JOIANN MARINO

October 29, 2014

Dear Friend,

I'm sure by now you've seen the yard signs and maybe even read a few flyers about the upcoming November 4th election.

My name is JoiAnn Marino and I'm writing today to tell you about my husband--John Marino--who's running for State Senate in District 10.

For the last few months, John's been out every day knocking on doors, meeting as many folks as he can and discussing the concerns our neighbors share about the direction our state is heading.

Just a few weeks ago, John threw his back out and I must admit I tried to convince him to take it easy for a few days.

Of course, he kept right on.

Knowing John, that didn't really surprise me... that's just the type of dedicated, hardworking man that he is.

It's that work ethic that's such a large part of who John is today--and, along with the values of personal responsibility and love for God and country, what we've always tried to instill in our children.

But, it's John's compassion and concern for others that truly make him the man he is.

They are what led to a career in law enforcement and qualities I know will help make him a great State Senator.

As you can imagine, as a wife and mother, John's career choice didn't come without worry for me.

But John's never hesitated or doubted his ability when it comes to helping someone in need, even when it meant putting his own life in danger--it's just who he is.

These days, I worry much less about his safety with John now retired from the New York Police Department.

That's what brought us to Delaware seventeen years ago, and whether helping with the children's schooling, sports, or community service projects, John's been involved in the community from our first day here.

And today, no matter how hectic things get, John still makes serving others a priority--and somehow convinces the whole family to get involved.

I hope you've gotten the chance to meet John during his campaign, but in case you didn't-- or even if you did, but would just like to know more about him-- I hope you'll read this letter.

John and I grew up just a few blocks from each other. I always knew there was something special about him, but it wasn't until after I'd moved away that we started dating.

Little did I know then that my second grade teacher would eventually become my sister-in-law.

It didn't take long for John to steal my heart, and twenty-nine years later, he still remembers what I wore on our first date!

We've been blessed with three beautiful children-- two girls and one boy.

A man of strong character and values who cherishes family above all else-- even before we were married, I knew John would be a great father and I can tell you, I couldn't have asked for a better husband.

Like many families, ours struggled at times to make ends meet. But John has always been determined to do whatever it took to support our family, even when it meant working three jobs.

But in addition to his commitment and dedication to community service, John's also a small business owner.

Several years ago, when John told me he wanted to take on the risk and responsibility of starting a real estate business, I must admit I was nervous given the economy.

It hasn't been easy, and as small business owners, we've become all too familiar with the unnecessary burdens out-of-control regulation and overreaching government policies put on our economy.

Of all the reasons John is running for State Senate, right at the top is making sure all Delaware citizens have the opportunity to thrive.

But, if things continue the way they have been, we fear the next generation will face a future with few job opportunities and crushing debt.

And with so many in Dover insistent on ever higher taxes, Delaware families face a bleak future.

That's why John is committed to do everything he can to ensure that the next generation will have a shot to succeed here in Delaware.

I know John will be a State Senator you and I can be proud of. And, if he's elected, we'll have someone that makes sure our shared values are represented in Dover.

I'm proud of what my husband is trying to accomplish and I'm proud of the campaign he's conducted.

Even while being critical of his opponents record, John's remained focused on the issues and committed to running an honest and ethical campaign--even complimenting his opponents' few admirable qualities.

That's why our family is so hurt by the ugly tactics that his incumbent opponent has resorted to.

Of course, coming from a career politician like Bethany Hall-Long, it comes as no surprise.

Anyone that knows John knows he is passionate.

They'll also tell you he is one of the most mild-mannered, calm, and level-headed people you will ever meet. So, Bethany Hall-Long's mud-slinging doesn't bother him too much.

But I am disappointed. It's exactly this kind of dirty politics that has kept Delawareans facing so many problems.

We need more men and women representing us in Dover with the kind of integrity and character that my husband possesses.

That's why I hope you'll join our family in voting for John Marino on November 4th.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

John Marino

P.S. If you want a State Senator who you can always depend on, and who will listen to the concerns of the folks who elected him, then I ask you to vote for my husband, John Marino, on November 4th.

John will fight for our shared values in Delaware!

A champion for Delaware's families, we can count on Bethany Hall-Long to:

- Help hardworking people support their families by keeping the state's minimum wage above the federal minimum wage
- Make Delaware more competitive by upgrading infrastructure and offering economic incentives, tax credits and family-friendly workplace policies to attract and retain top companies that will create jobs and grow our economy
- Invest in education to support teachers, ensure all schools are performing and provide state-of-the-art technology
- Expand early education programs and make higher education more affordable for everyone
- Boost our quality of life and improve public health by cleaning our waterways, protecting our air quality and preserving our farmland and open space
- Protect the fundamental rights of women – including defending pregnant workers
- Serve as a fiscal watchdog – rooting out waste to maintain Delaware's AAA bond rating and save taxpayers money

John Marino is running an angry campaign full of distortion.

This isn't the first time Marino's

John Marino pled GUILTY to reckless endangering and reckless driving.

After a traffic accident, John Marino recklessly chased a 15-year-old girl through the streets of Middletown – endangering everyone in his path. Marino put innocent pedestrians and drivers at risk when he broke the law. As an ex-cop, he should have known better. Now he's trying to distract from his shameful record. With that kind of temper, it's no wonder Marino is running a dishonest campaign.

If John Marino can't control his rage, how can we trust him to act rationally in public office? We need leaders who can remain calm under pressure.

Delaware's children have no stronger advocate than Bethany Hall-Long.

For Bethany Hall-Long, the fight for better health care is personal. As a mother and a nurse, Bethany knows what can happen when schools aren't prepared to handle medical emergencies. That's why she's fighting to make our schools safer for children who suffer from serious allergies and asthma and wrote legislation to protect students from concussions and cardiac arrests.

Leadership, Experience, Results

Until Bethany Hall-Long took action, schools lacked the tools to protect kids from concussions. She's a champion for healthy families.

- Led efforts to make Delaware's schools safer for children who suffer from potentially life-threatening allergies and asthma
- Wrote model legislation to protect students from concussions and cardiac arrests
- Supported efforts to give children justice against abusers by eliminating the statute of limitations in child sex abuse cases
- Pushed to update anti-stalking and anti-harassment laws with stiffer penalties for offenders

Healthy Families start with healthy moms.

A national leader in the fight to make workplaces safer for pregnant women, Bethany sponsored and passed a law to prevent discrimination and require businesses to make reasonable health accommodations for pregnant workers.

MARINO'S POOR JUDGEMENT RESULTED IN A CRASH AT THE CRICKLEWOOD GREEN DEVELOPMENT THAT SERIOUSLY INJURED AN INNOCENT BYSTANDER.

Prosecutors said he drove "in wilful and wanton disregard for the safety of persons or property". And even though he pled GUILTY, Marino blames others for his mistakes, claiming he was "persecuted".

Marino put our community at risk – and a Middletown woman paid the price. As an ex-cop, he should have known better.
