention funds were scaled back

A survey released by the University of Delaware's Center for Drug & Alcohol Studies (CDAS) shows that alcohol consumption among undergraduate students has risen in recent years.

Presenting some of the findings at Monday's City Council meeting, Roberta Gealt, of CDAS, told the council that the university performed an electronic survey using 853 undergraduate student volunteers, ranging in age from 18 to 23 years old, as its sample group. Using the last month as a time frame, the results showed that 63 percent of the group said that they drink alcohol, 19 percent said they drink alcohol as well as use illegal drugs, and 18 percent said they neither drink nor take drugs.

Within the past month, 66 percent of students surveyed said they binge drink, or consume 5 or more drinks at a single sitting.

The report breaks down several categories, including gender, race, ethnicity, student class (freshman, sophomore, etc.) and age. Consequences were also reported, such as the percentage of students who drink and engage in unprotected sex, breakdowns of assault victims by alcohol use, victims of sexual assault under the influence, and the percent-

More cameras coming to Newark

By MARK CORRIGAN

MCORRIGAN@CHES PUB.COM

The Mayor and Council approved the purchase of seven additional surveillance cameras and licenses at a cost of $61,460. The equipment will be entirely paid for by a combination of three federal grants.

The cameras will be supplied by Avrio Group, who provided the cameras, installation, training, and equipment for the city's first installation in June at a cost of $200,420.

The preliminary positions for the cameras will be in the area of the Chapel St. strip mall at Main St., Main St.

and Elkton Rd., several along Cleveland Ave. and N. Chapel St., and on Elkton Rd. near the Municipal Building.

The University of Delaware has undertaken a similar effort on the Newark campus.

Several council members and Mayor Vance Funk commented on the superlative job the system has had in identifying criminals and assisting in their arrests.

Council also voted unanimously to approve a modification in the deed restriction of Deerfield Wines, located at the Shoppes at Louviers off of Paper Mill Rd., to allow them to sell beer and spirits. Presently, Deerfield Wines is approved to sell wine only.

Representatives from Liborio Louviers LLC, the parent company of Deerfield Wines, told the council that the request is being made to help improve lagging sales at the business.

According to the new agreement, the store will "be limited to no more than 10% of the total sales floor or 10% of the gross revenue of the store." The Alcohol and Beverage Control Board monitors the yearly sales of all establishments and will provide a report on Deerfield Wines.

Pianist, Newark High musicians shine at Symphony concert

By MARGARET DARBY

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Beethoven's Coriolanus Overture, opus 62 is a tough opener for any symphony and the Newark Symphony did not quite get the clear cut-offs, pauses and strident level of chords at the opening, but they warmed into it soon afterwards and produced some beautiful music – lovely sustained horn sounds and solid timpani work crowned the performance.

Next, Lura Johnson – the beautiful, model-thin guest pianist – glided on stage in a sleek white gown. She played the Grieg Concerto in A minor, opus 16 with great flourish and technical prowess – hands flying in the air dramatically at the end of phrases and grabbing the piano with her left hand when she played with the right. The pyrotechnics, melodic control and technical prowess which won her the audition for the Delaware Symphony Orchestra were evident in her rendition of the cadenza in the first movement. In the second movement, she played softly and lyrically, trading off the melody with the oboe. The third movement was the most impressive in expression and melodic control. Her ability to bring out the melody over a soft slew of notes in the left hand in the third movement won me over. Some of the horn parts, which were played beautifully, did come across as extremely loud. Perhaps there are some live spots in the back of the stage which create this amplification.

The pièce de résistance was the Symphony No. 1 in E Minor, opus 39 by Jean Sibelius. Maestro Tartaglione introduced it as a piece which reflects "great big cold surface winds" and said he wanted "barbaric and violent accents" to reflect the folk epic of the Kalevala. And he got them! Anthony Wastler's clarinet solo which started the first movement was as close to perfect as it could possibly be – meltingly smooth notes played with lovely expression. The harpist, Danielle Bash, a Temple student of Elizabeth Hainen, played the very demanding part beautifully after only one rehearsal with the orchestra. Gordon Engalgau and Debra Bialecki, percussion, were key to maintaining the flow of the very long and demanding symphony. Mordecai Fuhrman gave a wonderfully crisp and resounding timpani performance. Leon Daniels' cello solo was poignantly beautiful and Bonnie McDonald's horn playing was deliciously smooth. This performance was a milestone achievement for the NSO and Maestro Tartaglione.

The Newark High School chamber players came on stage and took over the first chairs for a side by side performance with the symphony. This is part of a project that their director, Rosaria Macera, has coordinated with Simeone Tartaglione. The result is the adoption of three high school players in the Newark Symphony: Brenna Smith and Deborah Occident, violin and Hassan Henderson, viola. Their performance of Gustav Holst's St. Paul's Suite, opus 29, No. 2 featured a violin solo played beautifully by Gabriella Stout. The full ensemble then played a rousing arrangement of carols for a holiday sing-along.

You can hear Anthony Wastler play the Mozart clarinet concerto at the Newark United Methodist Church on February 12, 2011 and the NSO will perform again at the Independence School on Sunday, March 6. They will also offer a free family concert of Peter and the Wolf with Michael Boudewyns and Sara Valentine on March 13.

IN OUR SCHOOLS

Christina to offer middle school sports

The Christina School District announced it will begin offering boys and girls basketball and girls cheerleading at its four middle schools this winter. Funding for the new middle school sports program is a direct result of the successful operating referendum passed by District residents on May 25. As part of the new initiative, the district's middle schools have also joined the Delaware Interscholastic Athletic Association, which will provide guidelines for all aspects of sports activities for middle school students.

A task force made up of parents, staff, athletic directors, coaches, and community members has been meeting since September to develop plans for implementing the program. Sports will be added each season, in two phases. Phase I will begin this winter, with boys and girls basketball and cheerleading. Boys and girls track will be added this spring. Phase II, beginning in fall 2011, will add girls volleyball and boys and girls soccer, and will continue the basketball, cheerleading, and spring track programs.

The task force also explored available district facilities and fields for middle school sports, and will implement a turf management and maintenance program. Turf fields at several elementary school sites will be developed for use by middle school students, which will also enhance opportunities for elementary school students and the community, while lessening the impact on current high school facilities.

"I would like to thank our public for making this opportunity a reality for our students," said Christina Superintendent Marcia Lyles. "This was made possible through public support of the referendum in May. This is one of the things we promised we would deliver to the community, and we are thrilled to announce that this program will be underway this winter."

Awards Day

The Delaware School for the Deaf held an awards day to celebrate student achievement in academics, attendance as well as positive behavioral support. All students grades K-12 as well as parents of honorees and staff members attended the school wide event. In sum, the five categories: Honor Roll (MS/HS), DCAS (meets the standard grades 3-10), PBS (K-12), perfect attendance (K-12) and most improved all around (K-12) honored several students from each department.

A cool experience for students

Students at Maclary Elementary are getting a truly cool view of scientific research through an educational program sponsored by the University of Delaware and the National Science Foundation. Scientists and technicians from the University of Delaware's Bartol Research Institute are sharing their experiences online as they work to help finish the construction of IceCube, the world's largest neutrino telescope, deep in the Antarctic ice. Students in the "Deep Freeze" club, under direction of Enrichment Services Teacher Julia Dooley, have met after school to prepare for a conference call with scientists at the South Pole that took place on Tuesday, December 14th. Maclary students joined classes from Illinois, Maryland, Nebraska, New Hampshire, and Wisconsin

This group of 4th and 5th grade students tested out wearing ECW (Extreme Cold Weather) gear in the relay style "ECW Challenge", and followed the scientists' challenges through the on-line blogs. They have enjoyed memorizing several of the projects' acronyms, such as DOM's (Digital Optical Monitor) and FCU's (Freeze Control Unit), in addition to the standard acronyms used by NSF (National Science Foundation) and USAP (United States Antarctic Program). The science has been challenging but as Nicholas Kayatta said, "On the blog it was fun learning about neutrinos which I didn't know existed." "The ECW Challenge was really fun. It's hard to pick things up wearing the mittens," added Justin Taylor.

All-State football team has local flavor

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

St. Mark's senior and Temple-bound Jake Quinn was named lineman of the year and selected at both the offensive and defensive tackle positions on the first team All-State football team. Joining the 6-foot-5, 250-pound Quinn on the first team are teammates Ryan Taylor (WR), Ryan Nowakowski (C), Sean Murphy (DE), Brad Pease (DE), Luke Horney (DT), Jabre Lolley (DB) and T.J. DeMatteis (K).

Newark junior Taylor Reynolds was named first team All-State at the quarterback position for his efforts passing and running the Yellowjackets to a 6-4 record.

"I feel very proud and I am excited to accomplish a first team All-State quarterback award," Reynolds said after learning of his selection. "I worked very hard all year and am thankful to receive some recognition for all the hard work that I put in game after game and practice after practice. It's truly an honor and I'm very grateful."

Seniors Jake Milstead (Newark, WR) and Tyler Hunter (Hodgson, DB) were selected to the second team, while junior Mike Powers (Newark, K) was named to the third team.

Newark swimmers looking to make splash

A strong crop of returning swimmers will anchor Newark's boys and girls swim teams this winter.

Senior captains Cliff Hegedus (free, butterfly, IM) and Bimal Amin (free, back and breast) return along with juniors Ian Moyer (freestyle, back), Jason Hitchcock (free, back) and Tyler Coffing to give Newark's boys team a strong foundation in its quest for another winning season.

"We are looking forward to a great season," coach Brian Polaski said. "We've added a lot of great kids to our returning swimmers and they are all working hard right now. Everyone is putting in their time in and out of the water to improve their strokes. Our goals are to remain competitive and have as many people as possible qualify for the state meet in February."

Polaski also singled out sophomores Tim Hegedus (free, breast) and Greg Barrier (free, back) as swimmers he anticipates will have breakout years, along with promising freshmen Eric Moyer (free) and Chris Dryden (free, back).

On the girls team, returning swimmers include Jordan Sawyer (back/free), Carly Nieuweboer (breast, free), Melissa Hall (diving), Caroline Beston (free, breast, back), Stef Davis (free, butterfly, back), Rachel Ward (free, butterfly, back) and Selby Seador (free, breast). They will be joined by 11 freshmen, including standouts Sarah Braatz (all events) and Zoe Coffing (IM, breast).

"[I am] looking forward to another great dual meet season," coach Bryan Stambaugh said. "[We are] looking to build on last year's 8-4 record, and hoping to get another Top-10 finish at states."

Delaware to host Georgia Southern Saturday at noon

The University of Delaware and Georgia Southern will square off in the NCAA Football Championship Subdivision semifinals Saturday at noon at Delaware Stadium.

"This is probably the biggest game of them all because this is the game that ensures you are playing to the very end," coach K.C. Keeler said at his weekly press luncheon. "I'm glad we have it here and have an extra day to prepare."

"Watching on film they (Georgia Southern) remind me of Lehigh and New Hampshire in that neither of those teams was as good in the beginning

Becoming a Master Gardener

By CARRIE MURPHY

UD EXTENSION OFFICE

Who are New Castle County Master Gardener Volunteer Educators? They play a key role in distributing information about environmentally-friendly practices for the home gardener. Topics include integrated pest and disease management, plant identification, lawn management, landscape design, and wildlife habitat development.

New Castle County Master Gardeners are vital links in an educational chain that begins with research from the University of Delaware and the horticultural industry. Education is at the heart of all Master Gardener activities, which can take many forms, including teaching by example and demonstration, and hands-on work with people of all ages.

Master Gardener volunteer educators have undergone training in a wide variety of horticultural and environmental topics coupled with training in educational methods and program evaluation. Monthly meetings bring all volunteers together to continue the learning process. The result is volunteers committed to reaching into the community to help county residents improve the quality of their lives.

New Castle County Master Gardeners' outreach effort is organized and carried out by distinct committees. For instance, the Workshops and Speaker's Bureau Committee develops and delivers a wide variety of workshops and lectures for adults—including several workshops devoted to environmentally-sensitive landscape techniques and garden design. The Youth Education Committee provides educational outreach to public and private institutions serving youth, while the Telephone and Diagnostics Committee responds to queries on the "Garden Line" by telephone, mail, and email. Additional committees create and maintain gardens to teach good horticultural practices, offer educational enrichment opportunities to our volunteers, and seek ways in which to increase Master Gardener visibility and involvement in the community. Meeting the educational needs of thousands of citizens requires the dedication, creativity, and hard work of many volunteers.

Are you interested in becoming a New Castle County, Delaware Master Gardener? The University of Delaware Cooperative Extension offers training this Spring 2011. Training begins on March 3 and runs through May 24, every Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30 am- 12:30 pm. Training is held at the New Castle County Cooperative Extension Office, 461 Wyoming Road, on the University of Delaware Newark campus. The application deadline is January 10, 2011. For more information on becoming a New Castle County Master Gardener Volunteer Educator, contact Carrie Murphy, Program Coordinator, at cjmurphy@udel.edu. The effort came to a successful conclusion early this month when more than 230 bags of groceries and $708 in cash donations went to the Food Cupboard. The boys who gave their time to this project were: John Bowden, Alan Buckmaster, Jerry Dillon, David Herrera, Nick House, Brian Jarrell, Zachary Long, Chris Mitchell, and Claude Mitchell 3rd, with parents and other members of the troop also pitching in.

Christmas Tree lot stays put Newark's Boy Scout Christmas tree lot is staying put after it appeared that problems with road access might force a move.

Dan Reel, tree sale chairman for Troop 603, said it was decided over the weekend to retain the lot off Elkton Road, rather than move to a site in Brookside. Earlier, it appeared that the move might take place last weekend. The troop holds its meetings in Brookside.

Reel said the lot will open after being closed for a couple of days, due to rain and the potential for mud. The sale has been held at the site for more than a quarter century and is the major fund-raising tool for the troop.

The Delaware Department of Transportation earlier took pains to not be seen as the "Grinch that Stole Christmas" when it came to the fate of the lot.

"At no time have they been denied the ability to sell their trees or told they could not continue," said Mike Williams, public relations director for DelDOT, in an e-mail response.

Williams confirmed in the e-mail that the traffic pattern around the lot was switched as part of the project. The change eliminated the shoulder in front of the tree lot that was previously used for customer parking and loading of trees.

Reel said the troop is now using an adjacent grassy lot for parking and loading of the trees. With the end of the rain and the onset of freezing temperatures, it was decided that the lot was OK for parking, he added. The troop has put a flagman in place to ensure safe access for vehicles entering and exiting the lot.

The troop has sold about 350 trees so far, below the normal figure of 500 and Reel hopes activity will pick up during the period of frosty weather.

POLICE BLOTTER

Jewelry, bonds taken in home robbery

Editor's note: Police Blotter items are based on reports from area police agencies. For the latest police news, log on to newarkpostonline.com.

Police are investigating the robbery of a home on Cullen Way, in the neighborhood of Hunt at Louviers, where unknown suspects made off with over $10,000 in jewelry and an undetermined amount in savings bonds.

On Dec. 7, the homeowners reported the break-in. Responding officers were notified that the homeowners were not home at the time, but that the break-in had occurred when their son had left that afternoon for approximately two and half hours.

A search of the house showed that several drawers in the bedroom had been opened, as well as the bedroom closet. Belongings were noticed to have been moved around in an effort to search for the taken items. The point of entry was a rear basement glass window that had been shattered. A rear door on the deck was also found to be unlocked.

Witnesses in the area reported seeing no unusual activity at the house. The investigation is active.

Suspects strip boat for parts

An owner of a storage lot on Interchange Boulevard reported to police that unknown suspects had entered his premises and stolen several systems from a 1996 33-foot Avanti speedboat sometime between December 6 and December 9.

The owner stated that he walks the area frequently and noticed that the cover to the Avanti had been damaged. Upon inspection, he noticed that several of the boat's systems, including the drives and the sound systems, were missing. Other items, including the fire extinguisher, step pads, and vents, were also removed. The estimated total of all stolen items is $41,550. Another $3,500 worth of damage was also done to the cover and the upholstery.

The boat was parked in a secluded area of the site. No video footage was recovered at the scene, though eight cards of fingerprints and a shoe print on the rear board were catalogued. Officers are canvassing other businesses in the area in order to recover any additional footage.

Student drinking increases...► DRINKING, from 1

age of DUIs.

Gealt showed that the overall number of binge drinkers, 66 percent, has risen from a 1993 level of 64 percent, when UD was labeled as a "binge drinking school" and first participated in the College Alcohol Study. Later surveys showed that the levels had dropped to a low of 56 percent in 1999 and 2000, due to strict enforcement of university policies. Since 2003, the rate of binge drinking has steadily climbed from 57 percent in 2003 to its present level, with a 6 percent increase from 2009 to 2010. Nationally, the average from 1993 to 2008 shows a range from a low of 38 percent in 1995 to a high of 48 percent in 2006.

The report also analyzed trends in alcohol prevention policies at the university and their effects on students. Starting in 1994, UD saw a steady decline as a committee was formed between the city of Newark and the university. Community involvement and a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation further reduced overall percentages in the late 1990s. The rate started to increase steadily in the early 2000s as the grant money was reduced.

Some additional findings of the report:

- 83 percent of UD students report drinking alcohol within the past month, including 3 out of 4 freshmen.

- Nearly 1 in 5 US students drove under the influence of alcohol or other drugs in the past year.

- There has been a program at UD for the past two years targeting students cited for alcohol-related violations, which has shown promise in reducing rates of binge drinking, especially among female students.

For a copy of the full report, please visit CDAS' website at <http://www.udel.edu/cdas/>.

City looks at job options► COUNCIL, from 1

Lastly, Deputy City Solicitor Bruce Herron was appointed, in a unanimous vote, as interim City Solicitor, effective January 1, 2011. Herron will take over the duties of Roger Akin, who, last week, announced his resignation from the post to serve as Chief Hearing Officer for the Delaware Department of State.

Though Akin gave a resounding endorsement of Herron, several members of the council stated that they would like to weigh all options, including using the resources of a firm over an individual, before a permanent appointee is named.

Councilman Jerry Clifton said, "We owe it to the city... to explore all the options." Councilman David Athey added, "[We need to] take our time on this to get it right."

The city will be advertising for the position in January.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, ARTH ARREST is useful in the treatment of painful disorders from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

Who will be the losers?

Some local and state politicians want to stop putting official notices in local newspapers and instead post them on their own websites. But what about people who don't have Internet access, or just don't want to use the Internet?

According to the U.S. Census Bureau:

Only 35% of Americans over the age of 65 use the Internet.

Only 42% of Hispanics use it.

Only 50% of African Americans use it.

If you want to keep legal notices in newspapers where they belong, contact the Maryland-Delaware-D.C. Press Association at citizen@mddcpress.com or call 410-721-4000 ext 12 and leave a message.
